Fifty-one grade points are required for 17 units, and those carrying 18 units must have 54 grade points. In addition, no member may have a final grade lower than a C.

Students can check membership with Richardson in S-143. Dues are $1 per semester.

Officers presiding at this semester's activities are Max Savin, president; Sheree Moorer, vice president, and Elizabeth Boudrout, secretary-treasurer.

Vet Signature Deadline For Benefits March 3

Veterans claiming benefits under the GI bill must sign their IBM card during the first three days of March, Robin Dunn, veterans counselor here, said today.

The most important thing for all veterans to note, Dunne explained, is their individual deadline date. After this date is reached, the veteran must pursue his program continuously, except that he may suspend it for a period not to exceed 12 consecutive months without VA approval.

Investment In AS Yields $33.50 Return

(EDITOR'S NOTE: To impress more fully upon students here the advantages and benefits they obtain, when they join the Associated Students, Judy Day, Publicity Committee chairman, and Larry Levine, AS card sales chairman, compiled the information diagrammed below. Thus in dollars and cents students can easily grasp the savings that accompany the original five-dollar purchase.)

FOR $5 YOU GET:

College Benefits

- Admission to Frosh Ball—Reg. $2.50
- Admission to Soph Ball—Reg. $2.50
- Admission to C.A.B. Dance—Reg. $1.00
- A.M.S. Smoker—Reg. $.50
- A. W. S. Fashion Show and Fling Plus Feminine Fling
- Parking Permit—$22.00
- Voting
- Basketball Games—Reg. $4.00
- Participation in Student Government
- Little Theatre Productions—Reg. $1.00 each

Discount Benefits

Purchases and Services

- Derese French Cleaners (10% Cleaning & Laundry)
- B.S.C. Cleaners (10% Dry Cleaning)
- El Rey Music Shop (10% Regular Stock)
- Em Lor Printing (10% Printing & Personalizing)
- Jabe's Photo Shop (15% Not on Rentals)
- Legg's Ice Skating School (10% Skates & Accessories)
- S.F. Radio and Supply Co. (40%)
- Texdehl & Johnson Sporting Goods (20%)
- Tibbs Typewriter Co. (15%)
- Free & Minatti Sporting Goods (10% to 20%)
- Espenshade's Stationery & Printing

Special Attractions

- Clay and Larkin—Adult-Only Movies; No Roadshows
- Legg's Ice Skating School (Lessons & Gen.)
- Sports Center Bowl (20% Student Bowling)
- The Skihaus (Special Consideration)

Auto and Supplies

- Monterey Mobil Service (2c per Gal., 50c on Lube)
- Kray's Auto Parts (40% on Items—Not Tools or Radios)
- Paul Cohen Tires (30% On Recapping & New Tires)
- Resing Auto Supply (25% On Sales Over $1.00)

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1961 NUMBER 2

College Hour Schedule

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

WatchWord

Woes Mount For Younger Jazz Patrons

By Paul Plansky

SPAWNED in New Orleans' steaming streets and derelict saloons, from cemeteries and sharecropper shacks along the Mississippi Delta, wrought from the crudest of improvised instruments, the "joyous blares of jazz and joyless wails of blues" traveled north by riverboat.

Upon reaching Chicago, then in its era of gangsters and prohibition, its moody style and melancholy melody was stirred by the restless wind from Lake Michigan and became the roaring ragtime of the twenties.

From the Windy City the inspiration spread, not only throughout the country but all over the world. London and Paris are by no means holdouts when jazz is the keynote.

On the American jazz scene an inharmonious overture has recently evolved which has restricted the teenage patrons of jazz music. Jazz critic Nat Hentoff's introduction to his article appearing in the April '58 issue of Harper's best sums up this impropriety.

"Over the sound of clinking glasses and cash registers, the musicians are fighting to be heard . . . to get jazz out of the night clubs and into the concert halls."

Jazz concerts are coming of age and they are gaining approval as well as momentum daily, yet many young jazz enthusiasts want to see their favorite musicians "in the raw," not propped up on a concert stage, so sedate and stiff.

Somehow the smoke-filled atmosphere of such San Francisco spots as the Cellar, Jazz Workshop, and Club Hangover seems more appealing to the young set. After all, jazz wasn't born upstage, but in the wings, in the recesses.

Atmosphere can season music with just as much flavor as it can season food. Music can become habitual, and even jazz themes played on TV's Peter Gunn and M-Squad seem like extreme anachronisms.

San Francisco and the Bay Area, says Chronicle jazz columnist Ralph Gleason, are more jazz conscious than any other locale in the nation. Since our city patronizes this mode of music, one wonders why its night clubs can't open its doors to all, including teen-agers.

The reason is simple: California's liquor laws prohibit minors from any club that serves alcoholic beverages. The problem, then, is: How can juvenile jazz lovers hear their adored artists in the appropriate atmosphere without intoxicating drinks at hand.

The Blackhawk, known as the "Jazz Corner of the West," has provided a special screened-off section for teenagers, where they would be served only soft drinks while enjoying their favorite music without harm to proprietor or public.

This attempt to solve a perplexing problem seemed innocent and honest enough, yet our municipal hierarchy stood its ground firmly in upholding the state code. The plight of the young jazz seeker seems bleaker all the time.

The Blackhawk was not the first establishment to put such a parvenu system on trial. In 1958 a young San Francisco lawyer, David Glickman, opened a non-alcoholic night club for teen-agers called the Jazz Showcase.

Soft drinks were served instead of liquor, and performers included Woody Herman, the Chico Hamilton Quartet, and the Australian Jazz Quartet.

Cost of an evening's entertainment was so inexpensive that the Showcase at 84 Market Street had to close. Yet the example has been set—what is needed is more managements like the Blackhawk to follow suit.

Today's Watchword: Tolerance.

Inter-Sorority Council Sets Up New Scholarship Award Trophy For Freshman Coeds

An award sponsored by the Inter-Sorority Council will be presented to the incoming freshman coed with the highest scholastic standing at the end of the first midterm period, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced last week.

The perpetual trophy, in the form of a gold book on a brown stand, will be kept in Miss Golding's office while the recipient of the award will be given a certificate and a charm bracelet.

This prize will be presented at the Associated Women Student Fashion Show and Tea scheduled for Thursday, April 20.

Coeds who think that they might qualify for this trophy may sign up from March 20 to March 28 in S-150.

This semester the sororities are stressing grades by not admitting women without the minimum of a 2.00 grade average, Margaret Lindstrom, ISC president, said. Averages so far in the ISC are 2.36.

Gamma Sigma Sigma has an average of 2.85; Phi Beta Rho and Zeta Chi, 2.37; Delta Sigma Tau, 2.36; Theta Tau, 2.33; Delta Psi, 2.30; Gamma Kappa Beta, 2.23, and Kappa Phi, 2.07.

Miss Lindstrom added that each sorority is expected to have a service project to retain recognition. Members of other sororities give from 10 to 20 hours of work per semester.

Registration for rushing will take place during the week of March 20 to 24 in Dean Golding's office. The registration fee is $1.

Two Fraternities Win Scholarship, Service Trophies

Two fraternities won service and scholastic trophies at the Inter-Fraternity Council Smoker last Wednesday night in the men's gymnasium.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon won the scholarship award presented to the fraternity with the highest combined grade-point average for the Fall 1960 semester, and Alpha Phi Epsilon won the service award, given to the fraternity which gave the most service to the college last semester.

The former award was presented by Beta Tau fraternity and the latter by Phi Beta Delta. Preceding these presentations, prospective rushees at the smoker were given the opportunity to sign up for each of the seven on-campus fraternities.

Any men students who still wish to pledge a fraternity but who were unable to attend the smoker, have until this weekend to register with IFC, John Azzaro, IFC president, said.

A registration fee of $1 must be filed by this date in order that the prospective pledge receive an invitation to the fraternities' first rushing affairs.

Azzaro suggested that interested men students attend as many of these gatherings as possible before making their final choice.

Once they have definitely decided on a certain fraternity, men must meet the following qualifications:

The pledge must have a 2.0 grade-point average as of the first midterm period and must be carrying no less than 12 units at that time. Azzaro also strongly recommended that anyone pledging a fraternity should purchase an Associated Student card.

The actual days for Pledge Week on campus will be April 10, 11 and 13, according to a statement by Dean Ralph Hillsman last Friday. During past semesters, fraternities have helped with pre-registration and registration, have painted garbage cans around the campus, and have supervised the successful Blood Drive and "Miles of Dimes" drive.

Air Force Gives Examination

Initial exams for qualification as a United States Air Force cadet will be given here from 1 to 3 p.m. tomorrow and Friday.

This annual test will be given by Staff Sergeant James Killion and Master Sergeant Wells in S-142 to all interested high school graduates. The only other requirement is U. S. citizenship.

The examination will consist of a general mathematics test plus English, physics and chemistry tests.

Sergeant Killion will be here to answer all questions about the Air Force today and tomorrow in the courtyard.

If anyone is unable to make these dates and is still interested, he may reach Sergeant Killion at the recruiting office located at 6268 Mission Street, Daly City.

Taking these examinations does not put anyone under obligation to enlist in the Air Force.

The Air Force recruiting office has held the tests annually since 1949.

Open Hour Form Deadline Extended To March 13

The previously announced March 10 deadline for turning open hour forms in to the information booth, room 117 in Science Hall, has been extended to Monday, March 13, Walter McCloud of the counseling department said today.

Open hour forms will be distributed in the library and at entrances to Smith and Science Halls through next Monday.

Any student planning to return for the Fall 1961 semester who does not meet the deadline will be penalized with a higher registration number, McCloud warned.

JIM BUSH, last semester's Club Activities Board president, is now president of the Associated Men Students for Spring '61.

Suggestion Box First In AMS Spring Projects

Missing from the scene last semester, the suggestion box has been replaced, according to Jim Bush, Associated Men Student president.

The suggestion box, which was introduced one year ago, is now located across from the silver pole in Science Hall.

Appropriate action will be carried out on those suggestions received that are considered most beneficial to the Associated Students and to the college, Bush said.

He added that the first meeting of the AMS this semester, to which all men students are invited, will be held this Friday during College Hour in S-310.

Also under preparation this semester is the building of benches for the "vending machine addicts" in the basement; the establishment of a student court system, and the organization of a student grievance committee.

Bush predicted that 20 teams will be entered in the intramural basketball league, entrants coming from college fraternities, clubs and independents groups.

On Thursday, May 25, at the AMS smoker, the two teams with the best record following the conclusion of the regular season will meet for the championship title.

Four Instructors Join Faculty This Semester

Four new instructors have been added to the faculty here this semester to replace those who are on leaves of absence, according to President Louis G. Conlan.

Three of the new instructors, Janet Stoll, Louisa Hepper and Naomi Ruttner, are substituting for Mary B. Perry of the counseling department. George Stewart of the business department, and Lucile Meredith of the English department, respectively, all of whom are on Sabbatical leave.

Also new to the counseling department is Richard Fenner. Fenner is replacing Joseph Jacobsen, who is now with the State Department of Education.

In addition to these four new instructors, there are 15 cadet teachers this semester, teaching in eight different fields. All of these cadets are from either the University of California or San Francisco State College.

Robert Chrisman in the English department, Rolf Bensler in life science, George Johnson in geology, and Eleanor Morris in journalism are from the University of California.

Chrisman, a 1955 graduate of City College, was Sports Editor of The Guardsman and a member of the editorial board.

Those from San Francisco State are David Bliss in psychology; Bruce Dougherty, Leonard Lundquist and Joe Thorn in English; Tokihiko Suyehiro in mathematics; and Eugene Kretschmer, Claudette Mark, Ellen Mullany, Forrest Smith and Irving Wallace in communications.

This semester the business department lost two of its instructors. The first, Margaret Flournoy, retired from the faculty in February. Miss Flournoy was a graduate of the University of California and had been here since 1935.

Death claimed the other. He was Harold Friedman, who had been an instructor here since September 1955. Friedman was a graduate of San Francisco State College.

Word was received at the college Friday that Nelson Wells, pioneer life science instructor here who retired in 1958, drowned February 24 while swimming off the coast of Mazatlan, Mexico.

Freshman Ball Committee

PREPARING POSTERS AND OTHER PARAPHERNALIA for the Freshman Ball, seven members of the Freshman Class pose in front of the new cafeteria annex of Smith Hall. The Redwood Ram adds a traditional prop along with the ladder, which may be an omen as to the "great heights" the coming dance will reach. This committee is planning the final details for the Ball to be given Friday, March 24, at the St. Francis Hotel. The officers and chairmen pictured are from the left bottom: Roberta Dixon, recording secretary; Jenell Rogers, corresponding secretary; Jackie Rommel, dance committee chairman; Jan Doudlet, vice president; Chuck Wood, president; Stan Burford, activities chairman; and Otto Van Duyn, treasurer.—Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Guitarist Ramos First Headliner In Spring Concerts

Flamenco guitarist Carlos Ramos and harpist Ann Adams are scheduled to be the featured attractions in the first two concerts of this semester's Spring Concert Series.

Ramos is scheduled for College Hour Friday, March 17, and Mrs. Adams will appear during College Hour on April 24, Bob Pacini, Symphony Forum chairman here, said.

Ramos has been acclaimed in many parts of the world, including Canada, Europe, South and Central America, for his faithful interpretation of the true flamenco.

Recently he has made spectacular appearances at New York City's Town Hall, Boston University and the University of California. He has made tours with Jose Greco's Spanish Ballet and the famous Hurtado de Cordoba Company.

Mrs. Adams, first harpist of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, has made several appearances as soloist with Arthur Fiedler in his Summer Concert Series. Wife of a surgeon and mother of four children, Mrs. Adams is on the faculty at Mills College.

The concert series was inaugurated last semester with the appearance of Rama Junker, famed Belgian cellolst. His concert was well received, and the two concerts scheduled for this semester, according to Pacini, are expected to be as successful.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1961 Page 2

Student Practice Of Courtesies Can Lead To A Contented Cafe

LET'S FACE IT. The cafeteria problem, mess, crisis or any other suitable adjective that accurately describes the situation in Smith Hall, a source of major concern as far back as a year ago, is still with us and apparently is going to be with us for a long time to come.

This over-crowding of Smith Hall and the frustrating congestion it causes between the rush, or crush, hours of 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., has not made a sudden appearance at the college. It has been building up for some time, paralleling the steadily rising enrollment here.

A year ago at this time Sherman Elworthy, student government adviser, was already tackling the cafeteria noise and space problem. In an open letter to students of the college, which appeared in The Guardsman, Elworthy offered several valuable suggestions to aid in alleviating the daily lunch hour traffic jam in Smith Hall.

One of Elworthy's primary concerns, in effect, was this: socializing is all right in its proper time and place. However, Smith Hall between the hours of 11 and 1 is not the proper time and place. Smith Hall, supposedly, is an area of the college where students can enjoy a leisurely lunch in a pleasant, quiet and relaxed atmosphere.

Oh, yeah?

Instead of this lunch room utopia we have what amounts to a daily performance of the mob scene from Aida. This could be done away with if students who use the facilities of Smith Hall would, in some delirious moment, give thought to their fellow students, vacate their places at the tables as soon as they are through and, gracefully and quickly, bow out. Is this too much to ask?

There are, of course, those who will persist in monopolizing entire tables for an hour or two, thinking or caring little of others who would like to get a decent lunch before tackling afternoon classes. If students fail to practice common courtesies, then, we feel Elworthy entirely justified in using more forceful means of relieving the Smith Hall crush.

It seems unnecessary and almost ludicrous to have to suggest something like this, for we are supposedly mature college students, and capable of acting like adults. We shouldn't have to be told when we're through with lunch to clean up our scraps like bad little children and make room for someone else.

This, in effect, is what Elworthy must do. We are not, however, suggesting a general boycott of Smith Hall or that everyone engage in speed-eating contests. We are suggesting that students who enjoy eating their lunch in Smith Hall use a little common sense and decency.

The loud growl that monopolizers of chairs and tables in Smith Hall hear behind them may be one of two things—Elworthy graciously inviting them to try the exit door or some poor, empty stomach and the student who owns it seeking a place and some time to enjoy a welcomed, and necessary, relaxing lunch.

Drama Students Transport College Theater

Aspiring Thespians To Move Stage Equipment

Drama students banded together recently to strike the college theater.

Striking the theater is an old circus term, meaning to take down the tents, pack up and be ready to move on to the next place for the show.

Thus the walls and the stage of the small theater in the basement of Science Hall appeared bare and forlorn last week. Everything that could be of value to the drama department was packed and ready to be moved to the new arts building.

M. J. Griffin, drama instructor at the college, hopes to have his department moved possibly by April 1.

"We are fortunate in being one of three colleges in the United States to have the latest type of winch, used for rapid shifting of equipment," Griffin proudly stated, "but we will have no money for new sets until the next fiscal year."

The new theater will have a seating capacity of 350, and since the stage will be larger than the old one, plays with larger casts can be presented. Three potential productions for this semester that are now being read are Ah Wilderness, Street Scene and The Tempest.

The situation will be awkward until the move is completed because for the present there is no place for rehearsal.

The appearance of what had been the theater since 1946 and which is now being converted to an electronics laboratory, creates an eerie feeling.

Peering closely at the stage, stripped now of its glamour, one can almost make out the shadowy forms of actors, and by listening intently, lines can almost be heard from plays past, echoing softly through the theater that was.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacation, by students in the journalism-new-paper production department of City college of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister

Editorial Assistants: Dick Dravgaon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Gerald Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes.

Reporters: Dick Dravsgon, Dianne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hecker, Herman Kilgerman, Gerald Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve.

Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendores, Nigel Brown, Richard Edwards, Cynthia Fruitman, Frederick Gregory, Larry Harrison, Margaret Hawkins, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Ralph Leftwich, William Mercilli, Herbert Mizis, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Sells, Evelyn Thude, Christopher Wilde, Bob Yeary.

Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Eggers, Eduardo Del'Aqua, Gary Lair.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

THE THINGS YOU SEE and hear around the campus:

A car, creeping down Phelan Avenue at a snail's pace, holding up traffic and causing much honking of horns by those who are trying to pass it.

The initial letters on his license plate: JET.

* * *

A STUDENT photographer, armed to the teeth with equipment, being asked by a friend what he was up to. "My first assignment," he said. "I have to get a picture of Mr. Vasquez, the track coach; Mr. Klemmer, the golf coach; Mr. Phelan, the basketball coach, and Mr. Eisan, the baseball coach."

"Why not go up to the theater and get a picture of Mr. Griffin?" suggested his friend. "Who," said the shutterbug, "is he?"

"He's the stage coach."

* * *

AN ERRING student, overparked, trying to borrow the money from a campus policeman to pay the ticket.

* * *

A BEAUTIFUL sunny day and many of the students taking their lunch into the fresh air. One young lady, seated on the grass behind Cloud Hall, is engrossed with her escort's conversation.

She sets her sandwich down and then picks it up, or so she thinks. What a picture she made, trying to bite into her notebook.

* * *

HERB CAEN walking around the cafeteria one day last week. Half of the students were trying to get in his way to be seen. The other half acted as though they were trying to hide. Skeletons in closets?

* * *

THE RENO atmosphere around the coffee machine in the basement of Science Hall whenever someone gets six nickels and a cup of coffee for a quarter.

The long face on the previous customer who paid a quarter for a cup of coffee because he couldn't find the change return slot.

Super Sandwichman

Pre-Med Major Tucks Away Big Noontime Meal

By Ivan Temes.

When anyone tells this fellow he's "full of baloney," he means it literally.

And when someone thinks a club is having a picnic in Smith Hall during the lunch hour, let him take another look, because it's probably only a hungry college student, Alberto Ceffalo, having his daily repast.

Who else brings from 12 to 16 sandwiches to the campus every day, sits down and starts chomping at lunchtime and doesn't stop until somehow he has managed to get through the whole stack?

Of course, he doesn't eat only sandwiches. Two or three cokes and a milk shake along with a pound of nuts and an apple help round out a well-balanced diet.

When asked why he has such an appetite, the sophomore student from Peru states simply enough, "I'm hungry."

His excessive diet hasn't done anything to hamper the physique of the 20-year-old, for he stands 5-8 and weighs a well-balanced 145 pounds.

Ceffalo, who is studying pre-medicine here and hopes to go on to the University of California, estimates that he has eaten some 2800 sandwiches while at the college. His favorite is cheese and salami and, of course, bologna.

While having nothing against the food in Smith Hall, he simply feels it would deplete his budget if he were to attempt to buy his lunch here every day.

Once Ceffalo ate at an Ocean Avenue eatery and couldn't understand the expression of the waitress after he gobbled down five hot dogs and then ordered five more.

The student, who is living with two uncles—both weigh well over 200 pounds—and an aunt while his family remains in Peru, came here in 1959.

Not wanting to threaten the amount of aid sent to Peru, he says that most of his fellow countrymen eat quite a bit less than he does.

'But It's Too Hot!'

A FELLA CAN'T EVEN ENJOY A CUP OF COFFEE ANYMORE! But Sherman Elworthy has good reason to tell Chris Wise to "make it quick." A leisurely CUP of coffee is okay, but from the looks of the late afternoon empty cafeteria, it can be overdone! (Cup courtesy of Pacific Coast Coffee Association.)—Guardsman photo by Gary Lair.

'Squatters' Add To Already Critical Cafe Seating Crush

With the advent of the new fountain/snack bar section and the added cashiers, the seating problem in Smith Hall's cafeteria is more critical than ever before.

Cafeteria manager John Dunn's staff is turning people out through the serving lines at twice the previous speed. Their capacity for service is double what it was last semester.

All of this has served to increase, if not double, Sherman Elworthy's problem of providing adequate seating for the diners.

Seating capacity has not been increased in the dining rooms since a year ago.

Elworthy's predicament is similar to that of a baseball catcher if the pitchers starting throwing two balls at the same time.

Spring is helping somewhat. Many students are having lunch outside.

Elworthy is happy to have nature on his side, but he is depending more on the students for the final solution.

Probably the greatest drawback in not having enough chairs to seat the entire student body en masse is the fact that some students insist on exercising squatters' rights and remaining in the room after finishing lunch.

Often students must stand up and eat while many seats are still occupied by those who are finished and have nothing left to chew but the fat.

Others linger over coffee they obviously don't want just to see if it is possible to outwait Elworthy.

Students who leave AS SOON AS THEY ARE THROUGH EATING will do the most toward breaking up the noontime jam.

Elworthy could very well propose the slogan, "Buy your lunch: eat it: then beat it!"—By C.W.

Per Cents Make Sense

Stats Stereo Student Habits

Every year about this time statisticians compile data on everything from the Gross National Product to the number of imported ping-pong balls; even the college has been broken down into a series of general statistics, and here are a few details the composers overlooked.

There are 7536 students comprising 100 per cent of the student body. Of this number there are 19.029 more men than women, but the women are 2.4 more attractive.

Fifty-seven per cent of the students drive .0195 per cent of a car; the rest ride 7.9 of a bus, or have .5 of a parent transport them to the campus.

While going to class each student carries 3.7 per cent of his books, or 27.9 pounds, wears out .001 inches of shoe leather and chews 2.3 sticks of gum, of which 1.7 lands on the floor.

After class, 99.05 per cent head for the cafeteria where they occupy 2.7 seats each and drive the management 110 per cent wild. They drink 1.9 milkshakes or gorge .98 of a lunch they brought from home. The other .02 is distributed among needy friends.

After the stint in the cafeteria 45 per cent go to their jobs, 54.9 head home, while the other .1 goes around dreaming up crazy stats like this.

Foresight

By Richard Shields

WITH THE USUAL creative genius which has become his style, Ingmar Bergman, in Virgin Spring, once again depicts a story dealing with the pathos and vain dreams which forever deceive mankind in his search for happiness.

Bergman's main difference from his contemporaries is in the tremendous emotional impact which he is able to inject into scenes of stark realism, negative or positive in approach to the problems which people face in life.

In Virgin Spring, Bergman's characters are faced with the dilemma involved in trying to reconcile the moral consequences of revenge with the apparent motives and justification.

The story tells of the disruption of life and dreams for a family in 13th Century Sweden and how religious faith meets the challenge of catastrophe; it is taken from a folk song, Daughter Of Tore Vange.

The daughter, Karen, played by Brigitta Pettersson, is to take candles to the village church when the story opens; she wears her best clothes and sets out early in the morning, planning on a day-long trip.

She is carefree and happy as she rides down the forest trail, a sharp contrast to the moody sullenness of her stepsister who, frightened by the forest, runs away.

Karen blissfully continues her journey until she meets three shepherds, two men and a boy, with whom she shares her lunch.

Before long they attack her and, as the awful import of what has happened sinks in for her, one of the men strikes her down from behind. That night, unknowing, the men stop at her father's house looking for work.

Their crime is discovered when they try to sell Karen's fine clothes to her mother; the revenge of Tore Vange is swift and effective. He stabs one man to death, chokes the other, and crushes the boy against the wall.

After finding Karen's body in the forest, Tore Vange swears that he will build a church on the site of her death as atonement for his act of revenge: when he picks her up to take her home, a stream of water, the Virgin Spring, gushes forth from where she had lain.

The story is essentially one of the myriad simple narratives recounting the "miracles" which embellish the history of the Christian religion. No one, as well as Bergman, could have given it the drama, realism and poignant sentiment which makes it one of the best foreign films of the year.

Volume 52, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1961 Page 3

Spring Sports Make Debut Friday

Hoopsters Topple Final Two Opponents, Tie Comets For Second Place In Big Eight

By Ivan Temes

Striking early and effectively in both contests, the Ram cagers, removed from the pressures of title contention, closed their Big Eight season in a second place deadlock with Contra Costa by knocking off the Comets 65-55 and easily defeating Stockton 77-67.

Losing but one of their final six conference games, Sid Phelan's quintet brought their overall record to 16-12 and league mark to 10-4 but still found themselves two games behind powerful Oakland.

Though upset in their finale by Sacramento, the Thunderbirds move on to the State Tournament where they open against high-scoring Los Angeles City College, the same club which upended the Rams in the championship round of the Modesto Tournament early this year.

Out to avenge an earlier loss to Contra Costa, the college hoopsters took just over three minutes to build a quick 10-1 over their "flat" opponents.

With Orlando Camp showing the way on the backboards and All-League candidate Charlie Williams and Bobby Grayson, who collected 23 and 18 points respectively for the game, doing the brunt of the scoring, the locals stayed in front all the way.

Previous to the Stockton encounter, Phelan's outfit hadn't tallied over 67 points in a game all year but hitting 50 per cent of their shots for the game and taking a 38-23 halftime lead helped them break the mark.

Though both starting guards, Grayson and Will Rockmore were playing the last game here, Camp and center Jesse Arterberry with 17 and 12 markers respectively paced the scoring.

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

IF ONE THING is apparent from spring sports at the college this year, it is the direct relation between on-campus athletic facilities and winning teams.

Attractive football stadiums, basketball pavilions, and baseball diamonds seem to be more powerful inducements for athletes than a school's academic standing or even its coaching staff.

At the college for instance, a new stadium, complete with running track, was opened in 1960. This spring Coach Lou Vasquez has had the largest turnout in four seasons here.

More than 50 athletes, many of them high school stars last year, have applied for the team.

Baseball coach Lee Eisan has always been aided by nearby Balboa Field. This season he appears to have a better-than-average Ram baseball club because of numerous first-year prospects.

On the other hand, golf coach Grover Klemmer and swimming coach Roy Burkhead are not in such admirable straits.

Burkhead's squad must arrange practices at McLaren Pool and there is always the problem of short practice sessions at the public pool. This college is the only one of five Big Eight Conference schools without a home pool, and league competition shows the results.

Golf has never been a strong sport here, possibly because the players must go out of their way to get to the golf courses.

If this college were rich enough to build a private course of its own, for instance, we have the feeling that Ram golfers would be the scourge of Big Eight.

Tennis, a strong sport although the players travel to Golden Gate Park for practice, can be excepted because San Francisco has always been a strong city for the sport.

The reputation that such tennis players as Jim Watson and Nick Scharf built for the college a few years ago is a reason why many athletes this year are willing to make the small sacrifice.

What does all this mean? As we see it the bigger, richer colleges have a distinct advantage in intercollegiate sports. Attractive athletic facilities can be the greatest persuaders to obtain athletes.

Today's athlete is a little spoiled since he is in a position to demand the most aggreable circumstances for his participation.

It also jeopardizes our dream of he-man athletes who would do anything to play a game of baseball or a set of tennis.

* * *

THAT EXTRA reservoir on Phelan Avenue, next to the one used for student parking, was put to good use during the rainy season this year.

When his baseball team was forced to abandon Balboa Field because of wet grounds, Coach Eisan took his troops to the reservoir and held practice with rubber-coated baseballs.

It was a strange sight, with some of the players practicing down in the center area and other running around the elevated rim—which makes a perfect track, incidentally.

Eisan provided the finishing touch when he found a way to drive his Renault over the embankment and into the reservoir area.

JV Cagers Cop Two For 15-Win Record

Paced by a fine team effort, the Ram junior varsity basketballers last week downed the San Francisco State junior varsity 39-58, and Concordia College 51-41, to bring their win total to 15 for the year.

Coach Alex Schwarz's squad, which has suffered only eight setbacks this season, had to hold off the onrushing Gators in the final minutes after both Ram guards had fouled out. But big Andy Kerr came in to take control of the backboards as the Rams edged their arch-rivals for the second time this season.

Center Harbie Briscoe headed the victors with 19 points, and Al Richardson along with Frank Hunt tallied 13 apiece. Forward Bob Soper hit nine valuable points while guard John Jacobson impressed with his fine floor play.

Schwarz let the first-stringers build a quick lead against Concordia and then allowed the substitutes to see some first half action. The starters had to return in the second half to clinch the win as Briscoe and Hunt scored 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Throughout the year the squad, which Schwarz rates with the best the college has had, has been able to rely on its impressive team play and a great deal of hustle to amass a top record.

Four Named To Attend Monterey RA Meeting

Four delegates from the Recreation Association will attend the annual California Athletic Recreation Federation Conference this Friday in Monterey, RA President Kay Vanderford announced today.

The delegates, Nancy Parraga, Karen Kinney, Shirley Thornton and Miss Vanderford, will attend discussions at which topics and problems of interest to Recreation Associations will be aired.

On Saturday at San Francisco State College, six members of the RA fencing team will represent the college in a six-team meet. Other competing teams will include College of San Mateo.

Competition is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. in gym 121.

This Week In Sports . . .

FRIDAY

- Baseball—Rams vs. St. Mary's at Balboa Park, 2:45 p.m.
- Golf—At Stockton, 1 p.m.
- Tennis—At Sacramento, 3 p.m.
- Swimming—Sacramento, 4 p.m.
- Recreation Association—Three-day Western Area Conference.

TUESDAY

- Golf—Rams vs. San Jose State Frosh at Sharp's Park, 1 p.m.
- Baseball — At San Jose State Frosh, 3 p.m.

Baseball Season Underway As Rams Face St. Mary's Here

By Jerry Littrell

Shifting into second gear, the City College diamondmen, sporting a 2-2 pre-season record thus far, face St. Mary's College at 2:45 p.m. this Friday at Balboa Field.

After locking to Hancock and the University of California JV's, the Rams came back to defeat San Jose City College and Balboa High in the pre-season. This Friday's game with the Gaels will be the first real test of their depth.

Coach Lee Eisan plans to build his team around six returning veterans. These players, plus a new crop of rookies, should give him one of the most formidable teams in the Big Eight.

Don Lowpensky, pitcher and first baseman, will probably be Eisan's mainstay on the mound. This left-hander has a season's experience behind him and should be one of the best players on the team.

Referred to as the "old man," Rich Medaglia will play shortstop for the Rams this year. This 23-year-old veteran came from Santa Clara and is considered fully capable of handling this position.

Hard-hitting Ed Preston will be playing in left field. He played at Riordan High and is counted upon to supply the power for the club.

Eric Lyons hit .308 for the horsehiders last year and a similar average this year would give the club a boost. Speedy Lyons will have the duty of patrolling the center field area.

Right field will probably be handled by two players this season. Both Bob Lane and Ray Greggains are veterans from last year and either one can play any outfield position.

Greggains, the weaker hitter of the two, is expected by Eisan to come out of the stump that has hampered him so far. Lane, a .333 hitter from last year, will be giving Greggains competition for the position.

Pitcher Randy Pace needs a lot of work but could easily turn out to be a tremendous player.

The empty spot left when All-Big Eight catcher Bob Farber was graduated will be filled by two rookies in their first year.

Jim Carroll, catcher from Balboa, worked the first three practice games and showed good ability in handling the pitchers. Phil Van Tassell has been hampered by a hand injury thus far but should see action against St. Mary's.

Perhaps the biggest punch in the Rams' lineup will come from third base, where Frank Gable is stationed. Gable hits all kinds of pitches to all fields. He has led the Rams thus far by collecting seven hits in three games.

When Lowpensky is pitching, a strapping first-sacker will be ready to take his place. Jesse Wilson is the slugger who can fill this position. A star in Sunday League baseball, he was awarded a trophy for his tremendous hitting abilities.

Ready to assume the responsibilities of a starting pitcher is Art Groza from Washington High. He has adequate abilities to buck up his self-assurance.

With this strong squad the Rams could find the top spot in the Big Eight this season.

SPRING FEVER HITS COACHES! City College's spring coaches introduce their favorite sports in this combined photo by Guardsman photographer Tom Eggert. In the top row, pictured in secret practice sessions, are the following coaches: Lee Eisan, baseball; Roy Diederichsen, tennis; Roy Burkhead, swimming. Bottom row: Lou Vasquez, track; Grover Klemmer, golf.

Netters Open League Play Against Sacramento Friday

Hoping for a third Big Eight championship in four years, Coach Roy Diederichsen's tennis team goes against Sacramento Friday in its first league match.

Last year's number one player, Vince Chinn, will not be with the team this semester because he is in the Army. However, this year's team is considered so well-balanced that the first five men are just about equal.

The first five are Jack Bracken, returning after a year's absence; Rich Murray, a freshman from Lincoln; John Welles, a freshman from Berkeley; Paul Barth, a one-year veteran, and Randy Chun, a freshman from Lowell.

Three very promising hopefuls are Jack Strauss, a freshman from Lowell; Tom Floyd, another freshman from Lowell, and Bob Silverstein, a freshman from George Washington.

In the Northern California championship matches two doubles teams from the college reached the semi-finals. In the singles matches Bracken won twice but lost in the quarter-finals.

Aquamen Preparing For Big Eight Season

Still lacking depth and experience, the Ram mermen face a rough schedule starting with Friday's match at Sacramento.

Coach Roy Burkhead still is desperately in need of backstrokers for the team. So far he has to base his hopes on returning seniors Rich Sullivan and Al Stevens. Sullivan is the All-American from last year's competition.

Strong Cindermen Prep For Opener

Loaded with talent and depth in most events, the Ram track squad, under mentor Lou Vasquez, is looking forward to another winning season opening with the Big Eight Conference Relays Saturday, March 18 in Sacramento.

Rapidly rounding into condition are such individual standouts as weightman Alex Darnes and jumpers El Bridges, George Holland and John Kelley.

Pole - vaulter Ray Bautiste and sprinters Carlin Vance and Bob Hector are also progressing well.

Frank James, Tom Jennings, Bill Hotchkiss, Jose Valle, Alvin Waxman and Roger Ritchie are capable in all three distance events.

James was the second-place miler in the Big Eight Conference last year and appears to be a good bet to cop top honors this year since, under Coach Vasquez's guidance, he has become much stronger and faster.

Unfortunately, the college's new track will not be ready for meets this season.

Stockton Is Foe In Golf Starter

Ram golfers get their league competition under way Friday at Stockton, as Coach Grover Klemmer tries to improve on last year's record.

He will send a predominately freshman squad into the 1 p.m. match. Gary Mialocq, Jim Baffico, Grant Fahs, Steve Simon, Max Savin and Bob Meinst, plus veterans Bill Shaw and Len Feld, have shown promise in the early season.

Tuesday at 1 p.m. the team will have a practice match against San Jose City College at Sharp Park. Thus far they have won two of three pre-season matches.

Their latest win was a 9-6 decision over Menlo Junior College.

College of San Mateo is rated by Klemmer as the team to beat in the golf competition. The Rams will meet them a week from next Friday, March 17, at the Peninsula Country Club.

Ted Williams began his baseball career with San Diego of the PCL in 1936.

Soph Class Pushes Bay Area Intercollegiate Ball Projects; Tentative April 28 Date Set

Sophomore President George Woo, along with other student leaders attending various colleges and universities in the Bay Area, is spearheading a drive to sponsor an intercollegiate ball on Friday, April 28.

The intercollegiate ball is the biggest activity that the Sophomore Class here will be involved in this semester, Woo said. The plans for the affair were put in motion last semester by the sophomores, and now, he added, just a few details have to be ironed out.

The price is set at $3.75 a couple, it is semi-formal, and either the Civic Auditorium in San Francisco or the Cow Palace in San Mateo County will be the site of the ball. A big-name entertainer, possibly either Johnny Mathis or Harry Belafonte, will be performing, Woo said.

Among the colleges involved in the planning and which will be participating are the University of California, Stanford, Mills College, College of San Mateo and City College.

The Sophomore Ball will be held on June 3 and will be semi-formel, Woo said.

Club Cavalcade

Organizations Plan Variety Of Events

CHAOS and confusion have simmered to a minimum as clubs and organizations begin planning for events which will occur in the weeks to come.

To start the ball rolling is the Engineering Society, whose newly elected officers are Paul Cannon, president; Neal Solloway, vice president; Gail Gray, secretary; Bill May, treasurer; Tom Naughton, sergeant-at-arms.

Tonight the Newman Club will hold a business meeting at 7:30 in the St. Emydius Parish Hall, 231 Jules Avenue off Ocean.

Exchange of ideas of films, theater, sports and other college activities are in store for those who join Le Cercle Francais, which meets during College Hours in S-312. Requirement to join is some knowledge of French and an abundant joie de vivre, officers said.

President of the Block SF Society, Bill Richardson, is gathering ideas from his fellow officers and members to provide a roster of members and other information of the club activities. Aiding Richardson on this venture are Tom Jennings, vice president; Emil Ruiz, secretary, and Flavio Valient, CAB representative.

Phi Beta Rho sorority initiated its service project by donating time to assist the children at Shriners' Hospital. The project, to continue throughout the semester, is under the direction of President Pat Comerford. Vice President Carol Mantel, Corresponding Secretary Sue Batmale, Recording Secretary Gail Shaadt, Treasurer Barbara Bell, Pledge Mistress Marsha Arvelo, Historian Jo Schutte and Sergeant-at-Arms Carrie Ross.

Gamma Sigma Sigma service sorority is planning its annual Easter fund drive.

This semester's officers are Margaret Lindstrom, president; Norma Ottiniano, first vice president; Gisele Vonputtkamer, second vice president; Claire Weiner, corresponding secretary; Sue Walraven, recording secretary; Shirley Young, treasurer; Birgitta Bergman, historian, and Ede Huber, alumni secretary.

Crescendos To Highlight Friday's Rally At Ram

Entertainment by Bill McCubbin and the Crescendos is tentatively scheduled for a College Hour rally at the Ram this Friday, according to Jeri Crivelli, rally commissioner.

Also performing will be the song girls, under the leadership of Jean Hilleman, and the cheerleaders under Chuck Wood. The rally, financed by Associated Student funds, is free to all students for the purpose of promoting spirit for the coming baseball season.

The spring semester officers are as follows: Assistant rally commissioner, Harriet Bayard; secretaries, Maxime Randall and Nancy Dahle; treasurer, Marilynn Santos; historian, Doris Jordan; CAB representative, Paul Snowberg, and equipment chairman, Don Verdu.

American Look Next In Film Series

A 29-minute film, American Look, the second in a series of films to be featured this semester, will be shown this Friday during College Hour in S-136, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor here.

It is an award-winning film showing the newest works of the nation's creative artists and architects.

In awarding a citation for this film, the Freedoms Foundation described it as an "outstanding achievement in bringing about a better understanding of the American way of life."

All films to be featured during College Hours will be shown in S-136.

Strict Crackdown Promised On All Illegally Parked Vehicles

Campus Police officers are on duty from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. during every college day. Any student whose car is illegally parked on campus during this time will be tagged, according to Campus Chief of Police James Tedesco.

For on-campus and reservoir parking a student is required to have an Associated Student card, a driver's license, and a parking permit, properly displayed on the windshield of the vehicle.

CRIMINOLOGY majors sometimes suffer from writer's cramp as they tour the campus on their scheduled beats.

According to Tedesco, the Campus Police have had little trouble with illegally parked cars this semester, but he anticipates some trouble in the new parking lots next to the arts building.

The reason for this anticipation is that, according to Tedesco, "The lots are new and some students believe that these lots are off-campus."

Parking is allowed in only two of the three new lots next to the arts building. The parking lot nearest to Riordan High School is a faculty parking lot and any cars parked there, other than faculty cars, will be tagged.

Signs, although they are not required, will be posted in the near future to guide students where to and where not to park.

Areas where a student may park are as follows: Area bounded by Ocean Avenue and athletic field; area bounded by men's gymnasium and east of Cloud Hall; area bounded by men's gymnasium and the Horticulture Center; area bounded by Phelan Avenue and Riordan High School.

A total of 1330 parking permits have been issued so far. Students wishing to obtain permits may do so in C-120.

Baubles, Binders And Books

THE LOST IS FOUND—Dorothy Neil, coed student here, hea e feaet going through the lost erticlee in Administretor Oecar E. Andereon's office, room 303 in Cloud Hall.

Ruth Hoburg, secretary to Dr. Anderson, co-ordinator, division of educational menagament, etetee thet other lost iteme should be brought to one of threa convenient locatione on campus—S-149, C-303, or the Smith Hall finance office.

All articlea are eventually brought to C-303 where etudents may fill out a requisition to regain them. If the goode are found the etudent will receive a postcard telling him to come and cleim them.

Mrs. Hoburg is in every day from 8:30 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 5 p.m.

Itame, euch es those in the picture renging from eilly to non-silly hate, gleeese, booke for forgotten coursee, binders, pene, coats end ringe may be requieitioned by the owners.

Horticulture Students To Enter Spring Garden Shows

Two garden shows are on this semester's schedule for the ornamental horticulture department under the direction of Harry Nelson.

The department will enter both the Oakland Spring Garden Show, which is to be held on April 20 at the Oakland Civic Auditorium, and the Marin Art and Garden Show, held in the early spring of each year at Ross.

Plans have already been made for the Oakland display, which is to be an outdoor contemporary garden in modern design, Nelson said. Last year the department took first place in both the Oakland and Marin shows.

The horticulture department is providing the plans, plants and labor necessary to beautify the new arts building.

More than 300 orchid plants as well as plants native to Australia and New Zealand have been donated to the department by Franklin Gamble, well known orchid grower of Mill Valley.

City College has been included as one of the recipients of the scholarship awards given annually by the California Association of Nurserymen.

Jack Wick, assistant secretary of the organization, has announced that Alex Woolworth, a student in the ornamental horticulture department, is the first one to receive the award, which consists of a plaque and $25.

The plaque is to be presented at a dinner held by the Peninsula Chapter of the California Nurserymen's Association in the near future.

Prizes Awarded To Top Card Salesmen

Climaxing a month of intensive competition, the three top salesmen in the Associated Student card sales contest, Alex Jacobson, Bob Ross and Herman Pearson were awarded their respective prizes last Friday at the Club Activities Board dance.

The first prize, won by high salesman Jacobson, who sold 396 cards, was a transistor radio. Ross, as runner-up with 205 sales to his credit, was presented with two tickets to the film Exodus.

Pearson, third ranking salesman, was given a record of the sound track of the same film for his selling of 96 cards.

The record for individual salesmanship in the long history of the contest is held by Berlolina, who finished on top last semester with a total of more than 800 cards.

In announcing that his committee has sold 1950 cards to date, Larry Levin, AS card sales chairman, expressed confidence that the goal of 2000 cards set by Student Council would be surpassed. Levin is still aiming for his own goal of 2500 cards.

The present total sold, however, is still running second to last semester's record which was 2600 sales at this point.

Grad Petitions Due

Any student planning to graduate this semester must file a graduation petition by this Friday with Mary Jane Learnard, registrar here.

All students must comply with this regulation in order to graduate, Miss Learnard warned.

Council Moves To Protect Ram From Vandals

By Dick Dregavon

Tabling the Associated Men Student budget because of sudden new amendments, the Student Council turned to discussion on possible protective measures against future attacks of vandalism on the Redwood Ram.

The Ram, which was carved for the college in 1939 by Dudley Carter at the Golden Gate International Exposition, was scorched recently in a burning attempt by an unknown party.

In past years it has endured another arson try, various colored coats of paint, and a tarring and feathering.

It is the opinion of council that the Ram should not be left exposed for further abuses, and that an investigation should be made as to the costs of moving it somewhere inside one of the campus buildings.

A committee was formed to determine costs and availability of space.

Action on the AMS budget was postponed when AMS President Jim Bush announced a few newly discovered economy measures which, coupled with further amendments made by the council investigator, would bring the total request to an uncalculated figure below $641.

The budget was then tabled.

The student-faculty lectures were also the subject of discussion when it was found that the AS was paying the entire bill for the lecturers.

Gary Wilkening, Student - Faculty Relations chairman, reported that the instructors felt that since the audiences were composed mostly of students that the AS should bear the cost.

Comment by council members brought out, however, that in addition to the good representation of faculty members at the lectures, many instructors require their classes to attend certain of these programs.

On this basis, council hoped to be able to gain financial support from the faculty.

A final item brought before the council was the plan to attempt to limit the attendance at the Soph and Frosh Balls by making the admission free only to the respective class members holding AS cards.

This measure was not received enthusiastically, since it was considered to be discriminatory toward AS members and respective class members. It was tabled pending further investigation.

Photo Lecture Set For Next Week

A lecture on the special use of photographic makeup will be presented to students on Friday, March 17, during College Hour, according to Charles Lamp, photography instructor here.

Sponsored by Caroline Leonetti Cosmetics, the show will feature representative Jacqueline Dencharfsky, district manager of the firm.

Besides making cosmetics for women's grooming, the company also makes cosmetics for use in photography. Mrs. Dencharfsky, making her first appearance at the college, will use these cosmetics in her demonstration.

206 Students Qualify For AGS Membership

Officers of Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, yesterday announced a list of 206 students who are eligible for membership and also plans to hold a dance this semester.

Sponsor William Richardson stated that the dance has been tentatively set for May 5.

Life members of the California Scholarship Federation from high school may become associate members.

Listed below are students who may joint the AGS by consulting Richardson in S-143:

Alice Abbey, Nick Akimoff, Charles Anderson, Stanley Anderson, Kathryn Andresen, Salvatore Archini, Bernice Arimoto, Susan Armanini, Joyce Armstrong;

Lee Baker, Thomas Barrington, Gary Bedsworth, Joan Berlolina, Eleanor Bellser, Helen Borrone, Alan Bottemiller;

Floyd Bowen, Bruno Bruder, Michael Brenzell, Susan Brill, Ronald Burnett, John Burnham, James Bush;

Cuneyt Capanoglu, Joseph Carroll, Linda Carvalai, Carolyn Carver, Sherman Cater, Beverly Chaney, Oner Cherry, Jane Chow, Lula Christie;

James Cockerill, Daniel Collins, JoAnn Comerford, Donald Cooper, James Cooper, Patrick Corkery, Thomas Crisghead, Franz Cristiani, Gary David, Howard Degon, Edmond Delarosa, David DeMartini, Edsel Deni, Dale Devine, Brenda Diehl, Helmut Diener, Alex Dong, Timothy Dunn;

Yasuko Ebara, Lyn Eslie, Eleanor Fable, Richard Fell, Rita Feliciano, Anthony Ferrigno, Charles Fiesher;

Barbara Fischl, Roger Fisher, Sidney Fleckner, Theodora Flock, Donald Floyd, Bernard Friedman, Carmelo Fromm;

Edward Gant, Carol Gaughenbaugh, George Genaitres, Patricia Gow, Alexandra Granich, Ulysses Grant, Larry Grewelle, Adaleen Guerrero;

Rosemarie Haas, Stephen Haeberle, Mildred Hall, Virginia Harris, Joseph Harrosh, Sharon Hawley, Kathleen Henderson, Bonnie Hennessey;

Sadako Hino, Josep Hirschman, David Hoffman, Julia Holland, Diana Hopper, Helene Heward, Charles Hunter, Ray Heimacher;

Alice Ilyama, Toshimitsu Ikegami, Diana Ingram, Daniel Ishii, Tatiana Ivanoff, Mike Jacobson, Linda Jaillite, Barbara Jensen, Judith Jensen;

Florence Kawanka, Josephine Kennedy, Thomas Kennedy, Carol Killen, Douglas King, Sheila Kobus, Peter Koch, Alexander Kochergin, Norman Kondy, Nichol Kriksrianis;

Hollis Ladd, William Lalita, Joyce Lamas, Alfred Lee, James Lee, Steven Lenhart, Reuben Levy, Bruce Lindal;

Marvin Litke, Chien Liu, Helena Liu, Linda Lorkey, George Lowry, Joyce Lorentzen, Carol Louie, Jean Lum;

Linda Magnani, Andrew Maayary, Paul Mallahill, Isabelo Manalo, Gail Margolin, Dorothy Marks, Christopher Marshall;

Claire McGowen, John McGuire, Richard McGuire, Albert McKeown, Mary Meacham, Loran Mebine, Randolph Mellinger, Ralph Michels, Richard Miller;

Paul Minor, Albert Mitchell, Sherre Moores, Allan Mord, Gerald Morell, Lila Morgar, Steve Morris, Marjorie Mu, Ilito Muneno, Patricia Murray;

Samuel Neff, Roy Nelson, Barbara Ng, Gene Ng, Lorraine Ng, Mary Ng, Diane Nicte, Arthur Nieth, Martha Nolen;

Elisabeth Orzkowski, Susan Oddone, Mark Offenbach, Marilyn Olstad, William Ono, Angeline Or, Odella Organo;

Betty Parr, Stephens Payne, Thomas Perry, Brian Petty, Kendall Charmian Pratt, Edward Preston;

James Quigley, Seymore Reiter, Charles Riley, James Roman, Selma Rubler, Nick Russell;

Max Savin, Gary Schjldt, Bonnie Schoenfeld, John Schroder, James Seitz, Jack Schwadron, John Scopazzi;

Jacqueline Scriven, Kenneth Seyer, Charlotte Stephens, Marlis Stieber, Guy Suchomel, Toyoko Sumida, Gary Sutton;

Donald Takakura, Steven Thatcher, Frank Thomason, Griselda Tilds, Eva Tom, Wilfred Tom, Patricia Troup;

Pete Urres, Robert Urrea, Mario Valadez, Jan Vanderburgh, Norman Vanherick, Gisel Vonputtkamer;

Susan Wairaven, Thomas Walsh, Barbara Washington, Claire Weiner, Peter Weiss, John West, Ray Westergard, Diane Westman;

Judith White, Barbara Williams, Linda Wilson, Ronald Wilson, Ronald Witcosky, Donna Wone, Gretchen Wong;

Jeanette Wong, Jeffrey Wong, Ann Woo, Linda Woo, Robert Wood, Wallace Woolfendell, Alex Woolworth;

Rose Yan, Sophia Yang, Katsuya Yasuda, Virginia Yim, Rosalind Yong, Arthur Yoshihara, Helen Young, Stephen Young;

Dennis Zickerman, Gregory Zwillinger, Donalyn Zywien.

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1961 NUMBER 3

Bufano Urges Safety Measures For Rivera Mural In New Arts Building

Anderson To Study Need For Protection Of 75-Foot Fresco

Protective measures may be needed to insure the permanence of the Diego Rivera mural in the lobby of the new arts building's little theater, said Benny Bufano, noted San Francisco sculptor, who visited the mammoth work recently.

Many of Rivera's works which are on display in his native Mexico, Bufano explained, are now almost completely faded because adequate protection was not provided against sunlight.

The mural here, Bufano believes, would be similarly in danger if exposed to bright sunlight which could fade out the brilliant colors of the giant fresco.

Bufano suggested that glass on either side of the little theater be chemically treated or tinted in order to filter out harmful rays of the afternoon sun which falls on portions of the Rivera work and which in time could dull its brilliance.

Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator, division of educational management here, has stated, however, that before any such action is taken tests and examination will have to be made to determine if the Rivera work really is in danger.

The lower third of the murals might also be protected, possibly with some sort of clear plastic covering. Bufano cautioned, to save it from unwanted signatures and other additions which would mar its surface.

Dr. Anderson maintained that he did not believe that students here would willfully deface and harm the mural, and added that they should realize what a priceless possession it is.

Dr. Anderson also added that he will confer with the architect of the new arts building to plan any course of action which may be necessary.

The huge 75 by 22-foot mural, which now occupies the entire length of the little theater lobby in the new arts building, was acquired by the college in 1939, following the Golden Gate Exposition.

Rivera, who died in 1957, was a friend of Timothy Pflueger, the college's architect, who was given the mural and who in turn presented it to the college as a gift.

Until 1958, however, when the Board of Education gave its approval to exhibiting the mural in the arts building, the Rivera work had been stored away here on campus.

GAZING PENSIVELY et the brightly-colored Diego Rivera mural in the lobby of the college's new little theater is Benny Bufano, noted San Francisco sculptor, who believes that protective meeeures are needed to insure permenence.—Guerdeman photo by Emmett Smith.

Arts Building Features Both Architecture, Top Facilities

Standing as a compliment to contemporary architecture, the new arts building on the north end of the campus houses more than enough features to make it one of the outstanding college structures in the country.

Dominating the entrance is the world famous Diego Rivera mural which has already begun to draw both tourists and comment from art patrons.

The theater, which includes seating facilities for 400 and contains a small television training studio, is considered by theatrical authorities to be one of the most up to date in the United States and one of the best equipped for live productions.

A choral practice hall and a large band room for the music department are also included within the structure. The choir will be able to practice their selections in a soundproof room.

Art laboratories are provided with the benefit of outdoor landscaping by having windows quite close to the ground.

Presently the departments who will finally fill the new building are engaged in the exodus from other buildings on campus.

Most of the moving to be done is from Science Hall. Only journalism and graphic arts will remain behind, along with the sciences and their laboratories and lecture rooms.

On the north side of the $2,000,000 structure are new parking facilities capable of containing 150 cars belonging to students and 90 vehicles with faculty permits.

The new building, landscaping and parking facilities, along with the stadium and the gymnasia improvements, were made possible by the passage of a proposition by San Francisco voters in 1958.

When all facilities are in operation there will be room for a comfortable increase of 2000 in daytime enrollment.

Ground was broken for the building by President Louis G. Conlan in May, 1959.

A slight labor dispute held up work briefly but the opening date, originally set for February 1961, was met.

Row Captains Ease Roll Calling Row

Sound off!

One! Two! Three! Four! . . . Well, that isn't quite the way John Selig, political science instructor here, tekes roll, but Selig, like other instructors whose classes in the new eris building number in the 70's and 80's has been forced to rely on more unconventional means.

Because of the large size of many classes in the building, taking roll by the more familiar methods would be too long and involved and sound like a row.

Selig, however, has come up with a row captain system whereby the first person in each row checks to see who is present in his own group and then speedily reports his findings to Selig.

TenSHUN!

All present or accounted for?

Friday C-Hour Features Movie, Lecture Series

In addition to the Artist Concert Lecture Series, College Hour this week will feature another in its series of movies, A Day Of Living, in S-136, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor.

The movie depicts cities, farms and industries of America, people at work and play, as well as the part life insurance and investment plays in promoting a higher standard of living.

WatchWord

Reading Is The Key To Man's Quest

By Paul Plansky

UPON entering college, high school graduates are usually amazed at the extensive amount of material they must read and, to their dismay, retain. Even after mastering myriads of facts, figures and formulae, the fatigued student finds that his instructor has selected only a smattering of examination questions to test his knowledge.

Yet if the student realized what a gratifying and perpetuating project he is involved in, his anxieties might be mollified. The first step in almost any course of study is reading to get the basic information.

Yes, reading is the key. It is the key not only in college but in the countless challenges thereafter. The doors this key opens are rewarding—the worlds behind these doors are illimitable.

God has made a distinction between man and all other forms of life on earth by providing him with an indispensable tool, the power of reasoning. Using this tool, the human mind has created a communicative symbol of expression—the written word.

With words civilization has recorded its laws, its history and its ideas. As long as man exists, he will continue to produce manuscripts; and, as a result, intelligent beings will persist in learning, exploring and study-

(Continued on Page 4, Column 2)

AMS Suggestion Box Clicks As Students Offer Bright Ideas

A variety of ideas, ranging from toning down the bells in the arts building to turning up the volume on KCSF, have been received in the Associated Men Student suggestion box this semester by Jim Bush, AMS president.

Bush was asked in a recent interview what type of suggestions was desired. He answered, "Any suggestion that will aid the Associated Students or the college would be helpful."

Among the suggestions turned in is one which asks if it would be possible to put benches next to the vending machines in Science Hall. The AMS is making this a project, and money to build the benches in this area is being collected in the form of dues from the AMS members.

One complaint in the box is that the bells in the arts building are too loud. Bush promised to consult Oscar Anderson, co-ordinator, division of educational management, and see what steps could be taken to remedy this situation.

The AMS plans to see if the volume of KCSF, the campus radio, can be increased.

Another idea was the posting of more adequate parking signs. Bush said he would see what could be done about this proposition.

Dropping a suggestion in either of the two boxes (across from the Science Hall Silver Pole, or next to the cafeteria exit), does not insure that the idea will become a reality. Rather, it will be taken under consideration by someone in authority, Bush said.

At present, the suggestion box seems to be accomplishing the goal it was intended for, and has been a great success in bringing to light some of the current problems of the college, Bush stated.

Guitarist Ramos To Give Recital During C-Hour

Famed flamenco guitarist Carlos Ramos will give a recital in the library this Friday during College Hour, according to Meyer Cahn, music instructor and inaugurator of the Spring concert series which made its debut last semester.

Ramos, giving the first of two recitals planned for this semester's College Hour concert series, has been widely acclaimed in Europe, South America and Canada for his faithful interpretation of the true flamenco.

After touring with Jose Greco's Spanish Ballet and the famous Hurtado de Cordoba Company, the Spanish guitarist recently made spectacular appearances at New York City's Town Hall, Boston University, and the University of California.

Featured for the second recital of this semester's Spring concert series on Friday, April 24, will be harpist Ann Adams of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Under the guidance of Cahn, the concert series began last semester featuring the Belgian celloist Rama Junker.

IF THE ARTS BUILDING in the above shot appears ae one winding ramp —it isn't. This optical illusion was created by pasting the picture in the upper left-hand corner over the larger one. Clear? — eure!

—Guardeman photos by Bob Callister and Tom Eggert.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 3 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1961 Page 2

Safety, Protection Of Rivera Mural Is Student Obligation

A MAMMOTH, colorful mural graces the lobby of the newly-completed little theater. Painted by the late and controversial Mexican artist Diego Rivero, the giant fresco is wide in scope, tremendous in visual impact and is, in short, a magnificent artistic and cultural addition to the college.

If Rivera was a controversial figure, then this controversy lives on after him in his mural. Benny Bufano, noted San Francisco sculptor, who inspected the work recently, maintained that protective measures, such as tinted glass and clear plastic covering, are needed to insure the safety of the mural from harmful sunlight and petty vandals.

Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator, division of educational management here, has stated, however, that only after extensive tests should any such measures be taken.

Anderson, we feel, is being not only wise but also very practical, for the measures urged by Bufano would cost money and lots of it.

Rather than rush headlong into some project of protection which the mural may or may not need anyway, we feel it is best to make careful observations and tests as Anderson has suggested.

Whether or not the Rivera work will need protection from tinted glass the preserve the bright and vivid colors, it is obvious that Bufano was correct in saying that they will be in constant danger from would-be vandals who might take delight in adding their name to the detail of Rivera's work.

While we do not believe that most students here would deliberately deface such an exciting and precious objet d'art, there will always be those who would take some petty and malicious delight in scrawling on the surface of the mural.

Realizing this, Anderson has stated that any student caught defacing the mural in any manner might well be asked to leave the college. We back such a policy fully, for students here must be made to realize that they are fortunate enough to have in their possession a unique and dramatic work of art, and that it is their duty and obligation to make certain that no harm will come to it.

In a sense the administration, through Dr. Anderson, has made the first step to insure the safety of the Diego Rivera mural. This is good, and we congratulate and thank him. However, the real duty and responsibility to carry on the project rests with the Associated Students, for it is they who must see the crusade through to a successful conclusion.

Foresight

TV's Science-Fiction Fare Seeks Spotlight

By Richard Shields

SO FAR, without weakening the iron grip westerns held on the TV audiences of America, another type of show is making a slow beginning in ending the monopoly of viewer preference now enjoyed by the "adult western."

This is the Science Horror Mystery; a full circle is completed from the Frankenstein and Dracula movies of the thirties to the Hitchcock Psycho of today. In between are many variations of the science, horror and mystery themes.

Hitchcock combines horror and mystery with remarkable effect; his most successful effort to date was in his movie, Psycho, which, if audience reaction is any measure, far surpasses the mediocre horror films which Hollywood usually puts out.

In addition to Hitchcock, Tuesday also offers viewers Thriller, Alcoa Presents and Panic, all stories which go a little beyond the conventional mystery, yet fall short of true Science Fiction.

Thriller, hosted by Boris Karloff, usually falls somewhere between horror and Science Fiction, while Panic takes a position between mystery and horror.

Alcoa Presents is also more than a conventional horror story but usually less than Science Fiction. As host John Newland says, the program presents stories of that "shadowy land between the real and the unreal."

Twilight Zone on Fridays is the nearest of all to true Science Fiction. The stories occur anywhere from next door to the next galaxy and are not so fantastic that they destroy the thrill of imagination.

Where Karloff tries to present proof to demonstrate the reality in his stories, and where Newland speculates to such wild lengths that even imagination feels ridiculous, Rod Serling of Twilight Zone depends almost entirely on the viewer's ability to appreciate the possibilities of occurrences unexplainable in terms of human experience.

Science Fiction is actually no more than speculation about some thing which may or may not happen at some time in the future or about something which may or may not happen in the present, usually involving a meeting between mankind and some type of culture from another world.

In any event, Twilight Zone has existed longer and enjoyed a greater popularity than any of its counterparts in investigating the world of the "strange."

Maybe it is time for a change from nearly a decade of a steady diet of childish "adult westerns," not to the opposite extreme of Science Fiction, however, but to a well-balanced program of truly adult entertainment.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacation, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister

Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Gerald Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.

Reporters: Dick Dravagon, Dianne Dupre, Dennie Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Gerald Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve.

Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Nigel Brown, Richard Edwards, Cynthia Fruitman, Frederick Gregory, Margaret Hawkins, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Ralph Leftwich, William Merrill, Herbert Mizis, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Seila, Evelyn Thude, Christopher Wilde, Bob Yeary.

Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Eggert, Eduardo Dell'Acqua, Gary Lair.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Modern Techniques Improve Form In One Of World's Most Ancient Arts

CERAMICS INSTRUCTOR ROY WALKER displays a piece of his prize-winning work which is famous on both coasts of the United States.

Crowded Classes Show Growing Importance Of Ceramics Industry

By Dick Dragavon

As the wheel spins, deft fingers work on the whirling lump of clay until it gradually becomes a graceful vase.

The setting is Annex C, where instructor Roy Walker conducts his classes in ceramics, one of the oldest arts on earth and presently among the largest industries in the United States.

From this crowded classroom have emerged some of the area's most accomplished potters, not the least of whom is Walker himself.

For he has had his work exhibited on both coasts, and as recently as December he was presented with the Zellerbach award at the biennial Association of San Francisco Potters exhibit. His prize winning work was displayed at the De Young Museum.

About a year ago five pieces of his ceramic art were purchased by Georg Jensen Corp. for exhibit in the Jensen Galleries in New York. Other creations of his have been seen at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor.

Some of his students, too, have shown their capabilities. Many are instructing the art of ceramics in other schools, and some have chosen ceramics producing as their careers.

A former student of Walker's, Edward Cromey, won first place at the same exhibit where Walker received the Zellerbach award; another ex-student, Win Ng, took first place at the 1958 showing.

The earthen ware which seems to grow so simply under Walker's fingers is quite intricate and, Walker explained, a student who can throw even a good cylinder during his first days is very rare.

"Everyone should get interested in something creative," said Walker, and while he doesn't necessarily think that all should be potters, he does believe that his field fits into esthetic, scientific and philosophic categories.

Walker also explained that glazing, the decorating process of ceramics, involves a knowledge of chemistry for mixing proper glazing compounds and that there are many mysteries as to what happens in the kiln during the firing process.

Since the art involves a great deal of self expression, Walker feels that it is a philosophic interest.

Hoping to be moved to a new class area in the arts building soon, Walker said that they were only waiting for three large new kilns to arrive and be installed.

He expects that he will be able to occupy the new rooms before the next semester.

Walker also said that only 20 students will be the full complement of each ceramics class, because of the great amount of personal attention which it is necessary that the instructor give to the students.

Students receive this attention from Walker, who often stays late in the evenings so that they may work on their projects.

"I think the college needs a few instructors who are completely involved in their field," he commented.

LEARNING ONE OF THE OLDEST ARTS on earth and becoming involved in one of the largest industries in the United States at the same time is not as difficult as it might seem. Students here learn to master their craft under the guidance of Roy Walker, who is an expert in the field.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

RUNNING from the downtown terminal to its final destination behind the fire station on Ocean at Phelan Avenue, the K car is many things to many people and many, many things to many, many students.

To an uninitiated observer it resembles a sequence of Wagon Train without Indians, directed by Cecil B. De Mille.

• • •

FIRST ABOARD each morning are the Oaklanders, Berkeleyites, and Alamedae.

Many are still munching their breakfasts as they gloat over being able to get seats for the long ride.

As the car moves up Market St., students exchange obvious glances with the rushing members of the working community.

Coeds see in the working girls themselves in years to come. ("Except for the wrinkles.")

Working girls remember how they were just like the coeds not so long ago. ("Of course, I didn't giggle as much.")

• • •

WHEN THE FLYING squad comes out of the hills hanging on to cable cars that rendezvous with the "big K" it will no doubt include:

• One girl who had all of her notes blown away at the corner of Jackson and Hyde.

• A young lady who is 11 minutes late and hoped the cable would break, causing the car to speed down the hill at a runaway pace.

• Some fellow who intends to study for an exam during the ride but left his books on the piano. (He forgot the key.)

Cut Cost, Weight

Student Invents Own Health Food

At last all the overweights can reduce with balanced nutrition and, best of all, without expensive commercial preparations.

One student here, Al Orlovitz, has come up with a formula that duplicates the marketed products in just about everything except cost.

The ingredients in all of the formulae are basically the same. Seven heaping tablespoons of milk powder, seven of soy bean powder, one of vegetable oil, one of honey, and three of chocolate-flavored vitamin powder, blended with three cups of water make a day's supply.

This mixture, whipped up in one's own kitchen, breaks down costwise to a minute 15 cents a day. Among the name brand preparations is one that costs $1.79 a day or more than $50 a month.

Brigitta Beetz, instructor in nutrition here, says that she feels liquid diets should be used only under the supervision of a physician, and that solid foods still make the best diet materials.

She agrees that the home-made formula is as good as the ones available in the drug and grocery stores and the cost differential is great enough to drive dieters to their home blenders for the brew.

There are only four perceptible tastes—bitter, sweet, salt and sour.

Students Warm To Tropical Atmosphere

Hui's Sway For Members

Warm spring weather and sunshine can be expected to bring an increase in outdoor lunchers, but the tropical atmosphere in the court on CAB Day, March 2, surprised throngs of students.

Browsers crowded the roped off area by the library to enjoy the bit of Hawaii, sponsored by the Hui 'O Aloha, who hoped to sway a few new members.

On the grass, cavorting to the strains of a Polynesian melody, were a shapely, grass-skirted wahine (girl) and a kane (man) in a gaily colored sarong.

Latecomers crowded in but had to settle for the pleasure of listening to the music as no one in front seemed willing to give up his position. Some of the huskier men in the rear took turns perching on each other's shoulders.

However, in Science Hall the second and third floor stairs by the windows were crowded with students and faculty alike, who had to make the most of the performance without hearing the tune.

All agreed that the demonstration was quite convincing in displaying the advantages of joining the club.

And no one seemed to mind that, contrary to the information given in the travel folders, the dancing girl was a blonde.

Big 8 Relays To Test Rams

Speed, Strength Give Boost To Track Hopes For Season

If speed, strength and stamina are the ingredients which make for a winning track team, then this year's squad may be one of the best in the history of the college.

Coach Lou Vasquez is readying his men for the Big Eight Relays, 1 p.m. Saturday in Sacramento. Some of the shortcomings of last year's team have been overcome and a few of the gaps in the squad filled.

The only weak point was a lack of depth in the hurdles and sprints, but now that Tom Piggee, former All-City hurdles champion and sprinter from Polytechnic High School, has joined the roster this gap has been filled.

The half-mile, mile and two-mile events will be where the squad's greatest strength lies.

Smooth striding miler Frank James is beginning to show flashes of the form which made him the number two miler in the Big Eight Conference last season.

James will be hard-pressed for top honors this year by a pair of workhorses in Tom Jennings and Bill Holchkiss, who trained together during the fall and winter months.

Jennings and Hotchkiss logged up to 100 miles of running a week during this period.

Cinder Coach Vasquez also looks with approval at the improvement registered by weight-men Herman McKee and Alex Darnes and jumpers Elvin Bridges, George Holland and John Kelley. Sprinter Carlin Vance is also rounding into top form and is ready to go.

When asked about his squad's chances in the Big Eight Relays, Coach Vasquez said:

"Even though the Big Eight Relays will not count in league scoring, we will be prepared to put forth our best effort. Naturally, as the season progresses, performances will improve, but the team will try its utmost and do all that the men are capable of in every meet.

"To have my teams do this is one of my basic coaching aims."

Use of this athletic philosophy has enabled Coach Vasquez to compile an enviable record as a track mentor. This season should again bear out the worth of his methods.

READY TO RUN—Two of the Rams' star milers, Tom Jennings (left) and Frank James, pause during practice for Saturday's Big Eight Relays at Sacramento.

Three Big Eight Meets Remain For Swimmers

With three league meets remaining on the schedule, Coach Roy Burkhead's swimming team is still lacking backstrokers.

Hurt by the loss of backstroker Bill Sakovich, the Rams dropped a practice meet to San Mateo, 53-35. Burkhead readily admits his is one of the weaker teams in the Big Eight Conference.

Al Stevens, veteran 200-yard breast stroker, took City College's only first place with a time of 2:52.1.

John Holm surprised everyone, cutting 18 seconds off of his best time in the 200-yard butterfly, to pull second place. Holm's previous best was 2:50. All-American Rich Stevens captured two seconds — the 50 and 100-yard free style.

Although the team meets Stockton this Friday, Burkhead says that they won't be in the best shape for at least another week.

Burkhead feels that this is because San Francisco has no pool, and this is the only college in the Big Eight that does not have a water polo team. This winter sport is one of the biggest helps for keeping swimmers in shape, he said.

The team is also scheduled to travel to Menlo Park on Tuesday for a meet against Menlo College. It is slated to be held at 4 p.m.

Roy Campanella's 807 putouts in 1953 set a major league record for catchers.

Phelan Tabs Cage Season 'Good' But Short Of Potential

By Ivan Temes

Despite his disappointment at the Ram cagers not retaining their Big Eight title, basketball mentor Sid Phelan still insists, "We had a good season even though the team didn't quite reach its top potential!"

Actually, the soft-spoken coach felt that the team reached its peak in the final two contests when it drubbed both Stockton and Contra Costa, and Phelan said that "had we played that way all year we might have gone farther than our second place tie with Contra Costa."

Pleased with the way some of the players, especially Orlando Camp, came along at the end of the year, Phelan admitted that losing Nate Jackson and John Lewis during the season cost the club a good chance of taking top honors.

While compiling a 10-4 record the Rams did manage to edge first place Oakland in a 57-56 thriller, but later fell heavily to the Thunderbirds, 55-41.

However, San Mateo proved to be the big thorn in the hopes of the local quintet. Twice the fired-up Bulldogs took advantage of Ram mistakes to defeat last year's champs.

Charlie Williams, with high games of 22, 23 and 27 points, led the club in scoring throughout the league schedule, and was followed by guard Bob Grayson, who managed a high game of 26 points.

Final Individual Statistics — Big Eight League games:

Player	FG	FT	FTM	PF	TP
Charlie Williams	74	42	21	21	190
Bob Grayson	65	16	8	22	146
Jesse Arterberry	30	17	24	36	80
Orlando Camp	41	10	6	36	92
Nate Jackson	22	11	10	16	55
John Lewis	15	18	7	14	31
Will Rockmore	23	8	8	29	52
Glenn Weld	13	3	3	10	29
Dave Roberts	9	8	3	7	21
Brad Duggan	7	3	2	1	13
Vince Bertoli	7	1	1	5	15
Rich Lane	3	0	0	6	12
John Choi	1	1	1	1	3

Intramurals Open With Two Leagues

Despite slow signups and late entries, the Intramural Basketball League gets under way this week, Jim Bush, Associated Men Student president, said there will be only two leagues this semester instead of the conventional three.

Bush also stated that only one team, The Untouchables, signed up for the Independent League so that league is being combined with the Inter-Fraternity League, in which nine teams are tentatively entered.

The IFC is slated to start competition tonight with the game set for 7:30 p.m. and the last game scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. Last year the first games began at 7 p.m. but the time has been moved back in the hope that more participants will be able to attend.

The Guardsman will be out to defend its title in the Club Activities Board League, which opened last night and boasts seven member teams.

Bush announced that the season will be culminated by the Smoker at which the two top teams will play off for the championship.

A trophy will go to the overall champion and medals to its individual players.

RAMBLINGS

Sports Writers In Class By Themselves?

By Tom Kennedy

SELF-ADULATION is not exactly our favorite pastime, but we recently came across a bit of prose about the newspaper profession that made interesting reading.

Titled The Sports Writer, it originally appeared in the Washington Post-Times-Herald written by Bob Addie, undoubtedly a sportswriter himself.

It goes in part like the following: "He affects sports shirts, sports jackets, sports overcoats, and sports shoes. He would like to affect a sports car, but he can only afford the sports cap. But, as you can see, he is a sport all the way.

"He usually has had very little sports experience on the playing field. In high school and college, he was the official scorer, the waterboy, the equipment manager. When anyone asks him if he played college football, he says: 'I was too light.'

"He's also a political seer and thinks he never misses picking a presidential race. After all, he figures, he picks 16 teams in the major leagues in baseball and then picks the No. 1 football team in the country out of hundreds of aspirants; so how hard can it be to pick between two candidates?

"If he marries—and he usually does to pick up a reader—his wife generally knows nothing about sports and couldn't care less. If he has any kids they must be in the mold of champions he has admired.

"He's proud of his profession and points to such giants in his business as the late Damon Runyon, the late Ring Lardner, the late W. O. McGeehan, the late Grantland Rice, and late O. B. Keeler. The reason he admires all the late sportswriters is that our hero will never admit anyone alive is better than he is.

"He always brings up the story of John Kieran, the erudite, one-time sportswriter of the New York Times. John was asked to speak at Yale but some students objected to the compromise with intellectualism in allowing a sportswriter to address a group of Eli's sons. So Kieran made his entire address in Latin.

"He's proud, too, of the 'characters' in his business—fellows who became legends with their flights of whimsy. There was the old sportswriter, for instance, who was asked by a cub: 'Is that the West where the sun is setting?' And the veteran replied: 'If it isn't you have one heluva story, son.'

"He lives in a beautiful world where it's always game time and yesterday's tragedies fade like rippies on a lake. He's the eternal juvenile who would not change places with a king. He's Pagliacci, the Pied Piper, Walter Mitty, Peter Pan, and Jack Armstrong, the All-American Boy."

Quite impressive, isn't it?

We must admit, though, that Addie's description is a little too idealistic. No sports writer would claim he led such a heroic life.

But it was nice dreaming anyway.

• • •

WHAT HAPPENED to the intramural basketball signup?

At last report AMS President Jim Bush had received only 11 entries, whereas 16 teams competed last semester. The Untouchables, who won the overall championship, should have no trouble in the Independent League this time.

No other clubs in the division are even signed up!

Athletic Director Jack Gaddy and Bush are planning to move some of the games to 7:30 and 8:30 p.m., a half hour later than last semester, to enable more men to play.

League competition starts this week and we hope the teams aren't hampered by defaults.

Guardsman Sports

Ram Nine Faces Vallejo As League Opener Nears

By Jerry Littrell

Facing a heavy schedule this week in preparation for league competition, the Ram diamondmen face Vallejo College at 3 p.m. today at Balboa Park, and meet St. Mary's and Treasure Island tomorrow and Friday.

The first league encounter will be a double-header on Saturday, March 25, at Stockton.

All of the players are steadily improving with each practice game. The defense in the infield has tightened up while the batters are starting to collect hits.

Jim Carroll and Phil Van Tassell have been putting in a lot of time in practice and each has improved since the beginning of the season. However, both still lack the hitting potential of their predecessor, Bob Farber.

All-around man Don Lowpensky, who plays first base, outfield or pitches, still remains one of the top players on the team. He will probably be used mostly in the role of a starting pitcher.

Jesse Wilson, first sacker, has had a minor operation and has been out of practice but should be in shape for the first league game.

Two players might turn out to be "sleepers" on the club. They are second baseman Don Meroff and left-handed pitcher Ray Tompkins. Little Meroff is a good hitter and could become a first-stringer any time.

Quiet and watchful on the bench, Tompkins reveals his true ability on the mound. He has a blazing fast ball and a good curve. He might very well become the starter behind Lowpensky.

With Tompkins, Lowpensky, Randy Pace and Art Groza pitching, Elsan will have one of the strongest mound teams in the Big Eight.

One of the most carefully watched players on the team will be Frank Gable. With his baseball know-how and experience, several major league scouts have shown interest in him and will be watching him during the games.

Golfers Ready To Face San Mateo

With a very successful practice season behind them, Coach Grover Klemmer's golfers meet highly regarded San Mateo 1 p.m. Friday at the Peninsula Country Club.

San Mateo is rated by City College's coach as the team to beat in the Big Eight this year. He said that the Mateans have 10 men who can shoot in the 70's.

Last week the Ram golfers tied San Jose City College in a practice match, 7½ to 7½. The locals performed very well to get the draw, with the strong Peninsula squad enjoying a home course advantage.

Jim Baffico shot a 70, and Gary Mialocq had a 74 score to lead the local linkers.

This Week In Sports . . .

TODAY

• Baseball—Rams vs. Vallejo at Balboa Park, 3 p.m.

THURSDAY

• Baseball—At St. Mary's, 2:45 p.m.

FRIDAY

• Baseball—Rams vs. Treasure Island at Balboa Park, 2:45 p.m.

• Tennis—Rams vs. San Mateo at Olympic Club, 3 p.m.

• Golf—San Mateo at Peninsula Country Club, 1 p.m.

• Swimming—At Oakland, 4 p.m.

SATURDAY

• Track — Big Eight Relays at Sacramento, 1:30 p.m.

• Recreation Association — Play Day at Santa Rosa.

TUESDAY

• Baseball—At Vallejo, 3 p.m.

• Swimming—At Menlo College, 4 p.m.

WEEKEND RESULTS

• Baseball—Rams 24, St. Mary's 3.

• Golf—Rams 6½, Stockton 8½.

• Tennis—Rams 6, Sacramento 1.

• Swimming — Rams 36, Sacramento 58.

Netters Meet San Mateo Friday In 2nd League Go

The Ram tennis squad, led by Coach Roy Diederichsen, meets the San Mateo Bulldogs at 3 p.m. Friday in the Olympic Club, in the local's second league contest of the current season.

Diederichsen is looking forward to a good match Friday. However, the local mentor intimated that an accurate evaluation of the Bulldogs is hard to give, as they are led by a new coach this season.

The starting Ram five will be Jack Bracken, Rich Murray, John Welles, Paul Barth and Randy Chun. The two doubles teams are Bracken-Welles and Barth-Murray.

The "dark horse" of the fled and White aggregation this season is Chun. Diederichsen hopes that Chun will develop into the number two or three player as the season progresses.

The team will play seven league matches this semester with Modesto rated as the toughest competition.

The biggest handicap facing the tennis men this year is that at present they have no regular practice courts.

Coeds Hit Sports Scene!

PREPARING FOR THEIR SATURDAY PLAY DAY with Santa Rosa, members of the Recreation Association check over their equipment. Shown above, from left to right, are Shirley Curry, basketball; Laura Thurlwell, badminton; Sharon Hawley, golf, and Hope Vogel, volleyball. —Guardsman photo by Eduardo Dell'Acqua.

Counterpart Of Crater Lake . . .

. . . Becomes Student Auto Haven

Parking Violations Show Unexpected Drop This Semester

Parking violations are at least 50 to 60 per cent below the semester average, according to figures recently released by the Campus Police which show an unexpected drop in citations issued.

A stepped-up publicity campaign to educate students here to regulations and student parking areas could possibly be the reason for such a large decline in citations, Campus Police Chief Jim Tedesco said.

Three hundred and eight citations have been issued in a total of 278 man hours, which is extremely low, Tedesco explained.

This is in contrast to an average semester where between 800 to 1000 citations are given. The present 20-man force issues only 1.1 citations per hour.

The possibility that the unforeseen decline in citations could be a result of fewer cars at City College this semester has been ruled out by the Campus Police, who report there have been 1450 parking permits issued thus far this semester, which is normal.

The only area in which there has been any repetition in parking violations is the circle drive that approaches the front steps of the college.

Tedesco explained the circle drive has four painted parking areas; the two 10-minute green areas are for student or visitor parking, the red area is for faculty or otherwise designated vehicles and the white area is for commercial use only.

Chief Tedesco further explained there are two areas that could become campus parking problems.

They are the three new parking lots which have been opened at the north corner of the campus, next to the new arts building.

The new parking lot adjacent to Phelan Avenue is for faculty use only. The two remaining, which are entered from Judson Avenue, are for students with parking permits.

The area next to the west entrance of Smith Hall has been designated for motor scooter parking, Tedesco emphasized, and as long as the entrance is in no way obstructed, motor scooters will be allowed to remain.

A motor scooter parked in a normally designated automobile parking space is considered to be using undue space and will be issued a citation.

A motor scooter parked between two parallel parked cars is considered a hazard and will also be given a citation, he said.

Campus Police Lower Cites

Reservoir Offers Car Port Safe From Cost Of Illegal Parking

Parking of cars on or near the campus is a problem usually measured in terms of the number of citations issued for illegal parking.

Campus Police last week reported that the number of citations issued this semester is 50 to 60 per cent below that of last.

Four years ago, when construction of the reservoirs across from Science Hall was nearing completion, parking was a major problem, and seasonal rains inundated the area, as is shown in an old Guardsman photo dug from the files.

When the area was opened for parking in 1958, students were reluctant to use it, as pictured below, but within a year, with on-campus parking cut and enrollment up, it was a haven gratefully accepted.

Today, the reservoir area has come into its own, not only as a "greener pasture," but also as a haven from the high cost of illegal parking.

Club Cavalcade

Groups Look For Brisk Semester As Plans Bloom

FOLLOWING a well-rounded plan, clubs and organizations at the college are set for one of their most enterprising semesters in years under the direction of the Club Activities Board and the deans of men and women.

Bill Richardson presided over the first meeting of the Block SF Society last Friday during College Hour. On the agenda were discussions of assistance at the Junior Livestock Dance, future activities and the traditional Awards Dinner.

Letterman Hospital will be the next stop-over for members of Gamma Sigma Sigma, who plan to entertain the servicemen with food and refreshments. Anyone wishing to attend should be in front of the hospital at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday, March 21.

The Engineering Society's next activity will be at United Air Lines, 6:15 p.m. this Friday. A combination tour and banquet with a speaker will highlight the occasion. Students interested should sign up in S-4 as soon as possible.

Rushing plans for future Delta Sigma Tau members will be organized by the senior members of the sorority tomorrow night at the home of Shirley Wheatly.

This Friday's session of College Hour will feature a lecture by the photography department in C-249.

Newman Club members are inviting all students to attend a discussion of religion in the Far East at the same time. Their meetings are held in S-204.

Shirley Robino's home will attract the officers of Zeta Chi as they begin planning for their fireside in the near future.

Delta Psi sorority will visit Youth Guidance Center for their service project and entertain the youngsters during the semester.

Narcotics Topic Of C-Hour Talk

Dr. Fred Meyers, instructor of toxicology at the University of California medical school, will speak here Friday during College Hour in the first of this semester's student-faculty lecture series.

Irving M. Witt, sponsor of the series, said Dr. Meyers' topic will be the use and misuse of narcotics.

To introduce each speaker to the audience this semester will be Gary Wilkening, the new student chairman of the series. He replaces last semester's head, Charlie Hanks, who is now Associated Student president.

Because of the attendance at the past College Hour student-faculty lectures, Witt expressed hope that future lectures may be given in the new little theater as soon as it is in operation.

The remaining four lectures are set for April 14 and 18; May 12 and 26. All are scheduled for the Friday College Hours.

Volunteers Needed For Red Cross Service Drive

Student volunteers are needed to join the American Red Cross drive featuring community service projects, according to campus representative Judie Crivelli, who is taking sign-ups in S-140.

The College-University Relations Committee of the Red Cross has enlisted the help of Miss Crivelli and Joe Egri to find students or organizations who will be willing to give up a few of their leisure hours each week to perform humanitarian services for the community.

Some of the duties are reading to children at the Shriners' Hospital, writing letters for convalescent G.I.'s at Letterman Army Hospital, and teaching classes in first aid or swimming.

Hopefuls To Try For Fashion Model Posts

Preliminary tryouts for models in the Associated Women Student fashion show and tea will be held in S-205 during this Friday's College Hour, Suzanne Murphy, fashion co-ordinator for the annual AWS fashion show and tea, announced today.

Miss Murphy added that any woman student may try out as long as she is about five feet, six inches tall and able to wear sizes 8 to 12 dress.

At a later date a representative from Sak's Fifth Avenue will judge the final contest and choose 15 to 20 students to model for the show.

Watchword: Reading Is The Key

(Continued from Page 1)

ing the universe by means of reading this written word.

Libraries are laden with literary, historic and scientific works portraying man's perpetuated path of knowledge, and just as the present generation reads about past cultures, so posterity will ponder over the writings of our age.

Besides reading for enlightenment, individuals read to escape from their routine, everyday lives. They seek a world of make-believe or simply of enjoyment. Fiction creates a mental stimulation for the reader by bringing the outside world closer to his own.

Through the pages of a classic novel or science fiction thriller, the reader may find himself planted on a Himalayan peak with a party of climbers; plunging to the depths of the ocean floor to witness submarine warfare; or entering the intriguing and exciting lives of people in conflict.

Besides reading for pure pleasure, men and women also realize the importance of reading to be informed. Newspapers, magazines and current events pamphlets communicate the newsworthy events of the world and local environment to the masses.

The younger generation, who will take over the political reins of leadership in the next decade, have become lax as readers.

They read or should read their textbooks, but they lack the interest to pick up a book on their own. It's a certainty that television is a potent catalyst of this crime.

Naturally, everyone can't be a college graduate or professional man. There must be men to toil at manual labor in order to carry out the ideas of more brilliant men than themselves.

Yet, it is the well-read person who will be successful in life. Why do people read? They read to make better human beings of themselves. There's nothing more boring than a specialist who can't converse on all topics.

Even now, with man standing on the threshold of space, his thirst for knowledge increases, not ceases, as his horizons expand.

Yet the other creatures and forms of life that God created remain as they were in the countless eons past.

Animals hunger for the flesh of other beasts, but human hunger craves for knowledge. An animal is a feeder; man is a reader.

Today's Watchword: Curiosity.

Frosh Ball Attendance Heads Agenda At Council Meeting

By Dick Dragavon

Pleas for actions on limiting attendance at the Frosh Ball evoked a lively discussion from the Student Council before a motion was passed last Thursday providing for regulation.

Freshman President Chuck Wood asked that council take definite steps to prevent recurrence of the overcrowded conditions of last semester, before any serious troubles are encountered.

"Had any sudden emergency arisen at the dance last semester, there is no telling how great a catastrophe it might have been," Associated Student President Charles Hanks told council, saying that he had been in attendance.

Heeding these words and others by student representatives, the council members drafted and approved a method of advanced sale of tickets for the ball, giving preference to freshmen.

Under this plan, tickets will be on sale for the first three days to freshmen only, and thereafter will be available to any student.

The Associated Men Students' budget was brought off the table after undergoing strict economy measures, which cut the request from $791 down to $632.50, and was quickly approved.

A report on the student union showed that among many problems, the procuring of faculty supervision seemed to be the most formidable.

Joe Egri, State Information chairman, told council that at Oakland, the Student Council members were responsible for their student union.

However, it was brought out that, according to law, all public school property must be supervised by a school employee. Thus it seemed that the only way for the council to control the student union would be if they owned or leased the property where it was situated.

It was not known immediately if this would be possible.

Three more budgets, totaling almost $3800, were submitted by Finance Commissioner Georgene Peterson. They included a $697 request from the Club Activities Board, a $474.25 statement from the Rally Committee, and a track budget of $2632.

It was also reported that the faculty had agreed to pay for one of the student-faculty lectures.

Job Requirements Rigid For Students

Although the student placement center here is overwhelmed by applicants, only a few students have been able to meet the selective job requirements currently set by employers, Student Placement Director Joseph A. Amori announced last week.

While the downtrend in business and industry has had its effect upon part-time jobs for students, there are opportunities for applicants with special skills such as typing, shorthand, accounting, office machine handling, and the like.

Employers have also raised their standards, demanding several people to fill one position, and, in some cases, lowering the entering wages.

Commenting on the availability of summer vacation jobs this year, Amori brought out the fact that employers at camps, forestry services, resorts and public utilities, are on the selective side and are demanding only the best people to fill openings.

All students desiring summer employment or a part-time job this semester are expected to register with the placement office, S-188, immediately.

College Bows Out Of Intercollegiate Ball

Student Council has withdrawn this college from participation in the intercollegiate ball this semester, scheduled for Friday, April 28, on the recommendation of Sophomore President George Woo.

Woo was notified by the University of California that money for tickets must be advanced before any tickets are sent to the colleges.

He brought the motion before council and it decided not to take the financial risk of forwarding the money.

Week Long Schedule Set For Sororities

Registration for rushing a sorority is now in progress from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily in Dean Mary Golding's office.

Sunday afternoon an orientation and open house will be held in Smith Hall, where members of the eight sororities will serve as hostesses for the event. Trophies and scrapbooks will be displayed in the cafeteria.

Orientation will follow open house in the fountain where all the presidents of the sororities will explain program and sorority life in general.

Sororities and presidents participating are Gamma Kappa Beta, Georgene Peterson; Delta Psi, Barbara Giannini; Delta Sigma Tau, Shirley Wheatley; Kappa Phi, Janice Benetti; Theta Tau, Doris Baelgalupi; Phi Beta Rho, Pat Comerford, and Gamma Sigma Sigma, Margaret Lindstrom.

The commonest name in the world is Mahommed, which can be spelled in many ways. The commonest given name in the English-speaking world is John.

South Reservoir May Be Covered

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
• COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40 •
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1961 NUMBER 4

WatchWord

Chronic Clock Watchers Call For Slowdown

By Paul Plansky

FORM LETTERS, Freeways and Frozen Foods all have one common purpose in our modern mode of living: they save time. Americans, always complaining about the Rat Race they're in, don't seem to realize this imposing situation was brought on themselves by a preoccupation with pace.

The national race against time increases its momentum even as these words are read because of faster printing techniques and courses to speed up one's reading ability.

In this age of speed and space nothing is born or created anymore—that takes too much time — things are either launched, synthesized, or prefabricated.

Deadlines, timetables, and "rush hours" are the earmarks of a civilization in "progress."

TICK-TOCK, RACE THAT CLOCK!

A rapid transit network of tunnels, tubes, freeways and overpasses entangles every expanding metropolis. Every year cars are built lower (save time building tall garages), more compact (save time polishing it), and, of course, faster.

The daily double has been replaced by the Detroit Derby.

Between road-runs the chronic clock-watcher takes time out to stop at drive-in restaurants, drive-in movies, drive-in banks, or five-minute car washes.

Not even the fairway is free from this mania for motion; the go-carts make the golf course look like a proving ground for foreign cars.

TICK-TOCK, RACE THAT CLOCK!

People move to the suburbs to relax and "get away" from all this clock-watching. So what do they do—sprint to the city every morning and flee home on the freeway every night.

The housewife runs automatic washers, dryers, dishwashers and other appliances in order to attend club meetings at night and listen to efficiency experts speak.

She serves her husband a meal of instant, pre-cooked and frozen food, after which he seeks fast relief by taking a "Quickie" indigestion tablet.

The office is a bustling beehive of automation and efficiency. There are electric typewriters, calculating machines, ticker tapes, and time-clocks. All these things save time so there can be coffee-breaks and office parties. This is progress?

Even here at the college there is evidence of this race against the fourth dimension. During breaks between classes students seek refreshments from the automatic vending machines, especially coke and coffee, liquids which are soothing after an hour or two of dry lecturing.

Then they race back to typing for a timed-writing or to physics for a talk on rocketry.

TICK-TOCK, RACE THAT CLOCK!

Egg timers, power lawn mowers, short summer sessions in college . . . what does all this mean: what does it prove? Cigarettes in snap-open packs and flip-top boxes . . . why?

Would it save time not to wrap presents so in turn they wouldn't have to be unwrapped? Or how about people saving time kissing by not putting their arms around each other?

The accent is on acceleration. Philosophy is being replaced by velocity —who has time to think anymore?

Yet, let it be remembered by all the advocates of the stopwatch and promoters of automation and mass production—there's one process can't be cut down much shorter: try to have a baby in less than nine months.

Today's Watchword: Tranquility.

Prof Doubles As Ghost Of Joe Stalin

Josef Stalin can be found on the campus every weekday—figuratively speaking, that is.

The television production The Red Myth, a nationally televised program seen here three days a week on KQED, Channel 9, features Henry Leff, radio and television instructor at the college, as the late Russian ruler.

Leff has appeared in three different roles during the series—depicting Stalin, Karl Marx and a Russian peasant.

Irving Witt, sociology instructor here, urged "everyone to view the series, as it will give insight into the rise of Stalin and the whole Communist movement."

(For comment on The Red Myth, see Foresight, page 2.)

2-Year College Regional Confab Set For April 8

Under the leadership of Associated Student President Charles Hanks, 20 student government leaders will represent this college at the Northern Regional Conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association meeting Saturday, April 8, at Contra Costa College in San Pablo.

Primary purpose of the association is to promote better student government relationships among the two-year colleges in the state, Hanks said.

A second aim is to provide a sounding board for discussion of college problems and to exchange ideas.

The state association includes student leaders from every two-year college, who will meet to discuss various problems of student life.

The conference is made up of seven workshop groups, scheduled to discuss conference reorganization, student government, current problems, campus activities, finance, publications and publicity, and athletics.

Other states are fashioning similar conferences after California's, Hanks said, explaining that Phoenix Junior College is presently attending the conference on a temporary basis until Arizona has enough two-year colleges to organize its own association.

The conference is not only concerned with campus problems, but also with topics that may require state legislation in the future.

The State conference is scheduled for May 11 through 13, with Orange Coast College the host, and Disneyland Hotel the headquarters.

Freshman Class Hosts Ball Friday At St. Francis Hotel; Priority For Bids Ends Today

Combined facilities of the St. Francis Hotel's Colonial, Italian and Georgian Rooms will be the locale for this spring's Frosh Ball this Friday night. The ball, "C'est Magnifique," will mark the Freshman Class' major social event of the season.

The dance will be held from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, and a 12-piece orchestra, led by Maury Wolohan, whose organization filled the musical program for the Frosh Mixer, will provide the music.

Chuck Wood, Freshman Class president, said that the dance committee has been handed instructions by the Student Council calling for a maximum of 500 couples, as a general safety precaution in proportion to the hotel facilities.

This resolution was adopted to prevent recurrence of the overcrowding which prevailed at the last Frosh Ball, where the use of two dance bands was necessitated because of the room division.

Because of the limitation in attendance this semester, bids are available to Associated Student members and their dates only. The Freshman Class has the priority until today. Tomorrow and Friday bids will be given out on a first-come, first-served basis, Wood said.

Bids are obtainable at the information booth in Science Hall, and Wood emphasized that interested students must present their registration and AS cards at the booth, where they will be checked against a list provided by the administration. All bids are free.

Dress, he added, will be semi-formal, cocktail dresses for the women and dark suits for the men.

Added entertainment will be provided by Bill McCubbin of San Francisco State College, and by two college folk singing groups, the Double Bills and the Travelers.

Bill Keane and Bill Collins from Zeta Phi Sigma make up the Double Bills, while the Travelers include Fred Cherniss, Le Roi Cahn, Howard Rieschell and Bill Bohn.

A "cutest couple" contest has also been planned, and Wood explained that those interested in competing will be given identifying numbers and judged on appearance, dancing and all-round "cuteness."

Class officers and committee members working with Wood are Jan Doudiet, vice president; Roberta Dixon, recording secretary; Jenell Rogers, corresponding secretary; Otto Van Duyn, treasurer; Jackie Rommel, dance committee chairman, and Stan Burford, activities chairman.

Faculty sponsors for the ball are Dorothy Hill, Edward Rogers, Leah Cooper, Bev Pasqualetti and William Davis.

CHUCK WOOD announced that today is the deadline for freshmen to secure bids for Friday night's Frosh Ball. —Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Peter Cottontail And Helpers

Service Sorority Here Seeks Help To Bring Easter Joy To Sick Tots

Here comes Peter Cottontail, and right behind him, down the Easter trail, are his helpers in the form of Gamma Sigma Sigma, campus service sorority, which will collect money for their annual Easter Fund Drive running from April 10 through 14, according to President Margaret Lindstrom.

The drive is being held after Easter this year because of the difficulties which might have arisen had the drive gone on during midterm week. The purpose, though, remains the same as in previous years when the drive has been held.

Since 1959 this group has traditionally recruited donations from students and faculty at Easter time to buy Easter baskets filled with games,and articles to entertain bedridden children at the City and County Hospital.

Many of these children, ranging in age from 2 to 17, would not enjoy Easter at all but for the efforts of these coeds, who will decorate baskets and deliver them in person to the youngsters.

The record has been set at $122 for the highest amount ever received, but Miss Lindstrom stated that the sorority plans to set a lower goal this semester, $80, even though the members hope students will be more generous after their own happy holidays.

The coeds will be circulating through all the buildings, the court yard and the gymnasiums during the week of the drive, and may be recognized by their matching black and white outfits and the decorated collection baskets which they will be carrying.

Completion Up To Vote In November

A measure to provide for the completion of the south reservoir on Phelan Avenue will be included in a water bond issue the San Francisco Water Department expects to see on the November ballot.

The bond issue encompasses many projects, now in the planning stage, the department hopes to undertake. Completion of the reservoir will be only a small segment of the proposition, according to H. C. Medbery, head water department engineer.

The completion project will mean that the reservoir will be covered with cement and put into use for water storage in the surrounding area.

If the proposal is placed on the ballot, and passed by the voters, Medbery says the department hopes to begin construction late in 1964 or early in 1965. The actual starting date depends on two factors, he said, because the tentative schedule is flexible.

"Increased need for the services of the reservoir could move the date forward, as well as a favorable economic climate for the sale of bonds."

After the date is set the actual construction should be completed in about one year. The cap will be sufficiently supported to provide an area strong enough for light playground use only, not for parking nor spectator sports. Tennis courts are the usual facilities placed on such a structure.

Capping of the north reservoir, currently used by the college for student parking, is also planned. "The date for its construction has not been set, because this depends on the need after the south reservoir is put into use," Medbery said.

Although the department plans now provide only for a light capping on both reservoirs, City College President Louis G. Conlan, who has met with Medbery to discuss the project, assured students here that they need not be concerned over the future of the north reservoir.

At such time as the parking area is capped, the president said, plans will be developed to insure construction sufficient to support cars.

Two-Day Annual Blood Drive Set For Early April

By Herman Kligerman

"Help yourself—and others—to live" is the theme of this year's annual campus Blood Drive, scheduled to be held here Thursday, April 6, and Friday, April 7, Ron Orsolini, drive chairman, announced today.

Sponsored since 1956 by Tau Chi Sigma fraternity, the drive has received widespread acclaim and much recognition for the college.

The blood-mobile will be set up in C-249 between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. each day. It is being supplied by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank of the American Medical Society.

Under the Blood Bank accounting system, a student who donates blood is eligible to withdraw up to 20 pints of blood for himself or his immediate family, and up to eight pints for a friend when the need arises.

Students under the age of 21 must have a permission blank signed by their parent or legal guardian before they can be allowed to donate blood.

These slips will be available to the entire student body soon.

Highlighting this year's drive will be a special rally during a double College Hour from 10 to 11:30 a.m. on Friday, April 7, in the men's gymnasium.

At this time, entertainers from San Francisco night spots will perform in order to promote this project to its fullest extent, Orsolini emphasized.

Carol Brent of the Purple Onion is one of several personalities already lined up for the rally, he said.

A prize will be awarded to the club and fraternity or sorority whose members donate the most blood.

In 1959, a record high peace-time amount of 359 pints of blood was donated by students at the college. A goal of 350 pints has been set for this semester.

Orsolini assured students that the process of giving a pint of blood is neither time-consuming nor painful.

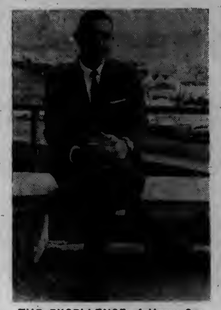
Brady Warns On Midterm Drops, Cites Regulations

A warning to those students who are planning to drop courses after the first midterm period, which ends this Friday, to observe the regulations involved was issued today by John Brady, co-ordinator, division of student welfare.

In commenting on these regulations, Brady said that it was obvious many students did not understand them, judging from the number who have attempted to drop classes in which they were failing.

"The requirements for dropping courses," Brady stated, "are that the student has a grade of at least C minus and has not exceeded the number of allowed absences."

Usually, the majority of courses dropped are in the week following the first midterm. The final date for dropping this semester is Friday, April 7.



Another little understood regulation, according to Brady, is the method of applying for a leave of absence. By one provision a student's last midterm grades (whether or not he finished the semester) are consulted if he seeks readmission to the college.

"This prohibits students from taking a leave of absence to avoid being disqualified for grade failures and then being readmitted the following semester," Brady explained.

An average of 800 leaves of absence are taken each semester. This total, approximately 10 per cent of the enrollment, is typical of all colleges, Brady added.

Friday, May 19, is the last possible day to apply for leaves this semester.

The south reservoir was the site of the college's west campus, in operation from 1946 to 1954, and before that used by the Navy as a training center and barracks for the WAVES.

THE EXCELLENCE of Harry Cordellos' ability as a photographer, even though blind, is shown in his informal portrait of Dean Ralph Hillsman.

Photographer Creates Work He Will Never See

Blind Student Uses Camera Eye

By Sue Mount

Photography may seem an unusual hobby for a sightless person, but not to Harry Cordellos, one of the few sightless men ever to walk the college's campus.

To photograph a subject, Cordellos lines his camera up according to the direction of the sun.

When he works in front of Science Hall, shooting the fire box, for example, he determines the distance of his subject from the building by the echo which bounces back from the building's columns when he taps his braille slate against his cane.

The informal portrait of Dean Ralph Hillsman at the left is one sample of the excellent quality of Cordellos' work.

Born with congenital glaucoma, a disease of the eyes, Cordellos soon realized that he not only could fulfill his ambition to be a teacher but also could meet the challenges of new fields as well.

Before entering the college, Cordellos spent one year at the Oakland Orientational Center for the Adult Blind. At the center he learned to function as a blind person. Cordellos was also taught the cane technique, which serves the same purpose as a guide dog in aiding the sightless person to move efficiently.

Each semester Cordellos sends the majority of his textbooks to the Solidad Prison to be tape-recorded. He supplies the tapes and the prison records the book in its entirety. The prison offers this service to more than 400 sightless students, and the process takes about a month.

The remaining texts are read to Cordellos by student readers who are paid by the state. Examinations are taken orally by Cordellos.

A member of Alpha Gamma Sigma and an education major, Cordellos hopes to graduate from the college next semester and then to teach at the Orientational Center. Since he is sightless, Cordellos believes that he would be more adaptable at teaching sightless students than would someone with sight.

"Instructors at the college are most helpful in that they don't treat me differently from any other student," Cordellos said.

BLIND STUDENT Harry Cordellos manipulates a focusing device which he developed to aid him in his photography class. The direction of the sun and echoes are Cordellos' means of ascertaining the distance and position of the object which he is photographing. — Guardsman photo by Estuardo Dell'Acqua.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1961 Page 2

Can Peace Corps Dream Save US From Nightmarish Reality?

"Men hit only what they aim at."—Thoreau

CAMPAIGN PLATFORMS, it has been said, are to get in on, not to stand on. Be this as it may, one prominent plank in the platform of President Kennedy is now in the process of becoming a reality. It helped to get the President "in" and now he's not only standing on it, but is actively working on it and attempting to give it life and meaning. It is the much praised and highly controversial idea of a youth peace corps.

The call has been sounded and the future and effectiveness of the President's vision of a legion of trained men and women working to aid the peoples of the underdeveloped nations of the world is in the very hands of those he hopes will fill the ranks of his new kind of "army," an army equipped not with guns and bombs, but with knowledge and a desire to help people help themselves.

The whole concept of a peace corps opens up unlimited avenues for college students and at the same time holds tremendous challenges. It is bursting with exciting possibilities and fraught with danger. It can become an effective and noble force for world peace, or it can decline into a mockery and an international farce.

The possibilities for success, then, of the peace corps are equalled by just as many possibilities for failure if it becomes bogged down in needless bureaucracy, if it is forced to accept members not fully qualified for the arduous life it promises, if it is conducted in a manner that does not permit adequate standards to be maintained.

We believe, however, that it's worth a try, and not merely because the Joneses, or in this case, the Russians are doing it. It's needed. Call it a gamble, for a gamble it is, but the potential rewards in progress and human good will of such a venture are great enough to justify such a gamble.

It is to be expected, of course, that there will be mistakes and blunders, or, as most collegians would say, "goofs," for as any other human agency, from churches to corporations to governments, it will be endowed with inherent human weaknesses and failings. This does not mean, however, that the plan should not be given a try.

It is not our intention to paint a completely black picture, but it is almost inevitable that there will be occasions when plans and designs will not work out in the desired manner. It is on occasions such as this that admitting a change is needed or doing a complete about face should not be feared, for it is this reluctance, this apparent inability to change policies or procedures once a plan of action has been decided upon that seems to be the one of the major weaknesses in American foreign policy.

The whole concept of a peace corps, we feel, is one of the most adventurous and unique plans ever laid before the American public, a kind of twentieth century counterpart to the medieval crusades.

Shakespeare once asked what is a man if the chief good and market of his time is but to sleep and feed? We might direct the question to our country and to ourselves and ask what is a democracy if the chief good and market of its time is but to slumber in complacency and gorge itself on materialism?

In itself, there is nothing wrong with a great democratic society, even if it seems to have lost sight of its goals, in becoming strong and materially wealthy. It is when it does so, however, at the expense of others, either by accident or design, that a danger is presented to it.

That we are strong and self-sufficient is evident, but we must, on a person to person basis, aid others in attaining this same objective. The peace corps, despite the overwhelming challenges and many pitfalls it might contain, is a significant step in achieving this long sought after dream. It is itself a dream, a dream designed to make the dreams of others become realities. It is a dream that deserves the full attention and co-operation of the entire country, else we wake up and find ourselves in the middle of a nightmare.

VMBE Head Due April 1

Vendor To Tell Influence Of Machines On Studies

By Rodney Van Cleve

"Our one aim is to help you!" shouted Victor Aristotle Vendor, president of Vending Machines For Betterment Of Education, to a huge, noisy crowd of students who turned out to welcome him on his "scouting" mission last Wednesday.

Vendor was here in preparation for a formal address he will deliver April 1.

Vendor, after greeting his admirers, was guided through an extensive tour of the college by local leaders. The tour, logically, ended in Science Hall basement where, among a number of well-polished vending machines, this reporter gained an exclusive ESP preview of his lecture.

"The purpose of vending machines on campuses is to shorten the time-consuming process of food consumption, and thus allow the student more time for pursuing his course of study," Vendor will say.

Commenting on the growing campus problem of anaemia and facial corrosion affecting students, Vendor stated that he does not believe vending machines are solely responsible.

"Rather it is a whisper campaign carried on against us by cafeterias and petty merchants," he said.

Shortly before he left, this snoop gained a confidential hint from Vendor concerning a new machine just off the planning board. He said the machine will dispense symbols of current ideas, interests and movements which will inspire students to greater participation in these affairs.

Such articles as autographed cards depicting the Kennedy family (all in shorts) playing football; Kookie's "new" comb, and a replica of Khrushchev's right shoe are items on the way.

Installation of such a machine will mark the high point of Vendor's visit here on April 1.

Dieters' Delights

Low Calorie Display Set

Continuing her Fall semester project of trying to improve students' awareness of the importance of nutrition, Brigitta Beetz, nutrition instructor here, revealed plans for a new display for Monday, April 3.

The exhibit, which will feature 100 Calerie Portions of Different Foods, will be set up on the third floor of Science Hall.

Since "nibblers" do not detract from the effect of the display as much as "squatters" interrupt the operation of the cafeteria, Mrs. Beetz has no plans for implementing "protective measures" to avoid the ravages of hungry students on the day of the display.

However, the fact that she has never had the problem of having to provide an "Elworthy Patrol" for her exhibits does not mean that they are not as attractive to students as the cafeteria.

Foresight

Red Myth Shows Truth, Bares Commie Fiction

By Richard Shields

THE RED MYTH, presented every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. by KQED, is an extremely interesting half-hour exposé of the fallacies in reasoning and the horror of actuality involved in the philosophy and the crimes perpetrated by international communism.

Last week's program, titled Communism In The United States, told the history of the growth of communism in this country from its origin in the holocaust of Russian revolution to its present state.

Photographs and excerpts from films gave an excellent portrayal of the crude beginnings of Bolshevism with only the guideposts of Marx to show the way, and the rapidly developed refinement of espionage and political intrigue.

Witold Sworakowski, director of the Hoover Institute of War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford University, presided over the nutshell history of Americans who have been involved in one of the biggest political farces of all time.

The communist movement in the United States, initiated by a group of "young intellectuals" who were dissatisfied with conditions in the world after World War I, followed the precepts of Karl Marx to the letter.

Conflict soon arose with another group, the Foreign Language Federation, who followed Lenin when he abandoned Marxist principles in favor of much harsher policies, one of which was to force the workers of America to take over the leadership of the country.

At this point in the program, Sworakowski introduced a former director of the American Communist Party who attested to the fact that the organization, consisting of an underground glossed over by the legal aspects of the party, is exactly the same today as it was then.

"If murder will serve the interests of the party, they will not hesitate to resort to murder . . . the underground is a gangster organization engaged in criminal activities . . ." most of which are covered for by the party acting as a legally representative part of American political life.

The program covered a vitally important subject, important to all Americans today because of their involvement, directly or indirectly, with the affairs of the Communist Party here and in Russia, in a wholesome and completely honest manner.

There was no petty "back-stabbing" involved, or deceit, or even propaganda; all in all, it was a factual presentation of the history, past and future, of the entire world if the forces generating the "red myth" cannot be nullified by truth and freedom.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacation, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Piansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister

Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragoven, Robert Hecker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.

Reporters: Dick Dravagen, Dienna Dupre, Dennie Greene, Robert Hecker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarentino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve.

Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Richard Edelson, Cynthia Fruitman, Frederick Gregory, Margaret Hewkins, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, William Merrill, Herbert Mitels, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Merilyn Santos, Sandra Sells, Evelyn Thuds, Christopher Wilde, Bob Yeary.

Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Eggert, Estuardo Dell'Acque, Gary Lair.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

SOME COLUMNS belong in the wastebasket. Others get some of their best material out of wastebaskets.

Here's a rejected headline from under the desk of a Guardsman editor: COMPLETION OF ARTS BUILDING ADDS TO CAMPUS EDIFICE COMPLEX.

* * *

A telegraph blank, which had a message pencilled in for submission to the Western Union office, was found crumpled on the floor of the gymnasium last week. The unsent message: CONGRATULATIONS INGO.

* * *

A young man, overheard earlier complaining about how hard it is to find a job, comes out of the cafeteria reading a mimeographed piece of paper.

He throws it into the red trash can. A spy retrieves it. The text: BE AN AIRLINE STEWARDESS.

* * *

The trash can outside the veterans affairs office in Science Hall was quite full the other week. All of the balls of paper looked alike. An alert person decrumpled one and read it: BE AN AIR FORCE OFFICER.

* * *

A group of artists met secretly last Monday to think up a slogan for our big, beautiful mural.

Plucked from their wastebasket: DON'T CALL IT FRESCO.

* * *

A student was helping his political science instructor clean out his desk the other day.

In an envelope that must have slipped down in back of one of the drawers, he found a carbon copy of the instructor's thesis, written in graduate school.

The title: THE EFFECTIVENESS OF BELGIUM'S COLONIAL ADMINISTRATION.

* * *

One thing, thank goodness, has not been found under anyone's desk or in any wastebasket.

That is the snake who left a sign in the display window of the life science department, reading, "Out to lunch looking for mice."

READY FOR ACTION in Friday's match with Contra Costa, Ram tennis star Jack Bracken pauses during a practice session.

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

ONE WEEK AGO Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson fought in their third—and possibly last—heavyweight title bout.

Even if some ringside observers were right in insisting that both men were sloppy and second-rate, we will not soon forget one impression we had from the fight.

That was the fierce determination of each fighter, knowing that he had to go out and "get" his opponent before he was "clobbered" himself. After the first round it was obvious that the bout would end in a knockout—at any given moment.

With this in mind, the most prophetic and pointed pre-fight story that we read came out of a seminary 10 days before the big night itself.

In an interview in The Monitor, Catholic newspaper for the San Francisco Archdiocese, Father Joseph J. Farraher stated that he personally thinks that boxing is immoral.

A Jesuit moral theologian, he maintained that the Fifth Commandment prohibits deliberate, intended injury to the human body except when necessary to save life, as in an operation. Every time a boxer takes a jarring blow to the head, his brain suffers permanent damage that cannot be repaired or healed."

He is not teaching church doctrine, but Father Farraher has been convinced that boxing is too risky and degrading.

* * *

HERE AT this college, Roy Diederichsen, intramural boxing coach, has a different view—at least on college boxing.

During his 12 years as head coach of the Ram intercollegiate ring team, there has been only one serious injury (a broken jaw). He believes college boxers are kept comparatively safe with headguards.

On the positive side, Diederichsen cites training that the sport offers in self-reliance and courage. In no other activity will a person receive such a unique chance to prove his individual valor. The boxer is in there all by himself against his opponent!

College boxing is currently in a state of de-emphasis, and Diederichsen believes that this was caused by the introduction a few years ago of Golden Gloves and other seasoned fighters into competition.

The less experienced boxers naturally became alarmed and several teams withdrew. If participation were again restricted to "amateurs," Diederichsen believes boxing would make a comeback on the intercollegiate scene.

His boxers finished second in the nation in 1949 and third in 1950, winning four straight Junior College Conference championships concurrently.

At present the sport is restricted to intramural competition, with tournaments held both in the Fall and Spring semesters.

We agree with the coach that if college boxing is carried on with discretion and fairness, it can be highly beneficial to the contestants.

But on the professional level, it might be somewhat different.

Title-Holding Ram Netters Face Comets

Continuing their title defense in the Big Eight Conference, the Ram netmen go up against Contra Costa at 3 p.m. Friday at the Olympic Club in their third league match.

In their first league match the college tennis team smashed a strong Sacramento squad by a score of 6-1. Jack Bracken won his match 6-1, 6-3; Rich Murray 6-2, 4-6, 6-3; John Welles 6-3, 6-1; Paul Barth 6-1, 4-6, 6-1; and Bob Silverstein 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

In the doubles matches Bracken and Welles lost 6-3, 2-6, 7-5, but Murray and Barth won 6-0, 6-3. Despite this loss, Sacramento should place very high in the league standings, according to Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen.

This year's top-rated team is Modesto, which is slated to swing against the locals Friday, April 14. The Pirates boast several strong players, including Tom Muench, Big Eight singles and doubles champion in 1960.

In their last practice match the college netmen defeated San Francisco State for the first time in four years, 7-2. Again, the first five Rams won their respective matches, and the first doubles teams split the two matches.

This year the Gator team isn't as strong as usual but it still provided some tough opposition.

Bracken, the Ram's top tennis player, was graduated from Riordan High School and has been one of the best players for the college. Two years ago Bracken won the doubles consolation prize at the state championship with his partner, Fred Botsford.

A sophomore, Barth, who was graduated from Polytechnic High School, has been a member of the tennis team for two years.

Murray, a former Lincolnite, has recently developed an interest in tennis. Discovered about two years ago by Diederichsen, he has improved greatly in this short time. Diederichsen refers to him as the "shadow of Bob Siska," the latter a highly ranked junior star.

As a sixth man, Randy Chun could move up to the first doubles team with constant practice.

Guardsman Sports

Volume 52, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1961 Page 3

Big 8 Relays Reslated For Today

OFF TO THE GREENS! Grant Fahs (left) and Gary Mialocq, two Ram golf hopefuls, lead the locals into Friday's match with Modesto and are also expected to compete in next week's intercollegiate Golf Tournament at Pasatiempo.—Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Golfers Eye Big Tournament After Match With Pirates

After opening the season against two of the best teams in the Big Eight, the Ram golfers continue their rapid pace by playing host to Modesto this Friday and entering the Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at Pasatiempo the following weekend.

Stockton and San Mateo furnished more than enough competition for the locals in their first two league matches, so Friday's encounter with the Pirates, 1 p.m. at Harding Park, is expected to be a somewhat easier assignment.

The Pasatiempo tournament will take place near Santa Cruz March 30, 31 and April 1 (Thursday, Friday and Saturday). It is open to all colleges and universities in California.

Three flights—championship (four handicap or below), first flight (eight handicap or below), and second flight —are scheduled. After the first two days approximately 20 golfers in each flight will be selected for the championship round.

Ram Coach Grover Kiemmer is expected to send Gary Mialocq, Grant Fahs, Bruce Hubley and Larry Sugimoto to compete, although they rate only an outside chance to win the individual and team medals.

In the Stockton contest, the Rams were edged by the hometowners 8½ to 6½, as Big Eight champ Felix Claveron scored a fine 73. Last week San Jose City College scored an 8-7 practice victory over the locals, although Mialocq recorded a 77 in bad weather conditions.

Hoopsters Forgotten In All-League Picks

League champion Oakland, and Contra Costa, who tied with the Rams for second place, managed to capture all five berths of the Big Eight All-Conference basketball squad, selected by a vote of the league's coaches last week.

Placing guard Bobby Grayson on the second team was the best that Coach Sid Phelan's quintet was able to do.

Four forwards and a lone guard, all second year men, found their way onto the first team.

Flashy Thunderbird guard Charles McKinney and forward Wendell Hayes are repeaters from last year.

The other Oaklander to make the top five was 6-1 forward Howard Foster. Rounding out the club were Contra Costa forwards Ed Greene and John Scruggs.

Rain Postpones Track Carnival As Locals Drop Tune-Up To SJS

By Al Orlovitz

HUGHES STADIUM, SACRAMENTO, March 20.—Rained out of its previous scheduled date last Saturday, the Big Eight Relays will be staged here this Wednesday, March 22, at 1:30 p.m.

Entries from all colleges in the Big Eight Conference, including a large contingent from San Francisco, will compete in the relay carnival.

Although the results will not count in league scoring, the meet is held at the beginning of each track season to allow the teams to size up the opposition and help set team personnel.

Last Saturday Ram Coach Lou Vasquez entered his charges in a practice meet with the San Jose State Frosh.

Although beaten by the strong Spartan squad, considered one of the best in the country, some of his athletes' individual performances gladdened Coach Vasquez.

Chief among these was the 6-8½ high jump by Ray Hearne, which shattered the college record formerly held by Ed Costa at 6-7¾, set in 1958.

Other winners for the college were Frank James, winning the two-mile run with a devastating kick in the last lap, and husky Alex Darnes, who took the discus throw with a heave of 150 feet.

Vasquez plans to enter the following Rams in the Big Eight Relay events:

Shuttle Hurdles—Jim Nichols, John Pangburn, Bob Hector, Tom Pierce.
Sprint Medley—Bob Hecker, Bob Shenk, Wade Pittman, Tony Perriano.
440 Relay—Herman McKee, Othello Carr, Bob Taylor, Carlin Vance.
Two-mile—Roger Ritchie, Bill Hotchkiss, Tom Jennings, Frank James.
100—Herman McKee, Carlin Vance.
220 Relay—Herman McKee, Othello Carr, Bob Taylor, Carlin Vance.
Distance Medley—Tony Perriano, Roger Ritchie, Jose Valle, Frank James.
High Hurdles—Bob Hector, Jim Nichols.
Mile—Wade Pittman, Bill Hotchkiss, Tom Jennings, Bob Shenk.
Pole Vault—Bob Ely, Bill Miles, Ray Beaudette.
Broad Jump—Othello Carr, George Holland, El Bridges, Ray Hearne.
High Jump—John Kelley, El Bridges, Ray Hearne.
Shot-put—Alex Darnes, Bill Holman.
Discus—Alex Darnes, Bob Shenk, Bill Holman.

This Week In Sports . . .

THURSDAY

- Baseball—At Treasure Island, 2:45 p.m.

FRIDAY

- Golf—Rams vs. Modesto at Harding Park, 1 p.m.
- Tennis—Rams vs. Contra Costa at Olympic Club, 3 p.m.
- Swimming—At San Mateo, 4 p.m.

SATURDAY

- Baseball—At Stockton, 12 noon.
- Track—Santa Rosa, Cal Frosh at Berkeley, 11 and 2.

WEEKEND RESULTS

- Golf—Rams, 11½, San Mateo 13½.
- Tennis—Rams 7, San Mateo 0.
- Swimming—Rams 13, Oakland 81.
- Baseball—Vallejo, St. Mary's, Treasure Island games rained out.

Mermen Fighting To Escape Cellar

Battling to get out of last place, the gradually improving Ram swimmers take on fourth place San Mateo at San Mateo this Friday.

Even though they have yet to win a meet, the swimmers' times have come down considerably in the past few weeks, indicating that the men are getting into better shape as the season progresses.

Freshman Fred Vogel, swimming the 200-yard backstroke, came down 36.2 seconds in two weeks.

In the 58-36 losing effort to Sacramento, the Rams swimmers captured only three first places, two of those in medley races. Alan Stevens, Rich Sullivan, Tom Harrop and Vogel combined their talents to roll up a victory in the 280-yard medley.

Later in the day Al Perkins, Ell Silver, John Hoim and Sullivan merged their efforts to win the 280-yard free style medley.

Stevens, giving his usual good performance in the breast stroke, scored the Rams' only individual first place with a fast 2:52.8. This time was also Stevens' best of the year.

RA Prepares Teams For Sports Day In San Jose

With its next Sports Day scheduled for San Jose City College Saturday, April 8, the Recreation Association is preparing to enter teams in tennis, women's basketball, coed softball, and coed archery. Kay Vanderford, RA president, said today.

At the recent conference in Monterey, attended by more than 250 participants, helpful knowledge was gained on many subjects, including compulsory physical education in two-year colleges.

Colleges from California, Arizona, Hawaii and Nevada participated.

Bowling League Added To Murals

After a successful start last week the Intramural Basketball League continues tonight and is slated to be joined soon by a bowling league.

If everything runs according to present plans, an eight team coed intramural bowling league should definitely become a reality by the first week in April, according to Les Adams, co-ordinator of the activity.

With the Inter-Fraternity Council League having played four games last night, the Club Activities Board League has a full slate set for tonight, matching the Hawaiian Club-Filipino Club and Newman Club-Guardsman at 7:30 o'clock.

In the 8:30 games will be the Hillel Club-Recreation Association and Associated Men Student-Hotel and Restaurant Department matches.

Last week the Untouchables got off to a successful defense of their mural title by routing Zeta Phi Sigma 68-44.

Other results in that league found Phi Beta Delta edging Tau Chi Sigma 24-20, and Alpha Phi Epsilon defeating Alpha Kappa Rho 33-22.

In the CAB division the defending titlist, Guardsman, was soundly beaten by the RA 57-32, while AMS defeated the Hawaiian Club 39-16.

Other contests found H&R victors over the Newman Club 39-24, and Hillel topping the Filipino Club 32-22.

Ram Diamondmen Win 2, Drop 3 In Pre-Season Games

Displaying an acute case of "no hit-itis," the Ram diamondmen have posted a disappointing two-win and three-defeat record thus far in pre-season encounters.

Despite the fact that 12 members of the team are batting over .300, the team is definitely below par in their offense. Most of the hits contributing to the .300 averages were gained in the 24-3 win over St. Mary's varsity on March 9.

Treasure Island will be the site tomorrow for the last pre-season game before the Rams face Stockton on Saturday in the first Big Eight game. The double-header will start at 12 noon at Stockton.

On Tuesday, April 4, the second league game will be held at San Mateo. The Bulldogs will come here on Friday, April 7, for the next game.

Gary Attell, powerful second baseman for the Rams, has been one of the most consistent players on the field.

A late arrival from the basketball league is Rich Lane, slick-fielding first sacker. Lane has shown defensive prowess at that position, but his hitting leaves much to be desired.

Another late arrival is pitcher Marty Lougiman, a veteran last season. At this writing he has appeared only in one game, against St. Mary's.

Although Coach Lee Eisan has the personnel for a championship team, they have so far not performed as a team. This is the main problem that Eisan will have to overcome before the first league game Saturday.

City College's head football and golf coach Grover Kiemmer formerly held the world's record for the 440-yard dash. He set a world standard of 46.4 seconds in 1941 while running for the University of California.

Texts Tempt Takers

Students Oblige Book-Nappers Here With Unmarked Volumes

"Textbooks are burglar bait if . . . they are left unattended in the cafeteria . . . or left unattended in the library . . . or if names have not been written in all students' books."

This is the word from Ralph Hillsman, dean of men here, who, in the light of recent complaints received in his office, issued the words of warning and advice.

The easiest place for the "thieves" to do business is in the cafeteria where students often leave books unattended for an hour or more while they devote their full time to making Sherman Elworthy's job of maintaining order in the cafeteria far from easy.

No one seems to pay attention to the sign that says, "These lockers are not for storage of books," Hillsman maintained.

Although a less likely place to "acquire" books because of obvious ownership, the library still offers a temptation.

(It has been rumored, though unconfirmed, that students unable to finish assigned work in the library have "borrowed" certain volumes restricted to library use and have returned them undetected the next morning through the overnight book return.)

Hillsman summarized by saying that the only method of putting the "book thieves" on the run is for each student to make certain that his name is in each of his books and that he keeps them well in his sight at all times when on campus.

11 Budget Requests Top Nine Thousand Mark; Student Council Anticipates Heavy Work Load In Coming Weeks

By Dick Dragavon

Allocation of funds kept Student Council tied up for their meetings last week, and submission of 11 new budgets totaling more than $9000 promised to keep them busy for the next few weeks.

Two budgets, from the Rally Committee and the track team, which had undergone careful studies and had had a total of about $400 pared from the original requests, were quickly approved.

Rally Committee received $392.15, and the track team was allotted $2324.10.

The request for $579 by the Club Activities Board was again tabled when it was discovered to be a partial budget.

CAB President Don Verdu had omitted specifying an amount for decorations for the Spring Festival, intending to submit a request later when a more complete idea of what would be needed was available.

However, Georgene Peterson, finance chairman, told council that any budgets passed by them could not be subsequently increased.

The new budgets which were submitted by Miss Peterson were assigned to individual council members for study. It was hoped by President Charles Hanks that these would be ready for action this week.

Hanks also informed the council members that the regional convention of the California Junior College Student Government Association is to be held April 28 at Contra Costa.

It was decided to travel by private car when it was shown that a chartered bus would be less economical.

Summer Jobs College Hour Seminar Topic

How to win summer jobs in 1961 will be discussed at a seminar this Friday during College Hour in S-100, planned to acquaint students with job opportunities, Joseph A. Amori, placement director here, revealed recently.

Since most employers are making plans for recruiting and selecting early, all interested students are advised to attend this seminar for valuable information, he said.

"Jobs have always gone begging because of the lack of training and experience on the part of the majority of the applicants," Amori stated.

Students with marketable skills in food preparation, food and beverage service, recreation and athletics, arts and crafts, and outdoor projects are especially desired in resorts, camps, national forests, restaurants and hotels.

The jobs are located in California, Oregon, Nevada, Montana, New Mexico and Wyoming. In most instances the employers will furnish transportation if the employee agrees to stay the whole season on the job. Wages and salaries are commensurate with training and experience.

While there are some jobs within the boundaries of the City and County of San Francisco, they are scarce and are usually awarded to the "fortunate few." Most of these are of a clerical nature, Amori said, adding that all applicants are screened and tested prior to hiring, usually by a large selection committee.

Students desiring advance information should consult with the Placement Office, S-188, immediately.

UMOC Contest To Start April 10

Alpha Phi Omega fraternity will hold its annual Ugly Man On Campus contest April 10 through 14, with the Ugly Man chosen by the penny-a-vote method. Proceeds will go to the Alpha Phi Omega scholarship fund, Sanford Saiki, fraternity president, said.

Contestants for UMOC must be sponsored by an on-campus organization and, during the contest, dress in a manner to make himself truly ugly.

Applicatiosn may be picked up at the dean of men's office and must be turned in no later than Tuesday, March 28, Saiki said.

Awards Due Scholars Here

Deans Offer List Of 35 Student Grants

Scholarships, divided among 11 categories, will be awarded this semester to 35 students.

Recipients of these awards are determined by Dean Mary Golding, Dean Ralph Hillsman, and Co-ordinator John Brady, who announced the deadline for all applications is Thursday, April 13.

For students meeting the general requirements, the Chinese Club, Square and Circle, Graduating Class, and Dr. A. J. Cloud Scholarships provide two each—to one man and one woman.

Awarded to one man and one woman on the basis of student activities is the Alpha Phi Omega Scholarship.

Of the seven departments offering scholarships, the Hotel and Restaurant department awards 10 scholarships to hotel and restaurant students.

The Alice Eastwood Scholarship is awarded to the outstanding student or students majoring in ornamental horticulture, while three students majoring in retail floristry will be awarded San Francisco Flower Industry Scholarships.

Offered to three students enrolled in two-year colleges in the Bay Area are San Francisco Law School Scholarships.

San Francisco Chapter, No. 7, International Footprint Association, offers two scholarships to students majoring in criminology.

Two Bank of America Awards are provided annually for students majoring in business. The Wall Street Journal Award in finance is awarded to the student who has majored in business and whose scholastic standing indicates potential achievement in the field of investment and finance.

California College of Arts and Crafts Scholarship is offered to a graduate of the curriculum in advertising and commercial art, and to a student majoring in advertising and commercial art, the Academy of Art Scholarship is awarded.

San Francisco music department offers one scholarship to a third semester student majoring in music.

Basic requirements for applicants are scholastic standing, leadership and individual needs. Scholarships awarded last June totaled $8925.

Pre-Program Plan In 2nd Step

The second step in pre-programming, the filling out of the student's proposed program for next semester, should be completed now, before students receive counseling appointments, Walter McCloud, counselor here, announced today.

Counseling appointments will begin during the last half of March, McCloud said, but few freshmen will not begin to receive their appointments until the middle of April since their registration numbers will be determined by their first midterm grades.

Only about 3726 students have filled out open hour forms during the week of March 13, he said, adding that those students planning to return for the Fall 1961 semester who haven't filled out open hour forms should see their counselors immediately.

Students who haven't filled out open hour forms will lose the registration numbers that they deserved and will be given higher ones.

Denman Prize Back After 3-Year Absence

After an absence of more than three years, presentation of the Denman Award of $300 to two deserving women students who perform outstanding work will be revived this semester, Dean Mary Golding revealed this week.

Qualifications for the award include superior scholastic achievement, being a graduate of a San Francisco public high school, genuine necessity and indication of ambition and character. Applicants must also have completed 15 units of work at the college and plan on graduating from here, Dean Golding said.

Deadline for all applications is Thursday, April 13. The awards will be presented in the form of $150 to each student at a luncheon on Thursday, May 4.

The scholarship fund was originated by the late Judge William Denman and his sister, Mary Denman Cheatham, in memory of their father, James Denman, a San Francisco Public School Superintendent and President of the Board of Education.

It was first set up as a yearly medal presented to a girl graduating from the eighth grade, preparatory to attending high school, but was discontinued in 1919 when the eighth grades were absorbed in the junior high schools.

The award was first made to a woman student at the college in 1939, and was presented regularly after Judge Denman's death in 1958. The fund is now provided from his estate.

In making his last personal presentation in 1958, Judge Denman remarked, "I notice that year after year the checks go to people without English family names, and I have just about concluded that the children of immigrants make more of our education than the native born."

It is possible to re-establish the awards again this year, Dean Golding stated, "because the estate of Judge Denman has been settled, ending the long interval since they were last given to Marilyn Kotkas and June Ulan in 1958."

MARY GOLDING, dean of women here, who set the date for filing of scholarship petitions for April 13, in S-150.

Sorority Rushees To Get Fireside Invitations Soon

Invitations are ready for the sorority firesides to be held during the week of Easter for all rushees who have a C or higher grade point average and who also are carrying at least 12 units.

Dates and times for the evening firesides were released today by Margaret Lindstrom, Inter-Sorority Council president.

On April 4 Delta Psi and Theta Tau will hold their firesides followed by Delta Sigma Tau and Gamma Sigma Sigma on April 5. Zeta Chi and Kappa Phi will meet on April 6, while April 9 marks the fireside date for Phi Beta Rho and Gamma Kappa Beta.

After these affairs are over, rushees will express preferences as to which sorority they wish to join in the dean of womens' office Wednesday, April 12, and on the same day the sororities will submit invitation lists in S-180. These lists are due by noon.

Sororities will match invitations and preferences in the above room on April 13, and on April 14 rushees may pick up their invitations in S-150 from 7:30 a.m. on, April 14.

On April 16 pledge instruction will begin, and on April 17 and 21 joints are scheduled.

Guardsman On Holiday Too

Because of the college's three-day Easter vacation, the first of such duration in several years, publication of The Guardsman will be interrupted until Wednesday, April 12, Bob Pacini, editor-in-chief, announced today.

The holidays are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 29 to 31, and classes resume Monday, April 3.

The Plane In Spain Puts Instructor Under Linguistic Strain

Hopping from town to town in Europe may be everyone's dream, but for John Lippitt, business administration instructor here and a Major in the Air Force Reserve, it was unexpected and almost not a pleasure.

A special assignment, ferrying an aircraft to Hamilton Air Force Base, took him to Dreux AFB in France.

On the way back to the United States on February 22, with the plane a C119 Flying Boxcar, a broken oil line forced the crew to reconsider its destination.

Lippitt, as navigator, became too busy trying to find a place to land, and as the plane was about 250 miles from the coast it was "touch and go as to whether we would get wet or not."

The crew succeeded in stopping the engine by feathering the propeller, although black smoke continued to stream from it.

"This type of aircraft was certainly not designed to fly with one engine," was Lippitt's casual understatement.

The plane fell from 8000 feet to 3500 feet before it could be leveled by the jettisoning of "everything that wasn't bolted down."

Two fuel tanks which were specially installed for the flight would have gone out, too, commented Lippitt, "if we could have gotten them loose."

A little-used air strip was located in Santiago de Compostela in Spain, and although none of the crew spoke Spanish, Lippitt managed to get out a radio message that they were in danger.

About 6:30 p.m. the airport was closed, but a janitor who was sweeping heard the message and replied, "Usan ustedes uno-ocho-zero." This was deciphered by the crew as the number of the runway they were to land on.

Once on the ground the crew loosened up and was described by a local Spanish newspaper as "humorists" and "big and strong."

Although he found that he could understand Spanish if it was spoken slowly enough, Lippitt said that they met an American who was attending a medical school there, and he acted as their guide.

"We received the royal treatment," Lippitt stated, "and were invited to dinner." He preferred to eat at the hotel, however, as the food served in the home was "alien to American appetites."

Meals in the hotel, described as "quite a palace," cost about 75 cents and rooms were $2.

The crew spent nearly a week in Santiago while parts were flown in and the aircraft repaired. This allowed them time for an extensive tour of the city, which is the burial site of St. James the Apostle.

Santiago, Lippitt explained, has at least 300 churches, many of them old granite and marble structures. Keeping those buildings intact is an acute problem because of a unique stone-eating termite, he said.

Although he didn't do any tutoring there, he felt that the local business methods were outdated. He observed that on market days the transactions were done mostly by bartering.

Middlemen were eliminated as live animals were exchanged for other necessities.

After leaving Santiago, an oil consumption of nearly six gallons per hour in the other engine caused them to land in Madrid, where they stayed for a few days.

At this time the crew decided that they wouldn't be able to get the plane to the United States.

Returning to France, the men realized that the leaves of absence which they had taken from their jobs were almost expired.

They were then returned home as passenger of the Military Air Transport Service.

Lippitt was a day late for his classes here.—By R.D.

WatchWord (See Page 4)

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
• COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40 •
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1961 NUMBER 5

Closed Circuit TV Here In Fall To Serve Entire Campus

A DEMONSTRATION of how closed circuit television would work here at the college is shown above. The exactness and intricacy of minute dental work, difficult to demonstrate to a large class, will on a television screen give each student a front row seat.

Instruction And Education To Be Main Purposes Of System; Other Possibilities Unlimited

This week's announcement by Henry Leff that closed circuit television will make its debut on the campus this fall is being heralded in all corners of the college as the beginning of a new era.

Naturally, the primary purpose of having one or more television sets in each classroom, cameras capable of being moved to any location and transmitting facilities able to send sound and picture from any of these cameras to any of the sets, is for instruction and education.

According to Leff, one of the primary uses of the system will be that of magnification. In other words, an instructor working on something fine, such as a biological dissection or the making of a dental plate, will have a camera looking over his shoulder.

Over his head, in sight of all the class and appearing to all students with equal clarity, will be a television picture of whatever he is working on.

As the college grows, this will also develop into the other primary use of this type of instruction. Instructors can lecture and demonstrate to students who are in other classrooms.

An example of this would provide that the first lecture in a course of several sections be given by the head of the department. He would speak simultaneously to all the students of all other instructors in this particular course.

Going up the line, this same method could be used by the counseling department for one counselor to communicate with all of the students under his guidance.

The president of the college will be able to address the entire student body and faculty without having to find a place where the 7000 students can be assembled.

An interesting and highly profitable aspect of the newest innovation in communications here is the fact that students will be needed to operate the facilities.

Although the present audio-visual classes are rather small, the training to be offered by operation of a first class closed circuit here on the campus is expected to attract a large number of enrollees in the course and also draw many to the college who would have previously thought of going elsewhere.

Running of this facility and operation of the equipment under the direction of Leff will provide a high degree of training in broadcasting techniques for those interested in careers in radio, television, motion pictures, electronic engineering, journalism and allied fields.

Mass communication, enjoying the status and the importance it does in today's world, has become a highly specialized profession and trained people are always in demand.

The uses for this new facility are unlimited. The future of a college with this type of equipment is similarly unlimited.—By C.W.

Leff Strives To Inform Students Of New Project

By Raul Ortega

Installation of closed circuit television here for use next semester poses a paradox in that the greater benefit will be gained by those who watch the shows than by those who put them on.

To make the broader and other valuable implications of the system more apparent to the Associated Students is the primary ambition today of radio and TV instructor Henry Leff.

"This is not a new toy for the broadcasting department," he said in a recent interview. The idea that it will be only of advantage to broadcasting majors is, in his view, "the narrowest concept."

Use of the unit as a focal point where the talents of many people can be utilized and channeled must be emphasized, he said.

Most students in related fields such as art, photography, motion pictures, journalism, education and an array of others do not realize the import of such a resource.

Leff, armed with brochures, pamphlets and books, has little doubt of the importance of the anticipated impact TV will have on education.

Interdepartment co-operation and co-ordinated student effort are the keys to the success of the closed circuit TV outlay, he believes.

An example was drawn by Leff from the biology division's production of a film showing the dissection of a frog. This required the co-operation of several departments.

Broadcasters had problems in timing the narration with the action.

The art students who drew the title cards were faced with making drawings not for a display case or classroom wall but for a 16 millimeter lens. Encountered were difficulties with light and color reproduction.

Those cutting the frog discovered that camera angles could be an obstacle. Mishaps led to second and third "takes." The motion picture section had to find more film. The biologists had to produce another frog.

Everyone concerned emerged with more than textbook insight, and this is what Leff hopes to accomplish with other college TV projects.

Immediately recognizable, he said, is the program's value to the broadcast major, since the radio-television industry itself does not have the time to give on-the-job training. Now the student may make and correct his mistakes in the classroom under conditions as true to the real thing as can be found.

It will be the real thing though on a minor scale.

Less apparent but more significant is its implication to the non-technician, the non-broadcasting major, Leff believes. As TV grows and increasingly integrates into the environs of daily life an understanding of its techniques and uses is augmented.

Television's utilization in fields barely related to broadcasting is far too long to list and it is still growing.

The understanding and intelligent use and application of TV in its new scopes is what Leff is confident the course will provide. Though they will not present a "final solution," they can serve as a basis from which students of various interests may expand.

Hopes are that courses of a workshop nature will be available for non-broadcast majors in the Fall semester. The possibility is that two will be announced then, and others will follow in succeeding semesters.

Elusive Problem, Solution Leave Mural Question Open

By Fred Gregory

The question of protecting the ornate Diego Rivera mural that decorates the lobby of the new arts building has not yet been answered because of the elusiveness both of the problem and its solution.

Benny Bufano, renowned San Francisco sculptor, recently expressed the belief that the beautiful mural should be protected against harmful sun rays which shine through the panels of glass in the south door of the lobby, and possible vandalism.

The problem was then brought before Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of education management here. Dr. Anderson in turn submitted a query to Timothy Pflueger, college architect, for consideration.

Architect Pflueger, who was given the mural by Diego Rivera following the 1939 Golden Gate Exposition, is now pondering the actual need or effect of protection.

Dr. Anderson hastened to emphasize that hasty, unproved methods might totally destroy the beautiful attribute to one of the most up-to-date theater facilities in the United States.

The primary problem is whether the sun's rays will penetrate through the windows of the lobby door enough actually to fade the 75 by 22 foot painting.

Another is whether the tinting of the doors, as suggested by Buffano, would detract from the beauty of the building itself.

A third is whether a clear plastic covering, also suggested by Bufano, could chemically attack the magnificent colors of the mural.

A fourth is whether the clear plastic is necessary to protect the mural from the engraving tendencies of some "college students."

Last, but probably most important, is the problem of cost to provide protection for the Rivera mural. Nearly $50,000 has thus far been spent in putting the mural in place.

Dr. Anderson expected two possible solutions. There is a small hole in the mural, caused during transportation, and in repairing the defect different methods of preservation may be tested.

An inquiry to the University of Mexico, home of many of Rivera's works, may give a solution to the so far unsolved problem.

Photo Lecture Series Set To Start Thursday

Titled People To People, the first in a series of photography lecture-demonstrations will be presented here at 8 p.m. tomorrow in C-249 by Charles Weickler, according to Charles Lamp, photography instructor here.

Weickler will illustrate techniques including the photo-journalistic approach to illustration.

Because of space limitations, admittance to the lecture will be limited to advanced photographic majors and members of the Professional Photographers of Northern California, Inc., Lamp said.

Weickler will use as his model one of the students here, Tina Drescher, who has been a model since childhood.

This program is sponsored jointly by PPNC, City College of San Francisco, San Francisco State, San Jose State and Oakland City Colleges.

Weickler has had his own studio in San Francisco for a year. He attended the Fred Archer School and four years ago received his masters in photography from the Professional Photographers of America.

Five-Day Pledge Week Returns

College pledge week, starting next Monday, April 17, will be the full five days this semester, according to John Azzaro, Inter-Fraternity Council president.

For the past two semesters pledge week has been limited to three days.

This was a trial change from the usual five-day week that had been used in previous semesters. The shorter pledge week was tried to determine whether grades could be kept up to par during pledge week.

The change was made this semester when the officers of the IFC and ISC met with President Louis Conlan asking for the switch to be made in favor of the fraternities and sororities. President Conlan agreed to a trial of the five-day pledge week this semester.

Thursday, April 20, has been set aside as "Help Day." On this day the fraternities and sororities perform services for the college. The following day, during College Hour, the pledges will have "pledge week games" in the stadium, Azzaro said.

Penny Voting For Ugliest Man Ends Here Friday

In an effort to gain the dubious honor of Ugly Man On Campus, several men are parading around the college this week using various techniques to make themselves ugly, Sanford Saiki, Alpha Phi Omega president, announced today.

The doings are part of the current Ugly Man On Campus Week, which will continue through Friday.

Voting for the ugliest man will be done through the penny-a-vote method. Students may deposit pennies, nickles, dimes or any denomination of coin in the container bearing the picture of the man they consider to be fitting for the "honor."

The containers are placed about the campus.

At the rally this Friday during College Hour, the winning contestant will be named and an appropriate award presented him.

A trophy is also due the club or organization sponsoring the ugly man.

Originated in 1950 by the fraternity, the purpose of the week, held each Spring semester, is to raise funds to benefit the Associated Student Activities Scholarship Program.

Stiff competition, Saiki asserts, is expected from the hotel and restaurant department, whose contestants have won three consecutive times.

Last semester's Ugly Man On Campus was Jim Arlin of H&R.

The amount of money collected in the voting has risen higher and higher each year, and Saiki expects that this year's collection will be the biggest ever. Most of the money collected usually comes from cans placed in the cafeteria.

Second Recorded Concert To Be Heard This Friday

A new series of recorded concerts, sponsored by the college's Symphony Forum, has been initiated here, according to Meyer Cahn, one of the college's music instructors who announced the program for the second concert of the series to be held Friday in room 135 of the arts building.

The program for this next College Hour concert will consist of the overture to The Marriage Of Figaro by Mozart, the Bizet Symphony in C Major and selections from the Rodeo Suite of Aaron Copeland.

Concerts will be held each Friday during College Hour, Cahn added, unless there is another "live" musical program scheduled for the same day.

Cahn said that in each such concert, taken entirely from recordings, will be music of contrasting periods to give the programs variety and interest and to expose audiences to as wide a range of music as possible.

No concert will be given on Friday, April 24, Cahn stated, because of the appearance of Anne Adams, San Francisco Symphony harpist, who will give a recital in the theater of the arts building.

Early Sign-up Urged For Summer Session

Students wishing to make up grade deficiencies or accumulate extra units in the 1961 summer session here should see their counselors soon to plan their program, Walter McCloud, counselor, stated today.

The June 26 to August 4 summer session is open to any student currently enrolled here, or to graduates of any San Francisco high school who want to begin their higher education early.

A total of six units plus physical education will be the maximum load any student may carry, McCloud added. The registrar's office has a list of courses, with hours and units offered, available to all students.

AWS Fashion Show On Tap Next Week

Women students will have an opportunity to view the latest spring and summer fashions when the Associated Women Students present their semi-annual Fashion Show and Tea Thursday, April 20, Pat Crone, AWS president, stated today.

Faseinatin' Fashions will be the motif for the affair at which fashions from Saks Fifth Avenue will be modeled by women students. Clothes coordinator Jan Doudiet and fashion co-ordinator Suzanne Murphy will supervise the fashion show with the aid of Eileen Untermeyer, fashion coordinator for Saks.

Fashions will be modeled by Harriett Bayard, Judith Brandit, Sue Caniatsy, Pamela Chandler, Judie Crivelli, Maureen Farley, Carol Ann Henton and Cecilia Lee.

Also modeling for the show are Marcia McNealy, Joyce Nelson, Elve Vilibald, Hope Vogel, Karen White, Delores Wittman and Paula Wonderley.

Under the co-chairmanship of Barbara Chan and Bernice Love a sit down tea will begin the affair.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco
Vol. 52, No. 5 | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1961 | Page 2

Past Experiences Show That Blood Donors Are Insured

ANOTHER highly successful blood drive has just been concluded at the college, and we are wondering just how many of the students and faculty members who contributed blood fully realize the implications of their generous action.

The effects of past blood drives can truly be said to have hit home, for in the past year three faculty members have benefited directly from blood donations and the year before two other faculty members were helped by such contributions.

It's not a pleasant thought but, quite frankly, any of these five persons might very possibly have been any one of us. True, not a very comforting thing to dwell on, but one very pleasant aspect of the situation is this: Any contributing student or faculty member could have received an unlimited supply of blood for himself and his family and up to eight pints for a friend had the need arisen.

Thus, while donating one's blood is a very noble and humanitarian thing to do, it is not lacking entirely in rewards. There is the reassuring knowledge that should the occasion present itself, the individual, assuming he has generously given a pint of his blood, will be able to draw from the supply to which he has contributed.

Students and faculty members who donated blood are to be complimented for rising to the occasion last Thursday and Friday and again showing the sense of responsibility and maturity present at the college, for truly it is they and no one else who determine if the annual blood drive will rise to the high standards set in previous years.

Calories, Ho!

Life Science Instructor Continues Battle Against Bad Eating Habits

Continuing her personal battle against bad eating habits, Brigitta Beetz, life-science instructor here, recently prepared a new exhibit to display on the third floor of Science Hall.

With foods such as cereals, vegetables, fruit, dairy products and meats, the display shows more than 60 different items each representing 100 calories in food content.

For students who cannot bear the temptation to sample part of the display, a warning is issued.

"All items," Mrs. Beetz guarantees, "have spent at least one night in a refrigerator accompanied by live frogs."

One student last semester, she claims, sampled half a Hershey bar that the frog could have had much more easily the previous evening.

Quite a bit of work has gone into preparing the exhibit. Mrs. Beetz spent up to 20 hours one weekend purchasing the display items, weighing each and arranging them into an attractive show.

Asked what she does with the items after the display has served its purpose, Mrs. Beetz stated that most of it is thrown away because of contamination, while some is given to Martha Scott, a colleague of hers, for Miss Scott's dogs.

The amount of calorie intake that a person needs depends chiefly on his daily activity, Mrs. Beetz asserted. A student requires less than most people because of the less strenuous activities he endures.

Another display featuring ten-gram portions of proteins is to supplant the present exhibit in three to four weeks.

The recipient of the first Distinguished Service Cross at the Battle of the Argonne during World War I was not a great fighting hero, just an ordinary carrier pigeon.

Ramos Guitar Is Spellbinding

CONCENTRATION, both in performer and in spectator, is evident in the composite photographs of the recent Carlos Ramos guitar recital here at the college. The Ramos concert, held in the reserve reading room of the library during College Hour, was attended by scores of students and faculty members and was the first in a series of College Hour concerts scheduled for the semester. The next such concert is set for Friday, April 21, when Anne Adams, harpist with the San Francisco Symphony, will appear in recital.

Photos of the jam-packed Ramos concert were taken by Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor here. Devlin, one time music instructor here, recently had a photo story in the San Francisco Chronicle. Entitled A Rainy Day in San Francisco, the two-page spread captured on film various moods of a rainy day in the city by the bay. Depicted in the photographic essay was the zoo shortly after a downpour, Union Square pigeons monopolizing benches and a playground ring dripping with freshly fallen rain.

Sneak Sketches

Untapped Talent Shows As Actors Stalk Backstage

Actors have long been of great appeal to the public, and at this college there is an abundant source of untapped talent backstage in the drama department which offers appeal to students.

One young man maintains, in all seriousness, that he is from outer space. And those who know Randolf Jones personally are included to agree with what would otherwise be a preposterous heritage.

The origin of red-haired, blue-eyed Martha Ross is also puzzling. She has an Irish brogue that rivals Brendan Behan's—but she is as Scotch as Shakespeare's Thane of Ross. Figure that one out.

An uncle in Arabia with a harem is Camille Hoogasian's claim to fame. Where else in the world beside Arabia and the drama department could a harem be considered a status symbol?

Another thespian with an unusual distinction is dark-eyed Leah Pashoian. You haven't lived till you've heard her laugh, a laugh that, instead of filling theaters, empties them—like a fire alarm.

In jeans with a broom in his hand, or in a suit with a book under his arm, Jordy Cooney, janitor and drama student here, presents a dilemma to the observer. Is he working his way through school or schooling his way through work?

Does he or doesn't he? is a question often asked of Fred Fisher. Even though he majors in English and studies drama, Fisher's ambition is to sing in an opera house. He speaks authoritatively on classical music, harmony and dissonance; yet he has never been known to sing a note—off-key or on.

On the other hand, Michael Corrigan is definitely a singer. In fact, he is the college's answer to Elvis Presley—Elvis with a bad cold, that is. Moreover, Corrigan has hair.

And the man who brings order to this chaos of individuality is Michael Griffin, drama director. Other than his patience and intelligence, some think his ability to command respect stems from his favorite pink jacket worn with sky blue slacks.

If this scanty sketch of these aspiring thespians proves to be of any interest, they can be seen in the drama department's newest production, Ah, Wilderness!, soon to win fame as the first performance in the arts building theater.

This poignantly comic drama is set to open Friday, April 21. The play is expected to meet with a great deal of success as it is preceded by three college hits put on by the colorful and versatile drama group.

There are 11,009 lakes in Minnesota over 25 acres in size.

Coupe Cavalcade

Housing Problems Have Passed Along; Parking Problems Lingering On

So you think you have a parking problem!

In the 26-year history of the college, parking problems have been constantly puzzled over and solved, only to make way for new dilemmas to grow in their places.

Since 1935, when the college opened, heads have been together in an effort to keep fenders apart.

However, at that time the problem was city-wide as most classes were held in at least three different parts of San Francisco.

With the coming of the war the trouble spots all but disappeared as Uncle Sam stepped into the picture and Guardsman writers quit complaining about lack of parking space and bemoaned instead the loss of gas, tires and men.

On regaining all of these luxuries at once during the post-war boom, car space was at a premium.

Students who were able to find a parking spot in the west campus (where the reservoirs are now situated) would not move their cars for the rest of the day, although some of their classes might have been in the remotest corners of the campus, and they might have had to walk distances to which they were not accustomed.

Other students were wasting time, gas and energy searching for room, and the constant flow of traffic coupled with the fact that the streets were narrower then, caused at least one veteran to worry that, after surviving enemy fire, he might not survive the college traffic.

Campus Police duties were assumed by members of the administration, who personally tagged illegal parkers.

Such parking areas as were made available were far from ideal, being partially cleared lots in which the students had to brave ruts; rocks, weeds and, when it rained, mud.

Construction work on streets, campus and surrounding areas periodically wrecked the routines of the driving students.

By 1952 illegal parking was so rampant that "No Parking" signs seemed to have no more purpose than to provide a little shade. Fire hydrants were practically impossible to find as parked autos completely surrounded them.

However, the campus was finally being brought into one general area, and a crackdown by the Campus Police, plus the first issuance of parking permits, brought a semblance of order to the situation.

Development of the west campus into two reservoirs caused temporary chaos until they were completed.

Now with enrollment on the increase, it seems that parking will again raise its problematic head.

So solve your problems now, if you have them! There may be more coming.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

AL JACOBSON, former KCSF noisecaster, is planning to run a big contest before the end of this semester.

He hasn't decided what it will be about yet, but the prizes are all picked out. First prize will be a week in Los Angeles. Second prize will be two weeks in Los Angeles.

* * *

ALL THINGS are important to printers, it seems. One graphic arts instructor rushed into the class of another with a piece of paper obviously hot off the press.

As the two conferred with appropriate printers' talk ("Set it in 24 point. Hold the caps. We'll run the first thousand with special Number 12 ink and airbrush the rest.") the class watched, breathless with curiosity.

Could this be the new King James Bible? Are they working on a lost Dickens manuscript?

Conference over, the first instructor retreated toward the printshop. As he went out the door the class caught a glimpse of the work of art. It was a no smoking sign.

* * *

NOW the college has its own radio station. Coming soon is closed circuit television. Sets in every class, cameras strategically located and all that.

What next? Perhaps a closed circuit pollen pipe emanating from the horticulture department. Gee, hay fever in every room!

* * *

ANYONE WANT to buy a mop bucket full of soda pop? Recently a student put a dime in the machine in the basement of Science Hall and his cup ranneth over. In fact, no one could shut the darn thing off.

The quick-thinking janitor who patrols the area (he is called the maitre d' of the automated dining room) put a hose under the spout and fed it into his bucket.

Witnesses are thinking of changing the name of the tap room to The Fall O' Pop.

* * *

TENDER, touching municipal scene spotted by an Easter vacationing coed (EVC): A 41 bus stopped in front of a Van Ness groceteria. A customer spots it and dashes out to get aboard.

He could have walked. The driver was inside the same store buying a quart of milk.

* * *

There is a law in Chicago that states that no person can drive more than seven head of cattle down the street at one time.

* * *

It is perfectly OK to keep a cow on an open lot in San Francisco if one can obtain a permit from the Health Department to do so.

Foresight

Russ Films Threaten US Movie Dominance

By Richard Shields

IN RECENT YEARS the Russians have made incredible progress in technology and international sports competition, and now they are appearing as a serious challenge in still another field, long dominated by the United States.

Film making has been a major industry in America for at least four decades, and exports of this commodity have spread an image of this country around the world.

It has long been a subject of controversy whether or not movies are able to present a true picture of life in America; most critics seem to agree that whether or not they can, the ideas they do give are erroneous.

In any event, the opinions of many people in this country regarding the people of foreign nations are also molded by viewing films from distant lands.

Cultural treaties between the United States and Russia providing for an exchange, among other things, of movies account for an especially notable increase in imports of films from the Soviet Union.

An excellent example of Russia's participation in the exchange program is displayed in the appearance of Ballad Of A Soldier, now showing at the New Clay theater on Fillmore and Clay Streets.

The film, portraying the experiences of a Russian soldier in that country's struggle against the German onslaught in World War II, offers an enjoyable experience to viewers as well as delivering a challenge to American movie makers.

It was awarded the "Best Picture" prize in the film festival here last year; the stars, Zhanna Prokhorenko and Vladimir Ivashev, appeared briefly during a College Hour here last semester.

Conspicuously missing from the movie is the "boy meets tractor" theme which dominated and lowered the standards of Russian pictures for many years.

An its object may have been, the film would have viewers believe that the Russian soldier is not the brute or arch-villain that American propaganda has painted.

On the other hand, it is possible to see in the picture a subtle attempt by Russia to create for American viewers an illusion of the Russian soldier as a pence loving, kind and considerate defender of freedom.

Beneath any subterfuge, however, there exists the very real artistic ability of Miss Prokhorenko and Ivashev as actors who deliver a message which easily transcends the international boundaries of fear and suspicion.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU. 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wiss
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Calwater

Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.

Reporters: Dick Dravagon, Dianne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Ortovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve.

Cub Reporters: Garald Almendares, Richard Edwards, Cynthia Fruitman, Frederick Gregory, Diana Kinsley, David Kleinberg, William Marrill, Herbert Mizia, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Stelle, Evelyn Thuds, Christopher Wilde, Bob Yeary.

Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Eggert, Eduardo Del'Asqua, Gary Leir.

Faculty Adviser ..... Jean Nourse

Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Netters Set For Modesto Crucial

Guardsman SPORTS
Volume 52, No. 5 | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1961 | Page 3

This Week In Sports . . .

THURSDAY
- Track—Contra Costa, Stanford Frosh at Stanford, 4 p.m.

FRIDAY
- Tennis—Rams vs. Modesto at Olympic Club, 3 p.m.
- Golf—At Santa Rosa at Sonoma, 1 p.m.

SATURDAY
- Baseball—Rams vs. Modesto at Balboa Park, noon.
- Recreation Association—Sports Day at Oakland City College.

TUESDAY
- Baseball—Rams vs. Oakland at Balboa Park, 3 p.m.

WEEKEND RESULTS
- Baseball—Rams 2, San Mateo 11; Rams 2, Hamilton AFB 3.
- Golf—Rams 14, Contra Costa 1.
- Tennis—Rams 5, Stockton 2.
- Track—Rams 78½, San Mateo 42½; Rams 114, Stockton 8.

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

SINCE TODAY the S. F. Giants play their second home game of the season, we will offer our readers a special advantage.

So that they may both listen to the game and read the paper at the same time, we have broken this column into three sections—any part of which may be easily read on the way to Candlestick Park or between innings.

Maybe, because we do not go into a discussion of the hometowners, one would think that we have refused to join the Giants' Publicity Committee. Well, they're right.

We have a good reason for our stand. The Guardsman's baseball expert, Jerry Littrell, came into the office the other day shouting that the game was nothing but a fine piece of deception. After ordering him to sit down and answer for this betrayal of the national pastime, he gave several explanations, such as the following:

1—Hitting the ball over the fence for a home run doesn't give the defense a fair chance to catch the ball and costs the fans extra money for new baseballs.

2—If a player loses a close decision, he will argue with the umpire, showing children that flaunting authority is socially acceptable.

3—The whole object is for the batter to run around the bases back to where he started from.

* * *

SUDDEN THOUGHT: Down at San Jose State the track and field scene is looking very bright—and it could partly be due to a unique addition to Coach Bud Winter's program.

As a season kickoff, the Spartans hold an interclass track meet each year, matching the varsity against any interested SJS students who care to try their luck.

We don't imagine many students succeed against the varsity speedboys, but if they do they better run even faster when Winter comes after them—or they'll find themselves on the varsity.

More important, the interclass meet builds good relations with the student body, insuring recognition for the athletes and encouraging many fans to come out and root their heroes home.

This college's running track is scheduled to be ready for competition next year when it is made more compact and easier to run on. Any ideas, Coach Vasquez?

* * *

HUMOROUS ITEM: The nickname for athletic teams of this college is Rams, but it wasn't always.

Back in 1935 City College, then in its first year, fielded its initial sports teams. Of course no club would be complete without a nickname (pity the poor sports writer), so the matter was put before the student body. It decided on the name Clippers.

The football players weren't to be fooled, though. When several team members noticed that the nickname contained references to an illegal block and was causing ridicule, they objected loudly.

As a result the college had to change Clippers to the safe-and-sane second place choice of Rams.

And who said you could pull anything on a football player?

HERCULEAN-LIKE BOB SHENK, all-around Ram track star, winds for a discus throw on the City College practice field, but he and his teammates must move to other sites for Big Eight meets this year.
—Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Track Troubles

Practice Lags On Slow Circuit

By Ivan Temes

Anyone who feels that what happens in the long run is best would encounter a great deal of difficulty in selling that idea to the present Ram track squad.

Orphaned, without a track to call its own, Lou Vasquez's highly rated team was excited at the prospect of unveiling the brand new facilities as the year began.

Seemingly, everything was fine. The track was completed. Then someone spoiled everything by trying it out.

What has happened since then is summed up in the words of one star distance runner who feels that, "It's the worst track I've ever run on. Trying to round a turn feels like running across sand."

Started in October, 1959, the oval wasn't planned as an ordinary one but rather as a Grasstex all-weather track, a type which has been used successfully in the East to combat weather hazards.

Robert Ridell, sales engineer for the American Bitumuls and Asphalt Company, reveals that the main advantages of this track are the low maintenance costs and the fact that permanent white lane markers can be used.

The experimental asphalt-type runways have also proved to be unsuccessful thus far, having softened with some cracks.

"Clay must be added to the crushed brick and the track itself resurfaced," according to Louis G. Conlan, president of the college.

Ridell believes that the situation will be under control by this summer and the track ready for next season if there is no rain.

Hindered in their program, some of the athletes have had to improvise. The hurdlers, instead of setting up 10 hurdles on the track itself, have had to settle for three or four on the grass infield.

Only some of the distance runners, including Tom Jennings and Tony Perrigno, feel that they have been able to get adequate workouts here in preparation for coming meets.

Eventually the college will have one of the finest all-weather tracks in the West. The team eagerly and hopefully awaits that day.

Title-Defending Local Cindermen In Midst Of Tough Schedule This Week

Sparked by a double victory last Friday, the Big Eight title-holding Ram cindermen face their fifth and sixth opponents in seven days at 4 p.m. tomorrow when they encounter Contra Costa and the Stanford Frosh in Stanford Stadium.

The Rams met Modesto and Contra Costa yesterday, so the competition at Stanford will not count in the league standings.

Last Friday Alex Darnes, a winner in both the discus and shot-put, paced the locals to a double dual victory over San Mateo (78½-42½) and Stockton (114-8) at Kezar Stadium. San Mateo beat the Mustangs 93-27 in the third phase of the meet.

The college's star jumper, Ray Hearne, apparently recovering from a leg injury, tied teammate El Bridges in the high jump at 6 feet and took the broad jump with an outstanding leap of 24'3".

Powerful Ram sprinter Herman McKee bulled his way to a 10-flat win in the 100-yard dash and finished second to the college's Carlin Vance in the 220.

Bill Miles became City College's sixth individual winner when he captured the pole vault with a height of 11'9".

Coach Lou Vasquez' charges earlier dominated the Big Eight Relays with a score of 78½. Closest competition came from San Mateo, which scored 44 points.

Particularly impressive was the college's sprint medley relay squad, composed of Bob Taylor, Bob Hecter, Tom Piggee and Jim Nichols, which won the event in 3:40.7.

Other outstanding performances were turned in by star jumper Hearne, who despite a leg injury tied for first place in the high jump and took third in the broad jump.

Discus thrower Darnes captured his specialty with a toss of 145'5".

In the league meet against Santa Rosa, the Ram spikesters swamped their opponents by the score of 107-18.

One of the college's most versatile track athletes, Tom Jennings, was high point man for the Rams. He took second in the pole vault, third in the high jump, third in the mile and ran the fastest quarter-mile on the winning mile relay team.

Frank James unleashed his kick in the last 150 yards to win the mile run in 4:28.7.

Golfers Invade Sonoma Friday

After a difficult schedule in the first few weeks of the season, the Ram golfers hope for better things in Friday's match against Santa Rosa at Sonoma, 1 p.m.

The linkers did poorly in the Intercollegiate Tournament with only one man reaching the final round. George Benkie shot a pair of 87's to qualify for the finals, but he finished badly when he charted a 100 score in his last round.

After being trounced by a strong San Mateo team 13½ to 1½, the Rams came back the following week to defeat Modesto by a 9 to 5 score. Gary Mialocq, despite a very sore and swollen finger, led the Red and White squad with a fine 73.

Swimmers Drowned In League Standings

When there are only 13 men on the team, it's hard to win a swimming meet, as is evidenced by Coach Roy Burkhead's mermen who last week dropped their final league meet to Stockton 66-19, leaving them winless in four league encounters and seven matches overall.

Breast stroker Fred Vogel was the lone Ram winner against the Mustangs.

In other recent duels the college natadors were mauled by champion Oakland City College 81-13 and Menlo College 71-21.

Diamondmen Set For Doubleheader Against Pirates

Attempting to break into the win column with a three-loss record behind them, the Ram horsehiders face Modesto College at 12 noon this Saturday in a doubleheader at Balboa Field.

Tuesday they host Oakland, 3 p.m., at the same diamond.

Unable to do anything so far in the way of scoring runs the diamondmen dropped a double-header to Stockton 6-1 and 7-2, and meekly bowed to San Mateo College to the tune of 5-3.

Failure to connect with the ball for either hits or runs caused the team to lose the double-header to Stockton. It collected only a total of three runs on 11 hits in the two games, which composed 16 innings.

One of the main blows to the team so far has been the loss of star second baseman Gary Attell. Attell was injured just before the start of league play and up to this time has had to remain on the bench.

Scrappy Don Meroff has sparkled defensively on the field in replacing Attell but has been unable to keep up with the torrid .435 average that Attell had before his injury.

He is expected to be ready for Saturday's encounter with Modesto College, and his power should be able to aid the team in the search for a win.

Pitching, which seemed to be the main forte of the team at the start of the season, has collapsed almost completely to the point where it is the weakest position.

Ray Tompkins, left-handed starter, has so far been charged with two of the three losses suffered. While on the mound for only eight innings he has allowed 11 men from the opposite teams to cross the plate and score.

Art Groza, right-handed starter, was charged with the other loss while giving up six runs in the nine innings he spent on the mound.

Don Lowpensky came out of the bullpen against San Mateo and pitched four shutout innings against the Bulldogs for the only spark of hope for future victories.

There has been a total of 409 triple plays executed in the history of major league baseball.

Vital Match Could Decide League Crown

Though possibly up against more than they can handle, the Ram netters, unbeaten in league play, go all out to upset powerful Modesto at 3 p.m. this Friday in what amounts to the championship match at the Olympic Club.

If tall Tom Muench, the defending Big Eight singles and doubles titlist, wasn't enough to give Pirate opponents problems, the Modestans have this year added Reider Getz, a Canadian Junior Davis Cup star.

Bob Atwood, a hardened veteran, has also returned to give Modesto a big three punch at the top of its lineup.

Confident Coach Roy Diederichsen, whose defending champs met Contra Costa yesterday and Stockton last Friday, said, "We're the only team that can beat Modesto, and we have a chance because the bottom of our lineup is stronger than theirs."

Holding practice triumphs over the San Francisco State varsity, San Jose State Frosh (twice), Diablo Valley and Menlo, the college tennis men also emerged on top in their initial pair of league outings by toppling Sacramento 6-1 and shutting out San Mateo 7-0.

Sole loss for the Red and White thus far was a 7-2 decision to the California Frosh.

In the win over San Mateo, top man Jack Bracken had no trouble topping Dave Dobriner 6-2, 6-0, while Randy Chun was a 6-2, 6-3 victor.

Other singles winners included Rich Murray 6-0, 6-3; John Welles 0-6, 6-4, 6-4, and Paul Barth 6-0, 6-0.

Neither doubles team faced any threat as Bracken-Chun finished on top 6-0, 6-4, and Welles-Murray combined for a 6-4, 6-3 verdict.

Though realizing that the veteran Bracken and greatly improved Chun will be heavy underdogs against Muench and Getz, respectively, Diederichsen isn't conceding anything and feels a Ram victory is within reach if Murray or Barth can defeat Atwood.

RACKETEER PAUL BARTH, mainstay in Friday's crucial match with Modesto.
—Guardsman photo by Tom Eggert.

Mural Bowling League Underway; AMS Early Leader In Cage Loop

Joined last week by the bowling league, the Intramural Basketball League continues tonight as four teams in the Club Activities Board division try to break their second-place deadlock behind the leading Associated Men Students.

Co-ordinator Les Adams announced that the Intramural Bowling League got under way last week with seven members, including three from the Hawaiian Club, two from the Newman Club, and entrants from Hotel and Restaurant and the Recreation Association.

Coed clubs of five each are playing in round-robin competition held at 5 o'clock each Tuesday night at the Westlake Bowl. Awards, as yet undecided, will be given to team and individual winners at the conclusion of the season.

Basketball contests at 7:30 o'clock tonight find the Newman Club meeting the Filipino Club and AMS taking on the RA, one of the four clubs tied for the second spot.

Following these games the 8:30 o'clock tilts pit The Guardsman against H&R in the men's gymnasium and Hilliel vs. the Hawaiian Club at the women's gymnasium.

The three-team Inter-Fraternity Council League tie was partially broken last night when

WatchWord

Super Strength Symbolic Of New Frontier

By Paul Plansky

AMERICA must move ahead" was the repetitious campaign cry of Mr. Kennedy while battling Mr. Nixon for the presidency.

Now Jack is in, and look at us move!

While men launch rockets to reach the New Frontier of Space, the women of this country are keeping pace in their own way.

There goes mother streaking down the superhighway to the supermarket in a 61 monster equipped with supercharger. A supersonic jet soars above, searing a path across the sky, reminding the shopper that she must heed our president's plea,

"Keep moving ahead."

We mustn't become sluggish. We cannot allow ourselves to lapse and eventually collapse into a semi-state of super-duper stupor.

We must move ahead.

Perhaps by adding the prefix "super" to almost any appropriate word, we could keep Kennedy's slogan alive and constantly in print. A simple act of Congress could set this supersupposition into revolution.

Not only would this linguistic addition achieve a cadence connoting supremacy, but it would also give the United States a chance to catch up with the Soviet propaganda machine.

Since our freedom is based on truth, we would never really be serious contenders, but we could inject a little propaganda into the veins of a nation whose blood is patriotic but whose heart is apathetic.

A little propaganda, you understand, a little, just a little. Newspaper stories datelined Washington would read something like this:

"At a supermeeting of the Super-Joint-Chiefs-of-Staff in the Super-Polygon (which now has 50 sides) a dynamic supermissile project was approved which will increase the Super-Space Program of United States a thousand-fold and won't cost the government a cent."

(Down at the bottom of the story would appear an Editor's Note:

("For editorial comment on this new Supermissile project read 'Super-Income-Tax-Increase Outlandish" on page 10, column 2, in supersection No, 3.)"

Although this type of news story would supplement every American's morning edition at the breakfast table, there still is a spark missing in this proposed superpropaganda program.

What is needed is a symbol, a symbol of status, superiority and admiration. Even with President Kennedy's political prowess, youth and athletic skill (golf (?), swimming and touch-football), America needs a new imaginative, youthful symbol of strength.

Uncle Sam has too many battle scars from depressions and two world wars. He can no longer hold the image of an emerging nation advancing on the New Frontier.

Uncle Sam, as an image for anything new, is just too old.

The answer is "someone with powers and abilities beyond those of mortal men."

Faster than a speeding sputnik, more powerful than an atomic reactor, able to leap iron curtains in a single bound . . .

Look, up in the sky. It's an Explorer, it's a Minuteman; no, it's Supersam!!

Today's Watchword: VIGOR.

Newest Club Debuts As Discussion Group

To air all sides of current social and political problems is the objective of the newest club on campus, the Contemporary Affairs Forum, according to Bok F. Pon, president.

The forum's constitution was recently ratified by the Club Advisory Board on March 14, and by the Student Council on April 4.

Membership is open to every one and, Pon emphasized, there are no dues.

It will be their aim to try to get speakers representing both sides of any problem and let students form their own opinions, Pon stated.

The forum will meet during College Hour, Friday, April 21, in C-222.

Student Council Faces Old Problem — Money

By Dick Dragavon

After approving more than $13,000 in the past three weeks, Student Council must face the problem of fitting $4000 to $5000 in fund requests to a treasury containing only $2000.

Stormy discussion marked the five sessions in which the council members plowed through 20 budgets, approving all but one.

One of the most drastic measures taken was the deletion of all the expenses for the state meet from the varsity tennis team's request, since it couldn't be known how many, if any, players would be eligible for tournament play.

Also destined for the same type of paring was the varsity swimming team allotment, which was denied approval after sharp controversy and two amendments sliced the request by more than half to $410.76.

The session was interrupted for a short time as Sherm Elworthy advised council that there were no reserve funds available, and when the treasury was exhausted there could be no more allotments made.

"It must be emphasized to students that our main sources of income are from the profits of the Ramporium bookstore, the vending machines, and the sale of AS cards," Joe Egri, Service Information chairman, commented, "and the money they spend at those places is returned to them in the form of the campus activities which the AS supports."

The varsity basketball budget was brought up. Council was informed that since the season was over, they needed only to approve the expenditures which had already been made.

The figure was shown to be $713.48, about $200 more than the request had originally been made for.

An anecdote by Campus Police Chief Jim Tedesco explaining the necessity of a new badge brought a laugh from the council delegates when he said that one of the police had had his badge ripped from his jacket by a passing truck.

The Campus Police received the largest allotment of that period, an amount totaling $2455.75.

Many budgets evoked little discussion and were passed with a minimum of trouble. Some requests, such as those for the handbook, commencement and Forum, were determined by unalterable retail prices, and were approved with no comment.

Deliberation on the Associated Women Student budget involved almost an entire meeting before being approved at $640, reduced by only $70.

Booth Petitions For CAB Festival Due April 19

All groups desiring to sponsor a booth or concession at the May 19 Club Activities Board Spring Festival must submit their petitions to the student finance office before next Wednesday, April 19, Judy Crevelli, member of the CAB announced today.

The affair, with the theme Forty-Niner Days, will be held at Brooks Hall.

In addition to the petition, students must also turn in a $5 deposit and an advertising poster.

The location in the hall will be issued according to the time the necessary material is turned in.

High Reg Number Student Penalty For Missing Date

Any student who cannot meet his counseling appointment should notify his counselor prior to the appointment or he will be penalized with a higher registration number, Walter McCloud of the counseling department announced today.

McCloud added that many students, including the entire low freshman class, have not been sent counseling appointments yet.

To avoid a pile-up of students and confusion resulting from too many appointment cancellations, postcards are being sent to students only one week in advance of their appointments.

The low freshmen will begin to receive their appointments during the latter part of April, after their first midterm grades have been evaluated.

Students will receive registration numbers on their proposed program card for the Fall 1961 semester after they meet with their counselor.

The registration numbers for the Fall semester will be assigned by pre-programming, a method that assures a good student of the classes he wants.

All students returning next semester will be divided into four groups on the basis of seniority, according to McCloud. Each group will be staggered approximately 200 numbers apart.

The students in each of these four groups will then be assigned registration numbers according to scholarship. Thus, it is possible that four students may receive the same registration number.

The time schedule for registering will be posted during the last half of April.

College To Host Public April 27

As the college's part in Public Schools Week April 23-29, an open house is scheduled Thursday night, April 27, when the entire campus will be on display.

Among feature events scheduled, according to administrative officials, is a special performance by the drama department of Ah, Wilderness!, the Eugene O'Neill play whose first performance Friday, April 21, will formally open the new little theater.

Introduction to the public of the Diego Rivera mural will be marked by distribution of a keyed guide identifying the subjects in the picture. The chart is the work of students in graphic arts.

Compilation of such a guide was urged by The Chronicle's music and art critic, Alfred Frankenstein, following his study of the mural shortly after it was placed in the arts building.

In addition to the arts building and its departmental facilities, the public will also see the stadium, completed since the last open house here last year.

I Swallowed My Gum

UNIQUE PHOTOS, as exemplified by this curious giraffe study, or study of a curious giraffe, are part of Popular Photography's International Exhibit now on display in the gallery in Cloud Hall's faculty row.

The sponsors of the exhibit identified the picture of the giraffe as Bird's-Eye View, but a slap-happy copy desk crew figured it could top tha pros and came up with their own impression of what was on the mind of a foreshortened giraffa.

Tha display, featuring soma 100 photos, will end this Friday. All the works are prize winners in the $25,000 contest sponsored by the magazine.

Emmett Smith, photography instructor here, explained that the display of black and white photos will prove interesting both to the avid shutterbug and the casual onlooker because, besides the uniqueness of the pictures, all the technical information is included with each shot.

A broad ranga of subject matter will be covarad by tha exhibit. It includes dramatic and human interest photographs, landscapes and outstanding examples of portraiture.

Various types of prints will be displayad giving examples of contemporary photography from all over the world.

Retailers Host Varied Student Floral Designs

Some 14 leading flower shops in the Bay Area last week featured window displays by retail floristry students here.

Maryhope Jacks, retail floristry instructor here, stated that the participating merchants were very co-operative and helpful in the program.

Awards were given the three best displays, judged on the basis of artistry, color, theme, sales appeal and freshness of flowers.

Sal Archini's design in Victor Stein's window, with an after-theater supper theme for the Civic Light Opera, won the top prize.

Ross Relles took second place with an Oriental array in the window of Mel Ling Florist. Third prize went to Louise Berini's April Showers exhibition at Thatcher's Flowers.

Other student displays included Selma Wolff and Sandra Wheeler's Art In Flowers at Balboa Florist, Dick Tendall's June Parade and Things To Come at Mathray's Flowers, Arlene Gunn's Training For A Floristry Career at Roserie Florist.

Bon Voyage at the Blossom Shop by Mike Ward, Henry Torgenson's wedding pageant at LaBoughan's Flowers, Japanese Spring by Sylvia Hibbons at Stolte's Flowers, Al Corvi's tropical exhibition at his father's shop, Joan Cervasco's South Of The Border at Cevasco Florist.

Holiday In Hong Kong by Joanne Taylor and Edamey Williams at George Arabian Flowers, The Black And White by Karen Medau at Podesta Baldocchi in the Mills Building, and Plants Are Practical by George Horio at Henry Schrumpf Flowers.

Judges in the contest were Harold Huthmacher of Andrew Geller Shoes, Bruce Nelson of I. Magnin, Mabel Leong of Ah Sam Florist on the Peninsula, and Rudy Postag of Postag's Florist in Oakland.

Contributions To Forum Due By Next Week

A reminder to interested students that the deadline to submit material for Forum magazine is set for next Wednesday, April 19, was voiced today by Catherine Connolly, faculty adviser to Forum.

In commenting on the magazine's progress to date, Miss Connolly stated that although there has been an abundance of poetry submitted, "any prose in the form of short, short stories or essays would be greatly appreciated."

Forum, which is written entirely by students, is published in the spring of each year. Contributions in any literary form—short stories, essays, satires, criticisms and poetry are accepted.

The task facing the Forum staff now, according to Miss Connolly, is in editing the material for publication. When this is completed the magazine's editors will be selected.

At present the staff is headed by a committee including Warren Stone, Dan Sands and Mary Kaylor.

Forum, although it receives a grant from the Associated Students, is almost completely financed through advertising, Miss Connolly stated. Julius Kahn has assumed major responsibility in this department.

Students wishing to contribute articles are expected to type them with double spacing on 8 by 11 inch paper and turn them in at the Forum office, C-331a.

Custodian Brunn To Talk On Israeli Life

Humanities And The Kubbutz will be the theme of the next college lecture given by Robert Brunn this Friday, according to Irving Witt, faculty sponsor of the lecture series.

Brunn, a custodian here who has recently returned from Israel where he and his family spent a year working and living among the people there, will base his talk on this experience.

A graduate of the University of Chicago, where he majored in political science, Brunn has studied in France, which served as a jumping-off point for his venture on the Israel kubbutz (communal farm).

Brunn will speak at 10 a.m. in S-100.

In 1931, after enjoying years of prosperity, the future of the recording industry was considered shattered by the advent of radio broadcasting.

New Theater Opens April 21 With O'Neill's Ah, Wilderness!

Eugene O'Neill's poignantly comic drama, Ah, Wilderness!, is set to open Friday, April 21, as the premiere production by the drama department in the college's new theater, Michael Griffin, drama instructor, said today.

The play concerns the problems of a young boy growing up, how he copes with these problems, and how his family copes with him. The boy's radical views of life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, and love provide all sorts of amusing complications.

Griffin enthusiastically predicted a series of top performances by an "extremely capable" cast.

Terry Sutherlin heads the cast as the boy, Richard, with Fred Fisher and Martha Ross as his father and mother, respectively. Diane Flores portrays Richard's aunt and her boy friend is Randy Jones.

Others in the cast are Jordy Cooney, Camille Hoogasian, Leah Pashoian, Michael Corrigan, Ann Vallerga and Alf Ekstrom.

Technical direction and light design take on a singular importance in the new theater because of the unparalleled facilities that it offers in these fields. Charles Huntley and David Demartini were chosen to fill the two positions.

Similarly, costume design is of greater concern in the production. The action takes place at the turn of the century, and Miss Ross is designing the wardrobe according to the styles that were popular during that period.

Because there are these and other unusual aspects to the show, Griffin pointed out, and because of a great amount of outside interest shown already, he feels that the college can be confident of a successful opening night.

Suggestion Box Captures Ideas

Suggestions ranging from establishing an intercollegiate bowling league to the playing of jazz in Smith Hall during the morning were recently received by Jim Bush, Associated Men Student president.

"All worthwhile ideas received from the suggestion box, located across from the silver pole in Science Hall, will receive consideration," Bush explained.

Concerning the lowering of the volumes of bells in the arts building, Bush stated that Dr. Oscar Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management here, has consulted electricians who will study this problem.

In answering a suggestion recently received it was learned that there is one parking lot for the faculty and two for members of the Associated Students around the arts building.

Dr. Anderson also noted recently that he is considering moving the canteen from the Science Hall basement to a section of the arts building, Bush stated.

Students can still drop suggestions in the box.

Proverbs: Look before you leap, but he who hesitates is lost.

AWS Fashion Show Tomorrow

Fasceinatin' Fashions, tomorrow's Associated Women Student fashion show in the college's theater, featuring latest fashions from Saks Fifth Avenue, will be preceded by a tea in Smith Hall, Pat Crone, AWS president, said today.

More than 600 women students from both public and private high schools have been invited to attend the affair with their advisers and deans. A total of 20 high schools will be represented at the tea and fashion show.

Players under the co-chairmanship of Barbara Chan and Bernice Love a sit-down tea will begin the affair at 3 p.m. Food is being prepared by the hotel and restaurant department.

Dorothy Hill, Frances Lloyd, Kay Shorb and Vivian Ward, instructors at the college, have been invited to pour tea.

Serving is under the supervision of Nancy Parraga; Pat Comerford is in charge of set-up, and Margaret Lindstrom will supervise the food.

Following the tea the visitors and students will be escorted to the fashion show in the theater by AWS hostesses, Miss Crone stated.

Clothes co-ordinator Jan Doudiet and fashion co-ordinator Suzanne Murphy will supervise the fashion show with the aid of Elaine Untermeyer, fashion co-ordinator for Saks.

Campus wear, play clothes and formal attire will be modeled against a background of black and white music notes, Miss Doudiet said. Accessories are also being supplied by Saks.

Fashions will be modeled by Harriet Bayard, Judith Brandt, Sue Cantasy, Pamela Chandler, Judie Crivelli, Maureen Farley, Carol Ann Henton and Theodora Hom.

Also modeling for the show are Marcia McNealy, Joyce Nelson, Elve Vilibald, Hope Vogel, Karen White, Delores Wittman and Paula Wonderley.

Entertainment in the form of a musical background for the fashion show is under the chairmanship of Margaret Kriete.

Sharon Hawley and Grace Carboni will supervise clean-up and decorations. Clean-up is under the supervision of Pat Biancini, and decorations are being planned by Nancy Brien and Barbara Andre.

Registration is under the chairmanship of Betty Rice; Virginia Cook will supervise the publicity; posters are being made by Ellen Kiger; Hope Vogel and Eilleen Gapirio will distribute the programs for the affair, and Delaine Kam will supervise the coat check.

The city's seven public high schools will send representatives. They include Polytechnic, Lowell, Lincoln, Washington, Galileo, Mission and Balboa. In addition, representatives from the city's private and parochial schools will also attend.

PRETTY AS A PICTURE accurately describes the above scene showing three lovely coeds who have major parts in tomorrow's AWS Tea and Fashion Show. They are, left to right, Suzanne Murphy, Elve Vilibald and Joyce Nelson.—Guardsman photo by Gary Lair.

WatchWord

Love In Rough Go On Tilted Carousel Ride

By Paul Plansky

(Editor's Note: No one likes ruts, least of all newspaper editors. This being the case, the editor and associate editor of The Guardsman decided to get out of one by switching writing assignments today.)

ANYONE who attempts to write without bias about those supposedly synonymous terms, love and marriage, soon finds himself in a bit of a dilemma.

If you can do it, to quote some words of Mr. Kipling, "You're a better man than I, Gunga Din," or whatever other alias you've had to assume.

It's impossible, for whose views on the subject haven't been influenced one way or another by radio, television, soap operas, "true romance" magazines or even personal experiences?

At any rate, like everything else in this country, love has acquired a peculiarly American quality that distinguishes it from any other "kind" of love, for nowhere else in the world can love, the starting of it, the ending of it, the selling of it and the "public interest" in it be a source of such concern, frustration or frustration.

Thousands of songs, as all those who have ever sought refuge from a television by turning on a radio well know, have been written about it.

More neuroses and psychoses and a hundred other "oses" have been caused by that innocent sounding but loaded phrase, "I love you," than all the sputnik, H-bomb, traffic jam and inflation jitters combined.

It does seem fairly obvious, however, that current tensions and feelings of insecurity have helped make the divorce courts here and throughout the world the popular and much-visited places they are, and the words "Till death do us part" the most abused phrase in the English language.

In the past America's political policies, economic policies and foreign policies have been attacked and discussed and it seems almost inevitable that America's love policies will soon be subject to international debate.

But let's take a philosophical look at the marriage aspect of the matter. Consider life as a voyage through time. One can always use help in steering his ship and keeping it on a steady course.

Marriage, from this viewpoint, barring mutiny or scuttling on one part or the other, seems the perfect device by which people can "sail" through life together, aiding one another through the frequent storms which make it seems useless and complicated and which keep our psychiatrists busy and prosperous.

So love and marriage, and finding happiness from them, seem to be major problems—at least in America. Obviously, from the number of "guides" to such happiness published and sold each year, there are quite a few people who are certainly unhappy.

But how is one to find happiness, marital or otherwise, in a world full of characters who seem intent on ending all problems for the next million or so years?

Well, it is said that love makes the world go 'round. How about someone stopping the tilted merry-go-round and finding out who's really going around in circles — those dumb, stuffed animals or us?

Today's Watchword: Stability.

Miss SF Entries Due Saturday; Eligibility Set

All women here between the ages of 18 and 28 who are not married and are interested in entering the Miss San Francisco contest have until this Saturday to file entries, according to the Junior Chamber of Commerce, pageant sponsor.

As stated by the official rules and regulations of the Miss San Francisco Pageant, all entrants must be of good character and possess poise, personality, intelligence, charm and beauty of face and figure.

A special emphasis was placed on the personality of the prospective entrant by Clara Russell, a sophomore at the college who is in charge of gathering women to enter the contest.

She stated that "looks are secondary," and it's the "personality and talent" of the entrant that will be most closely watched.

All entrants must possess and display a talent in a three-minute routine. This talent may be in singing, dancing, dramatic reading, dress designing or in a three-minute talk on the career the contestant wishes to pursue.

The college has had three winners of the Miss San Francisco contest. They are Barbara Huffman in 1951, Mildred Mersich in 1952 and Lee Ann Meriwether.

Miss Meriwether went on to capture the Miss California and the Miss America titles.

The Miss San Francisco contest is to be held on May 7 in Golden Gate Park.

According to Miss Russell the prizes given to the winner of the contest will be along the line of scholarships though many San Francisco department stores are contributing prizes.

Official entry blanks may be obtained in the office of Mary Golding, dean of women, or at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

ANNE ADAMS, harpist with both the San Francisco Symphony and Opera orchestras, will give a concert this Friday during College Hour. —S. F. Chronicle photo.

"On Your Feet!"

Soviet Education Methods Make Class Here Stand Up And Take Note

By Hugh Philo

An opportunity for students here to compare the Made-In-America brand of educational methods with those of the Red-Schoolhouse was offered recently when Beverly Pasqualetti conducted his education 30 classes according to the Soviet system.

The main purpose of the experiment was to give American college students in beginning education the chance to observe for themselves some of the basic differences between the two types of education.

Pasqualetti followed several of the 20 regulations that govern conduct of students in the Red-Schoolroom, which were obtained from Dr. Glen T. Goodwill, superintendent of schools in Santa Monica, who recently toured Russia.

"All right, on your feet! Where do you think you are?"

One of the rules that the college students here followed was to stand when the instructor entered the room and to remain standing until permission was given to be seated.

At the end of the class period, the students stood and waited until the instructor had left.

All students sat erect while taking lecture notes. The lecture was given fast and for at least 48 minutes of the 50-minute period.

No interruptions were allowed during lectures and no repetitions were made.

It was with a collective sigh of relief that the class heard Pasqualetti finally say, "I formally declare this experiment over."

Final evaluation as to the benefits received from the experiment will depend a great deal on the results of the stiff test to be given on the lecture material.

However, as one experimentee observed, "I'll take the Made-In-America method of education any time!"

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1961 NUMBER 6

Anne Adams, S. F. Symphony, Opera Harpist To Appear In Recital Here During C-Hour

Accomplished first harpist of the San Francisco Symphony and San Francisco Opera orchestras, Anne Adams is scheduled to give a recital during this Friday's College Hour in the theater.

ANNE ADAMS, harpist with both the San Francisco Symphony and Opera orchestras, will give a concert this Friday during College Hour. —S. F. Chronicle photo.

Miss Adams' performance will feature Marcel Grandjany's Children's Hour Suite, Handel's concerto in B flat major, the only Handel work written especially for the harp, two French folk songs and possibly The Hunt by John Bull.

In addition to playing the harp, Miss Adams will explain the construction and history of the harp, and before each number she will also give a short history of the music and of the composer.

Playing the classical harp is nothing new for Miss Adams, as she received a scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music, the United States' foremost classical musical institution.

At Juilliard, located in New York, she studied under the world famous French harpist, Marcel Grandjany.

Music has always been second nature to her, she explained in a pre-concert interview, for she is the fourth generation of professional musicians, which have mostly included harpists and pianists.

The musical talent of the Adams family has by no means stopped with her, she said. She is the mother of four daughters who are all musically talented.

Miss Adams has several times appeared as solo harpist for Arthur Fiedler in his San Francisco Summer Concert Series. Besides being featured by conductor Fiedler, Miss Adams has often appeared with the Marin Symphony and the San Jose Symphony.

She will be the second artist whose appearance here was arranged by Meyer Cahn, music instructor here.

Dramatists Officially Open New College Theater Friday

A presentation of Eugene O'Neill's only comedy, Ah, Wilderness!, will formally open the college's new theater at 8 p.m. this Friday, with repeat performances scheduled for April 22, 28 and 29, and May 5, 6, 12 and 13.

Although the play's action is set at the turn of the century and much of the humor depends on specific people and events of that period, the play is still meaningful and amusing today.

It deals with the enthusiasm of youth and the problem of directing it into the right channels. If the young leading character in O'Neill's drama were living now, he might be worrying his parents by reading Tennessee Williams instead of Bernard Shaw.

Nearly two months of intensive rehearsal will end as the group puts the finishing touches on a production that it hopes will do the college a great credit, Michael Griffin, drama director, stated.

Heading the cast as the boy, Richard, is Terry Sutherlin. Fred Fisher plays his father, and Martha Ross interprets the role of his mother. Richard's aunt is played by Diane Flores, while Randy Jones takes the part of her boy friend.

Completing the cast are Jordy Cooney, Camille Hoogasian, Leah Pashoian, Michael Corrigan, Ann Vallerga and Alf Ekstrom.

New importance is assumed by technical direction and lighting in the new theater because of the unrivaled facilities that it offers in the fields. Chosen to fill these key positions were Charles Huntley and David Demartini.

Costume design is an essential part of the production because the action takes place during the early 1900's. Miss Ross, who is in charge of costume design, has adapted her creations closely to this period.

Blood Drive Hits All Time High For West Coast

A new West Coast record for the amount of blood donated by a college during peace time was set here during the recent blood drive, Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, announced.

The previous record of 359 pints, set in 1959 by this college, was shattered as students and faculty together donated 385 pints of blood to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank—26 pints more than the old record.

During the April 6 and 7 blood drive, sponsored by Tau Chi Sigma fraternity, a contest was held to determine which group could give the most blood.

Hillsman announced today that the three top donors were Beta Tau fraternity with 46 pints, the faculty with 36 and Zeta Phi Sigma fraternity with 35.

Top donor for a sorority was Zeta Chi which gave 13 pints, closely followed by Phi Beta Rho with 12. The Block SF led the clubs by donating 13 pints.

Individual donors accounted for 151 pints, almost 40 per cent of all the blood collected for the blood bank.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 6 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1961 Page 2

College Pitfalls Cause Editorial Soundoff On Student Apathy

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE of an editorial? Thousands are read at breakfast and forgotten by lunch; the editorial in the afternoon edition becomes a figment of meaningless print after a heavy, highly flavored dinner. Yet the public also needs food for thought, and the editors continue their daily crusades not to criticize but to tell the truth. Because the truth does hurt, the response is more often resentment than any other sentiment.

A faithful or even infrequent reader of The Guardsman must wonder why its editorial comment is aimed so often at the apathy toward student government here. What good does it do?, the reader must think. We answer thus: With truth as the heat, and pride as the catalyst, this apathy can be turned into interest. Pride must come of its own accord. Truth, in this case, is quite abundant. It may be found in the following examples.

City College of San Francisco is the third largest two-year college in the state. With this size enrollment, Associated Student card sales should be a routine campaign, not the semesterly struggle that it is. The college's athletic teams, strong in both Spring and Fall sports, consistently capture championships. The stands remain virtually empty. Student government elections have a potential turnout of thousands. The student leaders are elected by hundreds. And once this minority has elected, they fail to follow.

Each one of the aforementioned laxities deserves a separate editorial, devoted entirely to the nature of the specific problem, and practically every semester these same topics are subjected to editorial spanking—the frustrated student reader is black and blue.

In this very space, issue after issue, the student is bawled out; even if it's done in a psychologically polite manner, he's still "getting hell."

Here we come back to resentment, but there wouldn't be any resentment if it weren't for the apathy in the first place. Understanding the reasons for this lack of interest by students here might make a self-evaluation more plausible.

(1) There's no real campus life as is found on a large university site. Students come in their private autos, buses and streetcars, and they embark for home in the same manner. Just like high school—no dorms, no fraternity or sorority houses, or more plainly, no real "home away from home."

(2) A Student Union is an ideal place to congregate and promote spirit for the college. Smith Hall, being part of the hotel and restaurant department here, must adhere strictly to its own rules of conduct. Smith Hall is a cafeteria, no more.

(3) Joining a club is an excellent way to break into extra-curricular activities at a college, but students here, once planted in their particular society close their consideration to other related groups, including the Associated Students, the organization which has made their club possible in the first place.

(4) Because we are a two-year college, it is difficult to keep students within the confines of the campus very long. Just as they begin to show interest outside of their studies, many either go to work, try the service for a while, or go on to a four-year college.

Of course, there are other reasons. Apathy at any student government level, whether college or otherwise, is a sign of retrogression. At City College, does AS stand for Associated Students or Apathetic Students?

Foresight

Gone With The Wind As Civil War Elegy

By Richard Shields

There was a land of cavaliers and cotton fields known as the Old South.

WITH THIS INTRODUCTION, movie fans are led into a fabulous world of gracious living and extreme crudeness, of slavery and freedom, of belles and beaux, of peace and war in the David O. Selznick production of Gone With The Wind, now playing at the Warfield.

For 22 years larger audiences than in the history of any other movie have flocked to see this epic of the Civil War and Reconstruction era, leaving more than 40 million dollars in theater box offices around the world.

The novel came from the pen of Margaret Mitchell and was first published in 1936; only one other novel, God's Little Acre, by Erskine Caldwell, has been a better seller.

It has been translated into almost every major language in the world, 24 to be exact, and has had more than 70 printings. The book is advertised now as a "part of the American tradition," and used as a focal point and reference for comparison in judging all subsequent novels of the South or the Civil War.

It is truly classic in its contrast of a small sample of ante bellum charm and grace with the horror of the Civil War and the hardships following it, which were brought on as much by "scalawags" and Yankee "carpetbaggers" as by the war itself.

The story creates a nostalgic atmosphere of a day of honor and chivalry which, as is pointed out in the beginning of the movie, is not to be found in this modern age.

Audiences have indulged freely in both laughter and tears at the antics and crises which fill the lives of the characters, especially Scarlett O'Hara, played by Vivian Leigh, and Rhett Butler, by the late Clark Gable.

But there is also Melanie Hamilton played by Olivia De Haviland, Ashley Wilkes by the late Leslie Howard, and Mammy, Aunt Pittypat, Prissy and a host of others now famous and immortalized in the annals of American art for their places in the story.

The position of the movie as much as the book, in observation of the Civil War centennial, is one of dignity and homage to the New as well as the Old South.

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunna
News Editor ..... Doug Catheart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christanee Rodney Van Cleve
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister
Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragoven, Robert Hacker, Harman Kilgarman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Tames, Hugh Philo.
Reporters: Dick Dravagen, Dianna Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Terentino, Ivan Tames, Rodney Van Cleve.
Cub Reporters: Gerald Aimendares, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, Diana Kinsky, David Kleinberg, William Marrill, Herbert Mizis, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Merilyn Santos, Sandra Solis, Evelyn Thude, Christopher Wilds, Bob Yaary.
Photographers: Rogar Nissim, Tom Eggart, Estuerdo Dell'Acque, Gary Lajr.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Curtain Going Up Friday Night

Newest And Best Equipment In Town Starts Mechanical Duties At Theater

By Anna Papagni

The mechanical and technical opportunities offered by the college's new theater will soon be displayed with the opening of Eugene O'Neill's Ah, Wilderness! this Friday night.

Not only does the famous Diego Rivera mural stretch across the lobby but the Isenour Synchronous Winch system of seat changing, and the SCR dimmer board which controls lighting, are the most modern in existence.

Shakespeare attempted to solve the problem of changing sets by depending on the imagination of his audience. Today the Winch system can do this job efficiently with a series of 30 motors, each with a cable attached to it.

The cables secure the scenery above the stage, and as the play progresses, the various sets are lowered into place merely by pressing a button. Five set changes will be made in the current show, and each can be completed within 20 seconds.

While the sun illuminated Elizabethan productions, theater-goers of the present can enjoy plays that are enhanced by subtle as well as dramatic use of controlled light.

However, conventional light systems are clumsy to operate, but just the push of a lever on a panel in the back of the college theater remotely triggers an apparatus on the stage which in turn activates the light.

There is a beach scene in Ah, Wilderness! and also one that takes place in a bar which will demonstrate light technique to its best advantage.

In fact the O'Neill comedy was chosen to open the season because of technical opportunities it affords the director.

Charles Huntley, who makes theater his hobby, is enthusiastically looking over his plans for the show. Huntley has done the technical work for the department's shows in the past when they were performed in Science Hall shooting gallery turned theater.

The 340-seat theater, with its dressing rooms, workshop, storage space and technical equipment, offers remarkable training for the community's drama students.

Bullseye!

Sharpshooting Campus Police Rich In Trophies

Even success has its trying moments as Jim Tedesco, Campus Police chief, has discovered in attempting to gain a little recognition for the local gendarmes' pistol team.

Finding a suitable display niche for the campus sharpshooters' trophies is Tedesco's current undoing.

Although trying to obtain one of showcases in Science Hall for this purpose, he isn't quite sure which one of the display racks will be large enough to accommodate the more than 300 trophies at his disposal.

Perhaps the chief will have to give up on finding a home for all of them.

The pistol teams compete the first Sunday of each month on the range of the Oakland Pistol Club in Alameda. Their principal opponent this year, according to Tedesco, is the Coast Guard.

Hitting the bullseye a little more frequently than the competition has enabled the local cops to dominate the Oakland meet for the last three years. They have excelled in both the individual and team divisions.

The 10-man squad is split into two classifications, Expert and Sharpshooter.

As in the duels of earlier days, a choice of weapons is given, namely, the Smith and Wesson .38, the Colt .45 and the Highstand .22 Automatic.

Tedesco attributes his team's success to "regular practice sessions."

Off the firing range, however, the Campus Police carry only night sticks and handcuffs. "There isn't really a need to carry a revolver here on the campus," Tedesco explained.

Besides regulating traffic, the Campus Police also supervise dances and other student activities, on or off-campus.

Promising Or Impractical?

Peace Corps Plan Draws Speculative Attention

By Rodney Van Cleve

Although the novelty of JFK's fledgling administration still attracts unusual attention, the one program which has overshadowed all others, on campus at least, is his "promising" or "impractical" Peace Corps.

Whether one thing can be both promising and impractical is questionable; but that there are students who are willing to attach either of these adjectives to the Peace Corps is a certainty. Out of the multitude of opinions raised on this subject, some are commonly shared.

The most celebrated feature of the Peace Corps, most students believe, is that it is an army without weapons. The idea of a task force being assembled to build rather than destroy is, to them, an appealing one.

President Kennedy's decision not to make service in the youth corps an alternative to regular military duty has not dampened enthusiasm over the program.

One of the drawbacks to the corps, other students say, lies in the provision that the volunteers will share the daily evironment of the natives of the country to which they are assigned.

If this should include rough huts and such staples as goat entrails and monkey heads, a skeptical student wondered if Americans are up to it.

An answer to the last point can only be based on the corps' performance, which is yet to come. However, wide knowledge of this fact has not affected the applications which flow into the corps' headquarters in Washington.

Another viewpoint of some students is that the corps will not only serve to promote better understanding of Americans but will also provide a much-needed understanding by Americans.

On the other hand, several students agree with the theory that the offer of such youthful experts to a backward nation might be insulting to that country.

And so, campus speculation on the Peace Corps continues; but students all agree that whether it is the supporters or the critics who are eventually justified will depend solely on the future performance of the corpsmen.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

A SCENE worthy of a Charlie Chaplin movie was enacted here one day last week.

Chuck has been in love with Sally ever since he first set eyes on her, two semesters ago. For a long time he had been meaning to propose marriage but was seared and bashful.

Friday noon he mustered up his courage and decided that the time had come to speak out. He rushed about the campus, looking for her.

After running from one end of the college to the other, he finally found her in the library.

He sat down beside her at the study table and took her hand in his. Taking a deep breath, he spoke. "Sally," he said.

Just then a librarian tapped him heavily on the shoulder.

"No talking in the library."

* * *

THIS STORY has been making the rounds. Let's hope it's not true.

A student rushed into his first class the other morning pale and panting. "Do they have penguins five feet tall" he asked the instructor.

"No," replied the good purveyor of knowledge.

"Good heavens," exclaimed the young man, turning paler; "I ran over the headwaiter from the Zanzibar."

* * *

SECONDHAND NEWS is not usually printed here but the following item which ran in one of the big dailies last Monday is worth repeating: 1234567#$%&½½meshrdlu.

* * *

STUDENT writing report to student doing nothing, "What are Dr. Anderson's initials?" Donothing: "A. A."

Reportwriter: "I thought his name was Oscar. What does A. A. stand for?"

Nothingdoer: "Academy Award."

* * *

THERE IS LIABLE to be a new development in the Eichmann trial. A young gentleman here plans to make a career of the law and pass the bar (that means become a lawyer) after graduating from this college and Hastings.

He has been studying the trial transcripts as they come out of Israel daily and thinks he has found the flaw in the prosecution's case. He is flying there next week and demand that they produce the corpus delecti.

* * *

A FIGHTER PILOT who was a long time getting home from the war was poking around in the reservoir looking at all the new model automobiles.

He was standing in front of one, looking at the four decals on the windshield when the owner approached.

"This your car?" he asked. "Yes," said the young man.

"Congratulations," said the pilot. "I see you shot down four guys from City College."

A charging elephant runs at 25 miles an hour.

Book Report

Ramporium Manager Begins Second Decade Of Student Service

Starting his 11th year on campus as manager of the Ramporium, Dick Main reminisced the other day about the college and the bookstore as they have progressed in the past ten years.

"When I came to the college the enrollment was close to 4500," Main recalls. He had little trouble providing books and supplies to students and faculty then, but says the present self-service system serves the increased college population just as well, in fact, better.

The first student store was located on the old west campus, where the reservoirs are now.

When the west campus was abandoned Main, with the assistance of his wife, who has been working with him for eight years, moved the Ramporium into the newly completed Smith Hall.

The store was located there until it was moved to its present location, across from the Ram, to make way for the expansion of the hotel and restaurant department.

Unbeaten Thinclads Duel T-Birds Friday

ON YOUR MARKS — Carlin Vance (left), Herman McKee. —Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

By Al Oriovitz

As the only undefeated, untied track team in the league, the Ram spikesters look forward with justifiable confidence to their meet with traditional rival Oakland City College.

The meet will be held at 3:30 p.m. this Friday, April 21, at Kezar Stadium.

The college's top all-around distance runner Tom Jennings said, "I hope the students turn out for this one, for it should be a thriller. Oakland athletes always seem to put forth great efforts against us, and our team always responds to the challenge."

Jennings figures to be one of the key men in the meet, along with jumper Ray Hearne, who is now fully recovered from the injury to his leg, and big Herman McKee who is ready for both sprints plus the discus throw.

Jumper Elvin Bridges is improving to the point where he may soon challenge Hearne for top honors in the high and broad jumps. Bridges and Hearne are a potent one-two punch to all Ram opponents.

Track Coach Lou Vasquez and his squad journeyed to Modesto last Tuesday where they trounced Modesto Junior College by a score of 78⅝ to 43⅛. They beat Contra Costa 108⅛ to 13⅛.

Outstanding performers were McKee, who sped to a 9.7 win in the 100 and took another first in the 220 with 21.8. Frank James copped the mile honors with a fast 4.23.7, and Tony Ferrigno won the 880 in 1:58.3.

Guardsman Sports

Volume 52, No. 6 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1961 Page 3

Track Profiles

Vance, McKee, Taylor Form Stellar Trio Of Sprinters

Although the start of track season found the Ram cinder squad short of sprinters, three speed merchants have developed in the last month to remedy that situation.

Fastest of the trio is sophomore Herman McKee, a 6-4, 200-lb. physical education major. McKee, who also stars on the gridiron, has an all-time best mark of 9.7 in the century dash with the aid of a mild wind. He is consistently winning races at about 9.9 and hopes to hit that 9.7 on a calm day soon.

Freshman Carlin Vance, 19 years old, is close behind McKee with a best time of 10 flat for the 100 and 21.8 for the 220.

Vance, who majors in photography, feels that his hobby of playing the drums, plus his large collection of jazz records, has helped him develop the rhythm so necessary to a top-notch sprinter.

Rounding out the group is 20-year-old Robert Taylor, an education major, whose official time of 10.1 for the 100 and 22.2 for the 220 puts this 5-10 speedster in close contention for top rating.

Taylor admits that his first love is football, but he is giving his best efforts to the track team at the present.

Local Horsehiders Hopeful Of Win, Face Oaks Friday

Caught in the rut of a five-game losing streak, the diamond-men attempt to make up for a poor season start when they encounter Oakland at 3 p.m. this Friday at the Thunderbirds' home field.

Defending champs from last season, the Thunderbirds have been weakened considerably by the toll that graduation took on their team.

Next Tuesday the Rams face Contra Costa and with that game reach the midpoint in their league competition.

Rated high at the start of the season, the team is headed toward its worst season in the last five years.

Mike Moran, right handed reliever for the Rams, has been the only consistent pitcher on the mound. He so far has appeared in relief in three games and been able to pitch effectively in all of them.

Against San Mateo he came in from the bull pen after only one-third of an inning had passed and San Mateo had already scored five runs. He retired the side and pitched scoreless baseball for the next six innings.

Aside from this performance there is little to mention about the team. Its batting average is a miserable .198, and the slugging average is .096.

With this type of team performance and with the largely uneffective pitching, apparently the Rams will have to settle for a second division finish this season.

RA Emerges Victorious At San Jose Sports Day

Sparked by team "togetherness," members of the Recreation Association met with victory at their recent sports day at San Jose City College.

The RA women's basketball team captured the tournament by defeating San Jose City College, College of San Mateo and Santa Rosa.

Members of the women's basketball team are Barbara La Nove, Phyliss Tomlinson, Sylvia Schlocker, Gloria Chitman, Odile Haughton, Maxine Hickman, Pauline Koptke and Pat McQuade.

The coed softball team tied for first place with Monterey Peninsula College. Members of this team include Jim Bradford, Les Adams, Mike Roddy, Peggy Greenwood, Mary Tanner and Willie McDuffie.

In tennis the RA doubles took second and third place, Betty Yvonne Wise and Peggy McCaffrey captured second place, and Carol Gumpsich and Wendy Dickson took third place.

AMS Intra Cagers Team To Beat In Tonight's Action

Club Activities Board division teams face each other tonight as the Associated Men Student team tries to hold its leading position over second place Hawaiian Club and Hotel & Restaurant in Intramural Basketball League action.

League-leading AMS goes up against the Newman Club at 7:30 p.m. in the men's gymnasium while next door in the women's gymnasium The Guardsman will be hosting the Filipino Club at the same time.

At 8:30 p.m. the Recreation Association battles the Hawaiian Club and the Hotel & Restaurant hopes to topple Hillel.

In the Inter-Fraternity Council League, the Untouchables were finally toppled by a strong team effort of Alpha Kappa Rho in a sudden death overtime game, 48-46.

In other games the AMS topped RA 54-45; the Hawaiian Club barely passed by Hillel 45-44; Newman Club was edged by the Filipino Club 42-44; and The Guardsman was over-powered by a mighty Hotel & Restaurant five, 45-85.

The wins by the AMS, Hawaiian Club and Hotel & Restaurant makes the race for first place in the CAB league tighter than ever.

Along with the basketball league the new bowling league, directed by Les Adams, played its third series of matches with the seven bowling teams competing last night.

League standings last week:

Club Activities Board		Inter-Fraternity Council
Teams—	W	L	Teams—	W	L
AMS	5	0	Alpha Kappa Rho	4	1
Hawaiian Club	3	1	Alpha Phi Epsilon	4	1
Hotel & Rest.	2	3	Gam. Phi Lyolion	2	1
Recreation Assn.	2	3	Untouchables	3	2
Newman Club	1	3	Zeta Phi Sigma	2	3
Hillel	1	3	Beta Tau	1	3
Filipino Club	1	3	Phi Beta Delta	1	4
Guardsman	0	4	Tau Chi Sigma	0	4

Sharp Bucs Overpower Ram Bid To Retain Tennis Crown

By Ivan Tames

Rising to its peak when the chips were down, revenge-seeking Modesto gained a stranglehold on first place in the Big Eight tennis race by stunning the defending champion Rams 7-0 at the Olympic Club Friday.

Out to regain its stature, Coach Roy Diederichsen's netters take on lowly Oakland City College Friday.

In last week's crucial both clubs, which stand far above the caliber of the rest of the league, went into the showdown without a loss but the hosts, a 4-3 upset victor over this same club last year, were unable to cope with the power displayed by the visitors.

The Modestans' demoralizing one-two punch of Reider Getz, former Canadian Junior Davis Cup whiz, and tall (6-4) Tom Muench, defending conference singles and double titlist, came through as expected in leading their team's triumph.

Suffering from the after-effects of a pulled shoulder muscle, Getz dropped the opening two games to upset-minded Jack Bracken but came on to win 6-4, 7-5. Muench, radiating confidence, parlayed a superior reach into a 6-1, 7-5 decision over game but overmatched Randy Chun.

Diederichsen had banked the squad's hopes on come-through performances by the other singles performers but Rich Murray, nursing a badly sprained ankle, was withheld from action, forcing the others to move up a notch and take on tougher opponents.

This proved disastrous as John Welles and Paul Barth fell to Curt Atwood and Bill Davis, respectively, in three sets, and Tom Straus lost.

Hoping to salvage a win in the doubles, the Rams pitted Bracken-Barth against Getz - Muench and Chun-Welles opposite Atwood-Davis. Both finished on top in the first set but neither could win their match.

Earlier in the week the Red and White had routed Contra Costa 7-0, with Bracken taming Bill Finnegan 6-4, 6-0, and Chun and Murray both toppling their opponents 6-0, 6-1. Welles coasted 6-1, 6-0, while Barth didn't drop a game. Both doubles combination sailed to wins.

RAMblings

Student Cooperation Nets Bucks For Rams

By Tom Kennedy

THOSE WHO READ other sections of this paper probably know that this semester's sports budget has been having a rough time in Student Council.

With only $3000 in their treasury, the student politicians sadly discovered last week that $6000 in requests from various campus organizations still had to be handled.

Included in this were baseball, golf, swimming, tennis, track, varsity basketball, junior varsity basketball and physical education budgets.

Seeing that council was ready to tighten the purse strings, the respective coaches reviewed their requests and removed a few items from them.

An added problem arose when council was informed that the basketball team spent about $200 more than its original request, and had to receive the money since the season was finished.

Swimming cut $100 from this Friday and Saturday's Big Eight swimming and diving championships, the same amount from the Northern California meet, along with all money for the State meet.

Other sports followed suit by deleting various parts of their requisitions. On the whole, the coaches involved were pleased with the results. Council members heeded their suggestions as to where the reductions should be placed, and if necessary teams can still call for emergency funds to supplement their budgets.

This might seem like a strange place for such a plea, but students here can help the situation by partaking in more college activities than they do.

Dances, Associated Student cards, Ramporium sales, and profits from the vending machines in the basement of Science Hall add to the council's treasury and promote additional activities, including sports.

A fan may follow his college team and brag about it when it wins a championship, but whether the same club has enough money to carry on a full schedule is something he alone can see to.

Hall Of Fame Due For Two Additions

Two of the college's past sports heroes will be honored in this year's voting by having their names enshrined in the college's athletic Hall of Fame, inaugurated in 1957 but covering the entire history of the college.

A board of present coaches and assistant coaches along with past mentors now in other fields, including Dean Ralph Hillsman, health instructor Tom Wilson and counselor William Fischer, will each vote for a pair of candidates.

To qualify for membership, an athlete must have participated in his sport at least one semester and been out of the college for a year.

In the Hall's inaugural year, 13 member athletes were selected and the system now in use adds two persons each year. Last year's selectees were footballer L. C. Shields and Don Grant, a standout on the gridiron and diamond some 15 years ago.

The late Helen Crlenkovich, who gained national honors as a swimmer in 1938-39, is the sole coed member of the group at the present time.

The members include: footballers James Cronin (1916), Willie Hudson (1952-55), Stan Keith (1953), Ollie Matson (1946), Art Padilla (1946, also basketball), Don Stillwell (1948), Bert Toler (1948-49), Al Wycoff (1949-50), Jim Bunnell (1949), Gerald Landi (1953), Marshall Leong (1944-46), Jim Mollch (1938), Bob Tomanini (1947-48), Sadie Wong (1937-38), Grant (1914-16).

Track entrants include Jack Egan (1924), Van Partsh (1952-54), and Clint Redus (1953-56), while the lone swimming competitor is Miss Crlenkovich (1938-39).

A trio of basketball standouts includes Ralph Hillsman (1935-36), Bob Maibray (1949), and Kevin Duggan (1948-49).

Burkhead Picks Five Swimmers For Final Splash At Oakland Big 8 Meet

By Dave Kleinberg

Hoping to gain some glory that they have yet to see this year, five Ram swimmers will go to the Big Eight Conference meet scheduled this Friday and Saturday at Oakland.

Swimming Coach Roy Burkhead indicated that the quintet will include Al Stevens and Fred Vogel, swimming the 100 and 200-yard break stroke; Rich Sullivan, both short free style events; John Holm, individual medley and 100 butterfly; and Eli Silver, 100 and 200-yard free style. A relay team will also be entered.

In the final league encounter against Stockton, the mermen lost 76-19, as Vogel swam his best 200-yard breast stroke—a fast 2:45.7. According to Burkhead, Vogel seems to have the best chance of taking a place at the league meet. He has been the only consistent standout all season.

Last year's All-American, Sullivan, potentially one of the best free style swimmers in the conference, has yet to match past performances, and will have to improve greatly if he is to show in the Big Eight meet.

Oakland's powerful Thunderbirds, two-time winners of the Big Eight Conference swimming title and 1960 Northern California title-holders, swept all four league encounters without a defeat and are favorites to capture the annual conference event.

This Week In Sports . . .

THURSDAY

- Intramural Boxing — Tournament weigh-in (open to all students) in men's gymnasium.

FRIDAY

- Track—Rams vs. Oakland at Kezar, 3:30 p.m.
- Golf—Oakland at Tilden Park, 1 p.m.
- Baseball—At Oakland, 3 p.m.
- Tennis—At Oakland, 3 p.m.
- Swimming—Two-day Big Eight Championships at Oakland.

TUESDAY

- Baseball — Rams vs. Contra Costa at Balboa Park, 3 p.m.

WEEKEND RESULTS

- Baseball—Rams 13, Modesto 8; Rams 7, Modesto 1.
- Golf—Rams 12, Santa Rosa 3.
- Tennis—Rams 0, Modesto 7.
- Track — Rams 73½, Stanford Frosh 69, Contra Costa 8½.

Golfers Rout Comets, Tee Off On Oakland

Despite a poor showing in the Pasetiempo Intercollegiate Tournament, the Ram golfers came back to outclass Contra Costa 14-1, and this Friday will take on Oakland at Tilden Park.

Expecting some tough competition from the Thunderbirds, Coach Grover Klemmer points to the Oaklanders' solid club and a home course advantage.

In the rout over the Comets which brought the Red and White mark to 2-2 for the season, Gary Mialocq came through well, firing a fine one under par 71.

Planetarium To Be Built Here

Galaxies To Star In Science Hall Slide Lectures

Construction of a planetarium for the college will begin this summer atop Science Hall.

"An outstanding audio-visual aid, the planetarium will be used to show the heavens as they would be seen at any given time and from any given position on the surface of the earth," Dean William Mayo stated recently.

According to Mayo, a planetarium consists basically of equipment that shows the movements of the sun, moon, planets and stars by projecting lights on the inside of a dome.

This basic projection equipment can also be considered as an instrument for instruction, a theater for entertainment and a vehicle for the mind to ride to the limits of the universe.

In the early 18th century, the first mechanical planetarium was constructed. It was called an Orrery in honor of the Earl of Orrery who had financed its construction.

As the room lights dim and the starry heavens emerge, an observer can become so enthralled with the unfolding scene that he can almost feel the chill night air.

Illumination and darkening of the planetarium is controlled by means of a dimmer located by the lecturer's desk.

READY FOR STAR GAZING, Louis Berman, astronomy instructor here, demonstrates the type of 12-sided polyhedron projector which will be used in the new planetarium. Construction is scheduled to begin this summer.

The planetarium dome, consisting of fiberglas material, will be 24 feet in diameter and will be placed inside the unused observatory dome, which is located on top of Science Hall.

Construction costs will be financed in equal amounts by the National Defense Education Act of 1958 and by the San Francisco Unified School District. The cost will total over $18,000,000.

The planetarium will have a seating capacity of 50. This will enable it to be used as a classroom, which should be large enough to accommodate the individual astronomy classes.

Dr. Louis Berman, astronomy department head, will be in charge of the completed project.

In summary, Mayo commented, "The college has long needed a planetarium. Students on campus not only will benefit, but the new facilities will be available for school groups of all ages, community organizations and teacher-in-service-training groups."

Commissioner Sets Schedule For AS Elections

Setting Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24, as voting days for the Associated Student offices, Election Commissioner Bob Perkins released a schedule of events for the coming campaigns.

It is the duty of hopeful candidates to inform themselves of the requirements and responsibilities of the position they are seeking.

This information may be obtained, along with the election regulations, from Perkins in the AS office, S-140, or from the dean of men.

Twenty positions will be open for competition including the AS president and vice president, Associated Men Student and Associated Women Student presidents, Sophomore and Freshman presidents, and 14 Student Council seats, seven for Sophomores and seven for Freshmen.

Political aspirants must turn in a petition signed by 15 members of the AS and a 5 by 7 inch portrait of themselves.

The deadline for petitions is 1 p.m. Monday, May 1.

Campaigns will be governed by the Election Commissioner and all posters, campaign stunts and expenditures will have to be approved by Perkins.

Posters, which may not be larger than 14 by 22 inches, will be placed and removed by the Election Committee only.

Violations of these rules will result in the confiscation of the poster, Perkins warned.

"Campaign material will have to be taken down within 12 hours of election time," Perkins said, "and no campaigning will be allowed within 100 feet of the polls."

Perkins also stated that two election rallies are planned for May 12 and May 19.

Realtors Club Starts Membership Drive

Students interested in real estate and related problems are invited to attend a newly formed group on campus, the Future Realtors Club, according to Louis Ferrari, publicity chairman for the new organization.

The objective of the club is to discuss and inform the members on the problems and aspects of a career in the real estate field.

Ferrari said that many field trips are planned and guest speakers will be invited to address the members.

Glenn Mercer, business instructor here, is the faculty sponsor for the club.

Anyone interested in this organization can attend the College Hour meeting this Friday in S-313.

Council Discovers Unexpected Money To Complete Budgeting

By Dick Dragavon

Distribution of Associated Student funds was completed by council on a hopeful note last week when an announcement was made that the treasury contained more money than was originally thought.

Finance Chairman Georgene Peterson informed council that because the volume of business at the vending machines was much greater than predicted, more than $2000 would be added to the original $26,000 figure which the members were given to work with.

Although Miss Peterson could not immediately release final totals, unofficial figures show that $29,589.03 was distributed this semester.

One of the last budgets to receive action, drama, was reduced by more than half from $3900 to $1500, in a last ditch effort to keep the AS financed in the black.

An attempt to cut award pins from the A Cappella Choir and the Men's Glee Club was halfway successful as the glee club chose to receive jacket emblems which would distinguish them at performances, rather than the pins.

However, a majority of council members felt that, since other organizations had already received allotments providing for awards, it would be unfair to deprive the A Cappella Choir of them.

The final breakdown of approved budgets is as follows:

Co-educational Activities:
A Cappella Choir	$ 346.20
CCSF Band	85.92
Drama	1500.00
Freshman Class	700.00
Rally Committee	392.15
Social Committee	20.00
Sophomore Class	531.00
Publications:
Guardsman	4768.60
Forum	442.00
Women's Activities:
Associated Women Students	640.00
Recreation Association	580.06
Men's Activities:
Associated Men Students	632.00
Men's Glee Club	256.70
Junior Varsity Basketball	145.00
Varsity Golf	839.00
Physical Education	460.00
Varsity Swimming	604.76
Varsity Tennis	597.90
Track	2324.10
Varsity Basketball	713.46
Varsity Baseball	1778.86
Miscellaneous:
Commencement	562.00
Administration	400.00
Insurance	600.00
Athletic Injury Fund	500.00
Campus Police	2455.75
Club Activities Board	660.50
Controller	1899.00
Dean of Men	30.75
Dean of Women	30.00
Executive Council	1253.00
KCSF Broadcasters	308.40
Publicity Committee	1186.40
Student Faculty Relations	545.00
CCSF Handbook	750.00

Council Meetings Open To All Members Of AS

Noticing the fact that very few outsiders attend meetings of the college's Student Council, Sherm Elworthy, Student Council adviser, issued a reminder to Associated Students here that they are welcome to attend any and all meetings of the governing body.

Meetings are held every Tuesday and Thursday during the regular college year in bungalow 3 at 12 noon.

According to Elworthy this is an excellent opportunity for a student to become acquainted with student government and possibly move up the ranks to an Associated Student office.

Forum Hopes For Influx Of Prose

Disturbed over a lack of prose among the manuscripts that have been submitted to Forum thus far, Catherine Connolly, faculty adviser, expressed hope that this gap would be filled before today's deadline.

This shortage, Miss Connolly said, will present a serious problem to the Forum staff if it is not corrected.

Having no explanation for the unbalanced returns, as there has been a large amount of poetry offered, she is hoping the last minute manuscripts will even matters out.

At present the staff is occupied with the task of setting page ads and selecting a cover for this year's publication.

Advertisement layouts as well as the cover are made up by the students in advertising art, under the supervision of instructor William Eckert.

Forum, which will be available to students in the first week of June, has the distinction of being the first literary magazine to be published by students of a two-year college.

The magazine has a 26-year history, according to Miss Connolly, who said that student-published magazines are becoming more and more popular on campuses each year.

Mural, Arts Building Share Spotlight In Schools Week Open House Here April 27

Introducing the Diego Rivera mural and its permanent site, the new arts building, now open to the public, will be a major feature of the Open House scheduled here Thursday, April 27, Judy Day, Publicity Committee chairman, said today.

The Open House, which is jointly sponsored by the faculty and students this year, is being held to acquaint the public with the college's departments and facilities.

Although the academic divisions that will participate in the open house have not yet been officially decided upon, Miss Day listed the tentative plan which will consist of displays by 11 different departments.

The departments on display before the public's eye in Science Hall are graphic arts, life science, dental assisting, journalism, geology and geography, engineering, physics and chemistry.

Photography and the architecture division of the engineering department will display their wares in Cloud Hall. The ceramics section will be located in the arts building.

A special production of Ah, Wilderness! will be presented by the drama division at 8:30 p.m. The play, by Eugene O'Neill, will be staged in such a manner that the spectators will pass through, allowing everyone an opportunity to visit the new theater.

Fifteen hundred invitations are being sent to the parents of Freshman students, Miss Day said, and an additional 400 are to be issued by the faculty.

Members of the press, radio and television corps will be invited to attend.

Once here, the guests will be conducted through a tour of the campus, which will be directed by student guides. The open house will begin at 7 p.m., according to Miss Day, and close at approximately 10:30 p.m.

Two Groups To Participate In Choral Festival

The college's A Cappella Choir has been invited to participate in the Northern California Junior College Music Educators Choral Festival, to be held on Monday, May 8, at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, according to Galen Marshall, choir director here.

The choir, whose Spring semester president is Ann Thornton, is composed of 50 members. Dean Hollister is accompanist for the choir.

Also, in conjunction with the Men's Glee Club, which has 40 members and Leon Dozier as president this semester, the A Cappella Choir will present a concert for the student body during College Hour Friday, May 26, in the new theater.

"We, too, can be proud of the new theater, a long cry from our quarters hitherto," Marshall said.

George Washington died on December 14, 1799, at the age of 67 from acute laryngitis after a ride in the snow and rain around his estate.

Forty-Niner Days Theme Of May 19 Spring Festival

Under the general supervision of the Club Activities Board, the traditional May Festival will make its comeback as the Spring Festival Friday, May 19, at Brooks Hall with Forty-Niner Days prevailing as the theme of the affair, according to CAB President Don Verdu.

A beard contest, coinciding with the Forty-Niner theme, will be a feature of the festival with a prize for the student with the most unique beard.

In co-operation with the Inter-Sorority Council and the Inter-Fraternity Council, the CAB plans to give the various campus organizations an opportunity to employ their imagination in presenting attractive booths or concessions.

This event was not held in the Spring 1960 semester because of the problem of facilities, Verdu stated.

The festivities will begin with a car parade starting from the Ram at 6:30 p.m. and continuing to Brooks Hall for the festival, Verdu said.

Leading the procession to Brooks Hall will be the coed chosen as queen of the Spring Festival. Interested women students must obtain a petition from Dean Mary Golding in S-150.

All organizations, clubs and individuals are invited to participate in the parade, with a prize to be given for the best decorated car.

Organizations as well as individuals are asked to submit posters pertaining to the Forty-Niner Day theme of the festival.

A beer booth theme prize will also be offered. Both posters and booth petitions must be submitted to the student finance office, SH-107, by this afternoon with a $5 deposit.

Trophies will be given to the winners, Verdu announced.

Acting as general chairman for the festival is Steve Wise. Judie Crivelli is publicity chairman, while supervision of the car parade will be directed by Jim Bush, and entertainment is under the chairmanship of Keith Wagner.

Decorations are under the co-chairmanship of Loretta Ching and Madelaine Prince, and Les Adams and Fritz Barmore are supervising the booths. The queen contest is under the chairmanship of Dan Collins.

Admission to the festival is free with an Associated Student card and 50 cents with a registration card only. Guest bids may be obtained in advance from Dean Golding in S-150 for $1.

New Nurse Training Program Cuts Preparation From Three To Two Years

A unique arrangement of required courses will enable nursing students starting next semester to complete a three-year nursing requirement within two years and two summer sessions, Ganelle Griffin, head of the program here, declared today.

This program will lead to a College Associate of Arts degree and qualification as a registered nurse upon successfully passing the state examination.

Students will take a general education program here with special emphasis on science, while nursing courses will be taught at Franklin Hospital and Mt. Zion Hospital, Miss Griffin stated.

Hospital co-operation will include the use of certain facilities, laboratories and the utilization of technical advice by the hospital's resident staff.

The usual three-year nurse training schools are now slowly diminishing because of the heavy expense to the hospitals and indirectly the hospital patients to maintain these schools, Miss Griffin said.

She stated that almost 180 students, seven of them men, have shown interest in the new program, but only 35 to 40 students a year will be able to enroll in the program.

A screening of students on the basis of grades and general ability will determine their qualification for the new program.

Upon graduation students who pass the state examination are fully qualified as nurses to work in hospitals, clinics and doctors' offices.

Miss Griffin was appointed to the college's faculty last October to head the nurse training department.

She will continue to work in her present capacity, which is planning and organizing the project, until its formal inauguration in the Fall semester, when she assumes responsibility as department head.

She received her diploma in nursing in 1943 at Queen's Hospital School of Nursing in Hawaii.

Miss Griffin is the current head of the well known San Francisco School of Nursing.

WatchWord

Soviet Press Black, White, Red All Over

By Paul Plansky

NEWS is as old as time . . . News is where you find it . . . No news is good news . . . It's news to me! . . . Nothing is as old as yesterday's news.

With all the cliches and proverbs revolving around this four-letter word, its meaning has been modified, extended and stretched so that not only do the dailies relate the political, social and economic aspects of events, but also cultural, scientific and even religious facets.

The newspaperman of today has a perplexing prerequisite: he must be a walking library.

Figuratively thought of as a product sold to the public, news is the most indispensable source of truth in a society of free people. Naturally, the world's two biggest storehouses of this commodity are the United States and the Soviet Union.

America believes it is the arsenal of democracy; Russia preaches that she is the hope supernal of mankind —We have a cure for ourselves; they have a panacea for the world proletariat population.

We are not missionaries—they are.

Backtracking to the initial niche which this column fell into, it seems a plausible policy to reveal to all truth-seeking students how the Soviet press operates and similates.

The name of our hypothetical Russian reporter is Comrade Clark Kentchev. He lives of modest means in a thatched hut on the mud flats at the outskirts of Moscow.

Because of his unusual name, Comrade Kentchev almost gave up his illustrious reportorial career on the Soviet Star (which by the way is red) to move to America and sign testimonials for a micronite-filter cigarette company.

Comrade Kentchev began his journalism life on newspaper labor camp in Siberia where he chiseled out type faces from lead ore, using a Soviet hammer and sickle. This method has greatly aided the realistic facade of Russia's propagandists' papers.

Upon being "promoted" to a full-fledged reporter on the Gargarin Gazette (named after new Russian hero, Flash Gargarin) our newsman found fame when he coined the unique Russian word for "news."

N.E.W.S., in America, came from the letters representing North, East, West and South, respectively.

This novel neologism of Comrade Kentchev makes the Russian word for news, "snewts," which is the same as the American version except a "T" and "S" were added to represent Time and Space, proving to the world the supremacy of the U.S.S.R. in space travel.

Comrade Kentchev's latest world-wide syndicated story datelined Moscow is labeled by U.P.I. and A.P. as "probably the greatest Soviet snewts scoop in the history of journalism."

It is the story of how "Flash Gargarin," the first human in space, has won a free trip to the first soviet space station, Stalin #1.

While aboard Stalin #1, Russian reporter Comrade Clark Kentchev will cover the story of the Red's first flight to their long-envisioned target, Mars, the RED planet.

Today's Watchword: Foresight.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1961 NUMBER 7

Open House Set Tomorrow Night

Mural, Arts Building, New Theater Up For Public Viewing

By Rodney Van Cleve

Academic displays, cultural features and recent additions to the campus will be introduced to the public during tomorrow night's Open House, which is the college's official observance of Public Schools Week.

Purpose of the Open House, according to Publicity Committee Chairman Judy Day, is to acquaint the public with the college's facilities and departments. Hours are from 7 to 10 p.m.

Highlights of tomorrow night's affair will be introduction of the Diego Rivera mural, which is now accessible to the public, and the new theater arts building, its permanent site.

The mural itself will, for the first time, be on view complete with a guide identifying the 60 principal figures in the huge fresco.

The guide is the work of students in the graphic arts department who have reproduced in pamphlet form a page from a 1941 issue of Life magazine. The pamphlet will be distributed to guests tomorrow night.

Students in the drama department, currently presenting Ah, Wilderness! on weekends through May 13, will give a special performance of the Eugene O'Neill comedy with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

Manner of presentation is such, Miss Day explained, that the audience can file through the theater at will, thus providing everyone the opportunity of visiting the theater.

Displays by at least 10 academic sections will be held in three of the campus buildings.

In Science Hall will be exhibits of the life science, dental assisting, journalism, geology and geography, engineering, physics and chemistry departments.

Photography and the architecture division of the engineering department as well as the business department will be on display in Cloud Hall. Ceramics students will be working in their new location, the theater arts building.

Senior class students in the city's seven public high schools, Polytechnic, Lowell, Lincoln, Washington, Galileo, Mission and Balboa, have been invited by means of a letter sent to the respective principals.

For the tour of the campus and introduction of the Rivera mural, Student Council members and Associated Student officers will act as guides, Miss Day said.

Invitations, Miss Day said, have been extended to 1500 parents of freshman students, and an additional 400 are expected to be issued by members of the faculty.

A PAMPHLET IDENTIFYING the 60 principal figures in the Diego Rivera mural will be handed to guests tomorrow night at Open House. Graphic arts students here have reproduced a page from a 1941 issue of Life magazine through the medium of offset lithography as a guide for visitors to the college where the huge mural now hangs in the lobby of the new theater of the arts building.

Pictured above are six of nine other works of art on campus: the Leonardo da Vinci bust, upper left; the mosaic on the south wall of Science Hall, center; the mural inside the entrance to Science Hall, upper right; the graphic arts mural in S-345, lower left; the Redwood Ram, center, and the Thomas Edison bust, lower right.

Included in the pamphlet is the story of these other works of art. Suggested by George Mullany, instructor in journalism, and written by journalism major Christopher Wise, the story identifies and locates all nine.

—Guardsman photos by Roger Nissim, Tom Eggert and Estuardo Dell'Acqua.

New Student Union And Lounge To Ease Smith Hall Crush

The long-awaited establishment of a combined student union and lounge became a reality last Monday when the new addition opened in bungalow 4.

Realizing the need for such a student-run organization on campus, a Student Council committee headed by Grant Fahs and including Tom Baume and Greg Monk, brought the subject to light again at the recent Problems Convention.

It was readily approved by Dean of Men Ralph O. Hillsman and Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management here.

The bungalow will be open each day from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. "at least," Fahs stated.

Cookie, coke, candy and cigarette machines will be located within the room, but this will not move the vending machine business from Science Hall basement.

If the vending machines work out well, in a few weeks Fahs hopes to be able to sell sandwiches in the lounge from the cafeteria.

A juke-box is scheduled to make an appearance in an expanded student union and lounge next semester.

One of the main purposes of the union is to alleviate the crowded conditions in Smith Hall, and "relieve Sherm Elworthy of some headaches."

"As long as good conduct and order is kept, students will be free to do anything in the lounge with no set restrictions," Fahs emphasized.

Officers of the AS will be held responsible for actions of groups congregating in the bungalow, he added.

Any registered student at the college is invited to enter the room without the presentation of any card or pass, to sit around, converse with friends or participate in activities.

In order to keep the lounge neat and clean, students will be expected to deposit ashes in ashtrays, put papers in the wastebaskets, and to return coke bottles to their appropriate place.

Although the union-lounge is opening without decorations, the room is due to get some color in the very near future.

Presidents of on-campus fraternities, sororities and clubs are invited to consult with Fahs and his committee to try to form some constructive ideas on the bungalow operation.

April Fantasy Dance Is Now May Fantasy

Anyone planning to go to the April Fantasy dance this month is in for a surprise. The dance is in May.

A later and more convenient date has been selected, according to Bob Castillo, Spring semester president of the Filipino Club, which sponsors the dance.

The new date is Friday, May 26.

Oh! One more thing. It will be called the May Fantasy.

AS Candidate Petitions Due May 1; Election Qualifications Released

Qualifications for 20 Associated Student offices which will be contested in the coming election were released by Bob Perkins, election commissioner, and he reminded candidates that they must have their petitions submitted by 1 p.m. next Monday.

To run for AS President or Vice President, a candidate must have completed no less than 45 nor more than 60 units of work, rules provide.

Completion of 30 but no more than 60 units is necessary for anyone interested in the following offices: AMS President, AWS President, Sophomore President, and each of the seven Sophomore seats on the Student Council.

Required of Freshman Presidential hopefuls is a minimum of 15 units with a maximum of 30, while seven Freshman Student Council positions are open to anyone with at least 12 but no more than 30 units completed.

Emphasizing that all students who plan to seek an office must inform themselves of the duties of that office, Perkins said that any information could be obtained either from the dean of men or himself.

Petitions of hopeful candidates must be turned in to the AS office, S-140, signed by 15 AS card holders, and must be accompanied by a photograph of the candidate, he added.

Each party will be required to turn in a written platform, which Perkins plans to have posted where students may study them.

Perkins added that he intends to take a poll after the elections to determine student opinion of the elections.

New Registration Times Announced By Counselors

Registration hours for the Fall 1961 semester were announced today by Walter McCloud, counselor, who added that 27 different courses will be offered during the '61 summer session here.

Next semester's registration will begin at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, September 5, for returning students whose registration numbers are from 1 through 799. About 125 honor students will be in this first group.

Students with numbers from 800 to 1099 will begin registering at 10:30 a.m., and those with numbers from 1100 to 1399 will begin at 11 a.m.

At 1 p.m., numbers 1400-1699 will start the registration procedure and at 1:30 p.m., 170-2699 will begin.

Registration on September 5 ends at 2 p.m. with those who have numbers from 2700 to 3399.

The registration number appears in the upper left-hand corner of a student's yellow proposed program card for next semester.

On Wednesday, September 6, the remainder of the returning students will register at 8 and 8:30 a.m., with numbers 3400 to 3999, and 4000 on up, respectively.

Entering freshmen will begin to register at 9 o'clock that same morning, beginning with high school honor students.

McCloud added that all students who intend to attend the 1961 summer session here should see their counselors soon to be programmed, and then report to the registrar's office between May 15 and June 8 to fill out a registration book.

Veterans must file a copy of their programs with the veteran affairs office and must carry the equivalent of 14 lecture hours per week for full subsistence except in the case of certain four and five unit courses which are acceptable for full loads.

A list of courses is available to students in the registrar's office. Instruction begins June 26 and the summer session ends on August 4.

Former Student Aids In Writing Economics Text

A former student of the college, Douglas F. Dowd, is the author of three introductory chapters to a book, entitled Principles Of A Growing Economy, which was recently published by Norton & Company, Incorporated, of New York.

Dowd attended the college from 1936 to 1938 and is remembered by his instructors "as a remarkably bright young man with a sense of humor that was often quite acid."

He enrolled in business courses and after leaving the college worked with United States Steel before returning here to prepare for transfer to the University of California.

Before entering UC, he joined the service, and in 1946 was a captain in the Air Force in the South Pacific. Dowd later entered the university and received his Ph.D. degree in economics in 1951.

For three years he lectured in economics and business administration at Berkeley, and is now associate professor of economics at Cornell.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco
Vol. 52, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1961 Page 2

Schools Week Gives Taxpayer Chance To Count His Dividends

TOMORROW EVENING the college, greatly enlarged and enriched during the past year, will open its doors to the public as part of its participation in the city's 42nd annual Public Schools Week. It is a college greatly expanded in facilities and with a greater capability of carrying out the urgent and important duties it faces.

"Public Schools Week" is an often-used phrase this time of the year, but too many people listen to the words without really hearing and understanding them. What does a Public Schools Week really imply?

First, it implies that each taxpaying citizen has certain responsibilities toward the educational system his tax dollars support and maintain.

Secondly, it also implies that each taxpaying citizen has the right, call it even a duty, to inspect and examine this system whenever he wishes, to see for himself that high standards are being maintained, to make certain that the great sums of money he gives through taxes are being used wisely and to the best effect.

Public Schools Week, then, implies both responsibility and privilege. An open house, such as the college will sponsor tomorrow evening, presents the taxpayer with a unique opportunity in which he can meet the responsibilities he inherits as a taxpayer and exercise the privilege of observing first hand the manner in which his school system is being conducted. For it is, in the truest sense of the word, HIS.

Ever since Ivan succeeded in putting tons of metal in orbit and planting the hammer and sickle on the moon, many educators and interested citizens have been looking critically at our schools. Somewhere, it was apparent, they had failed or perhaps had become bogged down in a mish-mash of what have appropriately been labaled "fun" and "snap" courses.

Thus U. S. Citizen Jones, already shelling out tremendous sums of money to maintain public schools, was now asked to give even more for the expansion and improvement of those schools, an impovement desperately needed in the face of growing challenges and accomplishments from the "big red schoolhouse" across the sea.

When anyone, such as Citizen Jones, invests money or gives it to a certain cause he naturally expects some sort of return, material or otherwise. Thus anyone, again like Citizen Jones, who supports through taxes a system of public schools has the right to expect some "profit" from it, be it in terms of sound education, valuable progress or mature, alert citizens like himself.

One way for a taxpayer to discover if his tax money has "earned" him anything is for that taxpayer to visit his schools whenever the opportunity such as tomorrow night's is presented to him. Merely walking through classrooms is of little value. He should be observant, ask questions and expect answers.

A taxpayer pays taxes. His taxes keep a school system in existence. It is his school system, and because his money keeps it operating, he is perfectly justified in demanding the very best from it. He can't afford to accept anything less.

Concert Series Deserves Praise

ALL MUSIC-LOVING STUDENTS and faculty members at the college owe a "thank you" to Meyer Cahn, music instructor here, for his work in bringing to the college such performers as Carlos Ramos, flamenco guitarist who appeared here last month, and Anne Adams, who gave a harp recital here last Friday. Both of those College Hour concerts were before overflow crowds, giving ample proof of student-faculty interest in such programs. Maestro Cahn is to be complimented for working on such a series of programs.

Stacks House Unusual Volumes

Accordion Scroll From Japan Adds To Book Treasure

By John Muller

Even though few students realize it, the college library contains many "rare" books, the majority of which are kept under lock and key in glass cases either because of the impossibility of replacement or the sheer expensiveness if they had to be replaced.

On unique book contains a scroll painted by a Japanese artist whose power as an artist is illustrated by the following myth.

Sesshu was a problem child, so his mother was glad when he was old enough to send to a Buddhist monastery to become a priest.

But his attitude did not change and on one particular day Sesshu's instructor punished him by tying him to a post.

After a few hours, Sesshu wept so bitterly that his tears fell to the ground.

Thereupon, using his tears as ink, he drew such a realistic rat in the dust that the rat actually came alive, gnawed on Sesshu's ropes and freed him.

This juvenile delinquent, who lived about 500 years ago, is today regarded by the Japanese as their greatest artist.

Sesshu's greatest painting, the Long Landscape Scroll, is accurately reproduced in one of the most unusual of the library's books.

Titled The Long Scroll, the book has a wooden cover, and its pages are folded accordion-style, so that the entire scroll is visible by pulling the two wooden covers apart.

Another of the library's more unusual and interesting books is The Earth Shook, The Sky Burned by William Branson.

This book has little writing in it, for it's a graphic description in photographs of the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire.

It features such unusual scenes as a panorama of the destruction which appears as though the picture was taken from an airplane.

Actually the picture was taken by a determined photographer with a camera suspended 800 feet in the air by dozens of box kites.

A third unique book is Roloff Beny's The Thrones Of Earth And Heaven. Beny captured in the photographs printed in this book all of the fallen glory of the ancient Egyptian and Syrian empires.

This book contains the writings of no less than six art authorities, having a foreword by Herbert Read and the text by Freya Stark, Jean Cocteau, Bernard Berenson, Rose Macauley and Stephen Spender.

The last of the college's "rare" books to be discussed here is an old Hebrew Prayer Book.

It doesn't receive much attention, however, because the Prayer Book is written entirely in Hebrew. Being an original copy, printed in 1848, it is one of the college's rarest books.

Students may examine these books by asking Irene Mensing, reference librarian.

STUDENTS WHO SEARCH for the unusual in the stacks of the college library in Cloud Hall may have to look for a long time but their search will eventually be rewarded. Glass cases protect all rare or unusual volumes, however, from the ravages of time and idle curiosity.

No Saucer Gazing Allowed

New Space Developments Push Astronomy Careers

By Hugh Philo

People who like to dream about faraway places, even as far as the stars or another galaxy, have probably gazed interestedly at the astronomy dome on top of Science Hall.

However, for as long as the dome has been there, it has been nothing more than that—an occasion for dreaming, and possibly hope or speculation on the part of astronomy instructors at the college.

The dome, which measures 26 feet at its diameter, was constructed originally to house a 10-inch refractor telescope, but World War II made delivery of the lens impossible.

Louis Berman, present head of the astronomy department, has been with the college since its opening in 1935, and will supervise a new planetarium here when it is completed in the near future.

Berman said that during recent years he has advised students that astronomy as a career would be next to useless; however, he added that the situation has completely changed since the Russian rockets hurled the first artificial earth satellite into orbit in 1957.

He now recommends astronomy as a career for both men and women.

With the international space race in full swing, career openings for qualified people are many and varied. The National Astronomical Space Administration employs many astronomers as do the large aircraft companies.

Since the war, viewing conditions in the area around the college, which consist of fog, smog and neon lights, have made the installation of a large telescope impractical.

The astronomy laboratory does have two portable four-inch telescopes which are used mainly for observance of the sun's movements.

Until three weeks ago when Russia finally shot a man into space and brought him back alive, it appeared that the most interesting of all careers for space-minded people might be monopolized by mice and dogs.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

AN UNDERGROUND GROUP of students is organizing for publication of their own magazine.

They plan to reply, article for article, to anything published in Forum. The name of their book: Againstum.

* * *

EASTER IS officially over. All of the decorations have been taken down and all of the various symbols have been disposed of in the most efficient manner.

On the cafeteria menu last week: Fried Rabbit.

* * *

AH, WILDERNESS! raised the curtain on the new theater last week. This event followed hard on the heels of the President's Bulletin on raising venetian blinds only temporarily.

Evidently, the bulletin does not apply to the thespians, because they left the curtain up almost the entire evening.

* * *

A NOTE FROM the aforementioned bulletin. "Blood Drive: . . . A total of 382 donations were made which included 39 faculty members."

A note to education majors: There may be 39 openings at City College.

* * *

A NOTE TO French majors: A book in French came through the malls recently and the addressee's name was obscured. Was it yours?

A note to Cuban majors: You are wanted at home immediately!

* * *

JOHNNY SULLIVAN, student here recently elected Commander of his VFW post, is busy explaining to prospective applicants that getting into a fistfight in Marin County does not mean eligibility for the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Danna
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister
Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgarman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.
Reporters: Dick Dragavon, Dianna Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Clava.
Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, Diane Kinsky, David Klainberg, William Merrill, Herbert Mizia, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Pepagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Sells, Evelyn Thude, Christopher Wilda, Bob Yaary.
Photographers: Rogar Nissim, Tom Eggert, Eduardo Dall'Acqua, Gary Lair.
Faculty Adviser ..... Jean Neuress
Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Cindermen In Home Finale

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

IF COACH LOU VASQUEZ were as enterprising a promoter as he is a track coach, he probably could be found shouting the following chant from a soapbox outside Kezar Stadium today:

"Hurry, hurry, don't miss the City College Rams in their final home appearance of 1961. This is the team you'll be reading about in the Northern California and California state meets later this season, so come in today and see them first-hand!"

Even if Vasquez had to coerce a few fans into attending, we don't believe they would complain after watching today's attraction. Sacramento will furnish the opposition; field events start at 3 p.m. and track races at 3:30.

And furthermore, admission is free!

WE CAN'T guarantee a closely contested meet, but as far as exhibiting track and field power, the locals are sure to be impressive. Injuries and several disappointing performances hurt Sacramento after it was picked to give the Rams trouble at the beginning of the season.

This will be the final dual outing of the year for the local tracksters. They compete in the Northern California Relays Friday at Modesto; Big Eight Championships May 6, West Coast Relays May 13, and later the Northern California and California championships.

Ray Hearne and Alex Darnes deserve particular watching. Earlier this year Hearne cracked the national junior college high jump meet record at 6'8½" and has been winning the high and broad jump consistently.

THE FACT that today's meet will be held at Kezar is noteworthy in itself. City College had most of its meets slated for its own stadium, but the track proved impossible to run on.

Vasquez was able to move three of them to Kezar, making this the first year that the college has had a "home" track meet. Our spies reported that the first encounter—between the Rams, San Mateo and Stockton—had only a meager crowd present.

We hope more will be on hand today to give the team a rousing farewell send-off.

This Week In Sports . . .

TODAY
- Track — Rams vs. Sacramento at Kezar, 3:30 p.m.

FRIDAY
- Golf—Rams vs. Sacramento at Harding Park, 1 p.m.
- Baseball — At Contra Costa, 3 p.m.
- Tennis—At Santa Rosa, 3 p.m.
- Swimming—Two-day Northern California Championships at Sacramento.

SATURDAY
- Track—Northern California Relays at Modesto, 1:30 p.m.
- Recreation Association—Sports Day at Contra Costa.

MONDAY
- Tennis—At Oakland, 2:30 p.m.

TUESDAY
- Baseball—At Stanford, 3 p.m.

WEEKEND RESULTS
- Golf—Rams 5, Oakland 10.
- Baseball, Track meets with Oakland rescheduled.

Vasquez' Crew Goes For Track Crown Against Panthers Today

By Al Orlovitz

Looking for their third Big Eight title in four years, the Ram cindermen close out their dual meet season today against Sacramento City College, 3:30 p.m. at Kezar Stadium.

Coach Lou Vasquez' squad next faces tough competition in relay and championship meets involving colleges from all over the state.

First of these will be the Northern California Relays at Modesto, which is open to all two-year colleges in the state.

All races at this meet will be relays and it should bring the Rams to their peak condition for the Big Eight Conference Championships May 6 at Sacramento.

Today's competition at Kezar will feature such individual stars as sprinter Herman McKee, whose best time of 9.7 for the century dash makes him the favorite to win his event; Tom Jennings, the college's most versatile runner who competes in all events from the 440 to the two-mile, and big Alex Darnes, who could cop both the discus throw and the shot-put events.

Three half-milers are all capable of breaking the school record of 1.57.2 anytime they race. They are Tony Ferrigno, Bill Hotchkiss, and the ever-present Tom Jennings.

Ferrigno has the best time of the trio, but Hotchkiss has a knowledge of pace and a tactical sense that could bring him the victory. Jenning's spirit makes him a threat in any competition.

Ray Hearne, well known for his high jumping, is now becoming a major threat in the broad jump. He is favored in both events today but will be closely pressed by Elvin Bridges, who is ambitious for that number one rating.

Frank James, the college's top miler, has been suffering from sore legs but reports that the condition has been clearing up and he will be ready for a good effort today.

The meet with Oakland City College scheduled for last Friday, at Kezar was rained out and rescheduled for last Monday.

Results arrived too late for inclusion in today's issue but will be reported next week.

Until the Oakland meet City College was undefeated in league play.

Track Profiles

Hearne Gains National Fame

Rarely does an athlete achieve ranking as one of the nation's top specialists in his first two years of college.

The college's ace jumper Ray Hearne turned the trick when he high jumped 6'8½".

The mark, which is a new national two-year college meet record, put Hearne in the ratings of the nation's top five high jumpers.

The slender, 20-year-old freshman's major is recreation.

Inspired by the feats of Hearne and determined to overtake him is Elvin Bridges, a 21-year-old sophomore majoring in real estate.

With an all-time best of 6'5" in the high jump and 24'7" in the broad jump, the 5'10" Bridges feels that both he and Hearne have a potential of over 7 feet in the high jump.

Bridges' hobby is getting good grades; he now has a B average.

The friendly rivalry between Hearne and Bridges is sparking the entire track team.

Title Aspirants Start Ring Bouts

Since there are no returning champions, new title-holders are sure to be crowned in all eight divisions of the intramural boxing competition, which had its opening bouts Monday.

Boxing instructor Roy Diederichsen reported that signups and weighins brought out some 60 aspirants, who will scrap in classifications ranging from 120 pounds to heavyweight.

Accounting for the fact that there is a marked drop in entries from last semester's total of 110, Diederichsen said the tournament, open to the entire college, is on a voluntary basis this year whereas in the past the entire boxing class has been enrolled.

The coach, who opines that the top boxer in past tournaments was Lou Gage, an Olympic Gamer in 1948, revealed that some fine battlers should enter the ring this year, the top prospects so far being 145-pounders Gary Marble and Joe Smolen and 155-pounder Bobby Harrell.

Matches in the single elimination tournament will each consist of three one-minute rounds. Finals will be held at the Associated Men Student Smoker on May 25.

Babe Ruth hit 125 home runs in one hour in an exhibition at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, in 1927.

Confident Golfers Look For Win Friday

Ram golfers battle Sacramento at 1 p.m. this Friday at Harding Park aided by a little more experience and much more confidence.

Grant Fahs and Gary Mialocq led the way with twin 74's, as the Rams gained confidence by overpowering Santa Rosa 12 to 3. The linkers boasted a three-win and two-loss Big Eight record with this win, and for the first time this season went ahead in the victory column.

The most valuable golfer thus far for the Rams is Mialocq, who has consistently played fine golf as his following scores indicate: West Contra Costa 71, Modesto 73, and 74 in the Santa Rosa match.

Coach Grover Klemmer believes Sacramento will be a tough club to beat if the Panthers perform as they did in the Intercollegiate Tournament. He will probably send Mialocq, Rahs, Larry Sugimoto, George Benkie and Steve Simon into action.

Hot Baseballers Capture 3 Straight, Face Contra Costa Next

By Jerry Littrell

Displaying power, speed and team spirit for the first time in the season, the college's diamondmen are prepared to face Contra Costa this Friday after dumping Modesto 13-8 and 7-1 and squeezing by Oakland 12-11.

In one of the most dramatic wins of the season, the horsehiders came from behind after trailing 11-5 in the ninth inning and scored seven runs in the last of the ninth to win the three and one-quarter hour marathon 12-11.

Outstanding hitters for the game were numerous, but the biggest punch was supplied by Don Meroff. His ninth inning three-run homer was the blow that brought the Rams to within one run of winning.

Top slugging award for the team has to go to powerful Frank Gable, star third sacker. His timely doubles and singles led the team in offense. Gable is leading the team with a torrid .500 batting average.

In the past three games he has had 10 hits in 12 trips to the plate and four have been for extra bases.

The winning run was driven in by second baseman Gary Attell when he shot a single over left field to score Art Groza from third base.

Groza was the third Ram pitcher to throw in that game and he ran his string to nine consecutive scoreless innings by shutting out Oakland for the final three frames.

Against Modesto Groza just missed pitching a no-hitter. A solid single into center field proved to be the only hit that the Pirates were able to muster.

Groza seems to have recovered his form and finesse on the mound after a pre-season slump that almost sialed him for permanent bullpen duty.

Don Lowensky pitched the first game of the double-header against Modesto and got his first win of the season. He gave up eight runs, six of them unearned.

Shuffling of the lineup both in positions and batting order created quite a stir in that double-header. The first game gave the Rams the distinction of creating the greatest number of errors, seven, in one game so far this season.

Every game is a must win from now on in league competition if the Rams are to finish at the top in the Big Eight league.

Baseball Profile: Attell Sparkles At Second

City College's student body is loaded with sports talent, and the baseball team is no exception. One of the most consistent players on the team is second baseman Gary Attell.

Attell graduated from St. Ignatius where he sparked the Wildcats to two consecutive championships in his junior and senior years, hitting .350, .285 and .400.

In his senior year he broke the league record for double plays by assisting in 12.

He received All-City honors and also made the All-Northern California second team and the All-Catholic team.

A year spent at the University of California with a .321 batting average gave him valuable additional experience.

Guardsman Sports
Volume 52, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1961 Page 3

TAKING THE FINAL PLUNGE. Five Ram mermen, who competed in last weekend's Big Eight swimming and diving championships, pose before entering competition. They are, left to right, Fred Vogel, Ell Silver, Rich Sullivan, Al Stevens and John Holm.—Guardsman photo by Estuardo Dell'Acqua.

Holm Sets Swim Mark, Places Second In Finals

By Dave Kleinberg

BERKELEY POOL, April 22.—Little John Holm, swimming the first 100-yard breast stroke of his life, set a new conference swimming mark in the trials but lost in the finals to highlight City College's participation in the Big Eight championships here.

The Ram swimmers scored 14 points and placed fifth in team competition.

Ram Net Team Tries For Second Place In Big 8

Knocked from a chance to defend successfully their Big Eight tennis crown when they were shelled by Modesto, the Ram netters go out hoping to clinch second place by defeating lowly Santa Rosa Friday.

In their final league match of the year, the once-beaten Rams, who were solid favorites to topple Oakland last Friday, will be out to down a Bear Cub outfit which so far has a lone win to its credit.

Believing that "we should win easily now that we're at full strength," Coach Roy Diederichsen is counting on Rich Murray being in top shape after recovering from a badly sprained ankle.

Top man Jack Bracken, whose lone league loss is to Modesto's Reider Getz, a former Canadian Junior Davis Cupper whom Diederichsen calls the "league's top player in at least four years," is not expected to encounter much difficulty from John Estes, the best Santa Rosa has to offer.

Backing up Bracken will be greatly improved southpaw Randy Chun, Murray, John Welles and Paul Barth. Teaming up for the doubles competition will be Bracken-Chun and Murray-Welles.

Diederichsen is not pulling out the crying towel when he states, "We might have been in first place now if Murray had been able to see action against Modesto."

With Murray hurt, Welles and Barth each moved up a notch against tougher opposition and Tom Strauss became number five man.

Coming up on May 5-6 are the conference championships at Santa Rosa, and Diederichsen believes that "with a lucky draw all four of our hustling singles entrants could get to the quarter-finals."

Holm, who was barely nipped by Oakland's Denny Dillaha in the final, established his record in the trials while swimming against teammate Fred Vogel.

Holm, the former Poly High splasher, scored the college's highest place, as the mermen had to settle for fifth and sixth place finishes in other events. Holm's time of 1:07.5 was 2.1 seconds under the old mark.

The Rams didn't get on the scoreboard until the ninth event when Al Stevens and Vogel placed fifth and sixth, respectively, in the 200 breast stroke.

Ell Silver and Rich Sullivan failed in their bids to qualify.

Coach Roy Burkhead's crew scored its final points in the last event when they placed fourth in the 440 medley relay. This assured all five Ram swimmers of going to the Northern California meet next weekend at Sacramento.

Oakland, which has won the Big Eight meet every year since its start three years ago, broke 9 of the 11 records that fell.

The Thunderbirds' fabulous Gary Baker broke three records. He lowered the 200 individual medley from 2:19.6 to 2:07.7 (7 seconds off the national record) the 220 free style from 55.2 to 51.6 seconds.

The final score was Oakland 188, Stockton 89, San Mateo 49, Sacramento 41, San Francisco 14 and Santa Rosa 9.

Intra Clubs Enter Stretch Drive In Both Cage Loops

Club Activities Board teams enter the final stretch in the current Intramural Basketball League tonight with only two games left.

The Inter-Fraternity Council League teams face only one more game next Tuesday, as they battle out their close race for first place.

League-leading Associated Men Students, protecting an undefeated record, clash with the Filipino Club in the men's gymnasium at 8:30 and second place Hawaiian Club goes against the Newman Club in the women's gymnasium at 7:30 p.m.

In other games Hillel meets The Guardsman at 7:30 in the men's gymnasium and next door at 8:30 p.m. the Hotel & Restaurant meets the RA.

The Intramural Bowling League teams met once again last night at Westlake Bowl, as the Recreation Association and Hawaiian Club tried to break their first place tie. Top averages in the league are Tim Dunn's 161 and Bob Diacri's 156, as reported by co-ordinator Les Adams.

Bowling season ends May 23, and trophies will be awarded at the Recreation Association Award Social June 3.

League standings last week:

Club Activities Board

Teams—	W	L
AMS	8	0
Hawaiian Club	6	1
Hotel & Rest.	6	1
Recreation Assn.	2	3
Newman Club	2	3
Filipino Club	2	3
Hillel	1	4
Guardsman	0	8

Inter-Fraternity Council

Teams—	W	L
Alpha Phi Epsilon	6	1
Alpha Kappa Rho	6	2
Unbeknahim	4	2
Zeta Phi Sigma	4	2
Gam. Phi Ypsilon	2	3
Beta Tau	2	3
Phi Beta Delta	1	6
Tau Chi Sigma	0	8

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

• Ricochet

Editor, The Guardsman:

We, the undersigned, wish to enter a protest against the printing of an item in last week's Shots At Ramdom concerning the Eichmann trial.

We feel that considering the time in which we are now living this type of humor is very sick and completely out of place in the humor column.

Frank Devore	Larry Booth
Herb Greene	William Fauver
Bart Favero	Richard Scott

(Editor's Note: The Guardsman regrets, of course, that some took exception to the item mentioned, but it welcomes the opportunity to state that the column Shots is neither now nor was it ever intended to be strictly a humor column.)

The man to receive the largest popular vote in an United States presidential election was Dwight Eisenhower, elected November 4, 1952.

Foresight

By Richard Shields

Should Hollywood Take Another Look When Awarding "Oscars"?

THE HIGHPOINT of the movie industry's year and often the crowning touch to a star's career is the annual presentation of Oscars to films and players chosen from the harsh arena of Hollywood competition to be lauded and honored.

The ceremony last week marked the 33rd year in which the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has given its coveted awards.

The history of "Oscar" is long then, and in many cases illustrious, being also a history of motion pictures, both good and bad, for a generation.

Some truly great experiences in "Oscar viewing" include Grand Hotel (1932), Gone With The Wind (1939), Hamlet (1948), From Here To Eternity (1953) and On The Waterfront (1954).

These are, of course, only a few of the more famous films in the long list of those receiving plaudits, not to mention the host of actresses and actors who have been so honored.

It would be well if the highly touted academy would review the long list and perhaps look again at some of the great movies which they have chosen for awards in the past.

It is amazing that a film of obvious artistic merit such as Sons And Lovers could have been overlooked in favor of a comic farce like The Apartment, and even more amazing that something like Pepe could be considered in the first place.

Elizabeth Taylor's performance in Butterfield 8 deserved an Oscar, but someone might ask if it were not intended as a "bouquet of roses" for a convalescent as much as for a good job in acting.

Burt Lancaster earned his award through effort at least, if nothing else, but it would have been better for "Oscar's" reputation if Peter Ustinov had kept his vow that he would "never wear another toga" before he accepted his role in Spartacus.

Shirley Jones reaps the award of Lancaster's "effort," but her performance was certainly fine enough to pick up laurels on its own merit.

If viewers were able to bear with the academy's "mistakes" that night, however, they were rewarded surely by learning that "Oscar" pays for good music with rewards untarnished by earlier scuffing.

The best scores, Song Without End and Exodus, and the best song from a picture, Never On Sunday, were all chosen for musical enshrinement in Academy Award history.

Which recalls a former thought to mind . . . When are "Oscar's" guardians going to learn the meanings of the words artistic, objective and award?

Is showplace Hollywood more interested in the spectacle and ceremony of a million dollar pat on the back than the true meaning of art, or will "Oscar" someday achieve the true meaning and dignity which he deserves.

Tune in next year for the next episode.

Associated Men Students Plan Semi-Annual Smoker May 25

Preparations are now being made for the Associated Men Student Smoker on Thursday evening, May 25, in the men's gymnasium, AMS President Jim Bush stated today.

Among several sporting events on this night will be the playoff championship game between the two leading teams at the conclusion of the regular Intramural Basketball League season.

The AMS themselves are strong contenders for a playoff berth from the Club Activities Board, while there is a close race in the Inter-Fraternity Council for the companion berth.

Bush also announced that he will soon send information to the other colleges in the area concerning the establishment of an intercollegiate bowling league. This comes as a result of a suggestion recently from the AMS suggestion box.

Missing from the campus last semester, the suggestion box is serving its intended purpose well, according to Bush.

JIM BUSH, AMS president.

Any registered student at the college is still welcome to submit his idea to the suggestion box located across from the silver pole in Science Hall or in the cafeteria, he said.

Council Hears Visitor Heap Praise On College, Students

By Dick Dragavon

Student Council heard unexpected plaudits last week as Dr. Walter Coultas of the Western College Association accreditation team listened in on one of the smoothest sessions of the semester, and then gave his impressions of the college which he had gained during his study here.

After spending a day and a half speaking with students and faculty members on the campus, Coultas stated that he received frank answers and was impressed with the enthusiastic feeling for the college which was displayed.

"You will be pleased to know that I will be able to return to Los Angeles with something good to say about San Francisco," Coultas quipped.

He was particularly interested in the council's handling of its finances and Associated Student card sales, and he also remarked that the counseling program here was one of the best in the state.

Council was also pleased to hear the report of Grant Fahs of the committee for the student union, who reported that his group had succeeded in securing a lounge in bungalow 4.

A free movie will be given to students who use the student union, as long as no abuses are made. It is hoped that no legislation will be necessary, and that students will police themselves.

The student union is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

New Traffic Signs Go Up In Campus Parking Areas

Nine new metal traffic signs have been installed on campus grounds to augment the 12 wooden signs that have directed traffic so far at the college, Campus Police Chief James Tedesco explained today.

The new signs were ordered during the week of February 6, but because of the red tape involved in obtaining materials from the city, Tedesco added, the new signs arrived Wednesday, April 4.

A one way sign and a 10 MPH sign have been installed on Cloud Circle and on the ramp in front of the college. Three student parking signs have been posted on the new parking lots near the arts building, and two faculty parking signs were installed on the new faculty lot.

The previously used wooden signs did not hold up as satisfactorily as was originally expected. The wooden signs required additional maintenance and were subject to much vandalism, which often left the signs useless.

It is the opinion of Chief Tedesco that steel signs, while requiring additional time to obtain, would in the long run be more useful as well as indestructible.

With the addition of the nine metal signs, the campus now has a total of 21 parking and traffic signs. Now that the new signs are installed, Tedesco continued, there should be no confusion about traffic or parking regulations.

Tedesco further explained that cars parked on the black top area at the northeast side of the college are now subject to fines if the automobile is without a parking permit.

Five new special police officers have been assigned to the Campus Police force. The officers are Phillip Barmore, Donald Ferrero, David Mills, George Moreno and Louis Pollack, who have completed their preliminary training and are now regular officers.

Sergeants Al Mersereau and George Benner were promoted to deputy chief following former Deputy Chief Ron Wilson's retirement. Dick Visperas and Steve Lavezzo were also promoted to sergeants.

The longest river in the world, the Amazon in South America, is about 3900 miles long.

Jupiter is the largest of the planets with a diameter of 88,000 miles, 11 times the diameter of the earth.

Bank Of America Scholarships Go To Students Here

At a special award dinner in the St. Francis Hotel, Rosemarie Haas and Katherine Hall were recipients of Bank of America Junior College Business Awards last Thursday.

A secretarial major, Miss Haas received the Bank of America Award while attending Presentation High School.

Miss Hall merited a Certificate of Completion in Accounting while here. Achieving her Associate in Arts degree, she was graduated last semester with high honors.

Winners of these awards are determined by a selection committee. The committee is comprised of Charles Ohman, chairman of the business department; chairman of the awards committee, Dean Mary Golding, and from the administration, Louis Batmale, dean of instruction.

Faculty members from the business field from which the award is to be given are Ruth Gavin, Harry Frustruck, Ed Larson and James McConnell.

Applicants must be majors in business administration, banking, secretarial or clerical programs, with a minimum of 24 units to their credit, and they must maintain grade point averages that will place them among the highest of students within their respective occupational areas.

Qualifications listed state that it is desirable that applicants have a record of successful employment in business, and a record of successful practice and effective leadership in extra-curricular activities, as well as service in the business department are also recommended.

Preference is given by the selection committee to those graduates in occupational courses who are entering employment fields.

Bank of America awards are given to stimulate and encourage students planning for a business career, and to help them complete two-year college programs.

Peace Corps Lecture By Luckmann Set For C-Hour

A lecture on the Peace Corps and International Relations will be given by Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction here, during College Hour this Friday in the theater arts building, according to Gary Wilkening, student chairman, student-faculty relations committee.

Application forms for the corps, first proposed by President John F. Kennedy, can be obtained in the office of Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, S-148. Great student interest in the corps here forced Hillsman to order another set of forms when the first supply was exhausted.

Student Apathy Cancels CAB Spring Festival

Lack of student interest and participation has led to the cancellation of the 1961 Spring Festival, Don Verdu, Club Activities Board president, announced today.

Fewer than 10 booth petitions were turned in to the Associated Student office before the April 19 deadline. Verdu extended the deadline to April 21 but the necessary 20 petitions were not turned in.

Last year the Spring Festival was canceled because of a lack of facilities. This year all the facilities at Brooks Hall had been obtained by the CAB and all that was needed to complete the picture was student participation.

Students, clubs and organizations are only hurting their own treasuries, Verdu said, because proceeds from booths go directly into the club treasury.

Coed Gets New Academic Trophy From Sororities

A serious aspect of Inter-Sorority Council pledging came last week when a graduate of a San Francisco high school, and first semester student here, was presented with a scholarship award initiated this semester.

The recipient was Marina Popoff from George Washington High School.

Pat Comerford, president of Phi Beta Rho, presented the prize to Miss Popoff at the conclusion of the Associated Women Student tea and fashion show, held last Thursday afternoon.

The award, a perpetual trophy in the form of a gold book and a charm for a bracelet, is now on display in Cloud Hall near the entrance to the library. It was donated by the eight sororities on campus to encourage good scholarship among women students here.

A total of 45 women rushed sororities during Pledge Week, Mary Golding, dean of women, stated.

Another event during last week was the donation of $50 from Gamma Sigma Sigma, the college's service sorority, for the children's ward of the City and County of San Francisco Hospital.

Last Thursday the fraternities held their service day with the pledges doing the majority of the clean-up work around the west side of the new stadium.

The fraternities presented their Pledge Week games last Friday in order to promote spirit among the pledges as well as to find out which organization would bring "home" the Pledge Week games trophy.

Frank Buck died in Texas on March 25, 1960.

Class Officers Prepare For June Soph Ball

Plans are now being made under the leadership of George Woo, Sophomore class president, for the semi-annual Soph Ball to be held in the Gold Room of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel Saturday evening, June 3.

One of the biggest highlights of this event will be the traditional crowning of the Sophomore King and Queen.

The selection of these two will be made by the Associated Students using the penny-a-vote method. Candidates having the most pennies in their containers will be the winners, Woo said.

Applications for contestants will be distributed to all clubs, fraternities and sororities on campus some time in May, he added.

At the ball students will be dancing to the music of the Sal Vance Orchestra.

Appropriate attire for this event, which will take place from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, was described by Woo as dark suits for the men and cocktail dresses for the women.

According to Woo, admission will probably be by the method used for the Frosh Ball. If this is the case, all couples must have a bid, which will be given to AS members and their dates on a first-come, first-serve basis allowing them to be admitted at no additional cost.

In an effort to keep the expenses of the dance down, Woo urged all students who would like to entertain to consult him in the AS office.

Sophomore Class officers this semester working with Woo are Bob Rogers, vice president; Valerie Crawford, secretary; Cipriano Ayalun, treasurer; Gary Wilkening, publicity chairman, and Al Jacobson, Soph Ball manager.

Speaker Tryouts For Commencement Soon

Student speaker try-outs for the 26th annual commencement ceremonies on Friday, June 9, will be judged by a faculty committee after the second midterm grades are evaluated to determine which students qualify, John Brady, co-ordinator, division of student welfare, announced recently.

The qualifying students will be judged on the basis of academic achievement, speaking ability and service contributions to the college. Each student will be required to have a minimum grade point average of 3.5.

Plus the above qualifications, Brady said, two others, fluency of style and speaking efficiency, will determine the two students who will speak at the commencement exercises.

Blood Drive Donation — A First Hand Account

Giggler's Experience Smooths Way For Further Giving

(Editor's Note: Although the Blood Drive was held several weeks ago, The Guardsman publishes the following story to emphasize the fact that blood may still be donated and credited to the college's account at the blood bank. It is also a personal account of what thoughts occur to a first-time typical blood donor.)

By Robert Hacker

A few weeks ago I, along with 384 other members of the college, donated my blood to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank. A whole pint of it.

The goal was to collect lots of blood. Lots meaning more than 359 pints, the amount of blood collected in the 1959 drive.

The whole affair was kind of frightening because I, being one of those who had never given blood before, was totally unaware of what was to come.

Starting out in a line that must have extended at least a half block, I felt fine. (I am as brave as the next fellow.)

Waiting in line was a time-consuming project, and some people were heard to complain about the length of time taken just standing there, waiting.

My theory is that these people were talking and complaining just to build up their courage.

Not too long after someone told me to keep quiet I came to the first step of the ordeal.

I was handed a small sheaf of papers and asked under which organization I wanted my donation listed. Being one of those who came to give my blood out of the "kindness of my heart," not because I wanted to fill some obligation to an organization, I just smiled and said that any organization worthy of the cause would do.

A thermometer was then shoved into my mouth, and I was asked if I had contracted any incurable diseases within the past six months.

Being of sound mind (?) and body I was approved and then sent into a room that looked like a dispensary strictly from photo-history first aid stations.

On tables all over the room lay 20 students, all giving a pint of their blood. Technicians were methodically stabbing people with needles, extracting their blood, and telling them they could now go.

Someone said, "Next," and I was led to a table like a lamb to slaughter.

A technician came up to me and began disinfecting my arm. This was embarrassing, as I do wash every day. She was smiling to comfort me. Or she was laughing at me? I'm not sure which.

She said, "Now this won't hurt us a bit." It may not have hurt her, but my arm is still a little sore from the needle she poked into it.

"I DON'T SEE how the four feet help him, but his three pints will help the college record," one Irwin Memorial Blood Bank technician might be saying in this scene of the Blood Drive here. Note the shoe at right. It is not Ambassador Stevenson's.—Guardsman photo by Gary Lair.

After the blood was taken I felt fine. Only a few people get dizzy.

I was then led into a little room where I was told to have some grapefruit juice and some cookies.

And people react differently when then lose a pint of blood. Some become depressed, others sick and dizzy, while some start to giggle.

I was a giggler. I sat there and giggled and laughed and had what you might call an all-around good time.

I even giggled when a student I was talking to turned a slight shade of green and had to be led away.

I was then given a medal to prove my courage. A little sign was pinned onto my lapel saying I GAVE. A few students who didn't make it had signs saying—I Was Rejected. They were very sad.

ISC Spring Cotillion Ball Saturday Climaxes Sorority Pledging

EIGHT sorority presidents of ISC planning the Cotillion Ball are, from left to right, Barbara Giannini, Doria Bacigalupi, Georgine Peterson, Deanna Cortopassi, Shirley Wheatley, Janice Benetti, Pat Cumerford and Margaret Lindstrom. —Guardsman photo by Gary Lair.

Forty-five sorority pledges will be officially introduced this Friday night when the Inter-Sorority Council presents its semi-annual Spring Cotillion Ball from 9:30 p.m. to midnight in Smith Hall.

ISC President Margaret Lindstrom said that pledges will make the traditional grand entrance through an arch and will be introduced by their respective sorority presidents.

After their introduction, pledges will be met by their escorts and seated on the sidelines until dancing begins.

Pledges will wear formal attire, Miss Lindstrom said, and a sorority symbol for group identification.

Admission, she added, is by invitation only, and music will be provided by Dino Benetti and his orchestra. Benetti's daughter is an ISC member.

Tickets for the cotillion will be under the supervision of Delta Sigma Tau, Zeta Chi will direct the pledge rehearsal and line-up, Phi Beta Rho will provide the decorations, and Gamma Kappa Beta will arrange for refreshments.

Gamma Sigma Sigma is in charge of the general setup, Campus Police, flowers and photography, while Kappa Phi has arranged for the orchestra and Theta Tau is responsible for the promotion.

Sorority sponsors who are invited to attend the event are Vivian Ward, Ruth Inskipp, Katherine Hondius, Martha Scott, Olga Perkins, Dale Forbes and Melia Furgis. Patroness for the ball is Dean Mary Golding.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1961 NUMBER 8

College Hour Schedule

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

WatchWord

Tricky USA English Makes Writer Think

By Paul Plansky

THE eccentricity of American English makes it a flexible and therefore quite versatile language. Because our native tongue is a composite of many borrowed words from other languages, it has a well-seasoned stockpile of synonyms from which the writer can express his explicit idea.

Another resourceful aspect of English, and the one which will be dealt with here, is its unusual linguistic facility called functional shift.

This grammatical gimmick synthesizes new sense from old words, not by altering their spelling but by changing their part of speech.

With the innovation of space probing, new functional shifts are evolving; any new field starts a new "lingo." One of the shifted words in this category will serve as a good illustration as to just what Watchword is trying to explain today . . .

Orbit, when used as a noun, refers to "the path taken by a heavenly body during its periodic revolution around another body," and the same word functioning as a verb has the new meaning, "to put or go into orbit, as an artificial satellite."

Words like launch and rocket are switched back and forth from verbs to nouns and back again to verbs. Even the Russian word for satellite, sputnik, which has been informally taken into the American language as a noun, has been used lately as a verb; it has been used something like this:

The Army plans to have such an efficient retaliatory missile force that it will be able to sputnik its Nikes at any emergency along any strategic coastal position of the United States.

This word doesn't appear in the dictionary as a verb as yet, but gradually this type of functional shift is assimilated and accepted.

In the language of advertising the Madison Avenue advocates of functional shift have gone overboard. A typical shift used by the jargon-happy admen is: "Our new kitchen range is so revolutionary it obsoletes all other ranges." Here, an adjective has become a verb.

The young set has had a lot to do with this evolution of shifts in word meaning which change the function.

A date was once no more than the day of a month. Then it was stretched to mean an appointment; after that it meant an engagement with a person of the opposite sex. Now the verb, to date, using the latter reference, has been functionally shifted to a noun, and a date is the girl a guy escorts to the dance, not a numeral on the calendar.

To park a car is a common expression. This verbal use came from the noun, park, which is an enclosed area. Thus parking a car is placing it in an enclosed or restricted place. Now the verb to park has a new connotation, by no means a functional shift, however.

Today's Watchword: Ingenuity.

Wilkening And Plansky Win Party Nominations For AS Presidency

SRP, USP Name Candidates For Six Top Offices In Coming Election

Full slates of candidates for the coming Associated Student elections are being sponsored by the two major parties on campus following conventions held last week. Gary Wilkening leads the Students' Representative Party and Paul Plansky is the choice of the United Students' Party.

Running for Vice President on the SRP ticket is Kathy Henderson, while Plansky's running mate is Barbara Bell.

Also on the SRP ballot running for Associated Women Student and Associated Men Student Presidencies, respectively, are Jan Doudiet and Paul Snowberg.

Rounding out the slate for top positions for the SRP are Dan Collins, competing for the Sophomore Presidential office, and Greg Monk, who seeks the office of Freshman President.

USP has named Joyce Nelson as AWS Presidential candidate and Bob Rogers aspires for the AMS President's office.

The office of Sophomore President is sought by Fred Chernias, and Mike Hagerty, competing for Freshman President, completes the top half of the USP ticket.

Bob Perkins, election commissioner, stated that he will require both parties to submit their party platforms to him.

These he plans to publish and also to post in a display, which will include pictures of all the candidates.

"I hope that better informed students will mean a larger turnout at the polls," Perkins stated.

Campaign rules as set up by the election commissioner must be followed, he warned, emphasizing that stunts must be approved by him and the dean of men before they can be performed.

Posters may not be larger than 14 by 22 inches, and must be approved and placed by Perkins. They cannot be removed by anyone but the election commissioner.

Election days are Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24.

BOB PERKINS, last semester a member of Sophomore Council, is this semester's AS Election Commissioner.
—Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Tedesco, Hancock Nab Two Police Scholarships

By Fred Gregory

Two Campus Police officers, James Tedesco and Michael Hancock, have been awarded $250 scholarships each by the San Francisco Footprinters, according to a statement released Monday by the Campus Police office.

Tedesco and Hancock were selected by a three-man committee headed by Fred F. Fitzgerald, criminology department chairman; Arthur Williams, part-time criminology instructor and San Francisco Police Department captain, and Louis F. Batmale, dean of instruction.

The Footprinters, a national law enforcement fraternity, founded the annual scholarship three years ago under the direction of James Quigly, retired San Francisco deputy police chief and chairman of the Footprinters qualification committee.

The $500 that is yearly distributed here is part of $100,000 that is annually given for scholarships by the Footprinters. The awards are based on scholarship, particularly in criminology, conduct record and general character.

The two criminology majors were considered so outstanding by the selection committee that two $250 scholarships were awarded instead of the usual four $125 scholarships.

Tedesco, who received his Associate in Arts degree in February of 1961, has maintained a 3.2 grade average and is now acting Campus Police chief.

He is also a member of Student Council, captain of the college pistol team and has received a certificate of completion in criminology.

Hanecock held the position of Campus Police chief during the Fall semester of 1960 and was also a member of Student Council.

He has held a 3.1 grade average and is also a member of the pistol team and will receive his A.A. degree in June.

The Footprinters scholarship is usually given to students upon graduation for the continuance of their education in criminology.

Tedesco plans to attend Sacramento State College while San Francisco State is Hancock's choice.

Guardsman Wins Top ACP Honors For 29th Time

The Guardsman received its 29th All-American honor rating this week from the Associated Collegiate Press, whose headquarters are at the University of Minnesota.

Its Fall, 1960, volume was one of the five two-year college newspapers in the country to be awarded top honors.

The "distinctly superior achievement" came under the leadership of Editor-in-Chief Bob Pacini, and is the first All-American since Fall, 1957.

All-American rating, according to ACP, indicates a distinctly superior achievement. First class is comparable to excellent. Second class is good to very good. Third class indicates fair to good.

In the 39 semesters that The Guardsman has been a member of Associated Collegiate Press the paper has also received 10 First Class ratings, which indicate "excellent achievements."

The manner of covering all types of news received an excellent score with 760 out of 800 possible. Noted here was the good representation of news on all fronts, the balance of material, the timeliness of news and creativeness of features and editorials.

Contents of the paper also received a score of excellent. Special comment was made praising the objective style of news writing, the use of colorful words to begin leads, the conforming to the basic rules of writing in features, and the accuracy of copyreading.

Sports page makeup, according to ACP, should be more lively and interesting and present more variety. Even so, the rating given was "good."

Sports and sports writing drew an excellent rating without comment.

Headlines, typography, printing and the use of pictures also received a rating of excellency.

Editorial board members were Paul Plansky, managing editor; Frank Dunne, sports editor; Pat Perkins, news editor; Janet Carter, feature editor; Warren Downes, staff editor, and Ron Burnett, chief photographer.

Editorial assistants were Doug Cathcart, Tom Kennedy, Richard Shields, Christopher Wise and Lester On.

Garden Entry Takes 2nd Prize

Second place in the regent annual Oakland Spring Flower and Garden Show, consisting of a $360 prize, was garnered by the college's horticulture department, headed by Harry Nelson.

Plans are already being made for the department's display in the Marin Art and Garden Show, which is to be held at Ross on June 24.

The display will be an outdoor garden, consisting of a lawn, patio and garden furniture. The show will have a French theme and flowers are presently being grown in blue, white and red (colors of the French flag) to help with the display.

Nelson's department will be in competition with professional gardeners and nurserymen of Marin County.

Coed Clears Hurdle In Miss SF Race

By Doug Cathcart

Stunning beauty, a quick mind and skill in the art of underwater ballet have carried coed Bernice Espinosa over the hurdles of both the Miss San Francisco preliminaries and semi-finals and put her well on her way in the race for the beauty title.

Blonde-haired and blue-eyed, Miss Espinosa is one of six remaining from an original starting group of approximately 30 entrants.

Prior to the contest the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, who is sponsoring the pageant, expressed a desire to have the college represented as they felt that it offered many potential candidates.

Miss Espinosa is one of two coeds from the college, the other being Marlene Cortopassi, who chose to accept the invitation to compete for the coveted title.

The candidate's chance at the May 7 finals, to be held in the bandshell at Golden Gate Park, was guaranteed for her when she was victorious at the April 26 semi-final judging at the San Francisco Press and Union League Club.

Procedure of events at the finals, as it was at the semi-finals and the preliminaries, is conducted in the same way as it is in the Miss American Pageant.

The judging is based on three specific areas being: talent in some certain field like acting or dancing, the oral answers to three questions, one consisting of a humorous nature, a second aimed at seriousness, and a third directed at some social viewpoint, and finally a last judging on swim suit competition.

The winner of the pageant will not only be crowned Miss San Francisco she will also serve as official hostess of this city for one year.

Miss San Francisco also receives quite an array of gifts including a trip to New York, a modeling school scholarship, an educational scholarship and a complete wardrobe.

In honor of the pageant, the period between May 1 and May 7 has been designated as Miss San Francisco Week.

Mapping Out A Career

Surveyors Practice Charting Own Roads

Although the surveying classes have been planning and designing a road through McLaren Park for three years, when it is completed by the city, the college will have had nothing to do with it.

This may seem to be a futile waste of time but, according to Cecil Aggeler, chairman of the engineering department here, it is just this sort of experience which practically assures engineering majors of a position in industry.

The road has been used as a training ground for the surveying classes in which each student plans a route from charts and maps which indicate the terrain and elevations of the land.

The best route is selected from those which the students turn in, and the class then goes to the park with sextants and other instruments to survey it.

Whenever the city actually builds a road in the area in which the class is working, another location must be found to practice on.

"Generally," Aggeler points out, "our standards for designing roads are higher than those required of the construction companies, so that the students encounter more challenges than their surveyors."

The students also make frequent use of official city, state and federal horizontal and vertical markers, which are located more numerously than most persons realize.

There is, in fact, a Coast and Geodetic triangulation point on the campus on the east side of Cloud Hall which designates a certain point of longitude and latitude from which precise measurements may be made.

The point is a brass marker which was measured with precision instruments at night in order to prevent light refraction from causing errors.

"Use of these markers and the other practical work which is done by the advanced survey classes makes them very acceptable for jobs," Aggeler emphasizes.

ENGINEERING student Larry Hetland sights through a transit while surveying the proposed course of a road through McLaren Park.
—Guardsman photo by Dell'Acqua.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 8 WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1961 Page 2

The Future Is Just Ahead: It Starts One Minute From Now

THERE is a rather insurmountable fact that most college students seem to be unaware of. That is the fact that they are going to live for a long, long time after graduation.

All too often young students become involved in an issue without any thought as to how it may affect them in the 50-odd years they are going to have to live as adult members of an adult society.

On the other hand, they usually ignore issues and movements because they do not affect them as college students, again forgetting about the future.

A perfect example of the latter is a bill now before the Congress of the United States. The Administration has asked for a law to be passed which would: 1) allow withholding of taxes from bank interest and security dividends, 2) do away with the $50 deduction on taxation of dividends, 3) eliminate the 4 per cent credit on these same dividends.

The average college student with a yearly income of a thousand or so dollars per year and, with luck, a hundred dollars in the bank certainly should not be concerned with whether this bill passes.

Or should he?

Does the student expect that his income will never rise above what he is making now at his part-time job? Does he never hope to have more than a hundred dollars in his bank account? Does he think it out of his reach to acquire $1500 worth of stock while engaged in a business career?

Most students are not now taxpayers. This certainly does not mean that they won't be in the future. And the future is a long, long time.

Any tax burden voted through now because it lacks opposition by too many people not momentarily concerned will still be a tax burden 10, 20, 50 or a 100 years from now.

There is little need for delving into the pros and cons of this particular piece of legislation in this space.

We're against it, but that is not the point.

The point is that students must be more concerned with what is going to affect their lives after they get their degrees. They must inform themselves about current affairs AND KEEP THEIR EYES ON THE FUTURE.

As with the tax burden mentioned. If they favor it, say so. If they are against it, speak up!

It is a good thing for a student to worry about what to wear to the Sophomore Ball.

NOW is also the time to worry about what his son is going to wear to the Sophomore Ball in 1981.

Students must keep an eye on the future and they should remember that the future is just around the corner!

Lounge Is Not A Kindergarten

WITH the recent opening of the new student lounge, students here have an opportunity to prove themselves that which they claim to be, college men and women, mature and capable of conducting themselves as adults without having an older person keep vigil, or guide or supervise.

At the moment, the student lounge is without faculty supervision, and the manner in which students conduct themselves while using it is their decision alone.

This could change, however, if reckless and thoughtless students abuse the privileges of a student-operated student lounge. One reckless act could spell the end of any kind of student union on campus, a union badly needed in the light of rising enrollment.

We have two choices when using the student lounge, then. Either we prove the old theory that college students are adults and know how to act, and we keep the lounge open, or we disprove it, and—well, you guess the rest.

Mountain Climbing No Sport Here

Hills Are Alive With The Sound Of Students

By Anna Papagni

Like Rome and San Francisco, this college is built on a series of hills which are a constant source of irritation to students who are forced to scale them daily.

One young lady was descending one of the most traveled hills, from class to cafeteria, when suddenly what appeared to be a large piece of cloth flew into her face. It was her skirt.

But worse than this is the student who finds himself a little late for his physical education class. If he hurries down the hill, his trip can only end in disaster. First he is running, then rolling and then flying uncontrollably.

Coming up from the gymnasium has its own unique problem—especially on cold mornings. Exhaled carbon dioxide forms such dense clouds of vapor that it becomes quite difficult for groups of students to find their way.

And then there is the clever man who thinks he can beat the system by parking his car free in the lot below the men's gymnasium rather than parking in the reservoir where he would be charged a fee.

By the time he passes the traps and hurdles that lead to the top of the mountain where Science Hall stands, he knows that he has paid in sweat and toil. Sadly enough, some students find that this is their only means of barter.

Yet, without question, the citation for action "above and beyond the call of duty" goes to a pottery student. Dedication to his art enables him to flounder through a gully in order to get to class in the barracks to the left of the women's gymnasium.

Incidentally, this is a good example of the shameful erosion that is being allowed to devour the soil of our country. Won't someone plant a tree? Then the pottery student can swing to class.

In all fairness, it should be mentioned that a conventional road leading to this department does exist. But, unfortunately, there are only ten minutes in which to change classes.

The student who comes from the fourth floor of Science Hall would have a stroke from overexertion if he attempted to pursue this long way around in the short time allotted.

There is some comic relief to the situation, however. Certainly a humorous sight to the upright observer are the students stooped in right angles to fight gravity as they move slowly up the incline from the arts building.

The faster they go, the farther they bend. Nose to the grindstone? Every day.

Surely there is a solution instead of a moral to all of this. Perhaps a tow rope could be installed, or better yet, an escalator. The city has long sought a practical purpose for the cable car; maybe this is the answer.

In any event, whatever the solution may be, something should be done. An enterprising student might check with the Wizard of Oz.

Now, in this modern age, a plan to fly students up, down and around the hills in helicopters may be something to look forward to. Of course, a necessary detail in this plan of action would include a supply of airsick pills.

Foresight

Chimp Makes Monkey Of Growing Problems As He Apes Adolescents

By Richard Shields

KONGA is the name of a chimpanzee who grows up—so far up that he becomes at least three stories tall, which means that he can cut some pretty big monkeyshines.

A new British movie (the one Konga was named after?) tells the story of his life, which develops into a series of severe emotional traumas, brought on undoubtedly by his rapid growth.

At the beginning of the film, an expose of how adolescent problems can be magnified, Konga is a normal, well-adjusted chimp, secure and protected by the strength of his beloved "mad scientist."

As the story progresses, however, and he grows from little chimp to big chimp to large ape, he has to be convinced by hypnotism that "mad scientist" still has his best interests at heart.

"Mad scientist" believes that everything must be sacrificed for the cause of noble science, meaning himself, and is convinced that everyone hates him and wants to steal or thwart his pet project, namely, making Konga grow up.

It would be a safe bet that a lot of doctors would prefer patients who would submit their posteriors for shots as easily as Konga did when it was time for him to receive his magic growth formula.

"Mad scientist's" girl friend cares more for love than murder and makes few objections when he apparently tries to sacrifice several Londoners to noble science, using grown-up Konga's strength.

Naturally, "mad scientist" falls for one of his students at the university and his girl friend decides she can get a better deal from Konga, whereupon she gives him an inspiring speech and another shot, and he becomes a giant three-story gorilla.

The poor chimp doesn't know what to make of it all (getting so far up in the world); he probably realizes that "mad scientist" will never cuddle him again so he beats up the girl friend and carries his master off into the night.

"Mad scientist's" new flame is so shocked at the sight of Konga that she jumps into a meat-eating plant which had been eying her hungrily. It was love at first sight, but they had an extremely short affair.

—Konga strides through London then, causing an uproar and making an exciting climax for the story. He was very considerate, though, being careful not to dislodge a single brick from a building.

The army is called out, of course, and they attack with anti-tank guns, machine guns, bazookas, rifles, pistols and military precision.

Konga is upset by the bright lights of the exploding shells so he throws "mad scientist" at the soldiers. He missed, but "mad scientist" didn't seem to mind.

The big chimp toppies over then and shrinks back to his original size; he weighs a little more than he used to, though, because he has at least tons of lead inside of him.

The problem here is whether or not the bullets and shells shrank too. Such are the mysteries of science. Even in death, Konga seems to be reaching out for "mad scientist."

He shouldn't have thrown him away in the first place. Also, as the film so ably points out, the emotional problems of growing up are directly in proportion to size, and all may be easily and scientifically solved with an accurate yardstick.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Piensky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister
Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragoyen, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Bus Meunt, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.
Reporters: Dick Dravagon, Dianne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Bus Meunt, John Muller, Albert Ortavitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Terantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve.
Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendarez, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, William Merrill, Herbert Mizia, Raul Ortega, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Selle, Evelyn Thude, Christopher Wilds, Bob Vasey.
Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Egart, Eduardo Dell'Acqua, Gary Lair.
Faculty Adviser ..... Jean Neurses
Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

ONE OF THE bigger dailies looked like a downtown edition of The Guardsman last week with:

Leah Pashoian's picture over a story on Ah, Wilderness!, an item about President Louis. G. Conlan in the major column and an article by alumnus Bill Boldenweck dominating the last page.

* * *

SPEAKING of last week and speaking of downtown papers and speaking of Ah, Wilderness! (how much more space do you want-filled, Mr. Editor?) the big play opened to a capacity crowd a Friday ago.

Only trouble is that the capacity of the old theater (88) showed up at the new one which holds more than 300.

Many reasons have been given for poor attendance. Everyone knows that drama does not draw the crowd that the Associated Women Student fashion show did, but then the ladies gave away free tea.

An item in a downtown daily five days after the premier saying that the play would open "—this coming Friday" makes a body wonder why anyone showed up at all.

• The fact that the play opened to such a poor house is not the fault of the drama department but, unfortunately, they are looked to to provide the remedy.

Would they, perchance, entertain a suggestion that has been gathering dust for more than a semester now?

Try a 4 o'clock matinee!!!!

The whole world of ours knows that not many persons will leave here at the end of a scholastic day and then return later in the evening.

Perhaps the theater people know their own business better than outsiders do, and that is as it should be. But sometimes it takes something unusual to do the trick.

* * *

INSTRUCTOR to robust student who has just flunked an exam: "My boy, you are better fed than you are educated."

Robust student: "I feed myself, sir. You are the one who educates me."

* * *

SEVERAL interested students are trying to organize a club of mountain climbers. They would like to hike into the woods each weekend and tramp up and down some of the local hills.

Their choice for faculty adviser: Dean Hillsman.

* * *

THERE IS a report circulating that the upcoming swimming meet at Stanford is fixed. This, of course, is definitely not true.

The story got started when someone spotted the following headline in the paper of another college: "Our men to take dive this weekend."

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

FROM THE COMFORT of his athletic office desk, Coach Alex Schwarz announced that the Soph-Prof softball game will not be revived this semester.

A few years ago the game was one of the highlights of the spring semester, allowing graduating students to gain revenge on their long-endured instructors and giving the latter a chance to prove their alleged superiority.

But now Schwarz says there will be no game. He states that the profs were always too good for the sophomores, and after many tries students simply gave up the competition.

Of course it is the duty of this newspaper to report campus events objectively, so The Guardsman does not believe all of Schwarz' story. After all, he was a member of the faculty team.

The profs did have a winning streak until 1958, and The Guardsman's files indicate the faculty were the ones who cancelled the game to keep their record intact.

SO INSTEAD of arguing the case, we have another solution—institute a Soph-Prof steeplechase race from the men's gymnasium to the planetarium site atop Science Hall.

The race could be scored like a track meet, with the first 10 places counting toward points for either team. Preliminary heats would be run to lower the number of competitors since the corridors can hold only a certain number of people at one time.

It would also introduce students to the room that is scheduled to house City College's planetarium in the near future.

Sophomores would be heavily favored in the race. Age has a way of decreasing endurance—even of coaches—and there are several students here who make the trek from the gymnasium to the third floor of Science Hall twice a week. They should be in excellent shape and form a substantial part of the sophomore squad.

We don't know whether the athletic department would be willing to join the steeplechase. It would be a lot harder on them than a simple softball game.

SPEAKING OF SCHWARZ, a certain student was shocked the other day when he walked into his physical education class. Almost half the men were on their knees, slowly crawling from one end of the basketball floor to the other.

The line of crawlers extended to both sides of the court. Seeing Schwarz in charge and thinking the coach had instituted some cruel and unusual punishment, he was ready to issue a protest to the physical education department.

But, alas, the student's alarm was ill-founded. Someone in the class had lost his contact lenses, and Schwarz was organizing a man hunt to search for them.

EYING A HEAVY SCHEDULE this week, the Ram baseballers, who have blazed a strong comeback after a disappointing early season start, will be led in part by consistent second sacker Gary Attell (left) and pitcher Don Lowpensky.—Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Baseballers Upset By Comets, Host Three Games This Week

By Jerry Littrell

Rising out of the league cellar, the Comets from Contra Costa set down the Ram diamondmen with a twin defeat, 9-7 and 1-0, last Saturday at Contra Costa.

This Saturday City College faces league-leading Sacramento in a doubleheader at Balboa Park. Sacramento, behind brilliant pitching, won six and tied one in the first half of the season.

This Week In Sports . . .

TODAY

• Baseball—Rams vs. Hamilton AFB at Balboa Park, 3 p.m.

THURSDAY

• Swimming — Three-day state championships at Stanford.

FRIDAY

• Tennis — Two-day Big Eight Tournament at Santa Rosa.

SATURDAY

• Baseball—Rams vs. Sacramento at Balboa Park, 12 noon.

• Track — Big Eight Championships at Sacramento, 1:30 p.m.

• Recreation Association — Fencing meet at City College.

MONDAY

• Golf—Big Eight Championships at Richmond Country Club, 8 a.m.

TUESDAY

• Baseball—Rams vs. Santa Rosa at Balboa Park, 3 p.m.

WEEKEND RESULTS

• Baseball—Rams 7, Contra Costa 9; Rams 0, Contra Costa 1.

• Golf—Rams 10, Sacramento 5.

• Tennis—Rams 6, Santa Rosa 1.

• Track—Northern California JC Relays: College of Sequoias 55½, Monterey 44, Rams 39½.

In a tune-up game today at 3 p.m. the Rams encounter Hamilton Air Force Base on their home field.

The weekend's double defeat took the locals out of contention for the top spot in the Big Eight and left them struggling for a first division finish.

Fidgety Art Groza lost the first game through wildness. Ram defense collapsed for the third straight game, bringing the three-game total to 18.

Don Lowpensky pitched brilliantly in the second game, allowing only two hits during the entire game. The Comets were able to score their only run in the second inning on a single, a walk and two sacrifice bunts. This proved to be enough for a victory, as the Rams were shut out.

Comet pitcher Mike Walker scattered three harmless singles in nine innings and emerged with his first win of the season. The Rams came into the doubleheader with a team batting average of .299, but Walker calmed their bats into submission.

City College has only four more league games remaining, and a clean sweep of these will insure them of at least a third place finish.

The last two games of the season will be played against Santa Rosa. Tuesday the Rams host the Bear Cubs and the following Friday finish with a road game.

CITY COLLEGE

	AB	R	H	BA
Attell, 2b	4	0	0	.333
Mercuff, lf	4	2	2	.353
Gable, 3b	6	2	2	.471
Preston, rf	7	0	3	.429
Wilson, 1b	5	0	1	.200
Russell, lf	4	0	1	.250
Medzella, ss	4	1	1	.286
Lyons, rf	8	0	0	.250
Carroll, c	5	0	2	.200
Groza, p	2	1	0	.000 (2-3)
Moran, p	2	0	1	.166 (0-0)
Tompkins, p	1	0	0	.272 (0-2)
Lowpensky, p	1	0	0	.087 (2-1)
	58	7	14

FIRST GAME

CCSF	012 020 101	—7
CONTRA COSTA	021 410 01x	—9

2B—Medzella, Van Auberg (CCC), 2B—Preston. W—Thomas (CCC), L—Groza.

SECOND GAME

CCSF	000 000 0	—0
CONTRA COSTA	010 000 x	—1

W—Walker (CCC), L—Lowpensky.

Swimming Trio Slated To Enter State Meet; Oaks, Menlo Favored

California's state swimming meet at Stanford, the finale of college swimming events, will boast some of the fastest mermen in recent years in the three-day meet this weekend, if season records are a true indication.

Menlo and powerful Oakland, which rolled up a record 188 points in the Big Eight meet, are co-favorites in the state annual.

On the local front, things are looking down. Swimming Coach Roy Burkhead will send only three swimmers.

Al Stevens, the ex-Washington High splasher, will see his final action when he, Fred Vogel and John Holm surprise record breaker in the Big Eight Conference swimming meet, participate in the meet.

Burkhead stated the state meet is one of the biggest swimming events of the year in California. "The general public doesn't realize what it's missing."

Burkhead plans to use Vogel and Holm in the 100 breast stroke, and Stevens in the 200 breast stroke.

The Rams suffered one of their worst seasons in years with defeats ranging from an 81-13 loss to Oakland to their closest—a 58-36 defeat at the hands of Sacramento. Their league record was 0-4, and overall mark, 0-7.

Lack of participation, coupled with the fact the college does not have a swimming pool of its own, are some of the reasons for the poor season.

Stevens and Rich Sullivan, the All-American from last year, are drawing their careers at City College to an end.

RA Fencers Go Against Six Teams Saturday

Members of the Recreation Association will participate in an eight-way fencing meet here this Saturday, according to Kay Vanderford, RA president.

Colleges participating in the meet are Los Angeles Valley College, Humboldt State, San Francisco State, Santa Rosa, Napa, San Mateo, San Jose State and San Jose City College.

The all-day meet will begin in the morning and will be highlighted by a lunch in midafternoon.

Signups for the Monterey sports day are being held now in the lobby of the women's gymnasium. Students are invited to sign up for archery, badminton and tennis. Participants will be leaving the college at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 13.

Mialocq Heading For Big Eight Link Honors

Gary Mialocq, the Ram's best linker this season, has a fine chance of copping a top spot in the Big Eight Conference tournament at Richmond Country Club next Tuesday, according to Coach Grover Kiemmer.

Tournament winners are based on the six low medal scores after two rounds of golf, and these six golfers will be the All-Conference players. There is no team championship—the competition is strictly individual.

The Rams dropped back to .500 golf with a 3-3 record when they lost to a tough Oakland Club, 5-10. Mialocq again starred for the Red and White by shooting a 73 on the Tilden Park course.

Spikers Eye Big 8 Championships

Individuals Take Spotlight After Capturing Team Title

By Tom Kennedy

After breezing to the conference team championship last week with two more victories, the Ram spikers attempt to gain individual honors in Saturday's Big Eight Championships, 1:30 at Sacramento.

Dual meet wins over Oakland (76-46) and Sacramento (95½-26½) were the Rams' sixth and seventh consecutive triumphs of the year, giving them the Big Eight team track championship for the third time in four years.

Saturday's attraction will feature individual performers. First place winners become conference champs and the top four in each of 14 events will advance to the Northern California junior college championships May 20.

Coach Lou Vasquez has good reason to expect the same success Saturday that has highlighted the season thus far. In all but one event—the 440-yard dash—he has men ranked with the best in Northern California.

Herman McKee (100-yard dash); Tony Ferrigno, Tom Jennings and Bill Hotchkiss (880 yards); Frank James and Roger Ritchey (mile and 2-mile); Alex Darnes (discus); Ray Hearne (high and broad jump); Elvin Bridges (broad jump), plus Bill Miles and Bob Ely (pole vault) rate with the best in contention for first place awards.

Although San Mateo's Ralph Lee is a heavy favorite in the half mile, any member of City College's trio stands a good chance to break the college 880-yard record of 1:57.2.

Ferrigno has a best time of 1:57.5, Jennings is 1:58.2 and Hotchkiss is 1:58.4 this year in the only event that the college does not have a better-than-average all-time mark.

City College's outstanding depth, which played such a big part in the dual meet victories, is again expected to be a dominant factor. Coach Vasquez looks for the locals once again to score high in team totals, even though they will be incidental to individual competition.

Oakland, by coming within 30 points of the locals, furnished the Rams with their toughest competition of the league dual season. McKee proved the top all-around star of the day by showing a second place in the 100, 220, discus and a third in the broad jump.

City College swept the 880 and broad jump, and finished at least second in all other events.

Vasquez plans to enter the following men in the Big Eight Championships:

Mile: Frank James, Roger Ritchey, Jim Nigra.

440: Bob Shenk, Tom Jennings

100: Herman McKee, Wade Pittman, Carlin Vance, Offiebb Carr, Bob Taylor.

120 high hurdles: Bob Hector, Tom Pigree, Jim Nichols, John Kelley.

880: Tony Ferrigno, Bill Hotchkiss, Jennings, Ritchey, Jeff Graff, Nigra.

220: Pittman, McKee, Vance, Shenk

2-mile: James, Jose Valle, Ritchey, John Weidmaer, Graff

220 low hurdles: Taylor, Pigree, Nichols, John Pangburn, Hector

Mile relay: Hector, Jennings, Shenk, Hotchkiss.

Shot-put: Alex Darnes, Bill Holman, McKee, Bob Kurish.

High jump: Ray Hearne, El Bridges, Kelley, Carr.

Broad jump: Hearne, Bridges, McKee, Carr, Kelley, Pigree.

Pole vault: Bob Ely, Bill Miles, Ray Bautista, Jack Bokin.

Discus: Darnes, Shenk, McKee, Pigree.

Rams Prepare For Conference Tennis Championships

By Ivan Temes

Having closed their conference season with matches against Oakland and Santa Rosa, the Ram netters go for bigger stakes this Friday and Saturday at the Big Eight championships in Santa Rosa.

With their league mark marred by a single loss to powerful Modesto, Coach Roy Diederichsen's defending champions were heavy favorites to knock off Oakland Monday.

By so defeating Oakland, they would finish in second place in the Big Eight.

In a tuneup for their final contests, the local racketeers last week had a comparatively easy time disposing of Santa Clara 7-2 in a non-league encounter.

Top man Jack Bracken copped his match 6-2, 7-5, while Rich Murray took a 7-5, 6-2 verdict. Southpaw Randy Chun, John Welles and Paul Barth also won their matches in straight sets, the sole Red and White singles casualty being Tom Strauss.

Bracken and Chun teamed for a 6-4, 6-3 doubles decision while the duo of Barth and Welles had to come from behind to finish on top 1-6, 6-4, 6-3. Strauss again had tough luck, he and his partner dropping their doubles match.

At the upcoming Big Eight meet each college is permitted to enter four singles contestants and two doubles combinations with the quarter-finalists qualifying for the Northern championships at Golden Gate Park the following weekend.

Mentor Diederichsen believes that, "With a little luck in the draw all of our entrants could conceivably make it into the final round of eight."

Bracken, Chun, Murray and Welles or Barth will go to the tournament.

The man to be reckoned with is the Pirates' Reider Getz, former Canadian Junior Davis Cupper, whom Diederichsen rates the "league's best in at least five years." Also high in the running should be tall Tom Muench, defending league singles and doubles titlist.

Not expecting any real opposition other than that provided by Irv Swain's Modesto crew, Diederichsen plans on entering Bracken-Chun in one doubles match along with Murray, and either Welles or Barth in the other.

AMS Cagers Face Final Hurdle On Way To CAB Intra Title Tonight

A win tonight by the Associated Men Students over The Guardsman, 8:30 p.m. in the women's gymnasium, will give them the intramural basketball title in the Club Activities Board division.

The AMS supports an undefeated season as it enters its final game. At 7:30 p.m. the Recreation Association battles the Filipino Club in the men's gymnasium and the Newman Club hopes to down Hillel in the women's gymnasium at the same time.

Opposite the AMS-Guardsman contest, the Hawaiian Club will try to upset a powerful Hotel & Restaurant club in the men's gymnasium.

Last night the Inter-Fraternity Council League completed its round-robin as the Untouchables, Alpha Phi Epsilon and Alpha Kappa Rho battled for the first spot.

In last week's games, AMS barely slipped by the Filipino Club 45-43, and The Guardsman dropped another to Hillel, even though Larry Stewart sank 34 points for the losers.

The other league saw the top three teams win their contests, making a tight race for the IFC league championship.

The bowling league again met at Westlake Bowl last night as the Hawaiian Club and the H&R tried to break their first place tie.

The highest overall average belongs to Tim Dunn, who supports a 155. Herb Cockett has the highest game (222), and Bob Diacri has the highest three-game series (512).

Loretta Ching has the highest average for a woman with a 119. In the handicap bracket, Herb Cockett leads with a 236 and Kathie Dunn leads the women with a 213.

Bowling standings through last week:

Team	W	L	Team	W	L
Hawaiian Club	10	5	Recreation Assn.	8	8
Hotel & Rest.	10	5	Losers	3	13
Alley Dasters	7	8

Last week's basketball standings:

Club Activities Board		Inter-Fraternity Council
Team	W	L	Team	W	L
AMS	8	0	Alpha Phi Epsilon	2	1
Hawaiian Club	5	1	Alpha Kappa Rho	2	1
Hotel & Rest.	5	1	Untouchables	2	1
Newman Club	2	4	Eta Phi Sigma	0	2
Recreation Assn.	2	4	Gam. Phi Epsilon	0	2
Filipino Club	2	4	Beta Tau	0	2
Hillel	2	4	Phi Beta Delta	1	0
Guardsmae	0	8	Tau Chi Sigma	0	1

Forum Editorial Staff Heads For May Publication

Under the supervision of its newly elected editor, Mary Anne Kaylor, Forum, with Catherine Connolly as adviser, is nearing completion of one of its final tasks prior to publication, the selection of material.

The cover that will be used for this year's edition has been selected, Miss Kaylor said. It is the work of Bill Morrison, who was graduated last June.

Forum is to be published and ready for distribution by May 29, when 1000 copies will be printed and available to students on a first-come first-served basis.

The magazine will be issued either on presentation of an Associated Student card or to non-members for the price of 50 cents.

Miss Kaylor, who was graduated from Capucino, is an English major in her sophomore year. This is her first semester with Forum.

Other Forum staff members are the assistant editor, Marilyn McDonald, and staff members Dan Sands, Warren Stone, George Palmer and Stephen Lowe.

Book Resale Urged At Semester's End

All students wishing to sell their books back to the Ramporium were advised last week by Dick Main, store manager, to do so at the end, not the beginning of the semester.

This advice is given, he said, because the Ramporium orders all books needed for the coming semester at the end of each semester. Hence, when students try to sell back books at the start of the semester there is no need for them.

The average price paid for used books, according to Main, is half the price the student paid for the book.

No book will be repurchased that is very badly underlined or is in extremely poor condition, he said.

Main added that books that have been dropped from use here are at times brought by the Ramporium if it is possible to sell them back to their distributors.

He added that a blue-book method is used in repurchasing books much in the same way one is used in other businesses, so the price paid for them may vary.

Ah, Wilderness!

Humor Prevails In New Show

By Anna Papagni

Even though there were some obvious flaws in the opening performance of 'Ah, Wilderness!' in the new theater, the show had a warmth and humor that delighted the audience. The comedy will continue to run this weekend, May 5, 6, and May 12 and 13 at 8 p.m.

Martha Ross and Fred Fisher gave fine performances as the mother and father, respectively, as did Randy Jones and Leah Pashoian also. Terry Sutherlin as the son Richard seemed occasionally too intense, but relaxed enough to ad lib one of the funniest lines in the play.

The sets were excellent. Fringed lamp shades and striped wallpaper certainly brought back memories to some of the audience.

However, considering that it takes 30 seconds for the Winch system to lower a set, scene changes were amazingly slow. Someone may have pressed the wrong button.

Another fault in the presentation was that the performers could not always be heard clearly, especially in the beginning of the play. Michael Griffin, drama director, remarked to the cast, "You gave a fine performance. Why did you keep it a secret from the audience?"

Tickets can be purchased at the student bank for $1, but they are free for Associated Student cardholders. Reservations can be made by calling JU 7-7277.

AS Card Sales Pass Semester Goal By 53

Final figures show that this year's Associated Student card sale efforts have topped the 2000 mark this spring by 53 cards.

The job isn't over yet, though, according to Larry Levin, card sales chairman, who plans to emphasize card sales before the coming Men's Smoker and Sophomore Ball.

Any student with ability in the field of art and an interest in designing the face of the next semester's AS card may submit his ideas to the art department for approval in S-349, Levin said.

Members of the card sales staff are presently undertaking a complete revision of the list of discounts offered on the back of the card. They plan to weed out the undesirable ones, and add new, more valuables ones in the hope that more cards will sell in the future.

Student Union Makes Debut

Bungalow 4 Lounge Operates Under Student Supervision

Cutting the tape at 10:17 a.m. on April 24, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of educational management here, officially opened the new student union and lounge in bungalow 4.

Grant Fahs, chairman of the committee that helped form the student union operation this semester, stated that the first few days the bungalow was open were very inspiring because, as he had hoped, the students conducted themselves in an orderly manner.

As of now, he does not see need for the erection of signs or the drafting of any definite rules for operation of the lounge.

Students are requested, though, to put their refuse in the wastebaskets, empty their ashtrays and return coke bottles to the appropriate place. Card playing, or games of checkers and chess, is prohibited by city law, Fahs explained.

A large 8 by 1 sign is due to be put up outside the union this week.

There is a possibility of a radio hookup with the college's station, KCSF, that will provide continuous, uninterrupted music at all times.

In any event, a radio will be installed this week.

The union-lounge can comfortably accommodate 50 students, Fahs added.

All Club Activities Board members and Student Council representatives are in charge of keeping order in the bungalow during its open hours, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. each weekday.

Any registered student at the college is welcome to enter the room, purchase goods from the various vending machines, converse with friends, loaf, and participate in any organized activity.

Entertainment is welcome in the lounge, Fahs said, but entertainers should first consult with him in the AS office, S-140, for approval.

Within the next week, sandwiches from the cafeteria will be sold in the bungalow, too, Fahs revealed.

"With the full co-operation of the students, the union-lounge has great potential for the future," Fahs stated.

Business Grad Recruitment Day Slated For May

Approximately 100 June graduates of business administration here are currently working closely with their respective field advisers toward the annual business recruitment day Wednesday, May 17, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, stated recently.

On this day the prospective graduates have an opportunity to "shop" for career jobs.

Procurement and recruitment teams from business, industry and government agencies will interview students.

Public utilities, retail merchandising, insurance, finance, airlines, transportation, maufacturing and lithography are among the long list of careers represented, Amori revealed.

The day's program will start at 9 a.m. in the faculty dining room with the traditional breakfast, at which the teams will be briefed on the details of the operation.

Personal interviews of about 20 minutes duration each will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Cloud Hall.

Dean of Instruction Louis Batmale leads the business department advisers in their processing of the graduates from the 15 different training programs, while Amori is the coordinator of the project for both on-campus and off-campus activities.

Ten Scholarships Available To Hotel, Restaurant Students Here

Provided that they have the key that fits the lock, scholarship hopefuls in the hotel and restaurant department will find the door of opportunity has well-oiled hinges.

There is a total of ten scholarships available to them, ranging from $100 to $300. The largest is a Harvey M. Toy Special Scholarship worth $300 to the receiver.

Eight $250 scholarships are obtainable including three Harvey M. Toy Class Scholarships and one Harvey M. Toy Chef Scholarship, which are available to students majoring in food preparation.

The three class awards are to be divided among students from the second, third and fourth semesters, although first semester students may apply.

Other scholarships in this class are the T. Kent Morris Memorial General Foods Scholarship, the Borden's Dairy Delivery Scholarship, the Western Hotels Scholarship and the Hilda L. Watson (Pick Hotel Corporation) Scholarship.

The sole $100 grant is the Food Service Executives Association, San Francisco Branch Scholarship.

Scholastic achievement, student leadership, performance in industry and college, and personal need are used as the basis of judging, although personal need will not be a factor in the final determination.

Members of the H&R Foundation Scholarship Committee are Louis Batmale, chairman; President Louis G. Conlan; Lawrence B. Wong, secretary; John P. Gifford, Wendell E. Muntz, Hilda L. Gifford and Carl D. Rutledge.

Travelogue Of Oregon Set For C-Hour Film

This Fridays' College Hour film presentation in S-136 will be Journey To The Center Of The Earth," a travelogue showing the industry, farms and scenic beauties of Oregon.

According to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor here, the film will cover such famous sites at the Columbia River, Crater Lake and the Grand Coulee Dam. The annual Rose Festival, held in Portland, will also be shown in the film.

Cafe Increases Fountain Service Next Semester

To extend the food service at Smith Hall, the fountain will serve hamburgers, hotdogs and French fries when additional equipment arrives in the Fall, according to cafeteria manager John Dunn.

Keeping of the cafeteria open past 1:15 p.m. this spring, as previously suggested, is not possible because there has not been sufficient income taken in to cover the wages, Dunn explained.

"The cafeteria management would need to be assured that a steady number of students would patronize it, if hours were to be extended with no increase in prices," Dunn explained.

Club Cavalcade

Carmel To Be Setting Of IRC Picnic, Games

By Jeri Tarantino

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA will be the setting for the annual International Relations Club picnic to be held this Saturday. This large group of foreign students will engage in festivities at the beach for the full day.

There will be games for those who do not wish to swim, and this affair is highly anticipated, as it is an outing which has always proved to be successful.

Club members will reach their destination in cars, and each member is asked to invite a friend to join him on this picnic.

At a meeting of the Retail Floristry Club held on April 11, the following officers were elected: Karen Giovo, president; Arlene Gunn, secretary, and Eldon Clevenger, treasurer.

Delta Psi has welcomed six new pledges to its sorority. They are Janus Crociani, Vicki Grant, Linda Mateo, Bonnie Singer, Sue Sivyer and Judy Soss.

Carolyn Brunner, Eileen Fitzmaurice, Margaret Graham and Judy Monteleone are the new members of Zeta Chi.

Joan Comerford has announced that seven pledges are members of Phi Beta Rho. They are Andra Bianco, Marlene Cortopassi, Pam Klein, Pat Lapadura, Anne Melanephy, Jackie Rommel and Rosalie Weiner.

Gamma Kappa Beta has officially added Janice Doudiet to the sorority.

New pledges for Kappa Phi sorority are Donna Felta, Carol Ferro, Ingrid Grunewald, Betty Mikulas, Judy Stern, Claudia Vasquez, Joan Young and Nancy Zeidler.

As illustrated in past semesters, the spring pledge class is usually smaller than the fall class.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 o'clock in The Guardsman office, S-304.

Usher Opportunities Still Available For Symphony Concerts

Ushering passes are still available to all students interested in the San Francisco Symphony, which will close its 1960-61 season with a final concert Friday, May 26, according to Mary Goiding, dean of women here.

Six ushers, either men or women, are needed for each performance, she said, and students can pick up their passes in S-150 during the week of each event.

Women are expected to wear street length black dresses. No colors are acceptable. Men should wear dark, non-sport suits, white shirts and a necktie.

Coming up soon as part of the symphony series will be programs by Francis Whang, pianist, and Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, guest conductor. Berlioz's Damnation Of Faust will close the season.

Later this month, passes will be available for the Russian Ballet and the spring opera series.

Dean Golding emphasized, "It is a privilege for college students to help as ushers at these events."

The lightning rod was invented in 1752.

Soph Ball King, Queen Applications To Be Distributed Soon For June Fest

Applications for contestants who wish to reign as King and Queen at the Sophomore Ball, to be held Saturday, June 3, will be distributed to all clubs, sororities and fraternities on campus the end of this week or the beginning of next week.

According to George Woo, Sophomore Class president, each club may have as many competitors as they wish to vie for the title.

During the week before the Soph Ball, members of the Associated Students will choose the royal couple from these entries by using the penny-a-vote method as in the past. Candidates receiving the most pennies will be the winners.

The containers in which students may drop their coins will probably be placed in Smith Hall, near the silver pole in Science Hall and in the arts building. Also, a chart will be posted showing the progress of the voting, Woo said.

All this activity leads up to one of the biggest highlights of the dance, he added, the crowning of the Sophomore King and Queen.

As in previous semesters, all money collected in the voting will go toward the Sophomore Class scholarships.

The ball, one of the last events of the semester, will be held in the Gold Room of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, located on Market at New Montgomery Street.

At the event, students will be dancing to the music of Sal Vance's orchestra from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Woo described appropriate dress as being cocktail dresses for the women and dark suits for the men.

Admission to the dance will most likely be by the same method used for the Frosh Ball. All couples must have a bid which will be issued to AS members on a first-come first-served basis and will admit them at no further cost, Woo said.

Horticulturists Plan Corsage Sale Before Next Sophomore Ball

A group of ornamental horticulture students, headed by Stanford Wheeler, will sell corsages here for the Sophomore Ball, which will be held Saturday, June 3, at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel.

Samples of the corsages will be displayed in the Science Hall information booth during the week preceding the ball.

A ballot box will be utilized so that students will have the opportunity to submit their orders.

The booth will be open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the following week so that students can pay for the flowers.

According to Maryhope Jacks, ornamental horticulture instructor, students will be obtaining the corsages at discount prices.

The tentative list of corsages which will be available is as follows: one large purple orchid or two cymbidum orchids of medium size or two begonias. Prices are expected to range from $1.25 to $3.00.

There have been three vice presidents named Johnson and none of them is related.

Summer Session Registration Set

Offering some 50 different groups in 27 courses, this year's summer session will be conducted between June 26 and August 4, and registration starts next month, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced recently.

Miss Learnard said that all those planning to attend should see their counselors now to arrange their program. Subsequently they are expected to report to her office between May 15 and June 8 to fill out a registration book.

Confirmation of registration is to be made by all students on June 22, prior to start of instruction.

Miss Learnard warned that between 1400 and 1500 students will be admitted and when that quota is attained, students will be put on a waiting list. However, she stresses, there are very few vacant spots.

Open to students here and June graduates of San Francisco high schools, classes will be offered in business, English, mathematics, physical education, psychology, Spanish and some other subjects.

A limit of six units plus physical education will be the maximum any student will be allowed to carry, Miss Learnard said, because classes meet daily.

Grad Takes Hales Post

Hale's Junior Shop of San Francisco last week announced the appointment of Irene Goleski, former merchandising major here, to the position of buyer.

Miss Goleski was graduated in June of 1959 and became head of Hale's stock department and manager of their Mission Street Junior Shop.

CJCSGA Delegates Head For Disneyland

Hanks Leads Group Of Five To Confab On Campus Problems

By Dick Dragavon

Discussion of five major campus topics will be the main task of five delegates from this college tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, at the semi-annual convention of the California Junior College Student Government Association at the Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim, Charles Hanks, who will head the group, announced this week.

The delegates and the workshops which they will attend are Associated Student President Hanks, student government; Vice President Donna O'Leary, current problems; Gary Wilkening, securing status for two-year colleges; Georgene Peterson, judicial, and Pat Crone, campus organizations.

Also attending the convention will be Joe Egri, state information chairman, and Sherm Elworthy, student government adviser here.

The convention will be attended by delegates from 65 colleges from all over California and one, Phoenix Junior College, from Arizona.

According to the program, students will spend most of their time during the day in the workshops, except on Thursday evening when a banquet and a dance are scheduled.

WatchWord

Midnight Oil Can't Lubricate Student Brain

By Paul Plansky

Second midterms are already over, and finals often have a tendency to creep up on the sleeping student unexpectedly and abruptly. A warning from WatchWord is: Don't let the following episode become your epitaph.

• • •

A YELLOWED, pinholed, weather-beaten window shade reflects faint shadows of dancing candlelight. It is the coldest night imaginable. The candle's wick burns feebly in the flickering, futile flame.

Within the gloomy confines of his book-laden room, a physicolly fidgeting and mentally fatigued student snuggles his shivering body closer to the fluttering light, a light growing dim. The candle has melted to a mere stump. It is after midnight.

At ten minutes after eight this morning the student has an appointment in his college lecture hall, room 272. At that time he will be given his final examination in American History.

His wristwatch registers 1:15. The fight goes on—against precious time and against peaceful sleep. He replaces the dying candle with a new one and turns the page: 637; then he doublechecks the number of pages in his history book again: 850.

Each chapter becomes a challenge; each chapter seems like a whole volume. The procrastinator pushes on, page after page; the hours slowly disintegrate, keeping pace with the vanishing wick.

Eventually the sleepy student is scanning a blurry printed mass instead of pondering precise phrases of thought.

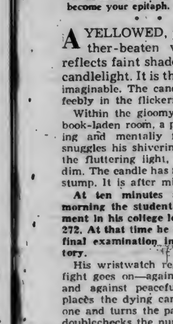
Burning the midnight candle at both ends has caught up with the faltering collegian—at 5:15 he collapses.

Outside this dreary domain a sudden, relieving rainfall washes out the last flame of hope—drowsy, drowning, dreaming . . .

"Facts, names, dates, more facts, these I must remember; get it straight, get it right, remember, remember!"

The "red scare," the Russian bear, or was it the red bear and the Russian scare? Let me see, facts, facts . . . Dred Scott Dipiomacy . . . dollar decision . . . the Mason-Nixon line . . . the free South . . . solid sliver . . . Walter Reed . . . Boss Tweed . . . General Mead . . .

Populist folly . . . Seward's Party . . . Speak softly and carry a big carpetbag . . . Manila's Destiny . . . Dewey's Manifesto . . . victory . . . veto . . . vote . . . Vicksburg . . . vice president . . . precedent . . . peace . . . War!!! . . .



Lone Grangers . . . Gold Crash of 1929 . . . Stock Market Rush of 1840 . . . Congressive Party . . . Russian Reconstruction . . . J. F. of L. . . . the Lusitania Purchase . . .

Think, think, think; get the facts straight . . . Repealcrat . . . Tippecanoe and T.R. Too . . .

The nightmarish dream came to an abrupt end when the perpiexed student awoke at 10:30, two and a half hours after his final examination hour. It was just as well; he didn't have a chance.

Next semester he'll have to battle through the Civil War again. Although the unstable student needs the money, he won't sell his book for another six months.

Today's Watchword: Preparation.

HEADING SOUTH is Charlie Hanks, AS president and head of the college's delegation to the CJCSGA convention.

Generally a speaker is scheduled to address the dinner, Elworthy said, but no advance notice was given as to who would speak to the student leaders this semester.

A visit to Disneyland is also on the program for the visiting delegations on Friday afternoon and evening after the regional meetings are held, and this outing will include a buffet dinner.

After the installation luncheon on Saturday, at which the officers for the coming semester are installed, the group will fly back to San Francisco.

"It was a most difficult job choosing the delegates," Elworthy said, "because we had so many qualified people. As many as four or five students were considered for each spot."

Alternate delegates are Bob Perkins and Paul Snowberg.

H&R Students Host Hotelmen Monday

Elaborate plans are being made by the hotel and restaurant department here in preparation for the annual California Northern Hotel Association dinner next Monday in Smith Hall, according to Tom Craighead, president of the H&R Society.

This affair, Craighead reported, "is the biggest event of the year" for H&R. It is an annual event in gratitude for the many benefits given by the association to the college.

The dinner will give H&R's June graduates an opportunity to demonstrate what they have learned.

Craighead revealed that the planning, catering and cooking will be done solely by students under the direction of Ralph Ladd, student general manager in charge of the festivities.

Following the meal the CNHA members will conduct a short meeting and then turn the program over to Craighead who will introduce two speakers, Owen McClure and Don Dreyer. Both Dreyer and McClure are fourth semester H&R students.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1961 NUMBER 9

Basement Automat Periled

Removal Of Machines Hangs On Student Neatness, Speed

Rumors that the vending machines in the basement of Science Hall were to be removed neared actuality last week when Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of education management here, put the choice directly up to the students—shape up or do without.

So prevalent were the rumors that petitions have been circulating requesting that the machines not be moved.

OSCAR E. ANDERSON, who made it clear to students that it is their responsibility if they want to keep vending machines in Science Hall. —Photo by Ron Bennett.

Heavy Schedule Requires Double C-Hour This Week

By Richard Shields

In an almost unprecedented move, Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman revealed administration consent recently to a second double College Hour this semester, to be held this Friday, May 12.

Hillsman said that James Schon, Faculty Association president, had obtained permission from college President Louis G. Conlan for the extra time because association business on hand could not be taken care of in the time allowed for a normal College Hour meeting.

The sudden decision of President Conlan will cause cancellation of the 10 o'clock class and has presented student leaders with a problem of activities for the added free hour.

The practice of having College Hours, and especially double College Hours rests with administration policy, and in the past they have always been reserved for major student activities.

Because of an oversized agenda at their meeting, instructors will stave on through the 10 o'clock class period while students can crowd the cafeteria, upset the imagined studious decorum at the library, or do their homework on the hillside at the south end of Science Hall.

In most cases instructors dislike having classes interrupted or cut short; however, "into each life some rain must fall," and by their own hand faculty members will be drenched this Friday.

At the same time, most students claim they don't mind some extra time free from classes and do not seriously question the cause, whether it is the customary blood drive once a semester or such rare occasions as a faculty meeting.

Also on the College Hour agenda, is the film series in S-136.

RALPH HILLSMAN, dean of men here, who announced a surprise double College Hour, the second this semester.

The main reason for the possible removal, Anderson said, is the crush of students standing near the machines or sitting on the stairs, thus preventing faculty and other students from reaching classes located in nearby areas.

If the present conditions continue and messy, thoughtless students keep dropping their empty plastic containers and their cigarettes on the floor, Anderson declared that all but the cigarette machine and the coffee dispenser would be moved to the arts building.

"The students are on trial," Anderson stated. "As it is now, people seeing the area for the first time consider it an eye-sore."

The situation would be eased, according to Anderson, if after the students get their coffee or soft drinks they would refrain from sitting on the steps leading up to the first floor or just standing in front of the machines exchanging gossip with their friends.

"One reason I encouraged the opening of the new student union was to relieve the crush in Science Hall," Anderson explained. "The students who have the time now have a place to talk with their friends and enjoy soft drinks at the same time."

The new student union occupies bungalow 4, the southern-most bungalow, formerly used by the college choral groups.

Anderson recommended that all students, when next in the vending machine area, take a good look and try to see the picture as a visitor might see it.

"I hope that if students see themselves as others see them, they will respond as adult college students," but Anderson re-emphasized that the location of the vending machines is strictly up to the students.

Bosses Interview Grads Next Week

One hundred graduates of the business department's vocational programs offered here will take part in the sixth annual Business Graduate Recruitment Day next Wednesday, May 17, Placement Director Joseph A. Amori announced today.

Initiated as a campus-wide project in 1956 by the placement office here, the recruitment day has become traditional and the accepted procedure in recruitment drives for skilled and competent college personnel.

Twenty-five leading San Francisco Bay Area employers from business, industry and government will assemble to interview the June graduates.

Women graduates dominate this semester's group of hopefuls with a total of 65. The largest single group is that of secretaries where there are 34 applicants.

Employers will have at their disposal a personnel folder for each applicant, which will include a personal data sheet and five rating sheets.

Following breakfast in the faculty dining room at 8 a.m., the recruitment teams will commence with student interviews in Cloud Hall.

Grant Takes Riches

$250 Scholarship Goes To H&R Student; College Wins Citation

By Raul Ortega

If the South rises again startled historians may find Uiysses Grant decked out in Confederate gray rather than Union blue. While textbooks may list Grant's birthplace as Point Pleasant, Ohio, it is in fact Leaksville, North Carolina.

Scoffers and non-believers have only to visit the hotel and restaurant department to talk to the source of this invaluable information—Ulysses Grant himself.

A food preparation major and not the 18th American president, Grant has recently received much attention on two counts.

First, quite obviously, from his name. Especially since this is the centennial of the Civil War which lifted the war general to fame, Grant, the modern one, received mention in one of the local dailies in this connection.

The given name of Ulysses is in keeping with a family tradition. It started when his grandfather, although no relation, was named for General Grant. After that came Ulysses Victor Grant and now Ulysses Wayne Grant.

More important is the second source of notice, which Grant received on his own merit. He is an honor student.

According to Lawrence B. Wong of the H&R faculty, Grant was selected by the department to receive an award of $250 from the National Association of Hotel and Restaurant Meat Purveyors.

Along with the award came an important citation for the college from the NAHRMP. It recognized the H&R department for doing an outstanding job in training students for the meat packing industry.

This much coveted distinction was bestowed to only one other West Coast college. The administration may now boast of receiving a national commendation placing it on a level with Cornell and Michigan State, two of the few colleges granted such an award.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 9 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1961 | Page 2

Let's Have Commencement Begin At Home—In Stadium

AT THE CONCLUSION of last week's Student Council meeting, Sherman Elworthy, adviser to the group, brought up the idea of council forming a committee to investigate the possibilities of having the fast-approaching commencement ceremonies held in the college's stadium.

No action was taken, for the meeting was ended as the bell for afternoon classes rang. We hope, however, that council members will not let the matter drop and we believe that they might do well to look into the plan.

The idea of holding this year's commencement in the new stadium was advocated last year by The Guardsman when a similar plan for the 1960 commencement had to be dropped because construction had not yet been completed. This year, however, no such obstacle stands in the way. The stadium is ready and so, we hope, are the June graduates.

For the past several years it has been the practice to hold the college's commencement program in the auditorium of Riordan High School. The Guardsman believes, though, that most graduates would prefer overwhelmingly to be graduated from the college rather than from another school's auditorium.

This will be the 25th annual commencement, and we can think of no more fitting place for June graduates to receive their degrees than from the college's own stadium in afternoon ceremonies, which are traditional in most colleges, instead of an evening program.

There seems to be no obstacle in the way of holding the June commencement exercises in the stadium. Some will point out the ever-present weather factor, but June usually presents San Francisco with acceptable weather conditions. As a safeguard plans could be arranged so that in case of adverse weather conditions, the commence ceremonies could be shifted to Riordan auditorium.

Thus, unlike Cape Canaveral, the entire project would not have to be postponed or called off, but would merely require a change in the launching site. Council, let's blast off on this idea and bring our commencement exercises back where they belong—in orbit about the college.

Empty Seats—Ah, Wilderness!

AH, WILDERNESS! is not only the name of the drama department's current production, but is also a pretty accurate description of the size of the audiences that have been turning out to view it.

Formerly the department's productions were given in the little theater in Science Hall, a theater that had a capacity of fewer than a hundred. The newly constructed theater seats several hundred, and it seems disappointing that the crowds that have greeted Ah, Wilderness! would have had a hard time filling the old theater.

Some sort of remedy is needed. Perhaps the drama department should, considering the larger audiences they can accommodate, schedule a single performance only, or perhaps even one evening performance and a matinee for those who find it difficult to attend night performances.

The quality of the department's productions is unquestionable and should attract larger audiences. A change in the current production schedule might be the best way to end the current spectator famine and "fatten up" future audiences.

Foresight

Irish Charm, Satire Dominate 'Hostage'

By Richard Shields

A BIT of Irish charm and the brilliant satire of Brendan Behan are combined in The Hostage, now playing at the Geary, to present one of the most enjoyable comedies to appear recently in San Francisco.

The play is a delightful parody of many of the prudish aspects of society and takes a well aimed dig at nearly every prejudice known to man, or, at least, to a man like Behan.

The author, apparently concerned about the audience's appreciation of his work, appeared on stage at unexpected moments during the play to make remarks and participate in the fun.

And the performance is exactly that—fun in its most riotous and outrageous forms.

The audience was repeatedly involved in the act by the frolicsome performers and appeared to enjoy the role almost as much as the cast.

Pat is an old man who reminisces about the Irish rebellion and directs witty remarks to the audience; his counterpart is Monsewer, a fastidious old gentleman who maintains an impervious but hilarious calm before his cavorting companions.

Leslie, who is the hostage, and Teresa, a tavern girl, somehow manage to fall in love amidst the gaiety and bring a touching gravity into the story.

There is a social worker who spouts religiosity when she isn't trying to get Leslie alone, an American Negro boxer who sports a sign proclaiming "Keep Ireland Black," and an old lady who spends most of her time peering secretively from behind a potted plant.

The play abounds with a multitude of delightful songs which are presented whenever anyone feels like singing. An example, and one which typifies the whole play, ends with "Never throw stones at your mother. Throw bricks at your father instead."

One of the most enjoyable things about the play is the way it is revised and added to before playing at a particular locale. In that way humor and interest in the area where the play is appearing is added.

The actors have a "warm-up" conference before each performance to discuss topics of local importance and work them into the repartee.

After it is all over, one realizes that it was as much a party as anything else, and it is rather dull to have to go out into the street again and face ordinary people.

The Way It Was Way Out West

Reservoir Was Once A Fountain Of Knowledge

Many a tale has been told of the Old West.

When the wind sweeps toward Balboa Park from Phelan Avenue at least 364 days of the year, few would find it possible to believe that just seven years ago a major center of campus life was west and windless.

That center is now a reservoir, the south reservoir to be exact, where there is no parking, no activity, no nothing—unless it is turned into an emergency practice "field" for baseball, track or, depending on the amount of precipitation and participation, swimming.

Time was, however, from 1946 to 1954, when the present reservoir was lovingly called the West Campus, a level, out-of-the-wind area with 15 buildings, a 150-car parking site and the home of student government, counseling, and such departments as journalism, photography, music, art, ceramics, hotel and restaurant—and veterans.

Veterans, of course, were the only ones who called it home because they lived and studied there 24 hours of the day in dormitories and classrooms.

When World War II broke out, the land across from the campus was claimed by the Navy and turned into a WAVE training center.

Fifteen buildings were constructed including a gymnasium, a cafeteria, administration buildings and dormitories.

After the war ended the Navy retained its lease to the land but permitted the college to use its 15 building center to accommodate the returning war veterans who more than doubled the 1945 enrollment.

Veterans were housed in the dormitories for the price of $15 per person per month. One dormitory, that assigned to married veterans and their wives, was immediately dubbed The Waldorf, probably because some of the wives dressed the windows with curtains.

The eternal problems then as now were parking space and a lounge for a between-class respite.

Duffy's Tavern was the answer to the latter, named for Tom Duffy who extended the H&R service to a fountain which, like the fountain today, was not nearly large enough for the student body.

In 1954, with the completion of Cloud Hall, the move back to college property and the windswept hill ended an era of college history and the way it was out west.

THIS SCENE of the west campus, taken when there was still a part of the college where students could escape from the wind, has been replaced by the reservoirs across Phelan Avenue from Science Hall. Once a WAVE training center, it was converted for college use after the war.

Parade Of Proteins

Anti-Kwashiorkor Factors On Display In Science Hall

In a repeat performance of a last semester display, Brigitta Beetz, life science instructor here, will continue her series of exhibits on the third floor of Science Hall with one featuring 10-gram portions of proteins next Monday, May 15.

This display, according to Mrs. Beetz, will serve a dual purpose. First, it will make students aware of problems in food and nutrition around the world through the use of pictures and articles dealing with the subject in other countries.

Second, it will give students a visual picture with which to measure the minimum daily requirements of animal and vegetable proteins.

Kwashiorkor, which is most prevalent in Africa, Asia and South America, is the name of the disease caused by protein deficiencies in the diet.

The use of fruits and vegetables as well as meat in the display will show the differences in nutritional value of animal and vegetable proteins.

In scoring an archer's round, nine points are given for a hit in the red circle; seven for a red; five for a blue; three for a black, one for a white, and none for a miss.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

PEOPLE are just as predictable as anyone else. Or as unpredictable. The other day one fellow was trying to make the point that blondes on this campus always travel in pairs and you never see a blonde without another one.

As the bell rang his buddy pointed out a blonde and a brunette walking across the courtyard together. Resigned to defeat and to attending his next class, the hairwatcher left his friend and started into Science Hall.

He happened to get right behind the two girls as one asked the other for directions on bleaching her hair.

* * *

LEAVE it to somebody to complain no matter what happens.

A Monday ago when the campus, along with the country, was ringing with the news that Willie Mays had added another diamond to his athletic crown, one guy was heard to complain, "Pay him $80,000 a year and the best he can get is 4 for 5."

* * *

ANOTHER two performances and the successful run of Ah, Wilderness! will be history.

Never to be forgotten by some of the east (who were unaware that Open House visitors were invited to watch the play for a few minutes as part of the tour) was their dismay when people kept walking out that big Thursday night.

* * *

NOTHING seems to be scheduled in the way of campus construction for a while. Some folks are wondering when we are really going to be like the big boys downtown and have something in the process being torn down whenever there is nothing new going up.

* * *

SOMETHING new is being planned. The planetarium on the roof of Science Hall.

Since the story first appeared in the paper saying that a "12-sided polyhedron projector" would be used to show the stars, there has been some discussion as to the proper name for the machine.

Best solution heard so far: "Since it's a projector and since it has 12 sides, they should call it a TWELVE-VISION."

* * *

KINDNESS always pays off. Try telling that to the guy who bent to retrieve the dropped purse of a young lady in the cafe the other day.

Before he could straighten up she had spilled her spaghetti on his head and stepped on his hand.

* * *

YESTERDAY was Tuesday. THAT to those who say they will never believe anything they read in this column.

From All Corners Of The World

Booming Enrollment Fulfills Predictions

By Rodney Van Cleve

Keeping well in pace with predictions made by education experts, enrollment here has reached a peak of 6003 daytime students, the record high for any spring semester in the 26-year history of the college.

Although the majority of students here are products of local high schools, there is among the student body an ample sprinkling of newcomers to the city. This cross-section of students provides the college with a cosmopolitan atmosphere so typical of San Francisco.

Of the 3366 here who are graduates of the city's public school system, Washington as usual placed the highest number with 748. Following are Lincoln with 697, Balboa 479, Lowell 381, Galileo 361, Polytechnic 296, Mission 235 and Benjamin Franklin 128.

This constitutes 56 per cent of today's total enrollment.

The present enrollment includes students from 47 other states, District of Columbia, Canal Zone and three U. S. possessions. Hawaii holds first place with 105 students, while Texas claims second with 92.

Students from the remaining states number as follows:

Alabama 18, Arizona 23, Arkansas 15, Colorado 22, Connecticut 9, Delaware 1, Florida 21, Georgia 11, Idaho 15, Illinois 54, Indiana 16, Iowa 27, Kansas 17, Kentucky 3, Louisiana 47, Maine 3, Maryland 11, Massachusetts 33, Mississippi 16, Michigan 45, Minnesota 30, Missouri 18, Montana 10.

Nebraska has 6, Nevada 11, New Hampshire 3, New Jersey 20, New Mexico 14, New York 68, North Carolina 6, North Dakota 7, Ohio 24, Oklahoma 18, Oregon 47, Pennsylvania 42, Rhode Island 2, South Carolina 2, South Dakota 3, Tennessee 9, Utah 30, Virginia 11, Washington 63, West Virginia 6, Wisconsin 31, Wyoming 4.

Fifty-six nations touching every inhabited continent are represented at the college with a total of 445 students.

The Philippines leads with 60 students and is followed by Germany with 37 and Japan with 32.

There are 4024 men among the students, while there are 1979 women enrolled. This is an increase, indeed, over the figures marking the first enrollment in 1935, which listed 907 men and 564 women.

Those students attended classes in the building of the University of California Extension Division and at Galileo high school.

In sharp contrast with today, 87 per cent of that enrollment was composed of graduates of San Francisco high schools.

It was not until 1940 that the college moved to its present site, at which time the enrollment had swelled to a figure of 3227.

Restoration of peace in 1945 saw the enrollment skyrocket with the return of thousands of ex-GI's. This boom ended in 1951 and a steady increase began in 1954 which finally resulted in today's enrollment.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister
Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Maunt, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.
Reporters: Dick Dragavon, Dianne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Maunt, John Muller, Albert Ortovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, David Kleinberg, Raul Ortega, Christopher Wilde.
Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, William Merrill, Herbert Mizia, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Sella, Evelyn Thude, Bob Yeary.

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

IN A SENSE, the conference championships taking place this time of year in tennis, track and golf are like going-away parties.

Santa Rosa is participating in its next to last full season in the Big Eight Conference, having already received permission to join the Golden Valley Conference in Fall, 1962.

The Bear Cubs probably aren't expecting much from the championships. Inability to keep up with league competition was a big reason for Santa Rosa's decision to drop out, and this year their teams are not markedly improved.

In Spring, 1960, they were fourth in baseball, fifth in tennis, sixth in golf and track and did not compete in swimming.

San Jose City College appears the best choice for a replacement. The Jaguars have both the advantage of geographic proximity and a high athletic rating. The State Athletic Committee has already suggested they join the Big Eight.

All that is needed is San Jose's acceptance.

BY REALIGNING the Big Eight teams for the 1962 season this soon, the State Athletic Committee might be putting the cart before the horse.

Already passed last December and scheduled to be in effect this July is a zoning rule which will change the complexion of enrollment.

Until now, students living in an "open" district (not within the boundaries of a two-year college district) have been free to attend any institution they desired.

The effects were particularly apparent in the East Bay—which is largely "open" district—where high school graduates would disperse to any number of colleges throughout the area and even to Southern California.

Now, if they choose to attend a two-year college, "open" district students will be limited to the three nearest ones. For example, most students living in Alameda County will have City College as one of their options.

This is sure to affect the athletic strength of numerous colleges in California. By changing the structure of leagues now, the Athletic Commission is acting on a premise of this year's standings, while the true and lasting effects of zoning will not be demonstrated for two or three years.

But San Jose's entrance into the Big Eight appears a step in the right direction. The Jaguars traditionally dominate the Coast Conference and zoning is not likely to hurt them seriously. The transfer of Santa Rosa and San Jose would help balance both leagues.

After all, nobody likes to lose—or win—all the time.

Rams Host North Sectional Net Tourney

Modesto's Getz-Muench Duo Makes Pirates Big Favorites

By Tom Kennedy

Modesto's combination of Reider Getz and Tom Muench, one of the most feared 1-2 punches in the state, is expected to continue where it left off in Big Eight play and dominate the North Sectional tennis championships this Friday and Saturday at Golden Gate Park.

Getz needed only one more game to defeat Muench for the Big Eight singles crown last Saturday before rain postponed the remainder of the match until Monday. Scores were 6-3, 3-6, 5-2.

Curt Atwood and Bill Davis made it an all-Modesto final in doubles, too, by reaching the championship round opposite Getz and Muench. City College's Jack Bracken won third place in singles and finished third in doubles with his partner Randy Chun.

North Sectional tournament matches will take place all day Friday and Saturday, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Winners of the singles and doubles competition become Northern California junior college titlists.

Eight netters who reach the quarterfinals will advance to the state championships a week later at College of Sequoias.

Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen, who is hosting the affair, expects approximately 24 players to enter the North Sectional. Four of his own players have qualified—Bracken, Chun and Paul Barth in singles and doubles partners Bracken-Chun and Barth-John Welles.

Despite City College's setback in the Big Eight Tournament, its coach optimistically looks for the team to be one of the top three at Golden Gate Park. He puts Modesto, College of Sequoias and the Rams in the top bracket.

COS has three netters in Dave Blankenship, Bill Wright and Mike Crane who could figure in the tournament championships.

As a demonstration of Modesto's dominance of the Big Eight, all but one of the Rams' entries were knocked out of the conference tourney by the Pirates.

Bracken lost to Muench 6-1, 6-2, Barth was overcome by Getz 6-2, 9-7, and Chun was edged by Davis 1-6, 7-5, 7-5, while Bracken-Chun lost to Davis-Atwood 1-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Earlier in the week the Rams clinched second place in the conference standings by downing Oakland 6-1, finishing with six wins, one loss.

This Week In Sports . . .

FRIDAY

- Tennis—Two-day North Sectional Championships at Golden Gate Park.
- Baseball—At Santa Rosa, 3 p.m.

SATURDAY

- Track—West Coast Relays at Fresno.
- Recreation Association—Sports Day at Monterey.

MONDAY

- Golf—State Tournament at Castlewood Country Club, 8 a.m.

TUESDAY

- Track—Northern California Trials at Sacramento.

WEEKEND RESULTS

- Baseball—Rams 14, Hamilton AFB 6. Doubleheader with Sacramento rescheduled.

AMS Cagers Meet Alpha Phi Epsilon In May 25 Smoker

Associated Men Students blasted The Guardsman last week to give it the Club Activities Board championship and the opportunity to meet the Inter-Fraternity Council League champs, Alpha Phi Epsilon, in the AMS Smoker, Thursday, May 25.

AMS swept through its intramural basketball season without a defeat. Last week's victory over The Guardsman, 76-38, was its final triumph of the season.

On the other hand Alpha Phi Epsilon had a little more trouble in its league, dropping one game. The loss created a three-way tie for first place in the first half of the season, but this proved to be their only setback and the other two teams went on to suffer a second defeat.

Outstanding stars in the league were Larry Stewart of The Guardsman, Al Waxman of Hillel and Herbert Briscoe of AMS. These players were the top scorers for their respective teams.

Alpha Phi Epsilon took its top honors with an all-around team effort. Second place Untouchables were led by big Bob Soper, its scoring leader.

Westlake Bowl again was the home ground of the intramural bowling contests last night, according to Les Adams, The Hawaiian Club and Hotel Restaurant tied once again to battle out their close race for first place as high scorers Herb Cockett and Bob Dicrri continue to improve their averages.

Final basketball standings:

Club Activities Board		Inter-Fraternity Council
Team—	W	Team—	W
AMS	7	Alpha Phi Epsilon	7
Hotel & Rest.	6	Alpha Kappa Rho	6
Hawaiian Club	5	Untouchables	5
Filipino Club	3	Zeta Phi Sigma	5
Hillel	2	Beta Tau	4
Newman Club	2	Gam. Phi Ypsilon	3
Recreation Assn.	2	Phi Beta Delta	1
Guardsman	0	Tau Chi Sigma	0

Guardsman SPORTS

Volume 52, No. 9 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1961 | Page 3

Powerful Tracksters Utilize Superior Depth To Retain Big Eight Crown

By Ivan Temes

Utilizing their superior depth to the greatest advantage, the highly-rated City College tracksters picked up valuable points in every event to crush all opposition and successfully defend their title at the Big Eight championships in Sacramento Saturday.

This week mentor Lou Vasquez takes a small contingent to Fresno Saturday for the heralded West Coast Relays where he plans to enter a pair of relay quartets, two-mile and distance medley, plus several individual standouts.

Since the top four in each event at the conference championships qualified for the Northern California competition on May 20, the Rams, who ran up 132½ points, will be represented in every event except the 440 where Bob Shenk barely missed out, finishing fifth.

OFF HE GOES into the wild blue yonder as Bill Miles soars over the pole vault in last Saturday's Big Eight Championships at Sacramento. Miles, one of the college's standout tracksters, vaulted 13'6½" at the Northern California Relays.—Guardsman photo by Frank Dunne.

Led by double-winner Jeff Fishback in the mile and two-mile, San Mateo copped first place in six events while the Rams were held to a pair of wins, but the Bulldogs couldn't supply any appreciable depth.

The same problem plagued Oakland, which rode the unorthodox running style of Overton Williams to victories in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, picking up 15 points in those two events under the 10-8-6-4-2-1 scoring system.

Local standout Ray Hearne set a new broad jump standard of 23-11¾, while Alex Darnes finished on top in the discus, but the workhorse was Herm McKee who placed in four events, second and third in the 100 and 220, respectively, and sixth in the broad jump and discus.

Team scoring: San Francisco 132½, San Mateo 99, Oakland 82, Sacramento 73 5-6, Modesto 27½, Santa Rosa 10, Contra Costa 6, Stockton 1 1-12.

Mile: Fishback (SM), Dennis Davidson (S), James (SF), Bilfrey (SF); 4:25.1.

440: Pardini (SM), McCardell (O), Dan Davidson (S), Crabbe (S); 49.9.

100: Williams (O), McKee (SF), Thomas (O), Patton (O); 10.7.

120 HH: Hamilton (S), Little (SM), Hector (SF), Wilkerson (O); 15.1.

880: Lee (SM), Goodloff (SM), Davidson (S), Ferreira (SF); 1:57.2.

220: Williams (O), McCardell (O), McKee (SF), Thomas (O); 23.8.

220 LH: Little (SM), Souther (SM), Garnes (O), Pagee, (SF); 24.1.

2-Mile: Fishback (SM), James (SF), Davidson (S), Yale (SF); 9:30.9.

Mile relay: San Mateo, San Francisco (Jennings, Hotchkiss, Shenk, Hector), Oakland, Sacramento, 3:24.1.

Shot-put: Hayes (O), Darnes (SF), Parker (M), Willes (SM); 51-10½.

High jump: Hamilton (S), three-way tie for second among Hearne (SF), Bridges (SF), Jefferson (M); 6-2.

Broad jump: Hearne (SF), McGregor (SM), Bribges (SF), Carr (SF); 23-11¾.

Discus: Darnes (SF), Gromer (SM), Parker (M), Hayes (O); 153-1".

Pole vault: Hedman (S), Ely (SF), Lemen (S), Knodes (M); 13-6.

Track Profiles: Trio Of Pole Vaulters

Pole vaulting requires the speed of a sprinter, the strength of a weight thrower and the agility of a gymnast. The college's trio of freshman vaulters have these qualities developed in high degree.

Best of the group is 19-year-old Bill Miles, who has a best season mark of 13 feet 6½ inches.

Miles, who weighs 160 pounds at 5'8", majors in psychology. He enjoys all sports and can high jump 6 feet.

Eighteen-year-old Ray Bautista has vaulted 12 feet this year. The 148-pound electrical engineering major has a hobby of bowling, which keeps him in good shape between seasons.

Jack Botkin is the biggest and heaviest of the trio. He stands 5'11" tall and weighs 180. He, too, is 18. A major in physics, Botkin plans to work in the field of astronomy.

All three of the pole vaulters often make use of the equipment in the college's gymnasium.

Baseballers Look To First Division In Friday's Finale At Santa Rosa

Reaching for a first division finish in a disappointing 1961 season, the Ram diamondmen face the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs this Friday in the league finale.

This last game will be held at Santa Rosa, starting at 3 p.m.

After facing the top team in the league, the Sacramento Panthers, the Bear Cubs should not prove to be a difficult team to overcome.

Last Tuesday the horsehiders faced Stanford's JV's at Palo Alto and, relying on the pitching arm of Mike Moran, overcame the Indians by the score of 8-3.

Moran baffled the Indians for the first seven innings and was backed up by a strong Ram defense.

In the eighth inning Art Groza was called in and immediately allowed the Indians two of their final three runs. Groza has showed tremendous potential on the mound but so far has been unable to face up to expectations.

Frank Gabie is still leading the team with a batting average of .474, followed closely by Ed Preston at .420.

Preston did not have a starting berth at the beginning of the season but through his consistent pinch-hitting worked his way into the first string lineup.

Although he is rather slow getting around the bases he more than makes up for it with his power at the plate.

Last season the Ram diamondmen finished third in the eight-team circuit. It has been close to 10 years since they have seen the cellar.

The first night baseball game in the United States was played on June 2, 1896, in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Baseball Profile

Fine Record Backs Versatile Meroff

One of the most versatile men on the Rams' baseball squad is Don Meroff, who is capable of playing at least three infield positions.

Scrappy Meroff can play shortstop, second base or third base and any outfield position.

Meroff is a graduate of Sacred Heart where he played on the varsity for three years. He batted .335 in his sophomore year, .412 in his junior year and .350 as a senior.

During that senior year he was selected for the All-City team and also made the All-Northern California team.

His sparkling play led Sacred Heart to two consecutive championships in 1959 and 1960. In the 1959 championship game against archrival St. Ignatius he drove in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth to give Sacred Heart a 5-4 victory.

Four Golfers Go To State Tourney

Although he feels a team victory is impossible, Coach Grover Klemmer is confident the freshman-dominated Ram golf team can gain valuable experience, and Gary Mialocq could possibly cop individual honors at the State Tournament at Castlewood Country Club next Monday.

Because of a four-way tie for second place, the Big Eight Conference will be represented by four teams at Castlewood instead of only by three teams, which the conference normally sends.

The Big Eight will send San Mateo, Stockton, Sacramento, Oakland and, of course, San Francisco.

Coach Klemmer is not certain what linkers he will send into action at Castlewood; each team is allowed to bring four men. The Rams' four will most likely be Mialocq, Grant Fahs, Larry Sugimoto and George Benkie. Bruce Hubley is still recovering from a bone chip.

Mialocq again led the Rams in victory when he shot a hot 72 to help defeat Sacramento, 10 to 5.

The Rams finished the season with a four-win and three-loss record, good enough for the second place tie.

Nor Cal Defeat Ends Season For Mermen

Failing to score a single point in the Northern California swimming meet, the Ram mermen ended the season one week early.

Swimming Coach Roy Burkhead last week decided against sending the three swimmers he had planned to bring to the State meet, which was held last Friday through Sunday.

Swimmers who went to Sacramento for the Northern California meet were Eli Sliver, Rich Sullivan, Fred Vogel, John Holm and Al Stevens.

Oakland, winners of the Big Eight meet, also won the Northern California meet.

Ah, Wilderness! To Close

Griffin Chooses The Drunkard For Next Drama Production

Tears and sobs will prevail at the next drama production, The Drunkard, a good old-fashioned melodrama following the current production of Ah, Wilderness! which ends this Friday and Saturday, Michael Griffin, drama direotor, announced.

The drama concerns a young man, Edward, who marries a sweet innocent who has been turned out of her home for not paying her rent after her father dies.

Edward, finding it difficult to support his wife and child, turns to drinking.

Edward finally conquers his weakness and everyone lives happily ever after, true to the elements of melodrama at its best.

Edward Middleton, "the drunkard," will be played by Terry Sutherland, who also had a leading role in Ah, Wilderness! His wife will be portrayed by Leah Pashoian and their daughter by Ann Osorno. Martha Ross has the part of Edward's maniac sister.

The villain, Lawyer Cribbs, is played by Fred Fisher. Randy Jones appears as Edward's brother and Anna Maria Papagni portrays Miss Spindle.

Others in the cast are Mike Corrigan, Luis Barba, Barry Crawford, Margarettee Ramie, Lois Sutherlin, Borna Bajurin and Bill Thompson.

Although the original author of the play is not known, Griffin said the script was adapted by William H. Smith with the intention of aiding the cause of temperance.

Petitioners For Soph King, Queen Must File By May 19

Students planning to be in the contest for King and Queen of the Sophomore Ball, scheduled for Saturday, June 3, must return their petitions of candidacy to George Woo, Sophomore Class president, by Friday, May 19.

Applications have already been distributed to all clubs, sororities and fraternities on campus, but contestants may still pick them up in the AS office, Woo said.

Certain qualifications must be met by prospective applicants, he added, mainly that they be sophomores and sponsored by a campus organization.

All candidates meeting these requirements must return, in addition to the petition, a 4 by 5 inch picture of themselves.

Associated Student members will choose the Sophomore King and Queen from all the entries during the week before the Soph Ball by using the penny-a-vote method.

Containers where students may drop their pennies are expected to be located in Science Hall near the silver pole, in Smith Hall and probably in the arts building. On the containers will appear snapshots of the contestants.

Crowning of the winning couple at the ball, to be held in the Gold Room of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, will be one of the highlights of the evening.

Admission to the dance, which starts at 9 p.m. and ends at 12 midnight, will probably be by the same method used for the Frosh Ball.

Bids will be given to AS members and their dates on a first-come first-serve basis, and with these bids students will be admitted.

Appropriate attire was described by Woo as being cocktail dresses for the women and dark suits for the men.

Music will be provided by the Sal Vance Orchestra.

Woo urged all students who would like to entertain to consult him in the AS office.

Leave Of Absence Deadline May 19

Students planning to take a leave of absence from the college were reminded today by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar here, that the deadline for doing so is Friday, May 19.

No student may take a leave of absence unless he has first consulted his counselor.

If, however, after the second midterm period a student withdraws and his grade point average is below 1.5 he may not be readmitted without a special interview, she warned.

The only grades used in drawing up a grade point average are the second midterm grades.

The first crossword puzzles were published in the New York World on December 21, 1913.

Student Planters Plan Completion Of Art Project

Between garden shows, students in the ornamental horticulture department here under the direction of Harry Nelson will concentrate their efforts on finishing the planting around the new arts building.

The department has already reseeded the lawn surrounding the building, and the remainder of the planting should be finished within two weeks, Nelson said.

A variety of materials is being used with two objectives in mind, the ability to stand up to the rigors of climate, and to provide materials for future botany and horticulture students to study.

According to Nelson, labor and materials used thus far have amounted to about $1000.

Nelson said that he is astounded at the number of students who have shown interest in the project and who have stopped to ask him questions on the materials being used.

F. W. Woolworth opened his first five-and-ten cent store in Utica, New York, February 22, 1879.

Eighteen To Try For Council Seats In AS Election

Eighteen candidates for the 14 seats on Student Council were announced to Bob Perkins, election commissioner, with the Associated Student elections only two weeks away.

Perkins also told of two changes in the United Students' Party executive slate, with Deanna Cortopassi replacing Barbara Bell as the party's Vice Presidential hopeful, and Jack Kyle taking the candidacy for Freshman President in lieu of Mike Haggerty.

The Students' Representative Party is sponsoring 14 candidates for Student Council, including Marcia McChuck Wood, Bill Reichert, Rick Aguilar and Carolee Fromm for the seven Sophomore positions.

Competing on the SRP ticket for the Freshman seats are Ed Pawlus, Pam Chandler, Andy Shamiyeh, Paul Steiner, Bob Anderson, Sandy Sells and Madelaine Prince.

Two aspirants for the Sophomore places on council are on the USP ballot, Gary Wayman and Janus Crociani, and two USP candidates, Maureen Farley and Judie Smith, are aiming for the Freshman seats.

The election rally which was planned for this Friday has been cancelled, Perkins stated, but on May 19 the rally will be as scheduled.

Election days will be on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24, and Perkins emphasized that the parties must follow the rules outlined by him.

Posters may not be larger than 14 by 22 inches, he warned, and they will be placed or removed only by the election committee.

Each candidate may have no more than five posters, three in Science Hall and two in Cloud Hall.

No publicity stunts will be allowed until they have been approved by both the dean of men and the election commissioner.

There will be no campaigning within 100 feet of the polls on election day, Perkins warned, and absolutely no handbills may be distributed on those days.

Three voting machines will be available on election days, one at the silver pole in Science Hall, one near the vending machines in the basement of Science Hall, and one at the entrance to the library.

Perkins strongly emphasized that no loitering would be allowed near the polls, and that only people who are actually voting and the people operating the machine would be allowed.

Student Council Receives Request From Golf, Track Teams For Added Finances

By Dick Dragavon

Budget cuts during the early part of the semester caused the problem of finances to be thrown back to council as the golf team submitted a request for funds to send four golfers to the state meet, and the track team requested money for championship jackets for its members.

At the beginning of the semester the expenses for the state golf meet were shaved from the golf team's request because it wasn't definitely known whether anyone would qualify.

It was learned last week that four members of the squad had qualified for the event to be held at Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton.

Men's Athletic Commissioner Bob Ross submitted a request for $100 to cover the meet expenses, and money for awards for the track team which won the Big Eight championship.

These would include 29 jackets, 21 block letters, six championship trophies and eight second-year letter jackets.

Georgene Peterson, finance chairman, told council that the money would be available. Itemized requests would have to be submitted, she said.

The legislature also transferred $37.12 from the rally treasury to cover the purchase of pins for The Guardsman staff, which earned the All-American rating from the Associated Collegiate Press last semester.

Tempers flared briefly during the AS card committee report when one councilman, Grant Fahs, was trying to get a commitment from council on how much he could offer the Limelighters to come to the college to promote card sales.

AS President Charles Hanks told council that they could not obligate next semester's funds. When Fahs was told that college policy was that entertainers were paid union scale, a figure which would amount to about $30, he called it ridiculous.

Fahs claimed that the act could possibly net 500 extra card sales and that it did not seem out of line to pay one-fifth of this, $500.

However, other cabinet members urged that the subject be dropped because of Hanks' advice, and the fact that no money was available this semester.

An amendment to be placed on the ballot was passed by council. The proposal to unite the Inter-Fraternity and Sorority Councils with the Club Activities Board under one heading was made by Joe Egri, State Information chairman.

Club Cavalcade

Future Realtors Elect Officers, Plan Activities

STILL OPEN for limited membership, the new 30-student Future Realtors Club announced today the results of its recent election, according to Louis Ferrari, club publicity chairman.

So far the club's activities are planned to consist of field trips and lectures given by guest speakers.

Tom Anderson was elected president and Jim Finn vice president. Secretary is Marge Reddick and treasurer is Budd Crabbe. Sam Mathews and John Murphy are sergeant-at-arms and parliamentarian, respectively.

Those interested in the organization may consult Hyman Berston or Glen Mercer, faculty sponsors, in C-106.

Shirley Wheatly, president of Delta Sigma Tau, and Terry White, president of Alpha Phi Epsilon, are discussing plans to set a date for their respective banquets.

Alpha Sigma Delta's pledge dinner will be held this Saturday, May 13, on the peninsula. The four pledges are Tony Burroso, Rod Lund, Larry Marbaun and Phil Chernof.

From 6 to 7 p.m. Thursday members of Kappa Phi sorority are entertaining the pre-school age children at Shriners Hospital. Two members attend weekly and read to the patients.

Coed Takes 2nd Place In Miss SF Race

Bernice Espinosa, a coed here at the college, made a valiant try for glory last Sunday in the Miss San Francisco contest, but when the judging was over she was given the first runner-up position.

The winner of the pageant was Lana Green, a student at Heald's Business College. Her "modern-cha-cha" won her a first place in the talent division of the contest.

Miss Espinosa had a sequence of underwater ballet, an art in which she is very adept, filmed for her contribution to the talent segment of the affair.

The final judging was held at the bandshell in Golden Gate Park.

Honor Society, IRC Sponsor Joint Social On Friday

Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, in conjunction with the International Relations Club is sponsoring a social this Friday in Smith Hall, according to Sheree Moores, vice president of the society.

Entertainment and decorations for the social, which will be from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight, will be provided by the IRC, while Alpha Gamma Sigma is providing the refreshments and the music.

The social will be free of charge although only members and guests of the two groups will be admitted, Miss Moores said.

William Richardson, adviser to the society here, was elected to the post of state secretary of Alpha Gamma Sigma during its recent conference, which was held at Modesto Junior College.

Richardson stated that part of his job would be to keep the minutes of the meetings and to send out communications about the society. He will also be representing the faculty of the college.

Jim Bush was chairman of the committee discussing professions during the conference.

Figures Reveal Something (?) Is Missing

29 Practice Reverse Diploma(cy)

Latest complete registration figures show in the breakdown that there are 29 people enrolled here who are not high school graduates, and could well receive their Associate in Arts degrees before their high school diplomas.

Registrar Mary Jane Learnard in releasing these figures was not able to identify these 29 people by name, but one of them was reached personally for an exclusive interview.

Although his name is not included in the interview for obvious reasons, he is, actually, a male student here at one college and a member of the "29 Club."

Q. How old are you?

A. Thirty.

Q. At what age did you leave high school and why didn't you graduate?

A. I quit school the day I was 16. I hated high school.

Q. What were your last marks in high school?

A. Straight F's.

Q. How did you do on your last midterms here?

A. Straight A's. Of course, I'm only earrying nine units.

Q. What is your major?

A. Communications. Of course, I'm not talking about the courses in grammar.

Q. And your vocational goal?

A. Something in mass communications. Technical writing, editing, perhaps public relations.

Q. I imagine you are sorry you quit high school?

A. Not really. You see it didn't keep me from going to college. If you are a college graduate no one asks if you are a high school graduate. You might say I've saved myself some time and effort.

Q. Don't you think that graduating from high school would have helped you?

A. It would have on a couple of occasions but they are a little unique. I, personally, was learning nothing in high school. All I would have gotten would have been a diploma. The first big job I had, my boss told me I couldn't get ahead unless I went to night school and got the diploma.

Q. And you didn't?

A. I didn't have to. I just told him one day that I was going to night school and a couple of months later I told him I'd graduated.

Q. And the result?

A. My boss was satisfied and I won advancement.

Q. I imagine you are a veteran?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. World War II?

A. Thanks a lot, pal. I said I was 30—not 40. I am a Korean veteran.

Q. Did your see any action?

A. Some.

Q. How much?

A. Too much.

Q. Were you in the Army?

A. No. I was in the Marine Corps.

Q. I know you are on the GI Bill. Do you favor its extension to cover all persons who serve in the armed forces?

A. Definitely not. In fact I don't even favor it for draftees in the Korean War. World War II was a little different, perhaps.

Q. Are you married, sir?

A. No, but I still have hopes.

Q. What college do you plan to attend after you graduate from City?

A. I doubt if I will go farther than getting my AA, if I get that.

Q. That is rather unusual, especially since you seem to be so conscious of the benefits of an education.

A. You are contradicting yourself, young man. You are right. I appreciate the benefits of an education and I am getting one. A degree is something else.

Q. What DO you plan to do when you leave here?

A. I think that in my particular case it will be best for me to apprentice myself and try to work my way along.

—At the rate I'm going, it would take me four years to graduate from City and another four to get a BA. I tried taking a full load in my first semester here. It almost killed me. I have a full-time job at night which I can't give up too easily.

Q. Why is that? There are a lot of students here who do not have jobs at all.

A. That is true, but I'm spending MY OWN money all the time, you know. Besides that, I can't give my best to my studies carrying a full load of credits and I can not give my boss his money's worth, either. I think that doing both is equally important.

(Editor's Note: This was the conclusion of the interview. The Guardsman invites other non-high school graduates to write in, and give their answers to these same questions and their views and opinions on education and high school graduation. (Naturally, their names will be held in confidence if they so desire.)

Wilkening, Plansky Debate Issues In Surprise Pre-Election Meeting

The Guardsman

AS Elections Start Tuesday

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1961 NUMBER 10

WatchWord

Exile Ponders Man's Worth, World Future

By Paul Plansky

THAT'S ALL the news on the local scene for tonight.

"And now the weather forecast as released through the International Aeronautics & Space Administration (IASA) . . . Oh, no! . . . hold everything! . . . Ladies and gentlemen, we have just received a startling bulletin from SNS (Satellite News Service):

"Our chief executive has vanished! James McArthur Pearson, 53rd President of the United States of (North) America, voluntarily left the White Mansion before his scheduled televised evening meal and press conference and left a note stating he has gone into "indefinite exile.'"

Where is this man right now, this man with the weight of the world on his shoulders? What mental overhauling is his mind enduring? Why was he motivated to such an extreme action? Wasn't his ample staff of advisors able to assist him in making his decision?

His hiding place is . . .

Hanging on a remote mountain slope halfway above a derelict dirt road and beneath a cloud-capped peak. The disguised, dilapidated hideaway clings tenaciously to a seemingly immature cliff of crags and clay.

Camouflaged by a dense growth of lofty Douglas fir, the rustical outpost kneels on this narrow ledge with its shabby shingles tucked shyly under the seclusion and shade of cone-bearing branches.

During the day eerie shadows are cast upon its dejected facade. Sunlight begs to creep through the retreat's rickety frame in a futile effort to shed some rays on the strange secrecy within.

At night the mysterious mood continues . . . The surrounding woodland wilderness lies restlessly awake. The resonance of timberland's creatures recedes to faint murmurs and quivers with a note of melancholy. The redolence of flowering plants is overwhelmed by a discernible scent of DANGER, born through animal intuition.

Tonight no nocturnal symphony will echo nature's euphony — the frogs, crickets and owls are silent. Without a lullaby, but not without a prayer, the occupant of the obscure yet significant hermitage drifts into an unpeaceful, agonizing, haunting sleep . . .

His dream is cluttered with monstrous metaphors. He, the exiled executive, is in the same position as the very haven which he now inhabits. It clings to insecure ground above a muddy dirt road and is shadowed humbly by a majestic summit which it is beneath.

Whether man will descend and transcend to greatness or plummet to the roadway of dust and dirt from whence he came, whether he will rise in God's image or fall in his own, whether he will live as a race or die . . .

Because delay means disaster, he must have his answer tomorrow.

When the morning sun awakens President Pearson, the shrouded images of night disappear and reality remains with its question—Is man really worth saving?

Today's Watchword: Faith.

Gary Wilkening

SRP Platform

THE STUDENTS Representative Party stands for better representation in student government for all the students. In order of concern we are responsible to the whole student body, the interest group, and the individual.

The Students Representative Party is dedicated to good government. Our purpose is to present the most qualified person for each position of government, regardless of his personal, social or educational interests.

The Students Representative Party has an immediate goal of acquiring for the students at City College of San Francisco a Student Union. We believe that you, the student, want such a building and that you need such a building if you are to maintain a well rounded program of educational and social activities.

The Studenta Representative Party will endeavor to bring about the reunification of an on-campus organization. An attempt must be made to settle the differences between the various interest groupa and individuals in order that all of our energies may be directed at the greater campus problems that exist.

The Studenta Representative Party favors a re-evaluation of our Associated Students' financial situation in order that your money may be better distributed to bring you a greater number of more varied and more adult programs.

Candidates Engage In Sharp Exchange Over Platforms In Unprecedented Session Here

By Bob Pacini, Editor-in-Chief

Party platforms and other campaign issues were vigorously discussed by presidential candidates Gary Wilkening of the Students Representative Party and Paul Plansky, United Students' Party, in an unprecedented pre-election debate here last week.

The meeting of the two leading candidates in the current Associated Student election was a sudden and surprise move by both parties.

Plansky opened the discussion by saying that, although he believed the SRP had a good record in student activities, he felt that his own party could offer an even better program to students here.

Greater student participation and knowledge of student affairs here is needed, Plansky maintained, "to put the students back in student government."

Wilkening countered by saying that the SRP had improved student government here by having wide representation of all students and not of just a single faction.

Questioning Plansky, Wilkening demanded to know what Plansky meant by the statement, "Students here have been led, not represented," a prominent phrase in the USP platform.

Again admitting that SRP had good programs, Plansky charged that most of it was carried out without student consent.

"Your plans have succeeded in council simply because of the majority your party holds there," Plansky asserted.

"The past two elections," Wilkening replied, "have shown the consent of students here. There is your consent."

Plansky then charged that the SRP was using the same platform this semester that it has used in the past two AS elections.

"Last semester's election was an indication of last semester's election, not this semester's," Plansky maintained. "This semester a new platform is needed to meet the changes

(Continued on Page 4, Column 3)

Constitutional Amendment Would Unify Campus Organizations Here

In an effort to unite the varied campus groups into one harmonious unit, students will be asked to vote next Tuesday and Wednesday on an amendment to the Associated Student Constitution which would form a Council of Organizations.

At present, all the campus clubs and organizations are represented by the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Inter-Sorority Counell and the Club Activities Board. Joe Egri, State Information officer, stated.

Egri decbared that in the past frictions have kept the three groups apart. "Each has gone its own separate way," Egri said. He feels that had the proposed change been in effect this semester the Spring Festival would not have been canceled.

With the IFC, ISC and CAB working together, college activities can better be promoted; combined, these organizations can "channel their efforts" in such activities as the blood drive and Spring Festival, Egri stated.

Pointing to the blood drive, sponsored by Tau Chi Sigma fraternity, he said that here is an already successful effort which can be made even more fruitful.

The resolution will appear on the ballot as Proposition A: "To establish a co-ordinating body called Council of Organizations to include representation from every organization on campus and to meet on Tuesday and Thursday of every week."

Ralph Hillsman, dean of men and student activities here, said it would be a "general co-ordinating council . . . free to meet individually at any time, and designed so that all will have an equal knowledge of what is going on."

Egri mentioned that Student Council passed the resolution unanimously and that the IFC and CAB approved it with no negative votes. "The ISC has not voted on it yet," he said, "but from the people I have talked to there has been no opposition."

All that is needed to make the amendment law is a two-thirds vote by the Associated Students next week. Then it would become Article 10 of the AS Constitution.

Election Rally Friday Precedes May 23-24 Vote

By Dick Dragavon

Preceding the Associated Student elections slated for next Tuesday and Wednesday will be a rally in front of Cloud Hall Friday during College Hour, 10 to 10:40 a.m., featuring the introduction of the 30 candidates for student government offices and expianations of each party's stand in this campaign by the presidential contestants.

According to Bob Perkins, election commissioner, three voting machines will be available, one in the basement of Science Hall near the vending machines, another in Science Hall near the silver pole, and the last in the entrance area of the library.

Voting will be held from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the two election days. Perkins is making a concentrated effort to bring out the vote this semester, and by mailing a letter as a reminder and including copies of each party platform, he hopes to see the biggest voter turnout in the college's history.

Gary Wilkening and Paul Plansky, Associated Student presidential candidates for the Students Representative Party and the United Students' Party, respectively, had one debate last week over their respective party platforms and political principles.

Six executive offices and 14 council seats will be filled according to the voters' decision at the polls next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Running mates for Wilkening and Plansky are Kathy Henderson (SRP) and Deanna Cortopassi (USP).

Paul Snowberg (SRP) is opposing Bob Rogers (USP) for the office of Associated Men Student President, while Jan Doutlet (SRP) and Joyce Nelson (USP) are vying for the Associated Women Student Presidentiai office.

Aspirants for the Sophomore Class Presidency are Dan Collins (SRP) and Fred Chernins (USP).

Freshman Class Presidential candidates are Greg Monk (SRP) and Jack Kyle (USP).

The seven seats on council for Sophomores are being contested by nine candidates. Marcia McNeely (SRP), Suzanne Murphy (SRP), Larry Levin (SRP), Chuck Wood (SRP), Bill Reichert (SRP), Rick Aguilar (SRP), Carolee Fromm (SRP), Gary Wayman (USP), Janus Crociani (USP) and Judie Smith (USP).

For the Freshman seats on council there are also nine aspirants, Ed Pawlus (SRP), Pam Chandler (SRP), Andy Shamiyeh (SRP), Paul Steiner (SPP), Bob Anderson (SRP), Sandy Selis (SRP), Madelaine Prince (SRP), and Maureen Farley (USP).

Paul Plansky

USP Platform

WE BELIEVE a platform is to stand on, not just to run on.

Students, hear us out. And we want you to remember that word, STUDENTS. It is the most important word in this election. Because the students are going to be electing the student officers who will represent the Associated Students of this college.

Note, and note well, that we say represent, not lead. The students of this college have been led around long enough. They have been led around by the nose and led down the garden path.

They have been more than led; they have been dictated to. They have been told what has been done; they have not been asked what should be done.

The goal of our party is the goal of the entire student body. If we are elected we will do what we are told by those who have elected us.

Seven projects of progress which we advocate tend to strengthen our slogan for this election campaign: UNITY LEADS TO ACTION!

1)—Put students back into student government.

2)—Student Council minutes available to ALL members of AS.

3)—Beautification of campus.

4)—Earphone music in library.

5)—Longer fountain hours.

6)—Paved roads from parking lots to buildings.

7)—Instead of budgeting and juggling money from one campus organization to another, we advocate giving this surplus money back to the investors, the students, as dividends.

Commencement Try-Outs Over; Speakers Chosen

Judging of the student speaker tryouts for the 26th annual commencement exercises was held during last Friday's double College Hour in C-245, William Culver, English instructor and one of the 12 speaker judges, announced recently.

Seven students vied for the honor of student speaker, but only two or possibly three were chosen to speak at the commencement. The results will not be announced until next week.

The students who participated in the tryouts were Thomas Craighead, Patricia Gow, Rosemarie Haas, Peter Koch, Joyce Lamas, Max Savin and Susan Walraven.

Dean of Men Ralph O. Hillsman announced that graduating students may pick up their commencement invitations in S-117, on or after May 29.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 10 WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1961 Page 2

Unification Of Campus Clubs Deserves Voter Approval Now

ON THE BALLOT in the coming Associated Student election will be an amendment to the AS constitution that would, if approved by voters here, weld the Club Activities Board, the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Council into one major campus organization.

The Guardsman, following its editorial policy of serving the best interests of the students and the college, wishes to state that the measure has its backing and support.

It's a strong measure and, some will maintain, a radical one, but we believe it would do much to unify and give added spirit, sorely needed, to all of the college's clubs and organizations. Essentially, it would change the three presently separate groups into one unified block of organizations joining forces for the benefit of the college and all students here.

It would not, as some might claim, destroy the autonomous state each of these three groups of organizations now enjoys, for each of the three factions would, as is currently done, meet separately on a regularly scheduled basis. At least once a week, however, all three groups would gather as a single body and be presided over by the AS Vice President.

By meeting together and discussing problems and matters of common interest and concern, the CAB, the IFC and the ISC would do much to strengthen the badly drooping spirit so obvious in most areas of student affairs here. The cancellation of the CAB spring festival because of lack of response from student organizations is but one example of this.

Joint meetings of these three major organizations would give a real and badly needed unity to all the college's clubs and organizations, so essential for a sound and worthwhile social program. To summarize, then, the joining of CAB, IFC and ISC under a single "roof" would, we believe, strengthen and give real meaning to every phase of student activity here from student government, to clubs, to social affairs.

Although The Guardsman feels itself justified in commenting on various phases of student government here, including AS elections, it does so short of approving or disapproving of candidates. The Guardsman is financed and supported by AS funds, thus all AS members here should and will have equal opportunity to express their views. In the past fair and equal coverage for all candidates in AS elections was the policy. This policy has not changed.

We have made our position on the proposed amendment clear. Of course, there will be others who will have objections to it. To these we suggest letters to the Ram's Horn column, for by giving all sides of the question opportunity to be presented we can achieve what an election should be: A sincere and open contest between two equal but different opinions, with the final decision up to the voters.

Foresight

Emotional Movies Give Viewer An 'Out'

By Richard Shields

WHAT IS THERE about some movies and theatrical productions that makes people want to see them over and over again?

Is it a particular appeal which they have for certain people, emotionalism, spectacle or interest in the personalities which are either portrayed or displayed on the stage?

Or might it be the enduring and ever appealing quality of art—the quality which, if it is genuine, never grows stale nor tiresome.

If so, can it not also be that good movies, like great paintings and music, can continue to arouse an artistic appreciation after repeated viewings.

First of all, there are without doubt hundreds of movies which are unworthy of being shown, much less appreciated.

Secondly, there are countless movies whose sole aim is to create a sympathetic atmosphere with which the viewer may identify his own particular situation in life.

This type of film usually consists of a series of dramatic situations and a pseudo-realism into which individuals may project themselves, usually to their own imagined advantage.

Even stories which end in tragedy for everyone, emotional viewers included, have an "out" for daydreamers; that is, a gratified sense of self-pity.

A good example is I Want To Live. What floods of tears were shed when Imitation Of Life made the rounds? And why does Gone With The Wind remain so dear to movie lovers?

It has been reported (Time, May 5) that some people boast of having seen that old-time classic as many as 60 times. Also, it is said to have been showing continuously somewhere in the world ever since it was first released.

Movies which are produced for the sake of art alone are rare these days. More and more emphasis is placed on gratification of viewers' emotions rather than on inspiration or advantage to their intellect.

Americans have always loved heroes and have always been heroes, but they also have a history of dealing effectively and grandly with reality, whether it is in an uncharted frontier or in war.

Where is the heritage of heroism and the challenging reality in an emotional bath at the movies? Is it morally right for the youth of America to be given so trite a picture of the American past as is presented in the weekly TV sagas?

The great paradox of the modern world is the increasing reliance of people on artificial stimulants to the emotions and the growing awareness of and progression into the universe beyond the bounds of our own world.

The future will not and can not be as great as the past, however, until Americans relearn the difference between fact and fancy—until they learn that reality is not a few tragic tears shed for a movie hero and that the real American heroes of the past did not always manage to reappear the next week for another episode.

Detroit has been under three flags: French, English, and United States.

Posture Title Goes To Local Student

Rosemarie Schreier Takes Laurels At Union Square Show

By David Kleinberg

Comely Rosemarie Schreier, a 19-year-old freshman here, was judged Miss Correct Posture in Union Square on May 6, although she claims to be too short to become a model.

The contest, an annual event of Correct Posture Week, is sponsored by the San Francisco Chiropractic Society.

This pretty Miss Schreier, who is 5-2, 105 pounds and measures 35-22-35, was selected from a group of six competing finalists, after the field had been narrowed from 16. As required, all the young ladies were between 17 and 22 and unmarried.

The contestants were marked on poise, charm, intelligence and all-around general appearance.

"I was very much surprised to win, but I think I am too short to think seriously about modeling. I'm a business major, and that's the type of work that interests me," she said.

She modestly neglected to add that she was voted Miss Northern California by the YMCA last March 11, the first beauty contest the pretty German-born coed entered.

Besides winning a foot-high, gold trophy, Miss Schreier earned the chance to compete for the state title, which will be held at Berkeley in June. The state winner will participate in the national contest to be held at St. Louis, Missouri, sometime in June.

The top prize at St. Louis is a $1000 chiropractic scholarship, $500 and a trophy.

Mosaic Monuments

Unusual Work Displayed On Science Hall

Two mammoth mosaic works by Herman Volz on each end of Science Hall have embodied the spirit of science at the college for more than 2½ years.

Measuring 42 by 52 feet, the mosaics were completed in 1941 as part of a WPA project, inaugurated by the administration of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt as a means of hastening the end of the depression.

The structure on the north end of the building represents the interaction of science, while on the south end the interaction of mechanics is depicted.

Neither represents any definite person in the field of science and invention as the Rivera mural in the new arts building does; rather, the mosaics deal chiefly with the influence of youth and education on those subjects.

At present, members of the administration at the college are concerned with finding a way to deal with and to prevent the defacing of the works of art which has occurred in the past.

Behind every successful businessman there is a woman who has nothing to wear.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister
Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orvieto, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve, Richard Edwards, Fredsenick Gregory, David Kleinberg, Raul Ortega, Christopher Wilde.
Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, William Merrill, Herbert Mizle, George Palmer, Anna Pappani, Marilyn Santee, Sandra Sells, Evelyn Thude, Bob Yearry.
Photographers: Roger Niselm, Tom Eggert, Eduardo Dell'Acqua, Gary Lair.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

ROSEMARIE SCHREIER received many pointers from her doctor which helped her capture the Correct Posture title last week. She was alone on stage with only the pointers to help her.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

HELLO down there in Hollywood! Your industry is still alive!

Two students were heard discussing next semester's programs. One said he was going to take astronomy. T'otherfeller said, "That's a tough course." First guy agreed but added, "They show lots of movies."

* * *

HELLO BACK THERE on Broadway! There's something here for you, too!

A new, novel, clever and worthwhile idea is being born on the campus. It's called the theater party dinner meeting.

The deal is that a club or fraternity or sorority holds a meeting on Friday night in a local restaurant. Then they adjourn to the new theater and enjoy Mr. Griffin & Company's production of The Drunkard.

The only possible hitch is that it is going to be pretty hard to enjoy a million laughs on a full stomach.

* * *

LAST WEEK'S double College Hour coming so soon after the start of Daylight Saving Time caused quite a bit of confusion here and there. First, the sun came up late and then the 10 o'clock class disappeared.

* * *

TODAY is Business Recruitment Day. Prospective employers are here seeking prospective employees.

Business must be getting better. Read some of the bulletins from Washington and you know they're getting better.

The same crowd that was yelling last fall about the fact that seven per cent of the working force was unemployed are now boasting that 93 per cent of the workers have steady jobs.

En Garde!

H&R Fencer Aims For 1964 Olympics Team

By John Muller

Few persons provoke Peter A. Karpaty, a hotel and restaurant major here, because they know that they might end up facing the wrong end of a foil—a fencing foil.

Ever since he was 6, Karpaty has either had a foil, saber or an epee, the three recognized weapons of fencing, in his hand during most of his spare hours.

It all began in Budapest, Hungary, where Karpaty was born on June 16, 1941. When he was only 6, Karpaty's mother, who is an avid fencer, enrolled him in a private school of gymnastics and fencing.

Over the years Karapty became such a proficient fencer that at 14 he won the 1955 Hungarian fencing championship which was held in Budapest.

In 1956, however, the Hungarian revolt disrupted his family and they fled communist tyranny, coming to the United States.

Continuing the sport in the United States, Karpaty won the U. S. Fencing Championships of Philadelphia in January, 1957, and of New Jersey in May, 1957.

(These championships were won by the foil which comes from France. Manipulation of this weapon requires absolute control of the fingers and belongs to the finer fencing art used today as contrasted with the rougher Italian types that were once used.)

Most of the time while in America his fencing instructor was George J. Pillar, a fencing coach at the University of California who was also from Hungary. But Pillar died of cancer in 1960 and since then Karpaty has practiced fencing very little.

He hardly touched a foil, his favorite weapon, for more than eight months until he met Julius Alpar, who has coached the Canadian Olympic team for the past 12 years.

Through Alpar's encouragement, Karpaty has decided to try out for the 1964 Olympics. To be on the Olympic team he must be among the top nine foil winners in the 1963 national fencing championship.

Karpaty will have two annual national championships to prepare him for the 1963 championship that will decide who will represent this country in the 1964 Olympics.

With an evening job and classwork consuming most of his time, he has little time to practice, but nevertheless he devotes about eight hours a week to the sport.

After receiving his degree from this college, he will practice with the foil about four hours a day.

Sparking his interest in hotel and restaurant work is the fact that his father owns a restaurant in San Francisco and his grandfather owned a hotel in Budapest. Karpaty plans to go into business with his father after graduating.

Beauty Receives SF Accolade

BEAUTIFUL Bernice Espinosa, after successfully hurdling the preliminaries and semi-finals in the Miss San Francisco Pageant, is presented with a bouquet for her first runner-up performance in the recent final judging of the contest held at the bandshell in Golden Gate Park.

Miss Espinosa, a business major here, received the award from Robert Hesse, events chairman of the pageant.

The final judging was the culmination of a strenuous time for the six finalists. During the course of the contest itself, the contestants were always under the great pressure that comes from being an entrant in a competition of this sort. The winner was Lana Greene, a coed at Heald's Business College.

—Guardsman photo by Elmer Lutar.

Volume 52, No. 10 WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1961 Page 3

Getz Dominates North Section Tennis Championships; Locals Finish Third In Team Totals

By Tom Kennedy

Upsets plagued many top-seeded players in the North Sectional tennis championships last weekend, but the No. 1 favorite, Reider Getz of Modesto, rode to easy singles and doubles victories at Golden Gate Park.

City College had two of the eight semi-finalists in singles and doubles (Randy Chun and Chun-Jack Bracken), and came close to staging a major upset in the team competition.

The Rams' Paul Barth lost a hard-fought match to College of Sequoias' Dave Blankenship 6-3, 5-11, 6-3, then Barth-John Welles were edged in doubles by Bill Carroll-Len Berry of Fresno 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. Blankenship eventually finished second in singles.

As team scores actually appeared, Modesto and COS tied for first, 9-9, City College had 6, Fresno 5 and Diablo Valley 1. By winning both the singles and doubles with partner Tom Muench, Getz accounted for eight of the Pirates' nine points.

Getz used deftly executed cross-court shots to keep the pressure on Blankenship all the way in the singles final, 6-3, 6-2. In doubles Getz-Muench were too consistent for Blankenship-Russell Wright, 7-5, 6-3.

Eight quarterfinalists both in singles and doubles qualified for the state tournament this weekend in Visalia, but Chun will be held back by Coach Roy Diederichsen for disciplinary reasons. Rich Murray will substitute for him on the doubles team with Bracken. Welles-Barth and Bracken (singles) are also entered.

COS' unseeded Elden Lewis provided the biggest surprise of the tourney by upsetting last year's champ, Muench, in the second round by straight sets, 6-4, 6-1. Chun then edged Lewis 3-6, 9-7, 8-6. Randy was forced to come back from a 0-3 deficit in the third set.

This Week In Sports . . .

FRIDAY

- Football—Meeting for prospective football players, men's gymnasium during College Hour.
- Tennis — Two-day state championships at Visalia.

SATURDAY

- Track — Northern California championships at Sacramento.

WEEKEND RESULTS

- Baseball—Rams 5, Santa Rosa 14.

14 Boxers Await Smoker Finals

Finalists have already been decided in seven of the nine divisions of the intramural boxing tournament, which concludes with the championship matches at the Associated Men Student Smoker on Thursday, May 25.

New champions are slated to be crowned in all divisions since there are no returning titleholders.

Boxing instructor Roy Diederichsen states that the tournament, which opened with 42 entrants, has been highly successful thus far.

The competition, with each match consisting of three one-minute rounds, is on a voluntary basis open to the entire college.

Gold and silver trophies are slated for the winner and runner-up in each division, while trophies will go to the top boxer and "Flightingest Fighter" in the tournament.

The finalists by weight divisions are:
120: Fred Valcarta vs. Bill Wagner.
130: Gary Rodriguez vs. Chuck Rebor.
135: John Bryzal vs. George Marble.
142: Pete Zenzonis vs. Joe Sendejo.
148: Pasquale Manasis vs. Joe Bankston.
153: John Griffon vs. either Jim Ahern, Jim Gehring, or Al Nutooff.
165: John Young vs. Bill Kelley.
178: Charlie Hollie vs. Fred Oberfelder.
Heavyweight: Don Olocco vs. either John Lovell or Jim Starr.

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

IT'S ALWAYS interesting to follow the accomplishments of sports heroes from one's own college, but what happens to the ordinary athlete who goes into business or professional life after graduation?

Does he feel that his time on the playing field was wisely spent? Did it give him qualities that he would have lacked in an exclusively scholastic schedule?

Mike Dunne, a football player here in 1955 and 1956 and a graduate of City College, thinks so. Now an auto insurance salesman for California Casualty Indemnity Exchange, he returned to his alma mater the other day in a different role.

He's married to the former Joan Mussallem, whom he met while attending City College, and who, incidentally, is a niece of Dean Louis Batmale. They have a 15-month-old child.

Both were active in fraternity and sorority life here. Dunne was a member of Zeta Phi Sigma and his wife was in Kappa Phi. He later joined the Marine Corps and presently attends USF evening division in his off-business hours.

DUNNE STATES, "Coaches Klemmer and Schwarz were terrific. They instilled leadership, fitness and ability to work with others in the athletes—which is something you can't receive from the classroom. You'd be surprised how important physical fitness is to a businessman."

Of course, no interview with an insurance salesman would be complete without his sales pitch. Dunne is concentrating on automobile insurance for persons under 25, many of whom are in college. Married drivers over 21, for instance, can get the same low rates as an over-25 driver.

The company awards a dividend of about 20 per cent at the end of the year, and payments can be made quarterly, semi-annually or annually. For further information he suggests phoning him at the California Casualty office on Kearny Street. Advice is free.

RA Nominations Close Tomorrow

Nominations for Recreation Association offices for the Fall 1961 semester will close tomorrow with elections the following Friday during College Hour, Kay Vanderford, RA president, stated yesterday.

To hold an RA office a student must be an active member of the RA, hold an Associated Student card and maintain at least a 2.0 grade point average. Both men and women may fill RA offices. Additional information is available on the bulletin board in the lobby of the women's gymnasium.

The RA played host to eight colleges in an eight-hour fencing competition held in both the men's and women's gymnasiums May 6.

The women's competition ended with two fence-offs. San Francisco State and Los Angeles Valley College tied for first place with Los Angeles later defeating State. College of San Mateo defeated San Francisco in a playoff for third place.

Block SF Banquet To Host Bob St. Clair

Bob St. Clair, the San Francisco Forty Niners' giant tackle, will be the guest speaker at the semi-annual Block SF Awards Banquet to be held Monday, May 29, in Smith Hall, according to Lou Vasquez, Block SF sponsor.

Other guests will include faculty administrators and the high school coaches of the city. Awards will be presented to the outstanding athletes in basketball, tennis, baseball and track.

Bus For Tracksters Saturday?

If he can't get a bus any other way, track coach Lou Vasquez may rent one himself to transport the team to Sacramento Saturday for the Northern California championships—just to make sure Fate doesn't toy with the Rams' chances again.

Not one to believe in miracles, Vasquez had to think twice at the Big Eight championships held May 6 in Sacramento. As the starter issued that famous statement, "On your marks," to start the race, the star Ram milers, Frank James and Roger Ritchey, were nowhere in sight.

Seen forlornly wandering around the field, Vasquez was heard muttering, "No, they can't get here now."

Investigation revealed that the two men had been passengers in the last of six cars to leave City College that day, a 1955 Plymouth driven by half-miler Tony Ferrigno.

Ferrigno had had no previous trouble with his car, but that day it had broken down near Pinole, some 30 miles away.

Then the wholly unexpected—the TV-modeled stereotype drama—happened, for before the gun sounded a thin redhead came galloping through the gate followed by another trackster hobbling to the starting line carrying one shoe.

Yes, it was James—then Ritchey. They had hitch-hiked a ride to Hughes Stadium and dressed in the car...

Without a warmup they somehow ran fast enough to finish third and fourth,

James finished second in the two-mile, Jose Valle (also in the car) folurth, and Ritchey fifth, while a tired Ferrigno took fourth in the 880.

With their spirit and desire, these men saved the Big Eight championship for City College as they combined for 28 points. The Rams beat second place San Mateo 132½-99.—By I. T.

Ram Spikers Enter Nor Cal

Important Caucus Set For Hopeful Gridders Friday

Having already released the Fall, 1961, football schedule, Head Coach Grover Klemmer announced that there will be an important meeting for aspiring gridders during College Hour this Friday in the men's gymnasium.

With prospective managers also encouraged to attend, the mentor said he hopes to discuss plans for the coming season.

Slated to open their campaign on September 22 at Los Angeles Valley, the Rams initiate their home season on September 29 against Los Angeles City College. Last year San Francisco edged both of these southern schools.

Following this pair of practice encounters, the local eleven will set out to better last year's third place finish in their opening Big Eight skirmish on October 7 at San Mateo.

Darnes, Hearne Come Through In Fresno Relays

By Ivan Temes

RATCLIFFE STADIUM, FRESNO, May 13—After getting a preview look at the best two-year college track stars in the state today, City College heads for Sacramento next Saturday where it will vie for top honors in the Northern California sectional meet.

Though the southern entries dominated the West Coast Relays, the Rams did come up with some outstanding performances.

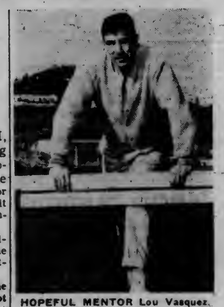
Getting off the best throw in the state this year, a tremendous 167-foot toss in the discus, Alex Darnes won his event and set a college record.

Once again spring-legged freshman Ray Hearne came through in a big meet, taking second and third, respectively, in the high and broad jump with performances of 6-6 and 23-9¾.

Sprinter Herm McKee ran a brilliant 9.6 in the trials but still couldn't qualify for the finals.

Both Ram relay quartets, two-mile and distance medley, finished out of top contention in races which saw Fullerton set new national marks. However, the two-mile entry, composed of Tom Jennings, Bill Hotchkiss, Jose Valle and Tony Ferrigno, set a City College record of 7:53.6.

Now attention is focused on the meet at Sacramento where Coach Lou Vasquez believes "Monterey has to be installed as the favorite with strong opposition coming from College of Sequoias, San Mateo, Fresno and ourselves."



The meet is important since the top four qualifiers in each event head for the state meet at Modesto the following week.

Champions of the Big Eight, the Red and White qualified men in every event except the 440 for the upcoming meet.

Sprint and hurdle trials were held yesterday, with Bob Hector going in the 120 highs and given a good chance to qualify, and Tom Piggee entered in the 220 lows. McKee, a favorite along with Overton Williams of Oakland, went in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Also entered was the mile relay team.

Saturday, Frank James and Roger Ritchey with respective best times of 4:23.7 and 4:26 go in the mile but aren't given much chance of upsetting San Mateo's 4:14 miler Jeff Fishback. Entered in the half mile is Ferrigno.

Valie joins James in the two-mile while Alex Darnes will shot-put and is heavily favored to win the discus.

HOPEFUL MENTOR Lou Vasquez.

Mialocq, Simon Aid Rams In Big Eight Competition

Aided by Gary Mialocq and Steve Simon, both ex-Washington performers, the Rams tied for third place with the Oakland Thunderbirds in the Big Eight Conference golf tournament. Both scored 803 points.

In a sudden death finish after being tied with 147 scores for the first 36 holes, Mialocq defeated Bill Thomas of Modesto by shooting a birdie on the 37th hole. Mialocq finished third, Thomas fourth.

LEADING LINKER Gary Mialocq.

Felix Clavern of Stockton won the individual honors at the two-round tourney by carting a two over par, 142. Modesto's Ray Gonzales finished second with 146.

San Mateo again proved to be the class of the league by topping the team honors with a five-player total of 763. Although San Mateo did not have a single man in the first five medal scores, the Mateans were 39 strokes under second place Modesto's 802.

Stockton took fifth with 825.

Coach Grover Klemmer has been "pleased with the progress" his golfers have made since the start of the season.

Simon, who has been the Ram's number five man all season, performed well in the tournament. Simon shot a pair of 80's to help bring down the Red and White total with his 160 score.

Resurgent Baseballers Split Panther Twin Bill

By Jerry Littrell

Bringing the season to within one game of completion, the Ram diamondmen handed the Sacramento Panthers their first defeat of the season by splitting a double-header with them and knocking off Santa Rosa in 10 innings by the score of 10-9.

Last week the Panthers came into San Francisco boasting an 11-0 record. In the rescheduled double-header played last Tuesday, the Rams played hard-fought baseball in the first game but still were on the losing end of the score, 2-1.

The second game was a different story. Behind the two-hit pitching of lefty Don Lowpensky, the horsehiders coasted to an easy 7-0 victory over the previously undefeated Panthers.

Third sacker Frank Gable is sporting a batting average of .470, which should be enough to give him the league batting championship.

In the last home game, played against Santa Rosa, the Rams had to go into extra innings for the first time to chalk up their sixth victory of the campaign.

Ed Preston, making his first appearance as a pitcher in league play, came in to relieve in the sixth inning and held the Bear Cubs to one run in the final frames to earn the win.

Preston, Gary Attell and Gable are leading the team with averages of .375, .378 and .470, respectively.

Baseball Profiles: Gable And Preston

Coach Lee Eisan relied a great deal on hitting power this season, and two sluggers headed the roster by posting averages in the .400's.

Frank Gable and Ed Preston have supplied power when it was needed and also have handled themselves exceptionally well in the field.

Gable graduated from Balboa High School, where he batted a blazing .400 in his senior year. He was selected to the San Francisco Examiner baseball squad and was sent to New York to star on the Hearst All-American team.

This season, along with his sparkling glove at third base, he has chalked up a .413 average to lead the team in batting.

Preston is following close behind Gable with a .400 average. He was graduated from Riordan High School where he batted .407 in his senior year and was named to the All-Catholic Athletic League and the All-City teams.

From Riordan he went to University of California and played one year on the junior varsity.

Business Recruitment On Campus Today

Placement Service Stands As Successful Aid To Job Seekers

By Dianne Dupre

Overwhelmed by applications for employment from students at the college, the placement service is consistently busy trying to find jobs for as many as possible.

But this service has a good record as more than 50,000 students in the past 26 years have found employment through it.

Maintaining the placement service as part of the college program of counseling and guidance, the director of the service, Joseph A. Amori, and his assistant, Nora North, provide students and graduates with information concerning employment and help them find suitable positions.

According to Amori, "Placement depends on the applicant's qualifications, the employers' requirements, and economic conditions, but employment opportunities of all types are available."

Students may apply for graduate, part-time or seasonal work.

In addition, Amori provides vocational counseling and confers with instructors and counselors in order to help students determine the kind of work for which they are best suited. This service also provides career planning for students who wish it.

"A special feature of the placement service and the departments of instruction are the two recruitment days held annually," Amori stated. One is for students completing technical-engineering curricula and another is for students completing business and graphic arts curricula.

"During these days more than 100 leaders from business and industry interview qualified students," Amori explained.

The college also helps place graduates of semiprofessional curricula.

Employers Seek Able Students

By Herman Kligerman

Seeking well-qualified applicants, 25 leading Bay Area employers will visit here today as part of the sixth annual business graduate recruitment day.

A total of 100 June graduates will be given an opportunity to "shop" for career jobs during today's program, Joseph A. Amori, placement director here, stated. They come from the business department vocational courses, the graphic arts curriculum, and the photography department.

Women dominate the list with a total of 65 applicants. The largest single group is that of secretary with 34 possibilities.

The remainder are scattered over a wide range of majors, which include advertising art, accounting, general clerical, business machines, and traffic and transportation.

The activities will begin at 8 a.m. with a traditional get-acquainted breakfast for employers and job aspirants in the faculty dining room. Amori, as co-ordinator of this project, will preside.

Louis G. Conlan, college president, will welcome the guests, and Louis G. Batmale, dean of instruction, will speak on the various aspects of the training programs.

Personal interviews of approximately 20 minutes duration each are due to begin at 9:30 a.m. in Cloud Hall.

Employers will have at their disposal a folder for each graduate which consists of a personal data sheet, and five rating sheets. Administrators and business faculty members will be available throughout the interviewing period for consultation.

The day will conclude at 4:30 p.m.

The 25 firms seeking applicants include the California Packing Corporation, Levi Strauss, California Automobile Association, Zellerbach Paper Company, Broadway - Hales Stores, Joseph Magnin, J. C. Penney Co., H. Liebes, Lawrence Radiation Laboratory.

Prudential Insurance Company, Fireman's Fund Insurance Company, Bank of America, Crocker-Anglo Bank, Wells Fargo Bank, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Pacific Mutual Insurance Company, State of California Personnel Board, U.S. Veterans Administration.

Permanente Medical Group, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and Mark Rodman Effective Mail Company.

JOSEPH AMORI announced the visit of 25 leading Bay Area employers for business recruitment day. —Guardsman photo by Ron Burnett.

Interviews To Aid In Final Choices

Closed Circuit TV Draws Near; Summer Classes Set

By Dennis Greene

Closed circuit television is well on its way to reality here as the first of the equipment is due on campus next Monday. Full installation will be completed by June 15, Henry Leff, radio and television instructor here, said last week.

Available immediately for the summer session, a course listed as television workshop 27 (1-3 units) will utilize the new facilities in the arts building.

Left stated that this course is open to all students, whether broadcasting majors or not. Non-broadcasting majors are also invited to enroll, especially those in the departments to be served.

Because it is "a first," the course this summer will be on a small scale as a limited number will be permitted to enroll in the class which will meet daily at 10 a.m.

With the summer class acting as a pilot course, definite plans are presently being undertaken by Leff for eventual use of the facilities next semester in several courses, some of which may be repeated for a maximum of six units.

The new equipment, Leff said, consists of two live cameras, a third camera with a film and slide projection system, the newest lighting equipment plus complete audio facilities—microphones, consoles, tape recorders, turntables—for both radio and television broadcasting.

This equipment will be contained in one large studio, one small studio and a control room. Additional studio space is available by means of camera and microphone outlets on the stage of the theater, in the choral room, the orchestra room, the music appreciation room and the art laboratories.

At the outset it will be possible to broadcast from the studio to seven rooms in the arts building ranging in size from the 20-seat classrooms to the 350-seat theater, thus being able to reach as many as 1200 students at one time.

In the planning stage for fall production are televised classes in commercial art, humanities, typing and shorthand, communications, dental technology, motion picture and still photography, with other teaching areas to be included as time and personnel are made available.

Club Cavalcade

Movie, Dinner On Engineering Club's Agenda For Week

IN CONJUNCTION with the hosting of the Electronic Engineering Technology Association, the Engineering Society here will present a movie entitled Visual Analysis For Engineering, this Friday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in S-136, and their spaghetti dinner this Saturday.

Delta Psi sorority is discussing final plans for their Mother and Daughter dinner to be presented soon. Outstanding pledges and sisters will be awarded pins, and nominations for new officers will be made.

Aiding needy families is the theme of the Hotel and Restaurant Society's spring project. The service committee of the H&R Society picks a charitable task each semester.

In the past the society has collected presents for children in the TB ward of San Francisco General Hospital, and has also done work with orphans.

This semester the service committee is working in co-operation with the California Board of Welfare to provide food in the form of canned goods to destitute families.

There will be an open container outside the H&R office until Friday where any student may leave a contribution for this effort.

Contemporary Affairs Forum will conduct elections of officers for next semester in C-219 this Friday during College Hour. All members are requested to attend.

The Campus Police have revealed plans for their annual dinner, to be held this semester at Ed's Chuck Wagon in West Portal. Pat Watkins, a criminology student at the college, will be guest speaker. A new chief and officers will also be installed.

Election of next semester's officers will highlight the final meeting of the Retail Floristry Club June 1 at the Montclair Restaurant in North Beach.

Floristry students plan to work in various flower shops throughout the city during the summer vacation from classes.

Deadline for all club news is Wednesday at 12 o'clock in The Guardsman office, S-304.

The trip to San Jose in 1850 took nine hours and cost $32 on the triweekly coach; ride on Bayshore during rush hour is now quicker, only seems that long.

Summer Session Registration Binds Student To Attend

Registration for this year's summer session will mean commitment to attend, Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar here, said today.

If an individual decides not to attend the summer session after he has registered for classes, he will receive a grade of F for those units, she warned.

This system will enable those on the waiting list to be notified of acceptance sooner, Miss Somerville said.

Because funds are limited, enrollment must be restricted. Applicants are chosen on a "first come, first serve" basis, and only those who are already enrolled in the college as well as those who have never attended another college are eligible.

Students wishing to attend summer session must first get a program from their counselor, and then they may fill out the registration book. Deadline is Thursday, June 8, in the registrar's office and classes begin on June 26.

The maximum units permitted are six plus physical education, and Miss Somerville warned that students enrolled in business administration 1A, chemistry 1B or zoology 1A-1B may not sign up for additional courses.

SF State To Offer Math Examinations

San Francisco State College representatives will be on campus tomorrow to administer math examinations to students who are planning to enroll there in the business department, according to Llewelyn Snyder of this college's business department.

The test will be given in S-136 from 3:15 to 4:45 p.m. Should a student fail to pass this examination, he may take a similar examination every semester here at the college or upon entrance to San Francisco State.

If students do not pass this or succeeding tests, they will be required to take business math 10 in their first semester at State without credit if they received entrance credit for business 63, 66 or bus. adm. 35.

Student Council Suspends 51% Club Membership Rule

By Dick Dragavon

After a one-semester trial, Student Council finally suspended the rule which required all campus organizations to have a majority of Associated Student cardholders.

Article 3, Section 2 of the Club Activities Board constitution, which states that for any club to be approved as an on-campus organization must have at least 51 per cent of their membership holding AS cards, was suspended earlier this semester to determine whether it would have any effect on card sales.

It was decided that, in view of the record sales for a spring semester this year, most students buy AS cards for other reasons than joining clubs.

The move to abolish this article was started by George Woo, Sophomore Class president and also president of the Chinese Club, which has the largest membership of any group at this college.

Woo contended that clubs were juggling their membership figures so that they could show a majority, thereby defeating the purpose of the rule.

Some clubs, including the Chinese Club, sponsored scholarships which the college would lose if the "AS card majority" rule were enforced, Woo explained.

Council unanimously approved the motion abolishing the rule.

Larry Levin, AS card sales chairman, told council that he planned to investigate the discounts which are given on AS cards and to eliminate the businesses which give discounts to the general public.

"I would rather have six honest discounts," Levin said, "than 21 which have no meaning."

Lest We Forget: Note Reg Time

With program counseling nearing its end, Counselor Walter McCloud urged that students write the time they are to register for next semester on their yellow program card so that over the summer they will not forget the hour.

Those who do not have this information on their program cards were advised by McCloud to check the time schedule for hours of registration. Schedules are posted in the counseling offices and on the bulletin boards around the campus.

Soph Ball Royalty Petitions Due Friday

King and Queen petitions for the Sophomore Ball, scheduled for Saturday, June 3, must be submitted to the Associated Student office, S-140, by tomorrow, George Woo, Sophomore Class president, stated today.

All contestants must be sure to turn in their applications with a four by five inch picture of themselves before the deadline, Woo warned.

AS Presidential Candidates Debate

(Continued from Page 1)

in the college since last semester."

Wilkening came back, however, by saying that Plansky was not quite accurate. He cited as an example the item in the SRP platform which favors a re-evaluation of the AS financial system with the aim of better distribution of AS funds.

Delivering a thrust, Wilkening asked Plansky how he planned to put students back in student government with only 10 USP people running for the 20 offices available.

Plansky replied that he meant all students here, in government or not, should have a voice in AS matters.

Wilkening then went on to say that he felt that knowledge of student government had increased greatly here and charged that USP's 10 candidates were evidence of a lack of interest and knowledge in the party. He also maintained that they had no experience in student government affairs here.

"All candidates have had experience," Plansky stated, "if not here then in their former schools." Plansky added that he felt USP could do better by concentrating on just 10 candidates instead of a group of 20.

"They represent a minority," Wilkening declared.

"You're drawing a line," Plansky came back.

"The line is there," returned Wilkening.

Plansky agreed that the USP candidates were from fraternities and sororities, but stated strongly that they aren't the only groups they represent.

Wilkening said that the plans offered by Plansky in his platform were impossibilities, for most of them concerned decisions by the administration here and also the city and state government.

Plansky stated that his party's platform was made up of goals, "just what a platform should be." He added that if two or three could be accomplished in a relatively short time, the platform would be a success.

"You've got to stand on these goals and accomplish them now," Wilkening returned sharply; "not ten years from now."

Plansky then questioned Wilkening on the order of responsibility as stated in the SRP platform. He maintained that the phrase "better representation of all students" was a contradiction since the order of responsibility read "the whole student body, the interest group and the individual."

Wilkening took a firm stand and said that this should be the proper order of responsibility with the entire student body first. Plansky argued, however, that the individual should be first.

Referring to the proposed unification of the Club Activities Board, the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Council, Plansky said the SRP says it will do it, but fails to state how. He stated that the measure implied force and coercion.

Also present at the debate was Ralph Hillsman, dean of men here, who said that the meeting of the two candidates was good, and praised the idea of Wilkening and Plansky facing each other to discuss their platforms.

"In either case," Hillsman said, "the objective of both parties is good student government here."

The whole discussion was marked by a good natured give and take attitude, with confidence and sincerity displayed by both candidates.

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

The Guardsman

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1961 NUMBER 11

AS Election In Home Stretch Drive Today

Vending Machine Proposition Goes On Ballot As Plansky, Wilkening Vie For Presidency

By Dick Dragavon

Voting for student officers for next semester began yesterday and closes at 2 p.m. today, according to Bob Perkins, election commissioner, who urged all eligible voters to exercise their right to vote.

"There are 2000 students who have Associated Student cards," Perkins stated, "and I would like to see at least half of them use theirs to vote for the student officers."

Two propositions will also be on the ballot.

Proposition A would approve the addition of the Council of Organizations, a group which would combine the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Inter-Sorority Council and the Club Activities Board, in an effort to gain better co-operation among the three groups.

Proposition B seeks student opinion on the question of whether the vending machines should be moved from the basement of Science Hall to another building.

Voting machines are located in three convenient places. In Science Hall there will be two, one in the basement near the vending machines and one at the silver pole. The third machines will be in the entrance to the library in Cloud Hall.

Two parties, the Students Representative Party led by Gary Wilkening, and the United Students' Party headed by Paul Plansky, are sponsoring a total of 30 candidates for the 20 offices open for contention.

Opposing each other for the office of Vice President are Kathy Henderson (SRP) and Deanna Cortopassi (USP).

Seeking other presidential offices are Paul Snowberg (SRP) and Bob Rogers (USP), who are competing for leadership of the Associated Men Students.

Either Jan Doudiet (SRP) or Joyce Nelsen (USP) will be chosen to head the Associated Women Students.

Presidency of the Sophomore Class will go either to Dan Collins (SRP) or Fred Cherniss (USP), while Greg Monk (SRP) opposes Jack Kyle (USP) for the Freshman Class Presidency.

Seven will be chosen to serve as Sophomore representatives on Student Council from these 10 candidates: Marcia McNeely (SRP), Suzanne Murphy (SRP), Larry Levin (SRP), Chuck Wood (SRP), Bill Reichert (SRP), Rick Aguilar (SRP), Caroiee Fromm (SRP), Gary Wayman (USP), Janus Crociani (USP) and Judie Smith (USP).

Eight aspirants seek the Freshman seats on council. They are Ed Pawlus (SRP), Sam Chandler (SRP), Andy Shamiyeh (SRP), Paul Steiner (SRP), Bob Anderson (SRP), Sandy Seils (SRP), Madelaine Prince (SRP) and Maureen Farley (USP).

THOUGH DIFFERING in matters of campus politics, Gary Wilkening and Paul Plansky, candidates for President in the current AS election, agree on one thing—"Let's take a breather!" The AS elections will conclude with the closing of the polls this afternoon.—Guardsman photo by Tom Eggert.

Wilkening Statement

"The Students' Representative Party is running qualified candidates from 18 different organizations on campus and two candidates from the student body at large. Among these are three candidates from fraternities and sororities. We feel that these students must be in some way represented but that no single group should control student government.

"Our candidates for the executive offices are all experienced in student government. For the council positions, we have a good mixture of experienced and enthusiastic new candidates.

"Our rival party with but one exception has had no experience in student government. Witness the fact that their platform changes almost daily.

"Our party has been in government for the past two semesters and knows what needs, to be done to accomplish programs that have already been started.

"SRP has proven itself so far and with approval from you, the voter, will continue its efforts on your behalf."

Plansky Statement

"Both political parties represented in this election are relatively new to the campus. Both parties have had the distinction of being in office two semesters. This election will break the tie.

"We, the United Students' Party, point out to the eligible voters that the essence of this tie-breaking election lies with the candidates running for each office—the candidates and their qualities as individuals.

"The principles embodied in each party's platform make excellent campaign issues but do not determine for the voter any quality of leadership which must convert those platform principles into ACTION.

"During the opposing party's tenure in office it has shown only mediocre, routine capabilities. Proof of this can be seen by the appalling lack of spirit here lately. No one knows better than the STUDENTS.

"This semester's Spring Festival was cancelled. Attendance at football and basketball games has been poor. Audiences at the drama productions are fading into oblivion. Where's that old college spirit?

"Let's regulate it with a vote for UNITY, the United Students' Party!"

WatchWord

Criticism Of U.S. Students Has Faults

By Paul Plansky

STUDENTS attending any college are confronted sooner or later (perhaps quite a bit later) with the often required Freshman course, English 1A.

A standard textbook of prose selections used in the course at this college contains an essay by Gilbert Highet called, The American Student As I See Him. This essay is most frequently assigned to 1A students.

Highet depicts the American student as a jealous, self-satisfying individual, who doesn't hold his education dear. The author describes him as a prospector seeking the tangible rewards which may be unearthed from its culmination rather than the intangible prize of intellect.

He condemns the American student for pursuing an extensive social life and taking his studies in stride instead of devoting himself to serious study and "going ahead of the class."

Highet stresses three particular drawbacks which characterize the simulated inefficiency of the American student: (1) interfering work hours; (2) enormous enrollment, and (3) over-abundance of freedom.

Watchword will attempt to refute each of these accusations and prove that "democracy in education" grows out of political democracy.

We call our argument, The American Student As He Is.

(1) What's wrong with working? We can conceive two realistic reasons why a few hours of employment a day can benefit the college student.

First, there's the financial aspect. The average American youth is not expected neither to float through college on a cushion of scholarships, nor to depend on his parents for support. He must work in order to handle his college expenses.

Second, he gains a realistic contact with the non-academic world. This contact gives the collegian an appreciative attitude toward his studies. By comparing his unglamorous part-time job to the rewarding potential positions a higher education makes possible, the student realizes that it's easier to be educated than employed.

Third, working during his college years teaches the young man to be responsible. It is not the same voluntary responsibility required in school, rather it is an obligatory type—that of function and duty.

(2) The author states that the American student is hindered by the "huge numbers." But is the overflow enrollment in most American universities a hindrance or a help? We believe the condition is an aid, an incentive, an igniter for competition resulting in self-assurance.

Upon entering college, the student must meet standards to qualify for acceptance.

Of course, once he is accepted, he's on his own. This leads directly to the controversy of the student's freedom.

(3) Why shouldn't the young scholar have as much freedom as he can handle sensibly? The university campus should be the proving ground for practicing democratic principles and using their gift of freedom appreciatively.

A person can graduate from the most distinguished university in the world, magna cum laude, become a success in his field, and yet be a failure socially. Unless one can attain well-roundedness along with his academic work, his is only half-educated.

No one can learn how to live out of a text; experience is the best educator in life. Scholastic achievement, however important, is not the final fulfillment of purpose in college, at least not in the American college.

Today's Watchword: Independence.

Country To Honor Fallen On Tuesday

This semester's final holiday will be observed by students here along with the national commemoration of Memorial Day next Tuesday, May 30.

Memorial Day is a time to honor American servicemen who gave their lives for their country. Orizinally, it honored men who died in the Civil War, but it now honors those who died in the Spanish-American War, World Wars I and II and the Korean War.

The Northern states celebrate May 30 as Memorial Day, while most of the Southern states have their own days for honoring the Confederate' deceased.

All classes will resume Wednesday, May 31.

May Fantasy Dance On Tap Friday Night

An ingenious idea of Filipino Club President Edward Castillo could turn an ordinary dance into a huge success this Friday night.

All women students of the college have been invited to attend free as honored guests of the May Fantasy dance.

Free bids will be available to coeds anytime for the May 26 affair. They may be obtained in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150.

"I know this is something new," Castillo stated, "but I'm hoping that the dance will be a big one."

The dance will begin at 9 p.m. in Smith Hall and will last until midnight. Music will be provided by Maury Wolohan's band, which has appeared here in the past.

During the intermission two folk dances, Itik-Itik (duek dance) and Tinkling (bamboo dance) will be presented. The Jolly Teens, a combo, will follow with a few "rock and roll" numbers, and a group of Filipino students will model Filipino dresses, which, Castillo says, will highlight the entertainment.

Attire for the affair is semi-formal, meaning cocktail dresses for women and dark suits with ties for the men. Filipino men may wish to wear their Barong-Tagalog, a Filipino outfit.

Bids are $1.50, stag or drag with an Associated Student card, and $2 without a card. Bids may be purchased at the student bank in Smith Hall or at the door on the night of the dance.

Those working on the dance with President Castillo are Vice President Patricia Lim, Secretary Norma M. Poquiz, Treasurer Rollie Rendon, Sergeant-at-Arms Romy Rito and ex-President Citriano Ayalin.

The dance had been originally scheduled for a date in April and called April Fantasy. When circumstances forced the postponement of the dance until this month, Castillo explained that the dance would carry the label of May Fantasy.

Choir Concert Set For May 29

The college's theater is the site of the annual spring concert presented by the A Cappella Choir and the Men's Glee Club next Monday night, according to Galen Marshall, choral director here.

Curtain time will be at 8 p.m. with admission free and open to the public.

A preview version of the concert is scheduled during College Hour this Friday, also in the theater.

The repertoire will include well-known folk songs, sacred hymns and South American calypso.

Featured soloists will be Sandra Belcher, soprano; Robert Rosenblatt, baritone, and Jacqueline Young, mezzo-soprano. A string orchestra will provide the accompaniment, Marshall said.

One of the highlights of the concert will be a lively version of Marry A Woman Uglier Than You. Soloist will be Leon Dozier.

Drama Department Production Of The Drunkard To Run Through June 10

The Drunkard, America's classic melodrama, opened last Friday in the theater and will run each Friday and Saturday night, starting at 8 p.m., through June 10.

In addition to being American melodrama at its funniest, Drama Director Michael Griffin said that The Drunkard has also been the most successful American play ever written.

It was first performed in the Boston Museum in 1844 where it was seen by the famous circus man P. T. ("There's a sucker born every minute") Barnum.

Barnum then produced the comedy on his own, adding the famous Barnum-style of showmanship that later became almost synonymous with old-fashioned melodrama.

Since its introduction the play has run almost constantly. It even had a 25-year run in Los Angeles that saw the younger actors grow up and play the lead parts.

Terry Sutherland, who also had the lead in Ah, Wilderness!, will again have the lead as Edward, the drunken husband. His poor innocent wife will be portrayed by Leah Pasholan, and their daughter by Ann Osorno.

The fiendish villian, Lawyer Cribbs who collects the overdue rent, is played by Fred Fisher. Anna Maria Papagni plays the man-crazy Miss Spindel, Martha Ross plays Edward's maniac sister, and Randy Jones appears as Edward's brother.

Others in the cast include Mike Corrigan., Luis Barba, Barry Crawford, Margaritte Ramie, Borna Bajurin and Bill Thompson.

The play involves eight sets and 23 scenery changes along with a multitude of melodramatic music and special sound effects and lighting.

The drama concerns a young man who marries a sweet innocent who has been evicted from her home for failing to pay her rent. Edward, unable to support a wife and child, turns to drinking. The play, whose author is unknown, was intended to aid the cause of temperance.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 11 WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1961 Page 2

Memo To Editor-in-Chief: Sit Down; You're Rocking The Vote

IT'S THAT TIME of the semester again. Associated Student elections have rolled around once more, and here we are all ready in the second day of them. In the past at this time editorial writers have cried out against the apathy that so often accompanies an election. They've listed in high-sounding phrases the great privileges there are in being able to vote. They've urged, even demanded, that you go to the polls and vote.

We're not going to do any of that, however. In fact, we wrote ourselves a little memo reminding us not to mention anything of the sort.

We're not going to tell you, as you've been told so many times, what a truly unique privilege it is to be able to go into the polling place and cast a vote for the candidate of your choice. Not a word about it.

We're not going to remind you, as you've been reminded again and again, of the millions of Americans, from the Revolutionary War to Korea, who have given their lives for this worthless little ritual. (And the people in Hungary and Poland and China and Cuba will tell you it is worthless.)

We're not even going to hint subtly about the duties and responsibilities citizenship carries and how they are related to membership in an organization like the Associated Students.

We're not going to drag up that old whipping post and flay away at the few students who, out of the large number of eligible voters here, actually do vote and how just a mere handful of students seems to be electing the officers who represent all AS members. . . . SAY something about it? Never!

WE'RE NOT GOING TO HAMMER HOME THE IDEA THAT THERE'S STILL TIME TODAY TO CAST A VOTE IN THE CURRENT AS ELECTION . . . LEAST OF ALL THIS.

In our memo we also made a vow not to mention such words as duty, responsibility, privilege, sacred, right, freedom and all such other trite and often-used words.

But we hope we've made it clear that there'll be none of this type of thing this semester. After all, you are mature, bright, thoughtful and capable college men and women. We don't have to tell you anything about voting.

Besides, if you want to waste your vote or throw away the very privilege of casting it, that's your business. Go ahead. See if we care.

But never let it be said that we had anything to do with it.

Enter—The Drunkard

ANOTHER PRODUCTION by the college's drama department is now gracing the stage of the theater. The Drunkard, an old-fashioned melodrama, opened last Friday evening, and if past performances may be cited as indications, we believe that the current production will be marked by fine acting and directing and over-all presentation.

The new theater can accommodate larger audiences than the former little theater, and we urgently recommend that students here attend the current production. Associated Student cardholders are admitted free while non-AS members are charged 75 cents. Not bad for a double show; an entertaining drama production and a striking new modern theater.

New Sign Identifies Lounge

WHAT'S THIS GOT TO DO with the new student union? Everything! No, there won't be judo matches, not anything like them. Right now the student union is without faculty supervision, but if scenes like the one above occur, the student union may find itself taking a ten count.

Student Union Wants Hookup To KCSF Radio

When the student lounge opened on April 24 with no signs to identify it, two outcries reverberated around the campus—"Where's Bungalow 4?" and "Oops, sorry, I thought this was Bungalow 4."

Now with the completion of an eight by one foot sign marking bungalow 4 as the student lounge, the situation is remedied.

The purpose of the lounge, with its eight tables, 50 chairs and desks, candy, coke and cigarette machines, is to take some of the pressure from the cafeteria.

There is a possibility in the near future of a hookup with KCSF, the college's radio station, and also a deal with the cafeteria so that sandwiches may be sold in the bungalow. Scheduled for next semester is the addition of a phonograph.

Any registered student at the college is invited to the lounge to relax, converse with friends, or study, if the silence of the library becomes unbearable.

So far, according to Grant Fahs, the lounge has been kept clean.

Fahs is chairman of the committee that helped establish the student lounge. He reports students have been conducting themselves in an orderly manner.

As yet there are no set restrictions for the lounge except that ashes-in-ashtrays and papers-in-wastebaskets is a FIRM rule.

The only policing is done by Student Council representatives and Club Activities Board members who are in charge of keeping order in the bungalow.

Before the conversion, the lounge was used as a music room as evidenced by the music staffs on the blackboard.

War Dead Gone But Not Forgotten

Memorial Day Sets Stage For Memory Of Pearl Harbor Attack

By Robert Hacker

When Memorial Day is observed again Tuesday, students of the college are anticipating the holiday with thoughts of picnics, outings and much of the enjoyment that comes with a national holiday.

But perhaps too few persons will remember the real reasons for the celebration of Memorial Day—this day that has been set aside for the remembrance of those who died while defending their country.

Hugh Philo, a sophomore at the college, will recall a day nearly 20 years ago when the first planes dropped their bombs on Pearl Harbor. The day, December 7, 1941.

As a seaman just out of boot camp Philo was there when the ships burned, the men died and the harbor was destroyed.

He practically owes his life to his own good health. Half of his company had come down with a virus known as—"Cat Fever." It was this half which was transferred to the battleships, while the healthy half, Philo among them, stayed at the submarine base at the administration headquarters.

And the battleships were bombed and destroyed while the submarine base went unharmed.

"Numbing" was the way he described the events of the day, a type of numbness that made him feel "cold and sick."

Missing or dead: That's the way 2300 men were described in the reports. "Some of those men were my friends," Philo commented, "I hadn't known them for very long; they were mainly recruits."

Now when he talks about the bombing there is no bitterness in his voice. He recalls instead the heroism that took place and the victory that ended the war.

Retail Floristry

Classes Grow—
If Students Can Find Annex C

Tucked away neatly in an obscure corner of the campus, the retail floristry department has developed over the last few years an early semester routine that is in direct reversal to that of other courses.

This paradox, which under normal conditions finds a class somewhat diminished after the first few sessions because of dropouts, results from a gradual attendance increase in retail floristry as students, who have spent the initial class meetings in search of Annex C, slowly trickle in.

Annex C, when students do find it, is situated in the northeastern corner of the campus, almost directly across the road from the women's gymnasium. Retail floristry is located on the far side of this building to which access may be gained by entering the gate between the mounted cannons and turning left at the corner of the building.

The problem of determining the exact location of Annex C has extended itself to the open house which the retail floristry sponsors each year.

Many persons have cited one example of how a local floristry merchant, arriving at the college at 7:30 p.m., puffed into the classroom at 9:30 p.m. just as the affair was ending.

At present there are approximately 35 students hidden away in Annex C.

In an attempt to clarify the route to the site of instruction Mrs. Jaeks, who in the past has tried to point out the location from the library window during registration, is preparing a diagram to assist new students in the future.

Foresight

Dreamies Bring Happiness To Man But Conceive A Nightmare World

By Richard Shields

ONCE upon a time an honored caveman pantomimed before ceremonial fires his deed of killing a beast of old, and acting was born.

Through the passing of thousands of years such pantomimes were instilled in tradition and prescribed by ritual, and entertainment was born.

Through more years originality and imagination were utilized, and scenes were dramatized and depicted for the sake of pure entertainment, and the theater was born.

With imagination came vision to man's brain and, with vision, dreams and, with dreams, a terrible longing for fulfillment which fantasy could assuage when hope failed.

Thus with the birth of aspiration and hope, man acquired a fear of reality, and when he became so advanced that he could control his own destiny, reality was harder to face than ever.

The reality which man created, that of nearly limitless power combined with the savagery of his jungle past, became so fearsome that he cowered and trembled before the monuments which he had made to himself.

So he turned the products of his search for entertainment into an ever more efficient means of escape from everyday reality; he used the progress of eons to become, for part of each day at least, a mindless, emotional blob.

The once priceless dreams which had given him God-like inspiration were concentrated on one thing—escape, and that became the sole aim and purpose of his existence—escape from himself.

Movies, television, theaters, music, painting and all forms of art and creation were dedicated to that purpose.

"Dreamies" were invented. Anyone who felt crushed or thwarted by the burdens and trials of man's new world could find escape and peace by plugging himself into a ready-made dream; frustration and fear were eliminated.

Soon there was no one left to "tend the store," for all of man went running away to parties, and riches, and a permanent escape from chores and inescapable realities which dominated ordinary life.

The door to the world of dreamies was a headset, and all people had to do was put it on. Within that world, and there were enough for each person to have one, happiness had no limit.

If a person so desired, he could have incalculable riches, a crown, or even become President of the United States. Man had rediscovered the Eden which he had dreamed of for countless years.

Then one night the stars shone down upon a tranquil earth and there was no man to gaze up at them. Throughout man's struggle to rise from his jungle lairs, the stars had inspired him to look upward.

Then at last, when he could have risen even above the stars, he suddenly turned into himself and buried his soul in a mesh of peace and security.

The lust for survival, the relentless flaming of divine will, the soul, all had gone out of him, and the stars could no longer inspire him to strive for dominion over a universe.

So with his knowledge of how to create a more pleasing life than the one he was given, man turned away from the stars which had lured him upward and the vision which had originally caused him to lift his eyes above the mire at his feet.

The stars went on forever, but the glory they promised man was never realized, for he lay dreaming. And there was no one to say that stars are only distant suns whose man might go. There was no one to say that the earth was young and man might awaken. There was no one to awaken him.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunn
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister
Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.
Reporters: Dick Dragavon, Dienne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, David Kleinberg, Raul Ortega, Christopher Wilde.
Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, William Merrill, Herbert Mizis, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Seiw, Evelyn Thude, Bob Yeary.
Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Eggert, Estuardo Dell'Acqua, Gary Lair.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

The Guardsman SPORTS

Volume 52, No. 11 WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1961 Page 3

RAMBLINGS

AMS Smoker Marks Intramural Finale

By Tom Kennedy

TOMORROW NIGHT'S Associated Men Student smoker marks the end of a highly successful intramural basketball season.

League champions AMS and Alpha Phi Epsilon meet in the playoff battle after both clubs completed a long, sometimes hard, climb to the top of their respective divisions.

If only because of attendance, intramural basketball must be considered a success this semester. AMS President Jim Bush, who helped run the league and is in charge of tomorrow night's festivities, recalls only two forfeits in the entire 60-game schedule.

Success of intramural sports can be a much better gauge of students' physical fitness than intercollegiate sports. Colleges may recruit athletes to play on the intercollegiate level, but intramurals give the individual the choice of participating or not.

It also shows a certain amount of loyalty when students take time to play for their club or fraternity and thus contribute to an activity in which many others share.

OTHER EVENTS, of course, are on the smoker schedule. Coach Roy Diederichsen's boxers will stage their championship bouts.

When Bush was looking for a comedy act, we suggested he use a basketball game between The Guardsman and Tau Chi Sigma. Both clubs were winless on the season, due in a great part to their peculiar methods of ball handling.

One attraction that will not be held is a judo exhibition by Judo Kai. The performance made quite a hit at last semester's smoker, but Judo Kai has since been discontinued because of the lack of faculty sponsors.

Steve Lester, one of the leaders last semester, states that the college supplied good facilities but no one was willing to insure the club against possible injuries.

"Actually, I don't think the sport is any more dangerous than others if the rules are followed," he says.

But judo or no judo, the AMS Smoker still shapes up as a must-see show for tomorrow night.

Netters Fall In Opening Round Of State Tournament

By Tom Kennedy

COLLEGE OF SEQUOIAS COURTS, VISALIA, May 20.—Three Southern California entries had all that was necessary to kill City College hopes in the first round of the state tennis championships, the final net outing of the season.

Los Angeles Valley's Chuck Rombeau knocked out the Rams' lone single entry Jack Bracken in two hard-fought sets, 8-6, 6-3. Rombeau then marched the rest of the way to singles title, beating Reider Getz of Modesto, 6-4, 6-3.

In doubles Bracken-Rich Murray fell to Ralph Lee-Bob Lightbourne of Compton, 8-6, 4-6, 6-4, and John Welles-Paul Barth dropped a 6-4, 6-0 verdict to Jim Kula-Fred Schilling of Fullerton.

Kula-Schilling were not beat until the championship match, when Getz-Tom Mueneh handled them easily, 6-1, 6-3.

Luck also ran out on the Rams in the consolation bracket, as Bracken-Murray lost a 9-7 "pro set" final to Curt Atwood-Bill Davis of Modesto. Bracken cruised through two consolation singles matches until Davis sank him, 11-9, 6-4, in the quarterfinals.

Commenting on this year's club, Coach Roy Diederichsen stated that he was pleased with the mark it had made. The Rams placed second in the Big Eight Conference and third in Northern California, although they were shut out of the individual titles.

"We might have done a lot better if we had better facilities for practices," he stated. "I think it was a tremendous handicap for the players to be forced to practice on different public courts throughout the city."

Golden Gate Park courts were being resurfaced during much of the season, so the Ram netters wound up sharing the Olympic Club's four courts.

Using the fact that Modesto won the state team title as an argument, Diederichsen said, "Players from Southern California have no more natural ability than those from the North; only more facilities usually help them beat our teams."

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

WHEN I was a little boy, I thought Gary Cooper was the tallest man in the world. The nicest one, too. He was great. I remember him as Wild Bill Hickok in The Plainsman. I cried when he was shot in the back. I was only a little boy then.

Gary Cooper is dead. I am no longer a little boy, but I feel like crying again.

In his lifetime he won three Academy Awards. This seems a little strange considering that everyone said, and he readily admitted, he was no actor.

One of his earliest starring roles was in The Virginian. How fitting that he was the first man ever to voice the words that have become identified with the "good guy" of American westerns, "When you call me that, smile!"

From then on, he WAS the American cowboy.

He was tall and quiet. His face was handsomely weatherbeaten and he sat a saddle well. Although he never unnecessarily used one, he was one of the fastest, on or off the screen, with the single-action Colt revolver.

A count might show that he played other roles as often as that of The Man Of The West. He still came across as the same man, or at least the same type of man, even when he was Mr. Deeds, John Doe, Beau Geste or Good Sam.

His last Oscar was not for a role he played but for the life he led. They said they gave it to him for his humility. He earned that one, and it certainly was for no acting job.

His other two prizes were for his portrayals of Sergeant York and the marshal in High Noon. He came close earlier for playing Lou Gehrig.

The roles are familiar to millions.

It was always said around Hollywood that Gary Cooper on the screen always played Gary Cooper.

Come to think of it, this is true. This is why he was twice named best actor by the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences and nominated a third time.

For in each movie he portrayed a simple, peaceloving, quiet and humble man who, when the showdown came, showed the whole world that he had one hell of a lot of guts.

This Week In Sports . . .

THURSDAY

- AMS Smoker in men's gymnasium, 7 p.m.

SATURDAY

- Track—State championships at Modesto.

MONDAY

- Block SF Banquet in Smith Hall, 6:30 p.m.

WEEKEND RESULTS

- Track—Fresno 50½, San Francisco 50, San Mateo 50, Monterey 48, College of Sequoias 43 3/5, Oakland 41.
- Tennis—Modesto 7, Los Angeles Valley 6, San Diego 5.

Block SF Honors 67 Athletes At Biannual Banquet Monday Night

By Dave Kleinberg

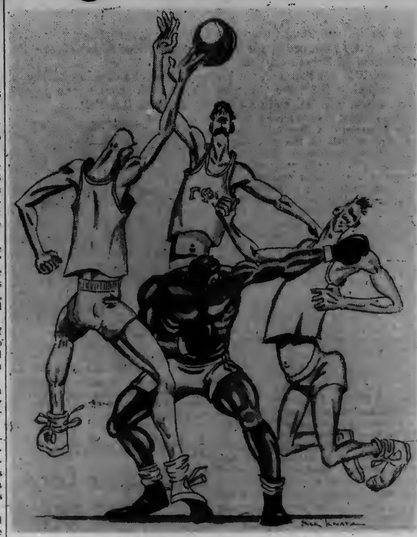
With Bob St. Clair, San Francisco Forty-Niner tackle as guest speaker and Bob Richardson, president of the Block SF, as master of ceremonies, Block SF sponsor Louis Vasquez announced that 67 athletes will receive their awards at the Block SF banquet at 6:30 p.m. Monday in Smith Hall.

Basketball players who earned their letters are Jesse Arterberry, Orlando Camp, Brad Duggan, Dave Roberts, John Cheil, Glenn Wold and Rich Lane. Willie Rockmore, Bob Grayson and Vince Rocchi have won theirs for the second year.

The six golfers who won their letters are first year men George Benkie, Grant Fahs, Bruce Hubley, Gary Mialocq, Steve Simon and Larry Sugimoto.

Swimmers who earned their blocks are John Holm, Eli Silver and Fred Vogel. Alan Stevens and Rich Sullivan won their second blocks.

Five athletes earned letters in tennis. They were Randy Chun, Richard Murray, John Wells, Paul Barth and Jack Bracken, the latter two winners for the second year.



Varsity baseball claims 15 letters: Gary Attell, James Carroll, Frank Gable, Art Groza, Don Meroff, Mike Moran, Ed Preston, Dennis Russell, Ray Tompkins and Jessie Wilson. Robert Lane, Don Lowpensky, Eric Lyons, Rich Medinglia and Randy Pace were winners for the second year.

Track men who won their letters are Ray Bautista, Jack Botkin, Elvin Bridges, Othello Carr, Claude Cooper, Alex Darnes, Robert Ely, Ray Hearne, Bob Hector, Bill Holman, John Kelly, Herman McKee, Bill Miles, Wade Pittman, Tom Piggee, Roger Ritchey, Bob Shenk, Jose Valle and Carlin Vance.

Second year winners were Tony Ferrigno, Bill Hotchkiss, Frank James, Tom Jennings, Jim Nichols, Jim Nigra and Bob Taylor.

Junior varsity basketball awards were not given this year.

Smoker Features Glove, Cage Finals On Thursday

CATCHING THE SPIRIT of tomorrow night's AMS Smoker, art student Nick Khatz depicts two lanky cagers tipping off for the AMS-Alpha Phi Epsilon playoff basketball game, while one of Coach Roy Diederichsen's "headless wonder" boxers takes an unscheduled jab at another hoopster.

AMS Challenges Alpha Phi Epsilon In 7 p.m. Tilt

By Ivan Temes

An action-packed program of championship basketball and boxing mixed with entertainment is promised for tomorrow night's semi-annual Associated Men Student smoker, according to Jim Bush, AMS president.

Slated to begin at 7 p.m. in the men's gymnasium, the program pits the AMS, unbeaten titlists of the Club Activities Board League, against Alpha Phi Epsilon, crown-holders of the Inter-Fraternity League, for the intramural basketball championship.

Led by Harbie Briscoe and a strong supporting cast, AMS will be out to defeat their once-beaten opponents, whose fine team effort edged out the defending champion Untouchables and Alpha Kappa Rho for first place in their league.

Briscoe, Dave Tofanelli, John McKown, Fred Pryor and Dan Pucillo are probable AMS starters with John Giles, Eli Horn, Mel Oliver, Bill Threadgill and Bob Harrell set to oppose.

Trophies await the league's overall high scorer and winning team while medals will be awarded to the members of the winning and runner-up squads.

Concluding the evening will be the nine championship boxing bouts, ranging in class from 120 pounds up to heavyweight.

In the 120-pound match Fuad Sahouria goes against Bill Wagner, while the batiling 130-pounders are Gary Rodriquez and Charlie Kehoe in what promises to be a real scrap.

John Bryant squares off against 136-pounder Gary Marble, nephew of tennis immortal Alice Marble, while 142-pounders Pete Zouzounis and Joe Smulen fight it out.

The 148 and 155-pound matches pit, respectively, Fusebio Manois against Joe Bankston and John Grillos versus Jim Ahern.

A 165-pound tiltist will come from either John Young or Eberha Wiedenmeyer and 175-pounders Charles Hollie and Fred Oberfelder are expected to put on a real battle. In the featured heavyweight bout, Don Olocco will trade punches with John Lovell.

Larry Mitchell, a San Francisco Examiner Golden Gloves finalist this year, will referee the matches which will each consist of three 1½-minute rounds with the participants wearing headgear.

Going to the winners and runners-up, respectively, will be gold and silver medals while the top boxer and "fightingest fighter" in the competition are to receive trophies.

Bush said that admission is free with an AS card, 75 cents otherwise.

Fraction Costs Spikers Nor Cal Title; State Meet Saturday

By Ivan Temes

HUGHES STADIUM, SACRAMENTO, May 20.—After an afternoon of torrid track performances which broke eight meet and one national record, Fresno barely emerged as the new Northern California junior college champion by one-fifth of a point over San Francisco and San Mateo.

With the top four men in each event going to the state meet at Modesto Saturday, Alex Darnes led the Ram qualifiers by taking first place in the discus with a toss of 154-9½ feet.

Though top-rated Ray Hearne failed to make it in the broad jump, Lou Vasquez men still took first and third place as Elvin Bridges and Othello Carr went 23-8 and 23-3, respectively.

Taking fourth in both the mile and two-mile as San Mateo's highly rated Jeff Fishbaek won both events, Frank James was the sole other Ram who could finish higher than sixth in any event as his team was edged by Fresno 50½-50.

Everything else that happened today was overshadowed by the spectacular performance put on by Oakland Sophomore Overton Williams who won the 100 in 9.6 and came back to shatter the oldest mark in the national junior college record books by a flying 20.4 in the 220.

Point vault: Beale (Fres.), tie for second among Watts (SJ), Redman (S), Shafer (COS), 10-6.

High jump: Johnson (Fresno), Hearne (SF), Hamilton (S), tie among Palmer (MPC) and Malone (Fres.), 6-6 (Brooks record of 6-5 to Costa, SF, in 1958.)

Broad jump: Bridges (SF), Craig (Fresno), Carr (SF), Rivado (COS), 23-8.

Shot-put: Hahn (MPC), Reyes (O), Rooters (Fres.), Parker (M), 51-10½.

Discus: Darnes (SF), Rooters (Fres.), Rooney (OC), Parks (R), 154-9½.

Mile: Fishback (SM), Davidson (S), Avila (Hart.), James (SF), 4:15.1 (new meet record).

440: Bruce (Han.), Noel (SJ), Petrinovich (COS), Petersen (MPC), 47.2 (new meet record added).

100 high hurdles: Little (SM), Nickolas (V), White (COS), Wilkerson (O), 14.5 (ties meet record, wind aided).

880: Chappell (SJ), Lee (SM), Tielamans (MPC), Grosthoff (SM), 1:53.1 (new meet record).

220: Williams (O), Dotson (MPC), Hall (PC), Berry (Han.), 20.4 (new national JC record, Old record 20.5 by Hal Davis, Salinas, 1941).

220 low hurdles: Nickolas (V), White (COS), Garmon (CC), Little (SM), 23.5 (new meet record).

Two-mile: Fishback (SM), Avila (Hart.), Henry (R), James (SF), 9:34.8.

Mile relay: Hancock, COS, MPC, San Jose, San Mateo, San Francisco, 3:18.1 (new meet record).

Rams Drop From First Division

Definitely hindered by the loss of two first-string players, Don Meroff and Jim Carroll, through scholastic ineligibility, the Ram baseballers dropped out of a first division finish by losing their last game of the season to Santa Rosa, 14-5.

Starting pitcher Art Groza absorbed the loss, which brought his record to two wins and five defeats in league play.

Powerful Meroff was lost just before the Sacramento double-header was to be played. His bat could have certainly helped the Rams in their 2-1 loss in the first game.

Carroll was missed largely because of his valuable defense at the catching position.

Dennis Russell, an outfielder, was put in as a last-minute replacement and performed very well considering his experience. But passed balls and dropped throws proved to be one undoing in the last game.

Frank Gable and Ed Preston led the team in hitting with respective averages of .455 and .378.

Preston turned out to be a surprise at the end of the season, proving that he could pitch as well as hit.

He earned a win against Santa Rosa in the team's previous meeting, but had to be content to remain in right field for the second encounter. In the first game his varied curve-ball deliveries had the Bear Cubs baffled.

Gable is expected to make the All-League team.

Batting averages and All-League teams and Big Eight standings will be released as soon as they are received from Sacramento.

Locals End Season At State Golf Fest

Winning the State junior college golf tournament for the third straight year, San Mateo defeated second place Phoenix by five strokes as the Rams finished in 15th place to complete their season.

The Bulldogs' four-member team totaled 606 in the 36-hole tournament with the local quartet taking 663 strokes.

City College's individual scores showed Gary Mialocq low man with 78-78—156; Grant Fahs, 77-84—161; George Benkie, 80-88—168; Larry Sugimoto, 96-82—178.

Twenty colleges participated in the two-course tourney where pars are 70 and 72. Ram Coach Grover Klemmer said the courses had very narrow fairways and tremendously fast greens which made the tourney a real toughie.

Low individual scores for the competition were Ken Kirkpatrick, San Diego, 68-75—143; Harian Krantz, Sacramento, 73-72—145; Felix Claveri, Stockton, 73-73—146, and Bill Farkas, 65-81—146.

New Engineering Lab Due

Science Hall Facility Opens In Fall; Purpose Three-Fold

A second electrical laboratory is in the process of construction here, jointly financed by the Federal government and the San Francisco Unified School District.

Dean William Mayo stated last week that the new laboratory, to be located in S-38, the old Little Theater, adjacent to the present laboratory, will be ready for use by students this Fall.

WILLIAM MAYO, dean of instruction, announced that the new engineering laboratory will be ready for use next semester.

Mayo stated that the need for the new laboratory is threefold. It will be used to relieve the pressure of student enrollments in the present classes, allow for expansion of enrollments in the existing electronic and electrical engineering technology curricula, and allow. for introduction of new curricula and apparatus.

The total cost of remodeling and the installation of equipment and wiring is estimated at $54,508, half of which will be paid from Federal funds through Title III, Part A, of the National Defense Education Act of 1958.

The equipment to be installed and wired includes switchboards and patch panels, circuit breakers, outlets, motor generators, rectifiers, resistance banks and tables.

The present laboratory is in use every weekday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., with the exception of three hours on Friday afternoons.

Such concentrated use of this type of laboratory is not considered to be in the best interests of education, as the present number of students using the laboratory is 124 in seven sections giving a total of 744 student contact hours per week. This is one of the main reasons for the expansion.

Classes benefiting from this will be engineering 52 A, B, C and D, and engineering 55, 62, 72A and 72B.

One formal follow-up study was made of the graduates of the engineering programs. It showed three things. A very high percentage of men are still working in the field in which they trained; training was of tremendous value to them on the job, and about 25 per cent of them were supervising more than six men five years after graduation.

Club Cavalcade

6 Organizations Aid Community Plan Activities

By Sandy Sells

THE SORORITIES on campus are now actively engaged in planning for future activities, according to Georgene Peterson, president of Gamma Kappa Beta.

The newest project undertaken by Delta Psi is that of helping bedridden children with their hobbies and entertaining them in ways enjoyable to the youngsters.

These children are restricted to their homes with limitations ranging from a 9-year-old boy's broken leg to a 16-year-old girl's handicap of polio.

Barbara Giannini, president of Delta Psi, reported the sorority's pledges received their pins at a meeting held last Saturday in their honor.

In the process of securing toys for the bedridden children of the San Francisco City and County Hospital is Gamma Sigma Sigma, the college's service sorority, stated Margaret Lindstrom, president.

The next project will be an enjoyable one, that of entertaining the servicemen at Letterman Hospital on the third Tuesday of each month.

A Bohemian party, on the list of Delta Sigma Tau, was held last Friday night with Alpha Phi Epsilon, Shirley Wheatley, president of the sorority, stated.

Kappa Phi elected new officers last week to serve for the fall semester, Janice Benetti, president, reported. Now on the agenda are plans for a dinner to be held during the first week of June honoring eight new pledges.

Their service project is carried out at Mariners' Hospital, where every Thursday pre-school age children are entertained with stories, songs and games.

Every Friday Phi Beta Rho entertains other children at the same hospital, with three members of the sorority as volunteers, Pat Comerford reported.

Theta Tau has the idea of making slippers out of blankets for a service project, Doris Dacigalupi, president, said. These slippers are made for persons at the San Francisco City and County Hospital who otherwise could not afford them.

The Engineering Society will take a field trip to Bethlehem Steel Company, South San Francisco, at 12:15 Thursday, June 1. Anyone interested may meet at the Ram then.

Members of the Publicity Committee have been helping the staff of the 1961 Handbook, which will be given to the new freshmen next fall. Three thousand copies are printed for the students.

Alpha Kappa Rho fraternity will hold its semi-annual pledge dinner on Sunday, June 18. During the banquet awards will be presented to the outstanding pledge and brother.

A campus meeting is in order for the Newman Club during College Hour this Friday in S-204. New officers elected are Jim Horan, president; Margaret Cota, vice president; Tom Mullen, treasurer; Kathleen Canton, recording secretary; Pat Welch, corresponding secretary; Steve Freeman, historian, and Burt Lauray, sergeant-at-arms.

Chinese Club students plan to hold a picnic Saturday at Marin Town and Country Club. Students will provide their own transportation.

Counselors Seek Uncalled Students

Some students still haven't been given counseling appointments, Walter McCloud, counselor, stated recently, but if they haven't been called by the end of this week he urged that they see their counselor anyway.

Pre-programming, the trial system which put an end to the pre-registration crushes of previous semesters and assures the good student of the program he needs, is scheduled to end on or around June 1.

The programming system will receive its final test after the summer vacation when over 7000 students are expected to register on September 5, 6 and 7.

Sheraton Corporation To Present Award To H&R Dept. This Friday

To recognize the Hotel and Restaurant's "outstanding achievements and contributions to the H&R industry," the Sheraton Hotel Corporation will award it a perpetual plaque at a dinner Friday, according to Lawrence B. Wong, director of H&R placement.

Also to be rewarded will be an H&R student. The winner will be announced at the affair and will be selected from three finalists in the competition.

The finalists are Sharlene Ascher, Joe Stalling and Tom Craighead. All three are graduating in June.

Feminine Fling Set For June 2

Outstanding women students of the 1961 Spring semester will be formally honored at the semi-annual Feminine Fling to be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. June 2 in Smith Hall, Pat Crone, Associated Women Student president, stated today.

Summer In The Tropics will be the motif for the affair, which is sponsored jointly by the Inter-Sorority Council, the Recreation Association and the AWS.

Hawaiian and Philippine dancers will bring out the tropical theme of the event. A Tahitian singer and a Jamaican dancer will add a final tropical touch to the program.

An informal modeling of resort wear from Casual Aire Dress Shop is under the supervision of Sue Murphy.

The sorority with the highest grade point average will be awarded the Margaret Dougherty Trophy, given in honor of the late dean of women.

A service award will be presented by the AWS to one of the college's outstanding women students, Miss Crone said.

Jobs Available, Experience Lags

Overwhelmed with applicants for summer employment, the Placement Service here under Joseph A. Amori, director, is doing its best to locate jobs for students.

"The irony of the whole deal is that despite wide unemployment, excellent jobs remain unfilled because applicants do not have the necessary training and skills," Amori declared in commenting on the problem of finding suitable summer jobs.

"Even though the facilities and instruction are available," Amori asserts, "not enough students are spending adequate time in picking up marketable skills in their college studies."

He predicts that, as in previous years, many jobs will remain open because of the above reasons.

College Hour Film Rebuts Soviet Threat

A Letter To Moscow, the American answer to the Soviet challenge, will be presented as Friday's College Hour film presentation in S-136, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor.

Devlin stated that the film replies to Premier Khrushchev's statements that Communism will triumph over free enterprise.

The film maintains that the degree of freedom given to the individual American will profit him and his nation more than any dictatorship can.

The roar of Victoria Falls on Africa's Zambezi river can be heard 20 miles. Its great plume of water vapor is visable for seven miles.

Student Faculty Lecture Series, AS Card Design Receive Council Approval

By Dick Dragavon

A student-faculty lecture program for next semester which will provide for four lectures and four concerts and include a program with faculty participation received the unanimous approval of council last week.

The program was submitted by Gary Wilkening, student faculty relations chairman, who explained that the faculty would provide one lecture possibly by having a panel discussion on some subject.

The faculty association would also assume the cost of one of the concerts, Wilkening said.

Council also discussed at length the problem of soliciting Associated Student card design, before approving the plan which was submitted by the advertising art department.

Although council and cabinet members considered the design acceptable, they felt that they should have more than one to select from.

Some felt that by appealing to the students to submit their own designs they might receive as many as 10 to 15 card plans.

It was thought that the signature of the student whose design was accepted could be printed on the card, as the artist's signature appears on his paintings.

Council felt that recent financial adjustments may have been the result of cutting the sports budget too much earlier in this semester.

The results of the recent book drive for Asian students were announced by Councilman Ciprinno Ayalin. Although he was not certain whether the collection here was greater than at College of Marin, who had challenged this college, he felt the figures of 384 books and 100 journals rated high.

Balloting Begins Next Week For Soph King, Queen

Using the penny-a-vote method as in the past, the Associated Student members next week will select a King and Queen to reign at the Sophomore Ball scheduled for Saturday evening, June 3.

According to Class President George Woo, starting next Monday, May 29, until Friday, June 2, students here will have an opportunity to drop their coins in the containers of the candidates of their choice.

For the voter's convenience, these cans will be placed in three locations, Science Hall near the silver pole, in Smith Hall and in the arts building.

A chart will be posted at one of the sights showing the progress of the voting.

According to Woo, 20 contestants from clubs, fraternities and sororities on campus will take part in the contest.

One of the main highlights of the Soph Ball will be the crowning of the King and Queen during the intermission. At this time, the winners will also be presented with a trophy engraved with their names, and the Queen will receive a bouquet of flowers, Woo added.

The Gold Room of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel will be the site of the dance this year.

Admission will be by the same method used for the Frosh Ball. All couples will be required to have a bid which will allow them to be admitted at no cost. These bids will be limited to AS cardholders and their dates only.

Students will be dancing to the music of the Sal Vance Orchestra from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Two photographers, Pete Reyes and Ciprians Ayalin, students at the college, will also be present to take pictures of all couples.

Since the coronation ceremony will take most of the time during the intermission, Woo and the other Sophomore officers decided that no additional entertainment will be needed.

Woo described appropriate attire for the ball as being cocktail dresses for the women and dark suits for the men.

Distribution Of Forum Magazine Starts Monday

Distribution of this year's edition of Forum, the college's literary magazine, will begin next Monday, Mary Ann Kaylor, Forum editor, announced today.

Copies may be obtained in C-331a either by presentation of an Associated Student card or payment of 50 cents. As the supply of magazines is limited, distribution will be on a first-come, first-served basis, she said.

Miss Kaylor also stated that those students whose contributions were not published may reclaim their manuscripts during the first week of June in the Forum office.

Out of 202 articles submitted, approximately 20 were published in Forum. The material that was printed was balanced evenly between prose and poetry.

The cover of Forum, as well as the ads, is the work of the advertising art department, which is under the supervision of instructor William Eckert. Miss Kaylor expressed gratitude to Eckert for "his assistance with this year's Forum publication."

A ram's horn will adorn the black and green cover that was selected.

Forum, which is compiled exclusively by students and supported largely through its own advertising, is now in its 26th year of publication on campus.

Seating Situation In Cafeteria Eases; Cliques Still Problem

Seating in the college cafeteria, the finicky problem which plagues the campus each semester, has improved considerably during peak hours and should continue to do so, according to Sherman Elworthy, student government adviser.

The key to the problem is co-operation during the rush hours. "Most people tend to eat and leave, but we are still having problems with the organized groups. However, most of the students realize that others must eat," Elworthy said.

Elworthy took particular pains to explain the seriousness of non-members of the college using the cafeteria. "Only students, faculty and guests registered at the dean's office have the right to use the cafeteria.

"Students should carry their registration cards with them when they enter the cafeteria. To use the cafeteria illegally is trespassing, just as much as if someone would come into your home without your permission."

Even though students have been urged to use the new student union and lounge, Elworthy reports that it is not doing well. "I guess it's kind of lonesome, but facilities will be expanded next Fall."

The cafeteria, which was opened in 1955, holds 680 students, and this is where the problem lies, Elworthy added. The student body population is almost 10 times that number, and during rush hour, from 11 a.m. to 12 noon, it reaches capacity or near capacity.

Though it appears the cafeteria could be larger, Elworthy said, "Our situation is not unusual. Other colleges get along without large cafeterias. It's the old story of the few making it tough on the many."

Dental Capping To Be Held In Candlelit Rite

Nine future dental assistants will receive their caps in a candlelight ceremony tomorrow night in the new theater, Ruth Inskipp, program coordinator, said today.

In addition to the caps they will also receive seniority status in the dental assisting course, after having satisfactorily completed three semesters of study.

Dr. John Sapone will be the principal speaker at tomorrow night's affair. Guests will also hear Dean Louis Batmale, Mrs. Inskipp and Sharon Sadler, class representative, speak.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate an expected crowd of 300, Mrs. Inskipp stated. Refreshments are to be provided and served by second semester students, whereas upper division students, or the "Big Sisters," will assist in the ceremony itself.

The nine more important participants in the dental assisting department's 13th capping ceremony are Kathy Dunn, Yasuko Ekusa, Jeanette Fambrini, Carolee Fromm, Julia Louie, Miss Sadler, Pat Steffen, Lillian Stell and Judith White.

The ceremony, which in the past has been conducted in the cafeteria, is scheduled to start at 8 p.m. and last until 10 p.m.

Wilkening Tops Plansky In SRP Sweep

HEARTIEST CONGRATULATIONS are offered to Gary Wilkening (left), the newly-elected Associated Student President, by Paul Plansky (right), rival for the post. Wilkening led his party in a clean sweep of all the AS offices.

Victor in one of the hardest fought political battles here in recent history, Wilkening said:

"I would like to thank the students of City College for expressing their confidence in the candidates and programs of the Students Representative Party.

"This election shows that the students of City College are interested in helping improve the status of City College and know who is really interested in advancing student government.

"The Students Representative Party will continue to represent all the students and to put through the programs that the students have approved by their votes.

"I would again like to thank the students for their confidence in the Students Representative Party and in me. The ideas and interests of all the students will continue to be considered in next semester's student activity program."

—Guardsman photo by Tom Eggert and Roger Nissim.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1961 NUMBER 12

WatchWord

Automobiles! The Hindrance To Progress

By Paul Plansky

IT ALL STARTED when Henry Ford released the "reins" of his horseless carriage. Since then the American automobile has come to stand for social status, stand still in traffic tieups and, figuratively, stand over the victims of its fatal accidents.

Ford produced his first "Model T" in 1909, and by 1914 the number produced jumped to the half-million mark. This first automobile had as its purpose cheap transportation, and was not the moving glass and chrome showcase of stylistic design that it is today.

In this age of materialistic competition, the auto no longer represents wheels for transportation but wealth for ostentation. To the social climbers it symbolizes another asset on their road to respectability, another feather in their cap of conceit.

As great an invention as the motor car was, it has proved to be a liability which has recoiled and struck back at its inventor like a mechanized monster. The results have been ruthless—human lives cannot be mass-produced on an assembly line.

Although the effect of this liability wasn't immediate because of the insignificant number, eventually MILLIONS of lives have been buried beneath the bloody pavement of the monster's turnpikes and freeways.

To alleviate the situation, speed limits were reduced and checked by radar, cars carried more safety devices and strict penalties were enforced to punish violators of the vehicle code. Yet, the mass "motorcide" continues.

However serious is this killing off of the American public one by one, the future holds even a worse dilemma—the absolute entanglement and stranglement of America's metropolitan areas.

The urbanites have become so possessed with the mania for ownership of automobiles that their cars have become the most wasteful and space-consuming commodity on the American market.

During Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United States, he was appalled at the tremendous waste of space in commuter transportation. In all the freeway jams during the rush hours, nine out of ten cars had only one occupant, the driver.

The automobile is obsolete. Clear the airways, rails and underground for the future. We're coming through.

When eight-lane freeways aren't wide enough any more, it's time to take to the air.

Today's Watchword: Progress.

Sophs Meet Tomorrow For Pre-Commencement Awards

By John Muller

A presidential proclamation from Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, will excuse all graduating Sophomores from their 10 o'clock classes tomorrow for a pre-commencement assembly in the college theater, Mary Golding, dean of women, announced last week.

During the assembly, 54 students will be awarded an estimated $8000 in scholarships.

The pre-commencement program will feature selections by the Men's Glee Club under the direction of Galen Marshall, and addresses by President Conlan, George Woo, president of the Sophomore Class, and Donald Snepp, English instructor.

• In memory of the late Archibald J. Cloud, first president of the college, $50 scholarships will be presented to Harry Cordellos and Patricia Gow.

• Graduating Class of 1960 scholarships will be awarded to Mary Meacham, Selma Rubier, Linda Wilson, Sophia Yang, Richard Feil, Bernard Friedman, Rex Holloway and Frank Thomas.

• Dr. J. Paul Mohr scholarship will be presented to Bruno Brader.

• Alpha Phi Omega's $125 activities scholarships go to Robert Urrea and John West.

• Chinese Students' Club scholarship will be awarded to Alice Abbey, Eva Tom, Alex Dong and Ron Hennessy.

• Square and Circle scholarships of $125 will go to Jane Chow and William Ong.

• The Alice Eastwood scholarships will be presented to Richard Wilson, Kenneth Borelli, Frank Korkmazian, Homer Quon, James Schulz and Albert Williams.

• Hotel and Restaurant scholarships go to Maxwell Bailey, Oner Cherry, Sophrona Burnell, Robert Fimiglia, Roger Hagemann, Dennis Gomes, Ronald Jackson, Bruce Lindal, Owen McClurg, Richard Smith, Joseph Stallings, Guy Suchomel, Fulton Naklevick, Reuben Levy, Rodney Harris, Thomas Kassis, Howard Degon, Gary Bedsworth, Edsel Dent, Martin Bohlen, David Sommers and Thomas Craighead.

• University of California scholarship, State of California scholarship and the National Jewish Women's Committee scholarship were won by John McKown, Jan Vanderburgh and Barbara McMillan Paoletti, respectively.

• Helene Mayer scholarship, Margaret Dougherty scholarship and Janet Donman scholarship will be awarded to Jan Vanderburgh, Elizabeth Oczkowski and Sheree Moores.

• The California Association of Nurserymen scholarship will be presented to Alex Woolworth, and the San Joaquin Surveyors Conference scholarship will be presented to Charles Figone.

Presenting the awards will be Mrs. William Newmann, Sanford Saiki, Jack Wisk, Marcelline McDermott, Lloyd Luckmann, Dean Golding and Woo.

Three Grads To Speak At June Commencement

Winners of the student speaker tryouts held May 12 for the 26th annual commencement ceremonies were announced recently by William Culver, one of the 12 speaker judges.

Three of the seven students who tried out for the honor of student speaker won because of the quality of their speeches and speaking ability.

They are Thomas Craighead, a hotel and restaurant major; Joyce Lamas, a business major, and Peter Koch, an electrical engineering major.

Craighead will be the first speaker on the program, followed by Miss Lamas and then Koch.

Students receiving certificates of completion during the commencement program, which will be held in Riordan High School auditorium, will be comprised of graduates from the entire year. These include the 1960 summer session and the Fall 1960 and Spring 1961 semesters.

During the program certificates will be given instead of Associate in Arts degrees, which will be mailed later because final grades will not be determined until after the commencement exercises are over.

John Brady, co-ordinator, division of student welfare here, urged all graduating students to make sure that the registrar's office has their correct addresses.

A major event of the commencement ceremonies will be the presentation of the President's Award Plaque to the man and woman graduating students who, during their enrollment here, gave the most service to the college.

Another major event will be the presentation of the Scholastic Cup to the two students, a man and a woman, who have achieved the highest grade-point average.

Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men; Mary Golding, dean of women, and William Richardson, faculty adviser to Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, will assist in presentation of traditional and special commencement awards.

Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction, will introduce the candidates for certificates, and Louis G. Conlan, the college's president, will confer the certificates.

Henderson Wins VP Post; Class Offices Go To Collins, Monk

By Dick Dragavon

Gary Wilkening, in leading the Students Representative Party to a clean sweep at the Associated Student elections last week, beat the United Students' Party candidate, Paul Plansky, by a 144-vote margin in one of the hardest fought campaigns in recent history here.

A crowd which had gathered to see the results posted in the AS office broke into loud cheers and applause as each SRP candidate's name was listed and as it became obvious that the party had captured every office.

Order was restored briefly as Dean Ralph Hillsman congratulated the winners and suggested that they "be magnanimous and humble" in their victory.

"You must now close ranks in order to keep student government here constantly on the climb," Hillsman said.

Wilkening polled 345 votes to win the AS Presidency from Plansky, who received 201, and this proved to be approximately the same margin of victory in all of the executive offices.

For Vice President, Kathy Henderson also received 345 votes to 193 for Deanna Cortopassi.

Paul Snowberg defeated Bob Rogers by 342 to 195 for the office of Associated Men Student President, and Jan Doudiet won over Joyce Nelson with 332 votes to 201 in the contest for Associated Women Student President.

Dan Collins was elected Sophomore Class President with 346 to Fred Cherniss' 198, while the Freshman Presidential office was captured by Greg Monk with 340 votes to 184 for Jack Kyle.

Monk received the news of his victory in the hospital, where he has been recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident.

The seven receiving the highest totals for Sophomore seats on Student Council were SRP candidates Chuck Wood, Suzanne Murphy, Marcia McNeely, Carolee Fromm, Larry Levin, Rick Aguilar and Bill Reichert.

Freshman Council electees were Sandy Sells, Bob Anderson, Pam Chandler, Ed Pawlus, Paul Steiner, Madelaine Prince and Andy Shamiyeh.

Both Propositions A and B were favored by great majorities.

Proposition A approved the formation of the Council of Organizations under the Student Council, and Proposition B expressed the students' opinion overwhelmingly that the vending machines should remain in the basement of Science Hall.

Election Commissioner Bob Perkins stated that it was one of the highest turnouts for a spring semester, with 568 votes cast, but felt that it should have been much higher as there are 2000 eligible voters.

"Besides factors resting with the students, some reasons why we didn't get a larger participation were the bad weather at the election rally and the fact that KCSF was out of order," Perkins asserted.

Lack of help to run the polls also may have contributed, as he had to close a few of the machines for short periods of time, Perkins explained.

Feminine Fling Motif Friday Is Tropic Summer

Summer In The Tropics is the motif for this semester's Feminine Fling to be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. this Friday in Smith Hall, Pat Crone, Associated Women Student president, stated recently.

The semi-annual affair is sponsored jointly by the Inter-Sorority Council, the Recreation Association and the AWS.

The sorority with the highest grade point average will be awarded the Margaret Dougherty trophy, given in honor of the late dean of women. Last semester Gamma Sigma Sigma, with a 2.5 grade point average, was awarded the trophy. Runners-up were Phi Beta Rho and Gamma Kappa Beta.

The AWS service award will be presented to the woman student who has given outstanding service to the college throughout the semester, Miss Crone said.

Decorations, under the chairmanship of Hope Vogel, will bring out a tropical motif. Supervising the publicity for the affair is Sandi Shaw, and registration is being handled by Sue Williams.

Refreshments will be in the form of a fruit salad bar with individual helpings being served by Jan Doudiet and her committee.

The tropical theme will be carried out further with Hawaiian and Philippine dancers. A Tahitian singer and a Jamaican dancer will complete the entertainment program.

Student Council Dinner In Smith Hall Tonight

As the crowning touch to a busy semester of activity, the semi-annual Student Council dinner will be held at 6 o'clock tonight in Smith Hall.

Guests will be Ed Whetteland, Associated Student president of San Mateo, and Herb Harrison, AS president at Foothill, Donna O'Leary, AS vice president here, said.

The incoming AS president and vice president of San Mateo have also been invited to attend, along with their adviser, Richard Walsh.

Featured speaker Grover Klemmer, football coach here, will address the group on the topic of student government.

First Things First

College Education Ranks High In Value With Local Beauty Entrant

One of the most important things in Bernice Espinosa's life at the present time is not that she was almost Miss San Francisco of 1961 but that she has the opportunity of acquiring a college education here. This she revealed in a recent interview.

A business major here, Miss Espinosa explained that her educational opportunity perhaps means more to her because grasping it was delayed.

For ambition to complete her education was delayed eight years in fact, eight years of waiting to make a dream come true.

She "almost won" the Miss San Francisco crown for when the final judging was over and the results announced, she and Lana Green, who later won the competition, were tied for first position. However, when a re-vote was taken, Miss Espinosa was given the first runner-up title.

As far as a life's work is concerned she hopes that she can work with one of the large sporting goods manufacturers as a model and can travel for them promoting sports in the United States.

As far as sports themselves are concerned she is well qualified. She is a certified lifeguard, skilled at the art of underwater ballet, and has won first place in the second flight in the city golf tourney and also in the Del Monte Derby held in Pebble Beach.

Her handicap in golf is 14, which is commendable for a woman golfer.

Miss Espinosa's modeling career will be made much easier for her by the fact that at the present time she has one $300 scholarship to Patricia Stevens and a $500 one to La Vonne Valentine modeling schools.

The runner-up termed the Miss San Francisco contest as "very hectic," but also said that it was "enjoyable and a lot of fun."

There is still a chance for Miss Espinosa to be Miss San Francisco if Lana Green wins the Miss California title. In that case Miss Espinosa, the first runner-up, will take over the crown of Miss San Francisco.

Search Is On For World War IV Ammunition

Archers Have Their Troubles

By John Muller

"Now where did that darn arrow go?"

That's the usual comment when one of the modern William Tells, Robin Hoods or Hiawathas in the co-educational archery classes here misses and has to go into the "bush country" in back of the targets in search of the misguided missile. If pessimists are correct about World War III, World War IV missiles will have feathers at one end.

Despite months of practice, almost one-third of the shafts shot still miss the target, and the worst feature about the sport, agree many Will Tells, is chasing lost arrows. Of course this is always an added incentive to improve one's aim.

Before they are allowed on the practice range, behind the women's gymnasium, the student archers must first memorize the parts of the weapon, see several movies on its use and learn the rules.

Then the students must practice drawing the bow back without releasing the arrow. This is done to strengthen the archer's arm.

When the Tells are finally ready to shoot, they stand about 20 yards from the target and, illogical as it may seem, are instructed to aim at the ground just below the target. (Actually, only the archer's line of sight is at the ground—the arrow is kept in a horizontal position.)

At 50 yards the rule is just the opposite: the aim is for a point slightly above the target, and the arrow is raised to allow for the curved flight of the shaft from that distance.

There are about 24 students in each archery class so that four archers share each of the six targets.

The beginning archers stand about 20 yards from the target while the better archers stand 50 yards away.

And, contrary to the photograph at the right, sharpshooters don't shoot at apples or coed students.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 52, No. 12 WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1961 Page 2

Plan Found To Skip Studying Yet Still 'Pass' Final Exams

SUDDEN INCREASES in No-Doze, bloodshot eyes and shocked looks on the faces of students here all point up that one, inescapable and needlessly terrifying fact . . . final exam time is about to make its semesterly appearance on campus.

Often at this rather unwelcome time of the college year, students develop imaginary ailments, display odd behavior patterns that would almost make them certain candidates for a rest home and in general, approach the thought of finals with much dread and hesitation.

It needn't be that way, however. A "sure" way of getting over the hump of final exams and term papers would include the following time-tested recommendations:

1—Students should spend at least half of their study time in the student union or cafeteria, for there they will be able to "pick up" handy bits of information which will surely aid them in passing an exam or completing a lengthy term paper. The former practice of retreating to a quiet, orderly library went out with the bustle.

2—While textbooks may have some value in studying, certainly browsing through magazines, newspapers, and even comic books will be of still more help, especially if one combines these effective educational devices with several hours of diligent concentration at the television, radio or phonograph.

3—Forget the old "term paper myth." It isn't necessary to start well in advance of the deadline for the paper. The best approach is a relaxed and confident one. Why spend long, useless hours and days on a term paper, when it is a known fact that all college students possess some mysterious power which enables them to turn out inspired and ingenious masterpieces the very night before they are due?

4—Another myth that's a phony is the plenty-of-sleep-and-rest bit, for it's more beneficial to rely on great amounts of coffee, No-Doze pills and the variety of other stimulants that students have proved to be effective. Of course, most stimulants students take are actually depressants, but that's not important.

5—Avoid panic at all costs. This can be done by following closely the above recommendations, for a schedule that is haphazardly thrown together and followed only when the student feels like it is undoubtedly more effective than one that has been carefully planned and which makes allowances for unforeseen events and needs.

6—Finally, if the student still finds that he isn't adequately prepared, and there is no reason why he shouldn't be, we recommend that he save that last allowed cut for the day of the exam, thereby sparing himself all sorts of needless worry, work and inconvenience.

These six handy steps for getting over the rigors of final exams and term papers are not foolproof. The student must work at them. Of course, he must be careful not to reveal this procedure to anyone, for others would mistakenly think he was actually relying on the old method of good, hard and earnest study and would surely laugh at him for indulging in such time-wasting pursuits.

Associated Student Elections

LIKE WARS, elections produce two things with certainty . . . winners and losers. Last week's Associated Student election was no different, and The Guardsman extends congratulations to the victors in the recent political campaign here.

All students who participated in the campaign, win or lose, deserve congratulations for conducting one of the best political contests here at the college in a long while.

Praise is also deserved by Bob Perkins, election commissioner this semester, who did an outstanding job of guiding campaign activities.

Of course, most sincere wishes go to the new AS President Gary Wilkening and his running mate, Kathy Henderson. We feel confident that Wilkening will uphold the traditions of the office and make valuable contributions to the college in the coming semester.

To those who did not emerge victorious in the election we say that rather than sit and sulk over why they didn't win, they should take it as a sign that perhaps more work and time and effort were needed and will be needed in future election campaigns here.

As usual the only negative note in the whole campaign comes from the student apathy so apparent throughout the whole election. The only ones who appeared at the election rally were the candidates, and only a handful of the eligible voters here cast a vote. Blame for something like this cannot be laid to the candidates . . . at least THEY were trying!

"..... THAT HILL still must be climbed when I pick up the daily mail," says veterans affairs secretary Betty Arnold after moving from Science Hall to the new arts building.

MAKING IT EASY on himself alone, John Archer is sure that he won't have to go chasing arrows through the woods as long as he hits the apple or the haystack. The young lady seems very happy to be of assistance—but she didn't show the following day.

On Cycles Built For One

Buenos Aires Vacation In Store For Two Ardent Travelers Here

Of the many students who may travel to spend their vacations at home this summer, it is unlikely that many plan to use the means by which two engineering students expect to journey to their homes in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Manuel Tanoira and Francisco Girado will leave from San Francisco by motorcycle, traveling as far as the roads hold out, probably to Costa Rica, Tanoira said. Before they get that far, however, they plan to relax in Acapulco, Mexico, for a few days.

Their route from Costa Rica will be by sea, on a banana boat, to any port in Peru north of Lima, where the men expect to travel by road again.

At that point they will follow the western coast of South America to Santiago, Chile, from where they will cross the Andes Mountains into their home country.

Traveling at an approximate rate of 400 miles a day, they estimate that the trip will take a month and cost $250.

Expenses will be kept down by carrying their own spare motorcycle parts; with Tanoira handling the mechanical repairs. Parts are to be donated by Triumph, Inc.

In Buenos Aires, the two men expect to sell the vehicles, and from the profits hope to finance their vacations.

Tanoira, who will finish his studies here in June, and Girado, who is a freshman, said they will spend their vacations eating steaks, which cost about 15 cents in a restaurant in Argentina, and perhaps hunting wild boar in the pampas.

When their vacations are over, they will fly back to California. However, Tanoira says that he will go to Pennsylvania where he is to meet a friend whom he will accompany in a private plane on a 15-day trip to Alaska, before returning to San Francisco.

The distance he will cover will be equivalent to nearly three-quarters of the way around the earth.

Last Christmas the two men "reheard" by making a loop from San Francisco to Yosemite, then to Las Vegas, up to Reno, and through Lake Tahoe back to San Francisco.

On that trip they traveled 1600 miles in six days, during which time they slept in sleeping bags set up in a tent.

Although the entire trip cost only $25 each (this included a show in Las Vegas), Tanoira said, "We were frozen nearly to death," so they have decided to sleep in motels on their upcoming Argentina trip.

Reassignment

Vets Retreat, A Moving Story

Moving of the City College veterans office recently to Room 201 in the arts building has resulted in both advantages and disadvantages.

One of the more favorable aspects of the change, according to Betty Arnold, secretary to veteran's affairs counselor Robin Dunn, is the solution to a problem which has plagued people who work in Science Hall for as long as it has been there.

Climbing hills might be all right for a hiking club, but Mrs. Arnold prefers walking on level ground, especially at 8 o'clock in the morning, which leaves her in fine shape to start the day right.

"The new office is so clean that it sparkles and its newness had a pleasant smell. In some way it reminds me of the exciting aroma of a new car. Even the desks are new," Mrs. Arnold exclaimed.

When mentioning the disadvantages of moving, Mrs. Arnold's manner appeared to be one of wistfulness, certainly not complaint.

She implied that she missed the old office, having worked in it for seven years, although since the move she can now see it as a visitor might. The old room did seem dreary and colorless.

Mrs. Arnold volunteered the information that the new office does not have the sweeping view or receive as much sunshine as the old. Room 201 is on the north side, facing a student parking lot.

"Despite the advantages resulting from the move," Mrs. Arnold mused, "the situation remains that of six of one and a half dozen of the other. That hill must still be climbed when I pick up the daily mail from Science Hall."

And since the office is concerned with military matters, she would have enjoyed a small commissioning ceremony.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister

Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.

Reporters: Dick Drogavon, Dianne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Orlovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, David Kleinberg, Raul Ortega, Christopher Wilde.

Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, William Merrill, Herbert Mizia, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Sella, Evelyn Thuds, Bob Veary.

Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Eggert, Estuardo Dell'Acqua, Gary Lair.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

THE POSSIBILITY of having sandwiches and other food served in the new student union brings up the need for a re-examination of table manners here.

It might be well to begin by remembering that it is in bad taste to break your bread or roll in your soup.

* * *

THOSE WHO remember Chuck and Sally, they of that sad love scene in the library a few weeks back, will be happy to hear that he finally got to pop the question. She accepted, subject to the approval of her dad.

(How did he finally get her alone? He took her to the theater on the opening night of Ah, Wilderness!)

One night last week he met the old gentleman and was told that he could have the girl and a handsome dowry as well. "What do you plan to give me in return?" the stern father demanded.

* * *

OVERHEARD on the K car the other morning was the following interesting bit of conversation:

She: "I'm the only one in my family who could get into City College. In fact, my brother had to settle for the junior college in Palo Alto."

He: "There's no junior college in Palo Alto."

She: "There is, too. Didn't you ever heard of Leland Stanford Junior University?"

* * *

IF THAT young lady (who never heard of the younger Leland Stanford, in whose memory the university was founded) sounds well informed, consider the lass who was acting as a guide to a group of campus visitors on business education day.

Finishing a tour of the theater, she took her guests out into the lobby and let them feast their eyes on the mural.

While they were gazing in awe she stepped over and remarked to another coed. "Isn't it amazing that this was painted by one of our own students!"

* * *

WHILE THE SUBJECT of misinformation still has its head uglily (new word, pat. pend.) reared; pause to consider the unparalleled bum dope printed in this very same newspaper a week or two back.

It said, "Detroit has been under three flags: French, English and United States."

That's not quite so. They also won the pennant in 1907, 1908, 1909, 1934, 1935, 1940 and 1945.

* * *

In Akron, Ohio, a law requires that no one may ride a public bus within two hours after eating garlic.

* * *

To date, the most expensive method found for getting rid of mice is sending them up in rockets.

RAMBLINGS

By Tom Kennedy

SEASON FINALES have a way of putting one in a contemplative mood. Regrets, memoirs and ideas, spanning from the constructive to the crackpot, all seem to thrive this time of year.

With the end of spring sports for 1961 at the college, we would like to go on record as saying that City College needs more facilities for swimming and tennis.

Both teams are now forced to use public pools and courts. This not only cuts down on the size and quality of intercollegiate teams, but when it comes time for physical education classes to try the sports they, too, must share public facilities.

Easiest of the two athletic "sore spots" to heal seems to be in tennis. Courts are less expensive to construct than swimming pools, and all students here would directly benefit from their addition.

With the construction of some courts of its own, City College would not have to struggle with the current shuttle system employed to permit both men and women to use Balboa Playground's four courts for physical education classes.

It would give enough room for instructors to extend the tennis program so that everyone could play at the same time.

Coach Roy Diederichsen expressed regret at the end of the net season that his players could not find a permanent site for practice.

They finished by sharing the Olympic Club's four courts as well as by eliminating several hopefuls from the club because there was simply no place for all to practice together.

Diederichsen took a survey at the state net championships and found the following results: Los Angeles Valley has 18 courts, Fullerton 12, Los Angeles City College 9 and Modesto 5 (two to four new courts are now being built).

City College is the second largest two-year college in the state. With its current enlargement in operation, it seems that it could find the means to add some useful tennis courts to the scene.

Two likely sites for their construction would be near the men's gymnasium or atop the south reservoir on Phelan Avenue. As reported earlier this semester in The Guardsman, the San Francisco Water Department plans to cover the southern pool and lightweight facilities could then be placed on the cap.

Of course, some kind of windbreak would be necessary for protection.

Tennis provides some of the best carryover values of any sport, intercollegiate or otherwise. People play and enjoy tennis in later life.

City College would be wise in recognizing tennis' value by providing courts for its participants and fans.

Preston, Gable Top Final Season Batting Averages

Powerful Frank Gable and Ed Preston led the batsmen in the 1961 season by posting final averages of .444 and .378, respectively.

With the league over, except for all-league standings and teams, fans can look back on the inspirational play of these two performers.

Preston made up for his lack of speed in the field by his exceptionally strong throwing arm. He cut off many a player trying to score with his rifle arm. He also was a late season discovery as a pitcher.

Gable performed very well as a hitter and fielder during the season. He led the team in doubles and triples and managed to hit one circuit clout along the way.

Mike Moran proved to be the steadiest pitcher for the Rams as he made several appearances from the bullpen and saved at least three games for the diamondmen.

FINAL AVERAGES

	ab	r	h	ave.
Frank Gable	51	19	21	.444
Ed Preston	45	4	17	.378
Don Meroff	31	4	11	.355
Rich Medaglia	38	8	13	.315
Gary Attoli	42	7	14	.333
Ray Tompkins	23	1	7	.304
Dennis Russell	38	5	10	.263
Jesse Wilson	49	4	12	.245
Art Gresta	19	3	4	.210
Eric Lyons	44	5	9	.205
Jim Carroll	30	2	6	.200
Mike Moran	12	2	2	.166
Don Lovpensky	33	4	4	.120
Randy Pace	4	2	0	.000
	494	79	132	.250

Spring Sign-Up Forecasts Tough Grid Team

By Dave Kleinberg

More than 5000 pounds of potential football talent gathered for a brief meeting on May 19 and at least 3000 more pounds of beef is expected by Head Coach Grover Klemmer before the season starts, when the squad will reach the 38-player limit.

Twenty-eight athletes were present at the first meeting of the year during College Hour. This was well under the number Klemmer had expected, but he indicated that at least 20 more men would join later.

Included in those will be many veterans of last year who were not present. A heavy rainfall cut down the attendance.

Klemmer welcomed aboard all the new athletes and said the football team was going to need a lot of help from the new high school players. He also stated this year's squad has the nucleus of a fine team, adding that only quarterback, a weak spot last year, and center loom as possible weaknesses.

Equipment will be issued in the men's gymnasium on August 31, and the first practice will start the following day, September 1. There will be only 15 days practice before the Rams' opening session against Los Angeles Valley at Van Nuys.

The league opener will be against College of San Mateo on October 7.

Last year, the pigskinners took third place with a 4-2-1 record even though they led the league in many of the statistical departments.

Gary Lewis, the big 6-2, 215-pound fullback-quarterback, made much of this possible last year with his sometimes brilliant passing and his usually consistent running.

He will be backed up by returning standouts Tom Piggee, 5-10 speedster halfback; Alex Darnes, guard and outstanding trackman of City College during the 1961 season; Mike Peterson, end, and Herman McKee, trackster and fullback.

Expecting to give the college help this year are newcomers Charles Mitchell, a big 6-2, 205-pound end; Mike Stanfield, 6-3, 195-pound quarterback and halfback from Riordan; Phillip Aissa, 5-9, 180-pound guard from Washington; Phillip Singer, Washington lineman; Harry Hersh, a 6-3, 225-pound giant from Tamalpais who plays tackle and center.

Boxers, Cagers Thrill At Smoker

AMS Captures Hoop Playoff; Manois, Marble Top Boxers

By Tom Kennedy

All-out efforts and thrilling matches prevailed in the Associated Men Student Smoker as eight boxers slugged their way to championships and AMS took the intramural basketball title last Thursday night in the men's gymnasium.

Several slugfests had the 280 people in attendance roaring lustily after Associated Men Students came from behind in the final minute of play to edge Alpha Phi Epsilon, 41-38.

Between attractions Frank Wong and Pon Bok held a fencing exhibition.

The fraternity cagers looked to have their playoff game sewed up when John Neal sank a long jumper with one minute left to give them a 38-35 lead, but Herb Briscoe and captain Dave Tafanelli put through six straight points to pull the game out.

Briscoe was high scorer with 20 markers, while John Giles, 5'3" Alpha Phi Epsilon guard, scored 14 points.

Larry Stewart of The Guardsman won the league's high scoring award by totaling 129 points for an 18.3 average.

Fusebio Manois took the outstanding boxer award after knocking out Joe Bankston in their 148-pound scrap. He unleashed a powerful attack by Prowling Bankston against the ropes and ending the fight with one punch in 56 seconds of the second round.

Gary Marble, "fightingest fighter" of the night, displayed finesse reminiscent of his aunt, tennis immortal Alice Marble, when he decisioned John Bryant in one of the most interesting and applauded fights of the night.

Bryant came out of his corner like a hurricane in the opening round, swinging furiously. But Marble slowly stalked his opponent. By the third round he had the courageous Bryant helpless, while landing punches of his own at will.

AMS (41)	fg	ft	pf	tp
Portillo	1	3	0	5
McKown	2	0	0	4
Dunn	2	0	2	4
Tofanelli	1	0	3	2
Lairn	1	0	0	2
Pryor	0	0	1	0
Briscoe	8	4	2	20
Walsh	2	0	3	4
	15	11	12	41

ALPHA PHI EP. (38)	fg	ft	pf	tp
5Neal	3	3	0	9
4Jones	2	0	4	4
4Horn	1	4	4	6
2Driver	1	1	2	3
2Threadgill	2	1	2	5
0Giles	6	2	1	11
20
	15	11	13	38

BOXING RESULTS

120 pounds: Fuad Sabouria dec. Bill Wagner; 130 pounds: Gary Rodriquez dec. Charlie Kehoe; 136 pounds: Gary Marble dec. John Bryant; 142 pounds: Joe Smolen dec. Pete Zoupanis; 148 pounds: Fusebio Manois KO Joe Bankston; 155 pounds: Jim Ahern TKO John Grilino; 165 pounds: Eberhs Wiedenmeyer dec. John Young; heavyweight: Don Oberoi dec. John Lovell.

12 Athletes Up For Annual Hall Of Fame Selection

Twelve former athletes were nominated for the City College sports Hall of Fame last week and two are scheduled to be voted into the select group this week.

This year's nominees are Jim Watson, tennis; Eugene George, golf; Ron Lundquist, swimming; Cleo Cofield, Bob Tealer, basketball, and Ernie Ibarra, football.

Also nominated are track stars Mike Lewis and Will Gasper, boxers Lou Gage and Frank Sueuga, and soccer standouts Fito Molino and Joe Hare.

Judging the entries are former coaches, now active in other phases of teaching here, Dean Ralph Hillsman (basketball), William Fischer (baseball), Tom Wilson (football), and Jack Gaddy (football).

The award is the highest that an athlete can receive here.

To be eligible for the distinction, which is bestowed on players and coaches alike, a player must have participated in his sport for at least one semester and must have been graduated for at least one year.

A coach must have coached here for at least five years and presently be retired.

Nominations are given to the judges who make the final choice from a list of about 15 aspirants. Only two are chosen annually to be entered into the Hall of Fame.

Although the qualifications for nomination are simple, the athlete must have been outstanding in his field. This is shown by the fact that in the 26 years of the college's existence only 22 athletes have received the top honor.

Vasquez Terms 1961 Track Squad 'Best Ever'

Winding up the 1961 track season with the state championships at Modesto last Saturday, the Ram cinder squad was awarded some heavy praise this week by its mentor, Lou Vasquez.

"This year's team was the finest I have coached from the standpoint of dual meet competition; the balance, depth and versatility of the athletes was ideal for that phase of the season," Vasquez said.

The Rams went through the dual meets undefeated, which seems to bear out Vasquez' analysis.

The praise was not one-sided; as track team members were enthusiastic in their endorsement of Vasquez.

"He has a knack for bringing out the best in his charges. The lessons in pace judgment I learned from him will be invaluable to me in the future, as I plan to continue running after graduation," distance runner Tom Jennings said.

Sprinter hurdler Bob Taylor said, "Vasquez has enabled me to realize my present potential. I give him credit for the improvement I have made this year."

"Under his guidance I have hopes of running under two minutes for the 880 next season," half-miler Jim Nigra said.

This is the third time in Vasquez' five years of coaching here that the team has won the Big Eight crown.

In 1958 the squad went all the way to the state championship, setting seven college records. The past two seasons the Rams have been second in Northern California. Two City College records were established in 1961.

Track Profiles: Stars Toss Shot, Discus

Using their great strength and explosive power, two of the college's freshman weight tossers have come up with some top performances this year.

Eighteen-year-old Alex Darnes, a physical education major, proved himself to be the best discus thrower in Northern California with a toss of 154-9¼ feet. Earlier he got off a throw of 167 feet in the West Coast Relays.

The 5-10, 210-pound powerhouse won the Big Eight title with a mark of 153 feet and was second in the shot-put with 49 feet.

Big Bill Holman, who scales 235 pounds and is 5-9, has best marks of 135 feet and 47-1.

Majoring in graphic arts, Holman plans to embark on a program of weight-lifting during the summer and hopes to challenge Darnes for top honors next year. Despite his huge frame, Holman is an excellent speed swimmer.

Cream Of The Crop

TWO OF SIX TOP ATHLETES specially honored at the Block SF banquet Monday were Alex Darnes (left) and Frank Gable. Darnes set a new City College record of 167 feet in the discus throw, while Gable led the Ram batsmen with a .444 average.—Guardsman photos by Roger Nissim.

Block SF Gives Monograms, Special Awards At Banquet

Highlight of the 1961 Block SF banquet last Monday night was the presentation of the special awards given to the most valuable athlete in each of six spring sports.

The dinner's high point followed the presentation of blocks to 67 athletes for completing the required time in their sports.

Gary Mialoeq won the most valuable golfing award. Mialoeq led the Rams to a third place tie in the Big Eight Conference.

Al Stevens copped the award in swimming. The mermen suffered one of the worst seasons in recent years, but Coach Roy Burkhead said that Stevens had really worked hard.

Frank Gable, third baseman, won the baseball award. His .444 batting average was the highest on the squad, and his fielding played a big part in the Ram victories this year.

The winner of the outstanding basketball player award was Orlando Camp, the college center. Camp was instrumental in leading the Rams to a second place finish. He scored 92 points and finished high in rebounding.

Versatile Alex Darnes won the special track award. Darnes, who doubles in the discus throw and the shot-put, is an all-around athlete. This year he set a new college record by throwing the discus 167 feet.

Coach Roy Diederichsen named the winner of the special tennis award, Jack Bracken.

RA Awards Social Set For Tomorrow Night

As a climax to a busy Spring schedule of activities, the Recreation Association will hold its semi-annual awards social in the social room of the women's gymnasium from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Presentation of awards to outstanding members of the association and the installation of officers for the Fall semester will highlight the event, according to Kay Vanderford, RA president.

Shield awards still be presented to first semester members of the RA; block awards will be awarded to second semester students, and stars will go to third and fourth semester members.

Intra Bowling Faces First Place Deadlock

Intramural Bowling league ended its regular season last week with a tie for first place between the Alley Dusters and Hotel & Restaurant, according to Les Adams, bowling coordinator.

Final playoffs will be held this week to decide the championship.

There was also a deadlock for men's high handicap winner, as Hoyt Scott and Herb Cockett both showed a powerful 233. Bob Diacri and Tim Dunn shared high average honors with a 159 score.

High handicap for women went to Pat Welsh, who maintained a blazing 208. Loretta Ching claimed high average with a 124 mark.

Final bowling standings:

Team	W.	L.	Team	W.	L.
Alley Dusters	17	11	Recreation Assn.	14	14
Hotel & Rest.	17	11	Losers	6	14
Hawaiian Club	16	12

WITH THE TERMINATION of final preparations, the Soph Ball Committee takes a well earned rest. The event will be held this Saturday night. Committee members are Cipriano Ayalin, Al Jacobsen, Marilynn Santos and George Woo, Soph Class president.—Guardsman photo by Roger Nissim.

Nineteen Seek King, Queen Crown For Ball Saturday

Climaxing a close contest of 19 candidates for Sophomore King and Queen honors, the Sophomore Class will hold its semi-annual ball, called Golden Summer, from 9 p.m. to midnight this Saturday in the Gold Room of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel.

Bids are available now on a first-come, first-serve basis to all AS members until the supply runs out, George Woo, Sophomore Class president, announced.

The traditional crowning of the King and Queen will take place during the intermission of the dance, at which time the winners will receive a trophy engraved with their names, donated by Beta Tau fraternity and Theta Tau sorority.

The reigning couple will be selected by the penny-a-vote method. Containers for voting are located in three buildings.

In the running for King and Queen this semester are Sue Whiting, Delta Psi; Judy Crivelli and Jim Bush, Club Activities Board; Bergitta Bergman and Sarwan Gill, International Relations Club; Sandi Shaw, Associated Women Students, and Gary Wilkening, Associated Men Students.

Jeri Tarantino and Chris Wise, Publicity Committee; Maxine McCarthy and Jack Wade, Hotel and Restaurant Society; Marsha Arevalo and John Rojas, Phi Beta Rho, and Georgene Peterson and Joe Egri are also in the race.

Katherine Lenz and Gene Tognetti, Student California Teachers Association; Maurene Lualhati, Beta Tau, and Margaret Lindstrom, Gamma Sigma Sigma, complete the list.

Zoologists believe a jellyfish can tell which way is up because of a small organ called the lithocyst, situated at the base of the tentacles.

Congestion On Stairway Remains As Last Threat To Status Quo Of Science Hall Vending Machines

Student conduct in the vending machine area in Science Hall has changed for the better, but there is still a great deal of room for improvement there and throughout the campus, Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of education management here, stated today.

Students appear to be trying to remove the crush that existed in front of the vending machines, Anderson said, but there are still too many students sitting on the stairs near the vicinity.

It was this problem that precipitated the threat to remove all but the coffee and cigarette machines from the basement area as reported by The Guardsman May 10.

Total solution to the congestion, he said, would be to spread the machines out. The north end of Science Hall was considered, but this area is already too small and also the floor tiling is made of asphalt.

Any machine handling milk products can not be placed on asphalt tile, because the inevitable milk fats that results from such products will eat through this material.

According to Anderson, no real answer to this and other problems on campus will be found until the students actually face up to their responsibilities.

"I believe that the sophomores should set an example that the freshmen would take pride in following," Anderson declared. "City College is an institution and as such should be considered a symbol which should be treated with respect.

"Although there are no hall monitors," Anderson added, "students should not have to be told how to act. A little thoughtfulness can go a long way."

Those students who carry dishes from the cafeteria and then leave them on the lawn are simply demonstrating their immaturity and their contempt for the college and their fellow students, Anderson exclaimed.

"Until the students develop a will to improve, there can be no real change in campus conditions," Anderson stressed.

SF State Dean To Address AGS Group In C-Hour Friday

Dean Alan Johnson, associate dean of students at San Francisco State College, will speak this Friday during College Hour in S-211 to members of Alpha Gamma Sigma on the topic of upper division work at State College, AGS adviser William Richardson said today.

Richardson invited all members and non-members to attend, since this will be the last meeting of the society.

Speaking of the society, Richardson named nine students who are probable permanent AGS members.

They are Ronald Burnett, Caroiyn Carver, Thomas Craighead, Rosemarie Haas, Peter Koch, Reuben Levy, Dorothy Marks, Albert McKeown and Max Savin.

Permanent membership, Richardson explained, is open to all students who have been dues-paying members of the society for three out of four, or four out of five semesters, and who have maintained a grade-point average of no less than 3.3 or higher (exclusive of grade points earned in physical education).

Those students who have maintained an overall average of 3.5 or higher who have not yet joined the society and are interested in becoming permanent members of the society can consult Richardson in S-134.

Club Cavalcade

Groups Name New Officers As CAB Activities Close

WITH most of its organizations having named their officers for next semester, the Club Activities Board will conclude its activities for this semester with the semi-annual dinner, which will be held in Chinatown.

Both council and cabinet members will attend the Oriental dinner. CAB President Don Verdu stated that awards will be presented to the two outstanding members of the CAB.

Gamma Kappa Beta will conduct its pin ceremony Friday at the home of Georgene Peterson. The elections of new officers are planned for June 28.

The Mother and Daughter tea for Phi Beta Rho is to take place this Sunday. Election of officers is being held this evening at the home of Rosalie Weiner.

Delta Psi sorority held its pledge dinner at the Claremont in Berkeley. During College Hour the group will select new leaders in C-104.

Pledges of Gamma Sigma Sigma, whose service project was held earlier in the semester, is now purchasing toys to distribute to the children at city and county hospitals.

Bob Rogers of Zeta Phi Sigma was elected fall president of the Inter-Fraternity Council on May 23, during the council's elections.

Other officers elected were Vice President Fred Cherniss, Beta Tau; Secretary Gary Sozzi, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Treasurer Bob Rauh, Zeta Phi Sigma, and Rushing Chairman Joe Kane, Alpha Kappa Rho.

Pending is the appointment of Gary Wayman, Alpha Kappa Rho, as campaign manager.

Stan Burford was elected to head the Rally Committee recently, and he will be assisted by Maxine Randall. Head cheerleader will be Chuck Wood.

Officers were also named for the Contemporary Affairs Forum. Norman Jacob was named president, while the office of vice president will be filled by Roy Campbell. Nick Hoyer will serve as secretary.

600 Students File Graduation Petitions

More than 600 students currently enrolled here filed applications to graduate in the 26th annual commencement ceremonies scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, June 9, in the Riordan High School auditorium.

Olga Perkins, assistant to the registrar here, in releasing the names of applicants emphasized that students will be notified by postcard of commencement details, if their second midterm grades indicate eligibility for Associate in Arts degrees.

Actual award of the degree itself depends on final grades. Mrs. Perkins emphasized, adding that changes of address should be forwarded to her.

Applicants are as follows:

Norma Aaze, Ayako Abbey, Hirofumi Akaboshi, George Akana, Nick Akimoff, Margaret Albrecht, Donald Albright, Jerry Anderson, Marina Anderson, Kathryn Anderson, Alda B. Angel, Marcia Arevalo, Richard Arlan, James Artis, David Armstrong, Joyce Armstrong, Charisse Asher, Cipriano Ayalin, John Azzaro, Margaret Bagnani, Esteban Balanon, Virginia Barden, Eric Barlow, Frederick Barmore, Robert Barna, Vesna Barnett, Jose Barredo, Anthony Barrette, Thomas Barrington, Herbert Batz, Sheri Baumann, Jay Beasley, Bruce Beckes, William Belardi, Lewis Bell, Janice Benelli, Leland Bertolone, Joseph Bestresky, Robert Blair, Raymond Bly, Valerie Blumberg, Marlee Bolouvar, George Beldtrasi, Helen Bortone, Bernard Bosche, Robert Bosworth, Alan Bottemiller, Richard Bragg, William Brauner, Jose Bran, Frank Brati, Michael Brenesesli, Barbara Brechtel, Dorothy Brooks, James Brunner, Peter Bulkley, Donald Bull, Linda Burman, Ronald Burnett, James Bush, Gerald Butler, Richard Bykoff, Rian Cabezas, Doreen Caldwell, Leo Calhoun, Robert Campbell, Carolyn Carr, Kayra Carr, Othello Carr, Edmund Carrera, George Carson, Linda Carvajal, Carolyn Carver, Lago Casas, Nicholas Cassimos, Alvin Chan, Joseph Chan, Leonard Chan, Reverend Chan, Beverly Chance, O. C. Cherry, Donald Chew, Jean Chew, Loretta Chin, Wilson Ching, Nicholas Chirchiles, James Chisholm, Francis Chiu, Rae Chong, Shoodie Chu, Clement Chun, Noble Chung, Roy Coffee, Joann Comerford, Hannah Comisky, Edward Crabbe, Thomas Craighead, Joyce Crivello, Patricia Crone, George Cunningham, Jean Curry,

Robert Dahler, Amir Darabian, Gill Daryadel-Tabrizi, John Davids, Michael Davis, Delin Dawa, Larry Dearing, Ismael Deasy, Arlene DeFelippo, Howard Degon, Frank Del Carlo, Richard DeLeon, Orestes Delgado, Monica Delong, Harold Densmore, Edsel Dent, Joanmarie Derrough, Raymond Deloosa, Barry Dillon, Raymond Dolan, Alla Dombrowsky, Benjamin Dominguez, Daniel Dong, Diane Doody, Donald Donley, Donald Down, Paul Downing, Lawrence Draper, Donald Dreyer, Allan Drucker, Yacoub Durham, Timothy Dugan, Timothy Dunn,

Marigusta Eclavea, Joseph Egri, Barbara Elberger, Esther Ekman, Russell Ellis, Maurice Elston, Helen Emerson, Edwin Engbers, Casimiro Eo, Bernard Erickson, Anthony Escobar, Stephanie Escalle, Ephraim Escobar, Cris Espejo, Tom Estle,

Jerry Fabian, Donn Ferrero, James Ferry, Charles Feiler, Carl Finn, Patrick Fitzgerald, Margaret Fitzgibbon, Diane Flores, William Forbes, David Fong, James Fong, Robert Fonles, Philip Fortier, George Fosler, Mehdi Foumanyeh, Susan Franklin, Elsie Fraument, Richard Frazier, Meriem Fran, Vicki Frost, Stanfield Fries, Lincoln Fry,

Arthur Gaines, Homero Garcia, Robert Garcia, David Gardner, Earle Gardner, John Gasbarro, Calvin Gee, Edward Gee, Judie Gee, Ronald Gee, Nick Gentile, Dragoslava Georgevich, David Gerwitzke, Reldon Gifford, Joyce Gilbarrasa Gill, Karen-Joy Gilmore, Charlotte Givens, Norman Gong, Marta Gonsalves, Larry Gose, Patricia Gow, Mary Grandcamp, Louis Greeb, Otha Green, Joan Greenberg, Jon Greenberg, Howard Gregg, Larry Grewatzke, Gordon Gribble, Wayne Grodi, Robert Grossenbacher, Peter Gruenke, Jack Gudeman, Arlene Guess, Gary Gustafson, Rosemarie Haas, Stephen Haeberle, Wimmell Hagens, Mildred Hall, Thomas Hallum, Michael Hancock, Helen Hanretty, Deloree Harris, John Harrison, David Hawkins, Carol Hawkins, Doris Hayes, Charles Headley, Douglas Hecker, Joyce Helm, Simon Herdin, Federico Hernandez, Richard Hess, Larry Helland, George Hruza, Joan Hillman, Edna Hillman, Noboru Hirayama, Joseph Hirschman, Helen Ho, Anthony Holoi, Martha Holm, Dean Hollister, Lawrence Holloway, Carolyn Holmes, Beverly Hore, Annette Hong, Allen Hopkins, William Horkhiles, Penny House, Ernest Howard, Edelraud Huber, Take Huen, Charles Hunter, Gordon Hutcheson,

Joseph Ibert, Diane Ingram, Hiro Inouye, Ronald Isola, Shigeru H. Ito,

Harriet Jackson, Mirinett Jackson, Ronald Jackson, Judith Jacobsen, Sharon Jann, Thomas Jennings, Barbara Jensen, Jane Johnson, Kenneth Jonah, Barbara Jones, Charlie Jones, Judy Jong, Jerry Jue, Moon Jue,

Willie Kairy, Delaine Kam, Yoshio Kamatani, Francis Kawaoka, Lester Kendrick, Thomas Kennedy, Vernal Kenner, Jerome Kenney, Stuart Keyser, Leon Khachadourian, Taneko Kikugawa, Karen Kinney, William Klover, Peter Kerb, Toyoka Komori, Agnes Kriss, Gordon Kvamme, Pauline Kwan,

Hollis Ladgi, Gary Lair, Joyce Lamas, Roy Lanza, Sandra Lariviere, Arthur Larsen, Albert Latour, Ying Lau, Herbert Lauherer, Betty Lee, Cynthia Lee, Ell Lee, Jane Lee, Kenneth Lee, Marian Lee, Kenneth Lee, Wallace Lee, Gerald Leikam, Barbara Lerman, Carol Letsche, Reuben Levy, Judith Lew, Norman Lew, Evan Li, Joanne Ligi, Elbert Lim, Patricia Lim, Margaret Lindstrom, Thien Tak Liu, Janice Look, George Lopez, Joyce Lorentzen, William Lostetter, Michael Loukinnoff, Glndys Low, Nancy Low, Maureen Lunhall, Gilbert Lum, Lawrence Lund, Eileen Lydon,

Noel MacDonald, James MacFarlan, Leland Mackey, Alva Jean MacLachinn, Melvin Makawski, Charles Makar, Oscar Maldonado, Roy John Mallick, Charles Mancilla, John A. Mandini, Phillip Mannuna, Daniel Marble, William Marentette, Dorothy Marks, Christopher Marshall, Eva Marzinsky, John Nicola Masi, Frank Mateo, Sammie Mathews, Perry Alan Mathis, Motoaki Maisuura, Glen Matteson, Naureen Mattioli, Merrill Lee Mazza, Owen McClurg, John McClymond, Willie Mae McCollough, Joyce McCowan, Willie McDuffie, Tessa McGee, Carole McGoldrick, Claire McGowan, Samuel McKeown, John McKinley, Delite McNeeley, Kathleen McNeil, Norman Meikle, Russell Merrill, Alan Messerveau, Toshihiro Miashiro, Carlo Midiotte, Jennie Ann Miller, Barbara Miller, Richard Miller, Stephen Miller, William Miller, Mirpuri Mirchandani, Albert Mitchell, Barbara Mitchell, Edwin Molise, Arthur Montana, Kay Moreno, Carl Morris, Phillip Morris, Michael Moss, Oliver Muir, Hitoshi Muneno, John Murphy,

Diane Nagel, Richard Nakao, Edward Nasr, Nick Nedaszkowsky, Eugene Nelson, Fay Nelson, Gene Nelson, Nicholas Nelson, Arthur North, Austria Nettis, Roger Nayrod,

Donald Ocfemann, Williams Ochiara, Steven Okamoto, Donna O'Leary, Jacqueline O'Leary, Richard Olivier, Theodore Olsson, Barbara Olsted, Rodolfo Opiana, John Oren, Odella Orsini, Bernadette Ortiz, Noah Osborne, Edward O'Sullivan, Norma Ottinano, Richard Overbolt,

Michael Padilla, Leroy Paden, James Panagiacos, Bohdan Papets, Betty Park, Nancy Parrazas, Patricia Parrish, Myreyan Pettis, George Pappas, Greek Phillips, Margie Phillips, Hugh Philo, David Pierce, Shirley Pimentel, Antonio Pinto, Samuel Pollo, Jerry Prevelt, Marian Price, Roland Prijoles, Adele Quinto, Oscar Quijano, Teodoro Alberto A. Quijano, Diane Quintana,

Denis Radel, Philip Rambo, Charles Rand, Gisela Raum, Ronald Reechioni, William Reed, Anne Regan, Seymour Reiter, Thomas Reel, William Richardson, Vern Rieger, Howard Rieschel, Charles Rinaldi, Lucille Roach, Debra Robinson, Larry Robinson, Harvey Rockwell, Bettye Rodgers, John Rojas, Frank Rollo, Jack Rose, Kelly Ross, Martha Rowe, Robert Rubin, Selma Rubia, Darlene Rudomelkin, Emil Ruiz, Cashmel, Nancy Ruiz,

Max Safdie, Cristina Salcedo, Hiram Sam-chez, Arthur Samstad, Ronald Sarti, Jack Savin, Paul Sawyer, Robert Scheppler, Suzanne Schiek, Owen Schip, Bonnie Schoenfeld, James Schulz, Judy Schwarz, Delroye Shaw, David Sheehan, Akihiko Shibata, George Shuey, Nedra Shute, Robert Sibbett, Robert Silverman, Roger Malcolm Slail, Sandra Simmons, Craig Snedeker, Stephen Snider, Lee Snowberg, George Sokoloff, Ray Solbau, Jack Spencer, Joseph Stallings, Donald Staub, Barbara Stefanoni, Erwin Stender, Berta Stender, Jack Stenson, Alfred Stewart, Carl Stone, Carol Stredni, Jeannette Strickland, Guy Suehomel, Toyoko Sumida, Ronald Sunde, Arnold Susman, Nancy Sweetland, Sylvia Tambellini, Zoila Tarradas, Thomas Tasaia, Teruko Tashiro, Peter Tassoff, Londa Taylor, Marc Taylor, Alan Thomas, Bernier Thomas, Eugene Thomas, Mckinley Thomas, Frank Thomasson, Barton Thompson, Charles Thompson, Riley Threadgill, David Tofanelli, Ralph Toloski, Clifford Sau Tom, Roger Tom, William Tomberlin, Edward Trujillo, Derek Tsui, Maiea Tuana, Alba Tuggle, Karen Turner, Roger Tweed, George Tisch,

David Uecelli, Patrick Uprite, Robert Urren,

William Vallente, Jan Vanderhurgh, Carol Varellas, Teruko Vickers, Juliana Viereck, Dick Visperas, Bruce Vogel, Hope Vogel, Kenard Von Emsley,

Thomas Wait, Susan Walraven, Queen Ward, Terry Watanabe, Patricia Watkins, Arthur Watson, Jack Watson, John West, John White, Lawrence White, Charles Whitfield, Robert Williams, Kim Williamson, Arlene Wilson, Linda Wilson, Ronald Wilson, Daniel Withers, Meredith Withers, Stanley Withers, Delores Wittman, Alfred Wong, Andrew Wong, Archie Wong, David Wong, David James Wong, Frances Wong, Gilebuen Wong, Hellmund Wong, John Wong, Milton Shucai Wong, Susan Wong, Sharon Wong, William Wong, Vincent Woo, Wing Chew Woo, Robert Wood, Alexander Woolworth,

Ronald Yamaoka, Henry You, Daniel Yee, Christine Eileen Young, Jacqueline Young, Keith Young, Sally Asa Young, Joseph Zack, Edward Zarnoti, Frank Zedek, and Dennis Zickerman.

Final Examination Schedule

Spring Semester, 1961

Classes	Day	Hour
8 Daily	Thursday, June 15	8:00-12:00
8 MWF	Thursday, June 15	8:00-10:00
8 TTh	Thursday, June 15	10:30-12:30
9 Daily	Friday, June 9	8:00-12:00
9 MWF	Friday, June 9	8:00-10:00
9, 9:45 & 8:45 TTh	Friday, June 9	10:30-12:30
10 Daily	Wednesday, June 14	8:00-12:00
10 MWF	Wednesday, June 14	8:00-10:00
10 & 10:45 TTh	Wednesday, June 14	10:30-12:30
11 Daily	Tuesday, June 13	8:00-12:00
11 MWF	Tuesday, June 13	8:00-10:00
11 TTh	Tuesday, June 13	10:30-12:30
12 Daily	Tuesday, June 13	1:00-5:00
12 MWF	Tuesday, June 13	1:00-3:00
12 & 11:45 TTh	Tuesday, June 13	3:30-5:30
1 Daily	Monday, June 12	8:00-12:00
1 MWF	Monday, June 12	8:00-10:00
1 TTh & 12:45 MW	Monday, June 12	10:30-12:30
2 Daily	Thursday, June 15	1:00-5:00
2 MWF	Thursday, June 15	1:00-3:00
2 TTh	Thursday, June 15	3:30-5:30
3 Daily	Friday, June 9	1:00-5:00
3 MWF	Friday, June 9	1:00-3:00
3 TTh	Friday, June 9	3:30-5:30
4 & 5 Daily	Friday, June 16	8:00-12:00
4 & 5 MWF	Friday, June 16	8:00-10:00
4 & 5 TTh	Friday, June 16	10:30-12:30
Chemistry 1A	Monday, June 12	3:15-6:00
Health (Men)	Monday, June 12	2:15-3:15
Health (Women)	Monday, June 12	12:45-1:45
Engineering 48	Wednesday, June 14	1:00-2:30

Pro Art School Exhibit On Display In Science Hall

Contemporary work illustrative of professional art fields for which students here are prepared by the advertising and commercial art and photography departments is on display until tomorrow on the main floor of Science Hall.

The collection is a traveling exhibit prepared by students in the Art Center School in Los Angeles, rated as a top professional art school.

It includes work in industrial, package, product, automotive and advertising design together with examples of photography and illustration.

Audiences Hiss, Boo Drunkard Into Extra Matinee

A precedent-breaking matinee of The Drunkard will be presented at 1 p.m. this Saturday, June 3, here in the theater, according to Drama Director Michael J. Griffin.

A howling audience greeted the opening of the famous American melodrama May 19, taking an active part in the play, giving suggestions to the cast and hissing and cheering at will.

Due to run through Saturday, June 10, with performances each Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m., the production will feature only the one matinee here.

According to Griffin, the audience has been alternating in taking sides with characters. At times they cheer the fallen father, Edward, as he travels the rum-soaked road to ruin.

At other times they are pulling for Edward's family and all those who are trying to get him onto the wagon and back to the straight and narrow.

Griffin said that on occasion the cast had to ad lib remarks back at the audience in self-defense.

The company will take the production to the Treasure Island Petty Officers' Club on June 6 and 7.

Large Scope Program Ahead For KCSF In Fall Semester

Expansion of KCSF activities will include full-day broadcasts from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. after the radio-television department completes its move to the arts building in the Fall, according to Demetre Lagios, campus radio station president.

The club will continue to operate the Campus Carrier program of announcements as well as the live broadcasts from the cafeteria, but both will undergo some change for next semester.

Speakers will be installed in the arts building for Campus Carrier, and presentation of announcements will be improved, Lagios said.

The purpose of the live broadcasts in the cafeteria was to allow a student announcer to experience direct contact with an audience, Lagios said, but the hotel and restaurant people who run the cafeteria felt that background music would be more appropriate.

Consequently, the volume was decreased so that announcing could not be heard. This situation will be remedied when the show originates from the new student union which is being planned, Lagios remarked.

Another problem that the cafeteria program faced was a faculty-student difference in choice of music. This situation is being resolved by playing various types of music. Of course, "extremes" are avoided, Lagios said, in reference to "rock and roll."

Educational television will also become a club project next semester. Because television demands an extensive technical staff, the club should attract students in fields of interest other than announcing, Lagios explained.

Some of the positions to be filled are those of sound and lighting engineers, cameramen and floor directors.

The club will have its own equipment and broadcasting system on the second floor of the arts building next to the television studio observation room.

Secretarial Coeds May Appear On TV Show Friday Night

Two coeds planning to graduate from here and start work in the secretarial field were interviewed recently by KRON-TV newsman John Chambers, and are expected to appear on the station's Assignment 4 program at 6:30 p.m. this Friday.

According to Chambers, the program will be a summary of the current job outlook for high school and college graduates.

Kathryn Andresen, one of the women interviewed, plans to obtain a job as a secretary to a lawyer. The other coed, Joan Hillman, is also planning for a secretarial job.

Both students were chosen to be interviewed because they stood high in grade-point average and were sure of what types of secretarial work they desire.

Assignment 4, according to Chambers, will, on the program of June 9, interview students from San Francisco State College, Stanford University and the University of California, along with City College.

Students from each college were interviewed on the basis of the job fields that they hope to enter.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 52 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1961 NUMBER 13

Commencement To Be Held Friday Night

Gammas Awarded Dougherty Trophy For First Time

Gamma Kappa Beta, maintaining an overall 2.5 grade-point average, for the first time won the Margaret Dougherty trophy for this semester's top scholastic average among the college's sororities.

Runner-up for the trophy was Gamma Sigma Sigma with a 2.4 grade-point average. The results were announced at last Friday's Feminine Fling, jointly sponsored by the Associated Women Students, the Inter-Sorority Council and the Recreation Association.

Of the college's seven sororities Delta Psi has won the trophy four times, Zeta Chi and Kappa Phi have been given the award three times, Phi Beta Rho and Gamma Sigma Sigma have received the trophy twice and Gamma Kappa Beta and Theta Tau are both one-time winners.

The AWS service award was presented to Kay Vanderford for her unselfish service to the college throughout the semester.

Plansky Elected Editor Of Fall Guardsman Staff

Election of Paul Plansky as Editor-in-Chief for the Fall Semester, 1961, was announced today by the editorial board of The Guardsman.

Currently Associate Editor, Plansky was also Managing Editor for the Fall 1960 Guardsman when it won All-American honors from the Associate Collegiate Press.

Other positions announced by the board include Dick Dragavon, Managing Editor; Herman Kligerman, News Editor; Rodney Van Cleve, Feature Editor; Ivan Temes, Sports Editor; John Muller, Staff Editor.

Outgoing Editor, Bob Pacini, congratulated the new staff and expressed confidence that Plansky would maintain the high standard set in past semesters by The Guardsman, Pacini also praised the rest of the outgoing editors and said he enjoyed working with all of them.

AGS Head Takes Scholastic Cup For Top Honors

By Rodney Van Cleve

Max Savin, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society, will be presented with the Scholastic Cup, the college's highest award for scholastic achievement, during commencement exercises, according to figures revealed by the registrar's office.

Savin won the distinguished trophy by merit of a 3.82 grade-point average. Other claimants for highest honors who will be graduated Friday night at Riordan High School are Mary Louise Foster and Tillie Smith.

Minimum grade-point average of 3.75 must be achieved for graduation with highest honors, while a 3.5 average is necessary for high honors and a 3.3 record provides for graduation with honors.

High honors will be bestowed on Alice Ayako Abbey, Joyce Armstrong, Nicolai Favstritsky, Katherine Hall, James Hughes, Peter Koch, Dorothy Marks, Claire McGowan, Samuel McKeown, Michel Rogozinski, Walter Stevenson, Frank Thomason and Susan Walraven.

Slated to graduate with honors are Joseph Bestresky, John Davids, Joyce Gill, Patricia Grow, Leon Khachadourian, James Kreiss, Joyce Lamas, Ruben Levy, Patricia Martin, Joan Martus, Thomas Waish, Odelia Organo, Robert Urrea, Alexander Woolworth, Ray Westergard and Wallace Woolfenden.

Although Savin's position at the top of the list is definite, the present standings are based on grade-point averages through this semester's second midterm. An honor student's performance in the final midterm could affect his standing.

THREE STUDENTS at the top of this photo who are speakers at Friday night's commencement are, left to right, Peter Koch, Joyce Lamas and Thomas Craighead. At the lower left is Max Savin, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, who won the Scholastic Cup with a 3.82 grade-point average; at lower right is Claire McGowan, recipient of the Wall Street Journal Award, given to the most promising student of finance and investment.—Guardsman photos by Earl Lair, Roger Nissim and Estuardo Dell'Aqua, respectively.

Journal Award Goes To Coed Account Major

Claire McGowan won the Wall Street Journal Award given to the graduating student who shows the most promise in the field of investment and finance, Edward Larson, business instructor, announced last week.

This was the fourth consecutive year a woman student took the honors.

The award, given in 750 colleges and universities in the Western Hemisphere, consists of a silver medal embedded in clear plastic with the winner's name engraved on the back and a year's subscription to the Wall Street Journal.

Miss McGowan, an accounting major, was chosen from many students by a committee of instructors and administrators on the basis of her high grade-point record here, Larson said.

Thirteenth winner of the award here, Miss McGowan will complete her studies this semester and will be presented the award during the commencement ceremonies this Friday night. She plans to go into the accounting field after graduating.

Former Student Carolyn Fink Wins John Hay Award

One of 11 California teachers awarded the John Hay Fellowship, Carolyn M. Fink was a student here from 1948 to 1950, where she began preparing for her teaching career.

Miss Fink continued her education at the University of California where she earned Bachelor's and Master's degrees in social science with an emphasis on Latin-American history.

The fellowship which she has won allows the recipient to study the humanities for one year either at the University of California, the University of Chicago, Columbia, Harvard, Northwestern or Yale Universities.

Miss Fink has chosen to attend Harvard and looks forward to her departure in September. The units she will earn can be applied to a Doctorate should she decide to work for one.

Full tuition, health fees and transportation costs are paid by the fellowship as well as a sum equivalent to the annual teaching salary.

This is not the first scholarship that Miss Fink has won. The Japan Society at the University of California sponsored her two summer sessions of study in the Far East.

Miss Fink has been teaching history at San Francisco's Abraham Lincoln High School seven years.

Because of her previous academic background and future studies Lincoln may add more history courses to its curriculum which will make use of Miss Fink's knowledge in Latin American and Far Eastern history as well as the special field of study that she will undertake at Harvard.

Honor Graduates Speak At 26th Annual Program

By John Muller

Presenting certificates of completion to more than 800 students at the 26th annual commencement ceremony to be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the Riordan High School auditorium will be Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, according to John Brady, commencement committee chairman.

The total number represents graduates from the 1960 summer session, Fall 1960 and Spring 1961 semesters.

Certificates of completion will be given during the ceremony in place of Associate in Arts degrees, which will be mailed later after the graduate's final grades are evaluated.

Student speakers for the exercises are Thomas Craighead, a hotel and restaurant major; Joyce Lamas, a business major, and Peter Koch, an electrical engineering major.

A committee of 12 chose the three speakers from a group of seven students who tried out. Craighead, Miss Lamas and Koch, all honor students, won the honor of student speaker because of the quality of their speeches and speaking ability, Brady said.

Highlighting the ceremony will be presentation of the President's Award Plaque to the man and woman graduates whose service to the college have been outstanding, and the Scholastic Cup to the graduate who has achieved the highest grade-point average.

In recent years Dr. Harold Spears, superintendent of San Francisco public schools, has represented the San Francisco Board of Education at the ceremonies, but he will not be present this year.

The college concert band will be under the direction of Meyer Cahn and Galen Marshall will conduct the A Cappella Choir during the exercises.

Graduates will assemble in the Riordan High School cafeteria one hour before the ceremony begins to try on their cups and gowns. Brady explained that unlike previous years there will be no rehearsal before commencement begins.

Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction, will present the graduates to Dr. Conlan, who will confer the certificates.

Acting as marshals at the exercises will be Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator, division of educational management; Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men, and Brady.

Two Students Save Woman From Surf

William Hickey, a 24-year-old freshman here, aided by his friend Clifford Tune, a sophomore, saved the life of a middle-aged woman last week at Ocean Beach.

Hickey, who is a lifeguard, used the respiration method of back pressure-arm lift, and the woman was revived some five to ten minutes later, according to Hickey's account of the rescue.

The college administration has sent a letter to each of the men, commending them for their alertness. Dean Ralph Hillsman also announced that a copy of the letter will be filed in each student's permanent record.

Men's Glee Club Sings Friday In Honor Of British Queen's Birthday

Climaxing their semester's work, the Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Galen Marshall, will perform at the annual formal ball of the British Commonwealth in honor of Queen Elizabeth's birthday this Friday night.

The annual event will be held in the Garden Court of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, and some of the dignitaries to attend this social affair will be the British Consul, Stanley Withers, Governor and Mrs. Edmund Brown and Mayor and Mrs. George Christopher.

On the same night the A Cappella Choir will participate in commencement ceremonies which will be held in the auditorium of Riordan High School.

The annual Spring Concert, held in the college's theater May 29, "put the finishing touches on a semester of hard work for both choral groups," Marshall said.

The officers for the A Cappella Choir this semester were Ann Thornton, president; Donald Jin, vice president; Wilta Smith, secretary; Barbara Kroll, librarian; Margaret Hall and Tony Vanee, robe custodians.

The Men's Glee Club officers were Leon Dozier, president; Tony Vance, vice president; Ralph Martin, manager; Phillip Early, librarian, and Winston Jung, secretary. Accompanist for both the choir and the glee club was Dean Hollister.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 52, No. 13 WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1961 Page 2

Spring '61 Guardsman Writes '30,' With Its Thanks To All

ALL GOOD THINGS must come to an end, goes the trite and oft-used saying. For us this is the end, the end of another volume of The Guardsman. We hope it's been a "good thing."

Any newspaper, be it a college weekly or a great metropolitan daily, is only as interesting and lively and colorful as the people who make the news it reports. Certainly, we feel, no college paper could have been blessed with a finer group of people than those with whom we have had the distinct pleasure of working this semester.

To every member of Student Council, the executive officers, the Freshman and Sophomore class representatives and the cabinet members, we say thanks for your co-operation and interest. A resounding "job well done" is due each of you.

Our thanks go also to the administration for their invaluable aid, advice and their patience with curious reporters. A spirit of co-operation between The Guardsman and the college's administration, so evident in past terms, has, we feel, been strengthened this semester.

Finally, our biggest thanks must go to our two excellent journalism instructors, Joan Nourse and George Mullany. These were the two people who held us together when we needed holding together, who helped us over the occasional rough spots, who guided us so expertly and unfailingly.

Each of these people aids greatly with the publication of The Guardsman. Each of them has contributed much to it. Looking back on what we consider a highly successful semester, we feel that all that remains to do is add the traditional newspaper symbol for the end . . . 30.

Coach Conlan In Hall Of Fame

LOUIS G. CONLAN, president of the college, has been voted by acclamation into the college's athletic Hall of Fame. Rather out of place, you say, a college president in an athletic Hall of Fame? Actually, we believe that no more appropriate individual could have been named than Dr. Conlan.

Dr. Conlan is, to speak analogously, leading the biggest team of his career at the present time—the faculty and students of City College of San Francisco.

Being head of a team, however, is not new to Dr. Conlan, for he was just that in his own student days at St. Mary's College, and later was championship basketball coach and assistant coach for the first football team here.

Rather than sit on the sidelines, Dr. Conlan has taken an active interest in his present team and has, we know, worked long and hard in shaping it up so that in the future it will, as always, be able to make the winning play.

His entrance into the college's Hall of Fame is a sign that his stature as a leader and, if we may use the word, "coach," is recognized by all those who have ever had the distinct pleasure of working with him.

Foresight

Students Can Explore World Through Books

By Richard Shields

NEW WORLDS in countless numbers exist within the realm of every student's daily activities if he will take the time, and the effort, to try to attain them.

These worlds are books, and they vary in appeal from records of trivia, which go together to make men's lives, to themes which stretch the very limits of man's imagination.

Books appeal to students only because no one ever read a book from which he did not learn something, and no one ever learned who was not a student.

Along with experience, books are probably the greatest existing sources of knowledge and are certainly man's greatest source for entertainment.

In the same way that no one is quite the same person each day because of the experiences of the previous day, no one is quite the same after reading a book.

Ideas and ways of thinking are subtly changed, prejudices are raised and lowered and, most important, experience is given a vital supplement.

Reading is the counterpart of experience and is essential in realizing completely the benefits of experience.

Some people while away the traditional three months vacation at the end of a school year. Students, however, do not. They read.

Summer reading can fulfill as important a part of a student's subject requirements as anything which is acquired in the classroom. And it is completely up to the student to get what he can.

Fiction, for instance, entertains and provides relief from the rigors of serious reading, but it also sets new processes of thought into motion.

Works of a more serious nature supplement texts and class lectures and may or may not be entertaining. That depends on the student's approach to them.

In any event, public libraries and bookstores provide doors; students possess keys of initiative; worlds exist for those who like to visit, to explore, and to learn.

Guardsman Staff—Spring, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... BOB PACINI
Associate Editor ..... Paul Plansky
Managing Editor ..... Frank Dunne
News Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Feature Editor ..... Richard Shields
Sports Editor ..... Tom Kennedy
Staff Editor ..... Christopher Wise
Chief Photographer ..... Bob Callister

Editorial Assistants: Dick Dragavon, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Ivan Temes, Hugh Philo.

Reporters: Dick Dragavon, Dianne Dupre, Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Herman Kilgerman, Jerry Littrell, Sue Mount, John Muller, Albert Ortovitz, Hugh Philo, Geraldine Tarantino, Ivan Temes, Rodney Van Cleve, Richard Edwards, Frederick Gregory, David Kleinberg, Raul Ortega, Christopher Wilde.

Cub Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, William Merrill, Herbert Mitzi, George Palmer, Anna Papagni, Marilyn Santos, Sandra Sells, Evelyn Thude, Bob Yeary.

Photographers: Roger Nissim, Tom Egert, Estuardo Dell'Acqua, Gary Lair.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member of Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

Hands Across The Sea

Karate Student Here Tells Philosophy Of Ancient Art

Jerry Leo, a 19-year-old freshman here, has become prolific at the brutal but somewhat unknown sport of Karate.

New to the United States, Karate is a product of India and is about 2500 years old, according to historic sources. Its headquarters is Japan, the modern and ancient capital of hand-to-hand fighting.

The sport is unlike judo. Its snapping hand or foot movements, which strongly resemble gestures of an Oriental dance, can easily splinter bones, maim or kill a human.

Leo, who has been a student of the sport for six months, states the training of Karate can be considered as both philosophical and religious. Karate, he said, cannot be taken lightly.

"The serious minded student would want to make a lifetime study of the art. The more a student learns from Karate and its deadly powers, the less aggressive he will tend to be," he said.

"I spend as much time on the sport as I can afford. The time varies from week to week. I train my hands and my feet but like most things, one cannot expect to have well developed hands or feet overnight."

Leo holds the title of third degree brown belt. The highest belt obtainable is the black, which runs in 10 degrees. There are possibly only 20 people living who have carried that title, Leo reported. His teacher carries an eight degree black belt, highest actively.

A beginner starts with a white belt and progresses to the degree of his ability. Leo has passed through five degrees on his climb to third degree brown belt.

Karate students spend many hours toughening up their knuckles by plunging their bare hands into gravel and sand.

Conditioning of the hands, Leo says, is a gradual thing. "Calouses are not the real importance to the Karateka. The purpose of training the hand is to build a bone structure sufficient to withstand the blows which the hand is capable of delivering.

"Through training, the Karateka develops a great amount of destructive power, but without the bone structure to back the blows he could possibly break his hand," he acknowledged.

Leo has never used his force outside of class.

Karate claims 700 ways to strike the unwary, although it is reported only 35 methods are popular.

Leo indicated there are other students here who partielpate in the growing sport.

Prospective Karate students are screened and rejected or accepted by instructors who condition themselves to recognize good and bad traits in a person.

Free-Lance Writers

Classified Ad Board Offers All To All

Notices for accurate typeing (sic), "loaded" cars and cheap books are frequently posted upon the college's modified version of a newspaper's classified ad section—the bulletin board standing at the south end on the main floor of Science Hall.

Results of such ads are known only to their writers. No guarantee as to the accuracy or dependability of the notices on the board is given students who read them since, unlike a certain San Francisco daily, there is no reward offered for false advertising.

Whatever one student wishes to sell, or another wishes to purchase, he can always find a place on the board for his offering.

Rentals and transportation opportunities also have their proper place on these walls.

Everything from surfboards, spears and automobile grills to continental suits were advertised last week, in addition to the usual "books for sale cheaper than bookstore prices" ads.

All advertisements are removed from the board at the end of each month to make room for the new flood the following month.

Students placing an ad are requested to write it legibly upon a standard three by five inch card and get approval from Dean Ralph Hillsman, but this is not always the case.

As any instructor or student can see, ads are actually written on any slip of paper or card in many styles and shapes.

The administration here doesn't think that the bulletin board will soon pose a threat to the San Francisco dailies which profess the most classified ads. Therefore, the administrators are not putting their heads together trying to devise a better system, at least not at the present time.

Shots At RAMdom

By Christopher Wise

IT'S TIME to announce the winner of the initiative award for this semester. Each January and June the prize, a copy of Hubbard's Message To Gareia, engraved on the side of a broken fountain pen, is given to the person here who has proved he could see a job through.

(The envelope please.) This time the winner is Jordy Cooney. Besides being a member of the custodial staff he plays a tree and several other roles in The Drunkard.

Here is how he qualified for the award:

The day of the play's opening he decided that he would send a good luck telegram to producer-director-drama department chief M. J. Griffin.

Arriving at the theater that evening he made discreet inquiry and found that the wire had not yet gotten into the boss' hand.

Cooney tracked the message down and found that it had been delivered to the college. Furthermore, he birddogged it until he discovered a young lady in the cast carrying it around in her pocket.

Wresting it from her he hustled up and handed it to Mr. Griffin just before the curtain went up.

Too bad. Had Cooney only said to Griffin, "Who's it from?" he might also have walked off with the award for most naive question of the season.

* * *

THE ECONOMIC picture has been getting better steadily since last Fall, reports one young student here. Says he, "I started looking for a job in October. There were none. 'Recession,' they told me.

"Early this year I was out looking for a job again. No dice. All prospective employers said that the recession was bottoming out. Now I'm looking for a summer job. Not a chance. All the bosses say that the recession is over and the economy is re-adjusting."

He hastened to add: "Financially, I am much better off than I was when I first started looking for work. The minimum wage has been raised considerably."

* * *

THIS WEEK'S quote from a major in economics:

"Alimony is the bounty on the mutiny."

* * *

DEEP IN THE bowels of the battleship the young man lifted a heavy object onto the lift and watched it start towards the upper deck. He turned and began searching the shelves around him. They were bare.

Frantically he ran from storage bin to storage bin. All were empty.

Dejected, he walked over to a corner and lifted the speaking tube. "Sir," he began, "That was the last shot."

Memories Chronicle Spring '61

Mural, Blood Drive Make College History

By Dick Dragavon

While students were struggling through the problems incidental to registration last spring, a City College instructor was having his troubles in Spain, having made a forced landing in a country where his knowledge of the language was somewhat below conversational level.

The students and the instructor, however, solved their problems, and began to make the portion of the college history which will be known as Spring Semester '61.

New Building Opens

The new arts building was opened to share the classroom load, and a new fountain was opened in the cafeteria to share the load at the cash registers. While serving that purpose, the fountains also managed to increase the jam for seats at the tables.

In the arts building, forming a wall of the lobby of the new theater, the mammoth Rivera mural rested contentedly in its first permanent mounting in 28 years, while San Francisco sculptor Benny Bufano was cautioning college officials against the possibilities of the sun fading the work or vandals destroying it.

Although three holidays occurred during this semester they were hardly noticed, since two of them fell at the beginning when students were not yet settled.

Fraternity and sorority pledges might have hoped for a little more time off as pledge week was extended to five days.

Sports Picture Varies

The basketball team ended the winter sports season with the Rams holding second place in the Big Eight Conference, and only one spring sport was able to do better.

The track team was tops in the area, and the tennis and golf squads gripped second place league standings, while the swimmers washed out and the baseball nine bobbled their upper division position by losing their last game.

In Student Council, although the budgeting dragged on and on, a solution was found to alleviate the overcrowding at the Frosh Ball, and a temporary student union was set up which didn't appear to even touch the overcrowding in the cafeteria.

Although students set a new West Coast record for blood donations, a general apathetic attitude kept the theater-going "crowd" at a minimum during the theater's opening production of Ah, Wilderness! and the present run of The Drunkard.

CAB Day, Flamenco Music

Lack of interest also forced cancellation of the Spring Festival, sponsored by the Club Activities Board. On CAB Day, however, interested spectators thronged the court as two Hui 'O Aloha members swayed new members with a performance of hula dances.

Flamenco music was provided by Carlos Ramos during the Student-Faculty concert series, which also presented a recital by Anne Adams, harpist.

Socially, the Associated Women Student tea and fashion show, Fascinatin' Fashions, was well attended, and the Frosh Ball entertained a capacity crowd.

The May Fantasy, changed from April, featured Filipino fashion and folk dances as the Soph Ball plans neared completion.

Students were relieved of pre-registration pressures with the advent of pre-programming which will be handled by IBM machine, assisted by counselor Walter McCloud.

Eyes Toward the Future

So the semester closes, and all that remains is to look forward.

Those who will be graduated may see new colleges, jobs or other challenges in their future.

The students who return may notice the completion of new facilities which will fill the areas vacated by the opening of the arts building.

Closed circuit television will serve the campus in the Fall, and a new engineering laboratory will open where the Little Theater was located.

Plans for a planetarium atop Science Hall may also be realized in time for the Fall semester.

These plans, occasions and hopes combine with the innumerable personal problems and accomplishments of individual students which they will recall in years to come as the chronicle of Spring Semester '61.

Guardsman Sports

Volume 52, No. 13 WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1961 Page 3

BIG Man On Campus

"YOU'RE NEXT"—A slightly exaggerated portrayal of the weight training room in the men's gymnasium is the latest subject of "Nick's Knacks," by art student Nick Knatz. Though enthusiastic, weight training room coaches do not promise results quite as dramatic as this.

New Weight Room Proving Boon To Athletic Conditioning

With the rising interest in physical fitness, the college's new weight training room has become increasingly popular.

Opened for use this semester, the room, one of the finest and most complete of its kind, has been used heavily by physical education classes, athletes and others attempting to stay in shape.

According to Coach Sid Phelan, "The body building movement has taken over in several ways with some using it to reduce their weight and others building up.

"Whereas weight-lifting was once recognized as a way for some to show off their muscles, athletes are now realizing and taking advantages of the uses it offers."

Swimmers use the pulleys to develop their strokes, baseballers use the equipment to build up their wrist snaps, track men develop their legs, while those active in other sports can receive help in a similar manner.

Phelan says, "The room can be used whenever there's an instructor to supervise, and we feel, the fact that many outsiders come to use the room is a tribute to its excellence.

"Actually," the knowledgeable instructor believes, "some of these mighty looking muscleman are actually supple in some ways since they've developed only certain muscles.

"However, when used properly the equipment is certainly helpful from a health angle since people can use it all their life to keep in shape and keep that waistline down."

Among the important equipment in the college's modern weight room are barbells, dumbbells, chinning bars, lat machine, abdominal boards, dipping bars, wall pulleys, squat racks and wrist rolls. Instructors encourage students to employ all facilities in their training programs.

RAMblings

By Tom Kennedy

FROM TIME TO TIME persons credit athletics with fostering different qualities.

Physical fitness, competition, companionship and teamwork are some of the typical virtues expounded in favor of those who partake in sports.

Certainly one of the most important benefits was pointed out last week by Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of education management here, at the Block SF banquet.

He stated, "Sports give a person the chance to realize the potential within him and at the same time offer him an outlet to express it."

In reviewing the Spring 1961 season at City College, we can remember several illustrations of Anderson's point. Consider the following:

• Facing league-leading Sacramento, which boasted an 11-0 record at the time, the Ram baseballers lost a 2-1 thriller, then came back to give the Panthers their only defeat of the season, 7-0, as Don Lowpensky tossed a two-hitter.

• Relying upon a freshman aggregation, the local golfers pulled together after losses in their first two league matches to tie for second place in the Big Eight Conference.

• Without the services of No. 2 man Rich Murray, the tennis team nevertheless fought Modesto, the state's best club, to the wire and finally lost only by the margin of four three-set matches.

• John Holm, swimming in his first competitive 100-yard breast stroke, established a new conference record in the Big Eight championships.

• Unsung Othello Carr surprised by qualifying for the state track meet, then broad jumped 23'6" for fourth place.

Of course, athletes do not always produce momentous performances. Disappointments and failures are also important elements in sports.

But by concentrating on the honest, straight-forward effort of competitors, sports train people for other struggles on the intellectual and moral plane.

This was the highlight of spring sports at City College this year.

Tennis Star Bob Siska Enters City College, Will Play On Ram Tennis Team Next Year

By Ivan Temes

If tennis coach Roy Diederichsen seems extremely happy, it's probably because he's landed one of the top stars in the country, Bob Siska, for next year's club.

Only 18 years old, Siska is ranked nationally in the men's singles division and has graduated from the United States Junior Davis Cup team.

After touring Europe for the major tournaments this summer, the left-handed tennis wizard returns to this country to play in the big Eastern competition, including the nationals at Forest Hills, New York. He will enroll here immediately after competing in the Forest Hills tournament.

Since so many of the stars have turned professional, the berths on the Davis Cup team are up for grabs and Siska believes his showing in the coming tournaments will have a major bearing on his chances.

Siska started playing when he was a budding six years old, and has since won many tournaments, just recently finishing among the top finalists in the California state meet.

As the star's mother states, "Age has always been Bob's lone handicap, since he always has to play against older, more experienced men."

Two years ago, when only 16, Siska got through two rounds of the National Men's Singles and then had to face Rod Laver, Australian Davis Cupper. It took the Aussie four sets to win.

A product of San Francisco's Lincoln High School, Siska won his league title two consecutive years without losing a set.

Projecting, Diederichsen believes his new standout has a top shot at the state title and will bolster a team which has John Welles, Randy Chun and Rich Murray slated to return.

The Ram pilot was pleased with this year's club, led by Jack Bracken, which "did everything a coach could ask for and sometimes more."

Since there are no outstanding tennis graduates in the city's high schools Diederichsen is trying to win some East Bay stars, including Berkeley's outstanding Nick Hoogs, to his lineup.

Conlan, Sueuga And Watson Enter Sports Hall Of Fame

Two former athletes and a charter member of the coaching staff were named last week to the college's sports Hall of Fame.

Jim Watson, tennis player, and boxer Frank Sueuga were selected by a panel of formen City College coaches to join 22 other sports greats on the plaque devoted to the college's best performers.

President Louis G. Conlan, the first basketball and golf mentor here and also an assistant football coach in 1935, was named to the Hall of Fame by acclamation.

Conlan won the college's first championship while coaching Ralph Hillsman, then a student here, and others to the conference basketball championship.

While coaching at St. Mary's College before coming to City College, Conlan was credited with instituting the system of freshman football there.

Watson played tennis here in 1958 and captured the Big Eight and North Sectional singles and doubles titles. He lost in the semi-finals of the state championships in singles and doubles. The team won the conference and North Sectional crowns.

Sueuga boxed for two years (1948 and 1949), winning the conference light-heavyweight and heavyweight titles. He was a runner-up in the national championships, losing both years to the man who defeated Ingemar Johansson in the 1952 Olympics.

In trying out for the Olympics himself, Suega reached the semi-finals of the preliminary tournament in Sacramento.

"COACH DUTCH" CONLAN, as he is affectionately known by former athletes, was named to the college's sports Hall of Fame last week.

Dusters Bowl To League Win

Bowling champs of the Intramural Bowling League this semester are the Alley Dusters of the Newman Club, who crushed the Hotel & Restaurant squad last week at Westlake Bowl.

Les Adams, bowling director, reported that the Dusters smashed the luckless H&R five 4-0, with winning scores of 691-628, 613-580 and 701-639.

The champions received their trophy at the Recreation Award Social held last Thursday. Trophies were also awarded to the high man and woman average and high man and woman handicap scores.

High scorer for the losers in the championship playoffs was Bob Diacri.

Box score of championship games for the Alley Dusters:

Name	TP	Avg.	High Game
Fred Nannizzi	471	188	197
Carol Geuthenbaugh	410	190	193
Pat Welch (Captain)	370	120	132
Jerry Twomey	408	135	148
Larry Draper	336	115	121

Three Baseballers Make All-Big 8

Three star members of the 1961 Ram baseball team won places on the All-Big Eight team, which was dominated by league champion Sacramento. The voting was held last Friday in Sacramento by the coaches of the Big Eight colleges.

Frank Gable, hard-hitting City College third baseman, was a first team pick, while Ed Preston and Art Groza captured spots on the second string. The Rams, incidentally, finished in a tie for fourth place in league standings with a 6-8 record.

Sacramento landed four men on the first string all-league team, plus two others on the second club.

The Panthers finished the league season with a 13-1 record, their only loss being to City College.

First string All-Big Eight players were as follows:

Player	Position	College
Lawrence	pitcher	Sacramento
Baker	pitcher	Stockton
Eberle	catcher	Sacramento
Melby	1st base	Sacramento
McCarn	2nd base	Santa Rosa
Gable	3rd base	CCSF
Dye	shortstop	Sacramento
Leatherwood	outfield	Modesto
Russell	outfield	San Mateo
Williamson	outfield	Stockton
Jeremello	outfield	Santa Rosa

Local Tracksters Take Ninth Place In State Meet

Paced by Alex Darnes' second place discus toss of 162 feet, the Ram tracksters concluded a successful season by scoring 19½ points to finish ninth in a field of more than 38 entrants in the state meet at Modesto.

As expected, the southerners dominated the competition with Fullerton piling up 54 points to edge second place Long Beach with 45.

Frank James, sixth in the mile, ran his best-ever two-mile in 9:41.9 but could manage only a sixth place while Ray Hearne finished in a four-way tie for third in the high jump at 6-4½.

National records were set by Gary Comer of Pierce and Ray Van Asten of Mount San Antonio who, respectively, ran 46.6 seconds in the 440 and 1:50.1 in the 880.

Two double winners emerged as Oakland's Overton Williams copped the 100 and 220 sprints and Dee Andrews of Long Beach took the high hurdles and broad jump.

Only the 1958 championship team scored more points in a state meet than this year's Ram squad, which earlier had gone unbeaten in dual meet competition, taken the Big Eight championship meet, and finished second by one-fifth of a point in the Northern California meet.

Ex-Ram Linemen Practice With Pair Of Pro Gridiron Greats

By Dave Kleinberg

A pair of ex-City College linemen on the brink of pro football success have had the unusual opportunity to practice with two of the greatest present-day pro football players here for the past few weeks.

Jerry James, tackle for the Rams in 1955, and Willie Hudson, guard in 1954 and 1955, practiced with ex-49er great Joe Perry and Gene "Big Daddy" Lipscomb, 6-6, 290-pound monster and All-Pro defensive lineman for the Baltimore Colts.

Before his injury in 1955 James was rated the best tackle in the Big Eight Conference.

James is trying for a job with the Colts this year, while Hudson is conditioning for an expected tryout with the Oakland Raiders.

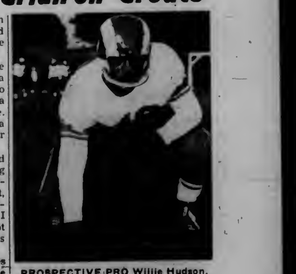
Hudson was an All-Conference guard in 1954 while leading the Rams to a 9-1 record and he repeated the feat in 1955. That year he made junior college All-American.

During the practice spectators gathered and gasped with "Oh's" and "Ah's" as the biddies of Lipscomb and James collided with a combined force of about 540 pounds.

One student, apparently unfamiliar with pro football, approached City College line coach Alex Schwarz and, referring to Lipscomb, said, "Coach, who is that guy?"

Schwarz, mainly intent on watching the huge athletes, gave a quick, "That's Lipscomb." The obviously puzzled spectator blinked an eye and said, "Can we use him this year?"

After finishing City College, James continued his football at Cal Poly, and last year played pro ball for the Los Angeles Chargers.



Talking about the old days, James said that his two years of college ball here were a big help in preparation for a four-year college. He added that the experience of junior college football is more beneficial than freshman football at a major college.

He recalls an experience back in 1954 when the Rams were behind Stockton Junior College 13-6 in the fourth quarter.

James, playing left tackle, broke through the line and intercepted a Stockton lateral, then romped into the end zone. He added the extra point to give the Rams a 13-13 tie. "Scoring a touchdown is always a lineman's dream. But I've never scored one since then," he smiled.

The big lineman quickly changed the subject to pro football. Talking about Lipscomb, James said, "Whenever you want to find something out, you go to the best. When I first started practicing with 'Big Daddy' I thought he was overrated. This is not so. I just hope some of his talent rubs off on me."

Coach Grover Klemmer said James was the all-time best tackle in the Big Eight Conference, and he was probably the fastest tackle this conference has seen.

PROSPECTIVE PRO Willie Hudson, former City College football great, now trains with "old hands" of the professional circuit.

The Drunkard Bows Out

Ending a riotous four-week run, the college's production of The Drunkard bows out this weekend with Friday and Saturday performances at 8 p.m. in the theater.

The Drunkard brings audience participation to its fullest by inviting the customers to take an active part in the play, "coaching," hissing and cheering the various actors at will.

In addition to this weekend, Drama Director Michael Griffin announced that the company will take the production to the Treasure Island Petty Officers' Club today for the second of two appearances there.

The plot concerns a happy-go-lucky husband by the name of Edward who turns to drink. Terry Sutherland, who also handled the lead in Ah, Wilderness! plays this lead role.

Leah Pashoian depicts his poor, innocent wife who tries to win him back. Lawyer Cribbs, played by Fred Fisher, is the villain of the piece, stealing the couple's property and trying to win the wife for himself—and all the while aiding Edward's downfall.

Randy Jones as Edward's brother serves as the wayward husband's "guardian angel" by imploring him to turn from his rum-soaked ways.

All the while a howling audience shouts encouragement and hisses at the players, depending on the roles.

Others in the production are Ann Osorno, Edward's daughter; Anna Maria Papagni, the man-crazy Miss Spindel; Martha Ross, Edward's maniac sister; Mike Corrigan, Luis Barba, Barry Crawford, Margarttee Ramle, Borna Bajurin and Bill Thompson.

City College's new theater, where the melodrama is presented, is considered by Griffin one of the most modern theaters in the country. It is complemented by the Diego Rivera mural in the lobby.

Most facilities for the theater have already been installed, leaving only a modern sound system and incidentals, such as cabinets, to be added.

Nearly 1500 feet of lumber and 500 yards of brown muslin have been used in installing 50 to 75 new seats in the theater since it opened this semester on April 21. Ah, Wilderness!, Eugene O'Neill's lone comedy, served as the drama department's first production there.

NEVER ONE to give up, Lawyer Cribbs (Fred Fisher), who has pursued The Drunkard's wife (Leah Pashoian) for years, discovers that she has grown older but raised a beautiful daughter (Ann Osorno), so he turns his villainous attentions on the poor young thing.—Guardsman photo by Nick Busfeldt and Hayden Townsend.

Club Cavalcade

Officer Elections Highlight Agendas In Final Week

CLIMAXING the semester for clubs and organizations, new officers and plans for increase of membership and publicity are being taken into serious discussion.

The Student California Teachers Association elected new officers. Gene Tognetti is leading the group as president with Bill Gebhardt as vice president. Hanna Howard and Barbara Ford hold the offices of secretary and treasurer in that order.

After a successful Spring Concert last month, the A Cappella Choir is looking forward to another semester of high notes and harmony.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college's honor society, heard a guest speaker from San Francisco State College last Friday outline the advantages of four-year colleges.

Faithful members of the Chess Club, under the leadership of Grant Fahs, are meeting regularly in C-114 every Friday during College Hour.

Associated Men Students and Block SF reported a productive semester and announced that activities are through until the football season once again rolls around.

A slate of new officers was elected by the Chinese Students Club last week. George Woo, former president, announced the winners as Winfred Tom, president; Douglas Cheng, vice president; Robert Wong, treasurer; Judy Gong, recording secretary; Virginia Yim, corresponding secretary, and Bob Lee and Anna Wong, social chairmen.

Planning a barbeque for club members and their guests on June 17 or 18 is the Pick and Hammer Society, pending further discussion on the proposed field trip.

KCSF Broadcasters Club and the Lutheran Discussion Club also elected new officers last Friday during College Hour.

A run-off election between presidential candidates Cliff Charlson and Dennis Gomes is on the agenda of the Hotel and Restaurant Society. The remaining offices belong to Roger Hagemann, vice president; Bea Keller, secretary; Pat Flaherty, treasurer, and Judy Trevor, historian.

Thomas Craighead, graduating president of the Hotel & Restaurant Society, was awarded honors at a dinner on May 26. Craighead was given a trophy by the Sheraton Hotel Corporation for his achievement and scholarship. The college was also honored with its name engraved upon a perpetual trophy.

Shirley Thornton is designated to head the Recreation Association. Officers under her are Amir Darabian, vice president; Odile Haughton, secretary; Lee Durkee, treasurer, and Phyliss Tomlinson, historian.

Installation ceremonies were held for the electees last Thursday evening in the women's gymnasium.

A Graduation Dance, sponsored by the International Relations Club, will be held Friday, June 16, at the Presidio YMCA. Dress is semi-formal and club members and guest are welcome.

Elections for the Fall semester have not yet been completed for the International Relations Club, according to Birgetta Bergman, IRC president.

The office of president was won by Abraham Mirza, and the list of other officers is not yet complete.

RA Announces New Officers For Fall At Awards Social

Officers for the Fall 1961 Recreation Association were announced last Thursday at the RA awards social, Kay Vanderford, RA president, stated recently.

Newly elected RA president is Shirley Thornton, Amir Darabian is next semester's vice president, Odile Haughton will act as secretary, treasurer will be Lee Durkee and Phyliss Tomlinson was elected historian.

Receiving their semester shields in badminton were Sharon Hawley and Maxine Hickman.

Shields were also given to Miss Haughton, Barbara La Noue and Miss Thornton in basketball.

Fencing awards were given to Harry Jorgensen, Patricia Lang and Peter Lismer.

Shields for participation in modern dance were given to Judith Gitin and Marsha Weber.

Volleyball shields were presented to Judy Ferguson, Karen Kinney and Jack Osorno.

Folk dance awards were given to Betty Crumpler, Roger Wong and Irene Hom.

Second semester blocks were awarded to Miriam Lorenzen in badminton, Miss Vanderford received a block for her participation in women's basketball, and Durkee and Nora Wilson earned their blocks in modern dance.

Volleyball awards went to Darabian and Nancy Parraga.

Tim Dunn, Les Adams and Miss Tomlinson were awarded third and fourth semester stars.

This semester's RA Bowling League award was presented to the Newman Club. High point man in the league was Dunn and high point woman was Loretta Ching.

Pat Welsh led in women's high point handicap, and Hoyt Scott led the men's division.

Deadline Today For All Library Materials

All books, magazines and pamphlets must be returned to the library today unless special permission is granted for study during finals, Irene Mensing, reference librarian here, announced.

Those failing to return books will be put on the "delinquent list" and be prevented from receiving their final grades and enrolling in the Fall.

It was also learned that the library will be open all day during the summer session, but not at night. The last open evening for the library this semester is Friday.

Wilkening Assumes Office

Student, Instructor Win Service Awards

Two awards, one to a student, one to an instructor, highlighted the program at the Student Council awards dinner last Wednesday in Smith Hall.

For her co-operation in compiling and printing the state information booklet for Joe Egri, state information officer, Gail Margolin was presented with the outstanding service award for students.

William Richardson, counselor, received the faculty outstanding service award for his consistent aid in arranging student functions and the procuring of entertainment for them.

McCloud Stresses Reg Hour Accuracy

All students who plan to return for the Fall 1961 semester should be programmed by now, Walter McCloud, counselor, stated recently, and added that all returning students should be sure that they have their correct registration hour on the yellow program card for next semester.

Those whose program cards lack this information were advised by McCloud to get the correct hour from the time schedule for hours of registration, which are posted in counseling offices and on bulletin boards around the campus.

The new pre-programming system which ends the pre-registration crushes of previous semesters and assures the needed program to a good student, will receive its final test when more than 7000 begin to register at 8 a.m. Tuesday, September 5, the day after Labor Day.

Egri, Peterson Reign As Soph King, Queen

Graduating sophomores Joe Egri and Georgene Peterson were crowned as King and Queen of the Sophomore Ball last Saturday night during the intermission of the class dance at the Palace Hotel.

A crowd of about 500 saw Miss Peterson and Egri top 17 other contestants for the titles. Selection was by the penny-a-vote method, and all money collected will go to a scholarship fund.

First Fall Budgets Filter In As Council Sweeps Spring Slate Clean

By Richard Dragavon

With newly elected Associated Student President Gary Wilkening presiding, Student Council received the first budget for the Fall semester and cleaned up the remaining business for this semester.

Kathy Henderson, vice president, also served in her new position.

AS Card Sales Chairman Larry Levin announced that 2100 sales had been made. "I consider this excellent for a spring semester," Levin informed the representatives.

Levin also informed council that the committee which was formed to obtain entertainment to promote card sales for next semester had met with the Limelighters, but had encountered financial obstacles.

Levin was informed that this semester's council could not make any decision which would obligate the incoming legislators.

A partial budget for the football team was submitted so that the team would be able to get its practice underway for next fall.

The request, which totaled almost $2500, was slated to be studied and readied for action this week by Councilman Paul Snowberg.

Council also approved a new cabinet position, that of student coordinator of the student union. This office was deemed necessary because of plans for expansion of that facility.

The student union is slated to occupy the entire area of bungalows three and four. The student co-ordinator will be responsible to meet any difficulties which may arise in the expansion.

Campus Police Chief Jim Tedesco announced that his successor next semester will be Jerry McCarthy.

The Publications Board named Paul Piansky as chairman for next fall.

College Transfer Forms Due In VA Office Now

Students under the GI bill who intend to transfer to another college at the end of this semester should file an application for transfer immediately, Robin Dunn, veterans' counselor here, announced today.

Delay in the submission of this application results in the loss of benefits at the beginning of the Fall semester. Application forms are available in the new veterans affairs office, Room 201, arts building.

This application for transfer must be made anytime a veteran changes his place of instruction, Dunn stressed.

Better Cafeteria Conditions In Sight—Elworthy

Prospects for a slightly less crowded cafeteria next semester are much better, thanks to student co-operation, according to Sherman Elworthy, student government adviser.

Elworthy is confident that if the present help from students continues "the problem should solve itself." Another aid has been the student union. This, he said, has helped draw away cliques and students interested only in reading a book or having a coke.

CAFE FINALS HOURS LISTED

The cafeteria will conclude regular service hours tomorrow, according to John Dunn, cafeteria manager.

Fountain service will be available from 7:30 a.m. to noon, starting Friday. Sandwiches, other cold items and hot soup will be served from June 12 through June 14.

"Regulars" are another nuisance. These are people who arrive every day at the same times. "I see the same faces in the same places every day," he said. "Where do they get the time?"

Another continual annoyance that is somewhat abated is that of students who stop and talk along the way to their table. Usually two or three students, while holding their trays, will chat with someone met along the way.

The issue here is that there are many such clusters of students and each is blocking an aisle, hampering service and traffic.

Elworthy is glad to see that more students are using ashtrays.

New Facilities Enlarge Women's Gymnasium

An addition to the college's physical education department facilities is the recent installation of a dance studio and activity room in the women's gymnasium.

First used late last semester, the new studio and activity room were in the planning and construction stage for almost two years.

The dance studio was designed and planned by Lene Johnson, women's physical education instructor here, and Warner Jepson, professional accompanist for the dance classes. Final drafting was done by an architect.

The dance studio is constructed without windows so that the area can be darkened for special productions. Dimmer lights control the lighting system in the studio.

Exercise bars and numerous built-in storage cabinets cover the studio's other three walls. A spring constructed floor eliminates much of the studio's possible noise.

A glassed-in control room houses musical instruments, loud-speakers and makeup facilities. In the future, dance productions can be completely controlled from within this room.

The activity room on the main floor of the women's gymnasium serves primarily as a special exercise room, since it is considered too small for classes.

With a kitchen adjoining it, the activity room also serves as a useful place to hold fraternity, sorority and club meetings.

The new studio has made a notable difference in the dance classes, Miss Johnson stated. There is more enthusiasm in the classes and students seem more creative in their dancing, she said.

SCHOOL YEAR

1961 — 1962

Classes Jammed As Enrollment Hits Record 8285

AS ROGER MARIS knows, records were made to be broken! Rog just missed a tie, but registration here this semester went way over the top. Crowded parking conditions at the left signify the magnitude of the unexpected student overflow.
—Guardsman photo by George Pikich.

By Paul Plansky

Jamming corridors and classrooms to capacity, an all-time record 8285 students have registered here this fall, raising the college's enrollment to the second highest of the two-year colleges in California.

According to figures just released by Mary Jane Learnard, college registrar, the daytime enrollment total of 6228 and the evening division figure of 1657 both stand at all-time highs.

Of the combined record total of more than 8000, Miss Learnard attributed the unexpected increase to returning students rather than new registrants. The number of new students (mostly from local high schools) was anticipated and did not exceed expectations.

The surprise "rush," however, came from the largest per cent increase of returnees in the college's history, many of whom are in attendance here for their fifth semester, Miss Learnard explained.

Last semester's enrollment of 7536 and the Fall 1960 total of 7503 were both surpassed this semester by approximately 800 students.

To alleviate partially the present crowded conditions in the classrooms, a Communications G-5A section has one of its lectures scheduled for Tuesdays at 7:10 a.m.

This semester's record-breaking leap over the 8000 mark places the college second to Los Angeles City College as the two-year college with the largest enrollment in the state, confirmed in a telephone interview with Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator, dean of instruction.

Previously, Pasadena City College had held second place.

Complete figures revealing the number of students here from each local high school are still in the process of being tabulated.

(For editorial comment, see page 2.)

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1961 — NUMBER 1

City College of San Francisco Ocean and Phelan Avenues San Francisco 12, California

CPS Offers Inexpensive Insurance Plan To Students; Applications Due Thursday

By Herman Kligerman

Deadline for students here to make application for the California Physicians Service Student Health Plan has been announced as tomorrow, Thursday, by Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men.

Eligibility requirements for this policy are that a student be regularly enrolled at the college and that he be a member of the Associated Students during the current semester.

Through the joint co-operation of the AS, the college administration and the CPS this plan was derived and offered to interested students inexpensively.

Hillsman urged students to consider this seriously since there is no college provision to handle injuries or sicknesses other than the minor type that can be handled by the registered nurse on campus daily.

Dues are payable in advance. Cost is $13 per semester or $26 for the entire college year. Coverage includes weekends, holidays during the year, and, if one has signed up for the Spring semester, the summer vacation period also

The plan is one of accidental coverage on a limited basis. If such a plan was applied for outside, the costs could range as high as $20 quarterly, according to the dean

Hospital benefits, X-ray and laboratory tests, surgical benefits, and physician visits in the hospital for illness or injury are among the services covered. In addition, out-patient medical benefits for injury only are handled by this policy.

Those enrolled in the plan have their choice of physician.

Full details and applications are available in Dean Hillsman's or Dean Mary Golding's office, at the Smith Hall bank (comptroller's office) or at the new AS office, S-134

If the demand is considerable today and tomorrow, Hillsman stated that the deadline could be extended slightly

The response to this plan was very good in past semesters, and Hillsman expects a record number of applicants this semester

Thespians Plan Drama Productions For Fall C-Hours

Because the Associated Students have been unable to appropriate the necessary funds, drama activities in the new theater will be limited to one major production this semester in January; however, the department will present College Hour shows approximately every two weeks.

Students, faculty and public have discouraged a more extensive program by their limited attendance, but Michael Griffin, drama director, hopes to arouse interest through experimental theater.

His College Hour shows will be performed in the round with the audience seated on the stage

Styles In Shakespearean Acting, first of the series, will be followed by Pullman Car Hiawatha, Ionesco's Foursome, and Death Of Bessie Smith, which has been doing well off Broadway.

In addition, works of Genet, Beckett and Sartre will be chosen, but because of the small seating capacity on stage, only Associated Student card holders will be admitted to the avant garde efforts.

Griffin looks forward to his single full scale shows, Shakespeare's King John. The play is an actor's piece and rarely done, even though many actors achieved greatness through it.

As it stands now, Griffin said, the show will run for one night unless presale tickets or some other indication demonstrates more enthusiasm than has been shown in the past.

One encouraging factor, Griffin points out, is the large enrollment in drama classes. Perhaps this semester's efforts will revive interest in the department's dramatic presentations, Griffin said.

His classes are full of many students who intend to take advantage of the unparalleled facilities that the college offers in this field.

Actor Rod Steiger Set To Appear At College Friday

The essence of Ernest Hemingway comes here this Friday during College Hour in the form of Rod Steiger, who recently starred in Short Happy Life at the Alcazar.

The play is loosely based on Hemingway's life and incorporates much of his work into one story.

Steiger was invited by Michael Griffin of the drama department, who was favorably impressed with the rather unusual production, which is now being slightly revised by its author, A. E. Hotchner, after the play closed last week.

Africa Week Visitors Here Stunned By Loss Of UN's Hammarskjold

By Richard Boyie

The tragic death of United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold September 18 cast a sense of despair among Africa Week visitors to the college last Wednesday.

They were here in observance of the week's Education Day, officially proclaimed such by Mayor George Christopher to afford representatives of various African nations an opportunity to see the city's schools in action.

In an exclusive interview, Abdou Sidikow, foreign secretary general of the infant Niger Republic, through his French interpreter said with a note of sorrow, "Hammarskjold's death was a great misfortune to the small nations.

"I was very much impressed with the similarity of feeling between our nations over the Secretary General's death; perhaps this will make closer the ties between your country and mine."

A note of hope was added when Sidikow, dressed in his long white native robes, commented on the forthcoming United Nations' East-West battle over the Soviet's three-power secretary generalship or "Troika" proposal.

"The people of Niger will lean toward the West, but not because of sentimental reasons."

Hopefully, the statesman added that Hammarskjold's death might make the Congolese "come to a peaceful solution of their problems."

A second Africa Week visitor, El Medi Ben Aboud, Morocco's ambassador to the United States, stated to Alfred Tapson's political science class that "the neutrals will reject the Soviet's proposal.

"We are anxious to know if the UN will be preserved," he added. "A more workable change is needed to the single secretariat, but I hope that the Soviets will not paralyze the UN by forcing its plan.

"The UN is the only hope of mankind and it is the salvation of the small nation. We must find a way to work out this problem or all is lost," the former Moroccan delegate to the United Nations pleaded.

In addition to Tapson's class, Irving Witt's sociology class was also visited.

After they had toured the schools, the guests again met at the college for an Education Day luncheon in the cafeteria.

IFC Slates Open House Tonight In Smith Hall

Inaugurating the fraternity activities for the fall semester, the Inter-Fraternity Council is sponsoring its 17th semi-annual consecutive open house at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Smith Hall, Bob Rogers, IFC president, announced today.

At the affair all men desiring fraternal affiliation at the college will have a chance to meet the officers and members of each of the eight organizations participating in a question and answer period.

The program will begin with welcoming addresses by Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, and IFC President Rogers. After this each of the individual presidents of the eight fraternities attending will give a short talk clarifying his group's aims, activities, and past and present records.

It was also pointed out by Rogers that an interested student may sign up with as many fraternities as he wishes without obligating himself in any way, and that the final choice is entirely up to the individual prospective rushee.

An IFC rushing fee is required of all students attending any of the rushing functions. There will be facilities set up at tonight's affair to collect money from those who haven't already paid.

Also, if a man paid this fee last semester, but did not pledge a fraternity, he will not have to pay again.

Entertainment will be put on by each of the eight fraternities. They are Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta, Phi Beta Delta, Beta Tau, Zeta Phi Sigma, Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Phi Epsilon and Alpha Kappa Rho.

The IFC officers for the fall semester are Rogers, president; Fred Chernss, vice president; Bob Rauh, treasurer; Don Disterheft, secretary, and Don Tarantino, rushing chairman.

BOB ROGERS, IFC president, will be the emcee at tonight's Open House in Smith Hall at 7:30.—Guardsman photo by Christopher G. Utter.

Symphony Ticket Demand Forces Tight Allotment

A growing demand for a limited supply of the specially priced tickets now available for the San Francisco Symphony season has made necessary a new system of distribution, according to Meyer Cahn, music instructor and Symphony Forum adviser here.

The response for these tickets, which are sponsored by the Symphony Forum, and which makes possible a very substantial savings, has been so great in the past years that it was decided this year to have interested students apply.

Applications may now be obtained at the switchboard, S-169, near the main entrance in Science Hall.

A list of international guest performers is featured so that each of the 19 concerts offered this season will be highlighted by a special appearance.

Six guest conductors will appear, headed by Pierre Monteux, once the conductor of the San Francisco Symphony, and the well-known Andre Kostelanetz, who in recent years has recorded music from classic symphonies to popular songs.

Also scheduled to appear is the Russian composer-conductor Aram Khachaturian in a concert of his own works.

A sampling of the list of the guest artists reveals such renowned names as Robert Casadesus, pianist; Gregor Piatagorsky, cellist; and Yehudi Menuhin and Isaac Stern, violinists.

Cafe Problem Launches Action By Elworthy

Operation Turnover, launched today by Sherm Elworthy, student government adviser, will be a campaign to encourage students to use the college cafeteria facilities conscientiously, that is by observing the posted snack and lunch time hours of service there.

The breakfast and snack hours are from 8 to 11 a.m. and the lunch time from 11 a.m. until closing time at 1:15 p.m. The lunch period is what concerns Elworthy more because that is when the accommodating problem is most acute.

Also, he stressed the college regulation that anyone not registered here cannot make use of the cafeteria and anyone violating this rule will be asked to leave the premises on the spot.

There are 6228 day students registered here and the college eating facilities can seat no more than 650 persons at one time.

However, the newly enlarged Student Union scheduled to reopen last Monday with about 150 seats will help to relieve the present overcrowded conditions in the cafeteria.

Elworthy also stated that most students do co-operate by not monopolizing too much the seating facilities in the cafeteria, but the few who do not co-operate are sufficient to create the existing problem.

Sorority Sign-Ups For Rushing Start Here Next Monday

With sorority rushing set to start Monday and run for one week, Kathy Hallock, president of Theta Tau and the Inter-Sorority Council, announced that women students wishing to join may register any time between 8:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. each day in Dean Mary Golding's office.

To be eligible to rush, women must have 12 units of college work with a "C" average or better. There will be a $1 fee for entrants.

Students who register for rushing will be invited to a tea Sunday, October 8, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Laurel Hall, 2676 California Street.

Sororities participating in rush week and sponsoring the tea are Delta Psi, Delta Sigma Tau, Gamma Kappa Beta, Gamma Sigma Sigma, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau and Zeta Chi.

Featured also that week by the sororities will be a display of their pledge outfits in the showcase at the south end of Science Hall.

A collection of trophies and a scrapbook will be shown there also.

Last semester Gamma Kappa Beta, maintaining a 2.5 grade-point average, won for the first time the Margaret Dougherty trophy for the top scholastic average among the college's sororities.

Runner-up for the trophy was Gamma Sigma Sigma with a 2.4 grade-point average.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS — ACP — PRESS

Vol. 53, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1961 Page 2

Overflow Enrollment Stresses Value Of Two-Year Colleges

WITH the largest enrollment in its 26-year history, City College of San Francisco has begun another semester of higher education. The unexpected overflow of students in the classrooms here emphatically typifies the rising tide of America's college enrollment in general, and the important role of the two-year college in particular.

Last semester The Guardsman aimed editorial comment at apathy toward student government and student activities here and pointed out that the two-year college possessed certain disadvantages of unity and solidarity that four-year institutions of learning were not hampered by.

But rather than rationalize, let's look at the other side of the problem in order to explain (1) why the two-year college IS attracting such large numbers and (2) what its ADVANTAGES are.

College Registrar Mary Jane Learnard recently pointed to three causes for the large enrollment here this fall.

Economic—Bay Area employment is at a low ebb, particularly where student placement is concerned. This brings students here.

Political—The Berlin crisis has increased the draft rate and deferments for students require a full unit load. This brings more students here.

Social—The state's universities have stiffened their entrance requirements considerably, and this, too, brings students here.

City College, as a two-year college, does have several advantages.

Financially, with no tuition, it affords students a chance to save for later expenses at a university.

Scholastically, the classroom and laboratory courses here, such as freshman English and chemistry, are less crowded than at universities and more individual attention means better understanding of subject matter.

Psychologically, a student just out of high school can adjust slowly to his new collegiate environment; the abrupt change-over to a community-like university can often shatter his dreams and dismantle his stability.

The cross-section of students here is as varied as it is vast. They're on their way to other colleges, taking semi-professional courses, or enrolling for general education. With many different interests but ONE main goal (education), more than 8000 men and women have enrolled in City College of San Francisco this fall.

Hemingway is dead. The world needs new writers. Hammarksjold is dead. The world needs new diplomats. Education is the key, and the two-year college is the opening door.

Two-year colleges are "junior" only in the sense that they're lower division; they are not by any means secondary or second rate.

The Spectator

Thrills And Suspense Make 'Guns' A Must

By Herman Kligerman

SHEER determination on the part of six courageous men coupled with intense suspense throughout make The Guns Of Navarone a must-see on everyone's movie list.

The Carl Foreman production in Cinemascope and color is still going strong after more than a three-month stay at San Francisco's St. Francis theater.

Contrary to some beliefs, The Guns is not a western. It is a legend concerning huge radar-controlled guns on the island of Navarone, a highly guarded German settlement on the coast of Greece.

Ingenious schemes to blow this dreaded installation off the map, as an armada of British warships approach almost inevitable disaster, make this epic's climax one of the most thrilling to flash across the silver screen.

During the two-and-a-half-hour duration of the picture, the viewer will frequently find himself at the edge of his theater seat.

Take, for example, the group's treacherous voyage over stormy seas which actually injured several of the film's stars since no doubles were used.

Adding to the excitement was the personal fend aboard the sailing vessel and the sealing of an apparently unclimbable cliff which may make City College students wishing the picture think of good old "Hill 29."

Filmed on location in Greece, the production stars several veterans in film-making. In the leading roles are Gregory Peck, David Niven, Stanley Baker, Anthony Quinn and teenage idol James Darren in a strictly serious role as one of the "brave ones."

For probably the first time since the gimmick has been used, it was understandable why the theater's management forbade seating during the final half-hour of the adventure.

Coming out of the St. Francis one drizzly Sunday afternoon, this writer couldn't help but associate The Guns with another Columbia Pictures blockbuster from a few years back that won the coveted Academy Award—The Bridge On The River Kwai.

It won't be a bit surprising if the studio's latest bid for an Oscar wins the honor when awards are given out again next year.

Early Mo(u)rning Class Is Available To Eager Students

Rights of students to complain when they must rise for 8 a.m. classes are slowly and subtly being encroached on by scheduling of one class an hour earlier.

Because of the great influx of new students to the college, it was found that all scheduling space for communications 5A lectures was used, according to James Billwiller, director of the English department and acting dean of instruction for Dean William Mayo, who is on Sabbatical leave.

It was necessary to add another section either late in the afternoon or early in the morning, Billwiller said, and, because of the lateness of other classes already scheduled, the morning class was selected.

The section which was opened was quickly filled, and students are now attending classes conducted by Carolyn Riedeman at 7 a.m. on Tuesdays.

Tardiness is relatively infrequent, Billwiller commented, and the only complaints were from one or two students who thought when they enrolled that the class was to be held at 7 o'clock in the evening.

24 Join Campus Police

Cheat You May, Beat You Can't...

By Dave Grieve

If you can't beat them, join them, is a phrase which may or may not be applicable to the staff of eight Campus Police who hold down the college fort, in that if you're tired of receiving citations, try issuing them.

Only temporarily are the local gendarmes short handed; however, there are 24 spanking clean uniforms awaiting 24 brand new occupants, already enrolled, to fill them.

The big date is October 10, when the green but fair-haired boys will be transformed into two dozen policemen by the "ordaining" hand of City Police Chief Tom Cahill.

The dateline to remember is October 2, when at 8 a.m. the present staff of campus blues will be waiting with pencils in hand to issue citations to cars without student parking permits.

If a student is foolish enough to park illegally in student facilities after the latter mentioned date, he either has cohorts on the force or goes to church each week.

The city recognizes the college's student parking violations, with 2000 citations last semester and potentially more this fall.

Tips to "cagey" students trying to outsmart the law are few and far between, a fact emphasized by past experiences which have not foiled the keen eyes of the blue-coats.

Notes, left by students inside and outside cars, appear in all forms of size, legibility and content, but have one thing in common, they don't fool the college cop.

Another favorite of the previously cited student is to wrap an old ticket around the windshield wiper of his car in hopes of succeeding where his blood brother, the note leaver, failed. That trick is one of the first lessons learned by the rookie traffic cop.

Students fight this infamous college traffic scandal, but in the long run with the trouble and expense involved, it's easier to buy the Associated Student card and obtain a parking permit.

DEPUTY Campus Police Chief Lewis Pollack tags an illegally parked car. —Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

TWO STUDENTS showed up for a music course during the second week of instruction and after the instructor called roll, discovered that they weren't enrolled in the class.

Because it was the last day to add classes the instructor rushed them off to the registrar to fill out "add" cards.

Half an hour later one student came back. Curious, the instructor asked him if he had completed all of the forms.

The student replied that he wasn't able to get the dean's signature and would have to go back to the dean's office at 10 a.m.

About five minutes later the second student came back, walked up to the instructor, and handed him an "add" card, complete with the signature of the dean.

The instructor, puzzled why one student was able to complete the forms and not the other, questioned the second student as to how he obtained the dean's signature.

"Simple," replied the student, "he's my father."

• • •

THE CAMPUS POLICE really have a ease on their hands now.

During the first week of instruction, students complained that when they parked their cars on the dirt hill in the vicinity of the arts building latecomers parked all around them so that the early parkers were unable to get out.

Brainstorm! Why not erect signs instructing the students to park properly. That's exactly what the Campus Police did.

The next couple of days saw the tangled mass of cars get even more tangled. Students still were unable to get out of the parking lot because of the cars carelessly parked around them.

Like enraged bloodhounds the Campus Police investigated the situation.

Doggedly they trugged up the hill to examine the mess. When they arrived on the scene they found lots of cars but no signs.

Somebody (ies) had swiped them.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper-production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragoven
News Editor ..... Herman Kligerman
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Dave Grieve, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell.

Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Herbert Mizia, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thuds.

Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, John Curtis, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Vincent Liu, Joan Lucian, Mary McConihe, John McShane, Patricia Neider, Peter Oppenheimer, Jose Pineda, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.

Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

A Man With Patience

Hollywood Vacation Nets Actor Leff Bit Part On TV

Patience must be a virtue of an actor as Henry Leff, television and radio broadcasting instructor here, can testify.

While on vacation in Hollywood this summer, Leff got a telephone call asking him to read for a bit part in the new television series Follow The Sun.

He "followed" through and landed the part which, because it is the opening scene, is the attention-getter.

Here's where the patience comes in. On August 28, Leff appeared on the set at 6:45 in the morning. He was in costume at 7:30, and on location by 8:30. All day he sat around while the camera crew took shots of passengers in a car.

For the scene which he didn't expect would take more than a day to shoot, he appeared bright and early on the second day of shooting.

This time he got some action.

His part was to drive a car up a curving driveway and stop at a precise point. This looked easy enough for a scene expected to last about one minute.

Leff started up the driveway perfectly, but when he applied the brakes the car came to a jerky stop.

Leff just wasn't used to power brakes.

On that day Leff needed all the patience he could muster.

It took between six and seven takes before Leff could finally stop the car where the director wanted him to.

But Leff wasn't finished yet. On the third day he had to appear to be filmed while climbing up some stairs. It took half an hour to arrange the lights and camera just to shoot a scene of 10 seconds.

Finally Leff was finished. Now he looks forward to next Sunday, October 1, when the episode of The Highest Wall will be on Channel 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Leff isn't a newcomer to the acting field for, besides instructing television and radio broadcasting, he has appeared on several TV shows.

The Criminal Man, to be rerun on Channel 9, was perhaps his most versatile part. He played psychopaths, drunks and "assorted oddball characters."

Although limited to one appearance in this series, Leff played Joseph Stalin, the hated Russian dictator, in Red Myth, a series of one-half hour programs about the rise of Communism in Russia, which ran last January and February. He has also appeared in Lineup and various radio series.

Leff doesn't play the bad guy all of the time; in next Sunday's episode of Follow The Sun he's a good guy, a doctor.—By J. M.

Newspaper, Associated Students Wander

Guardsman, AS History Makes A Moving Story

By Rich Shields

Records of the various locations in the past of some organizations in the college read like combined histories of several moving van companies.

"Itchy feet" and "footloose" are phrases coined to describe people who like to wander, but who has ever heard of an apt description for a roaming newspaper, student government or veterans affairs service?

Probably the only people who think about it are those directly involved, but what "knight of the road" will not sigh with appreciation as their story unfolds?

The Guardsman was born in 1935 in a small office at Galileo High School during a period in the college's history when there were as many as 19 class and administration offices located throughout the city.

That office was fondly referred to by occupants as a "broom closet" because it had previously been, of all things, a broom closet.

In 1940, the student newspaper moved to S-134 of the then new Science Hall, and in 1946 to the west campus, where the reservoirs are now located and what had been, until that year, a WAVE training area.

Finally, in 1954, its "roaming days" at an end, the paper was settled thankfully in its present abode, S-304, once again in Science Hall.

But the story does not end yet. A devious interwinding of names and dates and places is yet to come.

The Associated Students in 1940 had their office in S-169, and then in 1946 they too were moved to "greener pastures" on the west campus.

They remained there until 1955 when they returned to S-169, which was promptly dubbed "the telephone booth" because, prior to their return, it had been the location of a telephone for faculty use.

In 1956 they moved to Bungalow 2, where the Rampdrium is now located, and in 1959 to temporary quarters in S-149 between Dean Mary Goldings and Dean Ralph Hillsman's offices.

After a few months they moved into S-140 where they remained until last semester. Then, so that the testing room, S-142, could be enlarged, they moved again to their present location, S-134.

Asked about his feelings toward the new office, AS President Gary Wilkening added his voice to those of unhappy Guardsman staff members (1940-46), faculty members (1946-54) and Veterans Affairs officials (1954-61).

All of the office's past occupants have been displeased with its small size and the wind howling through the eucalyptus trees just outside the window.

AS government members need not despair, however, for if the past holds any indication for the future, they will almost surely move again.

And, while the college offers no vocational training courses on how to move properly, interested students may gain or supplement experience in that field by keeping a watchful eye on the AS office.

Campus Organizations On Display

'Red Ram Rock' Highlights CAB Day; Rally Set For C-Hour

Introduction of campus organizations to new students is the purpose of the Club Activities Board's display during College Hour Friday, followed by the Red Ram Rock, a dance from 9 p.m. to midnight, George Woo, president of CAB, announced today.

The semi-annual affair, termed CAB Day, is purposely offered to the clubs, groups, fraternities and sororities "to sell the organizations' activities and interests through the medium of demonstration booths located in the courtyard, outside Smith Hall," Woo claimed.

The College Hour will start with a short pre-football "pep rally" consisting of band and song girl routines.

Climaxing the day, a dance will be sponsored by CAB in Smith Hall featuring the five-piece band of Burt Whiting. The decor will be red and white.

Other officers of the CAB are Vice President Joe Lencioni and Secretary Judie Crivelli.

The clubs and organizations registered with CAB for the fall can be categorized under several headings.

Athletic interests are divided between the Block SF and the Recreation Association. The honor groups consist of Alpha Gamma Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega and Gamma Sigma Sigma.

Religious affiliated organizations include the Canterbury Club, Christian Science Organization, Collegiate Christian Fellowship, Hillel Foundation, Lutheran Club, Newman Club, Wesley Fellowship and Westminster Student Fellowship.

Special interest clubs active in the fall are the Student California Teachers Association, Chess Club, Chinese Students Club, Contemporary Affairs Forum, Filipino Club, Folk and Square Dancing Group, Hawaiian Club, Horticulture Society, International Relations Club and the Veterans Association.

Students with professional interests can choose from a variety of groups, including the Broadcasters' Club, Campus Police, Drama Club, Engineering Society, Hotel and Restaurant Society, Le Cercle Francais, Merchandising Club, A Cappella Choir, CCSF Band Association, Men's Glee Club, Women's Treble Clef, Pick and Hammer, Real Estate Club and the Retail Floristry Club.

Fraternities with on-campus status are Alpha Kappa Rho, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta, Beta Tau, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Phi Beta Delta, Tau Chi Sigma and Zeta Phi Sigma.

Sororities include Gamma Kappa Beta, Delta Psi, Delta Sigma Tau, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau and Zeta Chi.

TAKING A BREATHER FROM REGULAR CAMPUS CHORES, the officers of the Club Activities Board gather around President George Woo to brush up on their parliamentary procedure. From left to right in front are Rick Aguilar, chairman; Judy Crivelli, secretary; Woo, and Pamela Chandler, decoration chairman. In back are Dan Collins, publicity chairman, and Joe Lencioni, vice president. —Guardsman photo by Estuardo Dell'Acqua.

Congestion Eases; Automats Keep Place In Basement

Congestion at the vending machines in Science Hall has lessened sufficiently, according to Oscar Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management, and the machines will "definitely be left at their present position."

Last semester's congestion was so bad that the administration threatened to remove the machines unless the students rectified the situation.

Anderson stated that the crowd had been reduced in size allowing students to traverse freely through the hallways on the way to class.

Another problem which presented itself was the fact that students were not using the waste receptacles to dispose of cups and papers.

Anderson warned that the area must be kept clean in order that the vending machines be allowed to remain.

At the present time there are no plans at all for any machines to be added to the Arts Building or Cloud Hall, he said.

Four Sites Set Up As Lost-Found Centers

Textbooks representing the bulk of material accumulated in the lost and found offices can be attributed to student carelessness during the first weeks of classes, Ruth Hoburg of the college secretarial staff disclosed today.

Student names and residence address inside the books will partially solve the problem, according to Mrs. Hoburg.

Four divisions for lost-and-found articles are located in the finance office in Smith Hall, supervised by Velda Maddux; in S-149 by Uriel Furiong; in A-201 by Betty Davis, and at Mrs. Hoburg's desk, C-303.

AWS Schedules Fifth Annual Confab Saturday Afternoon

Representatives from the Associated Women Students, headed by President Jan Doudiet, will attend the fifth annual AWS conference at San Jose City College this Saturday.

Each year the AWS sends a minimum of five delegates to the conference, held at one of the hostess colleges.

The keynote introduction speakers include student leaders from Mills College, Stanford University, San Francisco State and San Jose State Colleges. Students representing colleges from Bakersfield to the Oregon border are expected to attend.

Each speaker will present her ideas on the various aspects of the coed's role as she sees it on her campus, and will then relate the problems to students of her college.

The keynote speakers will serve also as resource leaders in the workshops.

Representing San Francisco at the conference will be nine woman students, who will participate in discussion of the College Coed Role theme.

Taking part are Suzanne Murphy and Jackie Rommel in The Coed Role On Campus workshop; Lana Holliday in The Role In The Community workshop, and Sharon Hawley and Margaret Criete in The Role In The Home workshop.

Additional delegates from the college include Barbara Sperring and Betty Rice who will attend The Role In Society workshop; Priscilla Popin, The Role In The World workshop, and Miss Doudiet in the AWS President's workshop.

Miss Sperring, one of the college's delegates, urged all women students to help participate in the conference.

The only requirements are a listening ear, a gift of gab, a willingness to enjoy herself and $1.50 registration fee, which includes lunch and a light refreshment in the morning, Miss Doudiet said.

Big-Little Sisters Sponsor 'Sack Social' To Welcome New Coeds

In the planning stages now is a Big-Little Sister event titled The Sack Social to be held next Wednesday, October 4, in Bungalow 6, Jan Doudiet, president of Associated Women Students, said today.

Purpose of the event is to invite as many women students as possible to attend, bringing their own sack lunch.

Already on the agenda is Sheree Moores, a speaker from Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college's scholastic society. Her topic will be Tips To Getting Top Flight Grades On Midterms.

Tentatively, the Modern Dance Club will give a short performance also.

Priscilla Popin, active in AWS, is endeavoring to find hidden talent among freshman coeds for entertainment at the event. Anyone with talent can consult Dean Mary Golding in S-150.

Other major activities sponsored by AWS each semester are a fashion show-tea and the Feminine Fling.

The show and tea is scheduled for Wednesday, November 15, and the Feminine Fling, co-sponsored by the Recreation Association and the Inter-Sorority Council, is scheduled Friday, January 5.

Yell Leaders Head Rally Friday

Ram Trio Wins NorCal Trophy

Headed by the Ram yell leaders who took first place at the Northern California Rally Conference, the Rally Committee will present its initial program during College Hour this Friday.

Since the football team opens its home season Friday, the team will be presented at the rally, which will also include yells, song girl routines and other entertainment.

Head Yell Leader Chuck Wood and his assistants, Rally Commissioner Stan Burford and Otto Van Duyn, took the top prize in the conference held at Diablo Valley College.

In the meeting, yell leaders from throughout Northern California demonstrated their techniques and were judged by the University of California Rally Committee, which awarded a bronze plaque to Wood's trio.

CHUCK WOOD

Summer Work Nets Student AS Award

John Burnham, a sophomore here, was given an award last week by the Associated Students for his work at the Veterans Hospital during the summer.

Burnham, who worked at the hospital in the pharmaceutical division, was given the award because he put in more than 100 unpaid hours at the hospital.

The award was presented by Gary Wilkening, Associated Student president, during a Student Council meeting.

Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, congratulated Burnham and said, "He set out to do something and he did it well."

Veterans Must Turn In Forms By October 4

In order to be eligible for an allotment, veterans who served in the armed forces before January 31, 1955, must turn in their petitions by Wednesday, October 4, according to Robin Dunn, veterans' counselor here.

Sole purpose of the petitions is to assure that those veterans who have served at least one year receive the allotment due them.

Dunn said that of the 2200 veterans now attending the college, only some 200 are eligible.

H&R Offers Its 'Cooking Best'

Program Emphasizes Practical Training

By Gerald Almendares

Prejudice unites the Hotel and Restaurant operation people here.

They all agree that theirs is the best in the field nationally, maybe even worldwide, and it could be that this prejudice has some foundation.

According to Louis Batmale, dean of instruction, this department of the semiprofessional curricula here is highly selective of the students it accepts, and as the years have progressed so has the college's reputation and the number of applicants for admission.

Batmale said that it is not unusual now for a new student interested in the Hotel and Restaurant operation program to wait two or three semesters for enrollment into the curriculum. Only 50 new students were registered for this fall semester.

As a result of the growing demand, the student caliber has risen considerably and the college is being acknowledged as one of the best nationally in the field.

Emphasis in the Hotel and Restaurant program is on practical training. What the student learns in the lecture room is practiced in the college kitchens, bakeshops and storerooms.

On-the-job experience is offered through the co-operation of employer and labor organizations, enabling the students, as trainees, to work in the various large hotels and restaurants in the area as part of their studies, earning prevailing wages as well as college credit.

Under the supervision of nine full-time instructors with a combined total experience of 270 years, the students prepare and sell 4000 servings daily in the college cafeteria, using industry-like methods in all their laboratory operations beginning with clocking "in and out" cards, getting regular coffee breaks and reduced price meals.

In the modern, giant kitchens there are signs everywhere like, "Do not use other student tools, you must use your own."

The extra large working tables, cutters, ovens and bowls are kept shining clean.

The Hotel and Restaurant Society since 1936 has been providing campus and outside activities for the division students and affords contact with alumni and industry.

This society is the only student organization here that holds its seasonal socials highlight at the onset of the semester, instead of at the end.

The fall New Student Dinner was held September 15 in Smith Hall; volunteers of the society offered their cooking best.

Fall 1961 H&R Society officers are Clifford Charlson, president; Roger Haggerman, vice president; Bea Keller, secretary; Pat Flaherty, treasurer; Chick Swanson, publicity chairman, and Judy Trever, historian.

Lack Of Water Delays Student Union Opening

By Robert Hacker

Lack of water has caused another delay in the scheduled opening of the Student Union, Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students, announced to Student Council last week.

The opening of the union, located in Bungalows 3 and 4, was delayed earlier in the semester when a chairman could not be found to head the committee in charge of operating the union.

The main job of the committee is maintaining order at the union.

Wilkening stated that he had asked six persons to take the job of chairman. All six refused.

This problem was solved when Wilkening temporarily undertook the job of chairman until a permanent chairman could be found.

Now water, or the lack of it, has caused further delay in the union's opening. The water is used in the coffee machines and the machines are necessary to the operation of the union.

Another problem that confronted council was the proposed Better Relations Act.

The purpose of the act is to bring about a closer relationship between students and their leaders.

There was some discussion among cabinet members over certain points in the act, so it was tabled for further discussion at a later date.

A happier note was injected when Chuck Wood, sophomore council member, announced that the college cheerleaders won first place at the Northern California Junior College Yell Leaders competition.

Twenty-three to 25 colleges participated in the event, which was judged by the University of California yell leaders.

The winning team consisted of Head Yell Leader Wood, and his assistants Stan Burford and Otto Van Duyn.

Stan Burford, Rally Commissioner, announced during council that the tryouts for song girls had netted five capable women.

They are Johnnie Randall, head song girl, and her four assistants, Viehe Segie, Pat Warnock, Myrna Kelso and Sylvia Morey.

Campus Police Chief Jerry McCarthy told council members that to date 1150 parking permits and 150 scooter stickers have been issued.

He admitted that this was well under the number normally issued by this time in the semester but, he said, "We expect a boom in October."

This brought a chuckle from council members as the police will officially start tagging next Monday.

All members of council who were elected to posts last semester have returned to the college to take their positions.

This is quite unusual as normally one or two elected council members do not return to the college for various reasons. So far this semester, council has been saved the problem of filling vacancies.

Rams Shut Out Los Angeles In Season Opener

By Ivan Temes

VAN NUYS, Sept. 22—Unleashing an attack featuring a host of small, swift backs and a strong, unyielding defense, the Ram gridders tonight opened their season on a highly successful note as they powered past outmanned Los Angeles Valley College, 27-0.

Coach Grover Klemmer's charges, using a halfback flanker on every play, jumped in front with 6:18 left to play in the first quarter when Al Raine burst through left tackle for a 14-yard touchdown and the Southern hosts never recovered.

So staunch was the Ram defensive unit that it held the Monarchs to minus eight yards rushing for the game and only with five minutes left to play could the hometowners penetrate past the victor's 47-yard stripe.

Time and again big tackle Jim Baffico looked like the fifth man in the losers' backfield as he burst past opposing linemen to send the bewildered Valley signal-callers scurrying for cover.

Though in front by only the touchdown at the intermission, the Rams augmented that with a trio of six-pointers in the second half, the last two coming within a three-minute span.

Early in the third stanza, speedster Ron Coleman took Randy Autentico's short pass and raced 24 yards to paydirt.

Respective passes of 14 and 10 yards to Raine and Ernie Oliver along with Bob Taylor's six-yard run had set up the score.

Showing excellent field-generalship after a Los Angeles punt, quarterback Ben Winslow took his team from its own 20 to the Monarch 30 from where he connected on a pass up the middle to Verdell Price, who cut to his left, viciously straightarming the last defender, and went in to score.

Price's interception set up the final touchdown, a 12-yard pass from Winslow to little John Daigle, who skirted right end.

Chuck Oushani's 17-yard run was the longest from scrimmage as the winners, led by Tom Piggee and Taylor who combined for 88 yards, outrushed Valley 188 to minus eight and outpassed them 139-70.

Much credit is due the defensive linemen who supported Baffico and veteran end Terry Fischer, among them Cal Rothman, Alex Darnes, Jack Burgett, Dennis Drucker and Dave Urrea, whose driving effort picked off a Monarch pass in the first half.

Gridders Face Cubs Here Friday

RAM OFFENSIVE GUARDS Alex Darnes (left) and Dave Urrea stand ready to crash through the line while preparing for the game against the Cubs this Friday. Urrea, a newcomer to the team, will have the support of Darnes, a one-year veteran.—Guardsman photo by Herb Green.

Four Vets Lead Booters In Pre-Season Test Saturday

With the return of four seasoned veterans from last year's soccer team, Coach Roy Diederichsen is preparing his team for a pre-season test this weekend in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference.

Al Korbus, center-forward; Gary De Leong, goalkeeper; Flavio Valiente, right halfback, and Vincent Liu, left wing, form the nucleus for the team this semester.

The competition this weekend is with other teams in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference at the University of San Francisco's Ulrich Field.

Action will take place at noon on Saturday and will continue at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

Other teams competing in the individual climinations include San Francisco State, Stanford, University of California, University of San Francisco and the University of California at Davis.

Winners at the end of competition on Sunday will be given a perpetual trophy by the Olympic Club.

Last year's soccer team tied for first place with the University of California but was unable to make the trip back to St. Louis for the regional finals.

Because this college is a two-year institution (the only such member in the conference) and National Collegiate Athletic Association rules permit four-year colleges only to participate, the Rams did not compete.

Coach Diederichsen has won commendation for molding players from all over the world into a consistently outstanding soccer team.

The team plays with the knowledge that even though they may sweep an entire season's play they will be ineligible to compete in the finals back East because of the technical rule.

This semester's schedule is as follows:

Oct. 6—San Jose State, here
Oct. 11—University of Santa Clara, there
Oct. 21—University of California, there
Oct. 25—San Francisco State, here
Nov. 1—California Aggies, here
Nov. 8—Stanford, there
Nov. 11—U.S.F., here.

AMS Plans Full Mural Schedule

A full schedule of intramural basketball games, sponsored by the Associated Men Students, will be drawn as soon as final petitions and dates are submitted and approved, Jack Gaddy, director of athletics here, said today.

As nothing can be decided until this information is turned in, definite dates will not be decided until the end of this week.

This year's competition again is expected to take place between the Club Activities Board League and the Inter-Fraternity Council League.

Each league is composed of eight teams.

Last year's title was won by the Associated Men Students in the playoff game with Alpha Phi Epsilon. The AMS players went through the season without a single defeat while players from Alpha Phi Epsilon suffered one defeat before losing the play-off.

Gymnasium Gets Major Facelifting

Anyone who visited the men's gymnasium during the summer witnessed part of the complete "facelifting" that was accomplished then.

According to Jack Gaddy, director of athletics, everything in the building was either cleaned, sanded, painted, varnished or repaired, except the body-building room which is only a year old.

Probably the largest bit of facelifting, or "floor-liftings" created completely renovated basketball courts. This included a sanding and varnishing job over the whole gymnasium floor, as well as repainting of all necessary lines on the courts and the painting of the backboards.

Even the bleachers surrounding the courts were repaired, sanded and varnished so there are no more splinters to puncture legs and clothes.

Glancing around at the new floor and shining walls of the gymnasium, Gaddy, expressed the hope that the student body would co-operate in keeping the "new" men's gymnasium in top shape.

RAMBLINGS Vacant Fullback Slot Perils Grid Season

By Ivan Temes

THOUGH Coach Grover Klemmer's Ram gridders will never plunge low enough to catch a glimpse of the hapless Oakland Raiders, the squad will still run into trouble finding someone to fill the shoes of departed Gary Lewis.

The powerful all-everything backfield star for the Rams last year now should be destined for national prominence as a fullback for the not-so-powerful Washington State Cougars.

As Coach Grover Klemmer states, "We have no men in our backfield weighing even 180 pounds this year, and can only hope that our small, speedy runners are able to carry the load."

Ex-Polytechnic High star Tom Piggee, a top hurdler who showed brilliantly on the football field for the college last year, will have to carry the brunt of the load and, though not a big man, may be called upon to fill the fullback slot.

Otherwise top hopes rest with a pair of 5-7, 150-pound freshmen in the halfback positions, Al Raine from Mission High and Washington's Ron Coleman.

• • •

WITH THREE new professional athletic clubs set to begin operations in San Francisco this fall, the college may be able to play a part in the success of at least one of the teams.

Though the San Francisco Saint basketballers boast such former National Basketball Association standouts as Santa Clara's Ken Sears and San Francisco's Mike Farmer, a former Ram performer, Freddy Williams, looms as a real darkhorse for the starting five.

While here for the 1957-58 campaign, Williams bucketed 379 points in 26 games for a 14.6 average. After a stint in the service, the high-scoring forward last year exhibited his potential for shoot-run-shoot pro ball by often scoring more than 40 points a game for Allan Hancock College.

The NBA's Syracuse Nationals thought so highly of his services that they drafted him high on their list.

For the first time local fans will have a chance to see top-grade hockey in person as the San Francisco Seals take the ice in November and there is no reason why this fast-moving, action sport shouldn't build a real following among the local gentry.

Of the new San Francisco Seals roller derby outfit all we can say is "to each his own."

• • •

AS WAS REPORTED earlier in the year, tennis standout Bob Siska has officially enrolled here and Coach Roy Diederichsen couldn't possibly be happier.

The 18-year-old former Junior Davis Cupper toured Europe and the United States this summer and fared well in the Men's Nationals before bowing to the old pro Vic Seixas.

Speed Squad Seeks Victory In Inter-City Traditional

By Dave Kleinberg

Presenting a light backfield and a heavy line, the Ram footballers will try to make it two straight wins over Los Angeles City College this Friday in the college stadium. Kickoff will be at 2:30 p.m.

The departure of Gary Lewis, one of the college's best backs since the 1948 days of Ollie Matson, has left Coach Grover Klemmer without an experienced fullback.

The 6-3, 215-pound powerdriver, who was named the outstanding back in the Big Eight Conference last year while playing fullback and quarterback, transferred to Washington State along with Herman McKee, a 9.6 sprinter who had been groomed to back Lewis.

Tom Piggee, the Rams' returning Big Eight All-Conference halfback, takes over the vacated fullback spot. Although the 175-pound Piggee, who gained 675 yards in 91 tries for a 7.4 yard average last year, is the only experienced back, help is expected from the incoming freshmen.

Claude Shipp, Ron Coleman, Verdell Price and Al Raine, all light backs weighing between 150 and 175 pounds, are speedsters. Coleman and Shipp are All-City picks from Washington High.

Raine Potential Standout

Raine, also an All-City selection, has run the 75-yard dash in 7.7. Klemmer said Raine, with his speed and shiftiness, could develop into a top back.

Randy Autentico, a freshman from Antioch High, has run the squad in practice, looking particularly effective on the short pass. Ben Winslow from Washington and Joe Alvarez, All-City from Lowell, have the reputations of being fine throwers.

Competition Spirited

Veterans Terry Fischer, Ray Greggains and Ernest Oliver are fighting for the two end spots. All saw considerable action during the Rams' third place finish last season.

Klemmer should be happy with his line. Dennis Drucker, the city's outstanding high school lineman, and Dave Urrea, a 6-0, 200-pound All-City guard from Lowell, will add depth at guard.

The only problem Klemmer has in this department is where to play them.

Linemen Switched

Two ex-guards, 230-pound Jim Baffico and 215-pound Jack Burgett, have been moved to the starting tackle positions.

It's fairly certain no one will take the starting job from veteran guard Alex Darnes, who made second team All-Conference last year. This means the guards may be alternated or Drucker or Urrea moved to tackle.

Freshman tackle Willie Lawson, a mammoth 6-3, 263-pound tackle, could be much help if he comes through.

"We have very good guards," Klemmer said. "This is definitely the strongest position on the line," he said.

Center Spot Set

Cliff Vattuone, the starting center, and veteran Clarence Scanlan have that position well cared for. Bob Kucich, a man Klemmer had high hopes for, is probably out of the season with a bad knee.

Graduation claimed All-Conference tackle Ed Johnson and second string All-Conference guard Jack Hickey.

Led by Lewis and Piggee, Klemmer's athletes rallied from a 6-0 first quarter deficit to defeat the Los Angeles Cubs 13-6, in Los Angeles last year.

The victory gave the Rams their tenth win in 24 games against the Southerners. One ended in a tie. Friday's game, the Rams' second and last pre-season game, should be a test for their league opener against San Mateo on October 7.

Incoming Frosh Bolster Cross Country Squad

Although the Rams lost the three top men of last year's championship squad, the newcomers are expected to give the cross-country squad "an equal or better" team than last year, according to Lou Vasquez, track mentor here.

Three returnees from last year's undefeated team, two new men from the spring track team and four freshmen out for the first time, are expected to form the bulk of speed.

Jim Nigra, returning letterman; John Weidinger, an ex-Balboa speedman, and Tony Ferrigno, a former St. Ignatius one-miler, all returnees, alternated in taking fourth and fifth places last year in league meets.

Not returning from last year are Frank James, Tom Jennings and Bill Hotchkiss, the Rams' 1-2-3 men.

Richard Byers, an excellent runner from Lincoln High; Andrew Loobey, among the best one milers in the state while at Polytechnic High, and George Varmuza from Washington High, have been considered the best of the new men.

Another highly rated newcomer is Tim Power, who was an excellent high school trackman at Santa Rosa.

Jose Valle, who ran the two-mile event for the track team last year, and Roger Ritchey, a one and two-miler, are expected to take high places.

Vasquez rates Sacramento as one of the strong teams in the Big Eight Conference.

The Rams' first meet will be the Sacramento State Invitational at Sacramento Saturday, October 14. All the two-year college cross-country teams have been invited.

The Big Eight opener against Contra Costa, Oakland and Stockton on October 19 will be in Golden Gate Park.

Block SF Banquet Caps Fall Slate

The Block SF Society, one of the oldest organizations on campus, once again opens its doors to all the lettermen of this college. Only those athletes who have been awarded a letter are entitled to join, Lou Vasquez, Block SF adviser, explained.

The highlight of the season is again expected to be the semi-annual banquet dinner during which letters and special trophies are awarded.

One of the chief purposes of this society is to engage itself in money-raising activities which will help finance the various sports teams on campus.

The concession stand was run initially by the society last year during the high school and college football and basketball games played. It will be operated again with one semester of experience.

Vasquez declared that no club can be successfully run without the continuous support of its members.

He urged all members to attend meetings which will be held during College Hours in C-260.

Ram Football Schedule-1961

September 29	Los Angeles City	Here	2:30 p.m.
October 7	San Mateo	There	2:00 p.m.
October 13	Contra Costa	There	8:00 p.m.
October 20	Santa Rosa	Here	2:00 p.m.
October 27	Stockton	Here	2:00 p.m.
November 3	Oakland	There	2:00 p.m.
November 11	Sacramento	There	2:00 p.m.
November 17	Modesto	Here	2:00 p.m.

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

The Guardsman

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1961 NUMBER 2

Radio Broadcast To Lounge Foreseen

KCSF, campus radio station, will begin a new program broadcast to the lounge provided money is appropriated by the Associated Students for a wire that will carry the show from the arts building.

Chuck Harris, the Broadcasters Club's new president, is making plans for the program from the group's newly located studio overlooking the television headquarters in the arts building.

Since the live broadcasts from the cafeteria have been discontinued, Harris is looking forward to this second opportunity from the lounge to provide members with practical experience in production of a radio show.

Assisting Harris in the studio (above) are Vice President Stan Burford, left; former president Ken Jonah, center, and Secretary Pamela Chandler, right.

Presently the organization provides announcers for sports, rallies and numerous other gatherings; it operates Campus Carrier, the announcement program, and it tapes or records speakers, concerts and campus activities.

The club also has an extensive record library, which it makes available to other college groups.

Membership is open to any interested student, Harris said.

—Guardsman photo by Isao Tanaka.

Sack Social, Fashion Show On Tap For Women Students Today

Members of the Associated Women Students will be eating their lunches out of a paper bag when they attend the Sack Social today from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in bungalow 6.

Barbara Sperring, AWS board member, explained that any woman student enrolled in the college is invited to attend. If she is interested in getting good grades, meeting other women from the college and a showing of a few fashions, she is urged to come.

Since many disappointed little sisters were unable to locate their big sisters during registration, today's program was planned to help freshman students to meet their sophomore sisters and each other.

The agenda includes a guest speaker, Sherrie Moores, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society. Her topic will be Tips On How To Get Top Flight Grades On Midterms.

A few dresses, appropriate for the upcoming Frosh Ball, will be informally shown. Freshman women who are not sure of the meaning of "dressy dress" will benefit from the presentation.

The Sack Social is planned to fall within most AWS members' lunch hour. Jan Doudiet, president, also urged all of the college's women to attend and to be sure to bring their sack lunches.

Fall Guardsman Publication Schedule Listed

Tentative dates for publication of The Guardsman this semester were approved by the Publications Board and released today by Paul Plansky, board chairman and Guardsman editor-in-chief.

The remaining dates for publication are as follows: October 11, 18 and 25; November 1, 8, 15 and 22; December 6; January 3, 10 and 17.

There will be only one publication during the month of December because of the Christmas vacation.

Distribution points for The Guardsman this semester will be the Silver Pole in Science Hall, at the entrance to the arts building, at the entrance to the library in Cloud Hall and at the entrance to Smith Hall.

Before any posters are placed on the college bulletin boards, they must be approved by the chairman of the Publications Board, Plansky explained. All posters may be approved by him in The Guardsman editorial office, S-304, each weekday at 10 a.m.

Because of the increased enrollment and addition of new clubs to the campus any student designing a poster is asked to keep the size of the poster at a maximum of quarter size, or 11 by 14 inches.

Publications Board members for this semester are Gary Wilkening, Associated Student president; Kathy Henderson, AS vice president; Dick Dragavon, managing editor of The Guardsman; Herman Kligerman, news editor of The Guardsman, and Plansky.

The only exception to these size regulations are campaign posters for student government elections here, which come under the direction and discipline of the election commissioner, a cabinet officer.

ISC Sponsors Fall Tea

Sunday Marks Initiation Of Sorority Rushing Activities

First event of sorority rushing activities for the fall semester is the Inter-Sorority Council tea, Sunday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. at Laurel Hall, 2576 California Street.

Kathy Hallock, president of the Inter-Sorority Council, said she is looking forward to a big turnout of sorority rushess this semester.

Miss Hallock said that each registrant will receive an invitation to the tea during rushing registration, which ends Friday. This follows the orientation at College Hour Friday in S-100. Women interested can sign up in S-150.

In order to rush, women must be enrolled in 12 units of college work with a "C" average or better, and pay a registration fee of $1.

The tea and the rushing events which follow are designed to give women students an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the sororities.

Representatives of each sorority and their sponsors will alternate in a receiving line where they can meet the rushees.

Sorority presidents are Jeri Vickers, Delta Psi; Jeri Sciutto, Phi Beta Rho; Sandy Thompson, Kappa Phi; Lois Kiney, Delta Sigma Tau; Diane Kinsky, Zeta Chi; Clare Weiner, Gamma Sigma Sigma, and Mary Ann Grandemarge, Gamma Kappa Beta.

Sorority sponsors are Martha Scott, Vivian Ward, Katherine Hondius, Norma Carlisle, Marceline McDermott, Louise Hepper, Melia Furgis and Dean Mary Golding.

Miss Hallock said, "Rushing will give women a chance to meet new friends and attend many new interesting activities with those of similar interests."

KATHY HALLOCK, ISC president, announced that this Friday terminates rushing registration. Sign-ups are still being accepted in S-150.

Desert Isle Motif For Shipwreck Dance This Friday

Phi Beta Delta fraternity will convert Smith Hall into a desert isle with palm trees and a sunken boat for this year's 12th annual Shipwreck Dance, to be held there from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight this Friday, according to Steve Braley, fraternity president.

Dress for this affair will be informal, he said, adding that costumes must be in good taste.

Admission for this dance will be $2 per couple, Braley said, and Associated Student cards are not necessary to attend.

Tickets may be purchased from any Phi Beta Delta fraternity member or at the door on the night of the dance.

Music will be furnished by Sal Vance and his orchestra.

Other fraternity members who are assisting with the preparations are John Margaroni, vice president; Greg Springott, secretary, and Ed Rodriguez, treasurer.

Along with the sponsorship of this annual dance, the fraternity, represented by the president, faculty sponsor and dean of men, presents a service award at the end of each semester to the organization which contributed the most to the college and to the community.

Donald Marcus of the counseling staff here is faculty adviser to the fraternity.

Drama Skit Highlights College Hour Programs

Drama students will present Ionesco's Foursome this Friday during College Hour in the new arts building theater, Michael Griffin, drama director, said today.

This performance will be in the round with the audience seated on the stage, the third drama performance of the semester.

According to Griffin, there will be only one major production this semester because of the lack of funds.

Shakespeare's King John will be presented in January with a cast of 60 to 75 members.

Pre-Programming For Spring Starts Here Next Week

Pre-programming for Spring registration will start at the beginning of next week, Walter McCloud, counselor here, said last week.

Each student planning to register for the spring semester must fill out a free hour form and a self-addressed post card, McCloud said.

The form and the card will be obtainable in Science Hall, the library and Smith Hall.

After the student has filled out the form and card he will return them to S-117 or to the counseling offices.

When filling in the free hour form the student will indicate the times he will be available for programming the spring semester.

The self-addressed card the student has turned in will, in turn, be mailed to him informing him as to the time of his counseling appointment.

Pre-programming takes about ten days. Any student who does not turn in a form and card during this time or does not keep his appointment will receive a lower registration number, McCloud warned.

Last semester was the first time students received their registration numbers on a scholarship, seniority basis.

In previous semesters students obtained registration numbers on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The new method of registration has been praised because it ends the pre-registration crush and emphasizes studies.

Problems encountered during this newly tried method, McCloud stated, were multiplied when 400 more students enrolled at the college than had been anticipated.

This caused many classes to be filled and closed before the second or third day of registration.

Mix-up in room numbers caused some confusion, but McCloud said the whole system worked out well.

President Louis G. Conlan has formed a committee to study the problems that were encountered during registration.

Newly Formed COO Handles Homecoming Day

A new group, the Council of Organizations, will handle all phases of the 1961 Homecoming Day on October 27, Associated Student President Gary Wilkening said yesterday.

The annual festival, which last year drew some criticism because of disorganization, will be completely handled by the new council.

The "big three," the car parade, the dance, and the naming of the Homecoming Queen, will be featured again.

Inter-Sorority Council President Kathy Hallock, Inter-Fraternity Council President Bob Rogers and Club Activities Board President George Woo will continue to control the project until the new organization is ready to move on its own.

Last year's Homecoming Queen was Sandra Genessi, a Newman Club candidate.

Conlan Tells 3-Point Plan To Ease Congestion

By Dave Grieve

A three-point solution to the problem of a congested cafeteria, a capacity-filled library, and crowded classrooms, caused by increased enrollment may rest in a future bond issue to provide additional space, Louis G. Conlan, college president, announced this week.

"Local student growth is progressively advancing," Conlan said, "but it will reach a plateau or maximum size in the coming six to ten years. Nevertheless, the college must be streamlined to accommodate a day enrollment of 7500," the president stated.

The three-point plan to solve the predictable disorder includes a new building, new instructors and teaching techniques, and an extended class schedule.

Laboratory and classroom space could be made available to new students by the addition of a wing to Science Hall and a separate building housing both the registrars' and faculty offices, and a student union, Conlan declared.

DR. LOUIS G. CONLAN, college president, recently discussed the campus congestion problem in an exclusive Guardsman interview here.

The president emphasized, "The primary purpose of a new hall is to offer students an informal study atmosphere, although without the use of reference books, which would remain in the library."

On completion of a study hall, students can shift from the overcrowded library and cafeteria to the new building.

Instructional steps taken for future enrollment entail enlargement of the faculty aided by newly developed teaching techniques, as in closed-circuit television and group instruction, wherein several faculty members advise a large class.

Daily class schedules can be extended into the late afternoon.

"A flaw in the approximate prediction of future enrollment at the college," Conlan disclosed, "is in the possible concentration by State universities on the upper division and tightening of lower division entrance requirements, thus necessitating a possible transfer of uncounted students to two-year colleges."

Ushering Provides Cultural Advantages

Providing an opportunity for a student to attend rich cultural performances without any cost, the ushering service, already in progress, has approximately 200 participants for the musical events in the Opera House and Civic Auditorium, according to Mary Golding, dean of women here.

On September 29 the ushers aided the theater during the presentation of Verdi's Rigoletto. This year, the 30th California Opera Series also includes such operas as A Midsummer Night's Dream and Turandot.

Ushering services will also be needed during the 19 forum concerts of the San Francisco Symphony.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 2 | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1961 | Page 2

Guardsman Format Changes But Policy, Operation Stay Intact

EDITORIALS frequently offer articulate arguments based on current news events. These arguments are backed by facts and are usually written in lofty, picturesque and highly polished prose. Yet, editorials can also inform or instruct rather than take stands on controversial issues. Since we could find nothing to condemn and nothing to condone, today we shall get off our soapbox and go to the blackboard.

Being as objective as possible, we will discuss our favorite subject: The Guardsman.

The weekly college paper which you are now reading has a high set of journalistic standards. Each semester its issues are rated by the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota. The Guardsman has received 29 All-American ratings ("distinctively superior achievement") in its 39 semesters of competition with other two-year colleges across the country. A rating of First Class ("excellent achievements") was received during the other 10 semesters.

With such high standards to follow, the college newspaper staff really has its work set before them—and then some. We are by no means haughty or aloof about our past performances and we eagerly and earnestly welcome comment from our readers. Whether these "Letters to the Editor" contain strong verbs of praise or condemnation of our policy or whether they are directed to fellow students, any material received which is sensible, applicable and timely will be considered.

Returning students here who have read The Guardsman in previous semesters may have noticed that this semester the format of the paper has slight alterations. Page 3, previously the sports page, and page 4, previously the second news page, have been reversed. Several minor changes are due later.

One may ask, with our old page sequence bringing us so many laurels, why we are advocating alterations. Our answer is: As good as something was or is, there is always room for improvement—meaning primarily experimentation and innovation, not stagnation.

The Guardsman does not have advertising; all expenses are subsidized by Associated Student funds. Students who buy an AS card can have a clear conscience when reading this newspaper every Wednesday.

Concerning the paper's policy, we must remain impartial in elections, whether Associated Student, city, state or national. We don't support "crusades," such as sit-ins, freedom rides, protest rallies, et al. We are not, however, restrained from expressing opinion on other controveries, involving anything from student government to world tensions as they affect the collegian.

Our policy in a nutshell is: an accurate eye, an alert ear, an informative arm and, above all, a level head.

The Spectator — Marilyn On TV Keeps Film Fans At Home

By Herman Kligerman

MOVIES may be better than ever, but, in view of the weekend TV offerings, that statement could stand a slight revision with the addition of two words—"on television!"

With the innovation of Saturday Night At The Movies and Premiere, top-notch feature length Hollywood pictures are now being unreeled for the whole family to enjoy in the comfort of their own home on their miniature silver screen.

The former program can be seen nationally, and in the Bay Area is on KRON, Channel 4, Saturdays between 9 and 11 p.m., while the latter is siated on Sunday evenings over independent KTVU, Channel 2, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Saturday Night came upon the scene a few weekends back with the presentation of the 1953 comedy, How To Marry A Millionaire. It was also shown in living color for the fortunate ones owning a color receptor.

With Marilyn Monroe as one of the stars, what red-blooded young man would leave the comfort of his home to go down the street to his local flick and see possibly a more modernized production, mmm MM?

This brings up another point. Now that good movies, although not the latest, are being shown on the "idiot box," the long-established custom of going out to a movie or drive-in on a weekend may be slowly but surely going out of style.

Premiere was the Bay Area's granddaddy of these new movie shows. In its tenure of existence (about six months by now), good motion pictures such as The High And The Mighty, The Searchers, Land Of The Pharaohs and Tea For Two have already been shown.

There is still a vast library of flicks available to the two programs. Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner Bros. are the two major studios releasing such "gems" to the TV audiences currently.

There has been a great necessity for the showing of good films at a reasonable hour of the evening and it looks as though the executives of TV stations have finally realized this desire of the public.

Maybe NBC-TV and KTVU-TV will open the doors for the other stations throughout the country to follow suit.

The fate of the time-old custom of going out to a movie during the weekend may be indefinite today, but with more and more channels joining the trend to improve their own Trendex ratings the custom may disappear.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Herman Kligerman
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Mulier
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Dave Grieve, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell.
Reporters: Gerald Almendarez, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Herbert Mirls, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude.
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, John Curtis, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Vincent Liu, Joan Lucian, Mary McConihe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Peter Oppenheimer, Jose Pinada, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

PUT... Put... put

Scooter Commuters Here Forced To Rise Earlier, Alter Route To College

Motor scooters are becoming the campus fashion, growing steadily from a handful of fearless, anti-Detroit radicals into a common, majestic, two-wheel worshipping clan.

Ideally suited for the contemporary college student usually hampered by a strict budget, the scooter can transport him easily and inexpensively through the skyways and byways of the city.

Recently this clan was the victim of a State law forbidding the use of motorcycles under 15 horsepower and all motor scooters on the skyways and freeways.

This new law initiated a chain reaction amongst local two-wheel members by restricting the faster routes of travel throughout the city, into Marin county and down the Peninsula.

College participants in the two-wheel clan feel that the new law is unjust in that the put-put owners pay their gas tax and a license fee comparable to that of an automobile driver.

Contrary to the motor scooter driver's argument that he maintains a legal speed limit, the Highway Patrol states that the underpowered vehicles are a menace to the fast and heavily traveled freeway, because of their slow speed.

Students who previously traveled the freeways to arrive at college, because of their adjacent home location and the shorter time period, must now alter their route to primary streets and highways, necessitating a student to "wake up with the chickens."

Local scooter enthusiasts scheduled a demonstration two weeks ago to acquaint the public with their problem and to build a civic sympathy with the cyclists.

Make Room There!

Petite Parkers Make Grade, In Own Stalls

It all started in Europe when someone long, long ago decided that what this world needed was a small car.

His brainstorm made sense, too. The small car would be easier on gas, upkeep and so on. Probably, however, the thought of parking ease never entered into the picture until one of his ancestors brought the first of the "petite parkers" to the good old USA.

The little guy seemed lost at first among all of his big iron brothers from across the ocean. But America has always been known to champion the underdog and this was no exception. The "petite parker" slowly crept into the hearts and garages of millions.

Was it really public apathy that caused this gigantic boom? Could it "maybe" be that the American public finally realized that the foreign car was much easier to park in congested streets and parking lots than the big bulky American car?

Well, it's now the year 1961 and Detroit has even gotten on the bandwagon of the compact car boom. They resemble flies now. You can't drive anywhere in the country without seeing a colony of them on display in some showroom window and lining the street outside.

Sooner or later the pint-sized vehicles had to migrate to the campus. And the petite parkers have made the grade at college now, for in Cloud Circle there are eight freshly painted stalls measured to fit the little guy.

Wandering Drum

Gridders Vie For Tom-Tom At San Mateo

The "big" game of 1961 will be played this Saturday. It's not California vs. Stanford. It's City College of San Francisco vs. College of San Mateo at San Mateo for the prized Tom-tom drum.

The Tom-tom drum, now possessed by the Bulldogs, has gone to the winner of each San Francisco-San Mateo game since October 25, 1946, when Sonny Lewis, San Mateo's assistant yell leader, offered the Chinese Tom-tom to the winner of the annual contest.

Prior to that time the two teams had split six games.

This was the start of a bitter rivalry. One week before the 1952 game and with the Rams in possession of the Tom-tom via a 1951 victory, the drum disappeared from the college campus.

Shortly after its departure, San Mateo, with great temerity, displayed the Tom-tom at its rally. The Rams won the 1952 game but the Tom-tom was not found until after the 1953 contest, where it turned up, of all places, in the college rooting section.

The mystery of the wandering Tom-tom, like that of Stanford-California Axe stealings, was never solved. All reports indicate San Mateo now definitely has the Tom-tom, but if the Rams win, will we see it?

The Tom-tom, a red and white, blue and white painted drum (the colors of the two colleges) has been held (technically, of course) nine times by the Rams, six for the Bulldogs.

The last time the Rams held the Tom-tom was 1957.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

ANYONE thumbing through an old newspaper that is around the house would be amazed at the oddities, quirks and humor that splatter the news, as well as how foolish and laughable some people and situations can be.

For example, those 20 nuclear war scare families from the New York area who recently moved to Chico. In the body of the article was the information that the Air Force is completing an ICBM launching site five miles outside of Chico.

And still further down in the article, almost at the end, the reporter let slip that the State Disaster Office in Sacramento considered the launching site "a prime target" in the event of enemy attack.

That's almost as ridiculous as buying a bomb shelter on the installment plan.

What's worse, even if a person decided to build his own bomb shelter, he would have to have a permit.

And by present standards, the little cubbyhole which was originally designed to protect you from the blast and shield you from fallout would probably have to have an eight-foot ceiling, running water and a waste disposal system.

Very soon everyone will be trying to outdo the Joneses when the bomb shelter fad gets stronger; bomb shelters with underground rumpus rooms for the kids, others with fallout proof swimming pools, for example.

Just think! Even drive-in bomb shelters with monthly rates. Could be that we'll even have bomb-fallout proof cars.

The imaginary possibilities are unlimited.

• • •

ANOTHER STORY in the same old newspaper declared that be-kind-to-birds-week had begun in the new Civic Center Plaza.

The many persons rarely in the vicinity of the Civic Center must certainly have been surprised to read about the new 32-foot mass of welded steel statue that adorns the new pool in the recently face-lifted plaza.

Judging from the content of the article, it should make a wonderful pigeon perch.

With all due respect to the good old San Francisco pigeon, we feel that there should be declared a no-man's-land around the structure.

• • •

AND TO END IT ALL, Johnny can read! Well, he can't really, but he pretends to. According to a new technique in kindergarten, Johnny is given a book and encouraged to thumb through it and pretend to read.

Get away from the books and enjoy an evening of ping-pong, pool and dancing.

Activities include four areas of interest: social, educational, sports and outings.

Sports offered are basketball, badminton, swimming, squash, handball, trampoline and skiing. Lectures on various subjects such as art, music, literature, psychology and current events. Proposed outings consist of picnics, beach parties, legitimate theater, hayrides, football games, dinners, bicycle rides, bowling and dances.

For further information call Center Staff Worker, Deborah Soskin, at FI 6-6040.

Howard Fleishman,
President of Young Adults.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, Room 304, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. It so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

• Youth Group

Editor, The Guardsman:

I feel the unlimited opportunities of the Young Adult Group at the San Francisco Jewish Community Center should be brought to the attention of students here.

Let me briefly acquaint you with the group's functions: the group is composed of young men and women between the ages of 18 and 25 who meet every Thursday evening between 8:30 and 11 p.m.

Instructor Praises Morning TV Course

Biology To Take Place Of Sleeping

By Rich Shields

It has often been suggested that people waste a major part of their lives sleeping, but has anyone ever figured out how the extra hours of a non-sleeping person's day might be utilized?

Jules Fraden, life science instructor here, believes he has at least part of the answer in the new biology course which will be telecast over KPIX, Channel 5, from 6 to 6:30 every weekday morning.

"Students will find it rewarding indeed," Fraden remarked, "if they will sacrifice a little of the time they waste sleeping for educational endeavor."

The course will consist of daily lectures, midterm and final examinations, and will be offered in two semesters for six units of credit.

The years-long practice of beginning classes at 8 a.m. was ended this semester with the addition of a 7 a.m. class in the curriculum, but now students can "go the college one better" and start at 6 a.m.

The program will not be available over the college's closed circuit channel, however, so students will have to attend lectures in their homes.

And for those who will be tempted to have breakfast in bed while taking notes, the anatomy of frogs, worms and lizards will be among the topics discussed at various times during the semester.

Additional information (and temptation) may be obtained in the biology department on third floor of Science Hall or by writing to Department of Correspondence Instruction, University Extension, University of California, Berkeley 4.

Counterpoint

Eat, Relax But Don't Play Games

By Dick Dragavon

CITY COLLEGE has a student union.

When it first opened last semester the lounge had a capacity of 50 persons. This semester the size has been more than doubled.

Efforts have been made to obtain vending machines of a nature to serve everyone's taste. In fact, the opening of the lounge this semester was delayed so that a water system could be installed to accommodate a coffee machine.

Bungalow 3 has been equipped with chairs and tables sufficient for 125 students to relax between classes or at lunch time.

Soft drinks, candy and cookies are available, and attempts are being made for a hookup so that KCSF can be heard at all times.

It will be a place for students to take their minds off their classes temporarily with such diversions as conversation, songs maybe, and even poetry reading if they feel like it.

But—no games! No chess, no checkers, no whist, cribbage or Old Maid. Games are prohibited by state and local school regulations.

One wonders whether the effect of this prohibition could be as disastrous as another prohibitive act was some 40 years ago.

An image unfolds:

A sharp looking student in Ivy League suit and narrow brim hat pulled down over his eyes lurks in the corner, and occasionally approaches unsuspecting undergrads with the whispered proposition, "Tic-tac-toe forms? Only a nickel."

Price ceilings of these commodities are unlimited on the black market.

The sandwich machine is a front and an outlet for vending illegal Battleship forms which are concealed on the insides of the bags.

Students who only appear to be having lunch and conversation pass under the eye of the lounge supervisor who, if he listened more closely would hear, "C-8," and "You sank my destroyer!"

Bootleggers appear on the scene, delivering primary materials for Spin The Bottle, under the guise of soft drink strikebreakers.

A symbolic diversion of this new, hardened, literary breed is Hangman.

It might be wise for legislators and administrators to reexamine the dangerous potentials of this act.

All Sophs Invited To Meet Friday

The first Sophomore Class meeting of the semester will be held during College Hour Friday in S-331, and all students are urged to attend by Class President Dan Collins.

Several matters of concern to sophomores will be discussed during the meeting, Collins said, such as committees for the forthcoming Sophomore Ball, the ball's theme, and class projects.

Entertainment is planned during the intermissions, and the evening's highlight will occur when the Sophomore King and Queen are crowned and awarded trophies. Dress will be semiformal.

College clubs and organizations which sponsor the candidates for king and queen will post photographs of their candidates two weeks in advance of the ball.

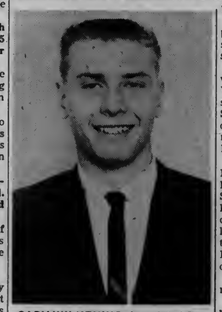
Officers working with Collins are Kathy Mansfield, vice president; Pam Klein, corresponding secretary; Lollie Ersepke, recording secretary; Bill Reichert, treasurer; Joe Lencioni, activities chairman, and Jackie Rommel, dance chairman.

Art Contest Prizes Gross $2250

Third and fourth semester art and advertising art students here are eligible to enter the 1962 Collegiate Advertising Poster Contest, sponsored by the Advertising Association of the West and the Zellerbach Paper Company, according to William J. Eckert, art instructor.

The theme for the 1962 Collegiate Advertising Poster Contest is Break The Language Barrier. In previous years, two of the themes were Fight Prejudice and Vote.

Prizes in the poster contest amount to a total of $2250. Contest areas are divided into 10 regions. The 10 regional first prize posters will be judged for the $500 grand prize.



The winner will also get the satisfaction of seeing his idea in print and knowing that his work is serving a useful purpose, Eckert stated. The deadline to enter this contest is March 31, 1962.

Wilkening Fills 22 AS Cabinet Posts, Drops Alumni Officer

Lon Ernshaw Succeeds Jim Byrnes As Card Sales Chairman, Reports 2500 Memberships In First Month

With Lon Ernshaw appointed Associated Student card sales chairman to fill the vacancy created when Jim Byrnes decided to stay in the Navy, AS President Gary Wilkening last week filled 22 of 24 cabinet posts.

Concurrently, Ernshaw reported to Student Council members that to date more than 2500 AS cards have been sold, a record for the first month of the semester.

GARY WILKENING, Associated Student president, announced appointments of officers to fill cabinet posts.

Wilkening has still to appoint a parliamentarian, and an alumni liaison officer will not be appointed this semester.

The five officers elected by the AS who head Wilkening's cabinet are Vice President Kathy Henderson, Associated Men Student President Paul Snowberg, Associated Women Student President Jan Doudiet, Sophomore Class President Dan Collins and Freshman Class President Greg Monk.

Appointed cabinet officers are Gail Margolin, secretary; Sandy Shaw, Finance Committee chairman; Judy Starky, corresponding secretary; Bob Perkins, State Information Service chairman; John Jacobson, Men's Athletic commissioner; Ed Ayalin, Election Committee commissioner, and Dianne Hardesty, Campus Affairs coordinator.

Miss Hardesty is also Red Cross representative here.

Honorary appointive cabinet members are Stan Burford, Rally commissioner; George Woo, Club Activities Board president; Bob Rogers, Inter-Fraternity Council president; Paul Plansky, Publications Board chairman; Sue Mount, Publicity Committee chairman; Jerry McCarthy, Campus Police chief; Shirley Thornton, Recreation Association president, and Kathy Hallock, Inter-Sorority Council president.

Moores Presides Over AGS Honor Society This Fall

New officers for Alpha Gamma Sigma were officially announced during its first meeting by William Richardson, faculty adviser for AGS.

They are Sheree Moores, president; Bruce Mebine, vice president, and Elizabeth Boudront, secretary-treasurer.

Richardson, who is also the state secretary for AGS, outlined plans for offering coaching services to students of the college during the meeting.

One of the activities of the group is to coach those students who are in need of scholastic help.

AGS is the organization whose only requirement for membership is scholarship.

The standards a student must meet to belong to AGS are based on units carried and grade points.

They are computed as follows: 12 to 14 units, 42 grade points; 15 units, 45 grade points; 16 units, 48 grade points; 17 units, 51 grade points; 18 units, 54 grade points. Also, no student may have a final "D" grade.

Blood Bank Offers Gratuity To Donors

The Permanente Blood Bank will pay professional blood donors from local colleges $10 per unit of blood for their donations.

Students and faculty members interested in donating blood on a professional basis can present themselves at the laboratory on the second floor of Kaiser Foundation Hospital for blood typing.

When emergencies occur, the blood bank will inform the registered persons of the type needed for donations.

Kaiser Laboratory is opened on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Graduation Petitions Due By This Friday

Students planning to graduate from the college at the end of this semester must file a petition for graduation with the office of the registrar on or before Friday.

Petition forms may be obtained at the office of the registrar, Science Hall, Room 121.

George Cook Acts As Student Union Interim Manager

By Bob Hacker

George Cook, a student at the college, was appointed last week to the position of interim manager of the student union by Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management here.

Cook, who had previously appeared before Student Council members and offered to supervise the operation of the union, was appointed by Anderson to insure the opening of the union for last Monday.

Council had previously discussed the appointment of Cook and decided to study the plan further.

As it is now, the final appointment of Cook is still up to the council members.

The union is open this week and Cook expressed hope for its successful operation. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. A television set is expected to be set up so that interested students can watch the World Series during their free hours.

This, together with coffee and doughnuts, is expected to be the prime attraction at the union for the next few days.

Cook said he would try to obtain a blackboard so the scores of the games could be posted outside the union.

In other student government affairs council passed two and tabled one budget for a total of more than $1000 last week.

The two passed were the student-faculty relations budget and the posters and banners budget.

There was little discussion directed toward either of these. The Student-Faculty Relations Committee received all of the $600 it requested, while the posters and banners budget was cut from $421.50 to $416.50.

The Finance Committee chairman had something to smile about when Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students, announced that he had talked to Jack Gaddy, men's athletic director, and had been informed that the men's athletic department would need only about $10,000.

The committee had previously estimated that about $12,000 would be requested by the department.

Club Meetings, Concerts, Lectures Scheduled For Fall College Hours

Six club meetings, four concerts and three lectures are programmed for the remaining 12 College Hours, Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman said yesterday.

The four lectures, which will cover a wide range of academic interest with emphasis on social sciences, will start on October 27, Irving Witt, sociology instructor and organizer of the series, indicated.

Plans are to secure speakers from surrounding colleges, the University of California and San Francisco State in particular. The final lecture, December 29, will be a panel discussion among members of the faculty.

California And Her Natural Resources is the title of the film to be shown this Friday in S-136, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor here.

Other films to be obtained and shown later will be scientific, travelogue and Navy films.

As in the past, all seats are on a first-come, first-serve basis and all students and faculty members are welcome, Devlin said.

Clubs will meet in rooms assigned this Friday. The only double College Hour this fall will be on December 8.

The following is the remaining schedule: October 6, club meetings; October 13, concert; October 20, club meetings; October 27, lecture.

November 3, club meetings; November 10, rally and concert; November 17, club meetings; November 24, holiday, no College Hour.

December 1, club meetings; December 8, Christmas Concert; December 15 and 22, holidays, no College Hour; December 29, lecture.

January 5, concert; January 12, club meetings; January 19, no College Hour; January 26, no College Hour; February 2, 9, 16 and 23, no College Hour.

Frosh Ball Set For October 20

Sophistication will be the theme of this semester's semiannual Frosh Ball slated for the Colonial and Italian rooms of the St. Francis Hotel between 9 p.m. and midnight, Friday, October 20, Greg Monk, Freshman Class president, stated today.

Free bids will be distributed to frosh between Monday, October 16, and Wednesday, October 18, upon the presentation of an Associated Student card. After that time, invitations will be available to the entire student body on a first-come, first-serve basis, Monk said.

Students when picking up their bids should have the name of their date, he added.

Dress is semiformal and couples only will be admitted. Music will be supplied by Ray Hackett and his orchestra, with additional entertainment planned to include an electric guitarist and a drummer.

Highlighting the ball will be a Cutest Couple Contest, Monk added.

Working toward the success of the dance with Monk are Josie Gunther, vice president; Joan Morrow, corresponding secretary; Marlin Snipper, recording secretary, and Ron Biagini, treasurer.

H&R Executive Chef Nets Special Award

Pierre Coste, executive chef of the hotel and restaurant department here, was awarded during the past summer the Special Debands Award by De Bragga and Spitler Incorporated of New York City in recognition for his "outstanding contribution and for fostering greater interest in the culinary profession of the United States."

Recognition is also made of an outstanding record of promotion by writing, training and other worthwhile practices in the field of cookery.

This annual award, established by Paul A. Spitler, is open to anyone, including chefs and culinarians, regardless of his affiliation, provided he resides within the boundaries of the United States. The honor is desired by many but only the best are considered for it, the citation said.

Club Cavalcade

Organizations Welcome New Students Friday

By Sandy Sells

NUMEROUS activities will be highlighted throughout the college this week.

First on the agenda is the Collegiate Christian Fellowship. This organization invited new members to the next meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-201. Howard Schoon, a member of the college's faculty and a counselor here, will be the special guest speaker. His subject is Marriage Relations.

This Friday at 8 p.m. the fellowship will meet at the home of Judy Almlie, prayer and Bible study chairman, for a group discussion on the Book of Ephesians.

Meyer Cahn, music instructor here, will give a lecture on some aspect of music to members of Hillel on Friday in C-246. Visitors are welcome to attend.

Four members of the Retail Floristry Club represented the college last Sunday at the State Conference of Retail Florists in Los Angeles. A demonstration of floral arrangements was presented.

All those interested in signing up for the Newman Club snow trip should come to the business meeting on October 24 during College Hour. The trip is planned in January during the semester break.

The Merchandising Club is soliciting for new members. A business meeting this Friday in S-258 will be held so old and new members may discuss their main objectives.

Boasting about 20 players this semester, the Chess Club, meeting in C-114, is inviting interested students to attend. Talent in the game is not a prerequisite.

Contemporary Affairs Forum, under the leadership of Edward Jackson, will hold a business meeting this Friday for an election of new officers.

The International Relations Club has invited the Filipino Club to perform one of their native dances at the tea dance to be held at San Francisco State College this Friday.

For education majors, the Student California Teachers Association, plans a meeting on this Friday in C-269. A guest speaker, a student teacher at the college, will speak on his experiences.

Deadline for club news is noon each Wednesday in The Guardsman office, S-304.

AMS Asks Student Ideas Via Suggestion Box

The Associated Men Students are once again in the suggestion box enterprise this semester, encouraging all students to present their ideas concerning all phases of the college's procedures in writing, according to Paul Snowberg, AMS president.

The thinkers can drop their ideas into either of the two suggestion boxes, one located by the Silver Pole in Science Hall and the other by the north exit door in the cafeteria.

All suggestions placed in these boxes will be appreciated and receive due consideration, Snowberg said.

PROVIDING A LINK between past and present Ram athletic history are Bill Fischer, former baseball coach and now a counselor here, and his sons Terry (left) and Bill, standout ends on the present gridiron squad. —Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman.

Fischers Proof Of Proverb —Like Father, Like Son

By Doug Cathcart

Like father, like son, is an old saying, but nothing could more aptly describe the four gridiron men of the Bill Fischer family.

Bill, Sr., presently a counselor here, began his football career at St. Mary's College as a guard under the famous "Slip" Madigan. In his senior year (1931) with the Galloping Gaels he was elected to the All-American team.

It's 1961 now and once again the name Fischer is coming into the limelight as a football trademark, for two of Fischer's three sons, Bill, Jr., and Terry, are attending the college and are on the Ram grid force playing end.

Bill, Jr., 23, started getting serious about football while in the Navy. Toward the end of his enrollment he attended Imperial Valley College at El Centro, where he played first string defensive end and won his letter.

A physical education major now in his third semester here, Bill lists his future desires as either San Francisco State or the U.S. Naval Air Academy.

Extremely ambitious to attain his goal in life, his schedule is just about as full as is humanly possible. As it carrying a full schedule and playing football isn't enough, he also works 40 hours a week.

Terry, 20, began his grid career at Riordan High School, where he played first string end for three years. As a junior he was voted honorable mention on the All-Catholic squad, and in his senior year he was first club fullback on the All-Catholic team and also rated an honorable mention on the All-City squad.

This is his second season as first string end on the Ram squad. Terry also desires to go to SF State to complete his education as a physical education major.

After graduation from St. Mary's, Bill, Sr., stayed with the Gaels to help coach until 1934, when he moved to Livermore Union High. In 1936 he transferred to Commerce High, where he stayed until coming to the college.

Coach Fischer guided pennant-winning baseball squads until 1957 when he hung up his spikes to join the counseling staff.

The legacy of Fischer fame isn't over yet, however, for there is one more son still to make his mark in the grid world.

He's Kevin, 14, the youngest of the Fischer clan who recently donned a football jersey to play for his local playground squad.

The pigskin world of 1965 had better watch out, for "little Fish" is just getting started.

Spartan Tilt Opens Tough Season For Soccermen Friday

With the loss of three All-America and four All-Conference players from last year's squad, Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccermen, the co-defending league titlists, may find the going a little bit tough this season.

The opening tilt against the San Jose Spartans is slated Friday in Balboa Stadium. The kickoff time is 3:30 p.m.

The only first string returnees Diederichsen has on hand are goalie Gary Delong, center-forward Al Korbus, halfback Flavio Valiente and wing Vincent Liu.

The present Ram outfit, which features a fairly solid defense and a young forward line, will have All-American prospect Delong at the goal-tending position.

Opening at the fullback slots will be Sam Sanchez, All-City from Galileo, and Hugh Olaya, newcomer from Mission.

The halfback positions will be manned by newcomer Caesar Pina, Dave Fromer, a University of California transfer who has added punch to the all-important middle line, and Valiente, the team captain.

In the front line, the sharp-shooting center-forward Korbus, another strong contender for All-American honors, is counted on to handle the scoring. Helping him out will be insides Pedro Liva, Roverto Salazar and Ivan Bermudez, the latter hailing from Nicaragua.

Scrappy Dennis Minga and veteran Liu will handle the wing positions, where invaluable service is also expected from veteran Louis Chung.

Some of the newcomers who will see considerable action are Horace Jackson, Sherwood Zammit, Lee Wurtenberg and Allen Chew.

Playing as the sole two-year college in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference, the Ram booters have dominated the league in the past two years during which they won all but one of their games and amassed a total of 80 goals to their opponents' 12.

The league, which has narrowed down to seven teams, is evenly balanced and exceptionally tough this season, according to Diederichsen.

Mural Card Rests On Sign-up Completion

Petitions were issued last Friday during College Hour for the coming intramural basketball slate, and final dates and teams will be announced as soon as all signups are completed, according to Paul Snowberg, Associated Men Student president.

When the petitions are finally approved, two nights per week will be set aside for intramural competition, with the nights to be voted on.

Ram Eleven Rolls Past Los Angeles City, 20 To 6

Guardsman SPORTS
Wednesday, Oct. 4, 1961 Page 4

Gridmen Kick Off League Campaign At San Mateo

With undoubtedly the lightest and fastest backfield in the Big Eight Conference, the Rams will open the 1961 league season against their traditional rivals, the defending champion San Mateo Bulldogs Saturday at San Mateo. Kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

The speed merchants are Al Raine, a 7.7 75-yard sprinter at Mission High; John Daigle, a 9.7 sprinter; Claude Shipp, a 9.9 100-yard dash man at Washington High, and Tom Piggee, an All-City low hurdles champion two years ago at Polytechnic High. First-stringer Ron Coleman and Chuck Oushani rate highly.

Piggee, a returning All-Conference 175-pound back, is fast, a tremendous blocker who can use his speed well, but he is not a big enough fullback. The others, newcomers Shipp, Daigle, Coleman, Verdell Price and Raine, have an average weight of only 157 pounds.

Dave Urrea, the 200-pound All-City guard from Lowell High, won a starting berth on what otherwise is an all-veteran line.

Urrea, guard Alex Darnes, tackles Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett, ends Terry Fischer and Ray Greggains, and center Cliff Vattuone form the powerful Ram offensive forward wall.

The line has depth, namely in Dennis Drucker, the Northern California lineman-of-the-year last season at St. Ignatius.

In 1960, the chief Ram problem was quarterback. In the Rams' opening 27-0 victory over Los Angeles Valley, Randy Autentico passed for one touchdown and Ben Winslow, the second-string quarterback from Washington High, two as the Rams rolled up 139 yards in the air.

Defending champions San Mateo, which last year ended Stockton's five-year domination of the Big Eight Conference, lost all of the 1960 first string with the exception of Lynn Raymond, a 210-pound fullback.

The Bulldogs, who rolled up 271 yards on the ground in a 12-7 early season loss to Pasadena College, have a brutal running attack centered around speedster Claude McMillan, a 9.9 hundred-yard dash man.

The Rams, who have not defeated the Bulldogs since 1957, opened the season last year by deadlocking San Mateo, 14-14.

Southerners Unable To Cope With Sturdy Winning Line

CITY COLLEGE STADIUM, Sept. 29.—Football's most dread disease—fumbleitis—almost cost a potent City College squad its first defeat of the young season today, but Grover Klemmer's charges found the antidote in a rugged defense and recovered in time to post a 20-6 triumph over visiting Los Angeles City College.

Showing no fear of the Southland colleges, the Rams, who last week battered Los Angeles Valley, now have beaten both outfits from Smogville two years in a row and own a 12-1-1 lead in their traditional series with LA City.

In a sluggish contest with neither squad moving through the air, the home eleven, leading 12-0 and set to receive a fourth quarter Cub punt looked "safe," but then disaster struck.

Flashy fullback Tom Piggee, who tallied all of the winner's touchdowns, suddenly traded Ram for goat horns as he fumbled the kick and, despite the valiant resistance of the defenders, the visitors drove for a 15-yard score in eight plays, with Bill Esselman tallying from the one.

Two plays later, quarterback Randy Autentico's bobble gave the Angelinos possession on the Ram 21-yard stripe and a chance for victory with but five minutes remaining to play.

Not to be denied, the defense paced by linemen Cliff Vattuone, Jim Baffico, Jack Burgett and hard-tackling halfback Ron Coleman would permit only a three-yard advance in four plays.

Here Piggee won back his Ram horns as he sandwiched sparkling runs of 9, 26, 2 and 14 yards around a penalty and short sprints by Coleman and Al Raine, and then tallied from the seven as Coleman scored the two-point conversion to clinch the win.

In the first quarter, alert guard Dave Urrea pounced on Bill Clayborne's fumble on the Cub 27 after Jim Baffico's punt and then Terry Fischer's great fourth down catch set up a two-yard off tackle score by Piggee.

Late in the third stanza the winners finally crossed the goal line again via Piggee's three-yard jaunt but the highlight of this drive was Raine's spectacular 29-yard broken field run.

Once again, the smoothly operating Ram forward wall rated top billing as time and again they thrust back the Los Angeles offensives, holding the losers to 102 yards rushing and 68 passing, and opened clutch holes for their own speedy backs operating from the Wing T offense.

Cub Coach Steve Pritko was highly impressed with "your real tough line," but felt "Our mistakes and poor tackling cost us dearly."—By I.T.

Too Many Guards Presents Pleasing Problem To Coach

Line Coach Alex Schwarz wishes he had more problems like the one which provides the present dilemma—the Rams have too many good guards.

With Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker opening holes on offense and tracking down enemy ball carriers on defense, the Rams may have a trio of guards unparalleled in the Big Eight this year.

Schwarz feels, "They're all such rugged players it's hard to leave one of them out of the lineup."

Actually the Big Three prompted one observer at Friday's game to comment, "With that defense, you don't need to score much."

Darnes, the 5-10, 210-pound strongman weight-thrower, has combined with rookies Urrea and Drucker, both All-City high school picks, tackles Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett, center Cliff Vattuone, and veteran ends Terry Fischer and Ray Greggains to provide an almost impenetrable forward wall.

Los Angeles Valley was held to the dismaying total of minus eight yards rushing while LA City, loaded with 200-pound backs and a detailed scouting report, could manage but one score and a total of 170 yards on the ground and in the air.

Coed Sports Open To All AS Card Members

Students with Associated Student cards are invited to participate in the coeducational sports offered here this semester at 3 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, Marlin Galloway, women's physical education instructor, announced.

The first all-college sports day will be held here on November 18. Sports offered will include tennis, archery and bowling; all of which are coeducational.

Ears On Transistors For Series Opener

FOOTBALL season may be in full swing, but all the transistor radios heard around campus today can indicate only one thing—the impact of baseball season is still here with the World Series.

Out of habit, the powerful Yankees represent the American League. According to most of the so-called preseason experts there was to be a five-team dogfight in the National League among Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

There was, all right. However, while these clubs were busy knocking each other out of the race, the surprising Cincinnati Redlegs (a Congressional edict a few years ago asked the Ohio club not to use "Reds"—to pretend the Russians don't exist) played consistent ball all the way to win.

We hope no one wonders why the Giants aren't playing. Everyone must realize by now that San Francisco teams don't win professional championships.

However, from the way they humbled Detroit, the 49ers could well be on the way to breaking the famine this year via the shotgun offense.

The Giants are real philanthropists at heart. The thought of depriving some other player (who is paid only $25,000 for half a year and owns two bowling alleys) of $15,000 in World Series money is too much for them to bear.

When they started their big stretch drive by blasting Cincinnati three times in a row, people started talking about all the money the Giants could make. So our heroes decided to wrap things up by losing nine of the next 11 contests.

Actually, we're not complaining. They provided many thrills this year. Besides, with the Oakland Raiders in the vicinity the area needs another representative besides the 49ers to assure it real major league status.

Back to the series. Most people expect the talent-laden Bronx Bombers to breeze. However, don't forget last year too quickly. Not much was expected of Pittsburgh, and the Pirates got clobbered in total runs, but they scored when it counted.

This year's senior circuit champion is the same type outfit. Since they haven't won a pennant in 21 years and most of their players have never been in the fall classic, the National Leaguers might have that intangible —a little extra desire—going for them.

All the Cincy regulars except stalwarts Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson were acquired in trades, proving that top-notch front office personnel can pay off.

The Yankees received a guy named Roger Maris in a deal with—who else —their Kansas City farm club.

We like the team from the superior league, Cincinnati, to win in six games.

* * *

WITH THE 49ERS and City College football clubs both leaving International Airport for road games at the same time, Leo Nomellini's curiosity got the better of him, and seeing the huge Rams who looked like midgets next to him, the veteran footballer asked tackle Jack Burgett, "What school you guys from?"

"City College," was Burgett's reply.

Looking bewildered, Leo the Lion questioned, "What city?"

Oh well, is it better to be famous or good?

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

A Fearless Pick: Cincinnati In Six

Too many other activities and diversions are the main reasons for a distressing absence of college spirit here, according to Stan Burford, Rally Committee chairman.

Burford and the other yell leaders would like to help create a problem —how to fit hordes of jubilant fans into the small City College stadium.

Unfortunately, as Burford explains, the college is in the middle of a large city, and students seem to find too many other things to do besides attend football games.

Nevertheless, the Rally Committee, undaunted in its continual efforts to create an inkling of spirit, plans a pep rally with entertainment prior to the Santa Rosa game here Friday, October 20.

"Undefeated, untied and uninvited" is used to describe the famous University of San Francisco football team of 1951 featuring ex-Ram Ollie Matson, Bob St. Clair and Gino Marchetti, and unless things change for the better, "once defeated, untied and unwanted" may go down in history with the not-so-famous City College 1961 team.

They play a very good brand of football as was attested to by their consecutive wins over two colleges front Los Angeles.

However, at the home contest with traditional rival Los Angeles City College, barely 300 could be counted in attendance — including people, players, birds and everything else.

Quarterback Randy Autentico came up with an apt statement when he said, "There were no distractions."

Those who may have stayed away last year because of the childish yells directed at them had no excuse this time as Yell Leader Chuck Wood, assistants Burford and Otto Van Duyn, and an appealing array of song girls did an excellent job of channeling yells in the right direction at the right time.

City College has had its golden days on the gridiron with such standouts as Matson and Burl Toler and even last year with Gary Lewis.

The team may be on its way to a title in the Big Eight's final year of operation, but it will carry a certain dryness unless a crowd appreciative of their big try turns out for the remaining contests.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1961 — NUMBER 3

College Hour Schedule

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
• COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40 •
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

Delayed Opening Of Student Union 'Successful;' Expansion Depends On Student Backing

Opening of the new student union in bungalow 3 and 4 last week was termed successful but there is room for improvement, according to George Cook, co-ordinator of the lounge.

The union, which seats close to 150 students, is seen as a means to relieve some of the congestion in the cafeteria, which seats approximately 650 students.

Lack of water delayed the opening for three weeks, but the city took care of that and the only immediate problem is the coke machine, empty because of the strike.

The first day about 50 persons came in and out, Cook said.

Doughnuts, candy bars, hot chocolate, coffee and cigarettes are sold in the union but it is also a place for students to study and relax. If the union is as successful as Cook hopes, sandwiches and other food supplies may be moved in.

The student lounge is probably the only place in the city where the 5-cent doughnut can still be purchased. The first day two dozen were sold in the first hour.

Baseball fans were treated to the World Series last week via the television set up through the efforts of the Associated Student officers. The union was filled to capacity during each game.

Cook, in reemphasizing that there is a lot of work to be done, listed three goals for the union:

- It must be made a necessity to the students.
- It must relieve cafeteria congestion.
- It is a place where clubs can meet and post announcements, where students can relax and study.

"The lounge offers the students something; I think it can work, but the place has to prove itself," Cook declared.

Hours are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Council Sets Up Cochairmanship To Run Union

By Bob Hacker

After a long and heated debate, Student Council last week voted to set up a cochairmanship to run the student union. The tally was 11 pro, 4 con and no abstentions.

George Cook, who had been previously serving as the interim manager of the union, has now been officially hired by the San Francisco Unified School District.

He will serve as cochairman with freshman council member Paul Steiner, who was appointed by Gary Wilkening, Associated Student president.

Cook will be representing the school district and Steiner will be representing the Associated Students.

During the time that the motion was on the floor to approve the plan of a cochairmanship, Bob Perkins, State Information chairman, rose twice to inform the council members that they were conducting a "nonsense debate."

He stated the motion on the floor should be put to a vote and discussion of the duties of the cochairmen and the availability of the members of council to serve at the union was useless.

Some of the members thought that the idea of two persons being at the union at the same time doing the same job was not worth while.

One of these members, Chuck Wood, sophomore council member, stated, "I can't see why I or anyone else should have to take time to go down to the union just to be a babysitter."

The job of cochairman is to supervise the students in the union, making sure that the rules are observed.

Other members thought that the union should be run solely by the Associated Students and that there was no need for Cook.

Council last week also passed the Publicity Committee budget and voted a total of $1517.30.

Columbus Holiday Due For College Tomorrow

Four hundred and sixty-nine years ago tomorrow a man named Chistopher Columbus discovered a place now called the United States of America.

Because of this explorer, students are here today. Also, because of him, students won't be here tomorrow.

Tomorrow (Thursday) is Columbus Day, named after the discoverer. Classes will not meet here nor in most educational institutions in California. They will, however, resume the following day, Friday.

Too Much Diversion Puts Jinx On Gridiron Support, Dance

THIS SEMESTER'S SONG GIRLS take time out on the sidelines at Los Angeles City game, which the Rams won 20-6. The stands in the background point out the much-to-be-desired attendance. (For editorial comment see page 2.) Song girls, from left to right, are Pat Warnock and Vicky Sigie, front; Eve Filippis and Sylvia Morey, back. —Guardsman photo by Isao Tanaka.

Rally Head Looks For 'Problem'— Overflow Of Fans

By Ivan Temes

Too many other activities and diversions are the main reasons for a distressing absence of college spirit here, according to Stan Burford, Rally Committee chairman.

Burford and the other yell leaders would like to help create a problem —how to fit hordes of jubilant fans into the small City College stadium.

Unfortunately, as Burford explains, the college is in the middle of a large city, and students seem to find too many other things to do besides attend football games.

Nevertheless, the Rally Committee, undaunted in its continual efforts to create an inkling of spirit, plans a pep rally with entertainment prior to the Santa Rosa game here Friday, October 20.

"Undefeated, untied and uninvited" is used to describe the famous University of San Francisco football team of 1951 featuring ex-Ram Ollie Matson, Bob St. Clair and Gino Marchetti, and unless things change for the better, "once defeated, untied and unwanted" may go down in history with the not-so-famous City College 1961 team.

They play a very good brand of football as was attested to by their consecutive wins over two colleges front Los Angeles.

However, at the home contest with traditional rival Los Angeles City College, barely 300 could be counted in attendance — including people, players, birds and everything else.

Quarterback Randy Autentico came up with an apt statement when he said, "There were no distractions."

Those who may have stayed away last year because of the childish yells directed at them had no excuse this time as Yell Leader Chuck Wood, assistants Burford and Otto Van Duyn, and an appealing array of song girls did an excellent job of channeling yells in the right direction at the right time.

City College has had its golden days on the gridiron with such standouts as Matson and Burl Toler and even last year with Gary Lewis.

The team may be on its way to a title in the Big Eight's final year of operation, but it will carry a certain dryness unless a crowd appreciative of their big try turns out for the remaining contests.

Tight Social Schedule May Cancel Homecoming Dance

Possibility looms that the annual Homecoming dance, scheduled here Friday, October 27, will be cancelled this year, according to Associated Student President Gary Wilkening.

The college is granted 13 dances per semester, and Wilkening said, "We are pretty crowded now." He also indicated "the Homecoming dances haven't come off too well in the last two years."

The Council of Organizations, which has yet to elect a president, is not expected to handle the Homecoming operation for some time, if at all.

Until the COO is able to operate on its own the Inter-Sorority Council will handle the traditional car parade, and the Inter-Fraternity Council along with the Club Activities Board will manage the Homecoming Queen contest, Wilkening explained.

Stockton, because of the realignment of the Big Eight Conference to start next fall, will make its last appearance against a City College football squad in the Homecoming game.

The Council of Organizations was set up to gain better co-ordination among its three members, the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Inter-Sorority Council and the Club Activities Board.

Frosh Ball Bids To Be Available Starting Monday

Students can get bids for the semi-annual Frosh Ball beginning next Monday in the information booth near the silver pole in Science Hall, according to Class President Greg Monk.

The date of the ball, whose theme is Sophistication, is Friday, October 20, in the St. Francis Hotel.

Monk urged students, particularly freshmen who have first priority, to get their bids early since only 500 will be available, and will be given on a first-come, first-served basis.

Students obtaining bids should have an Associated Student card and the name of their date, he said.

In order to determine the winner of the Cutest Couple Contest, scheduled later in the evening, the judges will use the process of elimination.

The only rule governing the contest is that one member of each couple in the competition must be a freshman.

The awards, donated by Phi Beta Rho, Alpha Phi Epsilon and Alpha Sigma Delta, are a bouquet and trophy for the woman and a trophy for the man.

AS Leaders To Attend Regional Convention

A tentative delegation of 30 student leaders will travel to Monterey Peninsula College on the weekend of October 21 to attend the Northern Region Junior College Student Government Association convention, Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students, said this week.

Workshops scheduled for the conference include Judicial Systems, Current Problems, Student Government, Conference Reorganization, Activities, Athletics, and Publicity and Publications.

RAMS DROP OPENER

Before an estimated crowd of 1000, the previous mobile Ram offense froze solid and the defense melted away, as the San Mateo Bulldogs surprised the local eleven, 22-6, at San Mateo High School field. (For details, see page 4.)

Police Tag 350 Parking Violators

More than 350 citations have already been issued this semester by the Campus Police, Jerry McCarthy, police chief here, announced today.

On the basis of this figure approximately 150 more tags can probably be issued by the police force for parking violations within the next two weeks.

McCarthy also added that parking permits are no longer available at the reservoir; they may now be obtained in C-120 any time during class hours.

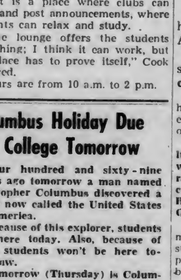
To get a parking permit a student must have his Associated Student card, driver's license and car registration.

Former SF Policeman Joins Faculty

Lawson To Teach Both Academics, Athletics

By Jerry Littrell

The problem of an overcrowded academic and athletic department here has been somewhat solved with the addition of Larry Lawson to the college faculty as a physical education and criminology instructor.



Last summer Lawson chose a teaching career here and resigned from the San Francisco Police Force after completing 11 years as an inspector in the juvenile department.

Born and reared in San Francisco, he attended St. Ignatius High School and then went to the University of San Francisco on a scholarship and was graduated in 1950.

While at USF, Lawson was a member of Alpha Sigma Nu, an honor society there, and was student body president during 1949 and 1950.

Although at the time he was working his way through college he managed to play three years on the varsity football team as a halfback.

Through his experience there he has been given the job of assistant football coach here with the specific job of coaching all ends and defensive backs on the team.

LARRY LAWSON, a former police inspector, will double as a new assistant football coach and criminology instructor this semester. —Guardsman photo by E. Lutar.

New Instructor Eases Crowded Departments

This is his first permanent teaching assignment in the San Francisco Public Schools, although he took his student teaching training at Aptos Junior High and also spent some time teaching at the San Francisco Police Academy.

He is working for his master's degree this semester at USF and plans to continue dividing his teaching time between criminology and athletics.

With his background in the police force, his main interest lies in the instruction of the problem of control of the juvenile delinquent. Along with this he instructs the first semester students in the basic fundamentals of criminology.

Upon being questioned about the present Big Eight Conference becoming a new Bay League in 1962, his comment was, "This is by far one of the toughest leagues in California today, and it will be made tougher when it is changed and the new colleges are added."

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. 53, No. 3 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1961 Page 2

College Has Football Team; Has Football Team Support?

ALL MEDIA of communication connected with news reporting became slaves last week. Their master, the World Series, has been shelving international trouble spots, national tensions and local tragedies by shoving them lower on page one, or, as the case may be, switching them to other channels and stations.

Our conclusion is: news value is a relative thing.

It seems strange, though, that the normally conservative sports fan succumbs to the abnormally speculative "one-week fever."

Even with the championship series finally decided this week, recollections still fill daily conversations with such coined phrases as, ". . . if this pitcher would have started instead of that one . . . my team didn't get the lucky breaks . . . that one play cost them the series!"

With all this discussion and attention given to the annual classic that climaxes the baseball season, it becomes easy to forget which of the seasonal sports is actually in progress. It is Fall. And it is FOOTBALL!!!

In addition to attendance at Kezar Stadium, Strawberry Canyon and other sites of Bay Area gridiron games, the student here still hasn't caught the seasonal spirit in his very own-habitat—a very serious disease called "anti-athletics."

City College not only HAS a football team, but one of their BEST in recent history. According to a very reliable source (The Guardsman sports department), there is only ONE "team to beat" in the league this season—the Red and White Rams!

At the time of this writing, the footballers, who represent every student here when out on the field, have won their first two contests in decisive and confident fashion. Our prognosis for the remaining games, perhaps uncautious and a bit prejudiced, is for many more victories and a probable conference title.

In the days when such greats as Ollie Matson and Burl Toler carried the ball for the Rams, they drew very large crowds in Kezar Stadium. Even with the absence of Gary Lewis, All-Conference back last season, City College's big line and light backfield offers its students the best possible of football thrills.

We believe that our stadium should be jammed to capacity with student rooters.

Let's build more stands, BUT FIRST LET'S FILL THE EMPTY SEATS.

The Spectator — Columnist 'Cools' Weather Problem

By Herman Kligerman

WHETHER students pulled IBM cards for it at registration time, all 8000-plus enrollees here are signed up for a hill-climbing class taught each hour with the cool air and gusty winds as instructors.

It meets on Hill 29, upon which the college stands, numbered in succession with the many other molehills highlighting San Francisco.

By now, 99 per cent of the students realize what this column's going to be about. For the other percentage, an explanation may be in order. Walking from class to class men and women may have cussed to themselves about those %'@# & hills embodying the campus. Well, that's the famous hill climbing class!

The poor "climber" receives little pity when he tries to scale each hill surrounding the campus on the way from class to class.

Are you one of those lucky ones with, for example, an 8 a.m. course on the third floor of Science Hall and then in the allotted 10 minutes have to race down the hill to the respective gym for a 9 a.m. lesson? Rots of ruck!

No wonder the physical edueation classes seem to have a large "cut-rate."

As many in the past have discovered to their dismay and sometimes embarrassment, the weather doesn't help the situation one bit, either.

In a feature article published within these pages last semester, the following paragraph was inserted which best illustrates the preceding statement.

(Quote.) One young lady was descending one of the most travelled hills when all of a sudden a large piece of cloth flew into her face. It was her skirt. (End of quote.)

Nowadays with people suggesting changes and recommending various actions, why should this writer be a non-conformist? Following are a few ways to ease the problem of students here:

1) Give everyone an elevator key for use in each building. Of course, to receive this privilege he should possess an Associated Student card, too.

2) Install moving sidewalks throughout the campus connecting each building with the other, including the bus stop on Ocean Avenue to the main entrance to Science Hall.

This contraption should also have a convertible canopy to keep out the bad weather and let in the very infrequent warm air.

This would definitely eliminate the strain on students' feet and would offer them more strength and stamina to get to their widely spaced classrooms and, upon arrival, the ability to set through one of those interesting (?) lectures without dozing off in the back of the room

If only this column could get to the proper authorities for consideration and action. The only stumbling block seems to be that the "if only" is bigger than any hill on the campus. Or anywhere, for that matter, in the City by the Golden Gate, when a problem is posed to the public.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU. 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Herman Kligerman
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Dave Grieve, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell.
Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Solis, Evelyn Thude.
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, John Curtis, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Vincent Liu, Joan Lucian, Mary McConihe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Peter Oppenheimer, Jose Pineda, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

US Champion Enrolls Here

Yodeler Queen Carolina Cotton Takes Time Out For Education

A unique example of East meeting West was accomplished in Korea by a coed here, partly through the medium of the equally unique title she holds—champion yodeler of the United States.

The champion is Carolina Cotton, for whom show business has acted as a travel agent, guiding her around the world from the North Pole to Africa and now to this college, where she is in her first semester as a recreation major.

Although born in Arkansas, Miss Cotton learned to yodel in San Francisco, where she grew up.

The road that led to her title took many turns. It all started when she was dancing in this city as an O'Neil Kiddy at the Golden Gate theater; from there she danced her way to nearby Treasure Island for the World's Fair.

But a kindly critic informed her that she would never be a great dancer and that she had better learn to sing.

Miss Cotton was a fine singer but apparently not fine enough, because someone suggested that she learn to yodel, which she did just to avoid further suggestions.

For the next few years she hopped back and forth from San Francisco to Los Angeles for radio shows with Dude Martin, Cotton Seed Clark, Gene Autry, Art Linkletter and Bob Hope.

Miss Cotton has had her own radio and television shows and has worked theaters, nightclubs and rodeos across the country.

Then the Korean war broke out and Carolina Cotton really began to travel. She has 500,000 air miles to her credit accumulated to entertain troops. She also entertained soldiers in Korea from Los Angeles via the armed forces radio.

Again for the armed forces Miss Cotton went to Germany with a group that had the distinction of being the second show to pass through the Berlin Corridor.

She almost chalked up another title as the first woman to fly over the North Pole, but the trip was called off because it might have conflicted with an appointment the next day in Korea.

At the invitation of Madame Chiang Kai-shek Miss Cotton was part of a group that performed in Formosa. She recalls that all of the girls were issued Chinese kimonas for the show.

Somewhere along the way her shoes were lost, but Miss Cotton, strong of heart, did her act in cowboy boots and rang up a successful meeting between East and West.

Charity work has been a career in itself for her. She recently did a show for cerebral palsey in Johannesburg, South Africa, with Tex Ritter and Zsa-Zsa Gabor. Among her souvenirs she counts many trophies from the Los Angeles City of Hope.

For a coed as active as Carolina Cotton, sitting in a chair long enough to hear a lecture is an unusual experience.

U.S. CHAMPION YODELER, Carolina Cotton, for whom show business has acted as a travel agent guiding her around the world from the North Pole to Africa is enrolled in her first semester here as a recreation major. —Guardsman photo by Hayden Townsend.

1200 Little Safes

Hall Lockers Aid One-Third Of Enrollees

A scattering of louvered metal lockers dot the network of halls that link classrooms throughout the three main buildings on campus.

Necessity being the mother of invention, or in this case ambition, lockers in the arts building, Cloud Hall and Science Hall are allotted to students under the universally recognized system of first come, first served.

Application dates for lockers are announced during class registration and orientation proceedings, usually a designated two-day period following the start of the semester.

The cubicles are shared by two occupants who, together, apply at the student bank in Smith Hall. In addition, students must present their registration cards for identification purposes.

Available lockers in the three buildings total 1200 dark, shallow, rectangular-shaped voids, luring a new occupant to stare into the cavity while thoughtfully comparing the process of jamming books into the locker to stuffing bread crumbs into a turkey.

College lockers, which accommodate a minority one-third of the day enrollment, are supplemented by automobiles as safe receptacles for books and supplies, but the walk from the reservoir to the college can discourage the most athletic student.

Set aside for special use are approximately 300 lockers for the "brush pushers" and "tooth pullers'" supplies.

Amassed oddities found discarded by careless students inside the lockers include false teeth, an alarm clock and dirty stockings, plus textbooks and other college supplies.

At the end of a semester an estimated 10 per cent of the thoughtless students returned to identify their material; the remainder took a financial loss on unclaimable textbooks for they were transferred for resale to the Associated Student bookstore.

National newspaper week, cranberry week, apple week and popcorn week are all celebrated in October.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

FOR entering students green from high school, the college holds many thrills, a lot of woe and major problems.

Beginning with registration, one of the main problems is squeezing the not-so-many open classes into the more and more cramped program card. Then comes the big challenge of being able to read the card once it's completed.

Many a student, uttering a prematuse sigh of relief because he has successfully registered, is grief-stricken after discovering his schedule to find that he has more than one class meeting in the same hour.

A lucky student has a fairly good schedule with most of the courses he wanted. Of course he has an 8 o'clock class, several two-hour breaks and doesn't get out of his last class until 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon. (Lucky, isn't he?)

An unlucky student, on the other hand, wastes several days of instruction in dropping and adding classes, and in the confusion of seeing so may people and gotting so many signatures, he usually gets very discouraged.

• • •

A NEW STUDENT, lost in an unfamiliar world of new names and places, patiently studies his room numbers to make sense out of them.

Let's see, S-200. That couldn't be right. Smith Hall is a one-story building.

Finally he sees light. An S prefix refers to Science Hall, C stands for Cloud Hall and so on.

But the arts building, annexes and bungalows — what and where are they?

It's not news that during the first week of instruction there is considerable tardiness.

• • •

ONE OF THE biggest problems during the first few days of instruction is buying books. The first obtacle for the student to overcome is that green stuff commonly called yenom or, by the more conventional, money.

Once he collects sufficient funds, there still remains the bedlam in the bookstore. The Ramporium is the only structure of its size on campus that can accommodate well over a hundred students at a time, all scrambling to get books and materials.

Finally the student is set. He has a moment to breathe and relax. But before he can, his instructor smiles in that strange way and announces that midterms are only two weeks away.

He just can't win.

IBM Machines Never Err

Entrance Tests Plague Students; Scores Determine College Work

By Rich Shields

If a survey were taken of things that students dislike most, examinations would probably be so high on the list that they would make up the whole survey.

In fact, examinations are so unpopular that some students would rather endure a boring lecture, skip class, or even ask sensible questions than have to take one.

It might be that poetic justice, or even the wrath of angry gods works to insure that one of the first things to confront students when entering college is an enormous battery of examinations.

Actually it isn't poetic justice or anything similar. It's simply college policy and the subtle hand of Thomas Nesbitt, head of the testing department here, which sets up the series of entranee exams given at the college.

And Nesbitt hastens to inform students that entrance exams here are standardized tests which are given at colleges all over the nation.

It is only later in course examinations which requlre much more detail and technical information that attempts may be made to fasten the blame for difficulties on specifie individuals, namely Instructors.

Another major difference between the two types of tests is that in the case of entrance examinations, students are matching wits with the IBM machines which grade them, whereas with course examinations they have an instructor to deal with who always seems to have a sharper eye and a sharper red pencil.

Most students know, however, that their grades on entrance examinations are not held against them, but are used to determine whether they may need certain basic courses before continuing into regular college work.

Nesbitt's department also administers counseling tests to students who are not certain of the field of study that they wish to pursue, and these tests are given in S-142.

One consolation for despairing entering students may be the thought that the very IBM machines which will score their tests in a very short time were created by people who once took entrance examinations themselves.

However, only study and faith may console students facing examinations from their eagle-eyed, pencil-happy instructors.

New Concert Series Starts With Ishvani

Counterpoint

'Graceful As A Bird, Lithe As A Snake . . .'

By Dick Dragavon

ISHVANI came to the door wearing a typically brilliant-hued East Indian blouse and loose white pantaloons.

"Excuse my costume," she explained, "I have just been practicing."

On the table in her living room were scattered magazines specializing in the fields of various native dances. At the end of the room a recorder (a flute) lay on a music stand.

One magazine, Impulse, an annual publication dealing primarily with the dance, contained an article by Ishvani on Hindu dancing.

"I create all of my dances," she commented, "and produce them in the traditional Indian style. As a basis for these dances I use sculpture and nature.

"The reason is that our sculpture was originally made from dances," she explained. "Through the centuries there was an ebb of interest in the arts, and as a result, the statues are very important in the re-creation of the customary dances."

Her hands drifted, as she talked, to the magazines on the table, and she thumbed through one idly. It was one of her self-descriptive brochures.

Two drawings, a peacock and a snake, stood out from the pages.

Ishvani smiled, "When I studied with Uday Shankar, and later worked with him, he told me that I was as light as a bird and as lithe as a snake.

"Since then I have had these two symbols on my pamphlets," she continued.

She led the way toward her second floor studio. In the elevator she seemed to float down on her own initiative.

The studio was partly carpeted with a large mirror on one side. A small rectangle about the size of a 24-inch television screen was taped on the mirror.

Ishvani sat cross-legged on the floor.

"I practiced for my TV appearance (on KQED) using that rectangle. For one part of the program only my hands were visible and I used the mirror to see how it would look to the viewers," she remarked.

She demonstrated briefly. Her hands flowed through the air in front of her, and then flitted together like two birds in a rose bush.

"There is also a drawing of a deer in my brochure," Ishvani added. "It is from a dance that I do in which a little girl sees a deer in a clearing and would like to touch it, but doesn't dare to because she is afraid the deer will run."

Ishvani stood, and a portion of the dance was seen as the little girl reached out, drew back her hand, finally touched the deer and it bounded away.

She was as natural as though she herself were the little girl.

"When you work long enough at one thing," Ishvani commented, "it becomes the major part of you, and what was your every day self seems to be the act which you briefly assume at times."

Ishvani's flutist arrived, and she began her earnest practice, which she said is from four to five hours each day.

Indian Dancer To Perform Friday In College Hour

An opportunity to preview Ishvani, dancer from India, is afforded students here during College Hour Friday, Meyer Cahn, music instructor and Student-Faculty concert chairman, said today.

This concert, the first of this semester's College Hour concert series, will be held in the college theater.

Value of these concerts was emphasized by Cahn who, recalling the appearance last semester of Rama Jucker, mentioned that Jucker has received the Pablo Casals Award.

He will be appearing at Stanford and at the University of California at prices ranging up to $4 a person. Students here enjoyed Jucker's performance at no cost.

Ishvani, who dances in the traditional style and costume of India but creates her own routines, will open October 20 at the Marine Memorial theater.

"We were very fortunate to be able to obtain her less than three weeks before she opens downtown," Cahn said.

The program which Ishvani will present will include Rhythms, Exposition of Gestures, and Radha and Krishna.

Ishvani studied with and became the partner of the famous Hindu dancer, Uday Shankar. Presently living in San Francisco, she returned recently from India where she had completed a year of study, concentrating on medieval Indian sculpture and classical literature.

These studies will be applied to creating new dances, as she bases her interpretations on sculpture and nature.

A number of composers have been impressed enough by Ishvani's performances that they have written works specially for her.

One, Thomas Canning, wrote a group of 19 dances, based on hand gestures, titled A Marriage Between East And West.

Ishvani has appeared in London and Paris besides numerous cities throughout the United States including New York City, Rochester, N. Y., Detroit and Eugene, Oregon.

Recently she was featured on KQED during a half-hour program.

This appearance will be given in co-operation with the Spencer Barefoot Concert Management.

A SWALLOW FLOATING OVER A SILVER BRIDGE. Ishvani assumes the character which she depicts with her hands.

AS Card Sales Top Former Mark; Goal Set At 3,000

With a record number of Associated Student cards already sold, prospects are good that sales will hit more than 3000 before the end of the semester, Lon Earnshaw, Associated Student card sales chairman, said yesterday.

The old record of 2600 sales was set in the fall semester of 1960.

Associated Student cards may still be purchased from the student bank in Smith Hall, although no deadline is set for buying them.

The Associated Student card, which can save a student up to $47.50, offers its holders various benefits of free admission and reduced rates to dances, social affairs, merchandise discounts and home athletic games sponsored by the college.

Sales have averaged near 1800 for the last few years, and the increase is probably due to the record enrollment this semester, observers said.

In the annual Associated Student card sales contest George Woo, president of the Club Activities Board, took first place with 332 sold. Bob Ross in 1960 set the college record of more than 800.

Ed Ayalin and Judy Starkey were runners-up this year.

Competition for next spring's card design will begin in the near future, accirding to Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students.

Art students usually enter this contest because they are familiar with the card's form, but anyone may enter, Wilkening said.

The deadline for entries probably will be sometime in mid-December. The cards will be needed in February.

Designs may be turned in at the Associated Student office, S-134.

New Engineering Lab Use Probable Next Semester

Still in the stages of construction, the new $55,000 electrical engineering technology circuits laboratory should be ready for use next semester, Rex F. Harris, head of the electrical engineering technology department, revealed today.

In the laboratory, according to Harris, will be the new standard electric time corporation switchboard with 24 working stations from which power is directed.

Also on the availability list will be a drill press, a grinding machine, 24 oscilloscopes and vacuum-tube voltmeters, and other engineering application instruments.

Located in the basement of Science Hall, where the drama department used to be, the new laboratory is an expansion project of the two-year technology program offered by this college, Harris stated.

It serves to relieve the crowded situation in the present lab where students out-proportion the equipment available and have the inconvenience of sharing them.

This problem should vanish when the place is ready, Harris said. Students will then have more room, more equipment, and their own drawer and instruments to work with.

AWS Plans Nov. Fashion Show, Tea

This semester's fashion show and tea, slated for November 15, and sponsored by the Associated Women Students, is now in the planning stages, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced today.

Responsible for presenting the event for the women seniors of the high schools in San Francisco and for the women of the college is Suzanne Murphy, fashion co-ordinator.

Miss Murphy is also in charge of selecting the models for the show, drawn from AWS members who volunteer to try out.

Livingston's will provide the fashions for the newly appointed models. Sportswear, evening wear and college wear will be featured.

Symphony Forum Tickets Sold Out

The college's allotment of tickets for the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra's Forum concerts has been completely sold out, according to Meyer Cahn, Symphony Forum adviser here.

Tickets to the Forum concerts usually sell out fast, but this season, Cahn said, tickets were sold out within a week.

Cahn hopes there may be a chance that more tickets will be available this week for those who are really anxious to attend these performances, which feature such artists as Yehudi Menuhin, Isaac Stern and Andre Kostelanetz.

Michigan has the longest shoreline of any state in the union.

Shutterbugs Show New Photo Process

A technique involving the enlargement of small negatives is the current topic being displayed in the faculty photo gallery, according to Emmett Smith, photography department instructor.

Photographs are by graduate Wes Pease. While attending the college in 1951 Pease was a graphic arts major and took courses under the instruction of Bev Pasqualetti.

After graduation Pease became a photo lithographer and is presently employed by the Kaiser Corporation.

His hobby is pictorial photography, and he is print chairman of the Oakland Camera Club and has won many prizes in this field.

New Directions In Photography is to be the next exhibit coming to the Gallery. It will be displayed in mid-October. This professional photography of Northern California will feature more than 40 prints in black and white and color, Smith said.

Job Applicant Number Heaviest In College History

More students filed applications for jobs this semester than ever before, according to Joseph A. Amori, placement director here.

Although the San Francisco Bay Area has been classified as one of the critical unemployment areas by national employment, the placement center files have many part-time and full-time job opportunities.

Accounting, secretarial, sales and specialized engineering jobs are open at the present time. There is a heavy demand, and salaries range from $1.50-$2.50 per hour, for women with typing and shorthand skills.

Required speeds for typists are 50 words per minute and the shorthand speed is 90 words per minute.

Accountants, tutors, stock clerks, service station attendants, gardeners, delivery drivers, messengers, mail clerks, food servers and custodial services are needed. Pay ranges from $1.50-$2 per hour.

Ameri says employers are beginning to recruit workers for their Christmas staffs.

Hundreds of workers will be needed to fill positions in department stores, post office, special shops, confectioneries, airlines, railroads, express and transportation companies and resorts.

Students can apply at the placement center, S-188.

The total coastline of the continental United States in statute miles is 4883.

Club Cavalcade

Organizations Operate On Full Schedule

OFFERING a wide variety of activities to interested students, the campus organizations have full schedules of events planned this semester.

The Student California Teachers Association held its 12th Annual Leaders conference at Burlingame on October 1 and 2. The college was represented by four members of the local organization, Gene Tognetti, president; Bill Gebhardt, vice president; Hannah Howard, secretary, and Barbara Ford, treasurer.

The student teachers group will have a representative from KQED during College Hour Friday in C-269. The guest speaker's topic will be Educational Television. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

There was an election for president last week of the Contemporary Affairs Forum in C-219. Those interested in attending future meetings are welcome to come.

Any person or organization interested in participating in the International Relations Club fair can consult Hernando Garcia, chairman of the IRC fair committee, in S-186.

The newly elected officers of the Engineering Society invite all new and old student engineering majors to their next club meeting on October 20 during College Hour in S-200.

A film or guest speaker will be presented and future field trips are planned. Newly elected officers are President Bill May, Vice President Tom Naughton, Secretary Joan Otteson, Treasurer Mike Gadda and Sergeant-at-arms John Moore.

Membership cards, which entitle members to attend all field trips and social events, are now available at 50 cents.

Collegiate Christian Fellowship also elected new officers for the fall semester. George Sloan is now president, with Laurie Thurwell vice president and Elaine Leong acting as secretary-treasurer. Eight appointive positions in the club have been filled with new offices opening so new members may participate. Meetings are held in C-101 during College Hours.

The Associated Women Students are now inviting all interested women to attend meetings in Dean Mary Goldings office on Tuesdays at 2 p.m. Plans for the semiannual fashion show and tea are under discussion.

Boasting a membership of more than 30 women students, the Modern Dance Club invites all other interested potential dancers to participate. Meetings are held in the dance studio of the women's gymnasium on Tuesdays at 3 p.m.

On October 10 the Hotel and Restaurant Society will meet at and tour Del Webb's Towne House. Afterward, refreshments will be served.

At the end of the semester the society will have a dinner and dance for the members.

Because of the large attendance at the Symphony Forum record concerts during College Hour, Program Chairman Gary May has moved the session from A-135 to the choral room, A-133.

Billwiller Acting Dean Of Instruction; Mayo On Leave

JAMES BILLWILLER, English department chairman, was recently named acting dean of instruction to fill in for William Mayo.

Temporarily replacing William Mayo as dean of instruction, James Billwiller, chairman of the English department, will assume the position this semester until Mayo returns from a Sabbatical leave.

Billwiller has been an instructor at the college since leaving the service in 1946. The English department chairman said in an interview last year, "I am a very fortunate person, in that I am doing the one thing that I have always wanted to do, that is, be an educator."

Mayo was granted a year leave by the Board of Education from July 1961 until July 1962, to travel through the Central American countries.

Since 1936, Mayo has been associated with the college, first as an engineering instructor then head of the engineering department, and finally as dean of instruction, his present position.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

IF GROVER KLEMMER's gridiron heroes expect to win a Big Eight football title, they'd better do it quickly, for the conference is soon going to join the San Francisco Seals (baseball edition) somewhere in Memoryland.

--Last week's startling announcement of the major shakeup involving California's 10 junior college conferences means the end of the road for the Big Eight.

By comparison, the National League revision which adds two teams to the baseball circuit is mild compared to what will happen to the state's two-year colleges.

On the home front, Bay Conference entries from here, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa will be joined by Foothill, Diablo Valley, San Jose and the new South County (Hayward).

No longer will the Ram eleven have to worry about losing to Stockton or falling down in their bid for a championship because of the strong perennial titleholders.

Maybe it doesn't follow the old "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em theory," but one couldn't help seeing through his thoughts when Klemmer said, "We're sorry to lose Stockton and the others since they provide us with some really good opposition."

Santa Rosa, trying to get out of the Big Eight for some time, finally gets its wish, and should turn from a league patsy into the Golden Valley's powerhouse.

It's no fun for a team to take a two-hour car ride and tire themselves out before a game, nor is it a thrill for a small college to lose time and again to a larger one—these are the reasons why the big change has come about. The colleges have a similar enrollment and are closer geographically.

Athletic Director Jack Gaddy echoes the sentiment of all the Ram coaches when he states, "We don't like to lose contact with schools like Sacramento, Modesto and Stockton whom we've played for so long, but we're happy with the new setup and the Bay should be a strong league."

Track mentor Lou Vasquez is unhappy to lose the excellent track facilities at Sacramento and Modesto but feels that with expanding Foothill joining the league, the loss may be compensated for somewhat.

Since he always manages to come up with an outstanding basketball squad, Sid Phelan isn't fretting over the opposition which may be the best in the state.

The Rams, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa, all hoop powers, remain together and are joined by San Jose, state champion two years ago and perennial champion of the old Coast Conference.

Radical Realignment Brings End To Big Eight Circuit

The Big Eight Conference is doomed.

According to the plan released by Karl Drexel, of the State Junior College Athletic Association, which reveals a major shuffling of all two-year college leagues in the state, the Rams will find themselves in the newly organized Bay Conference next fall.

Along with this college, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa will leave the defunct Big Eight and join a trio of Golden Valley league colleges, Diablo Valley, Foothill and San Jose in the eight-team organization. Upon its completion, South County in Hayward will fill out the slate.

Actually, this is but a small phase of what is scheduled to happen throughout California.

The minor revolution involving the state's present 10 leagues and 70 members will reach its culmination next September as the result of an extended campaign to align the colleges according to their enrollment and proximity to each other.

In what probably amounts to the largest scale upheaval of its type ever to occur, the State Association has come up with 11 leagues involving 73 colleges, three of which are now being constructed.

Expanding from its present three leagues, the Northern California area will add one new one, and a large number of colleges will "jump" from their old circuits.

With the Bay and Valley leagues introduced, the Golden Valley and Coast Conferences will retain their old names despite revisions.

City College, with a daytime enrollment near 6300, heads the Bay, largest of the four.

Losing Foothill, Diablo Valley and San Jose, the Coast Conference will retain its other members—Monterey, Hartnell, Vallejo, Cabrillo, Menlo and San Benito—operating with a six-college alignment.

All have enrollments ranging between 600 and 1100 except for the smaller Menlo and San Benito institutions.

The six-team Valley alignment will combine a trio of former Big Eight entries, Stockton, Sacramento and Modesto with American, River, formerly of the Golden Valley, Fresno and College of the Sequoias have dropped from the Central Conference to fill out this group.

Somewhat balanced attendance figures range from Sacramento's 3200 to Sequoias' 1400.

Santa Rosa, which has been trying for some time to drop from the Big Eight, tops the Golden Valley league which inherits Marin, Shasta, Yuba, Sierra, Napa and Lassen from its former organization and also adds College of the Siskiyous.

Smallest, enrollmentwise, and weakest athletically of the four conferences, the Golden Valley ranges from the 1700 figure attending Santa Rosa to under 200 at Lassen.

Rams Shocked By Bulldogs

RAM HALFBACK RON COLEMAN breaks from the grasp of a would-be tackler for a short gain in the 20-6 win over Los Angeles City College. A vicious tackler on defense, the 5-8, 160-pounder is one of the reasons why the small, speedy offense moves the ball so well.
—Guardsman photo by James Cook.

Defending Champs Retain Tom-Tom With 22-6 Victory

Not even a blistering wind could interfere with the College of San Mateo radar as their alert defenders picked off five Ram unguided missiles en route to a 22-6 victory over the listless challengers to the Bulldogs' Big Eight crown Friday at San Mateo.

Clearly the aggressor all the way, Coach Doug Scovil's eleven had its trying moments but always managed to come up with a clutch play in winning its Big Eight season inaugural and retaining the prized Tom-tom.

The Rams, suffering their initial defeat of the young campaign, found their air game to be disastrous as they completed six of nine attempts, but five of these were eagerly received by their opponents.

In fact, the last five Red and White tosses of the game, three in the first half and a pair after the intermission, went awry.

Though they had given up a total of only 94 yards on the ground in their first two games, the highly touted Ram line was unable to cope with the Bulidog backfield speed, enhanced by Clarence Hamel, Claude McMillen and Lynn Raymond, as the winners rolled up 209 yards rushing.

Neither club was able to move the pigskin in the first quarter as the rivals exchanged punts six times.

Not to be denied, the Mateans launched a 45-yard scoring drive after Fred Oppezo had intercepted an Autentico toss. Raymond, tallying the first of his three touchdowns, cuimlnated the drive by going three yards off right tackle.

Only 50 seconds remained in the half when Raymond scored from one yard out, climaxing a 93-yard drive highlighted by Hamel's brilliant 42-yard dash from his own seven-yard marker. A conversion pass from Rich Norman to Jim Cheatum made it 14-0 at the half.

After the intermission, the Rams got their chance.

On opening play from scrimmage at the San Mateo 32, Norman faded back to pass but was chased by Terry Fischer and Dave Urrea all the way to his own five-yard line where an apparent attempt to ground the ball was turned into a fumble and Fischer pounced on it.

It took Tom Piggee only one play to cross the goal, going between left tackle and end but the conversion failed.

Three plays later punter Dan Biers fumbled the pass from center and after a scramble, Ram tackle Jim Baffico gathered in the elusive pigskin at the San Mateo 30-yard line.

But the drive was short-lived as Autentico, trying to hand off, fumbled on the Bulldog 22.

One more golden opportunity came for the Rams as they drove to the San Mateo two-yard stripe but on fourth down and one inch to go Piggee tried to sweep left end but got nowhere. Never was the Rams' need for a big line-crashing fullback more in evidence.

Scovil's squad iced the contest midway through the final stanza as Raymond scored from the three and end Larry Schilbe took a pass for the PAT to make it 22-6.

In the heated battle of this archrivalry tempers flared often and both teams suffered critical penalties.

Led by Ron Coleman's all-around play the Rams gained 204 yards rushing as Coleman, Piggee, Al Raine and Autentico got 59, 61, 41 and 39 yards, respectively.—By I.T.

Soccermen Defeat USF 1-0, Lose To Cal In Finals 3-2

By Vincent Liu

Playing in surprisingly good early-season form, the City College soccer team finished second in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference preseason tournament held October 1 at the University of San Francisco.

University of California captured the top spot by defeating Coach Roy Diederichsen's booters, 3-2, in an overtime thriller. The contest, tied at 2-2 after regulation time, was decided when Cal's Bill Barreda converted the penalty kick after Vince Liu missed poorly on his try.

The defeat, plus the memory of last year's 1-0 upset at the hands of the same team, should give the red-eyed Rams all the incentive necessary to seek revenge from their hated cousins across the bay when they meet the California Bears at Berkeley in their next league assignment October 21.

In the exciting fourney championship game that brought the small but enthusiastic crowd to its feet repeatedly, the local eleven twice came from behind to tie the Bears on the strength of Al Korbus' two tallies.

Jim Whittmore drew first blood for Cal midway through the first half but saw the lead wiped out promptly by a beautiful 15-yard blast by Korbus. The Bears went ahead, 2-1, late in the second half when Whittmore scored again.

With only 15 seconds left and all hope seemingly vanished, the Rams pulled a stunner. Pedro Liva, on a corner kick, lofted the ball high and close to the goal; Korbus, sandwirhed between two defenders, made a mighty leap and incredibly headed the leather into the net.

The crowd went wild, to put it mildly, and the ensuing scene was a bedlam. The cheering for the courageous Rams was, however, short-lived when Barreda made the game-deciding kick, which was worth two trophies donated by the Olympic Club, one of which is to be kept permanently.

Liu, turning from a hero to a goat on the same pattern in a matter of four hours, earlier had knocked in an overtime penalty shot in the semi-final contest that eliminated USF 1-0 and carried Diederichsen's forces into the final.

The defense, headed by Hugo Olaya, Caesar Pina, Dennis Minga and Flavio Valiente, played a tremendous game. Goalie Gary DeLong, fullback Sal Sanchez and inside Allen Chew also fared well.

In the first day's initial round, the soccermen breezed by San Francisco State, 3-0, Ivan Bermudez's sensational backward flip kick opened the scoring. Roberto Salazar and Chew combined for the second tally, and Korbus capped the activities with a small five-yard blooping shot.

Throughout the two-day tournament, the booters gave good accounts of themselves.

Late Goals Give Booters Easy Win Over San Jose

BALBOA SOCCER STADIUM, Oct. 6.—Taking up where they left off last year, the City College soccermen kicked off the league season with an easy 7-0 shutout victory over the San Jose State Spartans on the strength of a five-goal fourth quarter.

Al Korbus came through with four tallies to lead the scoring parade as Flavio Valiente contributed two "picture" shots and Vince Liu a lone goal.

Playing with the services of sprinter Dennis Johnson, co-holder of the world 100-yard dash mark in 9.3 seconds, the Spartan front line was stopped cold by an unyielding Ram defense headed by Dave Fromer, Hugo Olaya, Caesar Pina and Dennis Minga.

Modern Dance, Volleyball Set For Coed Slate

Two activities, modern dance and volleyball, highlight coeducational activities this semester, Frances Galloway, of the woman's physical education department, said today.

The modern dance group, which meets on Tuesdays at 3 p.m. under the leadership of Lene A. Johnson, has planned a full program. The first activity of the semester will be participation in dance with other students of modern dance from the various high schools throughout the city.

Lee Durkee, Nora Collins, Marsha Webber and Jan White are assisting in the plans for inviting John Graham, who is now at The Playhouse with the Ann Halprin dance group, to give a master dance lesson to the modern dance group here.

There are four volleyball teams this semester, and many participants have returned from last semester. The volleyball teams are also inviting high school teams to participate in games here on Tuesday afternoons.

Three outstanding players on the regular teams are Sue Oddone, Jim Calonico and Jack Osarno.

According to Miss Galloway, the game of volleyball is becoming a worldwide sport, and in the next Olympic games it will be included as a recognized team sport.

Because of popular demand, Elizabeth K. Wirth has begun a basketball team for women only on Wednesdays at 3 p.m.

Comets Release Swift Backfield On Rams Friday

A Ram defense, sometimes so stingy that it would put Scrooge to shame by comparison, will face the swift-moving backfield of Contra Costa at 8 p.m., Friday at Contra Costa.

The only touchdown scored off the Rams in two preseason games was by the Los Angeles City College Cubs, after they took over on the San Francisco 14-yard line. Even then it took them eight plays to take it over. The Rams won, 20-6.

The Ram defensive front wall has limited the opposition to an average of 91 yards on the ground and 85 yards in the air in the two preseason victories over the Los Angeles clubs.

In the opener the Rams dumped Los Angeles Valley 27-0, holding the Valley team to minus eight yards on the ground in 29 carries.

Jim Baffico, Jack Burgett and guards Alex Darnes and Dave Urrea were responsible for much of this. The secondary of Randy Autentico, Ron Coleman, Al Raine and Tom Piggee intercepted five passes in the two contests.

In preseason contests, Contra Costa split two games, dropping its opener to Diablo Valley, 10-6, then defeating Uklah, 16-6.

Predominantly a running club, the Comets averaged nearly 230 yards per game in the two contests. Left half Jerry Stong (170), right half Roger Martiny (185) and fullback Bob Battle (210) have split the rushing load equally. Ron Melton, 5-11, 180, is the starting quarterback.

The rest of Coach Vince Mairana's lineup is the following: ends Mauro Marianni (220) and O. S. Emerson (200); tackles Sam Works (215) and Rich Zecher (200); guards Cliff Greenwood (200) and Sam Williamson (205) and center Jerry Ludy (210).

In 1960 the Rams rolled up 444 yards in a landslide 44-8 victory over the Comets.

Valiente Heads List Of New Block SF Officers

Officers for the fall semester of the Block SF Society were elected last week, according to Lou Vasquez, club adviser here.

Those selected were Flavio Valiente, president; Bill Waite, vice president; John Jacobsen, secretary-treasurer, and Jack Hickey, Club Activities Board representative.

The highlight of this semester's activities will again be the semi-annual banquet dinner during which trophies and letters will be awarded.

Frosh Ball At St. Francis Friday Night

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1961 NUMBER 4

Peace Corps' West Coast Representative Grothe Due Here For Speech Friday

Peter Grothe, the man credited with presenting the Peace Corps concept to President John F. Kennedy, will speak here during College Hour Friday, in S-100.

Grothe, attempting to recruit students for the corps, will speak on the subject, The Peace Corps And You, a discussion of a new dimension in American foreign policy and opportunities in the neophyte organization. Grothe is West Coast representative of the corps.

One faculty member here, and two former students, are at present active in the Peace Corps.

They are Desider Slavoj, instructor in engineering; Deane Wylie, 1955 graduate and associate editor of The Guardsman, and Gerald Mahon, member of Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

Slavoj worked with the corps in Mexico during the summer, while Wylie is serving with a group in the Philippines as a teaching aide, and Mahon is serving with a sanitary project in Colombia.

Grothe, now a teaching assistant at Stanford University, working for his doctorate in political science, is an expert on all phases of this subject, especially Communist affairs.

Shortly after President Kennedy announced the Peace Corps plan, Grothe served for three months in Washington and at the United Nations as a special consultant for the Peace Corps, helping to develop the program.

Grothe will bring to the college a wide range of experience, developed by traveling to 21 countries, including extensive treks into eight Communist countries.

A recent three-month sojourn brought him to the far reaches of the Soviet Union, Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and East Germany. He has talked with Boris Pasternak, taught American football at a Leningrad school, and has had street meetings in every part of Russia, answering questions about the United States.

He spent two years in the army in Berlin where he was in charge of feature stories for the service newspapers, Stars And Stripes.

While in Berlin he made more than 100 trips into East Germany, and wrote a book on the Communist propaganda war, entitled To Win The Minds of Men. This book has received many outstanding notices, including one comment, "This book should be required reading for every person of voting age in America."

Grothe, who received his B.A. and M.A. at Stanford, was campus correspondent at that university for Time magazine and The San Francisco Chronicle.

This globe trotter has also served in Washington, D. C., as Senator Hubert Humphrey's foreign relations adviser where, in 1960, he developed and wrote the first Peace Corps legislation that was introduced in Congress.

He recently went on a study mission to Cuba where he interviewed Minister of Banking "Che" Guevara. Grothe has also broadcast in English and Russian for Voice Of America.

Queen Hopefuls Appear At C-Hour Rally Friday

Candidates vying for the college's Homecoming Queen title will be introduced in a "pre-Homecoming" pep rally during College Hour this Friday at the Redwood Ram. Rally Commissioner Stan Burford announced last week.

The rally precedes the Rams' grid game against Santa Rosa here.

Applications for the queen contest are being accepted until tomorrow's deadline. Forms can be obtained in S-148.

This semester's pretty song girl quartet and award winning yell leader trio will spearhead the rally spirit.

Quota System To Rule ISC Rushing October 22-27

Members of the eight campus sororities agreed last week to adopt a new quota system of pledging in an effort to insure their continued existence. The system was outlined by Vivian Ward, faculty sponsor of Theta Tau and Kappa Phi.

Since it is required that all sororities be of a certain size in order to remain on campus, a certain quota for rushees for each sorority has been set.

Rushees are required to attend five out of eight Firesides this semester, to be held from October 22 to 27. Last semester, however, rushess could attend any number they desired.

After the Firesides, rushees will indicate a preference for three sororities, instead of the usual one or two. There will be no coffee preference hour this semester.

The rushees who name a sorority as their first choice will be allowed to pledge it until the quota is met. Those remaining who wish to pledge this sorority will have their second and third choices considered, again until quotas are met.

Last semester rushees could choose any sorority, but the sororities had a right to choose those rushees it desired. This semester rushees will choose the sorority and will be allowed to pledge their choice unless the quota is filled.

All rushees will be guaranteed acceptance in one of their three choices, whereas last semester many rushees did not get into a sorority at all, because they had only one choice.

Official acceptance dinners will be given by the college's eight sororities from November 1 to 9, according to Dean Mary Golding.

Students who are rushing must have a C average for the first midterm period, and must guarantee to be a co-operative and active pledge of the sorority in which they are placed, regulations provide.

Kathy Hallock, Inter-Sorority Council president, informed student leaders that 80 to 90 prospective rushees had attended the ICS tea October 8.

Delegates Off To Conference

Advocating efficient student governmental procedure and promoting two-year college campus activities, the Nothern Region California Junior College Student Government conference meets this Saturday at Monterey Peninsula College.

President of the Associated Students Gary Wilkening will be accompanied by a college delegation of 20, assigned to seven workshops and a general assembly, working together with representatives from 25 two-year colleges in Northern California.

"The primary purpose," Wilkening disclosed, "of sending delegates to the conference is to instill a spirit in the active students by recognizing their own problems through helping other college representatives."

Representing the college in the workshops are Kathy Henderson, Bob Anderson, Chuck Wood and Kathy Hallock in activities; Dan Collins and Suzanne Murphy in student government, and Ed Pawlus, Shirley Thorton and Andy Shemiyeh in athletics.

Larry Levin, Bob Rogers and Pam Chandler will represent the college in current problems; Marcia McNeely, Paul Steiner and Ed Aydin in judicial systems; Sue Mount and Paul Plansky in publicity, and Wilkening, Bob Perkins, George Woo and Paul Snowberg in conference reorganization.

The finance workshop was replaced this semester by a judicial workshop, because, Wilkening says, "The same problems are discussed each semester in finance, but there is an urgent need for a student governing body to discipline student activities."

Reorganization of the conference will be the outstanding subject discussed in the workshops and general assembly. The plan is to extend the one-day conference into a weekend convention.

Accompanying the college delegation to Monterey and acting as advisers are Sherm E. Elworthy, student government adviser, and Mary Golding, dean of women.

PONDERING issues to be presented at Saturday's conference are from left to right, Dan Collins, Soph president; Kathy Henderson, AS vice president; Gary Wilkening, AS president, and Jan Doudist, AWS president.
—Guardsman photo by James Cook.

HOST of the Frosh Ball at the St. Francis Hotel this Friday night is Greg Monk, Freshman Class president.
—Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

Cutest Couple To Highlight Semiannual Social Fling

With the theme Sophistication, the Freshman Class, under the leadership of President Greg Monk, will present its semiannual ball this Friday night, October 20, in the Colonial and Italian rooms of the St. Francis Hotel.

Bid priority to members of the Freshman Class ends today. Tomorrow and Friday, until the supply runs out, the Associated Students will be able to secure bids until the limit set for 500 couples runs out.

This quota was adopted by Student Council last semester in order to prevent the recurrence of the overcrowded conditions which prevailed at the Freshman Ball last fall at the Village, where two bands were used in two separate rooms.

Students should present their Associated Student card at the information booth at Science Hall, Monk said, and they should also have the name of their date available at that time.

Providing the music for the 9 p.m. to midnight affair will be Ray Hackett and his orchestra. Additional entertainment will be supplied by two entertainers, a combination electric guitarist-singer and a drummer.

Highlighting the evening's festivities will be the traditional "cutest couple" contest. Tallies and number boards will be distributed to prospective candidates upon entrance to the dance. A process of elimination will determine the final winners.

The awards consist of two trophies and a bouquet donated by Phi Beta Rho sorority, Phi Epsilon fraternity and Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity.

Dress for the affair is semiformal.

A photographer will be on hand in the Georgian Room, adjacent to the two ballrooms. A soft drink bar will also be situated there.

Working toward the success of the ball besides Monk are class officers Josie Gunther, vice president; Marlin Snipper, recording secretary; Joan Morrow, corresponding secretary, and Ron Biagini, treasurer.

Faculty sponsors of the class are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Humiston.

Wilkening Tells Council 'Think Before Acting'

By Robert Hacker

Gary Wilkening, Associated Student president, last week advised Student Council members to study problems brought up before council before introducing them for discussion.

He complained because council members are "coming up with motions before taking time to think them out."

"This," he said, "causes everyone to object and is the reason for all of the needless discussion that has frequented council meetings."

He suggested that council members consult persons who are familiar with the problems to be discussed before presenting a motion.

Student Card Sales Chairman Lon Earnshaw brought council back into a good mood when he announced that the card sales had reached a total of 2852, only 148 cards away from the 3000 goal.

Earnshaw got a laugh from members when he said, "One good bang-up week by the Campus Police elting non-AS card holders with parking tickets and we will go over the 3000 mark."

Dan Collins, Sophomore Class president, announced that the Sophomore Class plans to give a spirit trophy to the organization showing the most spirit at the Homecoming game with Stockton on October 27.

Campus Affairs Co-ordinator Dianne Hardesty told council members that to date 378 students had taken advantage of the opportunity to join the California Physicians Service student health plan.

12 Instructors Join College Staff

Appointment of 12 new members to the college faculty was announced today by Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction.

They are Peter Briggs, accounting; William H. Funke, business; Bernard A. Coyle and Mildred Johnson, chemistry; Lawrence Lawson, criminology; Edwin Knapton and Cornelius McCarthy, English; Norma Carlisle and Marion McDermott, nursing; Frances Galloway, physical education; Robert Hargis and Lee Doison, Jr., social science.

Dolson, who with Hargis have been here as substitutes during the past year, served at Balboa High School; Knapton at Washington High School, McCarthy at Lowell, Miss Johnson and Funke at Lincoln and Miss Galloway at Pelton Junior High School.

This year's staff shows growth resulting from both increased enrollment and expanded curriculum, Luckmann said. There are now 287 faculty members, including those in administrative positions.

Of the first 40 appointed when the college was founded in 1935, Luckmann pointed out, 25 are still faculty members.

COO Elects Cherniss President As Group Plans Homecoming Oct. 27

The key hope of organizing the 1961 Homecoming Day, the Council of Organizations, has elected its president and is set to move ahead with the October 27 plans.

Fred Cherniss, a member of Beta Tau fraternity, was elected last week to the post by representatives of the campus organizations within the COO.

Purpose of the council, besides its first duty of Homecoming, is to act as a campus "United Nations." The COO is the link between the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Inter-Sorority Council and the Club Activities Board.

It is a permanent fixture on the campus, designed to co-ordinate all the clubs and organizations. Like the new student union, however, it must prove itself.

While plans for the Homecoming have been discussed last week by the new council, concrete action cannot take place until the council's constitution is ratified tomorrow.

It's definite the naming of the Homecoming Queen will take place, and also a certainty the annual car parade will take place, but Cherniss said the Homecoming dance, not successful last year, might be cancelled this semester.

Other members elected to posts in the council are Vice President Don Disterheft, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Secretary Maureen Farley, Phi Beta Rho, and Treasurer Art Searson, president of the Chess Club.

Sherman Elworthy, student government advisor, is their consultant.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco
Vol. 53, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1961 Page 2

COO—'The Right Hand Man' For Fighting Student Apathy?

HOW MANY TIMES have college newspapers waged wars on student apathy? WHAT have been the results, if any? WHO is to say what "lack of interest" is or how much of it there is? WHEN will frustrated editors say something "agreeable" to their readers? WHERE will it all end?

Of course, if we have the answers to these "four W's and HOW," not only would there be a front page news story about it, but we would have solved the college spirit problem for student governments all across the country. And, if we had these answers, there would be a less greater need for our often lengthy, often repetitious editorials on this "worn-out" subject.

The dilemma, then, seems to be that there has been a lot of hollering at and scolding of student apathy but not enough helping or problem solving. Anyone can find faults, but who will offer to correct them?

We know there's no instant cure for such a chronic disease, especially here at a two-year college, but we believe this semester offers a newly patented medicine which could put the patient back on his feet.

This new dose of vitality is called the Council of Organizations.

The newly formed group, which was created by an overwhelming voter approval of Proposition A in last semester's student elections, has the chance to prove itself next week. COO has the responsibility of planning and supervising all phases of Homecoming activities.

COO is by no means a panacea for the perennial problems facing student leaders. It seems as if words like "support" and "spirit" elicit from students more plain ridicule than positive response. Notwithstanding, the function of this new group is not to preach against disconcern but rather to practice avoiding discontent.

By discontent we mean the very conflicting components within student government here.

If the trial operation comes off successfully, student government here could have a new and sorely needed "right-hand man" to coordinate and unify campus activities.

In the past the Inter-Fraternity Council, Inter-Sorority Council and Club Activities Board had remained autonomous and answered only to Student Council. Now each of these bodies sends a representative to COO, and the college fraternities, sororities and clubs have a new-found base for the exchange of common problems.

Not only would the success of COO provide a "team effort" of cooperation but it would allow the direction of campus groups away from diversity and toward solidarity.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Herman Kligerman
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Dave Grieve, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell.
Reporters: Gerald Almendarez, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Herbert Mitts, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude.
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, John Curtis, Thalis Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Vincent Liu, Jean Lucian, Mary McConihe, John McShane, Patricia Neider, Peter Oppenheimer, Jess Pineda, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Exams Challenge Student Wits

A MOMENT'S REST may be something new during midterm week, but this poor coed takes a brief break before scurrying to class to take another midterm.

Anticipation Theme Of Midterm Blues

By Jerry Littrell

Just as the radioactive dust is increasing throughout the world so are dust and cobwebs becoming more evident around the college and homes. Little-used books are taken off well-worn shelves as that time is here again—midterms have arrived.

Worried faces dart nervously in and out of corridors as frustrated students complete their last-minute frantic cramming.

Before the midterm time arrived, the students at this college seemed to be similar in actions and mannerisms.

However, with the advent of midterms, student wits are automatically divided into various groups.

The first of these groups is the "know-it-all." This is the confident student who saunters nonchalantly into the class and scoffs at the contingent studying in the last few seconds.

He is also the one who drags himself up to the instructor's desk after the test to claim the material in the test wasn't covered in the lectures.

Then there is the "last-minute genius." This is the chronic cutter who decides to attend every class the week just previous to midterms and expects to catch up with all that he missed in the last three lectures.

Along with these is the "waiter." He is the student who waits until the last minute to cram for the test. He is up all night the night before the test and finally absorbs all the knowledge of all his subjects and feels pretty confident.

The only thing wrong with this is that he does a take-off on Rip Van Winkle the next day in class.

Finally, the most common group is the "frustrated cheater." He is the poor soul who spends hours condensing answers on the palm of his hand and on the back of his watch.

While the class is dead silent during the test, the crinkle and crackle of his cheat notes can be heard above the deafening silence.

He worries so much about the fact that he might be caught cheating that he breaks out in a nervous sweat and forgets which prepared answers go with what questions.

All is not lost, though. There still remains the "average student," who diligently studies throughout the semester, glances through his work the night before, gets a good night's rest and comes fully prepared and confident to the test.

But the majority waits in fearful anticipation as the "F" hour draws nearer. They hope that the midnight oil will act as a lubricant for their dusty and dull brain matter. Tension builds up. They jerk at every sound as their nerves are tensed for the ordeal ahead.

Everyone has the Midterm Blues.

It is illegal to land a dirigible in Golden Gate Park without a permit from the Park Commission.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

THE COFFEE MACHINE in the Science Hall basement was sabotaged one day last week and about 11 a.m. students gathered around the vending machine in silent and outraged protest.

It was bad enough that the coke machine was empty because of a strike, but the coffee machine displayed an "out-of-cups" sign. The protesting group stood staring at the machine, each with a dime in his hand until one unbelieving soul dropped a coin in the machine.

A cup appeared and for once it was nearly full. (But it's still speculation if the liquid the machine ejected was real coffee.)

* * *

ONE COURAGEOUS (or foolhardy?) person made an illegal U-turn on Phelan Avenue the other day right in back of a "tricycle" cop who was tagging another car for parking in a red zone. And for once the long arm of the law was looking the other way.

* * *

LAST SEMESTER it was estimated that there were three students studying in the cafeteria to every one eating. Now the question is whether this number has doubled or does everyone study in the cafeteria.

Not everyone, though, because during the noon rush hour a few hungry individuals can be seen eatign in a standing position or sitting on one of the heaters and balancing trays.

And still, day after day, the never ending hoard of chair seekers goes on.

* * *

NEWEST IN STATISTICS: The latest a student can find a parking space on Phelan Avenue in the morning is 7:23 a.m.

In the afternoon some students vacate their parking space, it takes an estimated seven and two-thirds seconds for another person to grab the empty space—that's from the time the space is vacated until the next person locks his car.

* * *

AS AN ENLIGHTENING sidelight, what would happen if Russia decided to bomb us on a Tuesday noon while the air raid sirens were being tested in various parts of the city?

Classic Switch

Student Sells Car For Books

A student here bought an expensive set of books this semester, and thereby pulled a classic switch on a familiar "hardship" tale.

During registration the common complaint by students is that they have to have morning classes in order to work in the afternoon to pay for or maintain a car.

But Chuck Riley, a post-graduate graphic arts student here, because he wasn't getting anything "material" after paying the high rates for insurance, sold his car and bought a set of 32 books called the Great Ideas Series by the Encyclopedia Britannica.

"What's the sense of it?" Riley reflected. "A person under 25 years of age pays out close to $300 a year for insurance and has nothing to show for it. Besides the insurance, the upkeep for a car is very expensive in itself."

Now Riley beams proudly at the set of books that contain, besides other material, the complete works of the greatest thinkers of all times. Contained in his volumes are the complete works of Darwin, Newton and Plato.

Besides being able to buy the Britannica set, Riley now saves his money by borrowing his parent's car for special occasions. This way, according to Riley, he only has to pay for the gas—quite a difference from the hundreds of dollars a year he used to pay.

The Spectator

By Herman Kligerman

Sale Of White Canes Offers Hope To Blind

PERSONS who possess all five of their senses can scarcely realize how it would feel to be minus the use of their eyes. A minority, but an important minority, of the world's population is blind, but to these persons blindness doesn't constitute an insurmountable handicap.

Thankfully, too, there are several local agencies which aid the sightless citizens—such as the Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael and the Lighthouse For the Blind here in the city.

Services rendered by these organizations are free, but no facilities are available to treat the disease or aid a person to regain his sight.

This week there is a campaign going on throughout the Bay Area to try to assist in the care of this very thing—blindness!

Many persons are not familiar with a group of businessmen who call themselves The Lions. This is the organization that sponsors the annual White Cane Days, and it wouldn't be at all surprising if many citizens did not know what this is either.

The Lions Club is an international body which dedicates itself and its services to the betterment of youth in particular, and the public in general, through various community service campaigns such as the White Cane Days.

Members of Lions Club throughout each city take time off from their respective businesses during this period to "sell" the miniature white canes to the general public.

There's no set cost for the article. The contributor will receive a cane to pin on his lapel or wear on a piece of clothing for any donation, large or small.

Where does the money collected go to? It goes into each Lions Club fund to be used, when the need becomes apparent, for children and adults who have eye difficulties but do not have the necessary finances to afford proper attention.

This means that each chapter (there are 13 throughout San Francisco today) has its own "eye fund" to aid persons residing in the district that particular chapter serves.

Containers have also been placed in various places of business around the Bay Area. During this coming weekend, when the big push is made, Lions will situate themselves on street corners with a supply of the canes to offer to passersby, young or old.

Whether this campaign will eventually give new hope to sightless persons is not readily known. All that can be done now is to hope for the best.

Dental Course Grads Get Jobs

Trio Of Dentists Aid Students Enrolled In Training Program

Scheduled to complete their present training here in January are nine young women in white.

These coeds wear the white uniform required in the dental assisting program.

The white uniform is attractive, as was attested to by a visiting delegation of Marine corps representatives here recently as part of a Marine recruiting program, and so is the reputation that the college's dental assisting graduates have won thus far through their stellar performance in the profession itself.

In fact, all last semester's graduates have found favorable placements, according to Ruth Inskipp, instruction co-ordinator of the program.

The curriculum in dental assisting here is planned so that the student may meet the requirements for graduation with the degree of Associate in Arts, and in concurrence with the standards of the Amerian Dental Assitants Association and the San Francisco Dental Society.

Three practicing dentists assist in the instructional program here, making the college the only one in Northern California to have accredited dentists instructing courses in dental assisting. They are Drs. Leroy D. Cagnone, John Sapone and Robert D. Scoren.

Evelyn Seekatz joined the program's instruetional staff this semester and works with the X-ray aspects of dental assisting.

She is a past officer and active member in the San Francisco Dental Assistants Association.

Surgical and clinical experience with patients, dentists and junior and senior dental students at the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the University of California School of Dentistry is offered through practical training in dental chairside assisting.

The road to success in this phase of the business world, Mrs. Inskipp said, will almost invariably begin with favorable answers to two questions: "Do you like people, do people like you" and "How do you rate as a housekeeper."

It has become a tradition for the curriculum's graduating class to transfer a lighted candle, which symbolizes seniority, to the upcoming third semester students in a colorful ceremony which this fall will be on January 11 in the campus theater. The new "seniors" also receive their professional caps during this ceremony.

There were 46 new students registered for the dental assisting program here this semester, which increased the total enrollment in the department to a new high, Mrs. Inskipp said.

A TESTIMONIAL to the old saying that practice makes perfect, Gayle Barnett, a graduate of the dental assisting program here who now works for Dr. Samuel Epstein, a San Francisco dentist, demonstrates how a tooth should be pulled. (Her "patient" actually emerged with his tooth intact after the ordeal.)

Counterpoint

Crusade To Chase 'Reds' Out Hits Snag

By Dick Dragavon

THOSE who read letters to the editor must certainly recall one from a tourist from New Jersey which was printed about a month ago in all the major San Francisco papers.

The tourist, after praising the beauty and charm of San Francisco, suggested that, in view of the existing relationship between our countries, the name of Russian Hill be changed.

As far as it goes, his idea has merit, but apparently having been here only a short time he missed quite a few other "offensive" sounding names, places and organizations.

Besides the hill, the city has a Russian Avenue and a Moscow Street. About 70 miles away is the Russian River. And one must not forget Russian dressing.

In fact, an attempt was made (possibly by the visitor from N. J.) during the Korean conflict to change the name of the dressing to MacArthur.

Either no one thought of naming it after the troops which were doing the fighting or some one balked at the idea of asking at the corner grocery store for a bottle of UN-dressing.

Had the New Jersey sight-seer strolled into mysterious Chinatown he might have also concerned himself with the very suspicious sounding Red's Barbecue.

This would have opened the way to a host of changes and California maps would have to be revamped completely to include Blue Bluff, the northern city near Greening in the Blackwood country.

Citizens would be solicited for funds each year during the Plaid Cross drive.

Cars and pedestrians would be regulated by purple stop lights and painters would receive a financial shot in the arm redoing fire trucks and no-parking zones.

Firms such as the Red Star Yeast Company and Red Star Industrials would have no choice but to take a name completely loyal beyond a doubt such as—Sam's.

Girl babies would be outlawed since the color associated with them—pink—has definite subversive undertones.

The college would also not go unaffected. The Kam colors would need changing, perhaps to Black and Blue.

Students could not say that they have "read" this article, rather that they have seen it.

Since the gentleman's letters appeared in all the journals' letter columns, and since he came from New Jersey, can it be that he is carrying on a cross-country crusade?

He should be thanked for his concern, but it is quite certain that the names of geographical areas here were not necessarily designed to carry a stamp of approval or respect for their namesakes.

Students Read For Pleasure, Research

Many college students here are pleasure readers and researchers, library figures show. Approximately 600 books—not specifically "recommended" by instructors—circulate from the "open stacks" each month.

The library purchases about 1000 new books a year to add to the 50,000-plus already on the shelves and subscribes to about 450 periodicals purchased and donated. Already there is a waiting list of borrowers for new purchases.

The librarians have published a green-colored information brief, mapping locations of all library materials. Copies are available in the library. The pamphlet asks students and instructors to recommend book purchases.

Cahill Gives Oath To 24 New Campus Police Officers

Twenty-four rookie Campus Police officers were sworn in to the San Francisco special police force by Thomas Cahill, chief of police, at the Hall of Justice yesterday, according to Jerry McCarthy, chief of the Campus Police here.

The new officers are William Bareklay, Phillip Barmore, Charles Berry, Thomas Cain, David Colon, Richard Decuir, Gerald Degirolamo, Allan Dittes, Edward Doonan, Robert Hansen, Eugene Handbine, Woodrow Herve, John Irwin, William Lovett, Robert Marshall, John Murphy, Norman Paulsen, Gary Pierce, Robert Porras, Larry Stanfield, William Walsh, John Wiedinger, Kevin Welsh and William Wilson.

These 24 new men have increased the total Campus Police manpower to 32, McCarthy said. He has named Steve Lavezzo and Louis Pollack as his deputy chiefs to serve with him this semester.

Parking permits can still be secured during College Hour in C-120 upon the presentation of an Associated Student card, a valid driver's license and car registration.

Thespians Schedule Ionesco Play Friday

Ionesco's Foursome will replace The Death Of Bessie Smith by Edward Alby in the next College Hour production to be given Friday in the arts building theater, Michael Griffin, director of the drama department, said today.

The Death Of Bessie Smith has been rescheduled for December 1, which was the original date for Ionesco's Foursome. There are four roles in Ionesco's play, three for men and one for a woman.

The last College Hour performance of this semester will be given on January 12, and it has been decided by the drama department that the presentation on that date will be Saroyan's Hello Out There.

Pepsters May Kindle Spirit

Newly Organized Ram Band To Perform At Athletic Events

By Rich Shields

An end to the "Age of Apathy" in rallies and athletic events at the college is in sight, concerned parties hope, with the introduction this semester of a pep band.

For years most of the sports events here and the rallies which preecde them have been noted more for the lack of student interest in them than for whether the game was won or lost.

However, it is now hoped that student interest and participaton (moral supportwise) will be given a "shot in the arm" by the appearance of the Ram Band to bolster drooping spirits.

The Ram Band, named by Dean Edward Sandys, consists of 14 students from the music department and is led by Mike DeBow. All members must possess an Associated Student card.

This is the first time in the history of the college that a group, separate from the Concert Band, has been formed for the sole purpose of performing at athletic events, Meyer Cahn, band instructor here, said recently.

Participation in the group involves signing up for a one-unit course, Cahn added, but the experience gained will be totally different from that of members of the Concert Band.

The Ram Band will concentrate on pep songs and jazz types of music, whereas the Concert Band deals with great music as an art form.

Cahn described the reception of the new band in its performances so far as very enthusiastic and said he expects it to become an integral part of future rallies and athletic events.

The band will perform at four football games and three basketball games during the semester but will also voluntarily appear at rallies and other student activities except dances.

Deadline Today For Counseling Free Hour Form

With programming for the spring semester scheduled to begin next week, Walter McCloud, counselor here, announced that today is the last day for students to fill out a free hour form and postcard to insure a counseling appointment.

McCloud stated that it is vital to the counselors to receive the free hour forms and postcards no later than today, as the forms must be used to schedule students for appointments and programming.

Any student who files the forms after the deadline will receive a later registration number and will probably not register until the last day of registration.

McCloud also advised students who are not sure of returning to the college to fill out the forms anyway. "If they do return, then they don't suffer, and if they don't return there has been no harm done," he said.

The date of the appointment with the counselor will be sent to the student via the postcard he has filled out.

If for some reason the student is not able to keep the appointment he must inform his counselor prior to the appointment.

By doing this, McCloud explained he will not receive a later registration number as is the case with students who neither keep their appointments nor inform their counselors.

Cards will be received by the students no later than one week prior to the scheduled appointment, McCloud said.

New and readmitted students will not be sent cards until at least the second week in November, because registration numbers for these students will not be available until the first midterm grades are filed.

NO CUTS FOR COUNSELING

Students were advised yesterday by Counselor Walter McCloud not to cut a class to consult their counselors. He warned that such cuts are unexcused absences, and appointments should be made so that they are scheduled during a student's free time.

Jobs Offered To College Students For Holidays

Applications for holiday employment can be obtained at the college placement center located in S-187, according to Joseph Amori, placement director.

This college is the only edueational institution in the area that establishes its study program to conform with business, industry and government work schedules which require supplementary holiday help early in December.

Because of this arrangement, nearly 85 per cent of the students work at some type of job during the Christmas vacation period, which begins December 9 and continues through December 25. In this way both the student and the labor market can benefit, Amori said.

Department stores offer the most job opportunities beeause they double their staffs with college people, Amori explained. They hire hundreds of students for sales, stock, cashiers, credit interviewers and delivery. However, more women are utilized than men, he said.

Specialty shops also hire in these categories. Applicants must be attractive, well groomed, alert and congenial. Some stores test all prospective employees.

Pay scales are set by the unions and range from $1.35 to $1.85. College students are being hired now for training on a part-time basis—days and/or nights.

The largest field for men is the post office. Several thousand individuals are needed for clerical work, delivery by foot, delivery by car and truck and sorting mail, Amori said, and veterans are given preference by federal government regulations. The hourly wage is $1.95 to $2.20.

There is a brisk demand for entertainers, especially Santa Claus and musicians.

A meeting will be called soon by the college placement center to discuss Christmas jobs with students interested, Amori said.

Club Cavalcade

Campus Fraternities, Clubs, Sororities Plan Future Events During College Hour Friday

By Sandy Sells

ORDER IS NOW ESTABLISHED from the first September rush of planning, and the college's organizations are well into the "carrying out" stages of their activities.

The Stereo Swing will be the theme for the Chinese Students Club dance to be held at the Chinatown YWCA, located at Clay and Powell Streets. Members of the club and their guests are invited to attend stag or drag on October 21 from 8:30 to midnight. The cost is 75 cents for guests and 50 cents for members.

Delta Psi will hold its acceptance dinner on October 29 from 6 to 8 p.m. in Smith Hall. The theme is Sadie Hawkins and members of the sorority may come complete with blue-jean shorts and polka-dot blouses.

Joseph B. Hill, curriculum co-ordinator of the San Francisco Public Schools, will speak to members and interested guests of the Student California Teachers Association on The Gifted Child during College Hour this Friday in C-269.

Juvenile Delinquency will be the subject of a speech by Roger Grass from the Oakland Youth for Christ. He will speak to guests and members of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship, also on Friday and during College Hour, in A-215.

Those members who are interested in attending the Northern California Collegiate Christian Fellowship conference at Mission Springs, October 27 to November 2, may apply to George Sloan, president of the club, for reservations this Friday.

Hillel welcomes interested newcomers to attend a business meeting during College Hour in C-115. Future plans of the organization will be discussed.

The service project for Kappa Phi this semester will be the entertainment of the children at Shriners Hospital every Thursday at 6 p.m.

Theta Tau will have their business meeting on Friday during College Hour. Rushing, a service project, and plans for the Homecoming Queen contest or the car parade with the Inter-Sorority Council will be discussed.

A Hawaiian luau held at the home of a member of Alpha Kappa Rho will be the fraternity's second semi-annual rushing affair. The date is this Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

There will be a business meeting of Alpha Sigma Delta to discuss future activities during College Hour Friday in C-222.

Elected at Phi Pi Beta Rho's last business meeting were Jeri Seiutto, president; Sue Batmale, vice president; Barbara Furlong, corresponding secretary; Marlene Cortopassi, recording secretary; Maurene Farley, treasurer; Rosalie Weiner, historian, and Irene Carter, pledge mistress.

The Christian Science Organization holds its meetings at 7:45 p.m. on the first and third Thursdays of each month at Third Church, 1250 Haight Street. Tomorrow night's meeting only will be held at 7 p.m. It is important that all students, faculty and alumni interested in Christian Science plan to attend this meeting.

For all students who are science majors, or have previous experience in rocketry, or who are just interested in science, a group is now being formed under the name of the Rocket Research Club. The first meeting will be held Friday during College Hour in S-250. All prospective members are urged to attend or consult Joe Leneioni at OX 9-2578 in Millbrae.

Poster Contest Winners Merit Cash, Prestige

By John Curtis

Being a winner in the 1962 collegiate advertising poster contest not only merits a cash prize but also brings the student's work to the attention of influential persons in the art world, according to William J. Eckert, advertising art instructor here.

This assertion is based on the fact that the contest is judged by acknowledged leaders in advertising and graphic arts selected by the Advertising Association of the West and the Zellerbach Paper Company, sponsors of the contest.

The purpose of the theme, Break The Language Barrier, is to explain some facet of democracy through art, the universal language.

Contestants are instructed to illustrate what they think is the most important thing that democracy offers to all men throughout the entire world.

The theme, a departure from recent ones such as Fight Prejudice And Vote, attaeks a problem current because the advance of Communism threatens all over the globe.

Through art, ideas that are handicapped by language differences can be conveyed through illustrations, understandable to everyone.

Posters are judged on their value of copy and art ideas.

Upon completion of the contest, printed sheets with miniature reproductions of the posters that were awarded prizes will be distributed to all the winners.

Contestants from the college are in competition with university, two-year college and art school students from 13 Western states and four Canadian provinces, which are divided into 10 regions.

Prizes total $2250 with the grand prize of $500 awarded to the best poster chosen from the 10 regional winners. March 31, 1962, is the deadline for all students to enter the contest.

C-Hour Film Features Horseless Carriage

Scheduled for showing Friday during College Hour in S-136 is a documentary movie concerning antique cars entitled Through A Rear View Window, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor.

The picture will also feature historical landmarks such as Gettysburg, Monticello, and Williamsburg besides highlighting collector's items, which include the horseless carriage.

Motion pictures of general interest will be shown throughout the semester during College Hours. There is no admission.

Union Hosts 100 Patrons Per Day

Attendance at the student union, a place where clubs can meet, a place to post notices, a place to study and a place to relax, has averaged near 100 patrons per day since its opening three weeks ago, according to George Cook and Paul Steiner, costudent supervisors of the new lounge.

The union is located in back of Cloud Hall in bungalows 3 and 4.

Because of possible vandalism, the television set installed for the World Series was removed at the series' conclusion. While it was there the bungalow was packed with an estimated 200 persons, Steiner said.

"The timing was perfect," he added, (referring to the union's opening one day before the start of the series).

Also designed to relieve cafeteria congestion, the union is on a trial and "must prove itself" basis.

If it does there is a possibility that sandwiches will be brought up to supplement the coffee, chocolate, cigarettes and doughnuts that are already there.

Now, that the bottlers' strike is past coke should also be available.

The union is fashioned after the cafeteria, in that it is a place for the student to study or eat his lunch, but without waiting for a seat. There are tables in the union, and it is open between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Rams Face Santa Rosa Friday

Bear Cub Eleven Takes On Locals For Last Time

By Dave Kleinberg

A Santa Rosa football club, a team that was humiliated by the Rams last year 50-6 on the loser's home field, gets its last chance to defeat the San Francisco squad this Friday at the college stadium. Kick-off will be at 2 p.m.

After splitting two practice games, Santa Rosa's Bear Cubs opened their Big Eight season, the last because of the realignment of leagues, losing to perennial league power Stockton, 14-0.

The Santa Rosa attack, concentrating on the air game, threw 20 times and completed 11 in their losing effort.

Dino Verges, the 185-pound returnee quarterback, is the big gun of the Bear Cub attack, which has netted close to 180 yards a game through the air.

The mainstay of the Bear Cub line is big Jack Lever, 5-8, 200 pounds, and the only returnee lineman from last year's first string.

Average weight of the Santa Rosa backfield is 183 pounds, and Coach Grover Klemmer of the Rams would like to have some of that backfield weight. As it is now, the Ram backs are still as fast as ever, but are also as light as ever.

Light backs produce light blocking, which could—in part—explain why the Rams' air game has been so poor this year.

A weakness last year, the quarterback position looked much improved after the Rams had defeated Los Angeles Valley 27-0 this year, rolling up 139 yards passing. Randy Autentico, the starting quarterback, hit on one touchdown pass, and Ben Winslow, the No. 2 thrower, hit two.

Since then the passing has looked like 1960. Against San Mateo 10 days ago the Rams threw nine times, completed one for six yards and had five intercepted. Even though the Rams defeated Los Angeles City College two weeks ago the quarterbacking wasn't particularly impressive.

In other bad news veteran end Earnest Oliver, who was the number three end until his injury, was declared out for the season with a fractured hand, suffered in the Los Angeles City game.

In the lop-sided Santa Rosa victory last year the Rams gained 288 yards on the ground. Tom Piggee, a veteran starter, scored once in the game on a 44-yard TD run.

Santa Rosa, which has an enrollment of only 1300, lost all seven of its game last year to finish last.

RAM FOOTBALL TACKLE JIM BAFFICO and soccer goalie Gary DeLong demonstrate the importance of defense in their respective sports. Baffico has helped the gridders out of many jams by averaging over 40 yards per punt, while DeLong helped his team to a 7-0 verdict over San Jose State with saves like the one pictured.
—Guardsman photos by Stan Ackerman and Elmer Lutar.

Opening Tilts In Mural Cage Loop Set For Tonight

The intramural basketball league will get underway tonight, according to Paul Snowberg, president of the Associated Men Students, sponsors of the league.

There will be two divisions, the fraternity and the club leagues.

The games, except for the inaugural week, will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings starting at 7:30 p.m.

The intramural system, an important part of the athletic program, is open to all men students possessing an Associated Student card.

There is an expected turnout of about 16 teams, according to Snowberg. There will be various clubs, fraternities and independent teams represented.

The schedule will consist of a single round robin, and the two division champs will have a championship playoff. The winning team will receive a trophy, and the individual players on the team will receive medals.

Last semester the Associated Men Students, titleholders of the Club Activities Board League, defeated Alpha Phi Epsilon, fraternity league champions, to take the overall intramural title.

Larry Stewart, the league's high scorer, is once again expected to play for The Guardsman.

Footballers' Rally In Final Period Downs Comets, 12-0

By Ivan Temes

Out to avenge their opening league loss to San Mateo, the fired-up Ram footballers pushed Contra Costa all over the field for most of three quarters but couldn't cross the goal until late in the final period to send the Comets down to a 12-0 defeat.

It took an assist from the losers' coach and a sparkling defensive play to finally bring Coach Grover Klemmer's squad a pair of six-pointers in the final nine minutes of action.

In the first half the Rams had seen potential scoring drives thwarted deep in Comet territory on four occasions, and midway through the last period the situation again looked bleak as the winners ran into a fourth down and two yards to go situation on the Contra Costa five-yard line.

Here Comet Coach Vince Maiorana, trying to bolster his line, sent in end Mario Marianni but, since the clock was not stopped, this constituted an illegal substitution, gifting the Rams with an all-important first down on the two.

Autentico Scores

Still, it took three more plays as halfbacks Ron Coleman and Tom Piggee got nowhere on bucks into the massed Comet line, and signal-caller Randy Autentico finally trailed center Cliff Vattuone in from one yard out with only 8:50 left in the contest.

The outcome was still very much in doubt until with two minutes remaining, alert defensive guard Dave Urrea picked off one of Ron Melton's passes on the run and raced 31 yards down the sideline to paydirt, finally easing the grim tension on the Ram bench.

Coming in widely different manners, the two scores brought the Rams their initial Big Eight victory and third triumph in four outings overall.

Baffico's Punt Blocked

A break for Contra Costa turned out to be the forerunner of the first score when Jerry Ludy partially blocked Jim Baffico's punt to set the home town club up on the Klemmermen's 31-yard line.

But the drive carried only 13 yards before Melton fumbled and Urrea took possession of the loose pigskin. From there the winners crunched out 82 yards, taking 20 plays and 12 minutes to finally reach the promised land.

Key plays included a third down screen pass to Piggee, who scampered 14 yards behind key blocks by Dennis Drucker and Jim Baffico, and a fourth-and-one situation on which Coleman squeezed through tackle for two yards to keep the drive alive.

Linemen Look Good

Because of the outstanding showing by the Ram forwards including Jack Burgett, Terry Fischer, Ray Greggains, hard-tackling Vattuone, Baffico, Drucker, Alex Darnes, and especially Urrea, the game was much more one-sided than the score indicated.

Klemmer called the line play "one hundred per cent improved over the San Mateo game," but cautioned, "We still have some mistakes to iron out."

Contra Costa took the opening kickoff and drove to the Ram 33, picking up two first downs, but after that failed to move beyond their own 27-yard line in the first half.

Meanwhile, the visitors did everything except cross the goal. A long drive on which Al Raine had rambled 19 yards was halted on the Comet nine.

A trio of thrusts in the second period fell short.

Autentico fumbled the snap from center and the Rams lost possession on the Comet 12; Piggee fumbled on the 23; after a 64-yard drive which carried to the four-yard marker, the Blue and White line suddenly toughened and wouldn't allow Raine the necessary yard up the middle on last down.

Plagued by interceptions the previous week Autentico hit successfully on five of six attempts for 85 yards. As the Rams outrushed the losers 191-109 and outpassed them 85-32, leading Ram ground gainers included Coleman, Piggee and Raine with 61, 57 and 44 yards, respectively.

Punter John Lowell proved a bright spot all night for the Comets.

In other league action Santa Rosa upset Oakland 24-6, and strong San Mateo blasted Modesto 44-22.

Soccer Squad's High Scoring Offense, Tight Defense Aim For Crucial Victory At Cal

By Vince Liu

Fresh from the 7-0 conquest of the San Jose State Spartans two weeks ago, Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccer team goes against University of California in a "crucial" this Saturday. The game will start at 11 a.m. in Berkeley.

As both squads are contenders for the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer championship this year, the winner of this contest should have the inside track toward the league title.

Realizing full well the significance of the tilt, the Rams also have a score to settle with their counterpart across the bay.

For the newcomers on the squad, the scar left by the defeat in the preseason tourney championship game at the Bears' hands has yet to be erased.

The veterans still remember last year's stunning 1-0 upset by the same team, which ruined what otherwise would have been a perfect season for the Red and White.

As for Diederichsen, who is no Santa Claus when it comes to losing, this is a "must" win if the Rams are to have a chance of capturing their third straight title.

"We have as good a chance as any to take California if the boys give a 100 per cent effort," the mentor declared. Stressing on a defensive game, he is counting on a top performance from his defensive line to hold the Bear front line centered around Bill Barreda and John Fouladi, the latter starring for City College two years ago.

The slick Ram defense, which has been very stingy, is headed by Dave Fromer, Hugo Olaya, Caesar Pina, Dennis Minga and Sal Sanchez. The sure-handed Gary DeLong has been reliable at the goal-tending position.

The offense, which found the scoring punch with the seven-goal performance in the league opener, is centered around Al Korbus and Flavio Valiente, who put on a shooting exhibition at the expense of San Jose State.

To recall the Ram-Spartan game could bring dismay to Slobodan Galeb, the Spartan goalie who watched with horror as all seven shots bombed past him in that lopsided contest.

With a strong wind against them, the Rams were held scoreless in the first quarter. Then with the elements on the favorable side, Korbus scored to put his team on the scoreboard with 15 minutes elapsed in the second stanza.

Five minutes later Korbus dribbled around three defenders and scored.

Not satisfied with its scoring output in the initial half, the Ram forward line scored rapidly in the fourth quarter.

Just when the Spartan defenders were getting tired of Korbus' antics, after the center-forward had knocked in his third straight tally, Valiente scored.

From 18 yards out he sent a bullet straight into the corner of the net to make the score 4-0, with 19:50 left to play in the contest.

Showing that it wasn't a flash in the pan Valiente took a pass from Vince Liu six minutes later and shot one in from 30 yards out.

In between Valiente's two goals Liu pushed the home team's advantage to 5-0 with a follow-up blast. Korbus capped the activities with his fourth marker of the afternoon to complete the rout.

All told, the Rams dominated the contest throughout. Playing behind an air-tight defense, goalie DeLong had little to field all day.

Julius Menendez, coach of San Jose State, tabbed the Rams as the team to beat in the conference after watching their convincing display of team balance. He stated that Cal and University of San Francisco are equally tough and should battle down to the wire.

The Santa Clara contest, scheduled for last Saturday, was cancelled when the Broncos dropped out of the league, unable to field a team.

SOCCER COACH Roy Diederichsen, who will attempt to guide the Rams to important league victory over the University of California at Berkeley Saturday.

Trackmen Whip Jaguars, 44-22

Coming off of a decisive win over San Jose City College, the college cross-country team faces Oakland, Contra Costa and San Mateo in a four-way meet at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Golden Gate Park.

Paced by star runner Esteban Valle the team ran over the San Jose squad by the score of 44-22.

Previously the traekmen came in second in a five-day meet held with Oakland, Diablo Valley, San Jose City and the Cal Frosh team. This meet was held without the appearance of two top runners for the team, Roger Ritchey and Andrew Loobey.

This semester's squad is composed of 15 members, John Arberry, Anthony Ferringo, Peter Giachetti, Steve Jackson, Frank James, Jack Kyle, Loobey, James Nigra, Alfred Petriat, Tim Power, Ritchey, Valle, Lawrence Van Crneynest, George Varmuza and John Weidinger.

Last year the Red and White traekmen, exhibiting an admirable display of power and confidence until the last click of the stopwatch, defeated second place Sacramento with a final tally of 30-34 to bring home the Big Eight Conference championship.

New Power

Former San Francisco All-City Selections Spark Grid Team

San Francisco's 1960 prep All-City football team is almost the 1961 Ram football team.

The college usually receives a few top All-City selections, but this year five men from the first string team, three from the second team and several of the honorable mentions are enrolled at the college.

The Big "K," Head Coach Grover Klemmer, said, "We did pretty well. This year's freshman crop won't take a back seat to any. The thing about them is the size. The backs are small, but the linemen are big."

There is little doubt that Klemmer got two of the most sought-after high school guards in the state in Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker.

Drucker, the Northern California Lineman-of-the-Year from St. Ignatius, is valuable because "he can fill in at either tackle or guard."

Urrea, a graduate of Lowell High, has one of the first string guard positions nailed down. Urrea made All-City guard at Lowell, and there are some who say if he hadn't cracked his wrist at midseason he would have made Northern California Lineman-of-the-Year.

"Urrea can do anything," Klemmer said. "He's unusually fast and agile. Drucker will see a lot of action; he is a strong, straight ahead blocker," Klemmer stated.

Klemmer said the hardest part with a new team is adjusting the players to work together. "Most of these boys were bitter rivals in high school. It's a big jump from high school to college. We have to get them together. So far this year we have been successful."

The San Francisco first string All-City choices who started the season on the college team are Drucker, Urrea, Joe Alvarez (Lowell), Al Raine (Mission) and Claude Shipp (Washington).

Second club picks were Joe Bluford (Mission), Paul Hicks (Mission) and Ron Coleman (Washington). Honorable mentions are Cal Rothman (Lincoln), Willie Lawson (Polytechnic), Verdell Price (Galileo) and Vince Tufo (Balboa).

Backs Coleman and Raine, guard Urrea are starters.

There are many coaches who would give up a few footballs for that kind of talent.—By D.K.

Coeds Schedule Alumni Sport Night This Month

A coeducational alumni sports night will tentatively be held here on Tuesday, October 24, Frances Galloway of the women's physical education department said today.

A competitive volleyball game, as requested by the alumni, will be the event of the evening.

On October 30 the volleyball group here will go to San Mateo for a tournament, which includes both coeducational competition and a dinner.

On October 7 a Western Intercollegiate Fencing meeting was held and a fall semester schedule drawn. Twelve colleges were represented.

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

The Guardsman

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
• COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40 •
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1961 NUMBER 5

Homecoming Frenzy Hits College

Car Parade, Crowning Of Queen Tops Rally Friday

By Dave Kleinberg

Highlight of the 1961 Homecoming will be the presentation of the awards for the beauty queen and the best decorated car Friday during College Hour at the Redwood Ram, according to Fred Cherniss, president of the Council of Organizations, the group directing the event.

The car parade, an annual event of Homecoming, is open to all students of the college. Petitions to enter the contest, which is judged on originality, theme, effectiveness and the amount of work called for by the decorators, must be in by today at the Associated Student office, S-134.

Students entering the contest need not belong to an organization but a sponsor is preferred, Cherniss said. Members of the administration, headed by Student Government Adviser Sherman Elworthy, will judge the cars.

Cherniss, counting heavily on the fraternities for support, indicated there would be about 12 cars competing. The top three will be awarded trophies.

Following American college tradition, the Homecoming Queen will reign over the day's activities, which culminate with the Stockton - San Francisco football game scheduled to start at 2 p.m. (See Guardsman sports, Page 4.)

Petitions for queen entries closed last Friday with a favorable turnout. Votes can be cast today in Science Hall at the silver pole.

The balloting ends tomorrow, and anyone with an AS card may vote.

The winner of the queen contest and the three runners-up will receive trophies. The queen will receive with her trophy a dozen long-stem roses.

The queen will reign over the game and will preside over the half-time activities. At the game's conclusion she will present a trophy to the most valuable Ram player, selected by members of the athletic department here.

The rally will include entertainment from the college's song girls and cheerleaders.

The Spirit Trophy, awarded by the Sophomore Class to the organization that contributes the most to Homecoming, will be presented for the first time this year.

The new Council of Organizations is a co-ordinating body among the fraternities, sororities and Club Activities Board, whose first job was to direct the Homecoming.

The officers who have worked on the project are President Cherniss, Beta Tau; Vice President Don Disterheft, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Secretary Maureen Farley, Phi Beta Rho, and Treasurer Art Scarson, president of the Chess Club.

SEEMINGLY TAKING OFF into space, this semester's quartet of song girls is figuratively getting Homecoming activities off the ground by giving it a good lift. Leaping into the fall festival spirit at the Los Angeles City College game here are, from left, Vicky Sigle, Sylvia Morey, Eve Pillippis and Pat Warnock. These flying femmes will appear in Friday's rally.
—Guardsman photo by Isao Tanaka.

Dance Cancellation Severe Blow To Fall Festivities

A rigid blow to the 1961 Homecoming was announced yesterday by Fred Cherniss, president of the Council of Organizations, when the traditional festival dance was cancelled.

In the past the Homecoming has been the gala event of the fall season, but with the cancellation of the Homecoming dance, one of the few times in the college's history, festivities can not help but be dampened a little.

Officers of COO, which itself was unorganized until two weeks ago, said the dance was cancelled because planning of the car parade, rally, queen contest and ratification of the organization's constitution left little time for planning of the dance.

The dance, however, may have been called because of the tight social schedule, which already includes close to 18 dances. Last year the Homecoming dance did not profit too well. This could have been a determining factor in this year's cancellation.

Homecomings Past

Will Ghost Of 1948 Rekindle College Spirit?

By Dave Grieve

Although the number 13 is considered unlucky, a casual comparison between the plans for the 1961 and the 1948 Homecoming, utilizing a little subtraction, reveals a contrast which would make the hair on a cat's back stand straight.

The year was classified in the postwar era, the city acknowledged the veterans who were gradually orientating themselves to their surroundings, and the college applauded one of its famous gridiron teams, bolstered by Ollie Matson and Burl Toler.

Located adjacent to Riordan High School where the present reservoir parking area lies sunken into the earth, was the college's west campus of 1948. Spread over a flat, block-sized area, it boasted numerous shack buildings which shielded the college from the ever present gushes of wind.

Back in "yesteryear" when a club or group scheduled a college event, it was treated by the participants as a midwestern hoedown. Simulating a Sunday picnic in the country, the activity included the chicken and did not forget the dumplings. The ants were left to fare for themselves.

Homecoming during those years was attended by the majority of the college enrollment. The celebration consisted of both an anticlimax and a climax, concentrated within a 28-hour period.

Acting as a fuse to ignite college spirit, a bonfire rally for both the student body and returning alumni sparked the crisp night with songs and stunts.

The following morning during College Hour activities continued with a menagerie of mock-animals parading in the auditorium, where the applause of the students selected the winner of the contest.

In the afternoon spectators crowded into Kezar Stadium to witness the Rams crush San Mateo 26-0, in the second college - sponsored Damon Runyon memorial football classic.

Crowning the day was a hillbilly barn dance in the campus auditorium where students and alumni watched the costume and beard contest, the latter a college first.

Possibly among the dusty tombstones of dead years lies a key to open the rusty lock engulfing college spirit of today. Maybe the cliche, "the good old days," is not so old after all.

Union' Proves Merit Of AMS Suggestion Box

If one doesn't believe that action is taken on relevant, constructive ideas, he needs only look to the Associated Men Student suggestion box, located in the student union, bungalows 3 and 4.

The idea of a place where the students could study or socialize is strictly an idea put forward in the suggestion box.

This eventually brought about the student union and, ironically, the suggestion box has found its new home in the building it created, sometimes referred to as the Shack.

Taking some of the heavy load from the cafeteria, the Shack has a cigarette and other vending machines along with a supply of doughnuts for the student's convenience. The television set which aired the recent World Series proved successful.

George Cook, cochairman of the student union, revealed that many innovations are now in the planning stage. One of these may include performances by the Ram Band.

Looking for new ideas which may prove as popular as the Shack, Paul Snowberg, AMS president, urged students to pour in other suggestions.

IRC Fair Features Cultures From 16 Countries Nov. 3

The Eighth Annual International Fair, Bagdad By The Bay, will be held Friday, November 3, from 8-11 p.m. at Marina Junior High School on Fillmore and Bay streets, according to Joseph Jacobsen, International Relations Club sponsor.

The price for this fair is $1 general admission and 75 cents for students. Tickets can be obtained in S-186 or at the door.

Proceeds will be used for the scholarship fund for international students.

Jacobsen said that students will be dressed in their native attire and will compete for the best booth, stage production, the sale of foods representative of their native countries, and the best display of world art goods. The winning "country" will have its name engraved on a plaque.

The first part of the stage production includes a demonstration of native dances and songs by members of the International Relations Club and students from San Francisco State and Golden Gate College.

Some of these dances include a Calypso dance representative of Jamaica, an unusual dance representative of the Philippine Islands called the Tinikling (done by dancing between bamboo poles) and an Indian wedding dance.

The next part of the show will be a skit concerning a visitor from Bagdad, Arabia. He will be escorted to different sections of San Francisco, including Chinatown, North Beach, Russian Hill and the William Tell restaurant, a meeting place for Austrians and Swiss.

The show will point out the different patterns of culture in San Francisco and the fact that it is a "melting pot" for people of many nationalities.

Countries represented will be Tahiti, Jamaica, India, Indo-China, Japan, Arabia, Philippines, Latin America, Russia, Greece, Germany, Switzerland, Ireland, France, Holland and Scandinavia.

FRED CHERNISS, as president of COO, which is sponsoring all phases of Homecoming activities here Friday, bears the heavy responsibility of rekindling the spirit of this fall festival to equal the enthusiasm of past years. — Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman.

Soph Class Spirit Trophy Goes To Club Most Active In Homecoming

A Spirit Trophy will be awarded at the half time of Friday's Homecoming football game to one of the student campus organizations.

To win the trophy the organization must be the outstanding participant in Homecoming Week activities and subject to the vote of all the Associated Students.

Each club, sorority and fraternity will offer its best talent in the form of a queen candidate and a decorated car for the car caravan. An orgnization has to attend the game to collect the trophy, but those organizations whose members do not completely participate in the activities will have a hard time winning the trophy, the sponsors stated.

This "spirit drive" is sponsored by the Sophomore Class, headed by President Dan Collins. "It is the first class-sponsored event and the first time Homecoming has been promoted by a single class. The programming was well organized and could mean new freedom of action for the students," Collins stated.

The sponsors hope for widespread participation, and to keep the stakes at an easy grade they will award second and third place trophies. Every organization that participates will be recognized by points designated by the judges, Collins said.

Ram Band To Play At Friday's Game

The college's new Ram Band will play at the annual Homecoming game Friday in City College stadium, according to Meyer Cahn, band director here.

This group, which has been newly organized and is separate from the Concert Band, is expected to do "great things," according to Cahn, and the musicians will have their chance to prove it at the Homecoming game.

Since they are members of a relatively new organization, they are still seeking a suitable hat or sweater for a uniform in order to distinguish themselves as a group.

The Ram Band is expected to instill a higher morale into the college, and this year's Homecoming is expected to be a highly spirited game with the added attraction of this group.

Lights, Sets, Royalties—Money!

New Theater Costs Create Problem

By Anna Papagni

When the little theater was located in the basement of Science Hall, several hundred dollars would finance a production nicely, but now that the drama department makes its headquarters in a new ultra-modern theater, production needs are on a scale equivalent to that of Broadway.

For instance, Michael Griffin, who is the drama director, could command special royalty rates in the old theater because seating capacity was limited to 90 hard chairs.

Now that the present theater provides room for 350 persons, standard rates must be paid even when only 30 tickets are sold.

The college can boast that its theater facilities reach professional proportions, but this also means that production costs are close to a professional level.

An important factor that contributed to the financial minimum in Science Hall was a 15-year accumulation of material which could be adapted to each new show. In the new theater, however, every production must be literally built from the ground up just as in New York where each show is a separate venture.

The drama department needs at least $2000 to produce a full-scale play, and the figure strikes terror in the hearts of the Associated Student Finance Committee.

How is the money spent? The answer is simple if not obvious.

First of all, royalties are considered. Fifty dollars a performance is not an unusual price tag unless the plays are restricted to those as old as Shakespeare, but educational theater must provide different types of plays or it ceases to fulfill its function.

Twelve performances at $50 is mathematically simple enough, and to run a show for less than six weekends is somewhat of a waste after the tremendous amount of time and effort that goes into preparation.

Building material for sets is another big expense. A single piece of plywood amounts to $10, but oftentimes as many as 10 sheets are required to construct platforms.

Scenery is painted on huge pieces of canvas stretched across wooden frames, and during a show the Winch system of set changing might drop five of these flats into place. Furniture is usually borrowed from musty attics instead of being rented.

Light and sound apparatus is the third major money eater. One light can be priced at $5 to $30 and a spotlight extracts $125 from the budget.

The theater has one of the most advanced light systems in existence—but no lights. Consequently, each new show with its unique lighting demands additional purchases. Moreover, globes blow out occasionally, as they are wont to do, and must be replaced.

As yet a sound system has not been installed, and equipment must be rented. Twenty-five to 50 dollars a night will make an Ampex available for sound effects.

To print programs, tickets and a few silk-screen posters means a bill of $150.

Then there is material for costumes which are made by students, and innumerable small items such as nails, screws, tape, paint, and so on, and so on, and so on . . .

Voila, $2000! What price—drama.

IBM OR ICBM? The above is an integral part of the complex lighting system in the college theater. Although the theater has one of the most advanced lighting systems in existence, it has no lights. The purchase of lights, the printing of programs and royalties all add up to a whopping $2000 bill if the drama department is to function full scale this semester. A production in the old theater used to cost only a couple of hundred dollars; now, with an ultra-modern theater, the cost has risen to a scale approximating Broadway.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

ACP Collegiate Press

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 5 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1961 Page 2

'Big Brother Peace Corps' Answer To Teen Vandalism?

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY in San Francisco is one of the many problems tackled by Chief Thomas Cahill and his able police force. With a recent "go-ahead" from Mayor Christopher, the department began taking action against the latest case of juvenile crime—the destructive and defiant attacks on the Municipal Railway.

Cahill's men are under orders to arrest every offender, whether the molestation of a bus is from the inside or from the outside. What will be the results of this policing?

Within the limits of the law the course taken seems, at least at first, to be the only suitable way to handle and handcuff this spontaneous insurgence of vandalism.

But arrest of the young lawbreakers is NOT the only way to arrest the core of this flagrant young problem.

Coercive measures may STIFLE and possibly STOP the malicious behavior momentarily, but most likely they will STIFFEN the teenage resistance and probably START vandalism going again—in a kind of "out of the fire, into the frying pan" situation. Punitive and restrictive force certainly will retard their physical violence but not necessarily their mental ebullience.

This severe social problem must be met with rehabilitation, not retaliation. As with President Kennedy's Peace Corps, what is sent into the underdeveloped countries are tractors, not tanks. What should be sent into the San Francisco junior and senior high schools is GUIDANCE.

But from whom and from where will this "Big Brother Peace Corps" emerge? There is one logical place it can come from:

From STUDENTS from CITY COLLEGE OF SAN FRANCISCO!

Adolescents resent adult lecturing, especially on proper conduct, but the young adult age group here has just passed through the "teen-age stage" and understands the learnings and yearnings of youth better than anyone else. We're just "one step above" them.

The majority of students here have been graduated from local high schools and are not strangers there. On this basis lies the entire groundwork for the success of the proposed "Big Brother Peace Corps." And who will volunteer for his Ram Youth Corps? EVERYONE AT THIS COLLEGE WITH A PURPOSEFUL SOCIAL CONSCIENCE. And who will control and direct this Big Brother aggregation to clear the name of youth? THE NEW COUNCIL OF ORGANIZATIONS or STUDENT COUNCIL itself!!

Santas Needed

Unusual Job Open To Best Qualified Men

A short, chubby man, characterized by a round face, shining eyes and a white beard, which contrasts with a red coat, mirrors one Christmas image in the hearts of all small fry.

After all, what would Christmas mean to children without the presence of Saint Nick? It would be an empty void, without the flickering light of a single candle.

There are as many variations of Kris Kringle's name throughout the world as there is a local demand for Santas in the toy and department stores.

As the television commercial puts it, "One out of every three Americans is overweight." With an approximate college day male enrollment of 3000—about 1000 meet the requirements listed by Joseph A. Amori, college placement director, for the Kris Kringles due to be employed in December.

Possibly next year, if there is a greater need for the employment of Santas, the college can be persuaded to initiate a class in the techniques of helping Saint Nick.

There are no essential qualifications to become a "department store Santa," except possibly a degree in child psychology.

A law in Massachusetts states that everyone must take a bath on Saturday night.

One Man Lifeguard Force

William Hickey Gets Credit For Ten Ocean Beach Rescues

Ocean Beach's one-man lifeguard is a name that could be properly bestowed to William Hickey, aged 25 and a sophomore here.

At the end of April, Hickey, aided by his friend Clifford Tune, saved the life of a middle-aged woman at Ocean Beach. For the deed the college administration sent a letter to each commending them for their alertness. A copy of it was put in their permanent record file.

Since that time the active Hickey, who modestly acknowledges "somewhere around 10 rescues," pulled two young boys in early this summer, and was close behind the Coast Guard in aiding another.

Hickey, who confesses now to spending at least 38 hours per week surfing at the beach, surfed passed the breakers in June and pulled in two boys who were caught in an undertow.

"I really had trouble out there that time, more so then than any other time. The extra weight of the two boys and the stormy weather made it tough to paddle in," he said.

Later in the summer a boy was trapped 200 yards off shore, out beyond the breakers. "The Coast Guard beat me to that one. I was about 10 minutes late. They dropped a basket down, and that was it," he said with some apparent disappointment.

Hickey was first acquainted with the sport when he was seven, acquiring the interest from a friend next door. During high school, he did not surf much but picked up the interest a few years later.

Although Hickey, who is a lifeguard, does not belong to a surf club he spends up to 11 hours a day at the ocean during the summer.

A general education major, Hickey used the respiration method of backpressure, arm-lift in a rescue last April. It took five to ten minutes for the victim to regain consciousness.

Hickey says many of his 10 or 12 rescues have been joint efforts with others. "I don't worry about some panic-struck person trying to pull me in. I'm pretty safe; the surfboard won't sink," he said.

"I guess I'm just in the right place at the right time," Hickey said.

A Woman's World?

Coeds Enter 'Man's' Field Of Engineering

A few coeds here at the college are adding still more justifying evidence to support the cynical opinion that insists "it's a woman's world."

The fearless coeds are accomplishing this by being the only women members of the Engineering Society, an almost exclusively male organization.

One member of this group is Joan Otteson, who in a recent election won out over her male colleagues for the post of secretary of the local club.

Miss Otteson stated in a recent interview that her interest in engineering began back in high school while she was taking a course concerned with planning future careers, and that her choice was also augmented by her avid interest in mathematics.

She has tentatively picked civil engineering as the field she would most like to enter. Miss Otteson added that she would like to work in the field of building construction.

Asked as to what her feelings were on the chances of a woman succeeding in the field of engineering she replied by saying that in her opinion a woman has to have a higher degree of intelligence than usual to win over a man competing for the same job.

As for the Engineering Society, she believes that through fields trips it gives a person an excellent opportunity to find out what is expected of an engineer and also affords "a wonderful chance to meet possible future employers."

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the regular year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ....PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ....Dick Dragavon
News Editor ....Harman Kilgerman
Sports Editor ....Ivan Tames
Feature Editor ....John Muller
Staff Editor ....Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ....Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Dave Grieve, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell.
Reporters: Gerald Abendanes, Diane Kinsky, David Kisinberg, Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, John Curtis, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Vincent Liu, Joan Lucian, Mary McConihe, John McShane, Patricia Reider, Peter Oppenheimer, Jose Pineda, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Eduardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman.
Faculty Adviser ....Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

The Spectator

A Two Hour Drama — Four Notable Points

By Herman Kligerman

FROM William Wordsworth's Ode On Intimations Of Immortality comes the title of the new movie now showing at the Paramount.

Splendor In The Grass is a two-hour technicolor drama with four things notable about it—its award-winning producer, Elia Kazan, its writer, William Inge, and its two young stars, Natalie Wood and Warren Beatty. With this background how can the film be anything but a money-maker at the box offices?

Incidentally, this is the first script especially written for the screen by Inge, who was also responsible for Bus Stop a few years ago.

A surprising as well as outstanding performance can be expected from the main stars. Beatty, as Bud, makes his debut and is definitely top potential for future stardom. It looks as though Kazan will accomplish with Beatty what he did with Marlon Brando several years ago.

The subject matter—the problems that confront adolescents possessed by domineering parents—may not be acceptable material for some viewers, but it is something that everyone should see.

Miss Wood portrays Deanie, Bud's high school sweetheart. The picture is set in a small Kansas town during the predepression era, but the same incidents could occur in any town, to anyone and at anytime.

The advertisements state with assurance: "If you are an adult this has happened to you."

Both Bud and Deanie are from responsible families. Upon his dad's orders Bud goes off to Yale instead of carrying out his original intention of marrying Deanie and then attending a nearby agricultural college.

She tries to take the temporary separation in stride but certain complications arise. Deanie loses a bit of her respectability one evening and is soon committed to a mental hospital for two and a half years.

The climax, which comes rather swiftly after she returns from the institution cured of the illness but not completely of Bud, her high school sweetheart, will make viewers feel sorry for both parties concerned—especially Bud!

About a month prior to the movie's general engagement downtown, a special audience-reaction preview (the first of its kind attempted) was held to determine the public's opinion on the film and its subject matter.

A questionnaire was distributed to the audience by Warner Bros. Following is this writer's views on four of the five questions asked in that survey:

"Should teenagers, 16 years of age or more, see it?" Yes!

"Did you find anything censorable in the movie?" No!

"Should there be more movies made dealing with this theme?" Yes!

"In brief, what is your opinion of the picture?"

Primarily because of the acting, the film could well take an Oscar or two.

Young children shouldn't be taken to see Splendor In The Grass because the adult they go with might be plagued with embarrassing questions after the movie's conclusion.

Counterpoint

Treat Or Trick: Take Your Pick

By Dick Dragavon

HALLOWEEN, the encyclopedia tells us, was originally a holy day church-celebrated as All Hallowed Eve, the day before All Saints' Day. Also, at a much earlier date at a similar time of year, the Druids held festivities called "Saman (Summer's End).

In early America, we are told, the day was celebrated with pranks and parties—the custom of tricks or treats—and the pranks eventually became somewhat less than harmless.

Tricks or treaters fall easily into three categories.

The spoiled kid who wants both treats and the right to play tricks is in the first division.

The primary example this year is that tough kid from across the tracks, Nicky Khrushchev. He has been showing off a brand new noisemaker which he claims is a real whizbanger.

Nicky has been known to have tendencies toward vandalism and bullying, since he is bigger than any other kid his age.

It has been rumored that this year Nicky will not accept anything except German candy.

The next group includes the rowdies who only want to play tricks and don't care a heck of a lot whether they get treats.

These smart-alecs might make insulting phone calls, burn crosses on other people's lawns, paint swastikas, throw stones or bottles through bus windows, or other similar, senseless stunts.

It is expected that certain of the groups in this category will be under control this Halloween.

Finally there are youngsters who are satisfied with the treats and have absolutely no intention of playing tricks except, possibly, on each other.

Dick Dragavon and Goodie Knight in this classification, since they really have no aim to cause trouble for anyone else, but Dick is interested in getting a bag full, not of "goodies," but rather of apples.

In fact Dick has said that he would be content with less than the big apples. Just a medium sized apple would do, he said.

But Goodie claimed that he was tired of small apples, and didn't even want plums. He, too, will be trying for the juicy, red, medium-sized apple in this year's apple-bobbing contest.

So Halloween comes each year, and each year it is at once frightful or fun, depending on which trick or treater one encounters.

The Bears beat the Redskins for the professional football championship in 1940 by the score of 73-0.

Brussels Fair Exhibit Honors Photogs

AS Financed Exhibit Sees Stevenson Entry A Winner

International acclaim came to the college when the Exposition Internationale des Ecoles de Photographie in Brussels awarded a certificate of recognition to a print submitted by W. B. Stevenson, a student here, during the exhibit last winter.

Resemblance, the acclaimed print, which was entered under the subject of artistic photos, had previously been a classroom assignment which sought to teach the student the concept of visual comparison in photography.

Further acknowledgment of Stevenson's work came in the appearance of the reprint of the photo in the exposition's catalog which was distributed throughout the world.

The purpose of the exposition was to view a cross-section of work being done by schools of photography in many nations. This exhibit further endeavored to create contact of these professional institutions, increase the knowledge of teaching methods, and improve relations internationally.

Last year, after receiving the invitation to submit prints, the photography department, with the assistance of Dean of Men Ralph O. Hillsman, requested financial aid from the Associated Students who, consequently, appropriated sufficient funds to ship 24 photographs of various subjects to the affair.

The photographs, which were all taken by students who were then enrolled here in the photography division, will be exhibited in the Cloud Hall gallery at some time in the near future, according to Emmett Smith, instructor here.

The gallery, on the third floor in the faculty office area, has been used to display the best works of talented students in all phases of photography.

Presently on exhibit is Photography West, a collection of shots by professional photographers of Northern California.

Most of these prints, which will be on display until November 10, were exhibited at state and national conventions, and more recently at the San Francisco Art Festival.

It is hoped by Smith that the Brussels pictures will be included in the next exhibit after the present display is moved.

W. B. STEVENSON'S acclaimed print above, titled Resemblance, won international recognition at the World's Fair in Brussels last fall.

Student Council Passes 4 Budgets, Considers AWS

By R. D. Hacker

Orderly discussion and constructive criticism prevailed during last week's meeting of Student Council as four out of five budgets were passed for a grand total of $852.55.

The fifth budget, the Associated Women Student allotment, was brought up during this week's old business as time ran out last week as council was in the middle of discussing it.

The four passed were the A Cappella Choir budget for $166.80; the Men's Glee Club budget for $418.50; the Club Activities Board budget for $226.25 and the Social Committee budget for $5.

That five budgets were brought up before council in one meeting is in itself unusual. Normally only three or four come up, and out of these only two or three are acted upon.

All proposed budgets are submitted to council and are then in turn investigated by individual council members to see if the amount requested can be trimmed in any way so as to save the Associated Students money.

Results of the current investigation by council members has shown that many members are opposed to allocation of funds for the appropriation of pins for different organizations.

As it turned out only two of the organizations received money for the purchase of pins. They were the A Cappella Choir and the CAB.

This was accomplished only after considerable discussion among council members.

It was also noted by Larry Levin, sophomore council member, that CAB had already paid back $120 of the $262 it received.

This amount was returned after the CAB dance when $120 was collected from the sale of dance bids.

Evidence that council was in almost full agreement when the budgets were passed was shown in the voting.

Two of the budgets were passed unanimously while there was one abstention with one and one nay vote with the other.

Job Applicants Hear Amori Friday

Students interested in acquiring a Christmas job this year are invited to attend a special College Hour seminar in S-136 this Friday.

Joseph A. Amori, placement director here, will speak on the prospects for work during the holiday season and also will distribute applications to interested men and women in attendance.

The college will close between December 9 and December 26 for the vacation.

Alaskan Industries On Tap For Film Series

Alaska And Its Natural Resources is the title of the movie scheduled during College Hour Friday in S-136.

This color movie, produced and distributed by Richfield Oil Company, deals with and exemplifies Alaska's industries in fish, oil, mines and timber. The movie will also show some of the cities of the largest state.

Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids director, explained that the films are chosen for their informative value but that he tries "to get away from strictly educational or strictly entertaining movies."

Drama Productions Halt Until December

The next scheduled College Hour drama production will be presented on December 1 because the theater is booked for other activities until then, according to Michael Griffin, drama director.

Griffin is considering other campus locations in which to present the shows.

Casting is still in progress as the department is building a repertoire of one-act plays which can be used when there is space, time and demand, Griffin said.

Educator, Heroine In Blitz, Speaks Here During C-Hour

By Peter Oppenheimer

A woman who during the blitzkrieg of World War II relocated her entire grammar school of some 1000 students from the suburbs of London to the mountains of Wales, Margaret Adams will lecture in the theater of the arts buildings during College Hour Friday.

Her topic will be Education For International Understanding.

Now engaged in her second tour of the world, Miss Adams will also discuss her recent experiences in Communist China. On her trip she visited Africa, India, Southeast Asia and Japan.

Miss Adams is the retired principal of Croydon High School, an exclusive English grammar school which prepares students aged 11 to 19 for such universities as Oxford and Cambridge.

She is an ex-president of the Secondary Teachers Association, honorary president of the European Federation of Modern Language Teachers and has been chairman of the British Committee for the Exchange of Teachers.

For her work at Croydon High School the school's library was named after Miss Adams, and at the time of her retirement the Archbishop of Canterbury presided over the ceremonies.

Miss Adams majored in Latin and French at the University of Glasgow in Scotland, later undertaking advanced work at Edinburgh, Scotland; Sorbonne, France, and Cambridge, England.

Transfer Students Must Take Exams

Students planning to transfer to the University of California or to other four-year institutions are required to take the college board test, Thomas Nesbitt, director of testing here, warned today.

Those who plan to transfer to San Francisco State College may now enter by taking the college board test. Previously only those students who took the American college test could enter, but now either test is accepted, Nesbitt said.

Although the test will not be given right away, applications for it must be filled out "immediately," Nesbitt said.

Applications may be obtained in S-142. Any student requiring further information can consult Nesbitt in the testing office.

Closed Circuit TV Aids Educational Methods

November Telecast Previews Future Use

By Vince Liu

Progressing right along with and taking full advantage of this era of electronics, the college will have the services of the closed circuit television for practical classroom use in the very near future, Henry Leff, radio and TV instructor here, announced recently.

"The prime purpose of the new facility," Leff said, "is to transmit instruction, meetings, concerts and things of this nature into classrooms through the television screen.

"A giant step will be taken to provide a better education for the students through better uses of modern electronic communication when everything is ready," he added.

At the present time with all the necessary installation of equipment practically completed, Leff, with the help of his student crew and various other departments, is conducting a series of experimental telecasts.

The first of such telecasts was made on October 13 during College Hour in the college theater where a concert featuring Ishvani, the Indian dancer, was televised.

About 60 students, who found the theater crowded, were able to view the whole concert in the choral room through the TV sets, thus already illustrating one of the many advantages of this new facility.

Satisfied by the over-all result of the telecast, Leff will continue with more experiments.

The most significant one, though only in the stage of planning and arranging, would be a proposed telecast of a class lecture of a business course conducted by business instructor Samuel Ziegler.

With all terms being equal, such a telecast would take place on November 22 and should give a preview of what is to come for the students of this college in the future when the closed circuit TV is officially put to use.

An instructor, with a camera over his shoulder, will be able to make a clear demonstration of his work, a laboratory experiment for example, through the TV screens where an equal clarity can be provided for all the students of a big class.

Located in the arts building right next to the drama department, the radio and TV workshop is benefited by the neighboring location of the college theater where various concerts and plays can be televised easily for various technical checking, tryout and procedure related to the equipment.

Stressing the fact that this is not a one-department job, Leff believes that interdepartment co-operation and co-ordinated student efforts are the keys to the success of the closed circuit TV outlay.

A good example was drawn from the Ishvani telecast. It, according to him, required the co-operation of the drama department, music department, the Associated Students, the broadcasting department and the concert series group.

Running of this new facility and operation of the equipment under the direction of Leff will provide a high degree of training in broadcasting techniques for those interested in careers in radio, television, motion pictures, electronic engineering, journalism and allied fields.

With this new era of education already in sight, the closed circuit TV will open the door to a future of vast developments in mass communications and unlimited opportunities for the students of this college.

A note of interest for the football fans. This college's home football games might be televised in the who-knows future only when and if the stadium is absolutely and completely filled with spectators, Leff stated.

Club Cavalcade

Deserette Joins List Of Groups As New Officers Assume Leadership

By Sandy Sells

ASIDE from regular business meetings and special activities, several clubs on campus are headed by newly elected officers.

The Merchandising Club has announced its new officers to be Cecile Farbman, president; Jeri Stahl, vice president; Edie Wachaho, secretary; Henry Yee, treasurer; Suzanne Murphy, Associated Women Student representative, and Paulette Walti and Joan Bernard, program chairmen.

Deserette is the name of a new Mormon religious club which meets every College Hour in A-108. Students interested in visiting or joining this new group are invited to attend the meetings or to consult John Salais, temporary president.

Officers who will lead Delta Pal sorority this semester are Geri Vickers, president; Beverly Hamer, vice president; Sue Syvier, secretary; Janus Crociani, treasurer, and Vicki Grant, historian.

Illiel invites members and friends to hear Rabbi Morton J. Tutnauer from Congregational Beth Israel speak on The Jewish Sabbath this Friday during College Hour in C-240.

A speaker from KEAR, the Christian radio station at 97.3 FM, will talk to members and guests of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship on November 3 during College Hour.

On that same date a Bible study of the book of Ephesians will be held at the home of Judy Almlie, Bible study chairman, at 2251 - 19th Avenue at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served afterward.

Contemporary Affairs Forum has elected a new slate of officers for this semester: President William Goring, Vice President Samuel Andrew, Secretary Nick Hoyer and Treasurer Mark Offenbach. During Friday's meeting there will be a continuation of a discussion of the neutrality of the United Nations. Those students interested in this topic are welcome to attend.

Dancing from countries throughout the world, international food and fashion show display, and booths representing a worldly flavor will be the features of the International Relations Club Fair. Sponsored by the club of the same name, the event will be held at the Marina auditorium on November 3 from 8 to 11 p.m.

The Hawaiian, Filipino and Chinese Clubs are also participating in the event, along with clubs from San Francisco State College and Golden Gate College. Those students who would like to be last-minute helpers may come to the rehearsal at the Marina auditorium on October 27 from 8 to 11 p.m. or call Ebrahim Mirza, president of IRC, at GA 1-9754.

The Real Estate Club will meet this Friday during College Hour to discuss the possible inauguration of a scholarship fund for real estate majors, according to Nathaniel Dewberry, publicity chairman for the organization.

The theme of the fireside for Delta Sigma Tau sorority, to be held tonight, will be Delta's Goblin Fling.

'Best In Country' Claims Cal Coach As Booters Smash Bears, Face SF State Today

By Vince Liu

BERKELEY, Oct. 21.—Playing with a blazing fury in their eyes the City College soccermen thundered past University of California, 5-2, prompting Cal Coach Bob DiGrazia to tab the Rams as "undoubtedly the best two-year college team in the country."

Al Korbus, the spectacular center-forward, paced the attack with four goals and put on a shooting exhibition to the shock and horror of a pro-Cal crowd.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's rampaging Rams, now with the Spartan and Bear skins hanging on each of their horns, go against San Francisco State College today in search of their third straight victory. The game is slated for 2:30 p.m. at Balboa Soccer Stadium.

Unable to defeat the Berkeleyans since 1957, the local eleven finally broke the jinx with what Diederichsen termed as sparking team plays. They twice came from behind in the first half and iced the contest in the last quorter with two Korbus shots.

Though winning, the Red and White forces had their trying moments in the early goings. The usually tight defense had a few lapses, and the Bears were quick to take advantage of them.

Sneaking behind the defenders repeatedly, Bill Barreda and Kun Choo scored both of Cal's goals in the first quarter. Only a 10-yard blast by Korbus kept the Rams close at 1-2 going into the second stanza.

With 12:20 left in the first half, halfback Caesar Pina, a giant on defense all day, dribbled in and blasted a shot from 18 yards out to knot the score at 2-2. Eight minutes later, Korbus put his team ahead to stay with a 12-yarder.

Defensive stalwarts Dave Fromer, Hugo Olaya, Dennis Minga and Flavio Vallente overcame a shaky first-quarter performance and bogged down Cal drives repeatedly in the second half.

Goalie Gary DeLong, playing with the after-effects of a tonsil operation, made brilliant saves to keep the lead intact.

In the forward line, it was all Korbus. The All-Conference center-forward, however, received good support from insides Ivan Burmudez, Roberto Salazar and Allen Chew, in increasing his two-game scoring output to an amazing eight.

Sharing the limelight with the varsity team were the vastly improved junior varsity booters who humbled the Cal Frosh 1-0 on a goal by Tom Wynn. Goalie John Pangburn and fullbacks Thomas Chang and Lee Wurtenberg sparkled on defense.

Cross Countrymen Face Big Test In Conference Opener

Defense of the 1960 cross-country title really gets underway tomorrow when the Rams take on Oakland, Santa Rosa and Stockton in a Big Eight dual meet.

The meet will be held in Golden Gate Park and will cover three miles. Scoring will be done on the individual basis, which means that the colleges will be scored separately against each of the other colleges instead of in an all-over score.

Last Saturday the Rams went to the San Francisco State College invitational meet, to which many Northern California two-year colleges were invited. Modesto, Oakland and Sacramento were present.

Top runners José Valle and John Weidinger have alternated in taking first places while the third man, Steve Jackson, and fourth man, Andy Loobey, show much promise, according to Coach Lou Vasquez. The number five man is George Varmuza.

A big disappointment was the loss of Rich Byers, who was a big hope of Vasquez for number one man, but because of a recurring hip injury he was declared out.

In practice meets, the college has a 2-2 record. With wins over Diablo Valley and San Jose City College and losses to University of California, Freshmen and Sacramento City College, the Red and White distance men expect a good season.

Vasquez says the Rams will be in contention with Sacramento, the big threat for the Big Eight Conference title. The Ram mentor thinks the Northern California championship could go again to last year's champions, Fresno City College.

Ex-Olympian Here To Aid Coed Fencing Team

Jerry Biagini, a former member of the United States Olympic fencing team, is at the college now to assist Lene Johnson, women's physical education instructor, with the coed Fencing Club, recently organized.

Biagini has aided in preparing the club's team for this afternoon's match between City College and Balboa High School, slated at 3:30 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Next Monday, October 30, the volleyball team will travel to the College of San Mateo to be guests at a banquet and to participate in a volleyball game.

Last night the Alumni Sports Night was held in the women's gymnasium at 7 p.m.

Intramural Loop Opens Tonight

Basketball keds, old cut-off bermudas and sweatshirts will supplement the regular team uniforms when the intramural league basketball games start tonight.

Twelve teams have entered this year's league, which promises to be full of exciting action.

The games will be held every Tuesday and Wednesday starting at 7:30 p.m., and there will be three games each night. All games will be held in the men's and women's gymnasiums.

Phelan Counting Heavily On Rookie Power To Bolster Cage Strength

With only four returnees from last year's second place team, head basketball coach Sid Phelan is counting heavily on the freshmen for support in the 1961-62 season.

Jesse Arterberry, the 6-6 center from Polytechnic High, is the Rams' only returnee who played first club last year.

Arterberry, whose 93 points made him the team's third highest scorer, was a big rebounder during the Rams' deadlocking second place finish.

Glenn Wold, a big center; Dave Roberts, a speedy guard, and Brad Duggan, a rangy forward, are all returnee substitutes. They scored a combined total of 67 points for 14 games.

The first assemblage of the basketball squad will take place next Tuesday, October 31, in the men's gymnasium.

Phelan emphasized this meeting as a must for all varsity candidates.

Although they haven't made it official, incoming freshmen expected to give basketball a whirl are Wiley Price; Gene Basiste, the "Goose Tatum" type guard who made All-City at Mission High; Dewit Demmer, a guard from Balboa High; Randy Sims, a forward and a teammate of Demmer, and Everett Adams, a little 5-8 guard whose unorthodox jump shot was a "goodie" for three years at Washington High.

The Rams, who have 10 preseason games scheduled this year, open against the Stanford Braves at Stanford on December 1. Six of the 10 practice contests will be played here.

The Big Eight season begins January 12 against Sacramento City College here.

Charlie Williams, Bob Grayson, Orlando Camp and Nate Jackson will not be with the club this year.

Rams Battle Mustangs

VICTORY OFFENSE! Preparing for Friday's Homecoming "crucial" against Stockton, quarterback Randy Autentico hands off to veteran fullback Tom Piggee, leading Ram ground-gainer.
—Guardsman photo by Herb Greene.

Homecoming Clash Friday Is 'Must Win'

Fighting to remain in title contention, the potent Ram gridders run-up against a big obstacle in Friday's Homecoming clash against Stockton, slated for 2 p.m. at City College stadium.

Though they have had their problems this year, the Valley powerhouse hasn't tasted defeat at the hands of the Rams since 1953, in the meantime winning six straight Big Eight titles until a mere missed extra point cost them a seventh crown last year.

If Grover Klemmer's potent crew, which last year fell to the Mustangs 34-22, is to get revenge they will have to do it Friday, since the encounter is the final conference meeting against Stockton because of the realignment of the Big Eight.

The Rams, who divided their opening duo of league assignments, losing to San Mateo and blanking Contra Costa after a pair of exhibition wins, will definitely be "up" for the tilt, according to Coach Klemmer.

Blessed with a defense which is often air tight, to the consternation of their opponents, and a small, fast backfield, the home squad will be meeting a Stockton team which has lost three of five games but defeated Oakland 20-0 last weekend.

In exhibitioners, Larry Kentera's crew fell to Pierce 19-12, and Fresno 21-14, before edging Santa Rosa 14-8, in their opening league fray. However, Sacramento's Panthers, flexing their muscles this year in an unexpected run for the title, drubbed Stockton 26-6.

Deep in experienced talent, Stockton is led by the passing combo of Rich Handel and Don Watkins and a well-trained line.

The Ram forward wall has proved to be their big asset this season. Big Jim Baffico (235) and Jack Burgett (228) man the tackle positions, while veteran Alex Darnes (212), highly touted freshmen Dave Urrea (200) and Dennis Drucker (205) lend strength at guard.

Veterans Terry Fischer and Ray Greggains hold down the end spots.

Signal-caller Randy Autentico is supported in the backfield by fleet halfbacks Al Raine and Ron Coleman, along with flashy fullback Tom Piggee.

The squad is nursing an assortment of knee and ankle injuries but should be at top strength by game time.

Piggee Romps For 163 Yards In 19-6 Victory Over Santa Rosa

By Dave Kleinberg

Tom Piggee rolled up 163 yards last Friday in one of his biggest games before a home crowd to lead the Rams to an impressive 19-6 win over the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs.

Piggee, a 5-foot 8-inch All-Big Eight Conference back and a former prep star at Polytechnic High, tallied the Rams' first score on a 48-yard scamper around left end and raced 26 yards in the fourth quarter to set up the final touchdown.

The 175-pound Piggee, who always seems to play his best game against Santa Rosa, was tough for the Ram defense which held the Bear Cubs, who threw occasionally from the "Shotgun," to two completions in 14 attempts with three interceptions.

The score could have been much worse against Santa Rosa.

Ben Winslow, the Rams' number two quarterback, replacing the ineffective Randy Autentico, had two long scoring passes nullified by penalties. He hit Verdell Price for 36 yards and Ron Coleman for 31 but both were called back.

Bob Taylor, a speedster, had a brilliant 54-yard punt return called back.

The Rams scored first, driving 62 yards in three plays. After Autentico was dropped for no gain, Winslow entered the contest and immediately fired to end Ray Greggains for 14 yards and a first down on the Bear Cub 48.

On the following play, Piggee took the handoff, started wide to his left. The speedster got good blocks on the outside from Coleman and Taylor, and got the "spring" block from 225-pond tackle Jack Burgett.

Three times in the first half the Rams drew within striking distance, but each time were halted by a fumble, penalty or pass interception.

The Ram defense, meanwhile, had stopped Santa Rosa with little yardage. The big line of Dave Urrea, Alex Darnes, Dennis Drucker, Jim Baffico and Burgett put consistent pressure on the Bear Cub quarterback operations.

After the Bear Cubs were forced to punt early in the third quarter, the college drove 70 yards in 11 plays with Coleman carrying three Bear Cub tacklers into the end zone from five yards out for 13-0.

Piggee, a real workhorse with 22 carries on the day, ran five times in the drive for 33 yards.

At the end of the third quarter the Bear Cubs closed the score, but because of the obvious Ram domination to that point, few expected Santa Rosa to come closer.

Their drive, which started from the Ram 23, was culminated when Thomas Caturegli hit Barry Black behind Taylor for the six points—the Bear Cubs' first pass completion of the day with eight minutes to play in the third quarter.

After Baffico recovered a Santa Rosa fumble on the Ram 40, Piggee took off on the big play of the drive, a 26-yard dash. Taylor rambled in for the score from the 12 four plays later.

Injured Al Raine, the Rams' starting halfback, did not see action.

Against Los Angeles City the Rams were again victorious and again beset by scoring difficulties, tallying but thrice when they could well have added two or three more touchdowns.

Never was the problem more acute then in the 12-0 squeaker over Contra Costa. The Rams had enough chances to win 35-0, completely outplaying the Comets.

In the first half the winners twice were held on downs on the nine and four-yard lines. Piggee fumbled on the 23 and Autentico on the 12. Even when they did score it took a big assist from a penalty to finally bring the Rams a six-pointer.

Klemmer says he can't understand why it happens so often. "We have the big linemen and fast, capable backs."

Perhaps the problem can be somewhat attributed to the Rams' need for a big line-crashing fullback. Tom Piggee is a terrific runner, but he's not big enough to take the continual pounding that comes from bucks into the center of the opposition's big line.

We have two drastic solutions, but we have a feeling they may never see reality. Move 235-pound tackle Jim Baffico to fullback when they get near the goal. He's big and powerful enough to run over anybody even without a hole open.

Klemmer could insert the third string when there's a chance to score. Why, they could turn into our own offensive version of Louisiana State's famed "Chinese Bandits."

As a last resort, the field could be shortened to 80 yards.

Block SF Receives OK For Prep Concession Stand

Permission has finally been granted by the Athletic Association of San Francisco for the Block SF Society to operate a concession stand at high school football games held on the college's football field, according to Lou Vasquez, faculty adviser to the club.

"Since the stadium has been in use we have asked for permission to sell refreshments at the games," Vasquez explained.

Plans are also being made now for the society's end-of-the-semester dinner.

Flavio Vallente is president, Bill Waite vice president and John Jacobsen secretary-treasurer.

RAMBLINGS

Gridders Face Two Battles This Friday

By Ivan Temes

THE RAMS may have only one football game Friday, but actually they will be fighting two battles.

One will be against Stockton's perennially powerful gridiron squad and the other against themselves once they get within the shadow of the Mustangs' goal line.

For some unexplained reason, Grover Klemmer's charges have had great success in moving the ball all year—that is, until they get past their opponents' 20-yard line.

If they weren't plagued with this problem, there is a good chance the Rams would still be unbeaten instead of having their Big Eight title plans somewhat disrupted by the 22-6 loss to San Mateo.

To recall the somewhat unpleasant circumstances, the Rams trailed the Bulldogs by two touchdowns at the half, had scored once and again moved to the winners' 20-yard line before signal-caller Randy Autentico became separated from the football.

As Assistant Coach Larry Lawson felt, "Had we scored, we probably would have broken their backs and the momentum given us a win."

Nevertheless, the Red and White were still only a score behind when they drove to the four-yard line only to be halted on fourth down.

The City College heroes didn't have this problem in winning their opening contest over Los Angeles Valley, 27-0, but the Monarchs were probably the most inept squad at the time in the state.

Official Weekly Publication of The Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

The Guardsman

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
• COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40 •
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1961 NUMBER 6

CJCSGA Confab At Monterey Successful

Passage Of Five Resolutions Sets Stage For State Meet

That five out of six resolutions proposed in Monterey on October 21 passed with few alterations made the Northern Region conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association a successful stepping stone for the state meeting, to be held November 16 to 18 in Fresno.

Led by Associated Student President Gary Wilkening, 25 San Franciscans journeyed to Monterey Peninsula College for the one-day confab where, in seven separate workshops, they exchanged ideas with representatives from Northern California's two-year colleges.

Two workshop chairmanships were held by the college. Wilkening, who led the discussion of conference reorganization, and Larry Levin, at the helm of the current problems workshop, have received a state cochairmanship.

Of two resolutions moved by San Francisco, one failed but the other—that CJCSGA, northern region, send the minutes of regional conferences to the Associated Student presidents of the 15 state colleges—received the unanimous vote of the assembly.

From the activities workshop came a resolution to create an interscholastic activities council whose main purpose will be to clear dates in order to avoid conflicts of intercollegiate activities. This measure passed the general assembly, 18-2-1.

The assembly passed a third resolution brought to the floor by the judicial system chairman. It provides that a master sheet of tabulated information concerning judicial systems and courts from all N.R. colleges be compiled and distributed by San Jose City College.

Another resolution, previously proposed by the workshop on athletics, states that itemized athletic and financial budgets, and systems for making awards in all sports be included in the CJCSGA State Information booklet, which is put out by State Information Chairman Bob Perkins, a member of Wilkening's cabinet. The vote was 17-4-3.

The publicity and publications resolution stating that the CJCSGA-NR adopt a formal exchange of publications between its colleges passed, but an amendment to the motion struck out what opposing delegates called the "bite" of the proposal: ". . . and that colleges which do not participate in this exchange be eliminated from the mailing lists of those colleges which do participate."

Notwithstanding San Francisco's failure to do away with the "time-consuming" election of the parliamentarian at the conference, which came under conference reorganization, the college's delegation offered many proposals of merit.

All resolutions passed at Monterey must also be approved at the state meet in order to be formally adopted.

San Francisco's delegates managed to leave by Greyhound bus at 6:30 a.m. the morning of the conference after many of them had attended the Frosh Ball at the St. Francis the night before.

Two-Year College Opens Door For 'Creative Man'

By Dick Dragavon

Importance of two-year colleges was emphasized recently by Thomas Nesbitt, director of testing here, while commenting on a study of the "creative man, 1961," which was done by University of California scholars.

The Institute of Personality Assessment and Research headed by Dr. Donald McKinnon of UC studied a total of 530 "proven" creative men in many fields including architects, writers, engineers and research scientists.

One of the notable common traits was that although their IQ's were no lower than 120, these men were not usually high grade-getters, but were more likely to have received B's and C's.

Since university admittance standards are continually being raised, many of the men who are qualified to be called creative men are therefore kept from enrolling.

"While we can't tell who is creative and who isn't, we feel that we get a considerable number, and we try to see that they are developed to their fullest extent," Nesbitt remarked.

There is also a fair number of persons who have gone through high school without paying attention to a particular line of study and later deciding to return to college only to find that they haven't completed necessary courses, Nesbitt added.

These persons come to the two-year colleges to complete the requirements. "We make a list of the students who have scored in the top ten per cent on our entrance examinations and distribute it to the instructors," Nesbitt said; "in this manner the students with high potential can be recognized and observed specially to be sure that they perform at a level typical of their capabilities."

Thus, though no one can say for sure, creative men who would otherwise be lost can be "saved" by two-year colleges, he pointed out.

Concert Pianist Appearance Heads C-Hour Activities

Along with the regular College Hour meetings of campus clubs this Friday and the film series, a special attraction, the appearance of Ruth Wilkie, concert pianist, will take place in the college theater here.

Her recital will be given on the college's new $3500 Baldwin piano, which is situated in the theater.

Mrs. Wilkie is volunteering her time and talent to appear at the college. Her program is expected to be varied ranging from selections by Mozart to those by Debussy.

Walter Krumm, faculty adviser to the sponsoring United Religious Forum, has urged all students to attend this performance as it will be "very interesting and enlightening."

The program will begin promptly at 10 a.m., he said.

Showing some of the amazing accomplishments and capabilities of business machines and computers, The Thinking Machine will be this Friday's offering by the college film series.

The movie, which stars David Wayne, is scheduled for unreeling in S-136 during College Hour.

Forthcoming attractions include The Northwest Wonderland on November 10 and Behind The Scenes Of Disney Studios November 17, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor.

IRC Fair Friday Night

RELAXING on the lawn at the side of the college's "south hill" are four members of the International Relations Club, wearing the costumes which will add a foreign flavor to their eighth annual IRC Fair to be held 8 p.m. this Friday night at Marina Junior High.

The senoritas up front are from left to right, Sophia Aguilar and Delfina Aldrete, and the caballeros behind them, from the left, are Enrique Arrizio and Fernando Arevalo.

Catching the colorful quartet in this relaxed pose was Masaru Wadama, former chief photographer of The Guardsman.

Scholarships Benefit From Annual Function

The eighth annual International Fair, Bagdad By The Bay, will be held from 8 to 11 o'clock Friday night at Marina Junior High School at Fillmore and Bay streets, according to Joseph Jacobsen, International Relations Club sponsor.

General admission for the fair is $1 and cost to students is 75 cents. Tickets can be obtained in S-186 or at the door.

Proceeds will be used for the scholarship fund for international students.

Jacobsen said that students will be dressed in their native attire and will compete for the best booth, stage production, sale of foods representative of their native countries, and best display of world art goods. The winning "country" will have its name engraved on a plaque.

The purpose of the show is to emphasize the different patterns of culture in San Francisco and the fact that it is a "melting pot" for people of many nationalities.

Part of the stage production will be a demonstration of native dances and songs by members of IRC and students from San Francisco State College and Golden Gate College.

Rosie Fang, a representative of China, will present surprise entertainment ending in a powerful climax.

One of the most unusual dances will be a Russian knife dance.

Folk dances from Holland, Greece, Austria and other countries around the world will be performed.

In addition to these dances the audience will be able to hear unusual instruments from India and Switzerland, authentic drums and a large alpine horn.

Jacobsen said that the vocal part of the program will include songs from France as well as Swiss yodeling.

Choir, Glee Club, Orchestra, Band Present Concert Tuesday

Presenting a fall semester concert for the first time, four groups in the college's music department will perform next Tuesday night, November 7, according to Galen Marshall, music instructor and A Cappella Choir director.

The program will start at 8 p.m. in the college theater, and students of the college and the public are invited admission free, Marshall said.

Selections will be presented by the A Cappella Choir, the Men's Glee Club, the Concert Band and the orchestra.

The choir, with piano accompaniment, will sing works of J. S. Bach and three Elizabethan Part Songs by Vaughan Williams. The orchestra will play an English Folk Song Suite.

A Testament Of Freedom, by Randolph Thompson, based on four writings of Thomas Jefferson, will be interpreted by the 40-man glee club.

Selections from Royal Fireworks Music, by G. F. Handel, will be performed by the Concert Band.

Marshall added that the annual Christmas Concert is scheduled for December 8 during College Hour.

Inauguration of a fall concert marks the first time that these musical groups have each had two occasions during the fall semester to perform in public.

Today Marks Deadline For Dropping Classes

If anyone wishes to drop a class he had better do it quickly since today is the deadline, according to Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

Students who desire to lessen their academic load must see their counselors and file a petition in the registrar's office by 5 p.m.

Petitions are available only from the student's counselor.

Miss Learnard urged that a student see his counselor as early as possible today for all requirements, such as getting any necessary signatures, must be fulfilled before the petition is filed.

Failure to file could result in an F grade, she warned.

Freedom, Democracy Theme Of Art Contest

Six Students Discuss Poster Ideas

By Miriam Howard

Advertising art students here are setting out to Break The Language Barrier in the annual Collegiate Advertising Poster Contest sponsored by the Advertising Association of the West and the Zellerbach Paper Company.

The contest involves the design and production of a poster which will best illustrate freedom and democracy to the people of the world in the universal language of art.

Deadline for contest entries is March 31, 1962.

"The winning poster must illustrate the most important asset democracy has to offer," Ann Thompson, one of six students here to discuss ways of interpreting the theme, stated.

She is finding her main problem is designing a symbol to express democracy and freedom that will be basically understandable to everyone without using the Statue of Liberty or the red, white and blue that are so symbolic of freedom in the United States.

"An idea that is understandable whether people can read or not" is the aim of Rex Halloway, who intends to come through with an idea that can be expressed through "just plain art" through research into the definition of democracy beginning with the encyclopedia.

"Symbolizing freedom of choice without words" is the ambition of Mary Meachan who, although she has not begun to work on her contribution, feels that freedom of choice is one of the best examples of democracy.

"Research into politics and general freedoms" will be the first step of Ross Heil. Heil hopes to find a freedom, common to people all over the world, to use in making his poster.

"By going back into American history I hope to find many facets of freedom," Angeline Or said.

"The idea is much more important than the manner of representing it," Douglas Haight, who is not as worried about the finished product as he is about coming up with a valid idea, said.

William Eckert, advertising art instructor, adds that the students work singly to create an idea without a difficult technique or craftmanship.

The winning posters will be lithographically reproduced and distributed throughout the world to countries where illiteracy is widespread. The posters, done in any medium, must "Break The Language Barrier" to express freedom.

The grand prize of $500 is one of $2250 worth of prizes offered to the winner of the contest. Recognition in the art world is another aim that students from 13 western states and four Canadian provinces are competing for.

The contributors' first drafts will be voted upon by the art 61a and art 62 classes and the 15 to 20 best ideas will be selected for completion and entry, Eckert said.

AWS Semiannual Fashion Show And Tea Set Nov. 15

Autumn Daze, the theme of the semiannual fashion show and tea sponsored by the Associated Women Students, will be presented Wednesday, November 15, at Smith Hall, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced today.

The event is being given for senior women of San Francisco high schools and the AWS here, Miss Doudiet explained. It will last from 3 to 5 p.m. All sorority pledges will participate in the program, and the hotel and restaurant division will provide food and tea.

Preliminary tryouts for models in the show start Friday during College Hour in bungalow 6, Suzanne Murphy, fashion co-ordinator said.

Models will be chosen from the volunteers. Women five feet, four inches or taller who can wear sizes 8 to 12 may apply. Aiding Miss Murphy in the selection will be Tina Dresher and Melin Furgis.

Approximately 13 students will be chosen for models.

Committee heads of the show and tea are as follows: Priscilla Popin and Ellen Atkins, publicity chairmen; Betty Rice, programs; Suzanne Murphy, models; Barbara Sperring and Sherry Spindel, decorations; Lana Holliday, foods; Sue Ryken, invitations, and Nancy Brooks and Jerilyn Sciutto, hospitality.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 6 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1961 Page 2

Regional Conference Reveals Lack Of Political Insight

ONE INESCAPABLE TRUTH descended upon Monterey Peninsula College last week-end when the two-year colleges of Northern California met there for a one-day conference to discuss each other's similar problems. This one truth was that City College of San Francisco was the largest and most active delegation.

However, the delegates had to leave the conference without all of their proposed legislation passed. The reason for this political setback can be attributed to certain factions present who reverted to filibuster and vote-blocking techniques, apparently just for the sake of wielding political authority by means of parliamentary law, and perhaps just to get attention.

Naturally, no group should expect everyone else to agree with its proposals on all issues, but what ensued on the floor of the general assembly was utter defiance and sheer stubbornness.

Of course, the metropolitan colleges can't always see eye-to-eye on matters that plague the rurally located colleges, but here again, that's exactly what the purpose of these meetings is—interrelation of ideas—toleration of ideas—co-operation through similar ideas!

Two new colleges were in attendance: College of the Siskiyous and South County (San Leandro-Hayward area). They were neither lacking in aplomb in their quest for recognition nor afraid to ask aid and advice from the older guard to insure the success of their new institutions.

Our delegates in both the workshops and in the two general assemblies were outspoken, but not overbearing. The 25 students attending this one-day affair represented the college well.

Any delegation to such a conference or convention bears a two-fold responsibility: (1) Make its influence and presence felt without being domineering or boisterous; (2) Respect and offer guidance to the smaller groups prseent, lest they be resentful and unco-operative.

City College met these requirements adeptly, and didn't lose their heads about it. Monterey was the HOST, but San Francisco was the MOST!!

800 Soaked Students Rally Grid Support

IT WAS THOUGHT by many administrators and student leaders here that the sudden downpour last Friday would not only soak the field of the football stadium, but also dampen the spirit of the college's Homecoming activities that day.

Ironically, somehow the unexpected rain resulted in an unexpected turnout at the Stockton game and was the largest crowd in the history of the new stadium.

Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman estimated about 800 students in attendance after a half-time count of 600 plus had been taken.

Once college spirit starts raining, IT POURS!

The Spectator

Fifth Film Festival Perks Up Bored Fans

By Herman Kligerman

FOR THOSE who would like to get away from viewing the conventional Hollywood movies, the International Film Festival opens its fifth season in San Francisco tonight at the Metro theater on Union street.

This is the only such event held in the United States.

The best pictures produced by more than a dozen different countries have been imported here for special performances. Nations participating this year include Argentina, Spain, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Italy, India, France, Greece, Israel, Japan, Poland and the Soviet Union.

In the four years that this festival has been offered to San Franciscans it has been met with great success by both the movie-goers and the drama critics. It has also given the city prestige over other large metropolises throughout the nation.

All foreign films are shown with English subtitles.

Student prices are available for the series, which will end on Tuesday evening, November 14.

* * *

GEARY BOULEVARD is once again blessed with the reopening of a hard ticket (reserved seat) movie palace. It's the Coronet theater near Arguello Boulevard, and the movie which is expected to attract throngs is The King Of Kings.

Telling the story of Jesus, it opened last Thursday on the theater's 70 mm. technirama screen, in color.

Thirty-five years ago the late brilliant producer, Cecil B. deMille, brought this same subject to the screen.

It looks as though Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer may have another academy winner in The King Of Kings. Ben-Hur, which copped practically everything last year, just closed in San Francisco a couple of months ago after a stay of almost two years.

Another Geary Boulevard theater, this one 18 blocks down the street, is expected to open on a reserved seat basis around Christmas time. It's the Alexandria, and the movie will be El Cid with Charlton (Ben-Hur) Heston.

This film should fare better than Exodus did when it opened at that movie house late last year, surviving only about six months there.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Herman Kligerman
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Dave Grieve, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell.

Reporters: Gerald Almendares, Diane Kinsky, David Kleinberg, Herbert Minis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, John Curtis, Vincent Liu, Peter Oppenheimer.

Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McConihe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Jose Pineda, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.

Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackermsn, James Cook.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, Room 304, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

● Splendor Not Splendid

Editor, The Guardsman:

Movies may be better than ever, but your entertainment columnist goes quite far out on the proverbial limb when he decks Splendor In The Grass with such liberal accolades as appeared in last week's issue of The Guardsman.

However, I do agree with him that there are a few notable things about the film—the tremendous step downward in performance for both Elia Kazan and William Inge, the harrowing image of Natalie Wood as a "sweet young thing," and the vain attempts of a new actor, namely Warren Beatty, to make an adequate showing of himself in the face of such odds.

Kazan, with such successes as A Streetcar Named Desire, On The Waterfront and Fast Of Eden to his credit, all of which are wonderfully realistic, fell on his face when he agreed to direct this mess of sentimentality.

And most of Inge's work in the past, such as Come Back Little Sheba, Picnic and Bus Stop, has been excellent entertainment, but in Splendor he has created a soap-opera that even Fannie Hurst would disown.

Your writer mentions the advertisements which state: "If you are an adult this has happened to you," but he left out the most important ending: "If you are young it is happening to you now."

Does this mean that all adult women attempted suicide in their youth and that all adult men settled for a sloppy second best in the things they dreamed of achieving in their youth?

And does it mean that all young people are embroiled in mazes of duped and misunderstanding parents, suicidal impulses and dramatic episodes? I don't think so.

Natalie Wood does not act the part of Deanie in the movie. She screams and throws tantrums and, in general, does an excellent job of acting the part of Natalie Wood.

And as for Beatty's potential for stardom, it will be a marvel to me if he ever recovers from the shattering experience of having to "act" with Miss Wood.

Concerning the questionnaire (all poor movies need gimmicks to put them across), the only reason I can think of for not taking children to see this movie is that they might not understand the episode where Beatty's father jumps out of the window. At least, I didn't. Rich Shields

IRC Fair Nears Hour Of Truth

Confusing Fun Plagues Bagdad Bay Rehearsal

By Gerald Almendares

Rehearsing for the coming eighth annual International Fair spells confusing fun.

Adapting dances to recordings, language barriers in the singing numbers and the size of the production are causing the fun-filled confusion. Although the players get frustrated from overworking at times, they are also joking and laughing all the while.

But the hour of truth comes Friday at 8 p.m. and the fair's student adviser, Joseph Jacobsen, expressed confidence that the show will go on—as shows always do.

Bagdad By The Bay, the fair's theme this year, will be staged once more in acknowledgment of the true cosmopolitan population of the city, by the college's International Relations Club.

The fair, intended to dispense flavor of an around the world trip, will feature colorful native costumes, music, dances, arts and crafts and food displays.

An added attraction will be the 15-member San Francisco - Finnish orchestra. The guest-assisting usherettes will be dressed in their respective national costumes.

In former years high dignitaries have attended the fair, including the mayor and ambassadors of the nations represented in answer to formal invitations from the college.

All of the active participants, who number more than 100, are natives of the lands they portray. The students attend college here or at other San Francisco colleges.

The various national groups will again perform in competition for the honor of having their country's name and year engraved in the IRC plaque.

The stage manager's duties are being handled by Hernando Garcia and the food displays and other exhibits are directed by Maria Luisa Radillo.

Long-Lost Articles Seek Owners

'Misplaced' Department Offers Refuge

Everything from a green plastic ruler to a claim check from the fix-it shop for a bicycle has found its way to the lost-and-found office, which has four "turn-in" locations on the campus—C-303, A-301, S-149 and the finance office in Smith Hall.

But where is the traditional optimism of youth?

Apparently students feel that what they have displaced, misplaced or lost is irretrievable, because at the end of every year a substantial amount of unclaimed clothes, books and glasses are given by the college to good will organizations throughout the city.

Ruth Hoburg, secretary to educational management, who operates the main lost and found location in Cloud Hall, already has a collection of coats, jackets, sweaters, shoes, purses, textbooks and notebooks.

Two pairs of prescription glasses, a bundle of flash cards, keys, an asthma kit and a well-used paperback copy of The Ugly American fill in the spectrum of items without owners.

New additions to the assemblage are being turned in daily so that students who do not see their belongings in this list can be justifiably hopeful.

As the rainy season approaches a deluge of variously decorated umbrellas is expected.

If a name is written on the article, the individual is notified by postcard, but this courtesy is sometimes frustrated when the owner's local address is not easily available. Mrs. Hoburg cautioned students to identify their books especially with local name and address.

Anyone who enters the Cloud Hall branch need not be dismayed nor discouraged when he sees the cartoon on the wall of a rather befuddled individual who is apparently mumbling, "I'd sure like to help you but I don't work here—I'm lost." It's only a joke.

ATTRACTIVE Diane Perrine, coed here, examined a lost book but wasn't discouraged by the sign on the wall behind her which states: "Lost & Found Dept.; I'd sure like to help you—but I don't work here—I'm lost!" —Guardsman photo by James Cook.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

FOURTEEN years ago this college really must have had at least one center of perplexity. Confusion, question and frustration reigned in many of the college's departments, especially in the office of the registrar.

Before 1947 the college had no IBM machines.

Everything had to be done manually. The entire registering enrolment had to be alphabetized—by hand.

Midterm and final grades must have been a tedious process with no IBM pencils to mark the nonexisting IBM cards that could be quickly and speedily sent through the yet-to-be-developed IBM machines.

Imagine what the college's registrar, unflinching Mary Jane Learnard, would have done this semester without the IBM's.

Most likely, with more than 4400 course changes alone during the first 10 days of instruction, the college would be minus one registrar and her entire staff.

However, almost everything seems to be going smoothly for the registrar with the assistance of the IBM department and its five IBM machines: a keypunch, interpreter, sorter, collator and an accounter.

Although someone may actually see and have the purposes and functions of the machines explained to him, afterward he usually knows little more about the machines than before he started.

Still a problem remains. One or possibly two machines will have to be replaced soon. The first to go will be the sorter because it's too slow.

It's a joke; they're so ridiculously slow! A puny 650 cards per minute, that's how fast it goes—a measly 11 a second.

Soon the college will fortify itself with a more advanced sorter. It hopes to rent (IBM machines cannot be bought, only rented) a speedy Gonzales sorter that will be able to whiz through 1000 cards a minute.

The "F" students better watch out now, for despite a crushing day enrollment of 6630 students, "Mr. Gonzales" will be able to separate their cards in approximately 66.3 minutes.

Then the flunkies will be sent through the accounting machine, which is a distant and much slower "Mexican" cousin of "Speedy." The accounting machine makes up a list of names from the pulled IBM cards at a rate of 100 cards per minute.

When the list is completed it is sent to John Brady, co-ordinator, division of student welfare, who informs the failing students.

One good thing about the IBM machines, they don't make mistakes, and like Canadian Mounties, they "always get their man"—or the right card, as the case may be.

Floristry Dept. Enters Design Show

Exhibits Feature All Phases Of Basic Techniques

For the fourth consecutive year retail floristry majors here exhibited flower designs in the annual San Francisco Design Show held at the flower market at Fifth and Brannan streets on October 22, according to Maryhope Jacks, floriculture instructor here.

Basic techniques were illustrated in all phases of flower design, including wiring and taping, funeral work, simple vase design and the designing of corsages, Mrs. Jacks said.

Second and fourth semester students demonstrated these basic principles, while the first and third semester group taped as well as answered questions concerning the purpose and advantages of the course.

Representatives from the college were George Horio, Al Cove, Maxine Garden, Dick Lendall, Joanne Taylor, Mike Ward and Sanford Wheeler.

Open only to retail floristry majors, the design show offers students an excellent opportunity, Mrs. Jacks said, to show what they can do while at the same time placing themselves in a position for employment offers and opportunities in the floristry field.

OUTSTANDING FLORAL DESIGNS are pointed out to Dean Louis Batmale and floristry students Sally George and Alma Deckrow by Maryhope Jacks, retail floristry instructor here. The arrangements were on exhibit at the San Francisco Design Show.—Photo by Madison Devlin.

Counterpoint

Pool Solves Problem Of Bomb Shelter

By Dick Dragavon

A QUANDARY which would shake the self-confidence of lesser people has recently been placed before the residents of our nation.

The problem is should a family invest in a swimming pool, or a bomb shelter?

In New York City a recent poll showed that eight of ten housewives listed a shelter as one of the three things they wanted most in their dream house.

The solution to this puzzle is relatively simple as explained by an ingenious young professional man.

His suggestion is to have swimming pools built with a convertible concrete roof which would cover and seal the pool in eight minutes at the touch of a panic button.

This arrangement would provide the homeowner with two status symbols in one.

To promote these sheltered pools, he suggests that the manufacturer throw in two weeks' rations for free. Waterproofing would probably be at a slight extra charge.

This, too, would serve a dual purpose, that of providing assurance and that of recreation. The game of Bring Up Our Lunch (Breakfast, Dinner) would be played three times daily as children and grown-ups alike dive and splash to see who could come up with the appropriate meal for the time of day.

The cover itself would be an asset to any swimming pool, serving as a windbreak and a three-meter diving platform. It would normally come in cement gray, but would also be available in such contemporary shades as fallout green and flash white.

The exposed side of the cover would be open to the designer's imagination, having room for badminton or shuffleboard courts or even imitation, atomic-proof grass which would present a clean, uncluttered appearance of one's backyard when the shelter is in use.

In case the neighbors decide to drop in in time of stress the pool would amuse them so they wouldn't necessarily get on the owner's nerves.

Neighbors would have to have the understanding beforehand that they would have to sink or swim if they wished to use the facilities.

The enterprising inventor also suggests that, to keep expenses down, the shelter would be paid for in one easy payment, eliminating interest and carrying charges from the price.

The price would also include an absolutely unconditional money back guarantee in case the shelter fails to function exactly as advertised.

Club Cavalcade

Foreign Flavored Buffet, Dinners Highlight Sorority Activities

AN ACCELERATED activities schedule for the sororities on campus gets underway today.

Phi Beta Rho will start off by giving an annual Italian dinner tonight from 6:30 to 8:30 in Smith Hall. The meal will include imitation Italian "accents" and plenty of spaghetti. The sorority is also currently working on a service project of entertaining convalescent children at Shriners Hospital.

A Halloween party given on October 30 by Gamma Sigma Sigma was the entertainment provided for the servicemen patients in Letterman Hospital. Favors were filled with candy and cookies and covered with colored crepe paper. Cookies were homemade.

Gamma Kappa Beta will also hold their pledge dinner in the social room of the women's gymnasium on the afternoon of November 5.

That evening Zeta Chi will follow with a buffet dinner to be held in the same place from 6 to 8. Sorority members will officially welcome the new pledge sisters at this time.

Theta Tau will give a luau dinner for new members from 6:30 to 8:30 next Wednesday evening. On hand for entertainment will be Fred Cherniss and Roi Cann for a rendition of folk songs.

Next Thursday will be Kappa Phi's turn for the use of the social room of the women's gymnasium from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. A Chinese dinner, traditional with the sorority, will be given for new pledge sisters.

Delta Sigma Tau sorority has introduced its officers for the fall semester: Carol Ann Henton, president; Harriet Brown, vice president; Gloria Nelson, secretary; Nettie Cook, treasurer; Lois Kincy, pledge mistress, and Rebecca James, historian.

A new service project for Delta Psi has started this semester. Several days a month members visit the homes of bedridden children.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship has a meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-201. Featured will be a tape recording on history of the Bible. This club meets tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the Third Church of Christian Science.

The church is located at 1250 Haight street, between Lyon and Baker streets.

Drama Department Casting Starts Soon

Casting will begin soon in the drama department for four one-act plays and, according to Michael Griffin, drama director, anyone interested in trying out for the shows can apply to him in the theater.

The new plays to be added to the repertoire are Box And Cox by John Madison Morton, William Saroyon's Hello Out There, The Farce of The Worthy Master Pierre Patelin, translated by Moritz Jagendorf, and George Bernard Shaw's Dark Lady Of The Sonnets.

Shows in rehearsal now include The Death Of Bessie Smith, Apollo and Fumed Oak. Pullman Car Hiawatha, Foursome and Before Breakfast have already been performed.

The next College Hour production is scheduled for December 1 in the theater, but Griffin hopes to present a show before then in another campus location.

Korean War Vets Must Sign For Monthly Benefits

All Korean War veterans in this college receiving monthly benefits from the Veterans Administration educational benefits program are required to sign the GI-IBM cards during the first four days of each month, Robin Dunn, in charge of the veterans affairs department here, said today.

Such a signature, Dunn stated, is necessitated by a checking system employed by the Veterans Administration to determine the eligibility of the individual veteran to receive the benefits.

A veteran in order to draw the monthly benefit from the VA must show through the signing of the cards that he has been attending the college regularly and carrying a sufficient number of credits.

To be eligible, one has to have served in the armed forces either during the Korean War or prior to January 1, 1955.

The program, one of many designed by the VA to aid the wartime servicemen in various categories such as loans, medical service and insurance, will be in effect until January 31, 1965.

There are about 200 veterans in this college taking advantage of this program, according to Dunn who, besides working for the VA also handles the veterans affairs at the college.

Teacher, Tenor Here November 10

Sightless Educator To Lecture In C-Hour

Onvia Ticer, a totally blind teacher of the third grade at Grant school in San Lorenzo, will be the guest speaker during College Hour Friday, November 10, in S-100. The program is being sponsored by the Student California Teachers Association.

Miss Ticer will present a tape and slide program entitled The Blind On The Job. This presentation is a series of interviews with several blind persons who have been successfully employed in normal occupations.

In addition to the slides and taped interviews Miss Ticer will discuss some of the facts about blindness and how one adjusts to it. The program promises to be both interesting and informative, and SCTA officers invite all students to attend.

During her visit to the college Miss Ticer will also give two other lectures. These will be for the education classes, and Miss Ticer will discuss methods of teaching, especially those which she has invented herself and which she uses in her own classroom.

James Schwabacher To Sing In Theater

James Schwabacher, well known San Francisco tenor, is expected to sing before an overflow crowd during College Hour Friday, November 10, in the theater in the arts building, Meyer Cahn, music instructor here, said today.

Schwabacher, who is also the president of the paper company, formerly appeared on television every Monday night and his singing is widely acclaimed.

According to Cahn, Schwabacher has prepared an "interesting and enlightening" program for his audience and he is expected to attract a very large audience.

As a result, part of the audience may be turned away but can view the program on a closed circuit television set which will be located in A-133.

Students interested in hearing Schwabacher should get there early, Cahn warned, or otherwise they may not be able to get seats for this expected capacity program.

Statler Foundation Grants $100,000 For Enlargement Of Hotel, Restaurant Division Here

Acceptance by the Board of Education of a $100,000 grant from the Statler Foundation will provide additional student-instructor space to the hotel and restaurant division of Smith Hall.

President Louis G. Conlan announced that the allocation, accepted at the October 24 meeting of the Board of Education, is contingent on the willingness of local industries to raise the remaining $50,000 of the full sum.

The gift will provide two-thirds of the funds necessary for the building of a lecture-demonstration room, a demonstration kitchen and a library adjacent to the present site.

Prominent hotelman Willard E. Abel, president of the St. Francis Hotel Corporation, who represented the college in the transaction, stated, "The gift is a fitting recognition of the college's 25 years of excellent service as a training institution for our industry.

"Since the program was established in 1936, its reputation has grown so that a hospitality center of world renown such as San Francisco may be justly proud of having such a curriculum in the community."

The program has trained hundreds of local students interested in the field. Graduates are found in most of San Francisco's fine operations, throughout the United States, and even in such faraway places as Tokyo, Manila, Hong Kong, Mexico City, Oslo, Zurich and Helsinki.

Members of the advisory committee, consisting of the prominent leaders of labor and management in the field under the chairmanship of George D. Smith of the Mark Hopkins Hotel, have enthusiastically endorsed the project and have agreed to solicit contributions, Conlan said.

Gifts can be made to the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation of the City College of San Francisco, an organization headed by P. Tremain Loud of the Hotel Californian. The foundation was established in 1949, for purposes of receiving tax-free gifts from individuals and corporations under the laws of the state.

Previous outstanding grants donated to the foundation toward the college's scholarship fund were by Mrs. Eb De Golia, $10,000, and by the owner of the Hotel Manx, Harvey Toy, $25,000.

The Statler Foundation was established in 1934 under the will of the famous hotelman, Ellsworth M. Statler. It has made gifts for buildings to Cornell University and the Community College of New York.

A scholarship program from which numerous college students here have profited has been another important project of the foundation.

Conlan and Louis Batmale, dean of instruction, indicated that the addition will provide the college with facilities needed to continue their efforts to improve the quality of instruction.

In commenting, Conlan stated, "The success of this program serves as an outstanding example of what can be achieved through the wholehearted co-operation of labor, management and education. I am sure that our fine San Francisco hoteliers and restaurateurs will help us realize this important goal."

ACP Gives Spring Guardsman First Class Rating

The Guardsman received its 11th First Class rating last week for the Spring 1961 volume from the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota.

Since joining the ACP in 1939, The Guardsman has earned 29 All-American ratings in addition to the First Class ratings.

The paper was judged on coverage, content and physical properties. Categories in which last semester's Guardsman excelled, according to the ACP's newspaper score, included news coverage, news balance, news story content, copyreading and editorials.

Editorial page features, sports coverage, sports writing, editorial makeup and inside news page makeup were considered excellent.

Among the weaknesses in The Guardsman were leads—considered too lengthy—style and lack of features.

Awards, presented each semester to college and university newspapers entered in ACP competition, are based on general content, style, writing and coverage. ACP's board of judges is comprised of journalistic authorities from various newspapers and academic staffs.

ACP considers an All-American rating as indicating distinct superior achievement, and First Class as comparable to "excellent." The system awards it gives are Second Class, indicating "good" to "very good" and Third Class for "fair" to "good"

Members of last semester's editorial staff were Editor-in-Chief Bob Pucini, Associate Editor Paul Planisky, Managing Editor Franke Dunne, News Editor Doug Cathcart, Feature Editor Richard Shields, Sports Editor Tom Kennedy and Staff Editor Christopher Wise.

Mebine Fills Post On Student Council

By Bob Hacker

The post of sophomore council member, left vacant when Chuck Wood relinquished his duties, was filled last week when Student Council elected Bruce Mebine to Wood's position.

Wood resigned from his post after he obtained a part-time job, because he feared the job would interfere with his duties as a council member.

Mebine, who received a great majority of the council votes, ran against Gary Wayman, also a sophomore.

Vice president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, Mebine took the oath of office yesterday and is now an official member of council.

Besides electing Mebine, council also approved five budgets totaling $6744.25.

The budgets passed were the Associated Women Student budget for $676.25; convention budget for $562; administrative budget for $400; controller's budget for $3100, and drama budget for $2000.

There was quite a bit of discussion over the proposed drama budget among council members, because many could not understand why drama needed so much money.

That many members were opposed to granting the allotment was obvious in the vote which was seven for, five against and one abstention.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Bob Rogers announced that during Pledge Week the campus fraternities would participate in a "paint the student union" project. Members from different fraternities will paint the union and pull the weeds that surround the building.

Ram Booters Win Handily; Gridders Get Close Call

Offensive Splurge By Korbus Paces Leaders Past SF State, 7-0

By Vince Liu

Scoring early and often, the high flying City College soccer team romped to a 7-0 shutout victory over San Francisco State College last Wednesday for its third straight win.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's powerful squad will puts its perfect record on the line when it takes on tough California Aggies this Saturday at Balboa Soccer Stadium. The tilt is slated for 11 a.m.

Showing no sign of a letup after a crucial victory over University of California, the rampaging Ram booters continued the merciless onslaught on their opponents, this time at the expense of the Gators.

Al Korbus, the irrepressible All-Conference center-forward who has been driving opposing goalies crazy with his heavy bombing, kicked across five more goals in raising his three-game scoring total to an incredible 13.

On the very first offensive play of the game Ivan Burmudez took a pass from Dennis Minga and booted home the first tally with the contest barely 30 seconds old. That set the tempo for the Ram forward line.

With the Gators still wondering what hit them, Korbus tallied twice on quick passes from Minga and Vince Liu. Before the first quarter was history, Caesar Pina, possibly the best offensive halfback in the league, connected on a spectacular middle smash from 12 yards out to send his team to a 4-0 lead.

The heavy firing "cooled" down in the second stanza as the Gator eleven "held" the Red and White to one goal. A Korbus head shot off a high left from Dave Fromer gave the home forces a five-goal half-time lead.

Two more goals by Korbus, the one-man wrecking crew, in the third quarter prompted Diederichsen to clean his bench. In order to keep the scoring down.

The Ram defense was once again superb. Goalie Gary DeLong, the forgotten man on the field, probably had more concern with the possibility of catching a cold than with making saves as he had but a couple of shots to field all afternoon.

The halfback line, the backbone of a soccer team, has been the key of the Ram success thus far. Only through the smooth footwork of Pina, Fromer and Minga has the forward line been able to generate its attacks.

Team balance is another big factor in the Rams' current surge to the top. While the offense is leading the league with 19 goals in three games, the defense is the stingiest in the league with only a two-goal yield.

Local Eleven Still In Contention After 7-6 Thriller Over Stockton

By Ivan Temes

Showing a marked disregard for the statistics stacked heavily against them, the City College gridders took advantage of their biggest break of the year to eke out a fourth-quarter 7-6 decision over Stockton in Friday's rain-splattered Homecoming clash. It was the first win since 1953 for Grover Klemmer's men over the perennial Valley powerhouse.

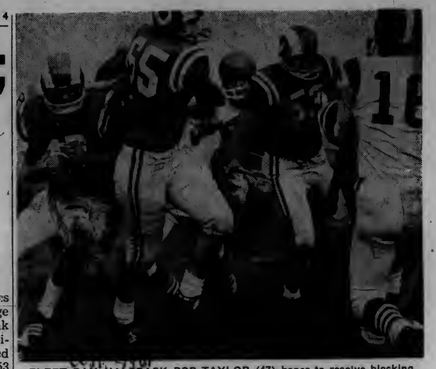
Sacramento deadlocked the Rams in second place with a 3-1 mark by downing Oakland, 26-12, as Big Eight leader San Mateo walloped Contra Costa, 54-6.

Picking up only 60 yards on the ground and outgained 289-92 overall, the victors got their big chance when a bad pass from center went between the legs of befuddled Mustang punter Tom Estes.

He finally caught up with the elusive pigskin on his own four-yard stripe, but Ram end Bill Fischer was right there to fall on Estes.

However, the staunch Stockton line stiffened, stopping Tom Piggee twice and Ron Coleman once, short of the goal. On fourth down, halfback Bob Taylor plunged one yard over the left side of his line to deadlock the score.

Here, center George Benkle, who earlier did a swan dive to block the Stockton extra-point attempt, was successful on the second placement kick of his career, but a strong trailing wind was necessary to aid the weird boot over the crossbar.



Neal Shea blocked an ensuing Stockton punt four plays later.

The Mustangs, who tallied in the second period on a seven-yard jump-pass from Rich Handel to end Roger Smith, almost squeezed out a victory in the final seconds as they marched from their own 20 to the winners' 25-yard line before the Ram secondary stiffened.

Winning Coach Klemmer lauded his defensive backfield, led by Piggee, Taylor, Coleman and John Daigle, for their play against much taller offensive ends all year, while line coach Alex Schwarz had nothing but praise for his forwards.

All four ends, Shea, Terry and Bill Fischer and Ray Greggains; tackles Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett; guards Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker, and centers Benkie and Cliff Vattuone had big moments in the win.

The Rams were irate over an apparent mistake by an official which cost them a clinching last-quarter score. Coleman made a great over-the-head grab of an 11-yard pass from Ben Winslow but the official, some 25 yards away from the play, ruled that the Ram speedster's feet landed out of the end zone.

FLEET RAM HALFBACK BOB TAYLOR (47) hopes to receive blocking like this when the college "11" takes on Oakland Friday. Taylor, who picked up 50 yards in the 19-6 win over Santa Rosa and had a brilliant 54-yard punt return nullified, follows Bill Wasley (65) and Clarence Scanlan (53) through the center of the line.—Guardsman photo by James Cook.

New 'Big 8' Christened Golden Gate League

The eight-team conference in which City College will participate next year has been officially named the Golden Gate League.

Officials from the member colleges will meet here December 8 to iron out final plans.

In a team election, the Ram football squad has chosen All-Conference fullback Tom Piggee and tackle Jim Baffico as cocaptains for the year.

BIG EIGHT STANDINGS

Team—	Won	Lost
San Mateo	4	0
San Francisco	3	1
Sacramento	3	1
Contra Costa	2	2
Santa Rosa	2	2
Stockton	2	2
Modesto	0	4
Oakland	0	4

Fencers To Attend Clinic Saturday

The college's fencing club will attend an all-day fencing clinic at Letermen General Hospital this Saturday, sponsored by the Fencing League of America and the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Association, of which the college is a member.

A meeting for judges and directors will be held in the afternoon, followed by competition in the evening. Lene Johnson, women's physical education instructor here, stated.

Because there are so many competent men fencers here this semester three men's fencing teams have been organized, with Harry Jorgensen serving as team captain for all three.

Clara Mark is team captain for the women's fencing team.

Outstanding fencers for both the men's and women's fencing teams are Harry Jorgensen, Bill Linder, Dan Eerly, Marcia Spears, Jennifer Renaide and Maureen Corrigan.

The Recreation Association is currently preparing for the all-college sports day on Saturday, November 18.

Murals Swing Into Second Week

This week's intramural basketball slate continues tonight as Zeta Phi Sigma meets Alpha Sigma and Alpha Kappa Rho meets Beta Tau at 7:15 and 8:15 o'clock, respectively, in the men's gymnasium.

Last week saw The Guardsman fall prey to the Collegiate Five by the score of 36-22, the Electroneers swamp the Newman Club 43-25, the Untouchables squeezed by the Alii 33-24 and the Believers win by forfeit over the Student Government team.

Zeta Phi Sigma ran over Beta Tau by the score of 34-20. The scheduled game between Alpha Kappa Rho and Zeta Phi was forfeited to Zeta Phi because Alpha Kappa Rho failed to appear for the game.

High scorer for the Collegiate Five was Ed Riee, who dunked 10 points. Dave Towner and Harbie Briscoe led the Untouchables with 14 and 9 points, respectively. Bill Nevins led the resurgent Guardsman team with nine points.

Sid Phelan, referee for the intramural games, stated that this semester's teams seem to be much stronger and more evenly balaneed.

Rams Tackle Oakland Friday; T-Birds Seek First Big 8 Win

When the Rams venture into Bushrod Stadium at 2 p.m. Friday to meet the Oakland Thunderbirds they may be wondering why a perennial powerhouse like the T-birds suddenly find themselves in last place.

"Injuries have done it," Coach Don Gabor moaned; "five first-stringers have been out of action, including our top end, 6-5, 225-pound Tim Grasso."

The Thunderbirds, who alternate between a single wing and a T-formation attack, have lost four straight games, three of them in Big Eight Conference play, including a 20-0 loss to Stockton 10 days ago.

This sets the stage for the Rams to seek revenge. Last year the locals were moving swiftly along toward the Big Eight title when they were hit and knocked sidesaddle by Oakland, 36-24.

The T-birds are minus All-Conference fullback Wendell Haynes, who put on a one-man show against the Rams last year, but Oakland is high on newcomer Dale Rubin, a 9.6 sprinter who made All-OAL at Oakland Technical High.

Ralph Melton, a reserve quarterback, pressed into duty for the ailing Willie Loughlin, has had his throwing problems, but could get back on line when Grasso returns this week.

If anything, the T-birds can claim the biggest lineman in the league in starling tackle, 285-pound Fred Pillars, 22 pounds heavier than the Rams' heaviest lineman.

On the home front the Rams, after dropping the league opener to top contender San Mateo, bounced back with two straight victories, Contra Costa 12-0, Santa Rosa 19-6.

Little Tom Piggee, an All-Big Eight back, showed why 10 days ago when he had his biggest day, racing for 163 yards in the Santa Rosa victory.

Bob Taylor, another speedster, proved an asset to the Rams since leaving the second string. Moved up to the first club after an injury sidelined starting halfback Al Raine, the speedy Taylor scored on a 12-yard romp and had a 55-yard punt return nullified by a penalty.

The Ram ground game, with blocking up front from Cliff Vattuone, Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea, Jim Baffico, Dennis Drucker and Jack Burgett has worked well.

Tracksters Face Tough Opponents In Coming Meet

Tough competition faces Coach Lou Vasquez's cross-country team tomorrow as it meets Sacramento, San Mateo and Stockton at Golden Gate Park.

Last week the runners met San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Modesto and Stockton for the second Big Eight meet. Monday the Red and White distance men went to Modesto for a meet.

At the first league meet of the semester the Red and White topped Oakland, Contra Costa and Stockton in Big Eight competition, while also beating Diablo Valley in a practice meet.

San Francisco State College Invitational was the next event for the team. The college placed third in the two-year college division.

Top man for the college in the first meet was José Valle with a blazing 15:51 time for the three-mile run. Running second to him was teammate Steve Jackson with a 16:02 mark. Sparling of Oakland ran third, closely followed by John Weidinger and Andy Loobey, both of this college, placing fourth and fifth, respectively.

Also running for the college were George Varmuza, John Arberry and Peter Giachetti.

Weight Room Gives Students Chance To Keep Pace With U. S. Trend

The weight room, located in the men's gymnasium, is rapidly growing into a major phase of the athletic program.

Only in existence for two semesters it is now used for regular physical education classes and for students who want to work out.

There is a national trend toward weight-lifting in athletics. Evidence of this is that all of the professional football teams send out pamphlets on physical fitness to their rookies to offer advice on how to get in shape before their practice begins.

According to Sid Phelan, weight room instructor, there are three reasons for the room's popularity. Students want to improve their appearance and condition and gain proficiency in athletics.

Diederichsen Hopes For Title Contest

NO MATTER what happens the rest of the year, the powerful City College soccer team can count its season as a highly successful one.

Actually, it's highly unlikely that the team will suffer any defeats, but just to make sure Roy Diederichsen's talent-laden eleven completely outclassed their closest tormentor, Cal, by a lopsided 5-2 margin.

Cal Coach Bob DiGrazia didn't mince any words as he flatly declared, "You, undoubtedly, have the best two-year college team in the country."

Led by sure-fire All-American Al Korbus, who booted through the amazing total of eight goals in his first two games, the Rams may even have the best college team—bar none—in the nation.

DiGrazia, whose club was edged in last year's NCAA regionals by champion St. Louis, felt the Rams could certainly battle the Midwest outfit on an even basis.

"However," he cautioned, "they play awfully aggressive ball and have already suffered two broken legs this year, one in their own practice."

"Their superior size would be an advantage, but such a match would be an interesting one to watch."

However, such a contest — one which would compare favorably for thrills with any sports event in the country—can never come about.

The Rams, sole two-year college entry in the NCISC, can amuse themselves all year knocking off the likes of Cal, Stanford, San Jose State, et al, but should they want to advance any further the college is left out in the cold.

Under the NCAA's archaic system only four-year colleges can compete in the nationals. Last year a possible national junior college championship game matching the Rams against Orange County (New York) fell through because the state frowns on out of state championships.

Diederichsen still retains hope that a national title game can be arranged this year. Says the successful college mentor, "Last year there were some complaints because we had three first string All-Americans (Jim Lynch, now with USF, Dave Kingsley and Bob Papara).

"With our team we could have had five or six, and I'd sure like to show these Eastern teams how strong we are."

This year's team may not have the big names of last year's squad but, according to Julie Menendez, San Jose State coach, DiGrazia and Diederichsen, the men have displayed much more of a team effort, which surpasses last year's club.

The offense, aided mainly by Caesar Pina, Ivan Bermudez and Roberto Salazar, is centered around Korbus and Flavio Valiente, while Dave Fromer, Dennis Minga and Hugo Olaya head a strong defense.

Goalie Gary DeLong is rated an All-American candidate, and he showed tremendous courage playing against Cal while still suffering the after-effects of a tonsil operation.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

Optimism Prevails Over Soccer Team

IFC Pledge Week Plans Include Student Union Cleanup, Games, 'At Last' Dance November 17

Plans for Pledge Week by the Inter-Fraternity Council include a program to clean and paint the student union by the pledges and the IFC-sponsored dance and pledge games, Bob Rogers, IFC president, revealed today.

The IFC, co-ordinating with the Inter-Sorority Council, will assist in delegating pledges to the union clean-up. Pledge Week commences next Monday and ends with IFC's dance Friday night.

"IFC has gone all out to present to the Associated Students a dance which will properly end Pledge Week, the outstanding IFC affair of the semester," Rogers stated.

The dance is themed At Last, a semiformal affair, presented in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, featuring the seven-piece band of Sal Vance, from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Rogers stated that this semester's Pledge Week will consist of four days, eliminating Wednesday, with the regular pledging activities slated for the cafeteria between 7:30 and 11 a.m.

Fraternity pledges, George Cook, student union comanager said, will clear the grounds surrounding the shack of weeds, also paint the new archway connecting the two rooms composing the union.

The sorority pledges are expected to fashion curtains and possibly some tablecloths for the inside of the shack, Cook commented, "to lend a pleasant atmosphere to the plain rooms."

ISC will send pledges to decorate Smith Hall before and clean up following the AWS fashion show and tea. The decorations will include dried leaf arrangements.

During College Hour November 17 IFC will sponsor the semiannual pledge games in the college stadium, where fraternity pledges compete against each other for an overall perpetual trophy.

Pie eating, egg throwing, balloon blowing contests and a relay are scheduled for the games.

Petition Forms For AS Election Due Nov. 30

Elections for Associated Student officers to serve during the spring semester will be held on January 3 and 4, Ed Ayalin, election commissioner, announced today.

Petition forms for the six elective offices are now available to prospective candidates and should be turned in not later than 1 p.m. Thursday, November 30, to the AS office, S-134.

Fifteen signatures of AS cardholders and two 5 by 7 inch photographs of the candidate should accompany each petition, Ayalin said.

He added that information about the duties of each office can be found in the constitution of the Associated Students, available at the AS office.

A 2-point grade average is necessary upon filing a form of candidacy and qualifications for offices are based on work units completed.

Aspirants for AS president and vice president must have completed 45 but not more than 60 units of study.

To be eligible for the Associated Men Student and Associated Women Student presidencies candidates must have completed 30 but not more than 60 units.

Twenty-eight units for Sophomore Class president and 15 for Freshman president qualify a student for candidacy.

Pre-election debates and a rally are planned, though no details are available at the present time, Ayalin disclosed.

Election stunts will be permitted provided they are sanctioned by Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman and Ayalin himself.

A poll of the students will probably be taken after the election to obtain opinions and suggestions concerning the semiannual event.

Drama To Stage West Coast First

The only West Coast production of The Death Of Bessie Smith, which is currently playing off Broadway and had a recent opening in London, will be presented by the college drama department tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the theater.

Michael Griffin, drama director, secured the rights to do the show provided there would be only one performance which would not be opened to the public, no admission charged and no publicity.

The play has a cast of eight players, and although the theme is concerned with racial problems in this country, the central idea is "the disparity between things as they are, and as they should be" in the life of each character.

Griffin's production will be performed in the round with no scenery nor costumes and props.

AWS Hosts Fashion Show And Tea Next Wednesday

Autumn Daze, the Associated Women Student fashion show and tea, will be presented next Wednesday in Smith Hall, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced today.

Present plans as scheduled for the show provided that at 3 p.m. refreshments of tea and cookies will be served in the fountain room of Smith Hall. At 3:30 p.m. the program will begin in the larger section.

Fifteen senior women from each of the San Francisco high schools and all AWS here have been invited.

Four new members of the college faculty have also been asked to attend as special guests. They are Mildred Johnson, Frances Galloway, Norma Carlisle and Marian McDermott.

Special entertainment and modeling of the fashions will be included in the program. Miss Doudiet said that a variety of "international flavor and amusement" will be presented in the show.

The theme of the show will have for its decor the corresponding seasonal colors of brown, gold, orange and yellow. It will last from 3 to 5 p.m.

Escorts are being selected from men students who have volunteered recently.

Homecoming Hails Queen

HOMECOMING Queen Linda Hines was sponsored by Alpha Sigma Delta, recipient of the Homecoming spirit trophy. This award was given by the Sophomore Class. —Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

Although dampened slightly by the weather and the cancellation of the annual dance, the 1961 Homecoming was considered "highly successful," according to Fred Cherniss, president of the Council of Organizations, which directed the event.

Pretty five-foot three-inch Linda Ann Hines, sponsored by Alpha Sigma Delta, who was elected Homecoming Queen by Associated Student vote, was crowned during College Hour and reigned over the day's activities.

She presented the spirit trophy, a new cup awarded to the campus organization contributing most to Homecoming, to Alpha Sigma Delta at halftime of the football game, and at the game's conclusion she presented Ram tackle Jim Baffico with the Most Valuable Player Award.

Although rain poured at halftime, the crowd was the largest the Rams have drawn this year, and the 7-6 comeback win over Stockton College, the first victory over the Mustangs in eight years, was a perfect climax to the day.

Runners-up to Miss Hines in order were Suzanne Murphy, sponsored by Beta Tau, Carolyn Wall by Newman Club and Danie Deryana by Zeta Phi Sigma. All received trophies.

First place in the car parade went to Alpha Sigma Delta, second place to Beta Tau and Zeta Phi Sigma took the third spot. Eight cars participated, five from fraternities, three from clubs.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of, San Francisco

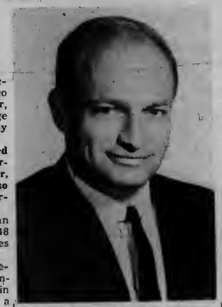
VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1961 NUMBER 7

James Schwabacher To Give Theater Recital During C-Hour

Concert Star Is Printing Exec

Featuring James Schwabacher, accomplished tenor of San Francisco and former Stanford music instructor, the second student-faculty College Hour concert will be held this Friday in the theater.

Schwabacher, who has appeared several times with the symphony orchestras of Cincinnati, Vancouver, Portland and San Francisco, has also served as leading tenor for the Carmel Bach Festival for 11 seasons.



He made his debut with the San Francisco Opera Company in 1948 and has, since then, sung 14 roles with that company.

In 1953 Schwabacher made his debut with the San Francisco Symphony in the role of the evangelist in the St. Matthew Passion by Bach, a role which he repeated during the last symphony season.

In chamber music recitals he has appeared with the Budapest Quartet, the Griller Quartet, the American Arts and he was invited to be the first singer to appear with the San Francisco String Quartet.

In the winter of 1962 Schwabacher will make his debut in New York City at a recital at Town Hall.

As an instructor at Stanford, he conducted the Glee Club, coached in the Opera Workshop and gave courses in music history and appreciation.

TENOR SCHWABACHER, who will appear in the college theater this Friday, gave the Opera Preview for the first season of Spring Opera of San Francisco this May. He created for West Coast audiences roles in Peter Grimes by Britten and The Rake's Progress by Stravinsky.

Artist To Make New York Debut

He recently completed a series of six symphony programs over KQED and in previous years was engaged as opera commentator for radio station KEAR.

Schwabacher also did a 20-program TV series on The History Of Song in 1958. On this program he introduced young artists of the Bay Area and was also the principal singer and commentator.

Very active in musical functions in the area, Schwabacher has acted as master of ceremonies at the San Francisco Opera Fol-De-Rol for two consecutive years.

He is president of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation, chairman of the Merola Memorial Training Program for young singers, and a member of the Artists and Repertoire Committee of both the San Francisco Symphony and the newly formed Spring Opera.

Besides his musical interests he is president of Schwabacher-Frey, one of the largest printing concerns in the western United States, and is also a member of the Republican Alliance, an organization of business and professional men who are interested in active participation in politics.

Committee On Scholarships Announces Six Fall Awards

To assist students who need financial aid the Committee on Scholarships here will award six scholarships, one amounting to $300, during the fall semester, according to Mary Golding, dean of women.

The depository for application and general scholarship information is the dean of women's office. In most cases, recommendations are written by the deans of men or women.

The deadline for submitting applications for scholarships is December 1.

Since only six scholarships are being offered in the fall semester, students are urged to include the statement that they are willing to accept one of the 24 scholarships to be presented in the spring semester, Dean Golding said.

With the exception of two scholarships awarded by the Chinese Students Club to high school seniors who have financial difficulties, all scholarships require the superior achievement of a student, proven during at least one semester.

Other factors taken into account are character, activities of the student in and out of school, and the promise of his continual success.

One of the six scholarships offered in fall semester, the James Denman scholarship, presents $150 to two women students with outstanding records who are graduates of a San Francisco public high school. The Chinese Club scholarship is from the club's Sweetheart Ball proceeds.

Radio-TV Department Plans Tenor Telecast

Because of the excepted overflow crowd predicted to hear James Schwabacher sing this Friday, the radio - television department will televise the program this Friday in the choral room, A-123, at 9:55. Henry Leff, radio - television instructor here, said today.

The actual performance will be held in the arts building theater during College Hour.

The radio-television department plans to set up a camera in the theater, and have a television monitor in the choral room.

New UC Ruling Stiffens Transfer Requirements

Transfer requirements for students with high school deficiencies in courses or grades will be stiffened by the University of California beginning with the Fall 1962 semester, according to UC's latest college catalogue.

The new ruling will require transfer students with high school deficiences to complete 56 units with a grade point average not lower than 2.4; however, the student must have taken courses acceptable for removing high school deficiencies.

Presently a student with high school deficiencies can transfer to UC upon completion of a minimum of 30 units of transfer courses with a 2.4 average or higher.

As an alternative to making up high school subject deficiencies, a student may be admitted if he completes 60 or more units of transfer courses with a 2.4 grade point average which must include all of the subjects required for a junior standing at UC.

All transfer students must also pass their college board examination.

Wilkening Optimistic, Pleased At First AS Press Conference

(Editor's note: Associated Student President Gary Wilkening broke precedent by holding the first AS press conference in the college's history and plans another similar interview the first part of December.)

Members of the Associated Students:

Before my report to you I would like to thank The Guardsman, KCSF and CCTV for their co-operation in making this message possible.

I would first like to mention that the Associated Students number close to 3000 this semester. This figure is a record since 1948, but I might add that Student Council is again having difficulty in operating on such a small budget.

The Northern Regional conference for student leaders was a big success for delegates from City College. I received fine reports from the delegates and President Conlan has expressed approval of a job well done. We now have many ideas which will improve student life at the college.

The student union is operating very well this semester, according to George Cook and Paul Steiner. The average attendance is about 75 to 100 students per day. This figure is well above the average for last semester.

The Freshman and Sophomore Classes are running very smoothly. Greg Monk and Dan Collins are doing a fine job. The Freshman Ball was a huge success and the coming Soph Boll is expected to be the same.

The Council of Organizations is operating better than expected. Fred Cherniss has matters well in haud, and the Homecoming was the best in five years here thanks to the people who stayed during the rain.

I would like to remind you about the approaching Associated Student elections. If you are considering running for an office please sign up in the AS office, S-134.

Look for some interesting developments in Student Council in the coming weeks.

I will try to inform you in December about events and happenings between now and then. Thank you,

Gary Wilkening, President

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. 53, No. 7 | WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1961 | Page 2

Bombs, Fallout, Fear Reign... There's Still Time, Brother!

WHEN F.D.R. determinedly stated, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself" in his inaugural address in 1933 he greatly comforted the minds of a people in the midst of their greatest economic depression. MONEY MEANS MUCH TO MANY.

But what about J.F.K. today?

What can President Kennedy say to comfort the distressed and perplexed millions who are caught in their greatest mental depression? LIFE IS DEAR TO ALL.

The key to the causes of both these depressions lies in the past.

The former had its roots in the preceding decade with Harding's normalcy and Coolidge's complacency; the latter had its roots, or should we say scars, dug deep under the rubble and ruin of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945.

About the only comfort Kennedy can give us might be, "The only things we have to fear are ICBMs, 50 megaton bombs and Strontium 90, but if we perish, it will be as a free people."

Even without being so pessimistic and fatalistic, we find it difficult to argue with two basic facts: nuclear fission and human frailty; we find it not only difficult to refute them, but difficult to escape them.

As a student of higher education and "future leader" of the world what is the collegian's outlook? It seems that he tries to be optimistic, but the older and more "life-worn" society around him frowns on his fortune and stifles his spirit.

If young adults today are lucky enough to sustain a full life expectancy, what will that life be like? The Atom Age could certainly offer many physical comforts if peace is the goal. Yet the choice between good and evil in history has been quite one-sided.

As long as the power to destroy himself exists, man will become more and more psychologically defensive and socially restrictive, to wit:

1) Students at Berkeley last week put their energies into a 24-hour vigil to protest the explosion of Khrushchev's biggest bomb to date. It went off anyway. Their time and effort could have been used for a much more constructive project.

2) Young marriages are becoming more acceptable all the time. Perhaps it's unconscious, but high schoolers are unsure of the future and want to live as full a life right now, not maybe tomorrow.

3) Even the style of prose writing is affected. Humor is high on the best-seller list. People want to forget about the profound and the dramatic. Even more significant is modern poetry. Many find it hard to understand because the poet has such a sense of inner insecurity he himself can't be sure of what he wants to write.

The loosening of the standards for morality can also be attributed to the "What's the use" and "I don't care anymore" attitudes of today.

But don't stop studying, students. There's only one thing that can save us from all this: KNOWLEDGE, for from knowledge comes TRUTH.

College Hour Horizons Expand Culturally

SOME INSTRUCTORS here have often referred to the weekly College Hour idea as a complete waste of time, or more loosely, just plain "play-hour."

However, this semester's College Hour activities offer perhaps the best quality and variety of lectures, concerts and drama productions that have been scheduled here for a long time.

Among visiting notables appearing in College Hour programs to date have been actor Rod Steiger, Indian dancer Ishvani, West Coast representative for the Peace Corps, Peter Grothe, and educator Margaret Adams. Scheduled for the November 10 concert is tenor James Schwabacher.

Science Fiction Paperbacks 'Invade' Ramporium Shelves

Science fiction paperbacks have invaded the shelves of the Ramporium, taking a stand among an estimated 1600 paperback books. These books are selling rapidly, complying with staggering popular demand.

If a student ever wonders what it would be like to awaken after a prolonged sleep, finding himself one of only a few human beings on earth, he would certainly be interested in reading Genus Homo, by L. Sprage de Camp and P. Schuyler Miller.

Among other popular science fiction books supplied by the bookstore are the following:

The Martian Chronicle, a highly imaginative epic of life on other planets; a look into the future with The Time Maehine; The Clock Strikes 12, a collection of macabre tales of the supernatural, and a composite of Star Science Fiction Stories, edited by Frederik Pohl.

Various new supplies for both academic assistance and personal use which were not previously in stock are now available. Loose-leaf Webster's dictionaries in French and Spanish are also available, along with other foreign language dictionaries.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieve
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cantrell
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Hauser, Jerry Littrell, Herman Kilgerman, Dave Kleinberg.

Reporters: Diane Kinsky, Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu, Peter Oppenheimer.

Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McConthe, John McShane, Patricia Neider, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.

Photographers: Estsardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Blind Teacher Exemplifies . . .

Onvia Ticer Adapts System To Class Needs

(Editor's note: Harry Cordellos, sightless photo-journalism student here, combined his talents to produce the following story and photographs. Students may remember Cordellos' photo-portrait of Dean Ralph Hillsman which was published in The Guardsman last semester.)

By Harry Cordellos

On Friday during College Hour the faculty and students are invited to see and hear a program presented by a most interesting guest. She is Onvia Ticer, a teacher of the third grade at Grant school in San Lorenzo.

Most interesting about Miss Ticer is the fact that she conducts a normal class and stimulates great interest among her students, though she is totally blind.

Her imagination and inventive talent have enabled her to come up with techniques which enable her to do the things most people would say were impossible.

During her program in S-100 on Friday during College Hour, Miss Ticer will discuss some of the situations which face every blind person seeking a normal occupation.

Her slide and tape presentation, The Blind On The Job, presents clear illustration of her point.

In the few years which she taught before 1957 Miss Ticer had partial sight.

However, she depended mainly upon the blind techniques which she had learned previously at the Oakland Orientation Center for the Blind. She recognized the children mainly by their voices. Her partial vision enabled her to recognize them by what they were wearing.

Late in 1957 Miss Ticer suddenly became totally blind. At this time she was teaching a class of 40 fourth graders. After having an eye operation she returned to her classroom with the idea that she would continue her work.

How did she feel about walking into her class totally blind?

"I knew I could do it," Miss Ticer said, "because my sight was not the thing that made me a teacher in the first place." Although she did not know right then how she would handle everything, Miss Ticer immediately began developing methods of conducting her class as a totally blind teacher.

At present Miss Ticer is teaching the third grade. Her class is still composed of children with a wide variety of interests and intelligence.

Her success in teaching is greatly due to the fact that she takes an extreme interest in all of her children, and plans her lessons to fit their interests. This is demonstrated in her method of teaching arithmetic.

The children are allowed to make problems with people they know and like to talk about rather than using the ones in the book.

Third graders in other classes and those in Miss Ticer's class learn the same things and in the same way. The children do arithmetic with flash cards just as in any other class.

However, the cards are Brailled and, therefore, enable Miss Ticer to know just what the children are reading. Demonstrations are also given on the blackboard. By placing one finger on the board and writing from that point with the other hand, Miss Ticer can tell where to begin the second line.

Written work is handled by a reader, and the reading lessons are recorded on tape. After studying the tapes a few Braille notations enable Miss Ticer to keep track of where the children are reading in their books.

Despite her systematic approach to teaching, Miss Ticer never refuses

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

IN THE CLASSROOM . . . The owl on the girl's dress (left) seemingly winks at the camera as blind photographer Harry Cordellos snaps the shutter to capture sightless Onvia Ticer teaching her third grade class in San Lorenzo's Grant elementary school.

Magic, Courtesy Elizabethan Era

Theater In The Round Brings Drama Success

Theater in the round is providing an overdue experience for the arts building theater—packed houses.

Incredibly enough, Michael Griffin, drama director here, turned away 1000 persons from his two College Hour performances of Pullman Car Hiawatha by Thornton Wilder.

The second production, which included Ionesco's Foursome and Before Breakfast by Eugene O'Neill, played to a capacity crowd of 50 persons plus those standing. More than 100 were turned away from this show.

What sort of magic is theater in the round that it can compel the interest of so many when extensive publicity schemes failed to promote drama activities last year?

Those who have the opportunity to see Griffin's experimental theater find themselves seated in a circle on a darkened stage under a tent-like formation of canvas.

The actors enter from two openings in the circle and gather in the center of an audience seated around them on folding chairs. Quietly someone in the east explains a set that exists only in the imagination.

A story begins to unfold as the actors take their places and, without the aid of extensive costumes, scenery and props, the audience, along with the actors they can reach out to touch, becomes absorbed in an experience originally created in the mind of a playwright who hoped it would be meaningful to them.

One example of the rapport that is achieved between audience and actor was demonstrated by two students who discussed the presentation of Before Breakfast.

The first student remarked that he did not like the set. It was too dark and dingy, he said, because the walls were painted a musty grey. The second student disagreed. The set was not dark nor dingy, and the walls were not grey, but an eggshell color.

What both students failed to realize was that there were no sets and the different effects they perceived were products of their individual imaginations.

Theater in the round has made its mark on the campus just as it did with the Elizabethans in the past and will continue to do in the future.

Soccer is by far the world's most popular spectator sport, its yearly attendance throughout the world nearly doubling that of supposed "king" baseball.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

• Missing Owner

Editor, The Guardsman:

The following letter was addressed to me, and if the "cynical young college man" is one of our students, he can come to me for help in recovering his jacket.

Ralph Hillsman
Dean of Men

Dear Sir:

This letter is being written in the dual hope that a wrong can be righted and that a cynical young college man can have at least a small measure of faith in people restored. As a believer in America, I think that this is important.

On October 21, by mistake I picked up a zipper-type jacket at the Phntages theater in Hollywood, thinking it was mine. I discovered the error the next day and telephoned the theater.

I learned that the owner, a collegian, had spent an hour that night looking for the jacket and was so upset and angry that he refused either to give his name or to report the episode to the authorities.

The theater manager quoted him as saying, "What's the use? It's gone and I'll never get it back." The manager was not able to find out where the young man attended college.

The only lead is that the owner said, "At college we always leave our lockers open and nothing is ever missing."

This letter is being sent to each college and university which offers academic courses in the Los Angeles area and to a few more remotely located. It is my hope that the owner can be located so the jacket can be returned.

May I ask your assistance in doing whatever you feel may help in locating the young man in the event he may be attending your college?

SICK! Sick! sick?

'Recuperation' Tops Alibis

Some people at times have been accused of a sick sense of humor, but occasionally one finds the case where sickness is the humor.

Each day produces a few gems at City College from the invalids who report their illnesses in S-136. Most general excuses for absences are colds, flus and headaches.

Looking through the files one can find these alibis: "I couldn't get up," "I was tired," "Very tired and groudgy," "Bee sting," "Heat exhaustion (in San Francisco?), "Sick to stomach" (of what?).

One student said, "Vomiting due to nervous stomach."

Other common, unorthodox excuses are gum diseases and automobile accidents, but the "Sat on a nail" by a student who was out five days seems like something made up.

The spelling habits of some of the sick are almost as morbid. Flu is spelled flue, floo and flew (did someone really fly?). "Stumik flew" occurs occasionally.

"Direa" for diarrhea, and the hemorrhage is often crossed out before it becomes "bleeding." One student had a "celt hand."

Stanley Swanson, accountant here who handles much of the attendance figures, reports most absences occur at midsemester, explaining that at the beginning of the semester students feel they can not afford to miss a class, and at the end, of course, final examinations chill any would-be cutters.

Some students, Swanson said, even misspell their own names, and he considers the prize excuse, "Rest and recuperation."

"In checking back on them," Swanson smiled, "I usually found rest and recuperation came in on the Monday excuses."

. . . Blind On The Job—Friday

Key Word To Her Methods Is Organization

(Continued from Page 2)

the chance to apply a newer technique. She is constantly trying out newer ways of doing the things she already does well.

Her carefully made plans for a lesson were interrupted last week when a child brought a bird nest to school.

"You can never miss a chance to teach," says Miss Ticer. "The children wanted to learn about bird nests now and not some time in the future."

The key word in Miss Ticer's method is "Organization." Chairmen and monitors are appointed to handle classroom duties just as in any other class. The class is divided into groups in order that all of the children can be kept busy.

In her physical education class Miss Ticer has the class spread out over four play areas. Each day a different group moves to a different area.

While watching over the children on the playground bars, she is constantly aware of what the other children are doing. By staying a few minutes at each play area, Miss Ticer keeps everyone busy and co-operative.

As a result of her imagination and desire to succeed, Miss Ticer is called upon to do extra duties just as any of the other teachers at Grant school.

Her main duty is to handle the cafeteria at lunch time. This involves taking care or from 150 to 200 children. Each class has a host and a hostess who see that the children get their lunches and find seats.

With her keen sense of hearing Miss Ticer takes care of all of the discipline problems herself. The children respect her but do not feel sorry for her.

Rather than scolding children for what they have done, she explains to them what it would be like if others did the same thing. The children are taught to realize why they should not do certain things rather than just being told "no."

Outside of school Miss Ticer is an active member of the Alameda County Club of Adult Blind. This is an organization of blind people who work together toward normal and productive lives instead of lives of sympathy.

With her determination and leadership it is easily explainable why Miss Ticer served as president of the club for several terms of office.

ON THE PLAYGROUND . . . The children may indulge in a little horseplay with our cameraman, Harry Cordellos, while Miss Ticer "watches" over the whole class with her keen sense of hearing. She spends equal time in each of four play areas. Here she attends the group on the monkey bars.

Talented Cordellos

HARRY CORDELLOS, Guardsman photographer, turned reporter to get the story which accompanies his pictures on these pages. Though totally blind, Cordellos poses his subjects, adjusts and focuses his camera entirely on his own. He hopes to work in a training center for the blind.

Club Cavalcade

Newman Club Calendar Lists Thanksgiving Dance Nov. 22

THE Christian Collegiate Fellowship plans a bowling party at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday at a place to be announced on KCSF this week.

The fellowship also will hear Dick Plamquecrest, general manager of Radio Station KEAR-FM, discuss opportunities in radio work. Other students are invited to attend.

A film will be shown for members of the Chinese Students Club on November 17 during College Hour. The movie will show scenes from a Chinese opera with English translation. Location will be announced on KCSF.

Members of and visitors to the Newman Club may expect a movie to be shown on November 17 during College Hour in S-204.

Students of the college are also invited to a Thanksgiving dance, sponsored by Newman Club. The dress is casual and the time is 9 p.m. to midnight, Wednesday, November 22, at St. Emydius gymnasium, 256 Jules avenue.

The Christian Science Organization will hold its regular meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-101.

The Student California Teachers Association will host a speaker, Onvia Ticer, a totally blind teacher, this Friday during College Hour in S-100. All interested students are invited to attend.

On the following Friday, November 17, during College hour the Student California Teachers Association will sponsor another guest speaker. At this time, in C-269, Carlos Ruling, assistant principal of Francis Scott Key elementary school, will talk on The Place Of The Male Teacher in Elementary Educaiton. A large attendanee is expected.

APOLOGY

Club Cavalcade regrets that it inadvertently confused activities of two of the campus clubs last week. Collciate Christian Fellowship and the Christian Science Organization are separate groups. Club Cavalcade hereby apologizes for its error.

CAB Prepares For Christmas Drive

Kickoff for the annual Club Activities Board Christmas Drive here will be held on Monday, December 4, and continue through Friday, December 8, George Woo, CAB president, stated yesterday.

Helping to feed a needy family during the Christmas season is the primary purpose of the drive, Woo emphasized.

This year three committees have been assigned to handle the Christmas Drive, under the chairmanship of Jenny Tom, CAB representative from the Chinese Students Club.

The method which will be used to procure money for the needy family's food, will be the coffee cans which are to be distributed among clubs, fraternities and sororities, and used as collection tins.

Young Republicans Organize Unit Here

Assembly Bill Opens Door For Party Organizations On Campus

Taking advantage of the Assembly bill which allows increased political participation in two-year colleges, the Young Republicans of San Francisco have formed a unit at City College.

With high hopes for the new "party," Dave Hoag, appointed by the San Francisco group as organizational chairman of the unit, has announced that the opening meeting will be held during College Hour Friday in A-301.

Assembly Bill No. 2512, a major breakthrough toward increasing the scope and importance of California's many two-year colleges, was signed by Governor Edmund G. Brown on July 6, 1961, to culminate a vigorous drive headed by Fred Lipman, Northern Region vice president of the College Federation.

A phone call from Assemblyman Milton Marks to Dean of Men Ralph O. Hillsman confirmed the college's right to have political organizations.

Hoag states that members must be between 18 and 41 years of age, and that there will be three types of participants, regular, associate and honorary.

The local branch has set up four objectives including "support of the Republican Party, its principles and candidates" in addition to the "encouragement of constructive thinking among young people, and development of their interest in good government."

Also advocated are the "development of young Republicans as leaders in local, state and national government" and "uniting of young people in a spirit of good fellowship to achieve these objectives."

After a recommendation by Hillsman, Don May was appointed to serve as college service chairman from the San Francisco unit. It is also expected that a faculty sponsor will be named soon.—By I.T.

Floristry Christmas Project Starts Today

Corsages, bow ties and tiaras will be available to all students and members of the faculty beginning today, through a project sponsored by the Retail Floristry Club in S-117, Maryhope Jacks, club sponsor, said yesterday.

Orders will be taken starting at 1 p.m. today and will continue until Christmas vacation.

Proceeds from these sales will go toward the Club Activities Board Christmas charity drive.

During the Christmas vacation the funds raised by the CAB will be distributed to various orphanages and needy organizations.

Red and white velvet tiaras, felt bow ties and snowflake earrings will go on sale for $1.50 apiece. Corsages will sell for 75 cents and $1. A set of earrings and a corsage will cost $1.75.

Photography West Theme Of Display In Cloud Gallery

Photography West is the theme of the photography exhibit now on display in the Cloud Hall gallery. These prints, on exhibit until Friday, are made by professional photographers of Northern California, according to Charles Lamp, photography instructor here.

The prints were recently exhibited at the 15th annual San Francisco Art Festival and also at state and national conventions. About 30 per cent of the prints on exhibit are in color.

After Friday these prints will be forwarded to the department of photography at San Jose State College and thence to Oakland City College.

Professional photographers who have prints on exhibit ineludes Zeferino Castillo of Richmond, Chris Der Manuelian of San Mateo, Don Faulkner of San Francisco, Jerry Gruman of San Mateo, Walter Hagemann and Dennis Hodgson of San Francisco.

John Jogoda of Richmond, Douglas Mack of San Francisco, Hubert Miller of Stockton, William Owyand of San Francisco, George Perry of Richmond, William Skeahan of Oakland, George Thanos of South San Francisco, and Don Tong and Miriam Toren of San Francisco.

Robert Toren and Henri Van Wandelen of San Francisco and Les Walsh of San Rafael.

Assembly Bill 2512

Assembly Bill No. 2512, passed in July, 1961, provides:

"Any political organization which is affiliated with the official youth division of any political party that is on the ballot of the State of California may hold meetings on a junior college campus and may distribute bulletins and circulars concerning its meetings, provided that there is no endorsement of such organization by the school authorities and no interference with the regular educational program of the school."

Student Council Sends Five To State Conference

By Bob Hacker

Five Associated Student leaders are slated to attend the California Junior College Student Government Association conference to be held November 16 through 18 in Fresno.

The five will participate in specific conference workshops.

Those attending and their respective workshops are as follows: Gary Wilkening and Larry Levin, cochairmen of conference reorganization; Bob Perkins, state information chairman; Sue Murphy, student government, and Sue Mount, communications.

Kathy Hallock and Dan Collins will serve as alternates if one of the other members cannot attend the conference.

Budgets were the main topics of discussion during the 13th and 14th meetings of council last week.

After being presented with six budgets council, with little discussion, passed each one for a total of $10,346.93.

This means that to date council has approved at least $20,500.00 in various budgets.

Budgets that were passed last week include the Recreation Association budget for $670.60, Associated Men Students for $424.58, Rally for $752.85, Guardsman for $4869.40, Freshman Class for $636.78, and Campus Police for $2992.72.

Most of the budgets were passed easily as council members had studied them previously and were familiar with them.

Kathy Henderson, Associated Student vice president, announced that there is a vacancy in council, a freshman sent. A replacement is needed for Madeline Price, who filed a leave of absence.

Miss Henderson stated that nominations for the position will be taken and voted upon this week.

Counterpoint

Restaurants DO Cater To Tight Budgets

By Dick Dragavon

LIVING in a city known for its fine eating places can have its drawbacks as anyone knows who has entered any of the more famous establishments here and who has left with a badly deflated wallet or ego, or both.

People who are on a college student's budget in particular often find it difficult to locate an eating place where they can delight their dates on a big night.

There are, however, many places where a person can obtain an excellent meal and stay well below a limit of $4 per person.

One is The Captain's Galley located at 38° 48' North latitude and 122° 27' West longitude, which by coincidence happens to be 2241 Chestnut street.

Here the menu is primarily German and ranges from $2.90 for beef simmered in cream, all the way to $6.40 for a specially prepared steak. In between, though, are delicious entrees, such as sweetbreads in a cream sauce and steak suffed with smoked ham, which will satisfy the most discriminating taste.

The customer is warned on the menu that he should taste his food before adding salt as "all the cooking is done in the kitchen and it is not expected to be continued at the table."

The menu also states flatly, "Ketchup is not available," and "The chef cannot be hurried."

Meals include soup (of the day) and salad. The Captain's Galley also boasts of a chef who can prepare almost any meal of any European country if given advance notice.

From the moment one enters this candlelit restaurant till he leaves, comfortably full, the customer will be charmed. It is the kind of spot which leaves a person feeling that only he and the other 40 or so diners who are in there know about it.

From across the channel, the food featured at The Coachman is English.

The only problem one will encounter at this establishment at 1057 Powell street will be finding a free parking place. It may be necessary to break down and park at a nearby garage, but it will be worthwhile.

The route to one's table may lead through the kitchen, but the patron is pampered when the continental waiter spreads the napkin on the diner's lap.

The highest priced item is the English Mixed Grill at $3.75, which the diner will discover to be generous portions of steak, chops, sausage, kidney and mushroom.

The meat here can practically be cut with the edge of the fork, but the flavor remains hearty.

Steak and kidney pie will satisfy the more robust appetites; it is a feast par excellence at $2.75.

Both The Captain's Galley and The Coachman are small, seating probably about 40 to 50 dining enthusiasts at a time.

For the more American-orientated appetites there is no better roast prime rib of beef available at any price than that which is served at Ed's Chuck Wagon, situated in San Francisco at 2036 Lombard.

Ed's serves roast beef and chicken every day, but has one other entree which changes; for instance, on Monday, Thursday and Saturday nights cued spare ribs are offered, Tuesday it's ham, Wednesday one may choose swiss steak, Friday fish is available, and on Sunday one may feast on roast turkey.

The feature here is that for $2.88 (which rounds out neatly to $3 when the tax is added) a person may eat until he is filled, and he usually does.

The diner directs the making of his own salad, which may include lettuce, tomato, onion, radishes, pickle, carrots, garbanzo beans and his choice of French or roquefort dressing.

For dessert Ed's has served for years butterscotch sundaes with topping clearer and tastier than any which is obtainable at the numerous ice cream stores in the area.

These, then, are some of the spots where one can impress a companion without overly depressing his billfold.

The educated diner will call for reservations at any of these places on weekends.

Soccer Title Hinges On Battle With USF

Star Booter All-American Prospect

Korbus Leads Offensive Attack

By Vince Liu

What Orlando Cepeda or Willie Mays means to the San Francisco Giants is precisely what Albert Korbus means to the City College soccer team.

Possessing probably the most powerful shot in the league, the 19-year-old San Francisco-born center-forward is the bulk of the offense in the Ram forward line. Much of the success of Coach Roy Diederichsen's forces this year should depend on how well Korbus fares.

In the first three league games of this season, the score-happy sharpshooter went on a scoring spree that saw him knock in 13 goals out of the team's total of 19. His four tallies against University of California were chiefly responsible for the Rams' crucial victory over the Bears.

Still getting better with every game, Korbus is a strong contender for All-American honors this year.

Coming from a soccer family, Korbus learned the game at the age of ten from his uncle and his German father, Peter Korbus, who is the ex-president of the San Francisco Soccer Football League and the California Soccer Football Association.

Living in a nation where soccer is much under-publicized, Korbus managed to keep up the game by playing in the San Francisco Juvenile League, then the equal of the little league in baseball, and the Junior League for five years.

Blessed with the gifted ability to shoot equally well from both sides, a difficult feat in soccer, and a powerful head shot, the All-City from Balboa High School was reputed to be one of the best players ever to come out of the San Francisco high school soccer league.

HIGH-SCORING Ram star Al Korbus demonstrates the form which has made him the league's top offensive threat this year.—Guardsman photo by Bill Bargagliotti.

Just to show that brawn and brain do go hand in hand, the stony-faced athlete is in his second year at this college, majoring in construction engineering and planning to transfer to University of California after fulfilling the lower division requirements here.

As though playing soccer and carrying a heavy schedule weren't enough, the quiet, soft-spoken sophomore works four days a week and attends night school on two other days.

In his first season with the Rams last year, the 5-10, 165-pound powerhouse helped lead the squad to a cochampionship finish by knocking in nine goals, thus tying two other teammates for the team scoring leadership.

His sizzling performance on offense earned him a berth in the All-Conference second team and a reputation as one of the most feared bombers in the league.

Diederichsen couldn't care less as to how many home runs would Cepeda hit or how many bases would Mays steal as long as his star center-forward keeps pumping in shots and winning games for him.

Booters Edge Cal Aggies, 5-4, Meet Lowly Stanford Today

Somewhat shaken by the closeness of their 5-4 victory over the California Aggies last Saturday, the unbeaten Ram soccermen travel south today to engage lowly Stanford, but their minds will be set on Saturday's 11 a.m. championship showdown against the University of San Francisco at Balboa Soccer Stadium.

Coach Roy Diederichsen and his league leaders, paced by amazing center-forward Al Korbus, don't expect any serious opposition when they take the turf at 3 p.m. against an Indian outfit which finally broke into the victory column by clubbing winless San Francisco State.

However, the titantic against the Dons is a different matter altogether.

By winning their final Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference clash this year the Rams, co-defending titlists, can lock up the crown, but there is more than first place at stake for a USF eleven which has a spotless record since its opening game 2-2 deadlock with California.

The Hilltoppers can gain a berth in the NCAA tournament here November 18 since the Red and White "giant-killers" are ineligible because of their two-year college status.

Only the once-beaten, once-tied Bears from Berkeley are also in contention.

Coach Tino Genigeozgis' surprising Davis crew could well be in first place except for a lightning bolt named Korbus who struck for an incredible four goals in less than six minutes to bring up his total to 17 for the campaign.

The fired-up visitors took a 1-0 lead on a goal by All-Conference star Enrique Escardo, one of three brothers on the Aggies, but with 3:45 to play in the opening quarter Korbus took a pass from goalie Gary De Long, dribbled half the length of the field between two defenders, and smashed one home from 18 yards out.

Respective assists from staunch halfback Caesar Pina and Tom Wynn, playing in his first varsity game, led to two more Korbus tallies with 2:15 and 1:20 to play in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter Korbus took a pass from versatile Dennis Minga and scored again from six yards out. After a score by Aggie speedster Ed Miankatu from the Congo, Allan Chew pushed across what proved to be the winning tally.

Shut out in the second half for the first time this year, the Rams had to stave off the onrushing Aggies, who closed the gap on a pair of third period goals by Joe Franco.

Offensive standouts Ivan Bermudez, Bob Salazar, Louis Chung and the absent Vince Liu didn't figure in the scoring but are expected to be in top form along with defensive stalwarts Dave Fromer, Flavio Valiente and Hugo Olaya for the upcoming crucial.—By I.T.

Harriers Aim At Santa Rosa Win

The first place cross-country team, which defeated Santa Rosa 20-38, and knocked off Modesto 26-29, in a dual meet, will hold its last league contest of the season tomorrow at Santa Rosa.

All cross-country teams in the Big Eight Conference will participate in the meet at Santa Rosa, and on November 17 the Northern California championships will be held.

In the prior Santa Rosa and Modesto meets John Weidinger blazed the course in 15:58, with Steve Jackson at 16:12 following close behind.

George Varmuza and Andy Loobey, with times of 16:27 and 16:34, respectively, placed high. Jose Valle, one of the Rams' better harriers, ran a 17:01 while placing 10th even though he did not get time to warm up.

Valle has been a consistent first place runner for the Rams this year and is one of the two men who have run the course in under 16 minutes. Weidinger is the other.

Rams, Sacto Eleven Clash Saturday

Gridders Go On Rampage To Sink Oakland, 41-14

By Dave Kleinberg

After the Oakland Thunderbirds failed to capitalize on two early breaks, the Rams broke loose from everywhere and anywhere last Friday at Bushrod Stadium to roll up their biggest point total of the season in a one-sided 41-14 victory.

Now 4-1 in Big Eight Conference play and still trailing league leading San Mateo by one game, the Rams handed the five-time losing Thunderbirds their worse beating of the year before a Homecoming crowd.

The Rams rolled up 181 yards on the ground and 133 in the air, and for the first time this year didn't have a pass intercepted.

The Thunderbirds made their first mistake in trying a field goal, on fourth down from the 12. Terry Fischer blocked the ball, and Tom Piggee, the Rams' little speedster, returned it 40 yards to the San Francisco 42 before being downed.

On the following play quarterback Ben Winslow found Bob Taylor 10 yards behind the Oakland defender. Taylor, who later suffered a broken ankle, caught the ball on the Oakland 34 and rambled in for the touchdown to complete a 58-yard play. It was the Rams first touchdown pass in league play.

George Benkie partially blocked Ralph Melton's quiek kick and the alert 175-pound Ron Coleman grabbed the ball on the Oakland 12 and scored for 15-0.

After Coleman raced in from 21 yards to run the score to 21-0, Oakland's Dale Rubin passed to Eddis Titus for a seven-yard touchdown, which erased any shutout thoughts.

Oakland scored quiekly to open the second half, but couldn't follow up and the Rams scored twice in the fourth quarter to finish the scoring.

Elton Diles picked off a pass late in the game and raced 43 yards for the final tally, with other scores coming on runs by Piggee and Taylor.

Jim Baffico, Jack Burgett, Dave Urrea, Dennis Drueker and Cliff Vattuone played a major role in holding the Thunderbirds to 66 yards on the ground and 86 in the air.

Locals, Panthers Vie For Second Place Slot

Fighting for second place in the Big Eight, and still clinging to faint title hopes, the Rams and Sacramento will do their best to knock each other out of the race in a crucial encounter slated for Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Panthers' arena.

Chuck Chatfield's rugged outfit from the capital is suffering from the same handicap as Grover Klemmer's unpredictable crew—they both were humiliated by the high-powered San Mateo Bulldogs, the Panthers being shut out 12-0, and the Rams falling 22-6.

However, both are praying for on-again off-again Stockton to rise to the occasion and knock the unbeaten league-leaders from their lofty perch this weekend.

The Panthers still recall their highlight of the season, a smashing 26-6 triumph over Stockton. Against the same team, the Rams were lucky to escape with any victory, finally winning 7-6.

A stingy defense has proved to be the main forte for both combatants thus far. Well balanced, the home club gets most of its offensive power from the passing combination of Bob Quintella to halfback Harry Reynolds and the bull-like rushing of fullback Frank Latona.

The invaders, who edged Sacramento 16-14 last year on an extra-point pass from Gary Lewis to end Ray Greggains, have been handicapped all year by their inability to get off the "home run" play—the long-gainer touchdown.

However, the defense has responded admirably by giving up more than six points in only one of its first six encounters.

The starting lineup, unchanged for most of the year, will find veterans Terry Fischer and Greggains at the end spots with big Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett going at tackle, while the "big three." Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker will alternate at the guard spots.

Both hard-tackling Cliff Vattuone and rapidly improving George "The Toe" Benkie are slated for heavy duty in the middle of the line.

In the backfield, either Ben Winslow or Randy Autentieo will call the signals with tricky star Tom Piggee entrenched at fullback.

If available, Al Raine will get the nod at left half while Ron Coleman, a terror on defense, will be the running mate.

BIG EIGHT STANDINGS

Team—	Won	Lost
San Mateo	5	0
SAN FRANCISCO	4	1
Contra Costa	3	2
Sacramento	3	2
Santa Rosa	2	3
Stockton	2	3
Modesto	1	4
Oakland	0	5

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA INTERCOLLEGIATE SOCCER CONFERENCE

Team—	W	L	T
SAN FRANCISCO RAMS	4	0	0
San Francisco Dons	3	0	1
California Aggies	3	2	0
California	2	1	1
San Jose State	1	3	0
Stanford	1	3	0
San Francisco State	0	5	0

Tight Races Spark Mural Cage Loops

Intramural competition enters the third week of play tonight as Beta Tau meets Alpha Kappa Rho, Alpha Phi Epsilon battles Zeta Phi Sigma and the Gammas play Alpha Sigma.

Last week in the hotly contested Club Activities Board league The Guardsmen came through with a resounding and surprising victory over the Newman Club by the score of 54-51.

High scorers for The Guardsman were Steve Nevins and Larry Stewart with 20 points each.

The Untouchables defeated the Kane 58-26 with Harbie Briscoe grabbing top scoring honors with 13 points. High man for the Kane was Archie Nakaiwa with 16 points.

The Collegiate Five remained in a tie for first place with the Untouchables by beating the Hotel and Restaurant team 70-38. Rich Cereghino dunked 16 points while Tony Ivelich came through with 8.

Alli defeated the Electroneers in a close 54-51 contest, with Jesse Neal scoring 20 big points and John Jacobsen sinking 11.

In the Inter-Fraternity league Zeta Phi Sigma swamped Alpha Kappa Rho 30-9. Martin Oldred scored 8 for Zeta Phi Sigma while Jim Walsh took high honors for Alpha Kappa Rho with 4 points.

Alpha Phi Epsilon edged by Alpha Sigma 40-35 with Eli Horn scoring 13 for Alpha Phi Epsilon and Richard Cate hitting for 10 for Alpha Sigma.

A new team in the IFC league is the Gammas. It will enter the competition tonight at 8:15 in the women's gymnasium.

Ex-Chicago Bear quarterback Sid Luckman threw 28 touchdown passes in 10 games in 1943, a pro record.

RAMBLINGS

UC Academic Change Aids Athletics Here

By Ivan Temes

IT'S VERY LIKELY that the new University of California ruling which governs transfer students from two-year colleges will prove helpful to the City College sports program.

Formerly students academically ineligible to attend UC at the completion of high school could transfer after completing only 30 units of work at a two-year college.

Under the new decree recently handed down by the university, students are required to complete 56 units satisfactorily.

Certainly anyone who works at it, even an athlete with long hours of practice, can go through 30 units in one year's time but no one—unless the Russians invent him—is going to take 56 units in a year.

This means that many athletes are going to find themselves required to study for two years at City College or another two-year college.

Four-year colleges are able to take an athlete and develop him until he may very well prove to be a real star.

It's hard enough for a junior college coach to lose a player—star or otherwise—after two years. Having him transfer after one year only increases the problem. Now, at least the coach will have more of an opportunity of knowing who to concentrate on since some of his men will definitely be back for a second go before transferring.

In nearly all cases, an athlete in college will improve progressively each year and this can prove a boon to the team.

Remember, if the athlete is eligible to don the Blue and Gold of Cal at the conclusion of his high school career, but decides to attend a two-year college for one of many other reasons, he can still transfer at any time.

Also, the ruling applies to California and not any of the other four-year colleges in the area.

Don't start feeling sorry for the athletic plant at Berkeley or the other campuses, however, for they are now increasing their scholarships-for-athletes program and should be able to draw in most of the athletes they want when they conclude high school, unless they are absolutely hopeless from a "grades" standpoint.

However, never one to get involved in the recruiting scandals that often plague many of the country's larger universities, Cal will continue to lose athletes not only to two-year colleges but often to out-of-state institutions with less rigid scholastic requirements.

IFC's Second Annual Dance Climaxes Pledge Week Events Friday Night

Concluding an activity-filled Pledge Week here, the second annual Inter-Fraternity Council sponsored dance is planned for this Friday evening in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, Bob Rogers, IFC president, announced.

With the theme, At Last, the ball will feature the music of Sal Vance and his seven-piece orchestra between 9 p.m. and 12 midnight.

Tickets for couples at $2.50 each are now available from any fraternity member on campus. They can also be obtained at the door Friday night.

The dance is open to all Associated Students and is not restricted just to pledges and their dates, Rogers emphasized. Dress is semiformal.

As a climax to pledge activities traditional games are scheduled during College Hour in the college's new stadium. The contests will include a jelly bean and three contests, egg throwing, balloon blowing and pie eating.

Points will be computed and the winning fraternity will be awarded the Pledge Week trophy.

During the initiation period IFC pledges will be working on several worthwhile endeavors. The painting of the student lounge, newly named the Shack, and the cutting of weeds around the building are two such projects.

Members of the Inter-Sorority Council will aid the fraternity pledges by designing and hanging curtains to brighten up the Shack. They have also been instructed to clean up Smith Hall following the Associated Women Student fashion show.

IFC officers besides Rogers include Fred Cherniss, vice president; Gary Sozzi, secretary; Bob Rauh, treasurer, and Don Tarantino, rushing chairman.

KNEELING IN FRONT of Zeta Phi Sigma's third place entry in the Homecoming car parade are IFC's officers. Up front are President Bob Rogers, left, and Vice President Fred Cherniss. Behind them are Treasurer Bob Rauh, left, and Rushing Chairman Don Tarantino. Guardsman photo by Chris G. Utter.

Entertainment, Academic Award To Highlight AWS Fashion Show-Tea Today

Featuring a special academic award and selected entertainment, the Associated Women Students present their traditional fashion show and tea, titled Autumn Daze, today from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Smith Hall, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced.

The order of proceedings calls for tea to be served first at 3 p.m. followed by the entertainment. The fashion show will then be presented, with more tea served simultaneously. The award will come as the conclusion to the show, Miss Doudiet explained.

Soph King, Queen Contest Petitions Due November 28

Petitions for candidates in the Soph King and Queen contest are due Tuesday, November 28, in S-134, Dan Collins, class president, said today.

All organizations can sponsor a king, a queen or both, he added, and pictures of the candidates will be taken December 1 during College Hour by the photography department. Pictures will be returned to the candidates after the contest.

Pictures will be displayed in Science Hall and Smith Hall during the week of January 8.

Students can vote for the candidates of their choice by putting a penny in the cans located in the cafeteria and Science Hall, Collins explained, and proceeds will go to the Sophomore scholarship fund.

Winners of the King and Queen contest will be introduced at the Soph Ball Friday, January 12, at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

The Sophomore Class will also award an Olympic plaque to the athletes judged by their coaches to be the most outstanding in football, soccer and cross-country.

The outstanding athletes will be announced at a rally December 8.

Also, in a recent meeting of the Sophomore Class officers it was decided to have the name of the sophomore with the highest scholastic record engraved on a plaque.

AWS officers have honored women who have joined the faculty this semester by asking them to pour at the tea, and representatives of the college's new nurse training program will wear the uniforms newly designed for them to use in their courses in the clinics.

Miss Doudiet invited all women students of the college to see the fashions, courtesy of Livingston Bros. and the presentation of the academic award.

Invitations were sent to 12 high senior women each from Galileo, Lowell, Washington, Lincoln, Mission, Polytechnic and Balboa High Schools, to women student body cardholders of these schools and to the women members of the college's faculty.

AWS leaders from College of Marin, Cabrillo College, Vallejo Junior College, Diablo Valley College, College of San Mateo and Napa Junior College are also invited. Women students here are expected to compose the remainder of the 800 seating capacity.

Invitations were handled by Susan Ryken, chairman, and members of her committee, Margaret Kriete, Nancy Brooks and Sue Canatsy.

"The show, in the planning stages since the beginning of this semester, is made possible by the diligent work of many committees," Miss Doudiet acknowledged.

Promotion of the event was arranged by Priscilla Poppin and Ellen Atkins, who employed posters, banners, KCSF and the word-of-mouth method.

George Mullany of the journalism

(Continued on Page 3, Column 2)

Six Instructors Voice Opinions On Passage Of State Assembly Bill 2512

In view of the recent passage of State Assembly Bill 2512, which allows the youth division of any political organization on the ballot of California to hold meetings on a junior college campus, a series of interviews was conducted last week with six social science instructors of this college concerning the subject.

Opinions and comments were contributed by Lee Dolson, John Gerstung, Robert Johnson, Eugene Mead, Claude Silva and Irving Witt.

They are all in favor of the bill and unanimously agreed that the existence of student political organizations on a college campus will boost students' interest.

Although it is expected that the Republican and Democratic parties will probably provide for the major representation of campus politics, the instructors voiced identical opinions that other legal minority parties should also have an equal voice.

When asked if party functioning on this campus might cause controversies Johnson replied that controversies are actually necessary and beneficial to the students who through them will be able to develop a broader and keener understanding of the pros and cons of political issues and make rational decisions on them.

Different opinions were expressed as to whether outsiders of this college should be allowed to take part with the political groups on campus.

While Witt favored the participation of outsiders who are acceptable to the college, Silva felt that all the activities should be confined within the campus.

According to the assembly bill, the student political group may also distribute bulletins and circulars concerning its meetings provided that there is no endorsement of such organization by the college authorities. Distribution would be in accordance with college regulations.

Dean Ralph Hillsman explained that the groups would be entitled to use campus facilities as provided under the Civic Center Act.

This act states that facilities not otherwise in use may be made available to the groups with a faculty member present as a representative of the college.

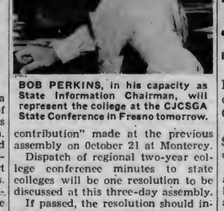
The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1961 NUMBER 8

Three-Day State CJCSGA Confab Opens Tomorrow At Fresno

The 32nd semiannual California Junior College Student Government conference will start tomorrow and continue through Saturday at the California Hotel in Fresno, Associated Student President Gary Wilkening announced yesterday.



Wilkening will be accompanied by a delegation of five members of student government here, who will be guests of Fresno City College. They are Larry Levin, Sue Mount, Suzanne Murphy, State Information Chairman Bob Perkins and George Woo, president of Club Activities Board.

The delegates have been assigned to the five workshops, which will consist of campus organizations, campus communications, student government, finance and current problems.

Sophomore Class President Dan Collins and Inter-Sorority Council President Kathy Hallock have been selected as alternates in case anyone in the group is unable to attend the conference.

This will be the first time in a long while that the college will have a workshop chairmanship represented in a state conference, Wilkening remarked. On November 4 Perkins and Levin were briefed and prepared for the details and events that are listed on the agenda of this assembly.

Wilkening and Levin were selected as state cochairmen because of their "excellent participation and efficient contribution" made at the previous assembly on October 21 at Monterey.

BOB PERKINS, in his capacity as State Information Chairman, will represent the college at the CJCSGA State Conference in Fresno tomorrow.

A dispatch of regional two-year college conference minutes to state colleges will be one resolution to be discussed at this three-day assembly.

If passed, the resolution should increase better communications between both colleges, Wilkening emphasized. It will also keep the colleges informed as to rules, regulations and management practiced by the student government here.

Wilkening hopes that "four members will gain experience in these conferences for future use in Student Council." In this way the college will have better prepared representatives for subsequent delegations. It may bring about an effect upon the students here, he said.

Sherman Elworthy, student government adviser here, will also accompany the delegates. Only a limited number of persons may attend these conferences because of an increased number of delegations.

'Cyclops' Spies Thespian Production Of 'Apollo'

Members of the human race were not the only ones in the audience who saw Apollo Of Bellac in the theater November 7. The "Cyclops," sometimes called a television camera, also watched the show.

This was the first college drama production to be filmed by the television workshop and shown simultaneously in a nearby classroom.

Two large cameras maneuvered around the theater audience to enable an overflow of 50 persons who could not be seated in the theater itself to see the show on a 21-inch screen located in A-133.

Bill Monlot, who directed the filming, hopes to televise more shows because of the enthusiastic response. But since a play must be brightly lighted in order to make a clear picture he is not sure which performances will be chosen for filming.

Apollo Of Bellac, performed in the round, was applauded as "wonderfully impressive on both stage and screen."

Election Forms Deadline Moved To December 8

Opportunity to serve directly in the Associated Student government is not restricted to the six elective offices, Ed Ayalin, election commissioner, emphasized today.

Petitions to run for these offices and 14 Student Council seats are due in the AS office, S-134, by 1 p.m. Friday, December 8, instead of the previous deadline of November 30.

Ten appointive and eight honorary appointive offices in the President's Cabinet complete Student Council.

In addition, 14 seats in Student Council are available to candidates who will run for said positions in the January elections. Seven of them will represent the Sophomore Class and the remaining seven the Freshman Class.

To file for a Student Council seat a candidate must have passed at least 12 units with a 2 point grade average the previous semester.

The remaining appointive offices are Finance, State Information Service and AS Card Sales chairmen; Election and Men's Athletic Commissioners; corresponding secretary, parliamentarian, Alumni Liaison Officer and Campus Affairs Co-ordinator.

The eight honorary appointive offices are presidents of the Inter-Fraternity and Inter-Sorority Councils; chairmen of the Club Activities Board, Publications Board and Publicity; Rally and Recreation Association Commissioners, and the Campus Police chief.

H&R Alumni Association Pledges Support To Insure Statler Grant

By Peter Oppenheimer

Alumni support in raising $50,000 necessary to ensure the Statler Foundation's $100,000 grant to the college's hotel and restaurant department was pledged at a luncheon here last Wednesday by George Conlan, president of the department's Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association will do whatever it can to help raise the $50,000 and, Conlan said, "I am 100 per cent behind an organized drive to raise the necessary funds."

When the total $150,000 is raised a library, demonstration kitchen and lecture-demonstration room will be added to Smith Hall.

Contributions will be accepted by the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation, which under state law can receive the gifts of individuals or corporations tax-free. The foundation, established in 1949, is headed by P. Tremain Loud of the Hotel Californian.

In addition to the support pledged by the Alumni Association there has been a high level of enthusiasm among all concerned.

Louis Batmale, dean of instruction, expressed appreciation for the favorable editorial comment of The Chronicle, Examiner and News-Call-Bulletin.

Batmale also said that no great difficulty in soliciting funds is anticipated.

Cafe Slates Special Turkey Dinner For Students November 22

Students will be treated to a Thanksgiving turkey feed in the cafeteria next Wednesday during the lunch hour, Executive Chef Pierre Coste announced today.

The feast will cost 65 cents or 50 cents a la carte.

Twenty-five turkeys weighing approximately 25 pounds each have been purchased to accommodate the expected crowd.

Included in the meal will be candied yams, dressing, young peas and cranberry sauce. Coste also stated that he would add a special touch to the pumpkin pie, which will serve as the meal's dessert.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 8 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1961 Page 2

Two Way System Essential To College Communication

WRITTEN COMMUNICATION, which distinguishes man from primitive and animal forms of life, is symbolically filling every second elapsed with an endless stream of human thought.

While each reader of this issue of The Guardsman is now in communication with his college's activities through means of the printed page, man's emotions, ideals and spirit are being transmitted and interrelated all over the world.

Any newspaper, whether a college, professional or trade publication, has many more responsibilities than those connected with news coverage. Every responsible journalistic organ must aim for the accurate, clear and concise usage of man's most potent asset, the written word.

The young reporter must be more than a curious collegian: he must be able to use fundamentals of grammar automatically and correctly, have a free flowing writing style, and be able to discern the factual from the fictitious, the significant from the superfluous.

As much as The Guardsman attempts to meet these idealistic standards, we don't. This is a frustrating field in which the perfectionist may often become the psychotic.

The exact use of language is an art; we are not artists. The biggest obstacle blocking perfect communication is Time. In racing the clock to meet deadlines, accuracy is often sacrificed for celerity.

When mistakes do appear in this paper, students should hasten to call them to our attention. But effective communication does not end with factual accuracy. For communication is a two-way system.

Without response from our readers we have no way of knowing what the effect of our issue or issues has been. Without the reader's reaction we have no basis from which to change or modify the policy of our coverage or content.

Without Letters To The Editor we have neither a good nor bad conscience about our work. This is the only means by which students can "communicate" with us. Are you out there?

Perhaps some students are hesitant about their "poison pen letters." Don't be. We don't shun controversy; we welcome it. No one's above the plateau of criticism.

One-way streets are the latest answer to traffic problems, but one-way communication is the last way to solve human problems.

The Spectator — Novel Combines Text And Outside Reading

Today's Spectator is by Anna Papagni

OFTENTIMES a student will have severe qualms of conscience when he picks up a novel because he knows that once the cover of his textbook will close.

Irving Stone, the acknowledged master of the biographical novel form, has recently published a thoroughly remarkable book, The Agony And The Ecstasy, which undoubtedly relieves the guilt feelings of students who crave "outside" reading by including in its pages a wealth of knowledge that is applicable to any classroom.

The novel portrays the life and times of the great artist Michelangelo and produced Michelangelo Buonarroti sculptor, painter, poet, architect and engineer.

First of all, the book is wonderfully entertaining. Michelangelo's personal life story, told as a novel, constitutes as forceful a tale of conflict and dedication as his staggering creativity, for he was a universal man, robust in his appetites as well as in his humor.

Guardsman Staff — Fall, 1961

Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published every Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. In students in the journalism newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 30L Science Hall; telephone JU 7-2345, extension 4.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grove
Sports Editor ..... Ivar Tenno
Feature Editor ..... Jan Miller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Carlquist
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shively

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Deets, Robert Hosier, Jerry Kittrell, Herman Kligerman, Dave Kronberg

Reporters: Claire Krause, Herbert Mass, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thiele, Kevin Townend, Stan Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook.

Club Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Brum, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, William Hall, Janet Fum Komatsu, Mary McCarthy, Jerry Wishkare, Patricia Weiber, Dee Rosenblum, Estrellita Zamora.

Photographers: Estrellita Demakas, chief; Hayden Townend, Stan Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook.

Faculty Adviser ..... Jean Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1960-1961

But more than entertainment, the history student will find an account of the transition from the terror of the Dark Ages to the modern era of the Golden Renaissance. Europe's leaders and their problems all make their appearance in this book.

The governmental structures in Europe, personality, the Italian city states, are represented for the politically inclined.

The psychology will read an account of the form and composition of marble, how it was mined and treated in Florence during the 1470's. There are also descriptions of the stones that paved streets and composed buildings of the Italian Capital.

Philosophy students will see new ideas conflicting with the Church, and the dialogue is sprinkled with Italian words and phrases that the language major can use in his classrooms.

For the artist there are detailed descriptions and critiques of classic masterpieces in sculpture, painting and dress, as well as discussions on technique. Especially interesting for the present day student is the manner in which brushes and paint were made.

Humanist scholars, poets and writers now studied in English classes, are all part of Michelangelo's story.

Architects and engineers, will see the greatest of Rome take shape.

Class structure is represented for the sociology student, and Michelangelo's personality makeup provides a case study for the psychologist.

Irving Stone has taken for his own canvas all of the revolutionary turmoil and pageantry of this turbulent era, and it is against a panorama of giants that Michelangelo's life unfolds in a novel that is as exciting, dramatic and unusual as the masterpieces he created.

The trunker is a fish that produces a croaking or grunting noise as it swims.

• • •

The woodchuck is one of the thickest mammals of the northeastern United States and Canada.

Russian Born Student Doubles In Football And Art Here

Knatz's Knack On Exhibit In Gymnasium

By Herman Kligerman

Prowess in football and accomplishment in art may be a rare combination of abilities for one person but Russian - born Nick Knatz, a student here, possesses both.

According to the 6-foot 215-pound youth, art wasn't even in his mind during childhood. Through his father he managed to pick up some ability in that field.

While enrolled at Lowell High School between 1955 and 1956, Knatz designed the school's student body card and their book covers which are currently being used. He also excelled in tennis there.

Presently in his fifth semester here, Knatz has already displayed his fine football ability in addition to artistry. He played guard on the Rams for the past two years, and if it weren't for the ruling that limits a junior college player to two years on a grid team he might have played again this semester.

"The best coach a guy could ever have" is his feeling toward Alex Schwarz, football line coach here, who gave him his initial start in football.

Between his graduation from high school and enrollment here Knatz attended San Francisco State for a semester, excelling in the sport of tennis.

Born in a small village in Russia just before the outbreak of the Second World War, Knatz and his family—mother, father, brother and sister—spent the war years in their homeland and Germany.

In 1948 he and his family were captured by the enemy and committed to a Bolshevist labor camp for three years. Knatz and his mother were the only ones to survive this ordeal.

On the Displaced Persons Visa of 1949 Knatz, aged 4, and his mother came to the Middle States to live. Their first residence was in New York until, in 1951, they decided to move west, finally settling in San Francisco.

After getting acquainted with the new surroundings and environment Knatz enrolled in public school here in the city.

Examples of his art are displayed near the main entrance to the men's gymnasium in full color. Two of his pictures appeared on the sports page of The Guardsman last semester.

ARTIST-FOOTBALL PLAYER NICK KNATZ cartoons assistant football coach Alex Schwarz controlling the massive strength of two of his best linemen, Dave Urres (69) and Jim Baffico (75). Two other sports cartoons by Knatz were published in The Guardsman last semester.

Foresight — Changing TV Trends 'Outgun' Westerns

By John Muller

TELEVISION PROGRAMMING has reached the highest point in many years as there is something besides third rate rerun Westerns filling the bill on each channel this season.

Two of the better shows that premiered this fall are Follow The Sun and Car 54, Where Are You?

Adventure, which pepped up last fall's programming with such notables as Hawaiian Eye, Adventures In Paradise and Surf-Side Six, has taken a big step forward with Follow The Sun on Channel 7 at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Three versatile young actors star on the program: Gary Lockwood, John Colli and Bret Halsey. One of the most refreshing things about the program is that the actors alternate every week, so that each of them may appear together in one episode.

Even though stereotyped along the same lines as Hawaiian Eye the only major difference is that the stars are free-lance magazine writers instead of private detectives. Follow The Sun offers the viewer a change of pace.

The most startling thing about the program is that some shows have had almost no ending.

The subject viewer faces a situation which he has perhaps never faced before on television—the ending is left for him to interpret.

This is good for the viewer; for once he has to use his brain power instead of being an emeri-absorbing particle in the TV room. Making the viewer think has only been done effectively in the past by the better programs such as Playhouse 90.

Cool and sophisticated have taken a turn on Channel 2 every Sunday at 8:30 p.m., immediately after Follow the Sun.

In this world of ours with many phases of media screened to sensationalism, sadism and pessimism, Car 54, Where Are You? offers the viewer what he has been screaming for—humor.

Car 54 jolts the viewer. He's able to smile. It's a silly plot every week and guaranteed to make even the most prudent viewers chuckle. It can't fail to.

On one hand there is tall, skinny patrolman named Francis Muldoon, played by Fred Gwynne. Contrasting sharply is his partner, short and stubby Gunther Toody, played by Joe E. Ross.

Francis and Gunther: Muldoon and Toody! What's the representation of our police force coming to?

The screen is brilliant with comedy as the two police officers bungle through even the simplest of assignments. This is one show that will receive top billing again next season.

These two examples prove that if the viewer changes channels every hour or so he won't have to watch one miserable cowboy shoot-'em-up. This was one thing next to impossible last season.

Alas, Alack, A Shack!

No Longer Is Lounge Site Dark Secret

Many students here don't know there is a student lounge located behind Cloud Hall in bungalows 3 and 4, while others know about it—and are keeping it a secret.

Since the student lounge was designed to be an informal meeting place, and the men and women who patronized it before acted informally, a suitable name had to be found.

The name, Shack, was chosen for its casualness and for its lack of coldness and foreboding which its former name suggested. Thus its existence should be a secret no longer.

With the addition of a new name, one of the two signs scheduled by Alpha Phi Omega and Alpha Kappa Rho is completed, so more and more students can find it.

The Shack is picking up business this semester, and it is hoped that this casual meeting and eating place will eventually become a permanent part in campus life.

It offers much to the students. It is the only place on campus a student may relax, socialize and eat without being disturbed.

It gets away from the congestion of the cafeteria, and could be described as a cross between a study hall and a lunch room.

Although Paul Steiner and George Cook, costudent co-ordinators of the union, have yet to arrange to have sandwiches brought to the union, it does provide cigarettes, coffee, chocolate, Coca Cola, candy bars and the five-cent doughnut.

Cook and Steiner, who have always felt strongly that the union must offer students something to be successful, feel the lounge offers much to the student, but that it takes time for them to be aware of it.

The union has been fairly successful. It is filled nearly to its capacity of 125 people on most days between 12 noon and 1 p.m.

The project of hooking up with KCSF, the campus broadcasting station, is still being worked on.

The union is open every day between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Just A Leak

But Curiosity Runs Wild

Speculation has arisen among students here concerning the two ominous-looking pits in the front lawn of Science Hall.

One young man said that he thought the gardeners were digging for gold. A coed here said that they were graves for a couple of giant turtles.

Still another really let his imagination run wild. He said of driving by the college one night last week and seeing giant mutant ants emerging from the depths of the two curious indentations.

After hearing all of these fantastic explanations one might wonder where the real truth of the matter lies. Well, after consulting with a member of the maintenance department here, the real facts are now open to the public.

There is no gold. There are no giant mutant ants or air raid shelter plans. There are only a couple of leaks in a water pipe supplying the lawn sprinklers.

Because of this the lawn-mowing machine was unable to do its job because it couldn't cut the grass in those two areas undermined with water.

The purpose of the two excavations was to locate the above trouble and patch up the holes in the pipe.

But maybe, it's just possible that . . .

Counterpoint — Tricky Titles Answer Five W's-And How!

By Dick Dragavon

BOOKS are often said to be the key to learning, but it is not often realized to what extent this is true.

From the journalistic viewpoint there are hundreds of books written to satisfy the five W's, who, what, when, where and why and sometimes how.

A sampling of the Cumulative Book Index of January to July 1959 shows that there are volumes telling Who's Who in Turkey, Austria, World Aviation And Astronautics, and also Who's Running This Expedition!

One can discover What—Ballet Is About, Dr. Spock Didn't Tell Us and Is Africa. Anyone who may still have doubts may find out, through reading, What A Policeman Does.

To keep everyone on even ground, books are prepared describing What Every Supervisor Should Know, and What Every Taxpayer Should Know.

To answer those questions which inevitably arise in sophisticated group discussions, and to which no one seems to know the answers, tomes are available to explain What Happened To Whimpy, and What Has Four Wheels And Flies.

The answers to What Is A Turtle, Life, Love, Cybernetics, The Nature Of Man are listed besides, What Is Your Problem, Mother?

The curious and the scholars may wind up with What We Are For and What You Can Do For Angina Pectoris And Coronary Occlusion.

Powerful climaxes sound imminent When—Danger Threatens, One Third Of A City Block Moves To The Suburbs, and We Dead Awaken.

What happens next is anybody's guess When—My Ship Comes Home, St. Nicholas Got Back, or You Preach.

To get the opposite of two extremes one may peruse Where Love Is, then Where No Love Is, and also Where Rivers Meet, and Where No Mains Flow.

In case anyone wonders Where Is Mary Bostwick, well, Where Else But Pittsburgh. Where The White Sanbhur Roams, and Where There's Smoke.

Industrious readers will find Why—Men Confess, Was Lincoln Murdered, You Are You, and Why So Angry?

A wealth of information is under How—I Turned $1000 Into A Million In Real Estate, Much Is A $, Many Angles?, and Not To Play Chess.

Prospective bill collectors can learn the ultimate of their trade in How To Make Earthworms Pay.

Unromantic readers will help themselves by reading How To Protect Your Heart. If this fails, however, a second volume is available, How To Survive Matrimony.

How To Take Better Pictures was apparently studied to good advantage by an art thief this summer who got away with a few priceless originals.

Students can also wish to begin studying at the basic beginnings may pick up any of these, How—To Watch A Parade, Remove The Cotton From A Bottle Of Aspirin, Read A Page, or Come—It's Called That?

The final book which seems as though it should be required reading for everybody in this age is How To Do Nothing With Nobody All Alone By Yourself.

AGS Volunteers Double As Tutors

Tutoring services are currently being offered by Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, volunteers. William Richardson, adviser to this organization, states that the service is open to college, high school and junior high school students requesting help.

The idea of starting a coaching service was initiated when students began calling members of the society, asking for help in generally required subjects.

Students who carried B averages or better last semester are eligible to join this organization.

Students with final grades of D are ineligible for membership in the honor society. Anyone interested in joining is asked to consult Richardson in S-155.

14 To Model Fashions At Tea Today

ISC Award Goes To Frosh Coed With Top Grades

(Continued from Page 1)

and graphic arts departments assisted Betty Rice with her work on the program committee.

Suzanne Murphy, AWS vice president; Melia Furgis, women's physical education instructor; Tina Drescher and Joan Collingean of the merchandising department comprise the board of judges for the models.

Models included in the final selection from the college at large are Diane Luhr, Wendy Dickson, Bonnie Black, Pauliette Walti, Marlene Cortopassi, Pamela Washburn and Connie Wilson.

Also participating in model sportswear, cocktail dresses and formals are Diane O'Neill, Carol Ann Henton, Rosie Fang, Pamela Chandler, Barbara Preston, Diane Perrine and Carol Ferro.

Probably the only men students formally invited to the event are the selected escorts. Those assisting the models include Bob Perkins, Greg Monk, Paul Steiner, Bill Reichert, Dan Collins, Stan Burford and Fred Chernise.

Other committees include decorations, composed of Barbara Sperring, Sherry Spindel and Jeri Crivelli.

Entertainment Chairman Sharon Hawley has arranged for Shirley Thornton, alto, to sign a few popular songs for the show. International Relations Club is sending two representatives, Elvin Pantoja and Benjamin Villian, to perform a Mexican dance to the tune of La Bamba.

Inter-Sorority Counell is having a representative from each sorority form a group and present a pantomime of I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out Of My Hair from the show, South Pacific.

The food committee chairman, Lana Holliday, has arranged with the hotel and restaurant department for brownies, cookies, cream puffs, petits fours, Danish pastries, tea, orange juice and grenadine to be served.

Hostesses, numbering 45 and under the direction of Jerilyn Sciutto, will serve the provided food.

Carole Mar, chairman of the set-up committee, and a staff composed of seven members of the Chinese Students Club will have the task of placing dishes, cups, saucers, napkins and silverware.

Sorority pledges under the direction of Kathy Hallock, ISC president, will help with serving and cleaning.

TEMPORARILY SETTING ASIDE PLANS for this afternoon's Associated Women Student tea and fashion show to take a tea break of their own are Jan Doudiet, AWS president, pouring for Jeri Sciutto and Barbara Sperring, committee chairmen.—Guardsman photo by Herb Green.

Coats will be checked by members of the Reegration Association with an assist from Maxine Hickman, head of the coat check committee.

An official cameraman, arranged for by AWS Historian Maureen Farley, will be present to photograph models. Some of the photographs may appear in next semester's college handbook.

One of the highlights of the show, presentation of the ISC award, was started last semester. A perpetual award, it is presented to the low freshman woman student with the highest grade point average for the first midterm.

Last semester's winner was Marina Popoff, who maintained 16½ units with a 3.4 average.

Students Face Facts In USA, '62

Top Scholars Register Early

Students who had a high grade point average last semester and filled out the preregistration cards have gotten the early registration numbers for Spring 1962, Walter McCloud, counselor here, said yesterday.

Concurrently, men were advised to consider their status in relation to eligibility for deferment.

Postcards, which were sent out starting one month ago to inform students of appointments with their counselors, will continue to be sent to all students who filled out preregistration forms.

As in the past many students have neglected filling the preregistration forms, and they will receive a number behind everyone else, McCloud explained.

Students in the top class with a low scholastic average will still receive higher registration numbers than the approximately 2500 new students.

New students, who are classified as those in their first year at the college or transfers from other colleges, received their counseling appointments according to first midterm grades.

They will start receiving postcards sometime at the end of November and should be completed prior to Christmas, when the programming of high school seniors will begin.

McCloud emphasized that if a student for some reason is unable to meet his counseling appointment he should immediately notify his counselor or professional adviser to make a new appointment and avoid losing his number.

Next spring's registration days will be posted just before November 23.

McCloud wished all students would have their programs tentatively mapped out before talking with their counselor, thus saving time.

Brussels Exposition Photos On Display

Photographs that were submitted to the Exposition Internationale des Ecoles de Photographie in Brussels last year are now on display on the main floor of Science Hall.

Resemblance, the acclaimed print which won international recognition at the World's Fair in Brussels, is included.

Transfers Get Navy 'Break'

Transfers to a university offering a Naval training program will be getting a break beginning next year.

The Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps will offer to junior college men a nine-week summer course. It enables those students on completion of the course to enroll in any of the 52 Naval Reserve accredited colleges and universities.

Upon registration as a junior, students will continue to participate in the reserve program on the same level as those who registered for the full four years.

Prior to the summer course students will be enlisted in the Naval Reserve and receive an alloted pay during the period. Tuition and instructional supplies will also be provided by the Reserve.

Subjects included on the summer training program include naval orientation, evolution of seapower, naval weapons and psychology, both personal and social adjustments.

After completion at one of the NROTC universities or colleges students will receive pay and also participate in a summer training cruise between their junior and senior years.

On graduation from college he will be commissioned as an ensign in the Reserve of the Navy or a second lieutenant in the Reserve of the Marine Corps.

Additional information will be available next month when the college will be visited by Naval officers.

Rally Friday To Precede Modesto Football Game

To bolster spirit for this Friday's football game against the Modesto Pirates a rally has been scheduled for College Hour at the Redwood Ram, Stan Burford, rally chairman, announced today.

Preparations are now being made by Burford and his 13-man committee to make the rally entertaining and spirited.

He also revealed that there is a possibility of a general purpose rally later this month.

Burford also urged again that students take an active part in these special assemblies and participate in the semester's social and athletic activities.

Grades, Units OK Deferments

The number of units carried and the grades a student obtains are the factors governing his eligibility for a draft deferment, John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare here, said last week.

To meet the draft board requirements a student must complete approximately 30 units in one year.

This would be his college year, not necessarily the college academic year. Thus, if a student began his course in February his year would end in January; if he began in September it would end in June, Brady explained.

If a full-time summer course is pursued then the academic year for the September-June student could be extended until the end of the summer session.

A full-time summer course consists of six units.

Students meeting the above requirements are then entitled to a statutory deferment until the end of their academic year, if they receive their induction notice.

Brady advised students seeking further information on obtaining deferment to visit his office in S-132.

Ushering Jobs Open To Students

Highlighting the Leningrad Kirov Ballet will be a performance of Gala Programme No. 2, which will be presented at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the San Francisco Opera House.

All students wishing to usher at this and other performances can sign up in Dean Mary Golding's office.

Included in the performances will be Chopiniana, Shostakovich Seventh Symphony, Taraas Bulba, Flame Of Paris Pas De Deux and other works.

Sleeping Beauty will be presented tomorrow evening and Swan Lake Friday evening. Both of these performances will be held at 8:30 p.m.

On Saturday at 2:30 p.m. the Leningrad Kirov Ballet will feature Swan Lake, and that evening at 8:30 another performance of Gala Programme No. 2 will be presented.

Students planning to usher at the evening performances of the Leningrad Kirov Ballet must plan to be at the San Francisco Opera House at 7 p.m., Dean Golding emphasized.

Oriental Student Counselor Speaks During C-Hour

Helping Oriental college students to become situated in an American college and way of life, Dr. William Sung, their current counselor, will lecture in S-100 during College Hour this Friday, Katherine Pedley of the library staff here, stated today.

His topic will be Problems Of Asiatic Students in the United States.

Dr. Sung attended the University of Shanghai, where he later became president. The university was liquidated by the Chinese Communists, and Dr. Sung, since China will not admit anyone who has been a prisoner of the Communists, came to America.

Also the minister of an Episcopal church, he is a frequent lecturer. He generally uses his own experiences to illustrate his points, according to Mrs. Pedley.

By traveling from Seattle to San Diego he, in order to welcome the Oriental college students due for arrival, meets all the ships scheduled to come to the California coast.

Dr. Sung's personal knowledge of difficulties confronting immigrants, when he was faced with the problem of being unable to return to his mother country and had to adopt different living standards and customs, was a factor in his attainment of the counselor position.

Club Cavalcade

SCTA To Hear Educator Speak At College Hour

By Sandy Sells

MANY CLUBS this week are featuring guest speakers and special events at their meeting.

Carlos Ruling, assistant principal of Francis Scott Key grammar school will speak to members and visitors of Student California Teachers Association on The Place Of The Male Teacher in Elementary Education during College Hour Friday in C-269. Everyone is welcome.

Merchandising Club is in the midst of plans for a men's fashion show during College Hour January 12. The theme will be Man Of '62. Further plans will be announced at a later date.

A dinner at the home of Jerilyn Sciutto was held for Phi Beta Rho sorority. Instructions to new pledges were given.

At 2 p.m. Saturday, November 25, the Chess Club will compete in a match with a fraternity from the college at Smith Hall.

Filipino Students Club is participating in the forthcoming Christmas Drive, sponsored by Club Activities Board, by collecting donations. Regular meetings of the club are held during College Hour in C-220.

A film on skiing will be shown to members and friends of Newman Club. Those students interested in attending during College Hour Friday may visit S-204.

Contemporary Affairs Forum is now engaged in a general discussion of the Cuban situation. Those students wishing to participate may attend during College Hour in C-210.

A film on the Chinese opera entitled A Night At A Peking Opera will be presented to members of the Chinese Students Club Friday during College Hour in C-246.

Dick Planquist, general manager of Radio Station KEAR-FM will discuss opportunities in radio work to members and visitors of Collegiate Christian Fellowship. The time is College Hour Friday in C-201, and all interested students are welcome to attend.

The Christian Science Organization will host its meeting tomorrow night at 7:45 p.m. in Third Church of Christ Scientist, 1250 Haight street, near Baker street. All students, faculty, alumni and friends are invited to attend. Further information is available from Nina Tucker, Hotel and Restaurant Society adviser.

The Lutheran Discussion Club is holding a theater party at 7:45 p.m. Friday at the Stage Door theater. The movie to be viewed will be Question 7, a story of the reality of life behind the Iron Curtain in Communist East Berlin.

The Guardsman Editorial-Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 8 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1961 Page 2

Two Way System Essential To College Communication

WRITTEN COMMUNICATION, which distinguishes man from primitive and animal forms of life, is symbolically filling every second elapsed with an endless stream of human thought.

While each reader of this issue of The Guardsman is now in communication with his college's activities through means of the printed page, man's emotions, ideals and spirit are being transmitted and interrelated all over the world.

Any newspaper, whether a college, professional or trade publication, has many more responsibilities than those connected with news coverage. Every responsible journalistic organ must aim for the accurate, clear and concise usage of man's most potent asset, the written word.

The young reporter must be more than a curious collegian; he must be able to use fundamentals of grammar automatically and correctly, have a free flowing writing style, and be able to discern the factual from the fictitious, the significant from the superfluous.

As much as The Guardsman attempts to meet these idealistic standards, we don't. This is a frustrating field in which the perfectionist may often become the psychotic.

The exact use of language is an art; we are not artists. The biggest obstacle blocking perfect communication is Time. In racing the clock to meet deadlines, accuracy is often sacrificed for celerity.

When mistakes do appear in this paper, students should hasten to call them to our attention. But effective communication does not end with factual accuracy. For communication is a two-way system.

Without response from our readers we have no way of knowing what the effect of our issue or issues has been. Without the reader's reaction we have no basis from which to change or modify the policy of our coverage or content.

Without Letters To The Editor we have neither a good nor bad conscience about our work. This is the only means by which students can "communicate" with us. Are you out there?

Perhaps some students are hesitant about their "poison pen letters." Don't be. We don't shun controversy; we welcome it. No one's above the plateau of criticism.

One-way streets are the latest answer to traffic problems, but one-way communication is the last way to solve human problems.

The Spectator — Novel Combines Text And Outside Reading

(Today's Spectator is by Anna Papagni)

OFTENTIMES a student will have severe qualms of conscience when he picks up a novel because he knows that once the cover of his story is opened, the cover of his textbook will close.

Irving Stone, the acknowledged master of the biographical novel form, has recently published a thoroughly remarkable book, The Agony And The Ecstasy, which manages to dispel the guilt feelings of students who crave "outside" reading by including in its pages a wealth of knowledge that is applicable to any classroom.

The novel portrays the life of one of the greatest geniuses the world has produced, Michelangelo Buonarroti, sculptor, painter, poet, architect and engineer.

First of all, the book is wonderfully entertaining. Michelangelo's personal life story, told as a novel, constitutes as forceful a tale of conflict and dedication as his staggering creativity, for he was a universal man, robust in his appetites as well as in his humor.

Guardsman Staff — Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieve
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell, Herman Kilgerman, Dave Kleinberg.

Reporters: Diane Klisky, Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Solis, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu, Peter Oppenheimer.

Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Mirtam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McCorthe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.

Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Hayden Townsend, Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

But more than entertainment, the history student will find an account of the transition from the terror of the Dark Ages to the modern era of the Golden Renaissance. Europe's leaders and their problems all make their appearance in this book.

The governmental structures in Europe, particularly the Italian city states, are represented for the political science major.

The geologist will read an account of the form and composition of marble, how it was mined and treated in Florence during the 1470's. There are also descriptions of the stones that paved streets and composed buildings of 15th century Italy.

Philosophy students will see new ideas conflicting with the Church, and the dialogue is sprinkled with Italian words and phrases that the language major can use in his classroom.

For the artist there are detailed descriptions and critiques of classic masterpieces in sculpture, painting and fresco as well as discussions on technique. Especially interesting for the present day student is the manner in which brushes and paint were made.

Humanist scholars, poets and writers, now studied in English classes, are all part of Michelangelo's story.

Architects and engineers will see the grandeur of Rome take shape.

Class structure is represented for the sociology student, and Michelangelo's personality makeup provides a case study for the psychologist.

Irving Stone has taken for his own canvas all of the revolutionary turmoil and pageantry of this turbulent era, and it is against a panorama of giants that Michelangelo's life unfolds in a novel that is as existing, dramatic and unusual as the masterpieces he created.

The croaker is a fish that produces a croaking or grunting noise as it swims.

• • •

The woodchuck is one of the thickest marmots of the northeastern United States and Canada.

Russian Born Student Doubles In Football And Art Here

Knatz's Knack On Exhibit In Gymnasium

By Herman Kilgerman

Prowess in football and accomplishment in art may be a rare combination of abilities for one person but Russian - born Nick Knatz, a student here, possesses both.

According to the 6-foot 215-pound youth, art wasn't even in his mind during childhood. Through his father he managed to pick up some ability in that field.

While enrolled at Lowell High School between 1955 and 1958, Knatz designed the school's student body card and their book covers which are currently being used. He also excelled in tennis there.

Presently in his fifth semester here, Knatz has already displayed his fine football ability in addition to artistry. He played guard on the Rams for the past two years, and if it weren't for the ruling that limits a junior college player to two years on a grid team he might have played again this semester.

"The best coach a guy could ever have" is his feeling toward Alex Schwarz, football line coach here, who gave him his initial start in football.

Between his graduation from high school and enrollment here Knatz attended San Francisco State for a semester, excelling in the sport of tennis.

Born in a small village in Russia just before the outbreak of the Second World War, Knatz and his family—mother, father, brother and sister—spent the war years in their homeland and Germany.

In 1942 he and his family were captured by the enemy and committed to a Bolshevist labor camp for three years. Knatz and his mother were the only ones to survive this ordeal.

On the Displaced Persons Visa of 1949 Knatz, aged 9, and his mother came to the United States to live. Their first residence was in New York until, in 1951, they decided to move west, finally settling in San Francisco.

After getting acquainted with the new surroundings and evironment Knatz enrolled in public school here in the city.

Examples of his art are displayed near the main entrance to the men's gymnasium in full color. Two of his pictures appeared on the sports page of The Guardsman last semester.

ARTIST-FOOTBALL PLAYER NICK KNATZ cartoons assistant football coach Alex Schwarz controlling the massive strength of two of his best linemen, Dave Urrea (69) and Jim Baffico (75). Two other sports cartoons by Knatz were published in The Guardsman last semester.

Just A Leak

But Curiosity Runs Wild

Speculation has arisen among students here concerning the two ominous-looking pits in the front lawn of Science Hall.

One young man said that he thought the gardeners were digging for gold. A coed here said that they were graves for a couple of giant turtles.

Still another really let his imagination run wild. He told of driving by the college one night last week and seeing giant mutant ants emerging from the depths of the two curious indentations.

But, here is the real corker. One bomb-conscious individual swore up and down that the college was building two air raid shelters for use in case of an attack from outer space.

After hearing all of these fantastic explanations one might wonder where the real truth of the matter lies. Well, after consulting with a member of the maintenanee department here, the real facts are now open to the public.

There is no gold. There are no giant mutant ants or air raid shelter plans. There are only a couple of leaks in a water pipe supplying the lawn sprinklers.

Because of this the lawn-mowing machine was unable to do its job because it couldn't cut the grass in those two areas undermined with water.

The purpose of the two excavations was to locate the above trouble and patch up the holes in the pipe.

But maybe, it's just possible that . . .

Foresight — Changing TV Trends 'Outgun' Westerns

By John Muller

TELEVISION PROGRAMMING has reached the highest point in many years as there is something besides third rate rerun Westerns filling the bill on each channel this season.

Two of the better shows that premiered this fall are Follow The Sun and Car 54, Where Are You?

Adventure, which pepped up last fall's programming with such notables as Hawaiian Eye, Adventures In Paradise and Surf-Side Six, has taken a big step forward with Follow The Sun on Channel 7 at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Three versatile young actors star on the program: Gary Lockwood, John Coll and Bret Halsey. One of the most refreshing things about the program is that the actors alternate every week, although two or all of them may appear together in one episode.

Even though stereotyped along the same lines as Hawaiian Eye (the only major difference is that the stars are free-lance magazine writers instead of private detectives), Follow The Sun offers the viewer a change of pace.

The most startling thing about the program is that some shows have had almost no ending.

The helpless viewer faces a situation which he has perhaps never faced before on television—the ending is left for him to interpret.

This is good for the viewer; for once he has to use his brain power instead of being an enert, absorbing particle in the TV room. Making the viewer think has only been done effectively in the past by the better programs such as Playhouse 90.

Cops and robbers have taken a twist on Channel 4 every Sunday at 8:30 p.m. immediately after Follow the Sun.

In this world of ours with many phases of media devoted to sensationalism, sadism and pessimism, Car 54, Where Are You? offers the viewer what he has been screaming for—humor.

Car 54 jolts the viewer. He's able to smile. It's a silly plot every week and guaranteed to make even the most grouchy viewers chuckle. It can't fail to.

On one hand there is tall, skinny patrolman named Francis Muldoon, played by Fred Gwynne. Contrasting sharply is his partner, short and stubby Gunther Toody, played by Joe E. Ross.

Francis and Gunther! Muldoon and Toody! What's the representation of our police force coming to?

The screen is brilliant with comedy as the two police officers bungle through even the simplest of assignments. This is one show that will receive top billing again next season.

These two examples prove that if the viewer changes channels every hour or so he won't have to watch one miserable cowboy shoot-'em-up. This was one thing next to impossible last season.

Alas, Alack, A Shack!

No Longer Is Lounge Site Dark Secret

Many students here don't know there is a student lounge located behind Cloud Hall in bungalows 3 and 4, while others know about it—and are keeping it a secret.

Since the student lounge was designed to be an informal meeting place, and the men and women who patronized it before acted informally, a suitable name had to be found.

The name, Shack, was chosen for its casualness and for its lack of coldness and foreboding which its former name suggested. Thus its existence should be a secret no longer.

With the addition of a new name, one of the two signs scheduled by Alpha Phi Omega and Alpha Kappa Rho is completed, so more and more students can find it.

The Shack is picking up business this semester, and it is hoped that this casual meeting and eating place will eventually become a permanent part in campus life.

It offers much to the students. It is the only place on campus a student may relax, socialize and eat without being disturbed.

It gets away from the congestion of the cafeteria, and could be described as a cross between a study hall and a lunch room.

Cook and Steiner, who have always felt strongly that the union must offer students something to be successful, feel the lounge offers much to the student, but that it takes time for them to be aware of it.

The union has been fairly successful. It is filled nearly to its capacity of 125 people on most days between 12 noon and 1 p.m.

The project of hooking up with KCSF, the campus broadcasting station, is still being worked on.

The union is open every day between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Counterpoint

Tricky Titles Answer Five W's-And How!

By Dick Dragavon

BOOKS are often said to be the key to learning, but it is not often realized to what extent this is true.

From the journalistic viewpoint there are hundreds of books written to satisfy the five W's, who, what, when, where and why and sometimes how.

A sampling of the Cumulative Book Index of Janunry to July 1959 shows that there are volumes telling Who's Who in Turkey, Austria, World Aviation And Astronautics, and also Who's Running This Expedition!

One can discover What—Ballet Is About, Dr. Spock Didn't Tell Us and Is Africa. Anyone who may still have doubts may find out, through reading, What A Policeman Does.

To keep everyone on even ground, books are prepared describing What Every Supervisor Should Know, and What Every Taxpayer Should Know.

To answer those questions which inevitably arise in sophisticated group discussions, and to which no one seems to know the answers, tomes are available to explain What Happened To Whimpy, and What Has Four Wheels And Flies.

The answers to What Is A Turtle, Life, Love, Cybernetics, The Nature Of Man are listed besides, What Is Your Problem, Mother?.

The curious and the scholars may wind up with What We Are For and What You Can Do For Angina Pectoris And Coronary Occlusion.

Powerful climaxes sound imminent When—Danger Threatens, One Third Of A City Block Moves To The Suburbs, and We Dead Awaken.

What happens next is anybody's guess When—My Ship Comes Home, St. Nicholas Got Back, or You Preach.

To get the opposite of two extremes one may peruse Where Love Is, then Where No Love Is, and also Where Rivers Meet, and Where No Mains Flow.

In case anyone wonders Where Is Mary Bostwick, well, Where Else But Pittsburgh, Where The White Sanbhur Roams, and Where There's Smoke.

Industrious readers will find Why—Men Confess, Was Lincoln Murdered, You Are You, and Why So Angry?

A wealth of information is under How—I Turned $1000 Into A Million In Real Estate, Much Is A 8, Many Angles?, and Not To Play Chess.

Prospective bill collectors can learn the ultimate of their trade in How To Make Earthworms Pay.

Unromantic readers will help themselves by reading How To Protect Your Heart. If this fails, however, a second volume is available, How To Survive Matrimony.

How To Take Better Pictures was apparently studied to good advantage by an art thief this summer who got away with a few priceless originals.

Students who wish to begin studying at the basic beginnings may pick up any of these, How—To Watch A Parade, Remove The Cotton From A Bottle Of Aspirin, Read A Page, or Come—It's Called That?

The final book which seems as though it should be required reading for everybody in this age is How To Do Nothing With Nobody All Alone By Yourself.

AGS Volunteers Double As Tutors

Tutoring services are currently being offered by Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, volunteers. William Richardson, adviser to this organization, states that the service is open to college, high school and junior high school students requesting help.

The idea of starting a coaching service was initiated when students began calling members of the society, asking for help in generally required subjects.

Students who carried B averages or better last semester are eligible to join this organization.

Students with final grades of D are ineligible for membership in the honor society. Anyone interested in joining is asked to consult Richardson in S-155.

14 To Model Fashions At Tea Today

ISC Award Goes To Frosh Coed With Top Grades

(Continued from Page 1)

and graphic arts departments assisted Betty Rice with her work on the program committee.

Suzanne Murphy, AWS vice president; Melia Furgis, women's physical education instructor; Tina Drescher and Joan Collingean of the merchandising department comprise the board of judges for the models.

Models included in the final selection from the college at large are Diane Luhr, Wendy Dickson, Bonnie Black, Paulette Walti, Marlene Cortopassi, Pamela Washburn and Connie Wilson.

Also participating in model sportswear, cocktail dresses and formals are Diane O'Neill, Carol Ann Henton, Rosie Fang, Pamela Chandler, Barbara Preston, Diane Perrine and Carol Ferro.

Probably the only men students formally invited to the event are the selected escorts. Those assisting the models include Bob Perkins, Greg Monk, Paul Steiner, Bill Reichert, Dan Collins, Stan Burford and Fred Cherniss.

Other committees include decorations, composed of Barbara Sperring, Sherry Spindel and Jeri Crivelli.

Entertainment Chairman Sharon Hawley has arranged for Shirley Thornton, alto, to sign a few popular songs for the show. International Relations Club is sending two representatives, Elvin Pantoja and Benjamin Villian, to perform a Mexican dance to the tune of La Bamba.

Inter-Sorority Council is having a representative from each sorority form a group and present a pantomime of I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out Of My Hair from the show, South Pacific.

The food committee chairman, Lana Holliday, has arranged with the hotel and restaurant department for brownies, cookies, cream puffs, petits fours, Danish pastries, tea, orange juice and grenadine to be served.

Hostesses, numbering 45 and under the direction of Jerilyn Sciutto, will serve the provided food.

Carole Mar, chairman of the set-up committee, and a staff composed of seven members of the Chinese Students Club will have the task of placing dishes, cups, saucers, napkins and silverware.

Sorority pledges under the direction of Kathy Hallock, ISC president, will help with serving and cleaning.

Coats will be checked by members of the Recreation Association with an assist from Maxine Hickman, head of the coat check committee.

An offieial cameraman, arranged for by AWS Historian Maureen Farley, will be present to photograph models. Some of the photographs may appear in next semester's college handbook.

One of the highlights of the show, presentation of the ISC award, was started last semester. A perpetual award, it is presented to the low freshman woman student with the highest grade point average for the first midterm.

Last semester's winner was Marina Popoff, who maintained 16½ units with a 3.4 average.

TEMPORARILY SETTING ASIDE PLANS for this afternoon's Associated Women Student tea and fashion show to take a tea break of their own are Jan Doudiet, AWS president, pouring for Jeri Sciutto and Barbara Sperring, committee chairmen.—Guardsman photo by Herb Green.

Students Face Facts In USA, '62

Top Scholars Register Early

Students who had a high grade point average last semester and filled out the preregistration cards have gotten the early registration numbers for Spring 1962, Walter McCloud, counselor here, said yesterday.

A wealth of information is under How—I Turned $1000 Into A Million In Real Estate, Much Is A 8, Many Angles?, and Not To Play Chess.

Prospective bill collectors can learn the ultimate of their trade in How To Make Earthworms Pay.

Unromantic readers will help themselves by reading How To Protect Your Heart. If this fails, however, a second volume is available, How To Survive Matrimony.

How To Take Better Pictures was apparently studied to good advantage by an art thief this summer who got away with a few priceless originals.

Students who wish to begin studying at the basic beginnings may pick up any of these, How—To Watch A Parade, Remove The Cotton From A Bottle Of Aspirin, Read A Page, or Come—It's Called That?

The final book which seems as though it should be required reading for everybody in this age is How To Do Nothing With Nobody All Alone By Yourself.

Transfers Get Navy 'Break'

Transfers to a university offering a Naval training program will be getting a break beginning next year.

The Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps will offer to junior college men a nine-week summer course. It enables those students on completion of the course to enroll in any of the 52 Naval Reserve accredited colleges and universities.

Upon registration as a junior, students will continue to participate in the reserve program on the same level as those who registered for the full four years.

Prior to the summer course students will be enlisted in the Naval Reserve and receive an alloted pay during the period. Tuition and instructional supplies will also be provided by the Reserve.

Subjects included on the summer training program include naval orientation, evolution of seapower, naval weapons and psychology, both personal and social adjustments.

After completion at one of the NROTC universities or colleges students will receive pay and also participate in a summer training cruise between their junior and senior years.

On graduation from college he will be commissioned as an ensign in the Reserve of the Navy or a second lieutenant in the Reserve of the Marine Corps.

Additional information will be available next month when the college will be visited by Naval officers.

Rally Friday To Precede Modesto Football Game

To bolster spirit for this Friday's football game against the Modesto Pirates a rally has been scheduled for College Hour at the Redwood Ram, Stan Burford, rally chairman, announced today.

Preparations are now being made by Burford and his 13-man committee to make the rally entertaining and spirited.

He also revealed that there is a possibility of a general purpose rally later this month.

Burford also urged again that students take an active part in these special assemblies and participate in the semester's social and athletic activities.

Brussels Exposition Photos On Display

Photographs that were submitted to the Exposition Internationale des Ecoles de Photographie in Brussels last year are now on display on the main floor of Science Hall.

Resemblance, the acclaimed print which won international recognition at the World's Fair in Brussels, is included.

Grades, Units OK Deferments

The number of units carried and the grades a student obtains are the factors governing his eligibility for a draft deferment, John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare here, said last week.

To meet the draft board requirements a student must complete approximately 30 units in one year.

This would be his college year, not necessarily the college academic year. Thus, if a student began his course in February his year would end in January. If he began in September it would end in June, Brady explained.

If a full-time summer course is pursued then the academic year for the September-June student could be extended until the end of the summer session.

A full-time summer course consists of six units.

Students meeting the above requirements are then entitled to a statutory deferment until the end of their academic year, if they receive their induction notice.

Brady advised students seeking further information on obtaining deferment to visit his office in S-132.

Ushering Jobs Open To Students

Highlighting the Leningrad Kirov Ballet will be a performance of Gala Programme No. 2, which will be presented at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the San Francisco Opera House.

All students wishing to usher at this and other performances can sign up in Dean Mary Golding's office.

Included in the performances will be Chopiniana, Shostakovich Seventh Symphony, Taraas Bulba, Flame Of Paris Pas De Deux and other works.

Sleeping Beauty will be presented tomorrow evening and Swan Lake Friday evening. Both of these performances will be held at 8:30 p.m.

On Saturday at 2:30 p.m. the Leningrad Kirov Ballet will feature Swan Lake, and that evening at 8:30 another performance of Gala Programme No. 2 will be presented.

Students planning to usher at the evening performances of the Leningrad Kirov Ballet must plan to be at the San Francisco Opera House at 7 p.m., Dean Golding emphasized.

Oriental Student Counselor Speaks During C-Hour

Helping Oriental college students to become situated in an American college and way of life, Dr. William Sung, their current counselor, will lecture in S-100 during College Hour this Friday, Katherine Pedley of the library staff here, stated today.

His topic will be Problems Of Asiatic Students in the United States.

Dr. Sung attended the University of Shanghai, where he later became president. The university was liquidated by the Chinese Communists, and Dr. Sung, since China will not admit anyone who has been a prisoner of the Communists, came to America.

Also the minister of an Episcopal church, he is a frequent lecturer. He generally uses his own experiences to illustrate his points, according to Mrs. Pedley.

By traveling from Seattle to San Diego he, in order to welcome the Oriental college students due for arrival, meets all the ships scheduled to come to the California coast.

Dr. Sung's personal knowledge of difficulties confronting immigrants, when he was faced with the problem of being unable to return to his mother country and had to adopt different living standards and customs, was a factor in his attainment of the counselor position.

Club Cavalcade

SCTA To Hear Educator Speak At College Hour

By Sandy Solis

MANY CLUBS this week are featuring guest speakers and special events at their meeting.

Carlos Ruling, assistant principal of Francis Scott Key grammar school will speak to members and visitors of Student California Teachers Association on The Place Of The Male Teacher in Elementary Education during College Hour Friday in C-269. Everyone is welcome.

Merchandising Club is in the midst of plans for a men's fashion show during College Hour January 12. The theme will be Man Of '62. Further plans will be announced at a later date.

A dinner at the home of Jerilyn Sciutto was held for Phi Beta Rho sorority. Instructions to new pledges were given.

At 2 p.m. Saturday, November 25, the Chess Club will compete in a match with a fraternity from the college at Smith Hall.

Filipino Students Club is participating in the forthcoming Christmas Drive, sponsored by Club Activities Board, by collecting donations. Regular meetings of the club are held during College Hour in C-220.

A film on skiing will be shown to members and friends of Newman Club. Those students interested in attending during College Hour Friday may visit S-204.

Contemporary Affairs Forum is now engaged in a general discussion of the Cuban situation. Those students wishing to participate may attend during College Hour in C-219.

A film on the Chinese opera entitled A Night At A Peking Opera will be presented to members of the Chinese Students Club Friday during College Hour in C-246.

Dick Plenquist, general manager of Radio Station KEAR-FM will discuss opportunities in radio work to members and visitors of Collegiate Christian Fellowship. The time is College Hour Friday in C-201, and all interested students are welcome to attend.

The Christian Science Organization will host its meeting tomorrow night at 7:45 p.m. in Third Church of Christ Scientist, 1250 Haight street, near Baker street. All students, faculty, alumni and friends are invited to attend. Further information is available from Nina Tucker, Hotel and Restaurant Society adviser.

The Lutheran Discussion Club is holding a theater party at 7:45 p.m. Friday at the Stage Door theater. The movie to be viewed will be Question 7, a story of the reality of life behind the Iron Curtain in Communist East Berlin.

THEY WENT ALL THE WAY—the 1961 championship Ram soccer squad. (Standing, left to right) Coach Roy Diederichsen, Juan Garay, Caesar Pina, Lee Wurtenburg, Flavio Valiente, Al Korbus, Vince Liu, Hector Olaya, Sherwood Zamit. (Kneeling) Allen Chew, Ivan Bermudez, Dave Fromer, Dennis Minga, Bob Salazar, Gary DeLong, Olaf Strohmeir, Louis Chung.—Guardsman photo by Bill Bargagliotti.

Booters Take It All!

By Vince Liu

BALBOA SOCCER STADIUM, Nov. 11.—It may well have happened two weeks too soon, but Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccer wonders brought home the biggest turkey for their Thanksgiving as they defeated University of San Francisco, 2-0, for the league title and became the only undefeated, untied soccer team in City College history.

However, since it is not a four-year institution the college cannot participate in the NCAA tournament.

Possessing a perfect 6-0 conference record, the first place booters will take on University of British Columbia from Canada in an exhibition game this Saturday at Balboa Soccer Stadium. The contest, which precedes the NCAA western regional game between USF and St. Louis University, is slated for 11 a.m.

A tremendous defense, an opportune offense, and a display of sheer courage and determination by 11 men spelled championship for the Red and White in a thriller witnessed by an enthusiastic, shouting crowd.

Sporting four injured legs in the lineup as the result of the rough Stanford contest three days ago won by the locals, 3-1, the fired-up Rams, though outweighed by a bigger and taller Don eleven, were never outhustled as they charged onto the field with bad knees, ankles, muscles and all.

Scoring both of its goals in the first half, the Phelan Avenue crew staged a magnificent defensive battle in the last quarter to stave off the onrushing Hilltoppers.

With seven minutes gone in the tilt, Flavio Valiente, the versatile veteran who fares well on both offense and defense, took a pass from offensive standout Ivan Bermudez and pushed across the winning goal.

Al Korbus, whose league leading 21 tallies include all three against Stanford, scored the all-important second goal with eight minutes elapsed in the second stanza after taking a pass from scrappy Juan Garay.

The defense, meantime, was absolutely superb. Halfbacks Dave Fromer, Dennis Minga, Caesar Pina, and fullbacks Hugo Olaya and Roberto Salazar with help from wings Louis Chung and Vince Liu, bogged down numerous drives with a crowding up-the-middle defense that left no room for a clear shot from the Don booters.

However, the man who made the Rams' third shutout of the season possible was Gary DeLong. Battered and knocked down and over repeatedly by the hard-charging Don forwards, the sensational goalie kept his poise and grabbed everything within his reach.

Elated over the big win, the all-smiling Diederichsen didn't single out any one player. "It was strictly a team victory," declared the successful mentor, who has done a king-size job in molding a young and inexperienced freshmen - dominated team into a champion.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

IF THE CITY of Oakland wants to remain bush league in its athletic endeavors that's up to them, but endangering the life and health of athletes should not be one of their prerogatives.

Football is dangerous enough without teams having to contend with the field conditions the Rams faced when they routed the Thunderbirds at antiquated Bushrod Park.

Because of this Ram halfback Bob Taylor has to suffer for several months with the shattered right foot he suffered during the game.

Was Taylor tackled hard? Did he fall wrong? No, he stepped in one of the numerous holes which dotted the field.

This not only ends the speedy star's football and track career for at least the next year and severely hampers the chances of a spirited football club still fighting for the second spot—most important of all, it puts Taylor well behind in his academic studies.

It somehow bordered on the comic tragedy as the ambulance rushing off with Oakland halfback Eddie Titus, who suffered a severely dislocated ankle, had to be flagged down to return for Taylor.

One can see now why a weak Oakland squad playing on a so-called field which houses up to three teams at the same time has had as many as nine footballers out with injuries at the same time.

Ram pilot Grover Klemmer was vehement as he declared, "That injury wasn't necessary. It was a direct result of the condition of the field. I've never seen nor even heard of a place in such terrible condition.

"There isn't a decent place to play football in that city."

The "field" referred to was like a dirt patch with weeds instead of grass and full of holes. Why the weeds, unmowed, were as high as four or five inches in spots.

Oakland City College officials, who wish to remain anonymous, say repeated efforts for a solution from the park and recreation department, which rents the field, have been met with complete apathy, and that "there will be no improvement in the near future."

This was a site recommended for the Oakland Raiders, and if they were to play there they would be laughed out of pro football.

All the coaches in the Big Eight have complained, and unless the league takes a definite stand to alleviate the condition there is, unfortunately, no doubt that more injuries will be forthcoming because of Bushrod Park.

Gridmen Face 'Blitz' On Friday

Second Place Rams End Competition In Big Eight

When the second place Rams meet the Modesto Pirates in the season finale Friday in City College stadium, head coach Grover Klemmer's big problem will be defense against Modesto's version of the Shotgun—the Blitz.

Because of the realignment of the Big Eight set for next year, this is the final meeting of the two clubs and the Rams' last contest in their present league.

Having successfully defended against the Shotgun three weeks ago by stopping the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs, Klemmer will be scheming to halt Modesto and give the Rams a chance for the Big Eight Conference title.

The Shotgun, sometimes referred to as the spread, was made popular by the San Francisco 49ers. It stations the quarterback five to six yards behind the center and moves the backs near the line with the ends.

When Santa Rosa pulled the formation on October 20 the Rams shoved the shot right back up the gun, winning 19-6. Fourteen times the Bear Cubs passed, completing only two and had three intercepted.

"We scouted Santa Rosa early in the season and knew that they were going to use the formation," Klemmer said. "We were set for it. As a matter of fact we beat the Chicago Bears by one week on the defense of it." (The Bears muffled the shotgun, 31-0.)

"We did exactly as the Bears and Pittsburgh Steelers did to stop it—used a five-man line with the fifth man bumping head-on with the center," Klemmer added.

Modesto's variation of the offense moves the quarterback up to take a direct snap from the center. It is a basic double wing T-formation.

The Blitz hasn't brought Modesto much success. The Pirates' first league win was an upset victory over Stockton; its second over Oakland.

"The best way to stop the formation is to get to the quarterback as quickly as possible," Klemmer reported.

Pirate problems are based on their inability to hold on to the football. In an earlier loss to Contra Costa, Modesto fumbled the ball away four times.

Panthers Edge Rams In Final Minutes, 20-14

After seeing their two touchdown lead melt away, the Sacramento Panthers had to rally in the waning minutes of the game to defeat the Ram gridders, 20-14, Saturday at Hughes Stadium.

The upset left both teams with 4-2 marks in the Big Eight, tying them for second place in the Big Eight behind unbeaten San Mateo.

In the opening quarter it looked as if the Panthers, who eventually ran off 72 rushing plays to 37 for the losers, would run the Rams right off the field as they scored the first two times they got their hands on the pigskin.

After a short punt by Jim Baffico, it took the hosts, celebrating Homecoming, only four plays to score. Fleet halfback Hank Reynolds, after eluding Jack Burgett's tackle behind the line, raced 42 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown.

Faced with a fourth down on the Ram 7-yard line, Sacramento tallied again when Hank Minamide, who carried 28 times for 132 yards, took a lateral on the option play and sped around left end with Joe Latona converting for 14-0.

Except for a Panther drive to the Ram 10, neither team again threatened in the opening half.

Hurt by the loss of halfback Ron Coleman, who was ejected along with Sacramento's Vic Cima for fighting, the Rams needed a big play to wake the offense from its slump, and Tom Pigee provided the explosion midway through the third period.

Thr. All - Conference star, who picked up 129 yards rushing, burst between left guard and tackle and, aided by Terry Fischer's key block, sped 71 yards for the college's longest scoring play this year.

Led by hard-charging Dave Urrea and Jim Baffico, the defense stopped the hosts cold and the Rams escaped disaster when Reynolds let an easy interception slip through his arms.

On fourth down, quarterback Ben Winslow, playing the best game of his career, "rode" George Benkie, Dennis Drucker and Urrea to a first down on the Panther 16 after which Pigee carried six straight times.

However, it took a quick five-yard fourth down pass from Winslow to Fischer to ram the ball across the goal with elusive Al Raine using all his cunning to squeeze across with the tying extra-point after taking Winslow's pass in the flat.

Sacramento wouldn't settle for a tie and used a key third down pass and a controversial 15-yard penalty against the Rams for face-mask tackling to advance the ball upfield with Minamide bulling across from one yard out with only 3:05 remaining to play.

Raine brought the crowd to its feet on the ensuing kickoff as he scooted through an enormous hole up the middle, cut to his left and looked to be long gone before the last defender hauled him down on the winners' 43-yard line.

Here the drive bogged down and Sacramento merely ran out the clock.
—By I.T.

Seven Game Statistics Indicate Strong Defense

TEAM TOTALS:	SF	Opp
Points	132	54
Rushing Plays	312	307
Rushing Yards	1267	876
Passes Attempted	82	104
Passes Completed	26	45
Passes Had Intercepted	11	10
Passing Yards	456	472
Total Net Yards	1723	1350
First Downs	91	81
Penalties Against	47	43
Penalty Yards Against	445	381
Punts	36	39
Punting Yards	976	1249
Punting Average	34.9	32.0
Fumbles	19	23
Fumbles Lost	11	11
Average Per Rush	4.1	2.7

INDIVIDUAL SF PASSING:

Player—	PA	PC	YDS.	PHI	TD
Randy Antenlico	43	17	241	6	1
Ben Winslow	37	11	219	6	3
Maury Warner	1	0	0	1	0
Verdell Price	1	0	0	1	0

RECEIVING:

	No.	Yards	TD
Ray Greggains	5	59	0
Bob Taylor	3	82	1
Verdell Price	3	69	1
Ron Coleman	3	52	1
Tom Pigee	3	40	0
Terry Fischer	3	38	0
Jere Brissell	3	23	0
Jim Ahern	1	46	0
Neal Shea	1	14	0
John Daigle	1	12	1
Al Raine	1	14	0
Ernie Oliver	1	10	0
John Jacobson	1	1	0

RUSHING:

	Rushes	Yds.	Av.	Long.
Pigee	102	526	5.2	48
Coleman	59	266	4.4	21
Taylor	51	199	3.7	20
Raine	37	185	5.0	22
Antenlico	27	40	1.5	28
Chuck Ouchani	8	21	2.6	12
John Daigle	4	1	0.25	1
Claude Shipp	3	14	4.7	7
Joe Binford	2	5	2.5	4
Price	1	4	4.0	4
Winslow	9	—12	—1.4	3
Bob Pulliti	2	—1	—0.5	3
Joe Giacomino	1	—1	—1.0	—1
Ahern	1	0	0.0	0

Harriers Hopeful In Friday Meet

Encountering Sacramento, Fresno and Foothill colleges in the Northern California championship meet this Friday, the Ram cross-country team presently stands with a record of seven wins and one loss.

The final league standings are not determined until after the conference meet at the end of the season.

The harriers were defeated by Sacramento 26-29 but won against San Mateo 25-34 in a dual meet November 3.

Coach Lou Vasquez expects to place within the top four teams. His optimism includes the hope that his team members will be in top physical shape.

Top runners for the college are John Weidinger, Andy Loobey, Steve Jackson, Roger Ritchey, George Varmuza and Jose Valle. Because of an injury suffered in the last league meet Ritchey was a doubtful starter this week.

Weidinger led the Red and White squad with a 15:49 fourth place. Jackson and Loobey came next in seventh and eighth places with 15:57 and 15:58 times, respectively. Ritchey came in ninth with a 16.01.

Race Tightens In Intramural Loop

Zeta Phi Sigma meets Alpha Kappa Rho and Alpha Phi Epsilon meets Beta Tau in intramural competition tonight as the tight loops continue toward the half-way mark.

Last week's competition saw The Guardsman fall prey to the Alli by the score of 36 to 26. High scorer for The Guardsman was Larry Stewart with 16 points. Melvin Tom dunked 21 points for the victors.

The Electroneers won over the Kane by the score of 26-18 with John Jacobsen scoring 14 for the winners while Ed Coit hit for 8 in a losing effort.

Continuing their unbeaten trend the Collegiate 5 edged by the Believers 47-45. John Jackson and Ed Rice each scored 14 points on the respective teams.

Zeta Phi Sigma lost out to Alpha Phi Epsilon by the score of 34-27. John Giles took top honors for the Alphas with 13 points while Mike Miggee hit for 12 for the Zetes.

Again last week Alpha Kappa Rho forfeited its game to Beta Tau when the team did not show up at the assigned time.

Last night The Guardsman met the Kane team, the Hotel and Restaurant battled with the Alli, the Untouchables took on the Electroneers and the Believers played the Newman Club.

Signups Heavy For Participation In All-College Coed Sports Day Saturday

Signups for various teams to compete in an all-college coeducational sports day event from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. this Saturday in the women's gymnasium have been so great that a rotation system will have to be used, Shirley Thornton, president of the Recreation Association, stated.

Colleges which will participate are Cabrillo, Contra Costa, Diablo Valley, Foothill, Hartnell, Monterey Peninsula, Napa, Oakland, San Jose, San Mateo, Santa Rosa and Marin.

Activities which will be included in this sports day will be archery, badminton, bowling, folk dancing, tennis and volleyball.

Archers will compete in the Junior Columbia Round which includes individual scores and point of aim only. They should bring their own bows and arrows, Miss Thornton said.

Badminton and tennis each consist of one women's singles, one men's singles and one mixed doubles. Participants are asked to bring their own rackets, although birdies and balls will be provided.

Bowling will be scored in three lines and the cost to the student will be 50 cents per line. The folk dancing competition will consist of five couples from each college.

Volleyball teams of six, three women and three men, will compete.

All interested students are asked to be in the women's gymnasium at 8:30 a.m. for registration after which activities will begin.

Beverage and dessert will be provided, Miss Thornton added, but students should bring their own lunches.

In a men's unclassified foil event, held at Letterman General Hospital gymnasium November 4, two students from this college reached the semi-finals.

Harry Jorgensen and Bob Lawrence fenced their way to the semi-finals of the meet before being eliminated, while teammate Bill Lindo was awarded fourth place in the finals.

Thanksgiving: For Past And Present Man Is Grateful

ALTHOUGH Thanksgiving as we celebrate it today is a distinctly American holiday, it is not generally realized that its origin stretches much farther back in time to the numerous harvest festivals customarily held in many nations.

Mention is made in various Books of the Bible of rejoicing when "the fruit of the land" had been gathered in, and since these beginnings, records are available of harvest celebrations from cities in Greece and ancient Rome.

Descriptions are abundant of the English Harvest Home, and in some parts of England the holiday is still celebrated.

It is no wonder then that after a bountiful harvest in 1621 Governor Bradford ordered a three-day feast and celebration for the settlers in the Plymouth colony.

This was not, however, the beginning of the annual holiday which we celebrate, for in 1622 and in a number of the following 50 years there was no celebration at all.

In those years when festivals were held they were set on dates ranging any time from July 30 to February 22, and apparently only when the Pilgrims felt that they had something for which to be thankful.

It wasn't until 1668 that Thanksgiving began to be proclaimed by various governors with regularity, although it was still only a New England celebration.

Thanksgiving was held each year during the Revolutionary War by proclamation of the Continental Congress, but after the war ended the practice was discontinued until 1789.

This was the year when George Washington issued the first presidential Thanksgiving proclamation.

Succeeding presidents only occasionally followed Washington's example, but in 1864 Lincoln set the fourth Thursday of November as Thanksgiving with the intention of making this an annual practice.

Since that time Americans as a nation have regularly celebrated this holiday as a day when relatives gather together for a day of feasting.

And they haven't yet seemed to run out of things for which to be thankful.

The Guardsman
Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1961 NUMBER 9

ISC Presents Set For Smith Hall On December 1

Winter Mist, which was selected as the theme by the Inter-Sorority Council for Presents this semester, will take place Friday, December 1, in Smith Hall, according to Mary Golding, dean of women.

Dancing at the semiformal affair will be to the music of Steve Paul and his orchestra from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Presents, which is one of the main activities of the sorority program, will be limited to sorority women, pledges and their dates. As in the past, parents will also be invited, but this semester admission will be strictly by invitation.

The traditional high point of the evening will be the presentation of the new sorority members.

Kathy Hallock, ISC president, will preside over the program as mistress of ceremonies, and each sorority president will introduce her new sisters.

A new practice will be initiated at Presents this semester, when each pledge will be sponsored by a sister of her newly chosen sorority.

"Committees are already hard at work endeavoring to make Presents as successful as it has been in the past," Dean Golding stated.

Kappa Phi is in charge of the band and flowers, Phi Beta Rho and Delta Psi decorations and clean-up, Delta Sigma Tau invitations and tallies, Theta Tau pledge lineup, and Gamma Kappa Beta refreshments and photography.

PLANNING for the ISC Presents are six of its members from left to right, in front row, Carol Henton, Delta Sigma Tau; Mary Ann Grandemange, Gamma Kappa Beta; Edie Grant, Delta Psi. Back row, Kathy Hallock, Theta Tau and ISC president; Sandy Thompson, Kappa Phi, and Jerilyn Sciutto, Phi Beta Rho.—Guardsman photo by George Piklich.

KAFAFIAN WINS ISC TROPHY

An award to the incoming freshman woman student with the highest scholastic standing was presented at last Wednesday's fashion show and tea to Kathryn Kafafian, carrying a 3.75 grade point average.

Miss Kafafian, a graduate of George Washington High School, is an honorary member of Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college's honor society.

The award, a plaque and a charm for a bracelet, was sponsored by ISC and presented by Kathy Hallock, ISC president.

Instructor Here Writes Second Year French Text

Doris E. Hernried, instructor here and graduate of the college, is a co-author of the recently published text, Perspectives De La Litterature Francaise.

The book, published by the Oxford University Press, has been written for second year college students of French. David M. Dougherty of the University of Oregon is the other author, who assisted Miss Hernried in preparing the book.

The book is a series of French poetry and prose selections of works of the past four centuries. The introductions were designed "to give insight into the literary qualities of each author and to convey the true flavor of his work," James Billwiller, acting dean of instruction here, said.

Dougherty covered the 17th, 18th and some of the 19th centuries, while Miss Hernried's selections were from the 20th century.

Major decisions regarding presentation, selection and interpretation of texts, and the content of introduction and notes were made by the authors jointly.

Ayalin Moves AS Elections Up; Candidacy Petitions Due Dec. 8

Changes in regulations and dates concerning the January Associated Student elections were announced last week by Ed Ayalin, election commissioner.

The deadline to file petitions for candidacy has been extended to Friday, December 8, at 1 p.m. Accordingly, new election dates have been set as Monday, January 8, and Tuesday, January 9.

Explaining the changes, Ayalin stated that by doing so more time could be devoted to campaigning.

Regarding the petitions, the commissioner announced that one 5 by 7 inch and four 2 by 3 inch photos will be necessary instead of the previously announced two 5 by 7 inch pictures.

At present the Student Representative Party and the United Students Party will participate in the election.

These parties will convene on Wednesday, December 6, and Thursday, December 7, to nominate their candidates. Names of eligible candidates will come from the petitions received in the AS office by Friday, December 8.

The last week of December and the first of January have been set aside as campaigning weeks.

Paul Steiner and Fred Cherniss, members of Student Council and Cabinet, are studying the Constitution of the Associated Students at present to seek possible amendments that would be represented as propositions on the election ballot.

Ayalin appealed to the likely candidates to read the AS Constitution in order to become informed on the general structure of student government and especially the offices they are seeking.

A poster contest, not yet definite, may be run prior to the election. The theme would be along the lines of "Get out and vote," and would not refer to a particular candidate.

Midterm Week Begins After Turkey Stuffing

Delicious turkey, savory dressing, candied yams, young peas, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie will be served for 65 cents, 50 cents a la carte, in the cafeteria today to celebrate Thanksgiving.

For turkey time is an event most students welcome because of the two-day holiday from classes tomorrow and Friday. Second midterms start the following Monday when classes resume.

Also taking a four-day weekend will be The Guardsman staff, meaning that the next issue of The Guardsman will be published Wednesday, December 6.

Fraternity Aids 'Dystrophy' Goal

Members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity here, have aided the impending Muscular Dystrophy fund-raising campaign by preparing kits for the solicitors.

In all, 7000 packages have been prepared by the members, some of whom have worked overtime.

During the course of the campaign, November 30 through December 3, fraternity members will help load the trucks which will carry the kits to the various area chairmen.

Business department representatives as well as drama students also aided in preparing the kits.

Muscular Dystrophy, as defined by the campaign co-ordinator, Mrs. Beverly Pasqualetti, wife of the photography instructor here, is a disease which attacks the involuntary muscles of the human body and ultimately results in disability of the patient and premature death.

Newman Club Slates Annual Thanksgiving Dance Tonight

Riding with the holiday festivities, the Newman Club will hold its annual Thanksgiving dance from 9 p.m. to midnght tonight at the St. Emydius gymnasium, 256 Jules avenue, James Horan, president of the club, announced today.

Admission price will be 75 cents drag and 50 cents stag for the members and $1 and 75 cents, respectively, for bearers of a City College registration card. Refreshments will be served and participants will dance to records.

The casual dress affair has been under the direction of Carol Gaughenbaugh and June Bricca, who head the club's social committee and, according to Horan, have worked hard to make it possible.

Highlighting its calendar of events will be a Christmas party for handicapped children, to be held sometime in December.

One of the biggest organizations on campus with 156 members, the Newman Club is actively engaged in planning several more activities in the upcoming months.

On Tuesday, November 28, the athletically inclined members of the club will get a chance to flex their muscles in the many games that have been scheduled for the "Sports Night" which will take place at the St. Emydius gymnasium.

The annual Christmas dance, one of the biggest affairs for the club, is set for December 12. Attending members will dress in sports attire.

Topping all events and putting the semester to a "snowy" close, a three-day trip to Squaw Valley during the semester break has been planned. The Newman Club is under the leadership of Horan, president; Margaret Cota, vice president; Laurie Menges, treasurer, and Pat Welch, corresponding secretary. Its faculty adviser is John O'Shaughnessy.

Pledges Improve Shack Facilities

Weeding, painting and installing of curtains and tablecloths brightened both the inside and outside of the student union and lounge (recently renamed the Shack), during Pledge Week which concluded last Friday, George Cook, comanager of the bungalow, stated.

Entering its third month of operation this semester the room, which is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, is proving successful. The fact is especially true during the lunch hour when a capacity crowd of 125 usually patronize the Shack.

Signs prepared by Alpha Phi Omega and Alpha Kappa Rho fraternities will make the union-lounge easier for students to find.

$800 Mark Set For Christmas CAB Benefit Drive

'Tis Fair To Share is the theme for the 1961 Christmas charity drive, which aims for an $800 goal, George Woo, president of the Club Activities Board, said yesterday.

The money collected during the annual drive will go to a needy family or families in the form of merchandise orders. Starting on Monday, December 4, the drive will run through this week, reaching its peak Friday when a giant rally is planned during the only double College Hour of the semester.

Woo hopes students will contribute as much as they can afford, but stated the real goal is to get every student to "contribute at least 10 cents, which would bring us near our goal."

Woo emphasized this is a project for all the campus organizations. Each will be given four or five cans to carry around the campus to collect donations.

Private projects by the organizations to add to the potential $800 goal is a new idea Woo is trying to push through. Woo explained that already the floriculture department has agreed to sell flowers.

In its preliminary stages now, three committees are working on the drive, research, publicity and finance.

Drive chairman, heading all three committees, is Jenny Tom, a member of the Chinese Students Club.

Finding the needy family or families to distribute the donations to is the responsibility of the research committee members. They consult Red Cross, churches, synagogues, other organizations and use private information for the selection. Alice Hermle leads this committee.

The finance committee handles the collection of money and takes care of the food order purchase. Judie Crivelli and Pam Chandler are cochairmen of the group.

Art Searson is in charge of publicity, which is mainly devoted to placing the posters and banners.

Last year's drive netted $300.

Music Department Here To Give Christmas Program December 8

After an eight-year period of retirement, the women's chorus, called the Treble Clef, has been reorganized by Richard Fenner, music instructor here, and will give its first performance in a Christmas program along with the A Cappella Choir, Men's Glee Club, the concert band and the orchestra, during College Hour Friday, December 8, in the theater.

The program is composed of two parts, vocal and instrumental.

The A Cappella Choir will sing four arrangements of traditional carols, one of which is the Coventry Carol that includes a violin solo by Mark Zimmerman.

Two English carols by Vaughan Williams and an old English college song will be the Men's Glee Club contribution, according to Galen Marshall, faculty director of both groups.

Three songs from Alice In Wonderland by Irving Fine will be sung by the Treble Clef.

Meyer Cahn, band and orchestra director, will lead the instrumental portion of the program as the concert band plays selections from Henry Purcell, Giovanni Gabrielli and Bach. The orchestra will present the Pastorale from Corelli's Christmas Concerto as well as the Romanian Dances of Bartok.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 63, No. 9 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1961 Page 2

Fraternities Here Strengthen College, Merit Recognition

ANOTHER fraternity Pledge Week has come and gone again. Now that the frenzy and frolic have subsided and the spectacle of uniforms and rituals has vanished, the time is appropriate for a sober account of fraternities in general and the ones at City College in particular.

Ever since the enforcement of the State anti-hazing law in 1959 fraternities in general have lost face in the public eye. What helped to bring about this statute of restriction were two tragic fatalities, the result of oversight and overindulgence.

Those fraternities involved can never be forgiven for the severity and stupidity displayed when they had forsaken thinking right for a thoughtless rite.

But all humans are apt to overlook and overact the parts they play in everyday life. Malicious and sadistic crimes, both critical and fatal, splatter the front pages of the American press almost daily. Yet the offenders are not totally banned from society; instead they are often temporarily confined with a prison sentence.

Why, then, must fraternity pranks be banned from society (in this case, California) as they have been? Because of two isolated incidents in which a handful of collegians overstepped their bounds, hundreds, thousands of well-defined and well-directed fraternities have been restricted and therefore ridiculed. Is this justice?

We say, NO!

If two fatal injuries can provoke the passage of such a State law, what about the unforgivable number of football deaths registered on many autumn weekends, which, by the season's end, reach a staggering total. Somehow the "King of Fall Festivities" seems to have many patrons and protectors, and the great gridiron machine relentlessly rolls on, unhampered by State laws or apparent public scorn.

Whenever fraternity destructiveness takes place, it's played up; whenever fraternity constructiveness takes place, it's either played down, or not mentioned at all.

At City College this semester, and especially last week, fraternities and sororities sponsored many purposeful projects, which certainly deserved merit and recognition.

(1) During Homecoming Week here there were eight entries in the car parade—FIVE of these were from fraternities, THREE of which finished in FIRST, SECOND and THIRD places.

(2) Also during Homecoming 13 candidates ran for Homecoming Queen—NINE of these contestants were sponsored by fraternities. The winner of the crown was sponsored by Alpha Sigma Delta, who also won the Homecoming spirit trophy.

(3) Under the direction of George Cook, student union comanager, as a Pledge Week project last week fraternities improved the landscape around the building and painted the archways and the porch of the union. They also installed curtain hooks and wires for curtains which the college sororities are making this week.

(4) Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity has offered to clean and repaint the blemished Redwood Ram.

(5) The At Last dance in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel last Friday night marked the first time the Inter-Fraternity Council sponsored a semiformal affair to culminate Pledge Week events. This puts IFC's efforts on a par with the Frosh and Soph Balls.

(6) The Inter-Sorority Council is spearheading a fashion magazine drive which started Monday and ends today. All periodicals which are brought to the Silver Pole will be given to the Red Cross at Sonoma State Hospital.

(7) Sororities also visit many wards of local hospitals and give assistance to blood banks here.

(8) Of course, Tau Chi Sigma's Blood Drive, held every spring, which has broken a West Coast record for all college donation drives, deserves the utmost praise.

Hobby To Job

Huntley Gives Technical Aid To Thespians

A tall, silent type—Chuck Huntley, the technical assistant in the drama department here, is one of few men who is fortunate enough to have had a hobby that eventually became a full-time paying job.

As early as his high school days, Huntley's interest in electronics led him to the Washington Street little theater, now occupied by the Contemporary Dancers Center, where he began to use his knowledge in the technical aspects of theater production.

Never intending to earn a living through his hobby, Huntley enrolled at this college for one semester and then went on to Oakland City College, where he studied printing.

After graduating he worked in lithography and with letterpress, which later qualified him to manage the duplicating department of the San Francisco Stock Exchange.

Never forgetting his short stay at this college, Huntley visited the campus one day and poked his head into the old theater, which was then located in the basement of Science Hall.

CHUCK HUNTLEY, technical assistant in the drama department, repairs some theatrical apparatus. —Guardsman photo by Izao Tanaka.

Just as he had set foot inside the small lobby, Michael Griffin, drama director, busy with preparing a show, handed Huntley a hammer which he seldom stops using.

He began spending all his evenings as well as Saturdays building sets, doing the electrical work for lighting and wiring sound. Since evenings and weekends did not allow enough time to really do justice to his hobby, Huntley quit his job and enrolled as a full-time student.

During this time the prospect of a new theater was introduced and Huntley worked side by side with Griffin to plan the structure.

He saw his ideas take shape as the latest technical equipment was installed to make the theater one of the most advanced in the country.

But since he couldn't live on love for his hobby, Huntley applied for the position of lab assistant in the drama department, which he now holds so that he can earn a living.

For the future Huntley hopes to work into a permanent civil service position in the department. His only problem is that he no longer has a hobby.

Foresight

Audience Aids Legion Benefit

By John Muller

IT'S NOT HARD TO CAMOUFLAGE weaknesses or flaws with gimmicks in a filmed act which is to be broadcast on television, but it's next to impossible to lean on a crutch such as an echo chamber or any other device while on a bare stage facing a live audience.

But The Interludes, a Negro quartet from KPIX, proved a week ago that there's still talent that can perform equally well off television at a benefit performance for the American Legion in Nourse Auditorium with numerous other acts, including several from City College.

With such oldies but goodies as Old Man River and an interpretation of Old Black Magic, The Interludes were a smashing success.

Despite a few excellent acts, however, the whole show would have been a dismal flop had it not been for the obvious good spirit of the audience, who by attending were aiding disabled veterans and who, consequently, didn't expect perfection and laughed at the obvious mistakes.

Lack of preparation by the American Legion, beginning with no programs and ending with poor timing which resulted in cutting six acts in half, robbed some performers of much of their confidence.

The City College groups, namely the Hawaiian and Filipino Clubs, had their routines cut, and went through what might be justly called an ordeal.

The Hawaiian Club sang traditional Sweet Leilani and some catchy songs such as Holo Holo Kaa (let's go visiting in a taxi).

Climaxing the Hawaiian Club's performance was a Samoan Fire and Knife Dance by Tom Ladeza. He began by twirling a fiery torch as though it were a cold baton.

But when a shutterbug, who had been filming some of the better acts, turned on the floodlight for his camera, Ladeza's troubles began.

It appeared as though Ladeza were blinded by the light, for he no longer twirled the torch with agility, but instead seemed leery of it—so leery, in fact, that he dropped it several times and was forced to beat a hasty retreat to the disappointment of the audience.

Highlighting the Filipino Club's act was a Barrio Fiesta, featuring a dignified but gaspy Bandanggo Sa Haw (dance of the lights).

Climaxing their performance was the bamboo dance, which consisted of clapping two long Kawayans (bamboo poles) together while the dancers stepped between them to the beat of the music.

It's sort of like jumping rope, only this way if a person misses he might have an ankle fractured.

The most notable thing about the acts of the two clubs was that they added a well-balanced international flavor to the show.

All in all it was a terrible show, which had the unique quality of making the audience laugh along with its mistakes, plus an adept Iranian master of ceremonies, Abdullah Charib, a student here last semester who ad libbed freely to keep everyone but the perfectionist entertained.

Hi Ho Steverino!

Comedian's Style 'Thought Provoking'

By Miriam Howard

The Fox theater pulsated chaotically recently when Steve Allen and his entire entourage came to town to do the show to be seen on KGO-TV at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Allen, said to be one of the few intellectual humorists on television, seemed to be casually unaware of the confusion on stage as he spoke in the rear of the huge baroque theater at a gathering of the press about his interest in education in general and educational television in particular.

Although Allen inserted the gems of humor that he is so famous for during the conference, he showed himself to be a well-composed, warm and an inquisitive person.

He is genuinely concerned with communication and interested in semantics. He feels that the most important phrase in the English language is "It seems to me."

"The ability to make people laugh is part of your basic equipment. I feel I have a missionary zeal to make people think rather than laugh," Allen stated in reference to his particular brand of humor. He likes to, whenever possible, combine the two although he realizes that there are two entirely different fields involved.

He is most interested in educational television and has volunteered his services to the National Television Education Agency because he believes that once a performer has attained success he owes "a certain amount of himself and his time back to the society that has nurtured him."

Earlier in the day, during rehearsal, Bill Dana, head writer on the show and the other person who shares the body known widely as Jose Jimenez, wandered in and out whistling Allen's sponsor's theme song with a camera bag over one shoulder and clad in peggers, MacGregor jacket and tennis shoes.

The show, taped later in the afternoon, was unfortunately not up to Allen's standard. It seemed to reach just a little bit too much for its humor, but it may be more effective when seen over TV this evening.

Yodeling Champ Ready For New Career

Carolina Cotton To Enter Army's Special Services

Armed Forces Special Services are due for an attractive addition to their ranks in the near future in the person of Carolina Cotton, champion yodeler.

Miss Cotton, currently enrolled here as a recreation major, plans to end her world-spanning occupation as a troop entertainer to assume an equally traveled position in Special Services.

By donning the light blue uniform, familiar to military visitants of service clubs around the world, Miss Cotton hopes to make a career for herself which will equal the success of her past endeavors.

And, with more than 500,000 miles of air travel logged in entertaining servicemen, that will be no small matter.

Requirements for entering Special Services, Miss Cotton said, deal primarily with the entertainment field; however, a practical background in the organization of shows will serve in lieu of much of the preparation required in college.

Concentrating on psychology, the humanities, and entertainment while enrolled here, she said her background will fulfill all requirements except for 24 units.

Complete information concerning Special Services may be obtained in the office of Beverly Gaillard, director of Special Services for the Sixth Army at the Presidio.

Miss Gaillard occasionally visits the college theater to study the Theater In The Round techniques employed here, an entertainment method used more and more frequently in military entertainment.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieve
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell, Herman Kilgerman, Dave Kleinberg.
Reporters: Dick Kinsky, Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu, Peter Oppenheimer.
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Richard Boyle, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McConiha, John McShane, Patricia Neider, Dan Rosenbloom, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Izao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook, Bill Bargagliotti, George Pikich, Christopher Utter, Herb Greene.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press
1961-1962

Counterpoint

'Pointless' Letter Food For Thought

By Dick Dragavon

AT THIS TIME of the year readers are deluged with newspaper and magazine articles explaining exactly what there is for which they may be thankful.

Readers of this column, then, may be thankful to note that this is one article dealing with Thanksgiving which will not point out anything.

Reprinted here are excerpts from a letter mailed in 1779 from a young lady to her cousin. It is a description of her Thanksgiving dinner just three years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The letter was taken from a collection of Thanksgiving poems, plays and histories entitled Our American Holidays—Thanksgiving.

"When Thanksgiving Day was approaching, our dear Grandmother Smith, who is sometimes a little desponding of Spirit as you well know did her best to persuade us that it would be better to make it a Day of Fasting & Prayer in view of the Wickedness of our Friends & the Vileness of our Enemies, I am sure you can hear Grandmother say that and shake her cap border.

"But indeed there was some occasion for her remarks, for our resistance to an unjust Authority has cost our beautiful Coast Towns very dear the last year & all of us have had much to suffer . . .

"All the baking of pies & the cakes was done at our house & we had the big oven heated & filled twice each day for three days before it was all done, & everything was GOOD, though we did have to do without some things that ought to be used.

"Neither Love nor Money could buy Raisins, but our good red cherries dried without the pits, did almost as well & happily Uncle Simeon still had some spices in store . . .

"Of course we could have no Roast Beef. None of us have tasted Beef this three years back as it all must go to the Army, & too little they get, poor fellows.

"But Naquittymaw's hunters were able to get us a fine red Deer, so that we had a good haunch of Venisson on each Table. These were balanced by huge Chines of Roast Pork at the other ends of the Tables.

"Then there was on one a big Roast Turkey & on the other a Goose, & two pigeon pasties. Then there was an abundance of good Vegetables of all sorts & one which I do not believe you have yet seen.

"Uncle Simeon had imported the Seede (sic) from England just before the War began & only this Year was there enough for Table use. It is called Sellery (sic) & you eat it without cooking . . .

"Our Mince Pies were good although we have to use dried Cherries as I told you, & the meat was shoulder of Venisson, instead of Beef. The Pumpkin Pies, Apple Tarts & big Indian Puddings lacked for nothing save Appetite by the time we had got round to them.

"Of course we had no Wine. Uncle Simeon has still a cask or two, but it must all be saved for the sick, & indeed, for those who are well good Cider is a sufficient Substitute.

"There was no Plumb Pudding, but a boiled Suet Pudding, stirred thick with dried Plumbs & Cherries, was called by the old Name & answered the purpose.

"All the other spice had been used in the Mince Pies, so for this pudding we used a jar of West India preserved Ginger which chaneed to be left of the last shipment which Uncle Simeon had from there, we chopped the Ginger small and stirred it through with the Plumbs and Cherries. It was extraordinary goods . . .

"We did not rise from the Table until it was quite dark, & then when the dishes had been cleared away we all got round the fire as close as we could, & cracked nuts, & sang songs & told stories . . .

"Brother Jack, who did not reach here until late on Wednesday though he had left College very early on Monday Morning & rode with all dup diligence considering the snow, brought an orange to each of the Grandmothers, but Alas! they were frozen in his saddle bags.

"We soaked the frost out in cold water, but I guess they wasn't as good as they should have been?"

Two College Hour Rallies Highlight Christmas Events

Eleventh College Hour of the semester will continue the chain of activities with the schedule of a general purpose rally, to be held Friday, December 1, at the entrance to the Shack, bungalows 3 and 4, according to Stan Burford, Rally Committee chairman.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday tomorrow and Friday the December 1 rally is the next College Hour scheduled.

Preparations are being made by Burford and his committee to obtain an array of entertainment to supplement the speeches and formality and general interest of the rally.

The scene of the rally will be outside the Shack, where there is ample surroundings for students to lounge on the grass or stand about and enjoy a fine showing of student organization and spirit.

Burford also explained that there will be a Christmas fund rally, to be held during College Hour on December 8 in the men's gymnasium.

This rally is under the guidance of the Club Activities Board, the Council of Organizations, and the Rally Committee. The CAB, according to Burford, is the major sponsor of the rally, although the Rally Committee will set up the entertainment.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, Room 304, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. It so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

'G' Thanks!

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a student vitally interested in the many different organizations on campus which are supported by Associated Student funds, I would like to take this opportunity to compliment the staff of The Guardsman on their combined efforts to assemble the very fine issue of November 15.

This issue was fine in that it included a more complete coverage of campus activities than did issues in the past.

It is hoped that the future will bring many more publications of this high caliber. I am sure your other readers join me in expressing this praise.

Sincerely,

G. M.

Programming Starts For High Freshmen

Programming of students who are entering their second semester here this spring will start this week, now that programming of the old students has concluded, Walter McCloud, counselior here, reported yesterday.

Seniority in registration numbers was based on the new students' first midterm grades and were compiled last week by the IBM machines.

Programming of old students was completed last week with the exception of the students who failed to fill out a preregistration form. They may lose a possible high registration number.

Denman Heads Scholarship Awards; Deadline Dec. 1

By Edy Grant

Carrying the stipend of approximately $600, six scholarships are available in the spring semester to students who submit letters of application stating their qualifications by December 1, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced today.

Originated by the late Judge William Denman and his sister, Mary Denman Cheatham, in memory of their father, James Denman, a San Francisco Public School Superintendent and president of the Board of Education, the Denman scholarship awards two women with $150 each.

To be eligible for the scholarship a student must have an outstanding record shown by at least 12 units of college work, and must also be a San Francisco public high school graduate.

The award was first set up as a yearly medal presented to a girl graduating from the eighth grade, preparatory to attending high school. Discontinued in 1919, the award was presented again in 1939, this time to a woman student at this college.

The fund is now provided from the estate of Judge Denman, who died in 1958. Because of delays in settling the inheritance of the estate, the award was stopped temporarily, but was reestablished last semester.

Two or three foreign students will receive scholarships from the International Relations Club, the sum of which will be determined by how much money was made at the fair.

The Chinese Students scholarship grants $50 to a man and woman who have achieved good records. Funds are raised from the presentation of the annual Chinese Sweetheart Ball each February.

Students may obtain applications and general scholarship information from the dean of women's office. Recommendations are usually written by the deans of men and women.

Writer Directs Tragi-Comedy Here December 1

Bells Of Stigma Enigma, an original play by Paul Magistretti, is scheduled for presentation during College Hour Friday, December 1, in the theater.

Young Magistretti is directing his play, which he describes as a tragicomedy.

The show naturally lends itself to a performance in the round, he said, because it concerns the phases of a man's personality with each phase portrayed by a different character.

Meanwhile, Michael Griffin, faculty drama director, continues with his regular schedule of one-act plays performed in the round at 12:20 p.m. three days a week in the theater.

Hello Out There and Hairy Ape will be presented today, Sorry Wrong Number is slated for Monday, November 27, and will be followed by Box And Cox, Wednesday, November 29.

Although Magistretti's play, Bells Of Stigma Enigma, will be performed December 1, Griffin intends to follow with his regular noon show on the same day with Pierre Patalin.

Council Passes Final Budget; Allocations Total $36,855.96

By Bob Hacker

Student Council completed its main order of business last week when it passed the final budget of the semester, thus giving a total allocation of $36,855.96 for Associated Student activities. A total of 26 budgets was passed in a relatively short period of time.

In comparing this semester's budget with the budget of Fall 1960 a slight increase can be noted. The total for the 1960 budgets was $32,389.07.

AS Budgets Fall 1960, 1961

	Fall '60	Fall '61
Coeducational Activities:
A Cappella Choir	$182.00	$166.80
Drama	2955.00	2800.00
Freshman Class	773.00	636.78
Rally Committee	1669.74	732.85
Social Committee	18.00	3.00
Sophomore Class	800.00	824.22
Publications:
Guardsman	4219.04	4969.40
Women's Activities:
Associated Women Students	283.00	676.25
Recreation Association	625.00	670.60
Men's Activities:
Associated Men Students	283.00	424.58
Cross-Country	348.25*
Football	4530.20*
Jr. Varsity Basketball	739.43*
Men's Physical Education Department	545.00*
		*(10,661.60 (Now One Budget)
Soccer	976.60*
Varsity Basketball	1445.70*
Men's Glee Club	655.25	418.50
Insurance		600.00
Injury Fund		1200.00
Miscellaneous:
Campus Police	2781.21	2992.72
Club Activities Board	365.25	362.25
Comptroller	4240.00	3310.00
Dean of Men	70.00	50.00
Dean of Women	30.00	30.00
Executive Council	2380.00	2789.61
KCSF Broadcasters	418.00	43.00
Publicity Committee	1392.30	1703.80
Student Faculty Relations	330.00	600.00
Band		180.00
State Convention		550.00
Administration		400.00
GRAND TOTAL	$32,389.07	$36,855.96

Although $1000 may not seem slight to some students, it is, when they consider that according to Gary Wilkening, Associated Student president, the college is trying to run a $650,000 program with little more than $30,000.

Council members cut requisitions for money whenever possible, much to the disdain of the persons seeking the allocations.

It can be noted that in many cases more funds were given for activities last year than were allocated this semester.

One outstanding case is KCSF. Last year it was granted $418.00; but this semester, after requesting $140.00, it received only $43.00.

It is true that a few of the budgets have increased slightly over last year but this is due mainly to rising costs and to the larger enrollment at the college.

Council also passed a resolution honoring the soccer team last week for their efforts in winning the Northern California Intercollegiate championship.

The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, the City College of San Francisco soccer team won the championship of the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference, and

"Whereas, the soccer team is undefeated and untied; and,

"Whereas, five members of the soccer team received All-Conference honors,

"Therefore, be it resolved that the Student Council congratulate the soccer team for its outstanding success in representing City College of San Francisco and that the Student Council will do its best to let it be known that the soccer team is the best collegiate team on the Pacific Coast and that it is probably the best team in the United States."

Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men, added to the praise when he stated that the soccer team "did an outstanding job with a maximum of effort with interest directed to the college."

Wilkening heaped more congratulatory remarks upon the team when he stated, "If they beat British Columbia, they might well be the best soccer team in North America."

'Reporter A Conveyor'

Even The Noblest Does Err

Students here know, or at least they should know, that each class has certain procedures that must be followed.

One student encountered this type of a rule when he joined The Guardsman staff. His only trouble was that he followed the rule a little too closely.

The rule: "A reporter is just a conveyor of facts and should never become involved in the story he is writing."

The reporter, well . . .

He was assigned to write a story about programming for the coming spring semester. He worked hard to compose three separate stories.

Each story was written with the emphasis placed upon the fact that if a student does not see his counselor on the date set he will receive a later registration number.

He painstakingly explained that a student must fill out a postcard which would later be returned with the time and date for a counseling appointment.

Not long after the stories he had written had been run he received his own card. Hardly bothering to read it, he stored it away for future reference.

The time, the date, the counseling appointment; they were forgotten. The rule that if a student does not see his counselor on the date set he will receive a later registration number; it is very well remembered.

Also, "A reporter is just a conveyor of facts and should never become involved in the story he is writing." Or should he?

The Spectator

Desire, Perseverance And A Little Loot Puts 'Glass Cage' In Festival

(Today's Spectator is by Anna Papagni.)

ANTONIO SANTEAN'S advice to any young person who would like to see his dream become a reality is "Don't listen when they tell you it can't be done."

Without experience nor money, young Santean wrote and directed the movie, The Glass Cage, which was selected to represent the United States in the San Francisco International Film Festival, which ended November 14. He did the job with two tools, desire and perseverance.

Out of the service and just 23 years ago, Santean wrote a play while the ink was still wet on college transcripts which indicated poor English grades. When the script was finished he decided to turn it into a movie.

Movies, however, are not made with magic. They are made with money. He pedaled his play everywhere, but when he found an interested listener the question of who would direct it invariably arose.

For Santean there was only one answer. He would direct. But because he had absolutely no experience in the field, this seemed preposterous to anyone who would consider financing the production.

A director is of prime importance in film making; the man who fills this position makes or breaks a show.

Unable to interest a financial backer, his alternative was to begin the movie himself with what little money he could scrape together and then to see what the future would provide.

The experience of being denied the chance to prove himself prompted Santean to give all who came to him for a part a fair opportunity. Consequently, most of the cast were young performers who are now well on their way up as a result of the movie.

The future did provide. As the film progressed with obvious merit, people began to take an interest and Santean was able to continue his work with their donations, until the day finally came when he found a producer.

The showing of The Glass Cage in the Film Festival has opened many doors for Santean, but he is unsure of which one to choose as yet. One thing, however, is certain. He is tremendously interested and involved in his work, which seems to be the secret of his early success.

Football Coach Alonzo Stagg and basketball inventor James Naismith were both members of the ministry before enrolling together at Springfield (Mass.) YMCA College for physical education degrees.

Club Cavalcade

Groups Halt Activities During Thanksgiving

BECAUSE of the Thanksgiving holiday this week, activities of college organizations will come to a temporary halt.

Canterbury, an Episcopalian club which meets jointly with the San Francisco State College chapter of the same name, will present a dinner at 50 cents a plate Sunday, December 3, at St. Francis Episcopal Church, Ocean and San Fernando avenues.

After the dinner a speaker will be introduced to talk on Church Architecture. The club also meets every Friday morning at 7 a.m. for communion and breakfast.

Plans for the upcoming all-male fashion show will be discussed at the next meeting of the Merchandising Club during College Hour next Friday.

A field trip is now planned for the Pick and Hammer Society. Destination is Mirabel Springs in Lake County. An estimated 15 students are attending the expedition to be held this weekend.

Every Friday during College Hour the KCSF Broadcasters meet in the television broadcasting studio located in A-145.

Each month the Collegiate Christian Fellowship has been sending newsletters to all members and students who have come to one or more meetings.

Howard Schoon, counselor here, will speak to the Fellowship during College Hour December 1 in C-201 on Marriage Relations.

That night there will be a concluding study of the sixth chapter of the Book of Ephesians at the home of Judy Almlie, Bible study chairman.

The Engineering Society's field trip to the Standard Oil Refinery will take place on December 1. The excursion will last all day and from 35 to 40 students will attend.

Plans for next semester's schedule will be the topic of the Westminster Fellowship business meeting during College Hour next Friday in C-102.

The next meeting of the Christian Science Organization will be held at 7:45 p.m. Thursday, December 7. The group, which meets regularly on the first and third Thursdays of each month, holds its meetings at Third Church, 1250 Haight street. Further information is available through Nina Tucker of the hotel and restaurant department.

Driftwood, candles, dried pine cones and gilded artichokes are among materials used by Retail Floristry Club students in creating decorative Christmas items sold through their annual display. Orders are being taken, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in S-117.

The 15 newly inducted pledges of Theta Tau sorority gave a dinner Sunday evening at the Stonestown YMCA, in honor of their new sisters and also to celebrate the end of Pledge Week.

Members of the International Relations Club from Greece, Japan and the Philippine Islands demonstrated their native dances at a half-hour performance for the Rotary Club yesterday. The show took place following a special luncheon in honor of the IRC.

In addition to the luncheon, the Rotary Club and the Red Cross have sponsored a tea dance for members of the IRC each year since 1958.

Governor, Mayor Urge Support Of Mercy Bowl

Governor Edmund G. Brown and Mayor George Christopher have urged support of the Mercy Bowl football game to be played tomorrow in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Proceeds from the benefit game will go to victims of the Cal Poly plane crash last year.

The game will match Bowling Green, victor over the Cal Poly team on their ill-fated plane journey, and Fresno State, winner of the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

Christopher has proclaimed November 19-25 as Mercy Week and Thursday, November 23, as Mercy Day. Ticket requests and donations may be sent to George Petropulos, 375 South Mayfair avenue, Westlake Building, Daly City. All tickets are $3.

There are approximately 7000 Islands composing the Philippines.

Rams Play In Lettuce Bowl Tomorrow

Piggee's Romps Scuttle Pirate 'Blitz' 28-13

By Ivan Temes

The "Blitz" really worked Friday.

Only this time it wasn't the heralded Modesto offense.

Instead, it turned out to be the Rams' All-American candidate, Tom Piggee, who put on the greatest running exhibition of his career.

All the high-stepping fullback, an All-Conference halfback last year, did was carry the pigskin 13 times for 211 yards rushing, including touchdown jaunts of 20, 26, 85 and 26 yards, catch two passes for 31 yards plus another for a two-point conversion, and recover Modesto's fumble of the opening kickoff.

Add to this the Lettuce Bowl-bound college's best blocking and tackling of the year and the Pirates are reeling to a 28-13 defeat.

Unbeaten on their home field this year, Coach Grover Klemmer's crew ended their regular season with a 7-2 overall mark and a 5-2 Big Eight record, good enough for second place behind San Mateo.

However, in their last football contest ever in Big Eight competition the Rams ran up against an offense unlike any which they had faced all year.

A typical play dreamed up by Coach Stan Pavko, whose squad numbered only 26 men, might find a tailback and fullback in the backfield with both halfbacks and ends flanked to the left side and a lone guard to the right of the center.

All this nonsense by the Pirates, coming off consecutive wins over Stockton and Oakland, didn't work as they were rocked on their heels by a rugged Ram defense for minus 20 yards rushing in the opening half.

On their first series after losing the kickoff, Modesto threw a scare into the Rams, unable to defense the Blitz's initial thrust, as they marched 68 yards to score with passes from tailback Russ Pinching eating up most of the yardage.

A 9-yard toss from fullback Cliff Kinney to tackle Ed Kaiser pinced the ball one yard from the goal, and on third down Kinney crunched over for the score with Pinching converting.

That's when the Rams went to work with tackles Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett, ends Ray Greggains and Terry Fischer, guards Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker and centers Cliff Vatiuone and George Benkie shoving the losers around.

With vastly improved Ben Winslow engineering the plays and versatile Ron Coleman doing some great backfield blocking the Rams, aided by a crucial 15-yard penalty, seored on Piggee's 26-yard sprint up the middle after Fischer had hooked on to an 8-yard Winslow aerial, and the quarterback passed to Piggee for the conversion.

On their next series the winners drover 72 yards mainly on runs by Coleman and a 24-yard Winslow-Piggee screen pass on which Burgett and Urrea laid low tacklers, before Piggee circled left end for 20 yards and another score.

Midway through the second quarter Modesto drove to the Ram seven after a pass intereception but Urrea threw Kinney for a huge loss and Fischer blocked Pinching's pass attempt on fourth down.

On the fourth scrimmmage play in the second half, Mr. Touchdown took Winslow's pitchout, was hit once, but the line blocking erased all defenders as he raced around left end for an 85-yard score, the Rams' longest of the year, and Fischer grabbed Winslow's toss for two points.

Unable to cross the goal after Darnes' intereception, the winners used key plays by Chuck Oushani to set up Piggee's final tally on the opening play of the last period, and from there the subs took over, giving up a lone touchdown as Al Raine had a long intereception-score nullified.

Ironically, the contest ended on the same note on which it started as John Jacobson fell on a Modesto fumble.

EXPLOSIVE RAM FULLBACK TOM PIGGEE, pictured taking a handoff from quarterback Ben Winslow, will bear the brunt of the offensive load in tomorrow's Lettuce Bowl, the college's first postseason game since 1948. The All-Conference sophomore has rushed for some 866 yards this year, averaging approximately 6.4 yards per carry.
—Guardsman photo by James Cook.

Rams Tie British Columbia As Korbus Scores With 0:53 Left

With his team's unbeaten record hanging in the balance, sensational center-forward Al Korbus took a perfectly placed pass from Caesar Pina and crashed home a 12-yard goal with only 53 seconds remaining to play to give the Rams a 1-1 deadlock with the powerful University of British Columbia Lions Saturday at Balboa Soccer Stadium.

However, the title-holding booters, ineligible for the NCAA regionals because of the college's two-year status could only look on along with some 2500 soccer enthusiasts as the University of San Francisco, 2-0 losers to the Rams the previous week, grudgingly bowed to national champion St. Louis, 1-0.

Many observers, including California Coach Bob DiGrazia, felt the Rams might very well have toppled St. Louis if given the chance.

In their own contest the Rams had to use their highly rated defense, headed by goalie Gary DeLong, to stave off the Canadians, who scored their lone goal on a five-yard shot by wing Russell Kidd with 3:45 to play in the third quarter.

As usual, Dave Fromer, Hugo Olaya, Dennis Mingo, Ivan Bermudez, Flavio Valiente and Pina were invaluable on defense but the offense, hurting at the wing positions, couldn't generate a really sustained attack.

Several shots by Korbus, a head shot by Valiente, and a spectacular 25-yard shot from the corner by Lee Wurtenburg barely missed crossing the UBC goal.

Though he naturally would have preferred a victory, Coach Roy Diedrichsen, who did an excellent job of molding together a freshman dominated team this year, was pleased at the way his men averted defeat.

Earlier in the week, the Rams learned that five of their stars grabbed berths on the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference first team. Headed by Korbus, who broke the six-game scoring record with 21 goals, the list also included DeLong, Pina, Valiente and Fromer.

2 Teams Unbeaten In Mural Race

Two unbeaten teams, Alpha Phi Epsilon and the Untouchables, are dominating the intramural slate.

Tonight's card lists Alpha Phi Epsilon vs. Alpha Sigma Delta, Beta Tau vs. Zeta Phi and Kappa Rho vs. the Gammas.

Last week the first place Untouchables swamped the Electroneers by the score of 56-24. High man for the Untouchables was Bob Spree with 16 points, while Charlie Fowler dunked 8 in a losing effort.

The Guardsman outsped the Kane 52-48 with Larry Stewart hitting 26.

The Believers overron the Newman Club 33-10.

Alli outgunned the Hotel and Restaurant team 36-24, Melvin Tom sunk 16 for the Allis, and Mike Miggee scored 8 for the H&R.

Alpha Phi Epsilon continued its unbeaten ways last week by completely overpowering Beta Tau 60-17.

Zeta Phi Sigma beat Alpha Sigma Delta 43-27. Ron Beveniste garnered 12 points for the Zetas and John Cate hit for 9 for the Alphas.

Block SF Banquet Hosts Cal Coach John Neumann

Assistant University of California football coach, John Neumann, will be the guest speaker at the semiannual Block SF banquet to be held Monday night, December 4, in Smith Hall, according to Lou Vasuez, society sponsor.

Neumann will be representing Marv Levy, head coach at Cal, since Levy will be unable to attend because of a previous engagement.

Recognition will be given to the athletes on that night as a record number of awards, trophies and blocks are expected to be distributed by the society.

Cagers Battle Stanford Dec. 1

President Kennedy and Ram basketball coach Sid Phelan have one thing in common—they both have an abundance of guards.

With 11 guards on the present roster of 19 players, the Rams, who have been in practice for three weeks, will open their preseason schedule December 1 at Stanford against the Braves, and Tuesday will meet University of San Francisco Frosh at USF gymnasium.

Dave Roberts, the only returning guard, leads the host of fine guards, and it will be tough for Phelan to select the best two.

Gene Batiste, an All-City guard at Mission High, Everett Adams from Washington High, Vince Courtney and Dewitt Demmer from Balboa, Chew Jeong, Dough Johnson and Don Mori from Washington High, John Neal from Polytechnic, Bill Nocetti from Sacred Heart and Wiley Price from Galileo are all potential starters.

With this selection of guards to choose from, Phelan will have big men up front to pull in the rebounds.

Jess Arterberry, the only returning starter, is a 6-6 center. Vastly improved since his prep days at Polytechnic High, Arterberry will be counted on heavily to provide much of the rebounding and scoring.

The team's third highest scorer last year with 93 points, Arterberry has the potential to become one of the league's finest centers.

The addition of Charles Currington, another former prep star at Polytechnic High, is a pleasant surprise. The high-scoring forward saw action for the Rams during the 1959-60 season but sat out last year.

More rebounding should come from veteran 6-4 forward Brad Duggan and 6-4 Melvin Tom, who becomes eligible at midseason.

Forwards Eli Horn (Mission), Bob Mulcrevy (St. Ignatius) and Randy Simms (Balboa) are expected to help.

Gridmen Face Monterey In Post Season Clash

After enjoying a top year, the Ram footballers will meet Monterey Peninsula College, the Coast Conference champion with a 7-2 record, in the first annual Lettuce Bowl game at Salinas tomorrow in the Salinas High School stadium.

Monterey Peninsula edged Hartnell, 14-12, Saturday night before a packed house to become Coast Conference champion.

The Rams, who have not participated in a postseason game since the 1948 days of Ollie Matson, will play the contest in a charity game to benefit the crippled children of Salinas Valley. The Rams have a 7-2 mark.

An added invitation has been extended to the Rams' championship soccer team to put on a half-time exhibition show before the expected capacity crowd of 7500 at the high school stadium.

The Rams will arrive in Salinas today and will attend a banquet, where they will receive awards.

At the game's conclusion awards will be presented to the outstanding lineman, outstanding back, and outstanding player.

Gate attraction of the new bowl was indicated with the information that more than half the tickets were sold before the Rams' opponent was named.

HEAD FOOTBALL COACH Grover Klemmer, who leads the Rams in their quest for a Lettuce Bowl victory tomorrow.

Students wishing to drive down to the game may purchase tickets, which would normally sell for $3, at a reduced student rate of $2.

In the 1948 contest, the only postseason game in the college's history, the Rams defeated Chaffee, 20-7, in the Gold Dust Bowl at Vallejo.

The brilliant running of speedster Tom Piggee, who has piled up well over 800 yards, and the passing of Ben Winslow, a second stringer for two-thirds of the season, will give the Rams a well-balanced attack on the ground and air.

Harriers Capture Second Straight Big Eight Crown

BULLETIN: In the Northern California championship cross - country meet held Friday the Rams were edged by Fresno, 78-82, for the title with Jose Valie taking fifth place.

• • •

Led by Steve Jackson, who ran his best race of the year, the Rams took their second straight Big Eight Conference cross-country championship November 10 at Santa Rosa.

The freshman sprinter, running the three-mile course, finished second with a time of 16:09, only six seconds behind Ralph Lee of San Mateo who took first with 16:03. Jackson had run third and fourth all year.

The Rams finished with 41 points, 23 points ahead of Sacramento's 64. Modesto with 73, San Mateo with 76, Santa Rosa with 120 and Oakland with 130 followed.

Although one of the Rams' top men, Rich Byers, ont with an injured hip, did not run and another, Roger Ritchey, a one and two-miler on the track team, ran with a sore ankle, team depth came through to win the meet.

In comparing this year's championship squad against last year's, Vasquez revealed that the 1960 squad had better individual men but less depth.

Andy Loobey, a former Polytechnic runner who was one of the best prep one-milers in the state, placed fifth with 16:23.

Running two seconds behind Loobey was John Weidinger, a freshman who ran his prep races at Balboa High.

A former Abraham Lincoln harrier, Jose Valle, who doubles at the one and two-mile races during track season, placed 11th with a time of 16:44.

Placing 20th was Ritchey with a time of 17:19, and John Arberry, another former Polytechnic athlete, placed 24th with 17:24.

The championship was especially sweet to mentor Vasquez, who was twice defeated by Sacramento in earlier seasonal meets.

RAMBLINGS

Fall Sports End With Salinas Bowl Game

By Ivan Temes

A BIG YEAR for fall sports at City College culminates tomorrow when the highly rated Ram footballers go for big stakes in the first annual Lettuce Bowl at Salinas.

Though the gridders had to settle for second place in the Big Eight behind San Mateo while the soccer and cross-country squads swept to league titles, their overall 7-2 mark is nothing to scoff at in an era when barely a handful of teams in the country is able to escape a complete season without suffering a loss.

Happy at receiving the opportunity to enter the rarefied atmosphere of a postseason bowl, Grover Klemmer's men have vowed to take advantage of their big chance.

By winning, the Red and White will keep the college's record intact since the only other City College eleven to take part in a bowl, the Ollie Matson-Burl Toler powerhouse in 1948, defeated Chaffee in the now extinct Gold Dust bowl, 20-7.

Though the Lettuce Bowl is in its initial year of operation, it appears set upon a solid foundation with the Salinas Valley Crippled Children's Society acting as benefactors.

Even before the contesting teams were known, game director Cliff Cracknell revealed that practically all of the 7000 seats were sold out.

Northern California has long needed a postseason skirmish to match its own strong teams since the Northerners, no matter how strong, are rarely invited to the lucrative Southern California tilts, paced by the Junior Rose at Pasadena and Potato at Bakersfield.

If the solid planning that has gone into tomorrow's encounter gets the desired results, the Lettuce Bowl could become the "prestige" game that the North has long awaited.

Though the Rams and Monterey have had no common opponents this year, the college should fare well if only because of its tough defensive line and swift backfield, which have been the core of the team all year.

Colleges in the Salinas area are known for the tough brand of football they play, using big, speedy backs as their forte.

Nevertheless, not many backs have been able to penetrate the likes of Jim Baffico, Dave Urrea, Alex Darnes and Terry Fischel, and there's no reason why Monterey should tomorrow.

Tom Piggee and Ron Coleman always run well, and if the improving Ben Winslow comes through at quarterback, a win is in store for the college.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1961 NUMBER 10

Building Fund, $30,000 Scholarship Up Prestige

State Sum Expands Statler H&R Gift

Coinciding with present building plans for a wing to Smith Hall through the Statler grant, an additional allocation from the state is expected not only to add prestige to the campus but also to provide for a composite structure for hotel and restaurant classes and a student center, President Louis G. Conlan stated today.

The state allocated $200,000 during the last legislature session, use of which depends on the local Board of Education's approval.

Total cost of the proposed structure is about $850,000. This two-story building will house a new lecture-demonstration room, a demonstration kitchen on the second floor and a student center for informal studying and gathering on the ground level.

"The purpose of the student center is two-fold," Conlan disclosed; "to relieve the overcrowding of the cafeteria and, on the other hand, to be easily adaptable to student activities."

The new wing will be as large as the present cafeteria, and will be attached to the eastern face of Smith Hall. It will contain separate heating apparatus and an appropriate interior design, both facilitating student evening affairs.

"If everything runs smoothly, the new wing will be finished and ready for student use during September, 1963," Conlan said.

Meanwhile, steady progress is being made by Louis Batmale, dean of instruction here, to insure the Statler Foundation's grant of $100,000 to the hotel and restaurant department.

Fifty thousand dollars has to be raised by the college to supplement the grant. Already the H&R Alumni Association has pledged full support, since that department will benefit from this award.

Once the total of $50,000 is made, construction will begin with room space planned similar to S-100 and S-136, which can seat up to 200 students.

A brochure is now being prepared by the college's graphic arts, photography and art departments, in an effort to inform the public fully on the subject.

"Once these pamphlets are ready the campaign will get into full swing," Batmale said.—By D.G.

KCSF Wants More Money, Threatens To Leave The Air

By Bob Hacker

"Unless we get the money we want, KCSF will go off the air."

Pamela Chandler, freshman on council and member of KCSF, voiced this threat to the members of Student Council last week during a heated and somewhat confused council meeting.

Miss Chandler's statement stems from a meeting of council that took place a few weeks ago when the KCSF budget Was passed and the amount allocated only $43 of the $140 requested.

Since that time she has constantly requested that additional funds be given to KCSF.

It wasn't until last week that council members sat up and gave notice to her request for more money. The general attitude of the members at first seemed to be shocked confusion.

It later settled to one of contentment when Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students, countered KCSF's threat by stating "We would hate to lose the radio, and we would also hate to take away the materials from KCSF which do belong to the Associated Students."

Miss Chandler claimed the decision to pipe music to Smith Hall on a trial basis was not brought up until after the budget for KCSF was passed. Because no money was allocated to fix the amplifier in Smith Hall there will be no music.

She stated that KCSF "is tired of fighting for the few dollars it receives while others get what they need."

Two Men Yearly In Line For Awards

A scholarship fund totalling $30,000 for men students here has been presented to City College. Named in memory of Lucille Lesser, the scholarship will be expended over a period of 10 years beginning next year at the rate of $3000 per year, $1500 each for two men annually.

Major requirements for the scholarship, announced today by Dean Mary Golding, stipulate that men applying are planning to enroll at City College and in two years transfer for further study to complete a four-year course leading to the bachelor's degree.

The winning students will not receive the full amount at once; $500 will be awarded to them when they enter City College and the rest when they are juniors and enrolled at a four-year college.

Entrants must be United States citizens, graduated from a San Francisco high school with at least a B average, and have attended San Francisco schools for four years, three of which were in high school.

Candidates are expected to submit three letters of recommendation certifying good citizenship, one each from a high school registry teacher or counselor, a parent and an out-of-school contact, such as an employer.

By submitting a letter of application and a biographical summary, applicants will familiarize the Faculty Loan Committee, the judges of the candidates, with their personal data.

Included in the report of employment experience should be the nature of each job held, the duration of each and the extent to which they helped to finance previous education, Dean Golding said.

A clear and concise objective statement explaining why student wishes to attend college, and their professional or occupational preferences, help the committee to decide upon the intentions of the applicants, she added.

The final step for the contestants is to appear for an interview before two members of the Faculty Loan Committee.

Members of this group include Dean Golding, Dean Ralph Hillsman, Margaret Ancker, Roy Burkhead, Fred Foultz and Verrell Weber of the faculty.

Presentation Of New Plaque To Outstanding Sophomore Athlete Tops Class Part In CAB Rally

Presentation by the Sophomore Class of an Olympic plaque will play a major part in the Club Activities Board benefit drive rally to be held this Friday during a double College Hour starting at 10 a.m. in the men's gymnasium, Dan Collins, Sophomore Class president, explained today.

The Olympic plaque, started this semester and expected to be a perpetual trophy, will be awarded to a sophomore athlete in each of three sports, football, soccer and cross-country.

The head coaches in each of these sports will name a team member who is most deserving of the award on the basis of spirit, sportsmanship and scholarship, in that order, Collins said, and the name of each winner will then be engraved on the plaque.

The award will next be placed on display throughout the year in the trophy case located in Smith Hall.

Each man will also receive an Olympic type medal as a token trophy for his outstanding ability.

This Friday during College Hour the three athletes will be introduced to the student body at the rally.

The big Sophomore event for next month is the semiannual Ball, with music provided by the Ray Hackett orchestra. The theme, Winter Rhapsody, will be carried out by the semi-formal attire and the entertainment of The Travelers, a local instrumental and vocal group.

The dance is set for Friday, Janu-

(Continued on Page 3, Column 5)

PRESENTATION of the Olympic trophy this Friday and preparation for the Soph Ball on January 12 will keep Dan Collins, class president, hopping through the holidays.
—Guardsman photo by George Plickich.

Double C-Hour Rally Friday To Climax Christmas Benefit Drive

In an attempt to push the annual Christmas charity drive, due to reach its climax Friday, past the $800 goal, a cake sale has been initiated this week in the student lounge, also known as the Shack, George Woo, president of Club Activities Board, announced Monday. A Latin American combo will perform Friday during a double College Hour rally in the men's gymnasium. There will be no 10 a.m. class Friday.

CAB is sponsoring the cake sale and the entire drive but it has been the sororities, having baked a majority of the cakes, who have made the first cake sale in the history of the drive successful.

Most of the $800 is expected to come from student contributions. Woo hopes each student will donate what he can afford, but stated the real goal is to get every student to "contribute at least 10 cents which would bring us near the goal."

The money collected during the drive, which culminates at the rally, will go to a needy family or families in the form of food orders.

Finding the needy family or families to distribute the donations to is the responsibility of the research committee members. They consult Red Cross, churches, synagogues, other organizations and use private information for the selection. Alice Hermle leads the committee in charge of this project.

All of the campus organizations have aided in the collection of contributions. They have been given four or five cans in which to collect the donations.

Private organization projects on the side to add to the potential $800 have been advocated by Woo.

The finance committee handles the collection of money and takes care of the food order purchase. Judy Crivelli and Pam Chandler are co-chairmen of the group.

Happy Holidays

'G' To See You January 4, '62

After the tension of second midterms, many students are relieved that the two-week Christmas vacation will begin on December 11, and end December 25. This festive holiday will include visions of Christmas trees, Santa Claus and jingle bells to liven up the season.

There has already been a mad seuffling, downtown and at other shopping centers for the hunting of Christmas presents. The stores have hired a number of college students to help out during these hectic weeks.

Not all students will have complete leisure. The Guardsman staff will spend its "yuletide break" gathering the contents of its next issue, which won't be out until January 4, 1962, the only Thursday publication date this semester.

Assignments, including term papers and the reading of books, will keep some students busy, while others may take trips to snow-filled areas for a really white Christmas.

Ayalin Plans Slogan Contest For AS Voting

Associated Student Elections To Be Held January 4 And 5

Dates of the Associated Student elections have been changed again, this time moved to Thursday, January 4, and Friday, January 5, according to Ed Ayalin, Election Commissioner.

The change is due to the fact that the previously announced dates of January 8 and 9 would make the organizational announcements of the results impossible.

In the past, the names of the new officers have been publicly announced at the Associated Women Student Feminine Fling, which is scheduled for January 5. In addition, the new officers are honored at the Student Council dinner, which this semester will take place on January 9.

The dates of these two events made the rebounding announced election days impossible.

The deadline for petitions is 1 p.m. this Friday. Ayalin emphasized the importance of candidates familiarizing themselves with the AS constitution and understanding the requirements of the offices for which they are aspiring.

Party nominating conventions will take place tonight and tomorrow night. This evening, the Student's Representative Party will convene at 7:30 p.m. at Smith Hall. The United Student's Party will meet at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Shack.

On the election days voting machines will be situated at the silver pole in Science Hall, the bookstore, the entrance to the library and the arts building.

Students who are interested in working on the election committee can inform Ayalin at the AS office. Their duties would entail working at the voting machines and helping to tabulate the results of the election.

Offices to be filled are those of President, Vice President, AMS and AWS Presidents, Sophomore and Freshman Class Presidents and 14 Student Council posts.

Entries Due This Friday

A slogan contest was announced last week by Ed Ayalin, Election Commissioner, to emphasize the importance of better student government through better elections.

Ayalin said that it would be a tremendous boost to student government if the clubs and organizations on campus would promote this contest with the idea of its purpose mentioned above.

The contest is open only to clubs and organizations and only one slogan will be accepted from each. The entries are limited to a maximum of 12 words and must pertain to the purpose of the contest. The slogans must be devoid of the college political party names or labels, so as to eliminate bias, the rules state.

Entries may be turned in at the dean of men's office before 3 p.m. this Friday, and they must be typewritten and indicate the name of the organization which submitted it.

Faculty members will act as judges.

Beta Tau's Mistletoe Mingle Set This Friday Night In Smith Hall

Mistletoe Mingle is the title of the annual Beta Tau Christmas dance Friday evening in Smith Hall.

Approximately 150 couples are expected to dance to the music of Sal Vance and his orchestra, one of the top bands in the area, between 9 p.m. and 12 midnight.

Dress will be semiformal, and each woman will be presented with a piece of mistletoe and a small corsage upon entering the hall.

Tickets, which sell for $2 each, are now on sale in the cafeteria, or at the Smith Hall bank. Members of Beta Tau fraternity will be circulating around campus this week.

They can be identified by the miniature Santa Claus they will be wearing with the notation, "I'm going to Mistletoe Mingle."

Last week the fraternity members purchased two bags of mistletoe to accommodate the women attending. A special effort is being made to make Friday night's dance a success since it is the 25th anniversary of Beta Tau and the 14th dance of the same name held since 1947.

Alpha Phi Omega, the service fraternity here, is aiding by purchasing the refreshments.

Members of Beta Tau working on the dance are President Jack Harrison, vice President Jack Kyle, Treasurer Keith Poulsen, Recording Secretary Bruce Wilson and Corresponding Secretary Dave Dimond.

Members of the fraternity's alumni and faculty have also been invited.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 10 WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1961 Page 2

Christmas Is Here; But How Many Remember Its Significance

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was published three years ago, December 12, 1958, by Linsey Freeman who was then Editor-In-Chief of the Abraham Lincoln High School newspaper, the Lincoln Log. Although written at an high school age, it shows the spirit and insight of a much more mature person. We believe this cogent and critical essay desires the attention of all, because it is both timely and timeless. Freeman is now attending the University of California.)

THE TIME doesn't matter—this has happened before in the countless eons that make up our universe—

An interstellar ship speeds across the sky to its hitherto unexplored destination. In this ship stands a small green tree covered with cheery ornaments; it is the crew's sole reminder of an event dear to their world—an event that brings them joy, strength, and hope, even in the darkness of space.

They enter the atmosphere of their destination, a planet supposed to be nearly identical in construction to their own; the ship settles slowly to the ground. The chosen members of the crew disembark and enter what appears to be a city. The streets of the city are crowded and gaily decorated.

The inhabitants are pushing, bumping, running and crushing one another in a frenzied attempt to enter and move around in what appears to be their places of business. Their emotion is mixed—confusion, anger, frustration and worry seem predominant.

One thing is certain; there is little happiness. The planet's banks are crowded with people withdrawing money—their expressions are worried, tense, unhappy. The cause of the anguish seems to be that this is their time for gift giving. Their communications devices blare announcements keyed to the time—all built around a figure the inhabitants have created; he gives gifts freely to their young—he is all happiness, all good, all-important.

Suddenly, in the midst of the turmoil, torment and confusion, one of the explorers realizes a horrible truth. This is the planet's Christmas. The coming of their Saviour has been forgotten in the service of a non-existent figure of their imagination . . . their time for love and joy has been replaced by a senseless, headlong, sanguinary bedlam in a false spirit of good will. They are driven on by the subconscious hope that if they give more they will receive more. Christ has come, but His chosen again force Him away.

The explorers sadly leave the thrashing city. They leave the planet with the sincere prayer that this unspeakable fate will never befall their world.

Why has it befallen OURS?

Foresight

TV Commemorates December 7, 1941

By John Muller

SPORTING a title which one might expect to find in a monthly man's magazine, television's The Twentieth Century commemorated the 20th anniversary of Pearl Harbor last Sunday by featuring The Man Who Spied On Pearl Harbor.

During the half-hour program Takeo Yoshikawa told an incredible story of how he supplied the key information for the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

One of the important bits of information given by the spy, according to former Japanese Vice Admiral Suguru Suzuki, was in answer to the question of which day of the week the most ships would be in the harbor.

Yoshikawa's answer: "Sunday."

And Pearl Harbor WAS attacked on December 7, 1941—a Sunday.

From the time when the possibility of the story was discovered almost a year ago to its actual filming in August, The Twentieth Century did an excellent job of weaving an accurate and engrossing story about Yoshikawa's little known job in the preparation for the attack.

Last Sunday's episode retained the usual high quality of the program, which makes the viewer feel as though he were thumbing through an old history book and finding some facts of the past which few people know.

For those viewers who missed last Sunday's program there are two possibilities: either turn another page of fascinating history next Sunday at 6 p.m. on channel 5, or tune in one of the other programs which will remember that fateful day 20 years ago tomorrow.

Since the latter choice comes first, the collegiate "night owl" may look forward to two other programs tomorrow night, PM East . . . PM West at 11:15 p.m. on channel 5, or for those who watch early evening TV, Now . . . In Our Own Time at 7:30 p.m., a special on channel 4.

Mike Wallace and Joyce Davidson will discuss Pearl Harbor with some of the Americans who were stationed there on the day of the disaster on PM East . . . PM West.

Highlighting their discussion, which should prove to be extremely interesting, will be a talk with Captain Mitsuo Fuchida, the man who lead the airborne attack.

Earlier Thursday evening channel 4 will present a special, Now . . . In Our Own Time with Sentry Abroad, a documentary which will show how our network of overseas bases is designed to prevent another Pearl Harbor.

Narrator Frank McGee will take the viewer on a tour of a Thor missile base in England, the nuclear-submarine base in Holy Loch, Scotland, and the Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba, plus many other installations.

The program should make a viewer confident that our preparedness for a possible surprise attack will discourage a repeat of Pearl Harbor in the future.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieve
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell, Dave Kleinberg.
Reporters: Herbert Mizie, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu.
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McCanlhe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Eatuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook, Bill Bargagliotti, George Pikich, Christopher Utter, Herb Greene.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Bridge's Mr. G Meets The 'G'

Goren's Aces Take The Trick

By Vincent Liu

Having heard about Charles H. Goren so many times on television, in magazines and newspapers, one can easily draw the conclusion that he is one of the great bridge players alive today.

In an interview with this reporter, Goren displayed his remarkable playing skill and his mannerly appearance which so belies his impression status as a famed bridge celebrity.

Friendly and unassuming, the bridge master speaks with authority and wit. Possessing a wonderful sense of humor, he has the knack of commanding attention with his conversations in a soft-spoken manner. Meeting him would remind one of the proverb, "Silent water runs deep."

To compare him with Teddy Roosevelt's famous principle, one would say that he speaks softly and carries a big stick—namely, his trump cards!

Pinning an old baseball saying, "Nice guys finish last," on Goren would certainly be unfitting. The bridge wizard has won countless tournament championships and accumulated more master-points (6400) than anybody else in the United States.

Born in Philadelphia and making his home now in New York and Miami, he has represented his country and led the United States national team to many championships in world competitions.

He gained world fame and recognition for inventing the Goren point-count system which, according to him and many agreeing bridge followers, is the easiest way to learn to play bridge correctly. The system, adaptable to anyone who can add and subtract, took 10 years of experimenting through trial and error methods.

The author of more than 30 books, which have sold over five million copies, and numerous other pamphlets on bridge fundamentals and tips, Goren will resume his television series, Championship Bridge, on January 6, 1962.

CHARLES GOREN, inventor of the Goren bridge point-count system, carefully studies his cards.—Guardsman photo by Christopher Utter.

The 26-week series will introduce to the viewers top players all over the world and their different systems.

When asked if bridge is strictly an adult's game Goren stated that more and more young people are getting into the game. He also felt that it would be a good idea to have bridge clubs on college or university campuses.

For the frustrated bridge players of this college the professor had some advice. "The best way to approach the game is simply by reading lots of books on the subject," he said. "After all, that's how I got started."

To this came the unanimous agreement from Helen Sobel, world's leading woman bridge player; Richard Freye, famed New York bridge columnist; Frank Jackson, San Francisco bridge expert, and Hattie Kwong, charming woman bridge figure of San Francisco.

The group of Goren, Mrs. Sobel and Freye was passing through the West Coast on its way to Honolulu to participate in the Hawaii Regional Bridge Tournament.

They were wished good luck but that wasn't really necessary. Those experts don't need luck!

The Spectator

The Hustler: —Top Stars In Top Movie

(Today's Spectator is by Sandy Sells)

THE OLD STORY of the new upstart youngster challenging the old pro at what the latter knows best is one of the themes of an unusual moralistic film, The Hustler, showing now at neighborhood theaters.

Paul Newman as the hustler makes his role in Exodus seem like a bad dream as he outdoes himself in a part that requires character as well as talent.

A "hustler" is a professional pool shark (player adept at the game) who, when gambling on a game, hides his ability at first. Then, after raising the stakes, he plays to his full capability, wins, collects the cash and leaves town.

In the movie, Fast Eddie, the young hustler from Oakland, California, has worked his way east to the Pittsburgh area of Pennsylvania to challenge and win the title from Minnesota Fats, the acknowledged (by word of mouth) champion in the country.

Jackie Gleason, in a role tailor-made for him, portrays Fats with the ease of a proper gentleman. He is seen complete with starched shirt, tie, vest, impeccable suit with carnation in the lapel.

He's cool, he's confident, and he is the champ. His young opponent is eager, swaggering, assertive and assured.

Who would ever think that the drama and excitement of a back room pool game would hold the interest of a mass audience? It can, and it does.

Fast Eddie, who by our standards is an elevated bum, meets Sarah, who by the same standards portrays what seems to be at first glance an elevated tramp.

Elevated because she attends college Tuesdays and Thursdays. On the rest of the days she drinks.

Piper Laurie, who once told a fan magazine reporter that the former's name had become synonymous with bad acting, has finally shown her true colors.

She is presented in the ambiguous role of a wanton woman with strong moral fibre. In Sarah, this paradox is entirely possible. Without overacting or exaggeration Sarah lifts herself out of the void that trapped her and offers compassion to him who was afraid to receive it.

Watching Miss Laurie's sometimes obvious, sometimes subtle, sensitivity is in itself truly worth viewing the film.

Also worth mentioning is the background music. It's great. If, for some reason you don't care for pool, Paul Newman or carnations, just sit back, close the eyes and listen.

It braces you for the ending.

The Ram's Curse

Campus Statue Weathers Tar, Fire, Paint

The Redwood Ram, located in front of Smith Hall, received its annual paint baptism last week.

This time the unidentified villains splattered white paint over the college symbol. The painted words, "L.A. Rams 1969," was the only clue left, bringing the possibility that an angry San Francisco 49er fan had mistakenly sought revenge and had claimed the wrong Ram.

During its stay at the college, the Ram has endured paint jobs of almost every color in the rainbow—and a few others yet unnamed. It has survived a tar-and-feathering and an attempted cremation. Luckily, it has never been stoned, and termites have never attacked it.

Dean of Men Ralph Hillisman, who deals with the discipline problem, estimates the vandals strike about twice a semester, but philosophically agrees better the Ram than the college.

Since the Ram is part of college property, individuals caught defacing the Ram in any manner will be dealt with severely, as some have been in the past.

In 1957 the Ram was splattered black, green in 1958 and orange, gray and blue, etc.

On October 12, 1959, the Ram took a coat of tar-and-feathers just before the traditional San Mateo-Ram football game. Although the San Mateo Associated Student government officers cleaned the Ram three days later, they flatly denied having anything to do with the "Rampage."

The Ram has occupied its present position since January 3, 1956, when it was moved there from the west campus. Before its occupancy on the west campus, where the reservoirs are now, it was stored for five years in the men's gymnasium.

The Ram was carved in 1939 by muralist and sculptor Dudley C. Carter for the California Handicraft Exhibition of the San Francisco World's Fair on Treasure Island.

After the fair the late Archibald J. Cloud, then president of the college, accepted it in the name of the college from architect Timothy Pflueger as a gift from Carter.

Wild Bill Hickok was shot from ambush August 2, 1876, in Deadwood, South Dakota.

Enrollment Breakdown

Figures Augur Dim Future For Men Here

By Doug Cathcart

Numbers don't have too much meaning unless they can be grouped and analyzed in order to form a readable picture.

Well, each semester the office of the registrar here takes the total attendance figure and breaks it down for the purpose of creating a comprehensive report through which future attendance trends may be visualized and thus prepared for in advance.

The Guardsman, however, thought it might be interesting to publish some of its findings as a picture of current interest to the student body of today.

The total enrollment of the college this semester is 8347, of which 5370 are men and 2977 are women. There are 6631 day students and 1716 night students. Looking around one sees a lot of new faces as there are 3535 new students at the college this semester.

The main bulk of the student body matriculates here from San Francisco public and private high schools.

This group numbers 5422 or 64.9 per cent of the total student population. Eighty-six students here were never graduated from high school, but through a special entrance examination they proved that they were capable of doing college level work.

A breakdown of the attendance from San Francisco high schools is as follows:

Balboa 622, Commerce and Benjamin Franklin 163, Continuation 12, Galileo 536, Girls High School 11, O'Connell 40, Lincoln 808, Lowell 521, Mission 358, Polytechnic 396, and Washington with the most students in attendance, 840.

The rest of the student body comes from Alameda County 216, other California high schools 1068, other United States high schools 1149, and finally, from foreign countries 406.

Of these 406 foreign students, 293 are men and 113 are women. The Philippine Islands have the highest representation with 49 students in attendance. Right behind the Philippines is Nicaragua with 37 students enrolled at the college. Nineteen foreign countries have but one lone student in attendance.

These 19 are the Belgian Congo, Brazil, British West Indies, Burma, Ceylon, Denmark, Indonesia, Latvia, Malnya, Morocco, Mozambique, Netherlands Guiana, New Zealand, Poland, Syria, Thailand, Turkey, Union of South Africa and Yugoslavia.

Almost anywhere on the report the men outnumber the women. One of the few exceptions, however, is Sweden, which has three women and no men in attendance. So, if you hear some guy walking around the campus shouting "Long live Sweden," don't be surprised.

Counselors List Reg Times For Spring Semester

Registration dates for Spring 1962 are Monday, February 5, and Tuesday, February 6, according to the statement released by William McCloud, counselor, today.

On Monday the first of 4700 returning-students will register, and Tuesday new students will register. Old students returning on probation will enter at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Programming for next spring is almost completed after two months. Under the new system of registration, based on scholastic grade point average, students after they had completed the preregistration forms were sent postcards one week before they were called in.

Honor students entering from high school, about 200 as estimated by McCloud, will register at 1 p.m. on February 5.

Registration times based on the numbers which appear on the student's yellow form are as follows: 1 to 799, 8 a.m., Monday, February 5; 800 to 1299, 8:30 a.m.; 1300 to 1699, 9 a.m.; 1700 to 2299, 9:30 a.m.; 2300 to 2899, 10 a.m.; 2900 to 3299, 10:30 a.m.; 3300 to 3499, 11 a.m.

Continuing registration after the lunch hour, the following times will prevail: 3500 to 3899 and high school honor society students at 1 p.m.; 3900 to 4299, 1:30 p.m., and 4300 to 4699 at 2 p.m.

AMS, AWS Slate Jan. Social Activities

Smoker Set For Gymnasium

Sports contests and entertainment are promised by Paul Snowberg, Associated Men Student president, for the AMS Smoker to be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, January 4, in the men's gymnasium.

Admission to this semiannual event is free with an AS card, but a price of 50 cents has been set for noncardholders.

The evening's entertainment will consist of the intramural championship game, boxing matches and nonsport entertainment.

The championship basketball game will climax this semester's intramural cage league, and various awards will be distributed to the participants of the tilt.

Ten boxing matches are scheduled to be fought. Medals will be awarded to the winners and to the runners-up. In addition, two trophies will be given, one to the outstanding boxer and one to the best fighter.

The non-sport entertainment will probably be furnished by the International Relations Club, Snowberg said. At press time, specific acts were yet to be scheduled.

Free cokes and cigarettes will be available at the social event.

Semiannual Fling In Cafe

The semiannual Feminine Fling, themed Cantonese Capers, will be held at 6 p.m. Friday, January 5, in Smith Hall. Jan Doudiet, Associated Women Student president, has invited all women students to attend the function.

The date was set because the event must be held after Associated Student elections, which are set for Thursday, January 4, and Friday, January 5.

An awards dinner and activity night program will feature Chinese food and entertainment of an international variety.

Committees included in planning for the event include publicity, invitations, serving, set-up, decorations, entertainment, fashions, food and clean-up.

After the dinner, which is offered free of charge, the newly elected presidents of Recreation Association, Inter-Sorority Council and Associated Women Students will be installed.

Also presented during the activity night will be service and scholarship awards, including the Margaret Dougherty award. This trophy is awarded to the sorority with the highest grade point average.

Studies Start On AMS Suggestion Entries

Ideas submitted to the Associated Men Student suggestion box are currently being studied to select those feasible for adoption, according to George Cook, co-chairman of the student union.

An average of about ten per week have been dropped in the suggestion box located in the Shack.

Cook said that all suggestions are welcome. They may concern either student affairs or matters concerning the college itself.

The cochairman stated that the former will be considered by himself while the latter will be forwarded to the proper faculty members.

Departing from the topic of suggestion box, Cook asked that students keep the Shack clean, since no provisions to insure this practice are being considered at present.

He also expressed hope that KCSF will soon be broadcasting in the student union.

In addition, sandwiches may soon be introduced. Slips of paper are now available on which a student may express his preference as to the kind that could be served.

GETTING IN HER TWO CENTS WORTH. A coed puts her suggestion into the box located in the Shack in hopes that it will be used for the betterment of the college.

California Offers Aptitude Test For Scholarships

Students who are planning to attend the University of California in Spring 1962 or February 1963 are eligible for University and State of California scholarships, provided that they take the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board, Mary Golding, dean of women here, stated today.

This week is the deadline for signing up for the aptitude test, which is scheduled for December 2 and January 13. Students can consult Dean Golding for information and applications.

The University of California awards students a $400 scholarship to cover one year, and the State of California scholarship presents $185 to students to cover tuition and fees.

The aptitude test is required of all applicants, but is only one factor in determining the winners. They are also judged on the basis of ability, need, character, activities and good citizenship.

Applicants must be a resident of California, under 24 years of age and a high school graduate by the summer of 1962.

Three forms, including the aptitude test score, the parents' confidential financial statement showing the actual need, and the application containing the student's biography are to be submitted by the applicant.

To apply for a State scholarship a student must mail his application, postmarked no later than January 5, 1962, to the State Scholarship Commission in Sacramento.

For the University of California scholarship students must apply for admission to the university by March 1, 1962.

Colleges Pass Two Major Resolutions At Convention

Two resolutions, directly connected with the college, were passed last month at the highly successful 32nd semiannual California Junior College Student Government conference at Fresno City College.

In the absence of Associated Student President Gary Wilkening, George Woo headed the group, accompanied by Sue Mount, Suzanne Murphy, Larry Levin, Paul Steiner, Bob Perkins and Advisor Sherm Elworthy, as 63 junior colleges were represented.

The resolution of greater significance to this college is the one that delegated to San Francisco the chairmanship of the State Information and Co-ordinator, as a result of combining the offices of the State Information chairmanship, held currently by Perkins, and the State Co-ordinator chairmanship into one office.

In the current problems workshop San Francisco, represented by Steiner, brought up the resolution of sending the minutes of the college conferences to state colleges and universities in order to increase communication between the two-year and four-year institutions.

The resolution was passed in the workshop and assembly without difficulty.

The campus organization workshop was represented by Woo and Levin, who were the cochairmen of the workshop.

No resolution was made in the campus communications workshop, according to Miss Mount, who is the representative in that department.

The most active and efficient workshop was student government, where 12 resolutions were moved and passed in assembly, according to Miss Murphy, who was working with the student presidents.

According to the conference rule, a maximum of only five delegates was allowed from each college. However, in the future, according to Levin, each participating college will be required to send a minimum of four delegates, while the maximum number will be decided by the host institution.

In view of the fact that City College sent a delegation of six to the meeting, it is to be noted that Perkins' status as a state officer eliminated him as a delegate.

As the only state officer from this college, Perkins' main job is distributing information concerning campus activities to the two-year colleges in California in booklet form that was forwarded to each college during the confab.

Campus Police Cop Three Pistol Team Wins

Although the Campus Police pistol team is still in a building stage, it has come through true to its good reputation by winning three first place trophies in the first half of the fall semester, according to Fred Fitzgerald, criminology instructor.

Fitzgerald emphasized that while the Campus Police are competing against military, state and city police and private pistol teams, they still usually place in the top three spots.

There are about eight different classifications under which team members are entered, including those of sharpshooter and marksman.

A period of four months is required for officer classification. Two months are spent training for the team, while the other two are spent acquiring a classification.

The better a member scores in the matches the higher his rating goes.

Club Cavalcade

Groups Set Full Schedule As Yule Break Nears

PRECEDING the two-week Christmas break, activities of campus organizations will be going strong this week.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship will show a Moody Bible Institute science film in C-247 during College Hour this Friday.

That evening at Temple Baptist Church, the annual inter-varsity Collegiate Christian Fellowship Christmas potluck dinner will be held.

Tickets for the event are 75 cents each and are now available from any member of the group.

Delta Sigma Tau sorority is planning a dinner to welcome new members, Carmen King, Gwen Robinson, Maxine Hiekman, Sheronne Johnson, Gloria Witherspoon, Imogene Walker, Charlesetta Mitchell and Pat Bodie.

Engineering Society's future plans include a movie to be shown during College Hour, December 29 in S-200 on The World That Nature Forgot.

Pledges of Delta Psi who were presented last Friday night at the Inter-Sorority Council Winter Mist were Barbara Preston, Jeannie Pavelic, Sue Fitzpatrick, Diane Ashton, Edith Grant, Rosalie Diggins and Pat Dunn. Pledges wore the traditional white feathered hats and long gloves with their semiformals.

The Christian Science Organization meets tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. in Third Church of Christ Scientist at 1250 Baker street. Faculty, alumni and friends are invited to attend. Further information is available from Nina Tucker of the hotel and restaurant department.

Music Department Presents Modern And Classical Program At Christmas Concert Friday

By Anna Papagni

Emphasizing serious modern music and co-ordinating it with the classical tradition provides this year's theme for the annual Christmas program, to be given by the music department during College Hour Friday, December 8, in the theater, Galen Marshall and Meyer Cahn, faculty directors, said last week.

Selections of Bartok, the late Vaughan Williams and the fast rising contemporary composer, Irving Fine, contribute to the modern portion of the program while Bach, Corelli and Henry Purcell represent the past.

The Treble Clef, a women's chorus recently reorganized by Richard Fenner, music instructor here, will sing three songs from Fine's Alice In Wonderland, one of which is the whimsical Beautiful Soup.

The Men's Glee Club has chosen Williams' The Mummers Carol and the Cherry Tree Carol. Although both are based on old folk themes, the composer has adapted them interestingly to the modern style, Marshall, director of the vocal groups, explained.

Bartok was another one who received much inspiration from authentic folk music, Cahn, who directs the instrumental groups, added. Because his music appreciation classes are presently studying the works of this composer, he has designated Bartok's Romanian Dances as the selection to be played by the orchestra.

Cahn described the dances as strange and melodic with vital rhythmic qualities.

Complementing what is sometimes referred to as the new music, the program offers the work of the 17th century composer, Purcell, which will be presented along with the Bach music by the concert band.

In addition to Bartok the orchestra will play Corelli's Christmas Concerto.

Also in a traditional vein the Men's Glee Club will contribute an old English college song, and finally, the A Cappella Choir will sing four arrangements of customary carols, one of which is the Coventry Carol that includes a violin solo by Mark Zimmerman.

Zimmerman is also featured in the Romanian Dances and is described by his instructors as an exceedingly fine musician. He has played with chamber groups throughout the city and with the State College orchestra.

Counterpoint

True-Sound A Revolution In Hi Fi Racket

By Dick Dragavon

IT IS TIME that the public be brought up to date on the subject of hi fi, stereo and other various electronic listening devices which are offered to music loving buyers.

The old 78 revolution per minute records often sounded more like a buzz saw in a lumber mill and even the RCA Victor dog patiently listening for his master's voice must have often found it difficult to stay put while those scratchy sounds were played.

Hi fidelity recording cut down the scratchy noises and started a new cult of "purist" listeners. Playing a record more than once was not only a crime, it was absurd. Once a record was played, they said, it had scratches.

The only thing to do was to buy a tape recorder, record the brand new platter then put the disc away and listen to the tape.

When stereo entered the picture background noise was at a minimum, especially during the recording session. Emphasis was placed on the music alone.

Possible exceptions were the "bugs" who built sound systems so sensitive that they reproduced, loudly and clearly, the record hiss, the unavoidable sound of the needle riding in the groove.

However, someone noted in a concert hall the music was not perfect and in order to bring realism into their living room it was necessary to produce a slight echo in their speaker system to imitate the echo in a concert hall.

All this paves the way for revolutionary True-Sound, a system so new that the readers of this column are the first to hear of it.

True-Sound is the ultimate in realism by which all the noises of a concert hall are reproduced.

These include the late arrivers' apologies as they stumble their way to their seats in the second row center, orchestra.

The late arrivers will be balanced by a half dozen "shushers" performing in counterpoint.

Other new "artists" will include first and second sneezers (or coughers, depending on the season).

For chorale arrangements a special choir of page flippers will be required to simulate 1000 people following the text in their programs.

One or two early applauders will also be necessary to provide the proper touch in symphonies which have false endings.

Thus True-Sound will bring the concert hall illusion to the most meticulous listener, even though the company hopes the omission of certain more subtle sounds such as the adjusting of binoculars will go unnoticed.

Soph King, Queen, Entries Due Today

(Continued from Page 1)

ary 12, from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, and the location is the Peacock Court and the Room of the Dons of the Mark Hopkins Hotel atop Nob Hill.

A prelude to the Ball is the Sophomore King and Queen contest. Petitions are due today in the Associated Student office, S-134, Collins emphasized. An organization can sponsor a king and queen or both, he said, urging those wishing to run but without a sponsor to apply directly to him.

Footballers, Soccermen, Harriers Receive Honors At Block SF Club Dinner

Tom Piggee, Jim Baffico, Al Korbus and John Weidinger headed a list of 68 top athletes from the football, soccer and cross-country teams, respectively, who received Block SF awards and Most Valuable Player trophies last Monday night at the semiannual Block SF banquet held in Smith Hall.

Assistant football coach from the University of California John Newmann was the guest speaker and offered his congratulations to all of the sports participants and coaches for the fine play turned in by all three teams.

Block winners from the football team were as follows:

Centers: Cliff Vattuone, George Benkie, Clarence Scanlan and Elton Diles.

Guards: Alex Darnes, Dennis Drucker, Dave Urrea, John Palau, Joe Almirol, Bill Wasley and Dave O'Brien.

Tackles: Baffico, team cocaptain and one winner of the Most Valuable Player award; Jack Burgett, Bill Lawson, Bill Holman, Mike Seullion, Cal Rothman, George Konlaris and Al Lazzareschi.

Ends: Terry Fischer, Bill Fischer, Ray Greggains, Phil Singer, Jerry Driscoll, John Jacobson and Neil Shea.

Quarterbacks: Randy Autentice, Ben Winslow and Jim Ahern.

Halfbacks: Ron Coleman, John Daigle, Chuck Oushani, Nando Llacuna, Al Raine, Claude Shipp and Ivan Afanasiev.

Fullbacks: Joe Giacomine, Piggee, coholder of the Most Valuable Player award and team cocaptain, and Bob Pollitt.

Soccer team awards went to:

Louis Chung, Gary DeLong, Korbus, Vince Liu, Flavio Vallente, William Dona, Adil El-Haimus, Steve Pinner, Ray Ponce, Franz Sticher, Phil Van Tassell, Sherwood Zammitt and Olaf Strohmeir.

Those receiving jackets are Ivan Bermudez, Allen Chew, Dave Fromer, Juan Garay, Dennis Minga, Hector Olaya, Caesar Pina, Bob Salazar, Lee Wurtenberg, Tom Wynn and Dave Pangburn.

The Most Valuable Player award in cross-country went to Weidinger for his consistent all-out efforts in the harriers' competition.

Others receiving cross-country blocks were Steve Jackson, Andrew Loobey, Esteban Valle and George Vernuza.

RAMBLINGS

Predictions Go Pfft With Club Records

By Ivan Temes

IF EVERYTHING had run the way the newspapers said it would, what a banner year this would be for Bay Area sports.

The National Football League championship contest is slated for later this month and a few weeks ago the only question mark about it was what team the 49ers would be playing for the title.

After all, hadn't they just demoralized the Lions 49-0 and the Rams 35-0? Wasn't the Shotgun an invincible offense dreamed up by the man who could do no wrong, Red Hickey?

What a great trade that was—getting rid of Y. A. Tittle for a young lineman, Lou Cordileone.

It didn't matter that Green Bay had already blasted the 49ers, 31-10.

The fact that it will snow in San Francisco before a professional team here wins a championship didn't matter to our enthusiastic dailies which bubbled over with the news of the footballers' upcoming title.

Of course, there was another problem. It would be hard to see the 49ers and then make it down to the Rose Bowl in time to see Marv Levy's California Bears participate. They were going to the Rose Bowl, of course. Didn't they beat Washington, 21-14? Didn't Washington go to the last two Rose Bowl contests?

So who should be the logical successor? Look in your backlog of newspapers and read the ringing praises of Cal.

Well, the overall complexion has certainly changed. The 49ers, as usual, will see the championship game—on television. Hickey is no longer the rage of the sports world. Who is? Y. A. Tittle, naturally.

The balding 35-year-old quarterback is leading the New York Giants to an apparent Eastern division title while the 49er Shotgun, the reason Tittle is with San Francisco no more, is now almost nonexistent.

Where's Cal's mighty bowl-bound powerhouse? It seems they were unable to beat anyone either before or after the Washington game. Season record—one win, seven defeats, one tie.

Well, the papers didn't stop with those two glossy predictions. Last week the headline blazed announcing the signing of Dick Holden by the Giants for only $12,000. It seems that this budding star won six games for Yakima (what's that) last year.

With the publicity given the young pitcher one would think he'll win the pennant for the Giants next year.

Holden's six wins for Yakima equal 0 wins for the Giants next year.

* * *

At least San Francisco teams play exciting ball and that's more than can be said for Washington. The old saying—"Washington, first in war, first in peace and last in the American League"—needs to be changed for the entry from that city not only finished at the bottom in baseball but now holds the cellar position in both the National Football and American Basketball Leagues.

The Fearsome Foursome—Ram Version

CULMINATING a season of inspired play which brought them an 8-2 overall mark, the Rams placed four men on the Big Eight Conference teams. (Left to right) tackle Jim Baffico, and co-back-of-the-year fullback Tom Piggee landed on the first squad while sophomore end Terry Fischer and freshman guard Dave Urrea received berths on the second team.

Big 8 Grid Selections Place Piggee, Baffico In Top Spots

By Dave Kleinberg

Tom Piggee, an All-Conference back last year and a former prep star at Polytechnic High, tied Modesto's Cliff Kenny for Back-of-the-Year honors to highlight the 1961 All-Big Eight Conference football selections.

The second place finishing Rams, winners of the Lettuce Bowl, also placed tackle Jim Baffico on the first team and put two men on the second squad.

San Mateo, conference champions for the second straight year, placed three men on the first squad, one on the second and had the Lineman-of-the-Year in Larry Hansen.

Terry Fischer, the Rams' aggressive veteran end, and Dave Urrea, a freshman All-City guard from Lowell High, placed on the second team.

Piggee's yardage total reached 956 yards in ten games and 742 in the seven conference contests. He caught seven passes for another 100 yards, and led the team in scoring with 70 points.

Because there were no heavy backs the 175-pound Piggee, normally a halfback, was switched to the fullback spot at the start of the year and showed the tenacity that could eventually earn him Junior College All-American honors before the year is out.

Against Modesto Piggee had his biggest day, scoring all four touchdowns on runs of 20, 20, 26 and 85 yards to roll up a fantastic 213 yards in 13 carries.

Baffico, the Leo Nomellini-type lineman, was in the opposition's backfield more often then on the Rams' line, it seemed.

Agile for his size, Baffico, with aid from Urrea, Dennis Drucker, Jack Burgett and Alex Darnes, led the Ram defense which held league opponents to less than nine points per game.

With the Rams' strong showing, there was cause for some legitimate complaint. Halfback Ron Coleman, a star on defense and highly rated by scouts who carefully observed the Rams' contests, was not mentioned in the selections.

Klemmer, lamenting slightly, felt that Urrea not only should have made first team All-Conference, but that he was the "best guard in the league."

First Team

PLAYER	COLLEGE	POSITION
Ted Watkins, Stockton		End
Larry Schibe, San Mateo		End
Bob Poole, Sacramento		Tackle
JIM BAFFICO, SAN FRANCISCO		Tackle
Joe Rutgher, San Mateo		Tackle
Ken Ashby, Sacramento		Guard
Jerry Lasly, Contra Costa		Center
Dick Randel, Stockton		Quarterback
TOM PIGGEE, SAN FRANCISCO		Back
Cliff Kenny, Modesto		Back
Clarence Hamel, San Mateo		Back

Second Team

TERRY FISCHER, SAN FRANCISCO	End
O. C. Emmerson, Contra Costa	End
Jim Norward, Oakland	Tackle
Mike Calasso, Stockton	Tackle
DAVE URREA, SAN FRANCISCO	Guard
Ed Kaiser, Modesto	Guard
Roger Dabney, San Mateo	Center
Beau Yerra, Santa Rosa	Quarterback
Henry Reynolds, Sacramento	Back
John Wright, Contra Costa	Back
Lynn Raymond, San Mateo	Back

Coleman's Romp Edges Monterey In Lettuce Bowl

By Ivan Temes

Maybe the Lettuce Bowl game at Salinas on Thanksgiving Day in which the Ram gridders topped Monterey Peninsula College, 22-14, wasn't the most heralded postseason contest, but it certainly was one of the most exciting ones.

Not until the final 1:32 of action when halfback Ron Coleman raced 12 yards around left end for the winning touchdown was City College assured of its first postseason victory since 1948.

It took a tremendous team effort, and a relieved Grover Klemmer summed it up when he praised his men for "their best blocking and tackling of the year."

The Ram pilot had reason to feel relieved, too. Only five minutes before the game's conclusion, with the score knotted at 14-14, Monterey took over after a punt and in seven plays had moved from their own 35-yard stripe to the Rams' 17.

Here the defense which has shone all year muscled in and took the initiative. After a five-yard penalty against the Lobos, Neal Shea threw quarterback Skip Murry for a 13-yard loss, and then Dave Urren and Tom Piggee teamed to stop flashy Jerry Colletto, voted the game's Most Valuable Player, after a two-yard gain.

Piggee then batted down a Gary Hixson pass, and end Terry Fischer downed Murry for an eight-yard loss, and the Rams took over.

Getting excellent blocking from Jim Baffico, Jack Burgett, Alex Darnes and Cliff Vattuone among others, and clutch running from Piggee and Al Raine, the Rams moved to the 12 setting up the score. Coleman skirted the end untouched, escorted by Urrea, Darnes and Ray Greggains, and Ben Winslow passed to Greggains for two points.

Although neither could be noted for its passing attack, the game started on an appropriate note as the teams traded interceptions. However, the Rams settled down and opened the scoring in the first quarter as Coleman burst off left tackle and raced 47 yards, and Winslow passed to Fischer for the extra points.

Monterey tallied in the second period on a 36-yard pass from Hixson to Len Newman but Raine, the game's Most Valuable Back, took the ensuing kickoff, cut inside Chuck Oushani's block on the Monterey 43, and finished off his 91-yard touchdown return.

The losers came back to tie the contest in the third period on Dick Austin's one-yard plunge and Colletto's conversion around end.

They had a big chance after blocking a punt in the final period but Coleman grabbed off Colletto's fumble on the ensuing play after the officials refused to acknowledge Baffico's plea for a time out.

Another Monterey threat was thwarted in the first period, halted on the Ram 21-yard line.

Little Ram halfback John Daigle sparkled twice, just missing breaking loose on a 38-yard kickoff return and a 13-yard zig-zag run with an intercepted pass.

Lettuce Bowl Statistics

TEAM TOTALS:	SF	MPC
Rushing Plays	49	53
Net Yards Rushing	244	161
Passes Attempted	2	13
Passes Completed	0	6
Passes Had Intercepted	1	2
Net Yards Passing	0	131
Total Net Yards	244	292
First Downs	12	13
Penalties	4-(40)	3-(35)
Punts	3	3
Punting Average	30.4	44.4
Fumbles—Lost	3-1	4-1

INDIVIDUAL RUSHING:

SF	TCB	Yds.	MPC	TCB	Yds.
Piggee	16	90	Colletto	17	101
Coleman	10	84	Austin	10	32
Raine	11	66	Dobson	1	—3
Pollitt	3	14	Hixson	3	—11
Daigle	4	4	Murry	9	—7
Winslow	6	—16	Wallace	1	—3
			Hence	5	12
			Decker	1	17

PASSING SF:	PA	PC	Yds.	PIH	TD
Ben Winslow	2	0	0	1	0
PASSING MPC:
Dick Hixson	16	6	131	1	1
Skip Murry	6	0	0	1	0

Cagers Open Home Schedule Against San Jose Squads

With the Stanford and University of San Francisco Frosh preseason contests behind, the Rams go full scale this week starting with San Jose State Frosh at 4 p.m. Friday and San Jose City College at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Both games will be held here at the men's gymnasium.

Charles Currington, a big 6-4½ man who sat out last season after playing briefly in 1959, will probably move into the center position to replace Jesse Arterberry.

An All-City prep star at Polytechnic and a former teammate of Arterberry, Currington possesses a deadly hook shot from in close, and can go high over the backboard.

Phelan will welcome the services of the rugged rebounding Melvin Tom, a muscularly built 6-3, 245-pounder, who becomes eligible at midseason.

Gene Batiste and Bill Nocetti, a pair of fine ball-handlers who both jump well for their height, have seen a good deal of action at guard.

Batiste, noted for his ball-handling while making All-City guard at Mission High, passes on target and hits well from the outside. Nocetti, formerly of Sacred Heart a few years back, can hit from outside.

Dewitt Demmer, All-City from Balboa High; Everett Adams, All-City from Washington High; Vince Courtney, Doug Johnson and John Neal will be in the lineup.

Forward position, on past records, looks strong. Veteran Brad Duggan, who goes 6-4, and Randy Simms, 6-3, appear to be in line for first string berths.

Simms, who received little recognition while being overshadowed by high-scoring Demmer at Balboa, has tremendous spring, and has looked sharp in game competition. Bill Mulcrevy has also looked good.

The five starters are definitely not settled. The season opener is still two months away, and last year Phelan sent his men through the exhibition season before he found the lineup that made the club click.

2 Unbeaten CAB Teams Clash For Playoff Berth

By Jerry Littrell

Tomorrow night will prove to be the most important night in the Club Activities Board league as the only two unbeaten teams in that league, the Collegiate Five and the Untouchables, meet at 8:15 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

Winner of the game between these two teams will represent the CAB league in the championship playoffs against the titlists from the Inter-Fraternity league, Alpha Phi Epsilon.

With the CAB league nearing completion and the IFC league play completed as of last week, this fall's intramural basketball season is drawing to a close.

Alpha Kappa Rho aided the Alpha Phi Epsilon team by failing to show up for their game last Wednesday night, thereby forfeiting it 2-0 and giving Alpha Phi Epsilon an unbeaten season.

Tomorrow night, along with the contest between the two unbeaten CAB teams, The Guardsman plays the Hotel and Restaurant, the Newman Club meets the Kane, the Believers take on the Electroneers while the Alli has a bye.

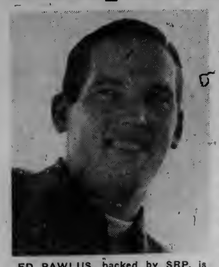
Last night the Alli met the Newman Club, the Untouchables clashed with the Believers, the Electroneers battled the H&R while the Collegiate Five played the Kane.

In last week's competition The Guardsman swamped the Electroneers 53-41 with Larry Stewart leading the victors with 19 points while Mike Jacobsen sunk 18 for the losers.

The Untouchables outfought the H&R 53-27. Harbie Briscoe hit for 22 points while Mike Migge scored 14 in a losing effort.

The Collegiate Five overpowered the Alli 47-25 as Stan Fuelscher dropped in 21 for the Five while Mel Tom hit for 6.

The Believers beat the Kane 53-28, Beta Tau was trounced by Alpha Sigma Delta 39-10, and the Zeta Phi Sigma got by the Gammas 31-20.



RA Charity Christmas Drive Ends This Friday

Members of the Recreation Association turned all their efforts toward collecting cans of food for needy families in their Christmas Drive, which ends this Friday in the women's gymnasium.

College of San Mateo last Saturday hosted this college's Recreation Association in a playday. Teams participating in the activity took part in bowling, badminton and volleyball.

Recently the fencing team participated in an unclassified foil event for first year fencers, and several placed in the semifinals.

Party Platforms Quote Principles In AS Elections

ED PAWLUS, backed by SRP, is running for Associated Men Student President, the highest position which is contested by both parties.

Students Representative Party . . .

In order for the Associated Students of City College to keep in step with the times, the STUDENTS' REPRESENTATIVE PARTY submits the following points as its program for the Spring semester, 1962.

I. To keep the students better informed, the AS President will hold a monthly press conference. He will be questioned by correspondents from The Guardsman and KCSF. The press conference will be televised over KCTV, a summary will be delivered over KCSF and its contents will appear in The Guardsman.

II. Panel discussions between members of the administration-faculty and student leaders will be held in order to discuss mutual problems. This will result in the development of ideas which will enable the student body to secure the greatest benefits from the work and the teaching of administration-faculty.

III. The financial system will be revitalized by the appointment of two members of Student Council to assist the Finance Chairman.

IV. Campus organizations will unite in working for the betterment of the student lounge and increased sales of AS cards.

Organized Independents' Party...

The days of a two-party system at City College are gone. The once infant party, now in power, has grown and outlived its purpose. This colossus, now divided, is quarreling among itself, leaving the Associated Students caught, as in the jaws of a vise, deprived of their welfare.

Individuals of the ORGANIZED INDEPENDENTS' PARTY platform have joined together to fight machine politics.

The OIP candidates present no elaborate platform promises because, as a new party, we are willing to enter student government at the lower level and work for any and all projects designed to aid and benefit the students. Each candidate has been informed of and understands his duties in the AS Constitution.

The other party has selfishly put politics before the interests and benefits of the students; we would like a chance to put honesty back into student government.

We will not be bound by vague political promises nor strict party lines. Our only pledge is honesty and fairness in student government.

FRED CHERNISS, running on the OIP ticket, also seeks the AMS post. Cherniss is currently COO President and Vice President of IFC.

3 Women's Groups Join Forces To Present Oriental Flavored Feminine Fling Tomorrow

Titled Canton Capades, this semester's semiannual Feminine Fling will be presented by the Associated Women Students at 6:30 p.m. this Friday in Smith Hall, Barbara Spering, AWS board member, revealed yesterday.

A women's award party, a light buffet supper and entertainment will be provided for all women students attending.

Major awards to be presented to women at the event include the AWS service award and the Inter-Sorority Council scholarship trophy given to the sorority with the highest overall grade point average.

Committees planning for the event include invitations, headed by Miss Spering, decorations by Priscilla Popin and Betty Rice and set-up handled by Margaret Krelte.

The supper, in keeping with the Oriental theme, will consist of Chinese food and fortune cookies. Working on this aspect of the affair are two committees, with serving conducted by Phi Beta Rho sorority with Marlene Farley as head, and the food being handled by Nancy Brooks.

The inauguration of the new presidents for the three women's organizations at the college will also take place.

This semester's AWS president, Jan Doudlet, will relinquish her post to her successor, Kathy Hollack will also pass on her title of ISC president to the woman selected as her successor and the president of the Recreation Association will also step down to make room for the new leader.

The final item on the evening's agenda will be a special showing of Grant Avenue fashions. Oriental flavored dances will supply the entertainment.

AWS board members promise a successful Fling and hope that all women students here will attend.

Pianist Jones To Appear In Recital Here Tomorrow

After recently returning from a successful concert tour in Europe, pianist William Corbett Jones will give a recital here tomorrow during College Hour in the theater, Meyer Cahn, music instructor, said today.

The program will consist of two sonatas by Scarlatti, one in G major and the other in G minor; two Chopin pieces, Impromptu F sharp and Polonaise A flat, and Kabalevsky's Sonata No. 3.

Although born in Manila, Jones now makes his home in San Francisco and is presently one of the faculty at the Conservatory of Music.

For three years he has been the recipient of the coveted Alfred Hertz Memorial scholarship in music at the University of California.

Jones has appeared five times as soloist with the San Francisco Symphony as well as in concerts throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. During the 1962-63 season he intends to return to Europe, according to his manager, Mariedi Anders.

Council Dinner Schedules Service Award Presentation

Presentation of two Outstanding Service awards and the installation of the newly elected Associated Student President and Vice President will highlight the Student Council dinner to be held at 6 p.m. next Tuesday in Smith Hall, Gary Wilkening, AS president, stated recently.

Previous to the dinner, members of the Student Council and cabinet hold a conference to determine the recipients of the service awards.

The purpose of the award is to credit one student and one faculty member who contribute outstanding service to the college.

The qualification involved is that no candidates may hold any elective office here. Other awards, in the form of Ram's head pins and guards, are given to council and cabinet members in accordance with the length of time they served in office.

Attending the event will be members of the faculty who have willingly given their time and service to the college, past and present council and cabinet members, and the presidents and vice presidents of both San Mateo and Foothill colleges.

The menu, prepared by the hotel and restaurant department, was revealed by AS Vice President Kathy Henderson. It consists of shrimp cocktails, roast sirloin of beef with sauce, baked potatoes and green vegetables, coffee, rolls and orange surprise will

(Continued on Page 3, Column 2)

Tomorrow Is Last Chance To Obtain Leave Of Absence

The final date to file leaves of absences is tomorrow, January 5, Mary Jane Leonard, college registar, announced last week.

A student who plans to take such a leave should request his counselor for an interview. If his leave is approved, a student must then obtain the necessary signatures and file his petition with the registrar.

The most frequent reason for taking leaves is classified as personal or financial, according to Miss Leonard. Rarely, if ever, are poor grades given for a reason.

The registrar expressed regret that students must take leaves, because their withdrawal creates both a time and financial waste for the college.

Century Of US Progress Subject Of C-Hour Film

Our Pioneering Heritage will be shown during College Hour tomorrow in S-136. The film shows exhibits from the Smithsonian Institute that portray the progress and development of the United States during the past 100 years.

The forthcoming attraction on January 12 will be America's Automobile Age. It traces the history of the automobile from the early beginnings up to the present time, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor, explained.

The Guardsman
Official Weekly Publication of The Associated Students of City College of San Francisco
Election Edition
VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1962 NUMBER 11

Voters Rush Polls!

DAN COLLINS, unopposed for the position of Associated Student President for spring, is automatically elected to the presidency.

Dan Collins, Sue Murphy Unopposed For Top Offices

By Kevin Curtis

The polls are open!

Voting for next semester's Associated Student officers and the 14 Student Council seats began at 8 a.m. this morning and will close at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Voting machines are situated at the silver pole in Science Hall, the cafeteria, the entrance to the library and by the arts building.

Two significant developments mark the election. They are the emerging of a new party on campus and the uncontested races for the offices of AS President and Vice President, thus automatically making Dan Collins and Suzanne Murphy AS President and Vice President, respectively.

Emergence of a new party occurred when the United Students' Party dissolved following its convention. Established in the spring of 1959 as a result of the merger of the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Councils' parties, the USP was forced to disband because of lack of qualified candidates and the absence of internal organization.

In lieu of the USP is the Organized Independent Party. Composed largely of aspirants from the several groups, the OIP is offering the minimum three candidates for the six major offices required of a party to be formed.

However, the contests for AS President and Vice President have only one candidate, who are both members of the Students' Representative Party, the OIP's competitor.

The two candidates running for Associated Men Student President are Ed Pawlus (SRP) and Fred Cherniss (OIP). Jackie Rommel (SRP) is unopposed for the office of Associated Women Student President.

Aspiring for Sophomore Class Presidency are Bob Andersen (SRP) and Bob Rauh (OIP), while the office of Freshman Class President is sought by Vince Contreras (SRP) and Imogene Walker (OIP).

Seven of the following nine candidates will be elected to the Sophomore seats on Student Council. They are Pam Chandler (SRP), Maureen Farley (OIP), Gail Margolin (SRP), Bill May (SRP), Greg Monk (SRP), Dave Otey (SRP), Herm Pearson (OIP), Andy Shamiyeh (SRP), and Otto Van Duyn (SRP).

For the Freshman seats on council there are also nine candidates. They are Dianne Perrine (SRP), Marcia Devlin (SRP), Terry Foulkes (OIP), Judy Gerstle (SRP), Eli Kuala (SRP), Charles Miller (SRP), Kris Peterson (OIP), John Thollen (SRP) and Jim Fuller (OIP).

Three propositions also appear on the ballot.

Proposition A concerns the changing of the qualifications for the offices of AS President, Vice President, AMS and AWS Presidents, Freshman President, Recording Secretary and Yell Leader.

Proposition B resolves that no student of the Associated Students shall hold more than one position (appointed or elected) in student government unless approved by Student Council.

Proposition C would approve power by the Student Council to dismiss the AS President by a three-fourths vote of the entire council with the consent of the faculty adviser and the dean of student activities.

AS cardholders are the only students eligible to vote. This semester they total a record 3000, and it is hoped that the past average of 25 per cent turnout will be greatly improved in this election.

Results of the voting will be tabulated immediately and may be announced at the Associated Women Student Feminine Fling tomorrow night in Smith Hall, according to Ed Ayalin, election commissioner.

Exhibits located in the display cases of Science Hall and the library contain the candidate's pictures and the platforms of the parties.

Party Leaders Address Students

SRP . . .

The Students' Representative Party advocates the building of the spirit of unity within the Associated Students and the belief in making each student an active participant in student affairs.

An important procedure in promoting this program is to illustrate to incoming freshmen the importance and advantages of entering student activities and present such opportunities to them.

The SRP represents all the students. Its candidates come from 15 different organizations, and, in addition, four are not members of any campus organization. This is evident of SRP being truly democratic and the spokesman of the student body.

Conscientious and industrious, the SRP candidates are well experienced with the student government. Well chosen by the representatives of the campus organizations, they will do their utmost in providing the students with the proper representation.—Dan Collins.

OIP . . .

The Organized Independents' Party was formed when a number of people on campus was made aware of the undemocratic politics that are being played at this college. Not only are the politics undemocratic, but they are detrimental to the Associated Students.

The individuals who joined together under the OIP banner are both mature and sincere people who want very much, with your vote, to represent the Associated Students and are pledged to honesty and hard work.

As founder of the OIP, and after gaining experience in the student government as chairman of the Council of Organizations and vice president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, I have planned an orientation smoker for all incoming male freshmen in order to acquaint these students with the facilities offered here in such varied fields as athletics, politics, fraternities and personal health.—Fred Cherniss.

Ex-Student Back As Technician

Radio-TV Gains CBS Engineer

EARPHONES and a mike characterize Fred Muller's "uniform" as the new radio and TV director.—Guardsman photo by Bill Bargagliotti.

The task of radio-television technical director here is a busy and sometimes hectic one as it is presently experienced by Fred Muller, a newcomer to the radio-TV staff this semester.

No stranger to this field of endeavor, Muller came here directly from a job as broadcast engineer at Columbia Broadcasting System on the East Coast and in San Francisco. At CBS he worked in both radio and TV.

Born and reared in the city by the Golden Gate, he attended Samuel Gompers Trade School (now O'Connell) and Heald's Engineering College.

Muller started his career as a ham radio operator but admits that since it is so time consuming he can't continue it nowadays.

He also was employed at radio station KYA and KEAR (then the good music station) as a transmitting engineer since coming west again. He was also responsible in part for the installation of KTVU-TV network in the Bay Area.

He worked as a television engineer on two stations in Fresno before coming to the college.

Muller Starts Drama Telecast

During the early fifties Muller studied here as a special student in Bev Pasquelletti's motion picture workshop and shot film for the college's first educational shows.

His specific job now is to co-ordinate the technical operation of the closed circuit TV system. He also instructs students in the correct use of the cameras.

Having high regard for the college's radio-TV equipment, Muller stated that the system here is equal to any professional setup anywhere except that a different camera tube is used here.

Muller came here at the beginning of the semester and has since been responsible for the recent closed circuit showings from the drama department. He also works with Henry Leff, radio-TV instructor, in arranging the daily KCSF radio broadcasts.

Asked if his job was permanent here, he replied with a smile: "Today it is, but you never know what tomorrow will bring." He concluded by stating that he hoped to be around for quite a while, since he is keenly interested in both the college and its facilities, especially in the radio-TV department.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

Vol. 53, No. 11 THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1962 Page 2

1961 Makes Dubious Foundation For Building Sound New Year

WITH 1961 done and the new year taking root in its fourth day, optimists are generously making resolutions at the same time that pessimists are cautiously predicting "the" fatal year.

But before 1961 becomes completely hodgepodge and hazy like last Monday morning's headache, a quick survey of '61 can be a helpful guide to '62, that is, if we want to reach its halfway mark.

The key word in 1961 was Science and its role in the technological struggle between the U. S. and Soviet Union. Astronauts Shepard and Grissom and cosmonauts Gargarin and Titov ascended to the threshold of space while the resumption of nuclear testing plummeted the rest of humanity to the depths of barbarism. Science in conflict with Society.

With such an omnipresent force threatening the entire globe even the power of politics seemed diminutive. Diplomacy received its most severe setback with the death of Dag Hammarskjold. And at home the House will never be the same without Mr. Sam.

President Kennedy's New Frontier had before it a swamp to clear, not a forest. Although its domestic legislation met substantial success and the '60 recession was curbed, the cauldron of international trouble hot spots bubbled over.

A baseball record was tied by Roger Maris, but the game lost a legend, Ty Cobb. The cinema's grief at the passing of Gary Cooper was shared by all America. And, Ernest Hemingway? He'll always be here. The works speak for the man.

The Santa Maria was hijacked by modern day pirates and set the pace for more of the same with Cuban and American airliners.

My Fair Lady made a total of $18 million on Broadway and $5½ million in Hollywood, both all-time records. George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart both died.

Robert Frost's poem at the inaugural started the year solemnly, Hurricane Carla whipped it up in the middle, and Henry Miller's re-released Tropic ended the year with a battle between obsceinity and obscurity.

All in all, 1961 left much to be desired.

The Troika failed. Has the Trinity?

The Spectator

(Today's Spectator is by Dave Kleinberg)

Castle Continues Rash Of Shockers And Gimmicks With Sardonicus

WILLIAM CASTLE, the movie producer who tries to find the way to the movie-goer's heart through the shocker, brought his latest gimmick to town last month—Mr. Sardonicus.

The crudely produced picture reaches its peak when a malevolent Baron Sardonicus, played uncomfortably by Roland Lewis, is subject to what Castle calls a punishment poll. The audience participates by determining the star's fate with an arrow that is pointed one way for condemnation, the other for mercy.

But, unlike the Castle gimmicks of the past, the audience is actually left out. Instead of two endings as one might expect, just one is offered—and it is the same each performance.

Leader of Hollywood's bunco artists, and flattered when told so, Castles' first weirdo was Macabre, released in 1958.

Insurance policies against death from fright were handed to each patron. When Castle approached Lloyds of London to insure his stunt, they were somewhat baffled by his request. They had no figures to go on.

Finally Lloyds of London learned that eight persons die each year at motion pictures, even if the programs may be no more terrifying than Mickey Mouse.

In 1959 Castle released House On Haunted Hill, produced in San Francisco. He used the device which projected a plastic skeleton over the audience.

The Tingler in 1960 employed Percepto, a stunt that caused theater seats to shudder and shiver. In black and white film, another first was created when red fluid ran from both victims and water taps.

Later in 1960 he branded Emergo in the 13 Ghosts. The audience was supplied with a card. If you looked through the upper panel of red you saw ghosts on the screen; if you looked through its lower panel of blue, the phantoms become invisible.

Castle ordered 20 million ghost viewers at the approximate cost of $250,000. The idea, he explained, came from a type of comic book he often saw as a kid which required two-colored glasses to read. Matching the colors on the film so that the illusion would work was extremely difficult, he said.

The four most important elements in a picture, the tall man with a somewhat pointed head and jutting, determined jaw said, are subject, title, production and star—in that order.

The real horror element of Castle's films is that, while America tries to show nations its good system, his films have been dubbed in five different languages to be shown around the world.

Foresight

Adult Television Not For College Students

By John Muller

NIGHT OWLS sleepily greeted the new year in two indistinguishable groups last Monday: those who got burned with bad marks because they found it necessary to fool with midnight oil and those who watched "adult" television.

One requirement for watching adult programs this season is, namely, to be an adult, and an insomniac adult at that since a good many of the programs which are aimed at an audience with a mentality above that of a 12-year-old commence at 10 or even later in the night.

To quote a few examples, Sing Along With Mitch, Naked City, Ben Casey and Alcoa Presents are all post-10 p.m. programs, not to mention PM East . . . PM West or channel 7's late show with Jezebel Hossenfef presenting this month's oldies but goodies.

It seems as though early evening TV has nothing more to offer than moronic programs like Alvin and the Squirrels, Mother Knows Best, The Price Ain't (it's in the dictionary now) Right and big (that he is), bad (that he is, too) John Midnight (it's a cryin' shame that he isn't scheduled at midnight).

To complete the list of imbecile shows would be unbearable.

The old saying that small things amuse small minds was never truer than when applied to early evening TV with the "small mind" level of too many of the shows.

This situation delights many viewers. It means that if they stay up late to watch a program which won't insult their intelligence, they'll have a full six or seven hours of sleep, if they're lucky, before arising seemingly with the chickens to rush to work or to make an eight o'clock class.

And that's not mentioning those students who have that one and only seven o'clock communication class.

Two suggestions present themselves. Students with foresight will take an afternoon or early evening nap after finishing their studies and thereby spare themselves the bulk of the junk shows.

Or, if they possess a rebellious strain they may follow what Karl Marx, once proclaimed, "workers arise" (students, too) and petition the Federal Communications Commission to make those d...n networks reprogram their programming.

Humbug!

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, Room 304, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

● Holidays Ruined

Editor, The Guardsman:

I think this idea of letting the students out one week earlier for the Christmas holidays is a considerate move for the working students, but is it really necessary?

As I understand, City College is just about the only institution in Northern California that has this awkward, irregular holiday schedule. I'm sure that many students from other colleges, universities and high schools work during Christmas, too.

If they've been able to get by without being let out one week earlier, why can't we? A lot of studenta in this college work regularly during school time besides carrying a decent amount of units, and they've been doing all right. Now, would that one week make a lot of difference to them if they were let out or not?

Getting back to school right in the middle of the holiday season really ruins the holiday spirit and atmosphere just when they are at their peak. Yet, what really makes everything worse is when the instructors thrive on giving out bundles of assignments for the two-week vacation and schedule examinations immediately after Christmas.

Take me, for example. I had over 300 pages to read for a course, and awaiting on December 27 was a major examination in that particular course. Also due is a long report in another course that has cost me more than 30 hours during the two-week vacation. And there were other assignments, too.

I had a full-time two-week job available but declined it because I didn't want to flunk the examination or turn in a lousy report. It has an important bearing on my final grade.

I feel that a little studying during the holidays is good for the students, but let's not overdo it! After all, the occasion is Christmas (and New Year?), a time for parties, social gatherings, gift shoppings and work, but not overloaded "book digging."

I suggest that the college restore the regular Christmas-New Year holiday schedule instead of chopping it up into two. I also suggest that the instructors give their tests or examinations BEFORE the holidays if they want to see better performance from the students for an examination after a two-week layoff won't draw out the best from them.

Let's have a decent Christmas vacation, please!

—A student who had his holidays spoiled.

During the first day the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge was opened more persons traveled across on foot than traveled by automobile.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieve
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Ulmer, Jerry Littrell, Dave Kleinberg, Herman Kligerman.

Reporters: Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu.

Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McConthe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Estrellita Zamora.

Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook, Bill Bargagliotti, George Pitkin, Christopher Utter, Herb Greene.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

50's A Crowd

P&H Society Finds Bigger Home In B-4

Depending on the attendance anticipated and the program planned, members of geology's Pick and Hammer Society here either meet at their faculty sponsor's home or at a designated place on campus each month.

Reminiscing, George Baffico, geology instructor, recalls that at past get-togethers of the society some 35 to 50 studetns gathered in his living room. Undoubtedly this caused some inconvenience to the family concerned.

Recently the group received permission to use bungalow 4, in addition to the regular classrooms, for meetings and other functions. This does not eliminate entirely the prospect of going back to Baffico's home, though. All it does it offer a place to congregate on campus.

In existence ever since the college first opened its doors, the Pick and Hammer Society welcomes all students—not just geology majors.

As Baffico himself "admits," former society members have been successful in many fields, with representation ranging from an assistant district attorney in San Francisco to a forest ranger high in the mountains. Of course, several have gone into the geology field itself...

Guest speakers and assorted programs of interest have been booked for future club meetings, and geologists from other colleges are also scheduled for forthcoming functions.

Baffico first became interested in the society when he was a student here in the 1940's. He has been sponsor for the past 14 years.

He also proudly comments that his son and two daughters are presently enrolled at the college.

Broke?

Airport Offers Budget-Minded Entertainment

Without great ado, most students will admit that their financial situation leaves much to be desired. This predicament, however, need not sentence an individual to four years devoid of entertainment.

Indeed, there are many examples of cost-free amusement in the Bay Region, one of which is the San Francisco International Airport.

All common airborne vehicles whiz up, down and around this area of sky creating a confusion of intense sound that is outdone only by the 50 megaton bomb as it explodes in midair.

The huge four - story building, equipped with many sundry facilites to divert the attention of waiting passengers, has viewing decks which are provided for the enthralled observer of 20th century miracles.

From one of these convenient posts one sees the sleek, streamlined jet resting impatiently below while passengers file into its depths. The motors begin to hum and then to roar but the jet remains motionless, seemingly under great stress as it fights to control a tremendous surging power.

The plane starts to move gradually in a fury of sound, and rolls slowly to the distant end of the runway.

Compared to its graceful neighbor, the jet, a helicoptor ascends like a six-legged hug climbing a wall. Its stubby bulk, topped by a three-cornered crown which blends into a single blur when in motion, commutes every hour from San Francisco to Oakland.

Small conventional single-engine aircraft also make an appearance, although it is difficult to distinguish them from the multitude of sea gulls that arrive and depart from this cosmopolitan center of activity.

Thus, without spending a single cent, a student can marvel at modern miracles and indulge himself in dreams of faraway places.

Counterpoint

Have Column—Will Travel! —But Where?

By Dick Dragavon

FOR A WRITER to join the ranks of San Francisco columnists as an Esteemed Colleague it is imperative that he write about his vacation.

Thus when the Christmas holidays rolled around, I commenced a search for a vacation spot which had not previously been covered in any of the local journals.

Hieing myself to a travel agency downtown, I explained my quest to a gentleman behind the desk.

"The European jet tour was taken by my Esteemed Colleague, Herb." I said, "Esteemed Colleague Art made the handyman's home scene while Esteemed Colleague Dick batted off to Transylvania."

"Well," he began thumbing through folders, "Africa is pretty much untouched . . ."

"Africa is out!" I stated firmly, "I saw a postcard which one of the Peace Corps girls had managed to get published. It described things pretty well. The place is loaded with writers."

I thought he was beginning to see the uniqueness of my problem because he muttered something about a trip to the moon.

Before I could ask about the accommodations, however, he glanced up at me suspiciously and inquired, "How much did you say you wished to spend?"

When I explained that I thought the publicity he would gain would be well worth the fare, he made another suggestion on where I could go.

I was certain that he couldn't be serious, in spite of the set of his face, for I thought that the spot he named must certainly be jammed with columnists.

It seemed that the agent was beginning to tire of me for he said, "I only have one thing to say to you. You should go to work."

"Eureka!" I exclaimed, "That's it! Certainly that is the last place where I would find any Esteemed Colleagues!"

On thinking it over, though, I realized that I wouldn't try it either, for the very name seemed to have an unpleasant ring to it.

I mulled the puzzle over in my mind on my way home and suddenly decided on the spot where I ultimately spent my vacation.

Fortunately, since returning, I lost my notes from which I had planned, to write a descriptive column.

For I spent Christmas In vibrant, exotic Alameda.

Santa Claus Was Here

Cable Short Puts Gymnasiums In Freeze, Cancels Calisthenics

By Jerry Littrell

Any reports or rumors that have been circulating around the college stating that men's and women's gymnasiums are being converted into cold storage plants should be regarded as entirely untrue and without any factual basis — ALMOST!

However, it is true that the gymnasium heating systems were out of operation for four weeks. The boilers were off also, so there was no hot water for the shower rooms and most of the lights above the gymnasium floors left everyone in the dark.

All this discomfiture and trouble evolved from the fact that the underground electrical cables, which date back to the year when construction started here in 1937, rotted away and shorted out one of the main lines and resulted in the loss of power.

This sudden cut-off caused the indoor temperature to drop to an icebox level, approximately 34 degrees, and it also caused the unexcused cut rate to rise to an all-time high.

Because of the prevailing situation the only discernible activity in either gymnasium was the hourly movement of the bundled-up, rosy-cheeked physical education instructors who ventured out to the unprecedented coolness of the locker rooms to call the roll of the few hardy souls who dared to come there.

After the token roll call each class was readily dismissed and the instructors migrated back into the office areas, where they huddled around the portable heater which gave off a faint indication of heat.

One of the biggest worries was that the upcoming Big Eight basketball contests would have to be rescheduled, so an emergency call went to proper city officials.

Fingers were kept crossed as time grew shorter and shorter and temperature went lower and lower. Fullerton College was to make an all-day trip to the Bay Area to play the Rams and there was no way to reach them at the last minute.

Finally, exactly three weeks and one day after the failure, power again surged into the frigid areas and everything returned somewhat to normal.

The job was completed in the nick of time, just 45 minutes before the scheduled game between Fullerton and San Francisco.

Unfortunately, the return of the heat failed to ignite the cagers as they lost their game in a "heated" contest, 46-45.

Capping Ceremony Closes Semester For Dental Coeds

A total of 28 women students from the dental assisting classes will receive their caps at 8 p.m., Thursday, January 11, in the campus theater, according to Ruth P. Inskipp, dental assisting instructor here.

Guest speaker at this candlelight ceremony will be Dr. Paul Jacobson, president of the Dental Society in San Francisco. The topic of his speech will be Character In The Dental Office. Mrs. Inskipp will introduce Dr. Jacobson.

Sherri Karp, a student attending the college, will start the 14th semi-annual capping ceremony with Star Spangled Banner and end the ceremony with May The Good Lord Bless And Keep You. The accompanist will be William Richardson, counsellor here.

Presentation of caps will be by Evelyn L. Seekatz, certified dental assistant who is also an instructor here. Diane Christoffersen, CDA and also an instructor here, will recite the dental assistants' pledge, followed by a response by Valerie Crawford, a student who will receive a cap.

Frank C. Szehner, Jr., certified dental technician and also an instructor here, will give the congratulatory speech. A reception will follow the ceremony which will be served by the second semester students. Nine Big Sisters will be present to help the students receiving caps.

Students receiving caps are as follows: Andra Auz, Georgiana Baffico, Joan Bricca, Michele Cicerone, Valerie Crawford, Janus Crociani, Linda Hines, Patricia Hogan, Diana Hopper, Joyce Jenkins, Geraldine Karlo, Sheila Kobus, Susan Lee, Donna Leong.

Linda Magnani, Anne Melanephy, Judith Naruo, Claudia Parodi, Marilyn Pietz, Jackie Rommel, Mary Schroer, Carole Stahl, Gail Steffen, Elaine Stuart, Carol Unruh, Eunice Wallgora, Doni Wingate and Frances Wonacott.

The nine Big Sisters are Kathy Dunn, Yasuko Ekusa, Jeanette Fambrini, Carolee Fromm, Julia Loule, Sharon Sadler, Patricia Steffen, Lillian Stell and Judith White.

Council Dinner Tuesday

(Continued from Page 1)

finish the menu as dessert.

James Billwiller of the English department is to be the speaker of the evening, and vocal entertainment will be presented by Mrs. Robert Cartwright.

Grover Kliemmer, a physical education instruction here, was the featured speaker at last semester's cabinet dinner. He spoke on the topic of student government in Northern California junior colleges.

Hopkins Site Of Soph Ball

Penny-A-Vote To Determine Royal Couple

APPROVING FINAL PLANS for the coming Soph Ball at the Mark Hopkins are Sophomore President Dan Collins and Vice President Kathy Mansfield (both seated). Standing are Jackie Rommel, dance committee chairman; Joe Lencioni, activities chairman, and Lollie Ersepke, secretary.

Voting for a Sophomore king and queen, to reign over the class semiannual ball at the Mark Hopkins Hotel on Friday, January 12, begins next Monday and will conclude the night of the dance, said President Dan Collins.

Competition will once again be conducted by the traditional penny-a-vote method. Each aspirant will have a container placed either at the silver pole in Science Hall or in Smith Hall. The candidates receiving the most pennies will be declared the winners.

Collins emphasized that students should donate to the campaign since all money collected will go directly into the Sophomore Class scholarship fund.

The final results of the voting will be announced during special intermission ceremonies at the ball. Trophies donated by Beta Tau fraternity and Theta Tau sorority will be inscribed with the winners' names and presented to them. This award will be displayed at the college.

The royal couple will receive token trophies contributed by representatives of the Sophomore Class to keep.

At the dance a plaque will be awarded to the sophomore with the highest grade point average.

The setting for the awards will be encased in the ball's theme, Winter Rhapsody, and in the music of Ray Hackett's orchestra. The Peacock Court and Room of the Dons in the Mark Hopkins Hotel will host the 9 p.m. to 12 midnight affair.

Additional entertainment will be provided by the Tailcymen, a group who performed here at the college during the Christmas rally.

Two rooms were reserved this semester to accommodate the 500 bid sellout of past Sophomore Balls, Collins said.

Members of the Sophomore Class will have priority in receiving bids Monday and Tuesday of next week. After that time, invitations may be secured by any Associated Student until the limited supply is exhausted.

Distribution point for the bids will be the silver pole in Science Hall between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

When securing their bid, students must present their current AS card and registration card, Collins emphasized.

Committees involved in the planning are the king and queen committee, bids committee and the floor committee. When asked what responsibility the floor committee had, Collins replied that it was a committee of strong men to help keep the program moving.

Club Cavalcade: Fashions, Movie, Luau Top Coming C-Hour Programs

DESPITE New Year's resolutions to study harder for final grades, students are finding time to attend the college's club activities.

A discussion of the annual luau will be the topic of the Hawaiian Club meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-258. Members of the club and all interested visitors are invited.

A men's fashion show, planned and prepared by the Merchandising Club, will be held during College Hour January 12. The theme, Man Of '62, will be carried out by 14 men who are competing for the title of Man Of '62. The winner will receive a complete wardrobe from Cable Car Clothiers.

Our Pioneering Heritage will be shown by the audio - visual department this Friday during College Hour in S-136. Those students wishing to see the movie are invited to attend.

The Christian Science Organization will hold its meeting at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow in Third Church of Christ Scientist, 1250 Haight street. This organization, which holds its meetings on the first and third Thursdays of every month, extends an invitation to all interested students, faculty, alumni and friends to attend.

Further information is available from club sponsor, Nina Tucker, of the hotel and restaurant department.

There was such an interest in Counselor Howard Schoon's lecture on Marriage Relations that he will again speak January 12 during College Hour to students here in a talk sponsored by the Collegiate Christian Fellowship.

The newly initiated pledges of Theta Tau received their pins recently at a formal pinning ceremony in the home of sponsor Vivian Ward. The ceremony preceded a pledge dinner held at the Hotel Claremont in Oakland, which was given by the sisters for the pledges and their dates. Marilyn Butler, chairman of the affair, was assisted by Kathy Hallock, ISC president.

St. Francis Hotel Hosts H&R Students January 18

Operation St. Francis, an annual affair which 27 fourth semester and a few top third semester students at this college attend, will be held Thursday, January 18, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the St. Francis Hotel.

The activity will give hotel and restaurant students some idea of the complex duties of the different positions in the hotel's personnel.

Christmas Drive Nets $250, Aids 10 Families

Despite the fact that the annual Christmas drive fell $550 short of its intended goal, George Woo, president of Club Activities Board, was happy to report that ten needy families did receive large grocery orders.

The families, selected by consultation with the Red Cross, churches, synagogues, other organizations and private information, were given $3.75 in grocery tickets for each child.

The final tabulation showed the drive collected $255, short of the hoped-for goal of $800. Last year's drive netted $300. The majority of the money was amassed by the campus organizations who carried cans around the campus for a week.

A total of $40 to $50 was collected from the sale of donated cakes. Woo stated that all the pastries were sold.

Awards Highlight RA Social, January 12

Presentation of awards to deserving students who have participated in coeducational activities highlight the Recreation Association Social, planned for January 12 from 7 to 10 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Shields will be presented to students with one semester of participation in the RA, and blocks will be presented for second semester participation in an activity of the student's choice. RA members of third and fourth semester status will be presented with stars.

Managers of each coeducational activity will receive pins, to acknowledge their extra work in the activity.

This week will begin the election of officers of the RA for next semester. Concluding the elections will be the social and dancing.

The cause of today's high traffic toll has been analyzed as follows: The car of tomorrow—on the highway of yesterday—driven by the man of today.

Council To Cite Faculty, Student Aid With Award

By Bob Hacker

Twelve nominations for an award to be presented to the student and faculty member "who has contributed most to the Associated Students and the student government while receiving the least recognition," were made during last week's meeting of Student Council.

Students nominated this semester are Maureen Farley, Kathy Mansfield, Sandy Shaw, Laura Thurlwell and Bob Hacker.

Faculty members nominated are Lee Dolson, social science instructor; Meyer Cahn, music instructor; Jack Gaddy, head of the men's physical education department; Henry Leff, radio and television instructor; Betty Lundgren, library staff member; Irene Mensing, library staff member, and John Ross, social science instructor.

The question of whether KCSF would go off the air was settled with a full report by Stan Burford, vice president of the KCSF Broadcasters Club, which was filed with Gary Wilkening, Associated Student president.

A threat to that effect had been voiced following a cut in the KCSF budget. This threat was later withdrawn.

Jerry McCarthy, Campus Police chief, stated that the number of parking violations up to this time is about 1800. He expects the number to increase by the end of the semester.

Marine Officers To Recruit Here Wednesday

Opportunities for officer commissions in the United States Marine Corps will be outlined to interested students here next Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Shack, bungalows 3 and 4.

Conducting the interviews will be Captain John Parchen and Captain R. D. Ross of the Marine Corps. Both aviation and line officer programs will be explained.

In an official press release sent here the fact is brought out that training is conducted during the summer at two six-week instruction periods, and no candidate will be commissioned until he has been graduated from college.

AMS Smoker To Stage Finals Of Cage, Glove Matches In Men's Gymnasium Tonight

Bringing the fall sports activities to an exciting conclusion, the semiannual Associated Men Student smoker will feature the championship intramural basketball game, nine boxing matches, and entertainment at 7 o'clock tonight at the men's gymnasium.

Admission is free for Associated Students and 50 cents otherwise.

Kicking off the program will be the basketball title contest which pits the high scoring Alpha Phi Epsilon, undefeated leader of the Inter-Fraternity Council League, against the powerful Untouchables, winners of the Club Activities Board & Independent League and winner of last semester's intramural crown.

The Alpha five, who finished second in last semester's playoff game, are paced by Eli Horn and John Giles, while the Untouchables are led by Harbie Briscoe, Bob Soper, Vinie Courtney and Dave Towner.

A team trophy will be awarded to the winning squad after the game, and members of each team will receive medals, according to Paul Snowberg, AMS president.

Following the basketball tilt, championship boxing matches will feature nine pairs of boxers who, under the guidance of boxing coach Roy Diederichsen, have fought their way to the finals. Each represents his individual class, ranging from 126 pounds to heavyweight.

Starting the action will be the 126-pound division that schedules Robert Arevalo against Tony Olivera, while Gary Marble and Gary Rodriquez will battle for the 135-pound title.

Highlighting the third round of action will be Dennis Hoffman and Charles Brown for the 139-pound division, while Bill Walsh and Joe Smolen will square off for the 145-pound match.

Rich Callister and Roldin Randall will provide the fifth round action at the 152-pound scale while the 162-pound division bout will pit Mike Calderwood against Ralph Pappas.

Answering the bell for the seventh and eighth fight will be Harold Rosowski, Ted Sieder and Garry Bartolotti, William Pane, respectively, for the 169 and 178-pound titles.

The last but not least round of action will be the featured heavyweight championship fight between Chuck Cosee and Pete Downing.

Three rounds are scheduled for each bout at 1½ minutes per round, and the participants will wear headgear and use the 14-ounce gloves.

Gold and silver medals will be awarded to the winners and runners-up, while special trophies will be given to the outstanding boxer and the "fightingest fighter."

All-American . . .

. . . Jim Baffico

Outstanding Play Earns Jim Baffico All-American Spot

As a tribute to his outstanding play throughout the football season, burly Ram tackle Jim Baffico was honored with a berth on the junior college All-American team named by the Williamson Rating System in Houston, Texas.

Williamson listed three teams on an equal basis, and Baffico, who earned All-Big Eight Conference laurels, was the sole representative from the Northern California league.

The aggressive 6-2, 245-pound sophomore, cocaptain of a Ram club which swept to an 8-2 mark including a victory in the Lettuce Bowl, thus becomes the college's first All-American since guard Willie Hudson in 1955.

Prior to Hudson no Ram had attained such high honors since the heralded duo of Ollie Matson and Burl Toler made the team in 1948.

Other Rams to be honored this year include explosive fullback Tom Piggee and guard Alex Darnes, who received honorable mention.

Excellent blocking and hard tackling on the part of Baffico and his mates helped the Rams pile up 1991 yards rushing while holding the opposition to 1176 yards on the ground during the 1961 campaign.

Baffico, a versatile athlete who is also noted for his golfing ability, got off many booming punts for the gridders during the season, but was at his best when his huge number 75 could be seen breaking through the line to throw an enemy ball-carrier for a loss.

Another junior college service, the Grid-Wire in Pasadena, California, released final ratings which placed this college 20th nationally. San Mateo, which went unbeaten in Big Eight play and won the Prune Bowl contest, was awarded the fourth spot.

Death Valley covers an area of 1,865,538.42 acres.

Netters Look To Siska To Absorb Graduation Loss

The addition of Bob Siska, one of the top tennis players ever to enroll here, is expected to compensate more than enough for the loss of Jack Bracken and Paul Barth, last year's number one and two men.

The 18-year-old Siska, who is rated nationally in the men's singles and has graduated from the United States Junior Davis Cup team, enrolled here after competing back east in the Forest Hill tournament.

The former Lincoln graduate was only 16 when he got through two rounds of the National Men's Singles and then faced Rod Laver, Australian Davis Cupper. It took the Aussie four sets to win.

Joining Siska is Rich Murray, a former Lincoln graduate and last year's number three man. Veterans Bob Silverstein from Washington and Tom Strauss from Lowell alternated as sixth and seventh men.

The incoming freshmen expected to help are Rich Anderson, the number two man at Lincoln High; John Kearns, number one at Washington High, and Paul Barowsky from Balboa High.

Coach Roy Diederichsen, who guided the Rams to a deadlock for second place last year, announced the first annual alumni-student tennis tournament.

The first one, to be held early in February, will bring together graduated Nick Schart '57, Bill Wright, Fred Watters '58, Fred Botsford '59 and Jack Hymns, an AAA champ in '51.

Ram Cagers End Pre-Season Play In Modesto Tournament

By Jerry Littrell

Slowly molding itself into a balanced basketball team, Coach Sid Phelan's charges head for the Modesto tournament today to battle highly rated Cerritos in the first round of the three-day tournament.

Posting a mediocre 4-5 preseason practice record, the hoopsters look forward to this 16-team tournament as their big chance to earn starting berths.

In last week's action the Rams were edged by Fullerton 46-45 Wednesday as the winner's classy forward Bill Morris scored 27 points to far outdistance the rest of the scorers.

However, the Rams rebounded Friday on the home court with a come-from-behind 61-58 win over Chaffee. Bob Mulcreavy scored 15 points and Brad Duggan 10, but the big performance was by highly rated 6-7 center Elton McGriff, who tallied 9 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

With the practice schedule rapidly drawing to a close and the tough Big Eight play in the not-to-distant future, Phelan is still as yet undecided as to his starting five.

About the only position that is definite at this time is the center spot, which will be held down by 6-4½ Charles Currington.

At guard, Phelan can choose from a wealth of talent headed by All-City guard Gene Batiste, returning veteran Dave Roberts, Bill Nocetti, Dewitt Demmer, John Neal, Everett "Goose" Adams and Dub Johnson.

Duggan, team leader in scoring and rebounds, along with Randy Simms, Mulcreavy and Vince Courtney, give Phelan a strong attack at the forward spot.

Simms has been handicapped up to now by a conflicting work schedule and has been unable to attend practices or games regularly. His full-time return to the squad should help in the rebounding department.

Usually dependable from the floor, Mulcreavy has just now returned to form after a strength-draining flu attack.

In their first preseason encounter the hoopsters were soundly trounced by the Stanford Frosh team, 70-47. Currington scored 12 points for the team high score.

A noticeably weak USF Frosh team gave the Rams their first taste of victory as the Red and White won 59-47. Currington again had high point honors by adding another 12 points to his credit.

San Jose State Frosh drubbed the Rams to the tune of 60-39 as Phelan's men lost control of both the boards and the ball during a disheartening second half. At halftime they were trailing by only three points, but they were severely dropped during the third and fourth quarters.

Starting to function together as a team the basketball squad sped by a highly rated San Jose City College team 52-45 as Duggan plunked in 17 points.

The UC Frosh team overpowered the locals 62-51. The deciding factor in the game, as it has been throughout the season, was the lack of strength on the boards. Currington again dropped in 12 points for high point honors.

Playing slowly and without any sort of organization, the Rams listlessly gave away a contest to the Santa Clara Frosh 64-46. High point man was Duggan with nine points.

Giving their most promising and effective attack of the year the Red and White defeated Long Beach City College in an overtime period 49-46.

Duggan led the game and culminated a personal 17-point 14-rebound evening by dropping in two free throws with one minute left in the overtime period to give the Rams the three-point lead.

An overall rating and evaluation of the team shows a desperate need for board strength and a better shooting average on the free throw line. So far the Rams have lost a possible 72 points in seven games by missed free throws.

Phelan expects the rebounding strength to improve as the season progresses and a starting five is decided upon. "With control of the boards and consistent hustle on the team we have a good chance in this year's competition," the hopeful mentor said.

Thunderbirds Choice To Snag Big 8 Championship Again

By Dave Kleinberg

With the Big Eight Conference cage season about to begin, Oakland City College, despite the complete loss of last year's starting championship team, is loaded again.

The Thunderbirds, who land most of their talent from the perennial prep champion McClymonds, are expected to receive their stiffest competition from San Mateo, while the Rams must come a long way, lacking experience and height. Stockton could be the surprise.

Here is a short rundown on each team's prospects:

OAKLAND

Coach Bill Rockwell, the victim of graduation, is picked to guide his T-Birds to their second straight title on the strength of his skyscraping newcomers. The only letterman he has is Mike Ferguson (6-2), who hasn't seen action in two seasons.

From McClymonds comes center Charlie Luster (6-4) and guard Ben White (5-9). While, an All-OAL guard and a starter for two years in the TOC, is expected to carry the team leadership.

Forward-center Shermont Banks (6-5) was an All-League prep at Mt. Carmel High where he was the leading scorer and rebounder. Rounding out the squad are forwards Jim Henry (6-5), Jim Wesley (6-2), Jerry Butler (6-2½), Roy Sipp (6-1) and guard Tom Dold.

SAN MATEO

Nine returning sophomores and presence of several promising first-year men have made the Bulldogs a strong contender after surviving a mediocre 16-12 record last season.

The returners are center Howie Sundberg (6-6), vastly improved since his prep days at Lowell High; forwards Ben Webster (6-3), Tom Barnett (6-0), Roger Dabney (6-4); guards Mike Zocchi (5-11), Rich Jefferies (5-10) and Bob White (5-9). Sundberg, Webster, Barnett, Zocci were starters last year.

The Bulldogs have four first-year men who go 6-5 or over. They are Bob O'Donnell (6-5½), Ted Winfield (6-5), Allan Wyndham (6-5) and Jim Adamson (6-5½). The best, however, could be Dennis France, little in comparison at 6-1 but Hillsdale High's Player of the Year. He has had a high scoring game of 41.

CONTRA COSTA

The Comets, with only two players reaching the 6-1 mark, are really going to suffer on the boards. In fact, if they didn't have LeRoy Walker, one of the best shooters around, they might even have trouble scoring.

In early season contests, the speedy newcomer has hit a high game of 31, and his 44 points in Foothill tournament contributed to the Comet cause.

Others expected to see action are Rich Lymons, the 6-1 center who has led the Comets in rebounding thus far; Jerry Shaw, a letterman, and Gail Whittey.

STOCKTON

Reports indicate that Stockton has its best club in 10 years, even though the Mustangs are keeping it pretty quiet. In the highly rated Bakersfield tournament the Mustangs, a cellar squad last year, placed third, losing only to Fresno.

Ted Watkins, who scored 21 points against Los Angeles Valley and 18 in a losing effort to Fresno, was voted to the All-Tournament team.

Boasting a collection of high scorers in Ron Stone, Andy Stoglin, Eddie Williams and Watkins, defending opponents will have problems if they attempt to stop any one individual.

MODESTO

The Pirates, another squad lacking the big men, have only veteran Gene Hart, 6-3. The other starters are Al Lockard, freshmen Ron Carey and Jerry Cobb. Substitute guard Ed Johnson hits well from the outside.

SANTA ROSA

The Bear Cubs are relatively inexperienced with only two men back, but they are two good ones. Forward Clint Bainbridge came off the bench to spark the Bear Cubs to several wins last year. Center John Paxton, who may be moved to forward to accommodate freshman Darryl Barbieri (6-5), figures high in the Cub rebounding department.

Other potential starters are forwards Joe Munoz (6-0) and Don Jacobson (6-3); guards Dick Dowd (5-11) and Dennis Ragar (6-0).

SACRAMENTO

The Panthers went through the first five games undefeated before they were downed by rugged Fresno City College 64-54, for their only loss thus far.

Bob Ferrel, a 6-3 forward, who usually hits in the double figures, is the Panthers' big shooter. Backing him at the starting positions are forward Dennis Nokelby, guards Mike Bowes and Dennis Kojima and center Bugs Walton.

Golfers Prep For Pre-Loop Meets

Golf will soon take the sport scene here with a six practice-match program, scheduled to begin shortly after the new semester opens, according to coach Grover Klemmer.

The linkers will face Alameda State, Hamilton Field, Diablo and compete in two matches with San Jose City College.

The team will consist of veterans George Benkic, Larry Sugimoto, both of Washington, and Bruce Hubley. An array of newcomers, including Dennis Drucker, Steve Whitman, Dave Egan and Jim Baffico, will also help the cause of the team.

Coach Klemmer invited all capable golfers to meet with him before the semester ends.

The team will participate in the Big Eight Conference meets beginning in early March.

Fencers Place Second In Inter-College Meet, Face SF State January 10

Fencers from San Francisco State College will meet City College's team here at 4 p.m. next Wednesday in the women's gymnasium, Frances Galloway of the women's physical education department, said today.

An intercollegiate fencing competition held on December 9 boasted 105 participants from colleges throughout the state. Colleges represented in the contest were the University of California, San Francisco State, Humboldt State College, San Jose State College, Napa Junior College, Santa Rosa Junior College and this college.

In the competition the City College men's team took second place and the women's team third place.

Spring Sports Program Opens Next Week

Signups for three of the major spring sports — baseball, track and swimming—will begin tomorrow and last through next Wednesday, January 17.

Although prospective athletes may sign up at any time, special meetings are going to be held on January 5 and January 12.

The swimming team will meet at 10 a.m. tomorrow in A-202. Baseball and track will meet during College Hour January 12 in C-260. Practice times will be announced.

One of the best track prospects is 19-year-old Alex Darnes. An all-around athlete, Darnes, who is an All-Conference football guard, has thrown the discus 167 feet, one of the best marks in the state. He was selected as the Rams' most valuable trackman.

On the diamond the Rams are expecting only two top-flight returnees.

Don Meroff, a graduate of Sacred Heart, played second base last year and hit .355, the team's third best mark.

Jim Carroll of Balboa was first string catcher and hit .200 for the year, and was one of the best defensive catchers in the league.

The Rams finished in a deadlock for third place as the Sacramento Panthers took the title.

In the swimming department Coach Roy Burkhead would probably welcome any help. Last year the Rams had what was undoubtedly their worst season in recent years.

They suffered an 83-17 dunking by the Oakland Thunderbirds. In the Big Eight Conference meet the Rams' John Holm, who had never before swum the 100-yard breast stroke, broke, the conference mark with a 1:07.5, 2.1 seconds under the old league record.

Cherniss Elected As SRP Takes Majority

A slim margin of eight votes marked the difference between victory and defeat last week when Fred Cherniss, Organized Independents' Party, captured the Associated Men Student Presidency from Ed Pawlus of the Students' Representative Party in AS elections here.

Dan Collins and Suzanne Murphy became next semester's AS President and Vice President automatically and received 510 and 462 votes of confidence, respectively.

Collins and Miss Murphy were officially installed in these positions at last night's Student Council dinner.

Cherniss polled 293 to Pawlus's 285 to gain the office in a tight battle. Jackie Rommel (SRP) was unopposed for the Presidency of the Associated Women Students and polled 468 votes of confidence.

The Sophomore Presidency was attained by Bob Anderson (SRP) when he defeated Bob Rauh (OIP) with a 350 to 217 victory. Vince Contreras (SRP) was elected President of the Freshman Class over Imogene Walker (OIP) in a 330 to 230 contest.

The Student Representative Party swept the seven Sophomore seats on the Student Council when their candidates Greg Monk (442), Pam Chandler (413), Bill May (373), Otto Van Duyn (364), Dave Otey (361), Gail Margolin (345) and Andy Shamiyeh (327) were elected.

Organized Independent Party candidates Maureen Farley (301) and Herm Pearson (270) lost.

The seven Freshman seats on council were won by five SRP candidates, Diane Perrine (401), Marcia Devlin (393), Judy Gerstle (363), John Theilen 321) and Eli Kuala (311), and two OIP representatives, Terry Foulkes (312) and Jim Fuller (311).

SRP candidates Charles Miller (309) and Mary Jean Taylor (302) were defeated.

The three propositions were passed.

Proposition A, with 367 affirmative votes and 75 votes opposed, reduced the academic qualifications for the offices of AS President and Vice President, AMS and AWS Presidents, Freshman President, Recording Secretary and Yell Leader.

Proposition B, polling 368 votes "for" and 61 votes "against," makes it impossible for any member of the Associated Students to hold more than one position (appointed or elected) in the student government unless approved by the Studet Council.

Proposition C passed with the closest margin, receiving 319 "yes" votes and 105 negative tallies. It gives power to the Student Council to dismiss the AS President by a three-fourths vote of the entire council with the consent of the faculty adviser and the dean of student activities.

Results were tabulated late Friday afternoon by Ayalin, Sherm Elworthy, student government adviser, and Bob Perkins taking the place of AS President Gary Wilkening who was unable to be there. Their findings were publicly announced at the Associated Women Student Feminine Fling that evening.

Of the 3000 students eligible to vote in the election only 646 voiced their opinion in the political contest. Ed Ayalin, electon commssioner, was prompted to remark concerning the two-day turnout, "It was pretty poor."

This remark was echoed by one of the students who had officiated at a voting machine when he stated that during one particular hour only three voters had cast their ballots.

Ayalin gave as a cause for the poor turnout the fact that most students were unfamiliar with the candidates. As a remedy, he suggested more rallies and speeches in future elections.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1962 NUMBER 12

Sophs To Present Semiannual Ball Friday Night At Mark Hopkins Hotel

The Sophomore Class, under the leadership of President Dan Collins, will present its semiformal Sophomore Ball this Friday night at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Providing the music for the affair in the Room of the Dons and the Peacock Court will be Ray Hackett and his orchestra. Additional entertainment will be supplied by The Travelers.

Bids are being distributed this week to Associated Students at the information booth in Science Hall. Students must present their Associated Student and registration cards to obtain a bid.

Priority to members of the Sophomore Class ended yesterday.

Guests and students are requested to bring bids, AS cards and registration cards to the ball.

Highlighting the evening's festivities will be the crowning and awarding of trophies to the winners of the king and queen contest, which is being held this week. The winners' names will be engraved on a large trophy that will be on display here at the college.

The winning king and queen will receive a small trophy to keep. Theta Tau sorority and Beta Tau fraternity have provided these awards.

An award will also be presented to the sophomore with the highest scholastic average.

Casting votes for the "King and Queen" contest are made by contributnig a penny-a-vote for the desired candidate. Voting receptacles are located in Smith Hall and Science Hall at the silver pole. Also in these places are pictures of the 21 candidates on display.

Seventeen campus organizations are represented by the candidacy. All proceeds of the contest will go toward the Sophomore scholarship fund, Collins announced.

King and queen contestants include Andy Shamiyah and Mary Radillo from the International Relations Club, Monty Iwanaga and Judy Trevor from Hotel and Restaurant and Bob Tanassi and Margo Braghetta of the Newman Club.

Doug Chang is supported by the Chinese Students Club, Mary Anne Grandemange by Gamma Kappa Beta, Bob Rauh by Kappa Phi, Ron Cann by Theta Tau, Kathy Hallock by Beta Tau, Dania Deryana by Delta Psi, Kendra Stoecker by the Chess Club and Jere Driscoll by the Real Estate Club.

Bill May backed by Engineering, Rick Aguilar by the Men's Glee, Gene Tognetti by Student California Teachers Association and Bill Goring by the Contemporary Affairs Forum are also king hopefuls.

Panel Discussion Climaxes Student-Faculty Lectures

By Dick Dragavon

For the first time at this college students will have an opportunity to discuss college policies and procedures directly with the men who set them, during College Hour this Friday at the Question Box, according to Suzanne Murphy, student-faculty relations chairman and next semester's Associated Student Vice President.

The panel discussion, which is the final event in this semester's student-faculty lecture series, will be held in S-100, Miss Murphy, who will be the moderator during the session, said.

"This should prove to be very interesting to all students here," she stated. "One of the questions expected to be brought up is whether midterm dead week should be abolished.

"Such action would affect anyone who belongs to an organization which schedules college activities," she added.

Another subject in which Miss Murphy anticipated much interest is why Christmas vacation does not include the week between Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

The panel will include Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction; Louis Batmale, dean of instruction; James Billwiller, head of the English department and acting dean of instruction; John Gerstung, head of the social science department, and George Stewart, business instructor.

This semester's student-faculty concert-lecture series has already sponsored three concerts and three lectures. Performing under the committee's auspices were Ishvani, a Hindu dancer; tenor James Schwabacher, and William Corbett Jones, concert pianist.

Response by the students toward these concerts was so great that all had to be televised via closed circuit

(Continued on Page 2, Column 4)

Frosh Mixer Welcomes Incoming Students In Smith Hall February 6

Providing an opportunity for the incoming freshmen to meet their class officers and fraternize among themselves, the Frosh Mixer will be held on February 6 in Smith Hall, Greg Monk, Freshman Class president, announced this week.

Music will be provided by Maury Wolohan's band from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. following registration.

Students who are now first semester freshmen are eligible to apply for positions as class officers for next semester, Monk stated.

27 Hotel Students Aid St. Francis Staff January 18

Operation St. Francis, the annual event through which 27 hotel and restaurant students here will take over the operation of San Francisco's famous St. Francis Hotel for one day, will be renewed for the 11th consecutive time on Thursday, January 18.

Started some 10 years ago, "Operation—Hotel," as it was termed then, was originated by Dan E. London, general manager of the St. Francis Hotel, who formulated the idea of presenting college students with an opportunity to become familiar with the professional side of their careers.

Under his direction a group of 38 City College H&R students took over the hotel in January, 1952, thus initiating the operation that has since been held each year, usually in January.

A variety of departmental positions, ranging from the general manager to the telephone operator, will be filled by the third and fourth semester H&R students attending, who will work in close co-operation with each of the hotel personnel regularly assigned these jobs.

Not only will the students receive first hand experience and a broader insight into their chosen field but the regular hotel staff will also listen with open minds to their comments and suggestions, many of which in the past have been incorporated into the St. Francis routine.

Also representing this college and taking part in the one-day event will be representatives from the law enforcement, engineering and journalism departments.

Hotel and restaurant students participating in this event will include Emmons Lindmeier, who will work closely with London as the general hotel manager, and Ulysses Grant, who will serve as assistant general manager.

Top Two AS Officers Sworn In At Council Dinner Last Night

Installation of the new Associated Student President Dan Collins and Vice President Suzanne Murphy was held last night at the semiannual Student Council dinner in Smith Hall.

Recipients of this semester's service awards, which are presented to the instructor and student chosen by council as contributing the most to the college, were Irene Mensing and Robert Hacker.

Miss Mensing is reference librarian here, and Hacker is an editorial assistant on The Guardsman staff.

In addition, Rams head pins and guards were presented.

James Billwiller of the college's English department was the evening's guest speaker. Musical entertainment was presented by Mrs. Robert Cartwright.

DAN COLLINS AND SUZANNE MURPHY, who assumed the positions of Associated Student President and Vice President when they were officially installed at last night's Student Council dinner in Smith Hall, look over plans for next semester.—Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

Stock Donation, Grant Aid Benefit Two Departments

H&R Receives $1000 Statler Supplement

Pledges totalling almost $1000 were received from members of the Hotel and Restaurant Alumni Association to help insure the Statler Foundation grant of $100,000 to the H&R department here, Dean Louis Batmale announced today.

A total supplement of $50,000 is needed.

The contributions were received at an alumni dinner meeting held last Wednesday evening in Smith Hall.

Progress is being made in other areas to raise the needed sum. Several hotels and restaurants throughout the Bay Area have met requests for donations, Batmale added.

Once the money is collected, construction will begin in Smith Hall to enlarge the facilities and provide more demonstration space for students majoring in the hotel and restaurant field.

Last November the San Francisco Board of Education accepted the grant from the foundation.

The foundation was established in 1934 under the will of the famous hotelman, Ellsworth M. Statler. Previous grants have been offered to Cornell University and the Community College of New York.

A scholarship program from which numerous college students here have also profited has been another important deed of the foundation through the past years.

Gifts to insure the college's grants can be made to the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation of this college. This organization is headed by P. Tremain Loud of San Francisco's Hotel Californian.

The latter foundation was established in 1949.

Radio-TV To Purchase Video Tape Recorder

A gift in the form of capital stock representing a sum in the five-figure bracket has been presented to City College by W. W. Eitel, president of the Eitel-McCullough Inc., for teaching purposes, Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction here, disclosed today.

The contribution will be used for the purchase of an Ampex VR-8000 video tape recorder used for closed-circuit television.

Highly pleased upon learning about the upcoming purchase of the recorder, Henry Leff, radio and TV instructor here, explained that the VR-8000 will expand potentials and present various advantages of the closed-circuit TV system.

Some of the educational values of the Ampex closed-circuit tape recorder are as follows:

- It is capable of recording and reproducing on television a lesson recorded on another VR-8000, or duplicating a lesson reproduced on another video-tape recorder.
- It extends the reach of a televised lesson to various places outside the closed-circuit system, such as another school within its district or a classroom hundreds of miles away.
- It stores an instructor's presentation for use at other times. Since recorded tapes may be erased and reused, a lesson can be corrected, erased and a new lesson recorded on the same tape once the material has served a useful purpose.
- It preserves a classroom lesson for repeated use without incurring further reproduction costs.
- It makes it feasible to capture important and informative events by recording them on tape.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 53, No. 12 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1962 Page 2

Age 21 Means Right To Vote; AS Elections Groom Citizens For National Poll Appearances

DURING college years many fundamental changes occur affecting changes in one's mental outlook, social position, and professional or semiprofessional future. Without a doubt, the most important metamorphosis coincides with the milestone of the collegian's 21st birthday.

There's a mature, almost magical connotation connected with this age. The student is now more than a student. He becomes a citizen in the true sense; he is legally and morally responsible to extend his scope of consciousness and concern from college to community to country.

He is simultaneously granted freedom and entrusted with responsibility—freedom from parental authority but a responsibility to the whole world.

The most immediate and far-reaching power now in his possession in the Right to Vote. Last week students exercised this democratic procedure during the two-day Associated Student elections here, but far too many did not.

Three thousand students holding AS cards were eligible to vote. From this potential electorate, only 646 preserved their voting privilege—a scant 22 per cent. This turnout fell below the average voting totals polled in recent semesters.

Most of the enrollment at the two-year college level falls below the 21-year mark, but if we young Americans have not yet realized the enormity and potency of the voting gift, no flame from the 21st candle on a birthday cake will suddenly light up the intellect to this fact.

There are no valid excuses for AS members who did not vote, and the poorest of these alibis is, "I didn't even know the elections were going on." Assuming that college students have to be alert and informed at least to pass their courses, how could they have been unaware of two weeks of campaigning by student political parties, platforms and pictures posted in a display case in Science Hall, candidates for office handshaking and presenting their point of view, four very obviously located voting machines, banners and posters of both parties in all campus buildings, and The Guardsman Election Edition.

Truthfully, it's beyond us.

The results already in are not earthshaking and have no immediate effect outside the college walls, but in the longer sense, two irrefutable qualities are being built within: future leadership and free elections.

These small scale elections are a proving ground for an informed public for posterity and for the future strength in the practicality of democratic ideals.

The Spectator

King Scores With Safe From Tigers

(Today's Spectator is by Dave Kleinberg)

ALEXANDER KING, known to many through his frequent appearances on the Jack Paar show, had his second best seller, May This House Be Safe From Tigers, released in 1960.

His first work, Mine Enemy Grows Older, appeared in 1958, and was barely noticed. In the following months, the former editor and New York artist soared to popularity.

In this short period King has established himself as egotistical, selfish, obnoxious, greedy, uncouth, vulgar, but at the same time brilliant.

His mastery of the English language is phenomenal, and although he has little to say in his works, he says it with interesting appeal and amusement.

In an almost cynical fashion the audacious King leads his readers through his world of adventures, most of which are quite ordinary, but to which his pen gives authenticity.

If you enjoy the man on television and are willing to wade through several slow moving moments, King's books are masterpieces in facetiousness.

His sardonic observations cover a wide variety of subjects and places and include the verbal beatings of the beatniks, advertising executives, Greenwich Village, Hollywood, Madison Avenue and anything else that enters his intentions.

When the representatives of an evangelistic meeting, after requesting people to telephone to accept salvation, refused to take King's collect charges, the 60-plus-year-old court jester said, "Cash on the line, that's them. Just like everybody else."

Through four chapters King recalls his many trips to Lexington where he was treated as a drug addict. The characters he meets and the tales that result from these quaint encounters are amazingly hilarious, and at the same time degenerate.

King, after breaking the habit, reveals the stories about his four wives, his encounter with Louis B. Mayer and his North African adventure.

This selection from his critique on television is typical:

"Television, a means of projecting moving images and sounds over large areas, enjoyed a frenzy of popularity, particularly among children, during the Forties and Fifties of the Twentieth century.

"This potential art form perished prematurely in the late Sixties of that same era. Its operational destiny, aesthetic as well as financial, eventually fell under the exclusive aegis of some softheaded businessmen who fancied themselves great creative entrepreneurs.

"The end was inevitable. It languished on in deep doldrums for several decades, until finally even children were completely repelled by its idiotic, repetitious and stupefying monotony. By 1969 only the absolutely childish were still sometimes beguiled by it."

King has certainly advanced from the days when he was a measly three-pound baby kept in the family oven (once he almost landed in the garbage pail). He has gathered a wide variety of followers, and is fast becoming a King of Kings.

Windy 'City' Tops SF Hill 29

LOCATED high atop Hill 29, given the designation in 1949 by the then San Francisco News when it published a map numbering each of San Francisco's 40 hills, the college offers little protection from the wind which blows rampant around and between Science Hall and Cloud Hall. If there were a weather forecast for the college, "condition, windy; direction, every" would score a bull's-eye almost every time.

Campus Matches Chicago Blow For Blow As Gales Swirl 'Round The Clock

By Vince Liu

If any baseball fan complains about the wind in Candlestick Park in front of a City College student, it is not highly unlikely that he may be answered, "You haven't lived, buddy."

For somewhere in San Francisco there is a place that, with the help of mother nature, has the wind blowing with the best of them, including Chicago. The place? Right in our own backyard—the City College campus!

One significant character of the wind here is its consistency. Putting it in plainer language, it never stops blowing. Any sophomore here would tell you that it blows around the clock and around the seasons.

If KCSF should in the future decide to include a campus weather report in its daily announcements, students could count on one prediction that would score a bull's-eye for the radio department everytime it came out. It would go, ". . . wind condition, windy; directions, all!"

To show the truth of the above statement, a rainy day is all that's needed. In such a situation a student may not be totally concerned with how hard it's precipitating but rather from what angle it's coming.

It's of little wonder that raincoats are taking over on this campus, for the effect of carrying an umbrella under such an adverse situation would remind one of the fellow who swims under a river to avoid a flood.

The San Francisco umbrella manufacturing companies would be thankful that such a delightful condition does not prevail over the rest of the city or they would go out of business.

As for makers of the different brands of hair tonic, City College would be an ideal setting for a television commercial to illustrate the quality of their products.

There is only one problem for the producer if such an event were to take place. What if the handsome fellow with messy hair, after dipping a few drops of a so-called windproof hair tonic on his scalp and taking a wind "bath," broke a few combs before setting his hair straight?

The trouble is that our wind might lose a few customers for the companies instead of gaining some if a big group of students were to gather to witness the demonstration.

But the wind situation here does have its plus side as far as the male students are concerned. For a little swirling gale would certainly create the lovely scene of flying skirts and blushing checks from the coeds.

As for the Stu Miller advocates, this is the best place to start his fan club. Just imagine the Giant ball park on campus with Miller pitching with the wind blowing against him. Why, his "fast" ball might be hittable!

Then what about pitchers like Hoyt Wilhelm who throws that crazy knuckle ball? The catchers would go on strike!

So maybe a visit to this campus on a typical windy day will convince those San Francisco baseball fans that Candlestick Park isn't really too bad after all.

The Race Is Over

You Got A Fine; The Campus Cops Arrive On Time

By Doug Cathcart

The time is 10:45 a.m.

The place is the green zone in front of Science Hall.

Everything is as it was 12 and a half minutes ago—except for those little white, two dollar victory flags flapping on the windshields of overtime parkers. The Campus Police have struck!

In their relentless fight for law and order on campus the local gendarmes probably make more enemies than any other single group here at the college. Every day you can hear some irate ticket recipient babbling on about "those darn Campus Police."

It seems that these individuals have forgotten that the bluecoats are just doing their job and nothing else. Also, they have failed to remember that the Campus Police have many other duties around the campus that directly benefit the student body.

For instance, if it were not for the campus policeman directing traffic on Phelan avenue in the early morning before classes, the congestion would most likely be unbearable.

Also, if it were not for the local force the parking lots around campus would be crowded with non-Associated Student cardholders, thus crowding out people who have a rightful privilege to use the restricted student parking facilities.

It is also their job to keep order at such student functions as the Associated Men Student smoker and during registration.

So you see they're not such bad guys after all, and the next time you get a ticket why don't you show your appreciation and say, "Thank you."

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieva
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Temes
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields
Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell, Dave Kleinberg, Herman Kilgerman.
Reporters: Herbert Mizis, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu.
Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Thalia Demakas, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McConlhe, John McShane, Patricia Nelder, Estrellita Zamora.
Photographers: Estuardo Dell'Acqua, chief; Isao Tanaka, Stan Ackerman, James Cook, Bill Bargagliotti, George Pikich, Christopher Utter, Herb Greene.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Foresight

By John Muller

THE 1961 television ratings are out and (fanfare) the top-rated production on TV last year was (fanfare) . . . a Burgie commercial.

Our cute Burgie man—who could ever refuse him, as he shyly sharpens a pencil while selling his product? And when the backstage voice asks what in the world he's doing, he proudly displays the pencil and coyly replies, "Making a point."

It seems that the best thing that has hit television since the late-late show premiering a 1932 goodie has been the cartoon commercial.

Take for instance that little SS man (Social Security, and he doesn't work for the local daily) who walks out proudly displaying his multi-trillion dollar computing machines.

Then comes the point of the commercial. A machine breaks down. A cartoon repairman appears on the scene, tinkers with the machine, and wrests a card with no SS number from the machine.

That "@#$%&?.*," he says. And that adorable embarrassed smile when our little SS man informs him he's on TV.

Now who would ever erroneously file his SS number after watching that commercial?

To the opposite extreme, the lowest rated thing on TV was also a commercial, Anacin's. That's the one that screams its message to the hammering beat of a splitting headache, fast, FAST, FAST relief.

After that joyous message the viewer has a headache and in desperation goes out and buys the product.

The one thing that can be said about the commercial is that it has been the most permanent thing to hit TV since its invention some 10 or 20 years ago, but mysteriously, the impact of the American commercial upon the world is utterly impossible to measure.

It has influenced our lives, though, as evidenced by such phrases as "It's what's up (clap, clap) front that counts," one of the most neatly coined phrases since the cat's PJ's or 23 skidoo.

But we haven't mentioned the commercial that changed the lives of more Americans than any other.

According to the very latest 1962 statistics (released last month), over 200,000 viewers, after watching the Marlboro commercial, left immediately without bothering to watch the featured program and bought, no, not a pack of cigarettes, but a tattoo.

That's not counting those 50,000 or so women who had the back of their right hand tattooed with a sea anchor.

Those readers who have survived this far will be intensely interested in a new product that's on the market now.

Simply press a button and the set turns itself off until the next commercial 13 and one-quarter minutes later. List price: $4.98, plus tax.

It's advertised on TV, too.

Faculty, Students Meet

(Continued from Page 1)

into another viewing room.

Lecturers who appeared included Anne Adams, a British educator who moved her entire school during the Blitz, and Prince Lightfoot, an Indian who is a Stanford graduate, and also the official Stanford Indian.

Thespians Offer Show A Day This Week

Three Highly Rated Plays To Climax Drama Season

By Dave Kleinberg

Three highly rated plays, The Farce Of The Worthy Master Pierre Patelin, Swan Song and The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife, will make their appearance in the college theater starting today and ending Friday, according to Michael Griffin, drama director.

Today's presentation, one in a series of plays that have drawn capacity crowds thus far this semester, will be Moritz Jagendorf's The Farce Of The Worthy Master Pierre Patelin, the story of a lawyer and his adventures with a draper.

Randy Jones plays Patelin, Imogene Walker portrays his wife and Nick Bonaker depicts the draper. The curtain goes up at 1:15 p.m. and admission is free for all students. The play is expected to last about 50 minutes.

Thursday the drama department will give Anton Chekhov's Swan Song, the story of a senile actor, over the hill and friendless. John Bayliss plays the lead roll as Svetlovidov. The play will last approximately 20 minutes, starting at 1:15 p.m.

Chekhov, a Russian playwright distinguished for his brilliant force, has been previously represented by another play, Cherry Orchard, produced by the drama department earlier this semester.

The department will switch to night life this Friday with its production of Anatole France's The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife, a French two-act comedy which could easily have been written by Moliere, one of the greatest comedy writers who ever lived.

It is based on a play by Boccaccio, of Decameron fame. Jones again takes the lead, this time as Adam Fumme, who is both lawyer and husband to his dumb wife, played by Arpy Bohassian. Bob Drewes has the role of the judge.

The play revolves around the fact that the dumb wife, although beautiful, is unable to talk. The husband has a surgeon perform an operation to change this, and then finds himself unhappy to find she, like many women today, talks too much.

Rather than go insane, and since the doctor claims he is unable to change her vocal cords again, the husband has an operation on his ears and goes deaf. The ending is both surprising and humorous.

The presentation begins at 8:15 p.m. and is expected to end about 10 p.m.

The play was written for the Society of Rabelaisian Studies, and the original production was by Granville Barker. It was designed by Robert Edmund Jones as a comedy of manners.

The drama department started out the semester with presentations on alternate days, but this week they went straight through with a different performance each day.

In the drama department's production of Pullman Car Hiawatha, 1000 were turned away, and in the second showing those turned away numbered 500. The popularity of the programs continued with The Apollo of Bellac, which played to standing-room-only.

As a result of extended rehearsal over the Christmas break, Griffin feels that the acting for the college-sponsored plays will be at its peak.

THESE ACTORS from this season's final plays seem to be somewhat upset. The picture is just tilted, however. The play is The Farce Of The Worthy Master Pierre Patelin; the actors are Bob Frank, Italo Tulipano, Dave Goldberg and Nick Bonaker.—Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

Dental Assistants Capped Tomorrow

Dr. Paul Jacobson, president of the Dental Society in San Francisco, will be the guest speaker at the 14th semi-annual dental assisting capping. The candlelight ceremony will begin at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the college theater.

Ruth P. Inskipp, dental assisting instructor here, said.

Mrs. Inskipp will introduce Dr. Jacobson, who has chosen for his topic, Character In The Dental Office.

Presentation of the caps to 28 women students will be by Evelyn L. Seekatz, certified dental assistant who is also a new instructor here. Frank C. Szehner, Jr., certified dental technician and also instructor here, will give the congratulatory speech.

Immediately following the capping ceremony a reception will be held, arranged by the second semester students. Nine big sisters will assist the students receiving caps.

Many women upon leaving the college's dental assisting department have found good outside jobs in the dental field, Mrs. Inskipp commented.

RA Social Friday Honors Students

Presentation of awards will be the theme of the Recreation Association's social, from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday in the women's gymnasium, Frances Galloway of the physical education department said today.

There will be approximately 50 awards presented to 50 deserving students who participated in RA activities.

Students with one semester of outstanding participation in coeducational sports will receive shields. Blocks will be presented to deserving second semester students, and third and fourth semester students with outstanding participation will receive stars.

Medals will be presented to managers of coeducational activities, acknowledging their extra participation in the activities.

After the presentation of awards, an informal dance will be held, Miss Galloway added.

There are three types of people: the few who make things happen, the many who watch things happen and the vast majority who have no idea what has happened.

US Information Service Plans World Show For Prize Posters

New honors are in store for art students here and in the other Western colleges entering the annual Collegiate Advertising Art contest, sponsored by the Zellerbach Paper Company and the Advertising Association of the West.

Deadline for entrants is March 31, 1962.

Ken Morgan, assistant advertising manager of the Zellerbach Paper Company, released the information that the United States Information Service has taken a definite interest in the contest and has plans for sponsoring a traveling exhibit of the winning posters throughout the world.

The U.S.I.S. has offices in the major communities of countries in various parts of the world which contain pamphlets, pictures and other material depicting life in the United States. It will be in these offices that the winning posters of the fifth annual contest may be hung for exhibition.

The contest theme for this year, Break The Language Barrier, deals with depicting freedom and democracy through the universal language of art.

Choosing a theme with civic or community interest that will offer a challenge to the student artist has been one of the aims of the contest, Morgan revealed. In the past the themes have dealt with such issues as getting out the vote and racial prejudice.

The winning poster in the Get Out The Vote contest was made into one of the large Foster and Kleiser billboard signs and posted throughout California two years ago during election year.

Morgan mentioned that the winning posters are used to the best possible advantage of the artist. Such possibilities include use of the winning posters on calendars, in pamphlets or with displays sometimes held in the lobby of the Crown Zellerbach building.

Students here will compete with art students from San Jose State College, College of San Mateo and the San Francisco Art Institute.

The winners will then compete with other winners from 10 other districts that include 13 Western states and four Canadian provinces.

In addition to the public honor bestowed upon the winner, there will be a total of $2250 prize money awarded.—By M.H.

Diederichsen Off To NSCA Meet

An effort to promote a better recognition of the college was attempted last week when Student Council voted to allocate $400 to soccer Coach Roy M. Diederichsen so that he can attend the meeting of the National Soccer Coaches Association.

During the meeting, which will be held in New York on January 12, 13 and 14, soccer coaches from all over the country will discuss plans for the site of the National Junior College Soccer Championship games and other aspects of two-year college soccer.

In a letter presented to council, Diederichsen expressed a desire to bring the championship games to San Francisco.

As he stated in his letter, "I believe we can improve our relationship with Eastern junior colleges and our own students in obtaining honors on a national scope."

Although the allocation of the sum required council to secure money from the reserve fund, the general feeling was that it is council's job to bring recognition to the college whenever possible and to insure its good reputation.

The cable wire on the Golden Gate Bridge is 80,000 miles long.

Men's Fashion Show Friday

Monique Benoit To Be Commentator

Monique Benoit will be commentator at the Man of '62 fashion show to be held this Friday during College Hour in the college theater.

Miss Benoit, columnist with The San Francisco Examiner, will comment on the new spring lines in men's fashions, which will be modeled by men from campus organizations.

The all-men's show, sponsored by the Merchandising Club, will be held in conjunction with the Man of '62 contest and will include ski, campus and sports wear from Cable Car Clothiers and the Marina Sea and Ski Shop.

The winner of the competition will receive a complete wardrobe from the Cable Car Clothiers as his prize.

Preparation for this event has been made by both members of the club and its sponsor, Elizabeth Helseth.

Organization was the responsibility of several committees, headed by Paulette Waltl, Wendy Allphin, Ed Heskett, Frank Jimenez, Ray Suttles, Cecile Farbman and Tom Strauss.

MONIQUE BENOIT.
—S. F. Examiner photo.

Phi Beta Rho Sisters Awarded Dougherty Scholastic Trophy

As one of the highlights of last Friday's Feminine Fling, Phi Beta Rho sorority was presented with the highly coveted and honored Margaret Dougherty Trophy.

The Dougherty Trophy is given at the end of each semester to the sorority which has maintained the highest overall grade-point average. The winner of the honor last semester was Gamma Kappa Beta, which had an overall grade-point average of 2.5, with the runner-up, Gamma Sigma Sigma, close behind with a 2.4 tally.

Also awarded at the Fling, jointly sponsored by the Associated Women Students, the Inter-Sorority Council and the Recreation Association, the AWS service trophy was given to Pricilla Popin for her outstanding and unselfish service to the college this semester.

Counterpoint

New Vacation Schedule Ends Yearly Plague

By Dick Dragavon

SURVEYING the City College population shortly after its return to classes from the Christmas vacation one could only surmise that the majority of the students and of the faculty were suffering from hyperholidayopia.

The symptoms of this highly seasonal discomfiture are generally most evident in the eyes which often appear as delicate etchings in red. The eyes, however, are almost always partially shielded by low sagging eyelids.

The cause of this plague, naturally, is too much holiday activity.

There have never been, apparently, any scientific advances made (or if so they weren't published) which would prevent this affliction from making its yearly appearances.

And this in spite of the fact that the solution is painfully obvious.

The answer: Eliminate Holidays!

Before anyone gets upset this must be clarified. Days off we would still have; only the names would be changed to protect the participants.

The reasoning is simple. When people realize that there is an occasion for a celebration they celebrate.

All manner of plans are made for visiting friends and relatives, decorating the house and yard, going shopping and other assorted, equally fatiguing activities.

Without the holidays there would be no obvious schedule to pursue during the two-week layoff, and the populace could waste its time in a more effortless manner.

This plan, however, does not have the appeal, no matter how many refinements may be made, to gain much populdr support.

There is an alternative, for better or for worse.

In the days just prior to the birth of the United States, holidays were set by the governor and/or the president. The alternate plan would turn this power back to the president—of the college.

Thus, he might find it appropriate to proclaim Labor Day just before final exams. Or, depending on his mood, he might substitute Halloween on that date, to throw a few scares into the struggling scholars.

Thanksgiving would naturally follow the exams, or New Year's Day could be celebrated at that time by those students who found it necessary to make resolutions.

Not only would these holidays have more meaning to the celebrants but students would have twice as many each year.

And they would undoubtedly work harder toward their own personal Independence Day.

Molino Photos On Display

Selected Work Of Honor Graduate Posted In Cloud Hall Gallery

Photography department officials are honoring a distinguished City College graduate by displaying his outstanding photography work.

The photographs, by Kenneth Molino, will be on display starting today in the Cloud Hall gallery, according to Charles Lamp, photography instructor here.

Molino was graduated in June, 1953, with highest honors. His major at the college was photographic-journalism, and he was a Chief Photographer and Assistant Managing Editor of The Guardsman, respectively. At commencement exercise he was one of the three student speakers.

The versatile Molino, before opening his own studio, worked for The San Rafael Independent-Journal and became its chief photographer.

When he was graduated from here he was the Scholastic Cup winner with a 2.97 grade-point average. He was also president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, statewide scholastic honor society.

During his four semesters here he did public relations and photography work for the psychology program, Know Yourself Better, which KPIX televised for 15 weeks. Henry Leff, television and radio broadcasting instructor, was the producer of the program.

KEN MOLINO, City College graduate who will have his photographic works on display for two to three weeks in the Cloud Hall Gallery.

Molino was graduated from St. Peter High School in 1943, and immediately enlisted in the navy for four years. In 1951 he enrolled at the college for the two-year semiprofessional photography course.

Presently Molino has his own studio in San Rafael. Some 30 to 40 photographs will be exhibited in the Cloud Hall gallery. The pictures will be on display for two to three weeks, and many of the photos are in color.

Weekend Home Games Open Big 8 Hoop Season

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

THOUGH the consensus points toward a battle between defending champion Oakland and talent-laden San Mateo for the Big Eight crown, Sid Phelan's Rams should be right in the thick of the race throughout the year.

True, the home quintet was able to win but four of nine exhibition outings prior to last weekend's Modesto tournament, and has been unable to generate a consistent offense or strong individual scoring punch.

However, it should be taken into consideration that four of the losses were to university frosh outfits which opened their season considerably earlier than the Rams. More important, the Red and White have more than held their own against other two-year colleges.

San Jose and Long Beach always produce highly rated cage clubs, yet the Rams were able to squeeze by both these colleges while also edging Chaffee. Only fast-breaking Fullerton, in this class, handed the Rams a loss and that was a narrow 46-45 decision.

This speaks favorably of the team and a cautious Coach Phelan reveals that, "We may be green and inexperienced but the talent is there and we could have a very good year. In fact, in some ways we're coming along better than last season at this time."

The mentor admits to having trouble putting together a definite starting five, partly because the players are so matched in talent and partly because of injuries and conflicting work schedules.

Phelan is high on agile 6-7 center Elton McGriff and feels, "He's learning new moves all the time and should become a top star." The Ram pilot also singles out 6-3 forward Brad Duggan. "He didn't play much last year and we always knew he could shoot, but his rebounding has been a pleasant surprise."

Both these men will be hard-pressed for starting berths and the keen competition and hustle that the team shows can be nothing but a boon to the club.

Scheduling could also prove an aid to Phelan's charges in that they don't meet Oakland and San Mateo until the final games of each half of the double round-robin. By then they may have "jelled" and be able to upset the probable frontrunners.

RA Schedules 9 Events For Spring Sports Days

Plans for next semester's Recreation Association exchange sports days were announced this week by Francis Galloway of the women's physical education department.

The events will be held at San Jose and Oakland City Colleges, Santa Rosa, Napa, Foothill, Contra Costa and Monterey Colleges.

Sports competition will be offered in badminton, archery, swimming, diving, tennis, bowling, volleyball, coeducational softball and women's basketball.

ANXIOUS! Ram forward Bob Mulcreavy hopes his preseason play will earn him a starting berth in Friday's league-opener against Sacramento.—Guardsman photo by Bill Bargagliotti.

Inconsistent Rams Upended Twice At Modesto Tourney

Though lacking a consistent scoring punch, Sid Phelan's cagers put together two good halves at the 24th annual Modesto tournament last weekend. Unfortunately, they were in different contests and the disappointing result was an early trip home for the Rams, who bowed to Cerritos and San Jose by respective scores of 52-34 and 53-50.

Poised and showing some strong early season form, San Mateo defeated Fresno 62-48 to finish atop the field of 16 entries, while American River edged Cerritos for third place and San Jose took the consolation title.

Sophomore center Howard Sundberg of the Bulldogs was adjudged the tourney's outstanding player.

A fantastic and unexpected turn of events cost the Rams a victory in their Thursday opener against the Falcons of Cerritos. Neither quintet could take advantage of the other's "coldness" from the field, and after 10 minutes of action the score was knotted at eight points apiece.

However, 6-3 forward Brad Duggan pumped through 10 points in the second quarter and "Goose" Adams added four charity tosses as the Rams took a 26-15 halftime lead, aided also by the fine backboard chores of 6-7 center Elton McGriff and 6-5 forward Chuck Currington.

McGriff tipped in a shot to open the second half scoring but that's when the Rams suddenly collapsed. Led by flashy guard Jack Shawcroft and frontliners Al Schmelz and Jerry Atkins, the southerners proceeded to reel off an amazing 29 points while the losers could garner only a lone field goal.

In fact, the Rams were outscored in the second half, 37-8.

Sole loser with over six points was Duggan who finished with 14.

Lamenting on the circumstances, Coach Phelan felt, "We certainly didn't quit all of a sudden but we were less aggressive. Once they got hot and gained confidence, we just couldn't stop them."

Relegated to the consolation bracket, Phelan's charges were pitted against San Jose, a team they had beaten 52-45 earlier in the year.

What resulted was one of the tournament's most exciting encounters, as the Jaguars rebounded from a 54-67 loss to Stockton to take a 29-17 lead at the intermission.

Ram guard Bill Nocetti hit four fielders to keep his club within range at 21-17, but the Jags splurged just before the half ended.

With Currington, McGriff and Adams carrying the load, the Rams staged a tremendous surge to take a 32-31 lead on Currington's 15-foot jumper with 11:24 left to play, but in the meantime McGriff had fouled out and Randy Simms was rushed into action.

A brilliant drive by Adams gave the Rams a 34-32 lead, their last of the tournament, as San Jose, paced by forward Ed Sims who finished with 19 points and small guard Lymond Williams, jumped to a 45-38 advantage.

The comeback pleased Phelan who said, "Sure, I was disappointed with our showing in the first game, but we played very well against San Jose once we got over the tournament jitters. We showed we can be right up there in the Big Eight race this year."—By I.T.

What's The Score?

Evidence Lacking For Solution To Mysterious Theft Of Stats

Final statistics on the leading scorers and players in this season's intramural competition will not be available because of the loss or theft of the official score book from the men's gymnasium during the recent championship playoff game between the Alli and the Untouchables.

Jack Gaddy, athletic director here, revealed that the book used to keep score in the men's gymnasium mysteriously disappeared two weeks ago not to be seen again.

There are three possible explanations for the loss:

1) The book was accidentally lost by the official scorer. It is impossible to check this as the official scorer is unknown and he too might be lost.

2) A player from the high-scoring teams might have wanted to relive his moments of glory so he "borrowed" the ledger and now hoards it as an ego building factor.

3) A member of a cellar division team might have confiscated the book to prevent fellow players from finding out what he had scored. This also might be considered an ego building reason.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of the sought-after record book it would be appreciated if it were returned to the men's gymnasium. No questions will be asked. Only that person's score will be looked up.

Untouchables Take Intra Title, Down Alpha Phi Epsilon 62-40

The Untouchables of the Club Activities Board league, paced by Vince Courtney's 22 points, defeated Inter-Fraternity Council champions Alpha Phi Epsilon, 62-40, to capture the intramural crown and highlight action last Thursday at the Associated Men Student smoker before an estimated crowd of 200.

The league's scoring leader, Harbie Briscoe, contributed 13 markers as the winners swept to a decisive victory with a convincing display of clutch shooting, ball control and tight defense.

Only a brilliant performance by little John Giles, the dynamic 5-3 guard who tallied 20 points, plus help from John Neal kept the runners-up in the game occasionally.

The Untouchables also got fine service from Dave Towner who sank 10 digits, Bob Soper, John Comisky and All-America gridder Jim Baffico. The team was presented the team trophy by AMS President Paul Snowberg while players from both squads received individual medals.

The nine three-round title bouts, ranging from the 126-pound division to heavyweight, turned out to be the crowd pleasers as the fighters demonstrated fine spirit, courage and boxing skill that repeatedly drew ovations.

In the feature heavyweight clash, rugged Chuck Cosee captured the division title after decking Pete Downing in the last round. Two knockdowns were registered by Ted Sieder who overpowered a game Harold Rosowski for the 169-pound honors.

Mike Calderwood stopped Ralph Pappas in the third round of the 160-pound division, and Alex McAuley opened a cut under the right eye of Garry Bartolotti and forced the latter to quit in the second round of the 178-pound class for the only two bouts that failed to go the distance.

Two special boxing awards were landed in the 135-pound contest as Garry Marble won the outstanding fighter award after defeating scrappy Gary Rodriguez, who in turn was voted the "fightingest fighter."

In the other fights Tony Olivera, Jr., performing under the watchful eyes of his father, Tony, Sr., the former bantamweight champion of the world, decisioned Bob Arevelo while Dennis Hoffman outpunched Charles Brown, and Joe Smolen defeated Bill Walsh for the 126, 139 and 145-pound titles. Each fighter received a medal.

BASKETBALL GAME STATISTICS

UNTOUCHABLES	fg	ft	pf	tp	ALPHA PHI EPSILON	fg	ft	pf	tp
Briscoe	6	1	2	13	Neal	5	0	3	10
Soper	3	0	0	6	M. Miller	2	1	1	5
Andy Kerr	1	0	2	2	Fdi Hora	2	1	2	5
Courtney	10	2	1	22	Giles	8	4	2	20
Towners	4	2	3	10	P. Thr'dgill	0	0	1	0
Comisky	3	0	0	6	T. Brocker	0	0	2	0
Baffico	1	0	1	2	Jim Keith	0	0	0	0
J. Sirebie	0	1	2	1	H. Pearson	0	0	0	0
	28	6	11	62		17	6	11	40

Half-time score: Untouchables 34, Alpha Phi 22.
Free throws missed: Untouchables 5, Alpha 5.

Eisan Puts Hopes On Friday Signups To Boost Depleted Baseball Squad

Hampered by the loss of two-thirds of last year's starting team and the complete loss of all reserve players, baseball Coach Lee Eisan is hopefully looking forward to Friday's signups to fill out his depleted roster.

Eisan strongly stated that all players interested in making the varsity squad should come to the signups during College Hour Friday in C-260.

The only returning first-stringers who might return to this year's squad are Jim Carroll, Don Meroff and Dennis Russell.

Carroll provided all of the backstop work for the diamondmen during the practice season and during two-thirds of the Big Eight league. Experiencing an unexplained batting slump last season, Carroll made up for it with his fine defensive work and his handling of pitchers.

Meroff was used as a utility infielder and his work both at the plate and in the field proved a definite surprise. While both in and out of the lineup Meroff, who hits harder than his size would seem to allow, batted .355. If needed, he could also fill in at the catcher's spot.

Outfielder Russell also had a batting slump last season, but proved to be both valuable and versatile when he took over the catching chores from Carroll toward the end of the season although virtually inexperienced at that position.

Eisan will sorely miss the batting power of all-league third baseman Frank Gable and all-league right fielder Ed Preston.

Gable batted at a torrid .444 pace to lead the team while Preston, although lacking speed on the bases, came through with a final .377 average.

Team captain Rich Medaglia, .333 batting shortstop, and center fielder Eric Lyons, who hit .250, are also among the players who will be absent from this year's roster.

Lack Of Experience Plagues Cagers' 1962 Title Hope

By Jerry Littrell

Working with one of the greenest teams ever to play here, Coach Sid Phelan is looking forward hopefully to this Friday and Saturday as his cagers face Sacramento and Contra Costa, respectively, in two 8 p.m. home games for the opening of the 1962 Big Eight basketball competition.

Inexperience seems to be the hindering factor in the hoopsters' horoscope for the coming season.

Their first two opponents are rated on a par with the Rams. Sacramento pulled a slight upset as they defeated favored Diablo Valley College in preseason play. The Panthers are a fast-moving, hustling team and will pose a possible defensive problem to the locals.

Contra Costa, led by leading scorer and rebounder Leroy Walker, is not quite as strong as in the past, but still will be in contention with the Rams.

Only two players from last year's squad, Brad Duggan and Dave Roberts, will return to action here this year.

COACH SID PHELAN, who has worked hard to mold a formidable Ram entry for this year's Big Eight competition.

Duggan is the team leader in scoring and rebounding so far, as he has averaged 11 points per game from his forward spot. His play on the court is not flashy nor obvious but it has been extremely effective.

Roberts, while averaging only seven points per game, is considered to be a consistent, accurate shooter and a team leader. He presently leads the team in free throws, having completed 17 for 22.

All-City guard from Mission High School, Gene Batiste, has so far proved himself valuable on defense and is now starting to shoot from the outside.

Bob Mulcreavy, forward, is the most rapidly improving player on the squad. Reputed to be a very good shot from the floor, illness kept him out of the lineup and drained his effectiveness on field goals. With his full-time return to the team, his shooting is rapidly coming up to the level expected of him.

Guard Bill Nocetti is an excellent ball handler and shooter, but up to now has made his presence felt as a playmaker.

Charles Currington, 6-4 center, although inexperienced, has good potential and is rated as a very good shooter and rebounder.

Coming off of an early season slump, 6-7 Elton McGriff has rapidly improved himself. Recognized as a player with good form and ability he has yet to realize his own full potential. When bearing down during a game there is possibly no tougher player in the league. With his size he could take over at center if Phelan were to move Currington to forward.

Randy Simms also gives the hoopsters added height at forward. Although slowed down at the beginning of the season by illness and work, Simms has steadily come along on his shooting and board control. His outstanding defensive work also rates high merit.

At midseason the cagers will be bolstered by the addition of 6-4 forward Melvin Tom. Ineligible now because of a residence rule, Tom will be able to play toward the beginning of next month.

Rounding out the squad are five capable substitute guards, Dub Johnson, DeWitt Demmer, John Neal, Vince Courtney and Everett Adams.

Six Matches Set For Golf Team

Hoping for a successful season, Coach Grover Klemmer's golf team will start its practice matches on February 16 against Alameda County State College. At this time the squad has six practice matches scheduled.

Klemmer pieced his tentative top three clubbers as Steve Whitman, a freshman from George Washington High School, Dennis Ducker and Jim Baffico.

Other hopefuls are Bruce Hubley, Larry Sugimoto, George Benkle, Robert Menist, Dave Egan, Art Berliner, Jim Roman, Roger Irwin, Larry Cosper and John Steddin.

Midsemester changes can alter the team greatly as Drucker and Baffico may receive football offers from other colleges because of their outstanding performances this season. There also may be other additions and subtractions that Klemmer has not learned of yet.

Last year the team ended up third in Big Eight competition with powerful San Mateo taking both the Big Eight and state titles.

SPRING SIGNUPS START

Those interested in signing up for track should attend a meeting during College Hour Friday in A-202. The tennis and swimming coaches will accept signups at the men's gymnasium.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 53 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1962 NUMBER 13

H&R Students Help Operate St. Francis Tomorrow

San Francisco's famous St. Francis Hotel will be open tomorrow as usual, but its operation will be assisted by students of the hotel and restaurant department of the college.

Under the title "Operation St. Francis," an annual one-day affair in its 11th consecutive year, a group of 27 third and fourth semester H&R students will take over the hotel's various departmental positions as assigned by Dan E. London, general manager of the St. Francis, who originated this event.

A list of the names of the participating students and their assigned positions or departments is as follows:

Emmons Lindmeier, managing director; Ulysses Grant, assistant general manager; James Tevini, assistant manager; William Stephenson, assistant manager; Ronald Matthews, assistant manager; Edwin Resenberg, business development; Roger Hagemann, personnel manager.

Dennis Gomes, food and beverage manager; Thomas Muneno, executive chef; William Gullikson, sous-chef; Jonnie Irons, pastry chef; Sophrona Burnell, auditor; David Adkins, credit manager; Clifford Charlson, head cashier; Beatrice Keller, housekeeper.

Richard Pollak, building superintendent and chief engineer; Vincent Cozzi, purchasing agent; Frank Spenger, assistant beverage manager; Peter Schwahn, publicity department; Judy Trevor, telephone department; Charles Fuller, Mural Room; Pierre Lorda, Grill Room.

William Moots, terrace; Donald Robinson, room service; Robert Taylor, banquet; Jack Wade, mail department, and David Beloud, steward.

Also taking part in the event are the photography department, represented by Herb Greene and Bill Bargagliotti; the engineering department, represented by Del Berry and Kenneth Carey; the journalism department, represented by Sue Mount, Bob Lustlot, Paul Plansky, Anna Papagni and Dave Grieve, and the law enforcement department.

Dick Dragavon Elected Spring Guardsman Editor

A unanimous white-ballot vote electing Dick Dragavon to the position of Editor-In-Chief of The Guardsman for the Spring semester, 1962, was announced last week by the newspaper's Editorial Board.

Dragavon, currently holding the post of Managing Editor, succeeds Paul Plansky. The remaining appointments for the spring staff are pending approval of the six-member board. Leaving the paper, besides Plansky, are Doug Caldwell, Vincent Liu, Ivan Temes and Anna Papagni. The "G's" semesterly banquet will be held January 25.

Sheraton Plaque Goes To Hotel Major Burnell

Two plaques, donated by the Sheraton Hotel Corporation, were awarded to the hotel and restaurant department here last Thursday night at the semiannual dinner banquet at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel.

Sophrona Burnell, a fourth semester H&R student, won the individual plaque for her outstanding work in her major. Miss Burnell is scheduled to graduate this semester.

The selection from a group of three students, which also included Ulysses Grant and Dennis Gomes, was made by the faculty and student body of the H&R department, which based their voting on the individual's past achievements, records and grades.

The department also received a perpetual plaque on which the names of all the individual plaque winners were engraved.

Also invited to the banquet were Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, and Louis F. Batmale, dean of instruction here. Presentation of the awards were made by James Stahlbaum, of the Sheraton Corporation.

AS Honors George Mullany; Collins Names Doudiet Finance Chairman

For his overall service to the college and the Associated Students, George G. Mullany, journalism and graphic arts instructor and adviser to the Publicity Committee, was presented with a silver platter by the members of Student Council during last week's council dinner.

Mullany, who joined the faculty in 1945, thanked council for the award and stated that of all the awards he has received since coming to the college this was one of the finest, if not the finest.

Both Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, and Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men, thanked and praised Mullany for the outstanding work he has done and for his contribution to the college.

Recipients of this semester's service awards, which are presented to the instructor and student chosen by council as contributing the most to the college, while receiving the least recognition, were Irene Mensing, reference librarian, and Robert Hacker, an editorial assistant on The Guardsman staff.

JOURNALISM AND GRAPHIC ARTS INSTRUCTOR George Mullany received a surprise award at last week's council dinner when he was honored with a silver platter from the Associated Students. Here Mullany displays his prize to Irene Mensing.—Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman.

In the first council meeting following the installation of Dan Collins as AS President and Suzanne Murphy as Vice President, Collins announced the appointment of four of his cabinet members for next semester.

They are Jan Doudiet, Finance Chairman; Sue Mount, State Information Chairman; Bill Reichert, Card Sales Chairman, and Richard Dragavon, Publications Board Chairman.

Appointive positions yet to be filled are those of Election Commissioner, Campus Affairs Co-ordinator, Parliamentarian, Recording Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, Men's Athletic Commissioner and Alumni Liaison Officer.

Outgoing Associated Student President Gary Wilkening had dropped the Alumni Officer from his cabinet, but next semester Collins plans to reactivate this position.

Honorary appointive cabinet positions also not filled are those of Rally Commissioner, Inter-Fraternity Council President, Publicity Committee Chairman, Campus Police Chief, Recreation Association President and Inter-Sorority President.

The main discussion during the meeting was over the constitution of the Council of Organizations.

Arguments erupted as amendments to the COO constitution were moved and passed. Problems arose when it was apparent that the council was not acquainted with the workings of COO.

A note of humor was injected into the meeting when Collins couldn't find his gavel. Someone had "borrowed" his new gavel as a joke.

He then threatened to keep council in session until the gavel was returned. He relinquished his stand, however, when at eight minutes after 1 p.m. most of the council members had to attend their next scheduled classes.

AWS Sponsors Big-Little Sister Coketail Social February 5

A Big-Little Sister affair, called the Coketail Party, will be held on Sunday, February 4, newly elected Associated Women Student President Jackie Rommel announced last week.

Purpose of this event is to give incoming women freshman students a chance to become better acquainted with their Big Sisters, and to become orientated briefly with the college campus. The party will be held in Smith Hall, and it will last from 2 to 4 p.m.

Present plans provide that at 2 p.m. refreshments, coke and cookies, will be served in the larger room of Smith Hall, after which the program will begin. The Inter-Sorority Council will provide the entertainment.

A campus tour will follow. Jan Doudiet is in charge of the tour, and the future coeds will be taken through the campus and shown directions for registration. Each Big Sister will escort a small group about the campus.

Dress will be campus and casual clothes for the new students, and currently enrolled students are expected to wear dresses and heels.

Committee officials include Barbara Sperring, entertainment; Rosalie Weiner and Maureen Farley, decorations, and Jerilyn Sciutto, refreshments.

In other developments, Dean Mary Golding reported that 125 women students will be needed to assist the Big Sisters with registration.

The 125 will join the staff of 75 women to provide a total of 200 Big Sisters to assist incoming freshmen in the registration procedure.

Frosh Set Mixer For February 6

Incoming freshmen will be offered the opportunity to meet their class officers and one another at the Frosh Mixer, which will be held on Tuesday, February 6, in Smith Hall.

The two-hour event will begin at 11:30 a.m. following freshman registration on that day. Repeating his spring appearance at the informal affair will be Maury Wolohan and his band.

Greg Monk, class president, disclosed that first semester students who wish to serve as officers next semester now have a chance to do so.

Students wishing to apply for positions can sign up for duty in S-134 or with Monk.

The duties of the new officers will include aiding next semester's freshman president to plan and present the Frosh Mixer and the semiannual Freshman Ball.

Thespians Get New Office But . . .

Colors Pose Possible Problem

If what the psychologists say about the influence of color on the psyche is true, the drama department is in for a surprise.

A backstage lobby has been provided for actors to study their lines while awaiting performance cues. But concentration will be a hard thing to come by in this room since the paint job was done in wild pink, blaring green and patent leather black.

Perhaps a more appropriate use for the lobby would be to relax and cheer nervous flinching students who find the strain of academic life unbearable without the aid of therapy.

Also an innovation is the line of cabinets for the workshop walls, a remarkably constructed ladder that reaches up to half of the 60-foot-high stage, and a set of curtains.

These last three items are quite conventionally colored and act as a stabilizing factor.

Unification Of Campus Groups Aim Of COO As CAB Title Ends

Club Activities Board, one of the campus' leading organizations for the last 14 years, will fold at the end of the semester to be replaced by the Council of Organizations.

COO, now in its first semester here, will take over all the functions formerly performed by the CAB, and will become the second most powerful campus organization.

The demise of CAB, a long-anticipated move provided for by the constitutional amendment passed by the Associated Students last June, was announced after a meeting among Fred Cherniss, COO president; Gary Wilkening, AS president; George Woo, CAB president; Sherman Elsworthy, consultant of these activities groups, and Dean Ralph Hillsman.

All of the campus organizations will be required to send a representative to each of COO's twice-weekly meets. Plans are to count the two meetings as a one-unit course.

Failure to attend the meetings will jeopardize both the grade of the representative and the on-campus status of the club.

Newly acquired duties of COO will include the handling of the Christmas Drive, the Mixer and other major functions. CAB Day will now be known as COO Day.

The move was made to unite all campus organizations. The Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Council will remain intact to handle fraternity and sorority pledging.

COO's other powers include the authority to settle disputes among organizations and the right to take on major college projects. COO first proved itself by handling the 1961 Homecoming.

The car parade, beauty contest, rally and publicity were under the supervision of COO.

The general consensus was that the move was for the betterment of the college's activity program. Cherniss, greatly elated by the change, said, "We'll definitely have more co-ordination within the organizations."

COO is planning to hold its first problems convention off campus sometime after the new semester begins.

Other officeholders in COO are Vice President Don Disterheft, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Secretary Maureen Farley, Phi Beta Rho, and Treasurer Art Searson, president of the Chess Club.

Honor Students To Receive Lower Auto Insurance Rates

Good news for good students came in the form of a recent press release announcing automobile insurance reductions by State Farm Mutual.

State Farm Mutual, the country's largest automobile insurer, stated that a discount of 20 per cent will be offered to honor students in California.

The new discount will go into effect on January 15, and the cut rates will be given to male high school and college drivers of single status with high academic standing, according to State Farm Regional Vice-President Charles Q. Cox. Actual cash savings on the program can be as much as $100 annually for those qualifying.

The company feels that the student who spends more time on studies is spending less time on the highways and consequently decreasing the danger of traffic accidents.

Those qualifying will be full-time students of accredited high schools, colleges and universities meeting any of the following provisions:

1) Rank in the 20th percentile of their class.

2) Have a scholastic average of 3.0 or higher.

3) Be a member of the school honor roll, which is Alpha Gamma Sigma here.

Establishment of the scholastic record must be made through written verification by the school.

William Richardson, sponsor and counselor of the honor society here, commended State Farm Mutual for the encouragement and recognition of good scholarship.

"Students with high scholastic averages are striving toward success, and generally assume responsibility in other areas as well as school work," Richardson commented.

Denman Honor Goes To Science Major Josephine Gunther

Denman scholarship, International Relations Club scholarship and Chinese Student Club scholarship winners were announced last week by Dean Mary Golding.

Josephine Gunther, graduate of George Washington and a bio-chemistry major here, is winner of the $150 Denman scholarship.

Scholarships of $50 will be awarded to three IRC students. They are Ursula Hermann, a business major originally from East Germany; Jane Chow, chemistry major originally from Hong Kong, and Kanji Ehira, architecture major originally from Tokyo.

The Chinese Students' Club is awarding two $50 scholarships. Those receiving scholarships are Sahako Hino and Harry Cordellos.

International Relations Club scholarships will be presented at an IRC graduation party to be held Friday, January 26, at the Park Presidio Young Men's Christian Association.

A Denman scholar must be a graduate of a San Francisco public high school.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

ACP Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. 53, No. 13 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1962 Page 2

With Guardsman Flashback Semester Passes In Review

CITY COLLEGE'S Fall semester of 1961 is almost history with the exception of final examinations. After the usual last-minute "cracking" of texts and the arduous task of recovering from "blue-book blues," many a student will look back and remark, "Boy, what a short semester that was!"

But what actually did happen while each collegian was accumulating another 10 to 16 units of college credit?

Headlines from the 13 issues of The Guardsman this semester tell it something like this:

Classes Jammed As Enrollment Hits Record 8285/ . . . Africa Week Visitors Here Stunned By Loss Of UN's Hammarskjold/ . . . Rams Shut Out Los Angeles In Season Opener/ . . . Congestion Eases; Automats Keep Place In Basement/ . . . Actor Rod Steiger Set To Appear At College Friday.

Once the semester got rolling, student activities got into full swing:

Delayed Opening Of Student Union 'Successful'; Expansion Depends On Student Backing/ . . . Radio Broadcast To Lounge Foreseen/ . . . Council Sets Up Cochairmanship To Run Union/ . . . Newly Formed COO Handles Homecoming Day/ . . . Ram Eleven Rolls Past Los Angeles City, 20-6.

Culturally speaking, College Hour programs here reached new standards of both quality and quantity:

New Concert Series Starts With Ishvani/ . . . Peace Corps' West Coast Representative Grothe Due Here For Speech Friday/ . . . Educator, Heroine In Blitz, Speaks Here During C-Hour/ . . . James Schwabacher To Give Theater Recital During C-Hour/ . . . Blind Teacher Exemplifies . . . Blind On the Job—Friday/ . . . Pianist Jones To Appear In Recital Here Tomorrow.

As far as the college as a whole was concerned, the "Big Stories" in Fall '61 were accented with dollars and cents:

Statler Foundation Grants $100,000 For Enlargement Of Hotel, Restaurant Division Here/ . . . Building Fund, $30,000 Scholarship Up Prestige/ . . . Stock Donation, Grant Aid Benefit Two Departments.

Other stories contained smaller sums, but still were significant in their own right:

Art Contest Prizes Gross $2250/ . . . CAB Christmas Drive Nets $250, Aids 10 Families/ . . . New Theater Costs Create Problem.

Innovations and additions to City College during Fall '61 were numerous and far-reaching:

Closed Circuit TV Aids Educational Methods/ . . . New Ram Band To Play At Friday's Game/ . . . 12 Instructors Join College Staff/ . . . Young Republicans Organize Unit Here/ . . . Deserette Joins List . . . Young Republicans Organize Unit Here/ . . . Deserette Joins List Of Campus Groups/ . . . Wilkening Optimistic, Pleased At First AS Press Conference.

AS election headlines read like this, the coverage before and the results after:

Voters Rush Polls/ . . . Dan Collins, Sue Murphy Unopposed For Top Offices/ . . . Cherniss Elected As SRP Takes Majority.

This column has done enough editorial interpreting this semester; let's leave the total summation and resultant effects of these headlines up to the readers. If college has taught them nothing else this or any other semester, it should have taught them to THINK!

Have a relaxing semester break . . . and then brace yourself for Spring 1962.

"30."

The Spectator

(Today's Spectator is Sandy Sells)

Sophia Loren Scores In Italian Film

A FILM of highest quality is now offered for those who are discriminating enough to recognize a masterpiece. The motion picture is playing at the Metro theater, which has been presenting art films since the San Francisco Film Festival made its home there.

American audiences, nurtured on melodramas and Vincent Price horror movies, may find the film too much to take. The name: Two Women, and no superlative ever awarded to it will be enough to describe it.

The producer, Vittorio de Sica, who has given us many excellent films, controls the constant interplay of realism and idealism in this latest work. In the first scene, the audience is plunged into poverty and impending devastation as bombs scream in war-ravaged Italy.

Sophia Loren, in a master work of sensitivity, is presented in this atmosphere as a spirited peasant widow. All the love that she is capable of giving is centered upon her 12-year-old daughter. The mother's only concern is protection for the girl.

Portraying the child with a flawlessly gentle, luminous quality is Eleanor Brown. She is the perfect supplement to Miss Loren's role.

These, then, are the two women.

When the days are filled with bombs lunging to the earth beneath, when food is growing ever scarcer, and when former homes of neighbors are standing in piles of rubble, the widow makes a decision.

Mother and daughter flee.

In the insane world of war, the two women endure the height of emotion and physical pain in their flight. Yet de Sica is able to bring beauty into this scene of inhuman brutality.

He makes a strong point of his faith in the common man.

Guardsman Staff—Fall, 1961

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... PAUL PLANSKY
Managing Editor ..... Dick Dragavon
News Editor ..... Dave Grieve
Sports Editor ..... Ivan Tames
Feature Editor ..... John Muller
Staff Editor ..... Doug Cathcart
Staff Writer ..... Rich Shields

Editorial Assistants: Dennis Greene, Robert Hacker, Jerry Littrell, Dave Kleinberg, Herman Kligerman.

Reporters: Herbert Mizia, Anna Papagni, Sandy Sells, Evelyn Thude, Kevin Curtis, Vincent Liu.

Cub Reporters: Richard Anderson, Thalia Demakes, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, Fumi Komatsu, Mary McComiha, John McShane, Patricia Nelder.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Are They Red (Hot) Heads?

Carrot-Top Temperament Not Always Up In Flame

Lucille Ball, Red Skelton, Susan Hayward, Van Johnson and Red Buttons of Hollywood, and Bruce Firstman, anatomy instructor here, have something in common—each sports a crop of red hair.

According to an old wives' tale, everyone knows that redheads have fiery tempers. The question is, does the color of their hair have any relation to their temperament?

"Genetically speaking, there is no relation," Firstman explains. "Hair color is determined by genes in the parents and is a physical phenomenon. Temper is purely emotional, and one does not determine the other."

Firstman, who appears mild-mannered, stated that although redheaded he is not hot-tempered. He proposed that the origin of the myth might have been when a redheaded person or even a whole family, all with red hair, had bad tempers, and a false conclusion was drawn.

Another scientific opinion was given by chemistry instructor Roberta Lumb, who explained, "Generally speaking, brown eyes dominate blue, and dark dominates light in hair and skin color. Red hair is a double recessive. That is, the child with red hair has a set of double recessive genes from the parents who each have single recessive genes. In other words, the child is the result of hidden genes carried by the parents."

She also added that anger and hair color are unrelated.

Students here on the whole agree with the scientists although their reasons are less clinical.

For instance, brunette Sophomore Council member Gail Margolin doesn't believe that redheads are more hot-tempered and said that it depends upon the disposition of the person.

Freshman Lillian Scully agreed because "I'm a brunette, and I've got a bad temper."

"I'm easily pleased, and I'm not angered easily," Wendy Groner, a placid redhead, stated.

Sophomore George Woo opined, "The only speculation that I can give you is that redheads are thought of as being Irish, and the Irish are thought of as being hot-tempered, and therefore redheads could be hot-tempered."

"I've never taken a redhead out," blond Sophomore Bob Ross mused, "so I couldn't tell you. I know a lot of brunettes who are hot-tempered. In fact, I think all women are hot-tempered," he concluded as he walked out the door.

Kathy Henderson, a quiet little brunette, submitted, "I once knew this girl and we both liked the same boy. She was a redhead, and she was really hot-tempered." (Miss Henderson did not speculate on whether the girl was hot-tempered because she had red hair or because they both liked the same boy.)

When asked for an explanation as to how the myth started, Freshman Joe Derby replied, "No, I can't give you an explanation. I think that brunettes are the widest of the three." Then with a final gesture of frustration he finished, "Oh, how can you explain women?"—By S.S.

Dream Of Youth

Ken Dekker: His Goal The Majors

By Dave Kleinberg

It is the dream of most youngsters sometime in their lives to become a Micky Mantle, a Roger Maris, a Wilt Chamberlain, a Jerry Lucas, a Floyd Patterson or a Johnny Unitas.

Very few reach such stardom and the road to it is long and usually painful. Very few make the big time, and even fewer become stars. It may take years before the average player is recognized at all.

Ken Dekker, a graduate of St. Ignatius High in 1959, and a student here for three fall semesters thus far, has played minor league baseball for two years in the New York Yankee farm system.

The 20-year-old infielder spent his first season with St. Petersburg in the Florida Class D league where he hit .304, stole more than 20 bases and made the league's All-Star team.

In 1961 he traveled, playing with four different squads ranging from St. Petersburg to Greensboro in the Class B league. His average was nearly .294, and the speedster again stole more than 20 bases.

"You're not only competing against the other team in the minors, you're competing against your own teammates. Everyone wants to make the majors; everyone wants to get out. You play in a city one year, then you want to get out; you want to advance to a higher league," Dekker stated.

"They're all in there for one reason—the big leagues. Everyone has the goal to make the majors. Some of them, if they don't advance, get out and go into business. But there are those who will stick it out no matter what."

A major league rule prohibits the saturation of veterans into the minors. Each team is allowed a limit and no more. This assures the majors of continuous, fresh talent.

Dekker indicated that playing conditions are poor and there is little support from the fans. "The attendance averages about 1000 per game. All traveling we do is by bus, which makes it rough. We play 140 consecutive games without a break, but I'm not complaining. I want to make the majors some day."

He was signed by the Yankees

(Continued on Page 3, Column 2)

Foresight

(Today's Foresight is by Anna Papagni)

ALTHOUGH the public has been exposed to versions of the Romeo-Juliet theme on their television sets for many years, it would be well worth their while to leave the fireside for the enthralling screen treatment of the Broadway musical, West Side Story, which gives a new slant to an old story.

The pair is not from the feuding houses of Montagu and Capulet this time, but rather from two opposing ethnic gangs that vent their youthful energies by fighting each other in the streets of New York's slum area.

When feeling begins to overflow, three young lives are lost in a gang fight before anyone sees the futility of hate. Shakespeare said it before, West Side Story says it now, and others will repeat for the future.

Yet, strangely enough, one comes away from the theater remembering the brilliantly funny, happy scenes rather than the dramatically tragic events.

For instance, the Puerto Rican group sings and dances through a remarkable number where they are spoofing their sociological problem of being accepted. "Everything's bright if you're white in America."

Likewise, the opposing gang of second generation Americans have fun with their delinquency status. "I'm depraved on account of I'm deprived."

And, of course, there is the wonderful "balcony scene" between Tony and Maria which takes place on the fire escape of a tenement building. It is here that the beautiful song, Tonight, is introduced.

Natalie Wood as Maria gives the best performance of her somewhat overrated career. She is delightful as a lovely young Puerto Rican girl in the midst of first love but not yet acquainted with the prejudices surrounding her.

Her partner, Richard Veymer who plays Tony, might have added more depth to his characterization. He overplayed the dreamy-youth-in-love.

George Chakiris as the Puerto Rican leader and Rita Moreno, who portrayed his fiery but gentle girl friend, turned in the best performances in the cast, especially Chakiris, a marvelous combination of assurance and sensitivity.

Russ Tamblyn was amusingly successful as head of the second delinquent band, combining defensiveness and energy glossed over with humor.

The direction of Robert Wise and Jerome Robbins was fine on the whole but was too contrived in spots, such as the boy meets girl scene.

This is definitely a movie not to be missed. Not only is the story line meaningful but the Leonard Bernstein-Stephen Soudheim musical score is going to be heard for a long time to come.

All mankind is divided into three distinct groups: those who are immovable, those who are movable and those who move.—Benjamin Franklin.

Science Hall HAS A Fourth Floor . . .

Life Beside The Jungle Includes Frogs In A Refrigerator, Mice, Rabbits And Fleas

THE GENTLE HAND of John Hare showers an inhabitant of Science Hall's fourth floor.
—Guardsman photo by Elmer Lutar.

Hidden away from the gaze of the average student here who would not know the magic words that open locked doors on the seldom frequented fourth floor of the Science Hall is something that life science instructors call the Animal Room.

The inhabitants of the fourth floor are part of more than a million dollars worth of teaching facilities that make the life science department top all in the two-year college system and even in some universities.

The first thing that one's attention will be drawn to in this combination zoo, aquarium and botanical garden is a multitude of small cages that draw or repel the observer, depending on the strength of his curiosity over the sense perception of smell.

For the past ten years John E. Hare, science instructor, has been raising groups of black, brown and white rats that enable him to demonstrate genetic processes to his classes.

Like a suburban housing development, these square cages, lined up side by side, allow the inhabitants to look at the outside world through a large front window which, in this case, is made of wire. But more important, the observer can look inside to watch families of pink-eyed rabbits and diminutive mice as well as rats.

According to another science instructor, Ronald Hochede, who has charge of this area, new neighbors will be moving onto the block—turtles.

Even in this community a class structure becomes evident. Separated from the rest in a big white house on a hill, called a refrigerator by people, live the frogs.

Hochede explained that the cold temperature lowers their rate of metabolism so that the animals can survive on just a little water.

Continuing with this fourth floor tour, a small jungle comes into view. This myriad of growth is used primarily by George Gould for his botany classes.

Through a glass door and onto the open roof the eye seeks out seven wooden barrels. They appear to have been collecting water for a good number of rainy seasons, but in reality they sustain cultures of water fleas which thrive on different material in each barrel, including yeast and manure.

Two other such areas exist in Science Hall. Guinea pigs are kept in 326 away from the rats with whom they do not seem to get along, and farther down at the end of the hall in 315 is a glass-enclosed lab that

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Counterpoint

Snappy, Lacy Puzzle Faces Today's Man

By Dick Dragavon

MEN, prepare yourselves for a battle!

It is not altogether certain with whom the battle will be, but it will not be with any left-wing reds or with right-wing radicals.

The issues were born in the studio of men's fashion designers.

For years these creators have merely played with the number of buttons on the suitcoat or whether men's attire should have a button on the back or a buckle or possibly a button-down-buckle.

At least it appeared that they were content with just these frivolities. But something much more subtle was happening!

Trousers lost their cuffs and perhaps an inch or two to boot. In fact, almost to boot tops!

This was called conservatism or sometimes ultraconservatism, names which at first glance seem rather inappropriate.

The ones who were conserving, however, were the manufacturers who saved probably as much as one-third to one-half of a yard of material per suit.

Now, according to an article in one of the daily newspapers, the garment planners are starting to work on the waist. (Not the waste, there is not much left after all that conservatism.)

Trousers will come with a built-in, four-inch wide elastic girdle which will adjust one's spare tire either up or down "as the wearer wishes," quotes the designer.

No mention was made as to what this contrivance would do to the lean pioneer types (there must still be some around, somewhere) should they purchase a '62 model suit.

Since it seemed that men's fashions were beginning to compete with women's in the hemline and waist department, it was heartening to read that all padding was out from the shoulders and "from the front." (More conservatism, no doubt.)

The last part of that statement is what causes the doubt as to who the men are to battle.

What was that padding in front which they removed? Was it really there or are the schemers merely saying that it was so that they will have an excuse to "put it back again" later?

The battle will be either against the designers for less dainty apparel or the women at the unmentionable bargain counter.

All Parking Areas To Open During Exams

All students will be allowed to park in the parking areas around the college during finals week, even if they do not display a proper permit on their vehicle, Fred Fitzgerald, criminology instructor here, said last week.

The only area that will be closed to student use will be the faculty parking area around Cloud Hall. This is the only area in which tickets will be issued to illegally parked cars.

Tin has a boiling point of about 2270 degrees centigrade.

Ramporium Sells Sweat Shirts, Buys Back Books

Colored sweatshirts are the newest additions of clothing available to students in the Ramporium.

The Ramporium staff also advised all students to sell their used books to the bookstore during finals week beginning Friday, January 19, and continuing through next week.

Used books should be sold immediately after students have finished all class conferences and examinations in their courses, Ramporium Manager Dick Main said. In this way students will receive quicker and more convenient service.

Early return of used books will help students to avoid the confusion and rush that occurs each semester at registration time, Main added.

Shirts now come in three colors: red, white and powder blue, at a cost of $2.95. This trio of wearing apparel bears a block letter of the college and the college's name or initial letters.

The red shirts have a white block and white letters underneath while coloring of the white shirts is reversed. Those in powder blue have the initial letters in white with a white block. Twelve were sold the first day they were on the shelves.

During registration next month the Ramporium will be open to students from 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. The regular hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Main urged students to purchase spring semester books during registration only after they are sure of their programs and classes.

Bookstore aides will wear identifying red shirts for students who need help in purchasing their books and supplies.

S.I. Grad Three Steps From The Big Leagues

(Continued from Page 2)

after one semester at University of California. "It would be the greatest thrill to play with guys like Maris and Mantle. To me the Yankees are the greatest ball club."

The excellent fielding infielder, who signed for a bonus, said, "The Yankees are a top organization. They pay the top salary by far all through the minors. They hire the best coaches.

"I played shortstop mainly, but played all nine positions at one time or another. I must have set a record by hitting into two straight triple plays in 1960."

Dekker attends college here every fall semester ending in February. He then goes into training for two months before traveling to the Yankee farm training ground at Richmond. From there, ball players are farmed to different ball clubs according to their ability.

Would Dekker consider quitting baseball? "If I have a good year, of course, I'll keep at it. If I have a mediocre year, I will probably continue. If I have a bad year, I will give it up.

"That's why I'm in college. I know I can't play baseball all of my life. My parents have encouraged me in both baseball and studies."

Dekker reports to Augusta, Georgia, to play in the South Atlantic Class A league—three steps from the big time.

'. . . Rats On It!'—Hare

Live Exhibits Bring Realism To Classes

(Continued from Page 2)

makes a home for the cold-blooded variety of life, namely, the reptile.

Snakes rest here, lazily coiled in glass cages next to the giant, bumpy toad. Also in this vicinity are rows of murky jars teeming with one-celled plants and animals.

The department faculty is immensely enthusiastic, Hare states, with the opportunity to allow its students to observe first hand those things which are discussed in lectures and in the text.

Not only are they available to the student but the three locations are in close proximity to the classroom in which they are being discussed. This is especially true of 315, where the lab area is enclosed within the classroom, which is, of course, the ideal situation, Hare said.—By A.M.P.

RAISING RATS and other animals on the fourth floor of Science Hall is only part of Dr. John Hare's job here as life science instructor.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● KEAR: Good Music

Editor, The Guardsman:

In your Guardsman of January 4 in the article, Ex-Student Back As Technician, was the following phrase: ". . . KYA and KEAR (then the good music station)."

I believe that this is an unfair statement. KEAR does not play the music KYA does but rather it plays religious music. Since when is religious music not good music?

KEAR also plays instrumental music of some of the finest bands and vocals by some of the most famous singers such as Johnny Mathis.

The program, Time For Teens, at 5 p.m. would rival any of the encophony stations. Let the readers of this letter tune KEAR and judge for themselves. I believe they will say that KEAR is still the good music station.

—Laurie Thuriwell, vice president, Collegiate Christian Fellowship

Chinese Club Slates Sweetheart Rally

With the Chinese New Year less than three weeks away, the Chinese Students Club, unofficially initiating the celebration spirit, will stage a rally on Saturday, January 27, from 8:30 p.m. to 12 midnight at Victory Hall in Chinatown, Winfred Tom, president of the CSC, disclosed today.

The main purpose of the event, however, is to promote interest in the club's 17th annual Sweetheart Ball, which serves to raise scholarship funds for two deserving members each year and will be held Saturday, March 3, at the Jack Tar Hotel.

Highlighting the rally will be a dance and a talent show featuring four candidates running for the Sweetheart Ball queen title. An introduction and interview of the queen hopefuls will be conducted by Steve Young, social chairman of the club.

Sweetheart candidates and their escorts are Helen Poon and Robert Wong, Sylvia Shue and Sherman Won, Virginia Yim and Pat Gee, and Sandy Hamamoto and Eddie Chunn.

Admission to the rally is free.

● The Easy Way Out?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Every semester around the 5th of January and the 23rd of May I notice the office of the registrar gains a new found popularity.

In case you didn't know, these two dates are the deadlines for petitioning to take a leave of absence. For some students with a valid excuse these dates are rightfully very important and essential. But, for the lazy student whose grades have fallen through his own doing, they offer nothing more than an "easy out."

But is it really such a cut and dried escape as it might seem at first glance? You wouldn't think that a person would be so willing to throw away five months of his life just because he didn't have the ambition to just "sit down and study."

If a person considers his time that unimportant and useless, how in the world can he expect other people to have any more confidence in him as a productive individual.

If he fails through sheer laziness at the college level what will he do when he finally emerges into the business world? The answer is simple. He'll do the same thing.

Quit!

—To the Bitter End

Final(s) Proclamation Is Short: No Shorts!

The phrase Final Examinations instills a shudder down the spine of the hardiest student and causes a sensation of dark gloom.

With emphasis placed on concentration a student unintentionally slides into a temporary decline sometimes lending himself to a slovenly appearance.

Intercepting the potential threat of informality during finals, Jack Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced that appropriate coed dress does not include shorts, capris or any variety of slacks.

Man is an able creature, but he has made 35,643,692 laws and has yet to improve on the Ten Commandments.

318 Here File Petitions For Fall Graduation

Petitions to graduate at the end of the fall semester were received from 318 students here recently, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard announced today. Applicants are as follows:

John Ahern, Hirofumi Akahoshi, Margaret Albrehi, Terry Alcisti, Deidna Aldrete, Gregorio Anderson, Wilfredo Asuncion, Emma Atkinson, Jelly Au, Robert Aurand, Napoleon Awsberry, Mary Ann Austin, Willie Austin.

Lawrence Baird, Bruce Bangert, Paul Barth, Wright Batlin, Sandra Belcher, Lewie Bell, Peter Bellizzi, Ruth Belsher, Dennis Black, Bobbie Bohlar, Bartholomew Bolin, John Brady, Lorelei Brede, Omar Briley, Harry Brown, Saundra Brown, Donald Burkhead, Stephana Burnell, Joan Burton, Allan Burton.

Robert Callister, Linda Cantwell, Kenneth Carey, Mary Carmack, Othello Carr, Jr., Gary Cassidy, Alvin Chan, Bonnie Chang, Clifford Charlson, Donald Chew, David Chin, Herbert Choy, Paul Christensen, Patricia Chu, Freida Clements, Gary Cohen, Edwin Coll, Jackie Commodaran, James Comrazo, Deanne Corriganal, George Cox, David Costerouse, Miss Cota, Vincent Coval, Frank Cristiani, Kent Croft.

Amir Darabian, Lea Davini, Michael Davis, George Dea, Donald Decker, Eduardo Dell-Arenio, Lois Dell'Arino, Robert De Martini, Ronald Derenzi, Clinton Derry, David Desidert, Dale Devine, Alfred Dieter, Helmut Dieter, David Doon, Lynell Douglas, Charles Dunn, Kathleen Dunn.

Gina Fandi, James Egan, Casemiro Epe, Jr., Anthony Escaliz, Jeanelle Fandrini, Richard Fell, Jose Fernandez, Patricia Fernandez, Charles Fiesse, Bernard Finnegan, Matilyn Fipps, Cary Fong, George Foster, Gilbert Freeman, Carolee Fromm, Allen Fuller, James Fuller, Barbara Furiong.

Vincent Galea, Hernando Garcia, Irene Garcia, Robert Garris, Janice Gee, Jean Giannini, Raymond Gin, Charles Giovannini, Julius Gissing, Dennis Gomez, Richard Goodman, Vicki Gould, Ulysses Grant, Allen Greenberg, Juliene Gregorie, Lionel Gress, Remo Guimasso, Marie Gummerson, Salvadore Gurani, Rudolph Gutierrez.

Roger Hagemann, Giovanni Halstead, Harvey Harrison, Stewart Hastings, George Hayes, David Heffelfinger, Joyce Helm, Kathleen Henderson, Barney Hill, Dorick Hirsch, Patricia Hoffman, Gwenn Hom, Mary Honnibal, Nilda Hover, Donald Hufnagel.

Daniel Jacobsen, Michael Jacobson, Frank James, Glenn Johnson, Nels Johnson, Peter Johnson, Kenneth Jonah, Charles Jones, Henry Jones, Wilma Jones, Rudy Jovea, Daniel Judkovic, Roy June.

Robert Kalloch, Yoshie Kamniani, Stephen Kan, Lawrance Kane, Arnold Katz, William Katz, Nicki Kawazenki, Francis Kaweks, Josephine Kennedy, Sinart Kepner, Barbara Kiesewetter, Ben Kimura, Lois Kincy, Alexander Kocherzin, Fredric Kopperdahl, Mary Kosloske, Edward Kraus, Barbara Krell.

Danny Lam, Patricia Lanzo, Steve Lavezzo, George Lazarus, Stephen Leavell, Loren Leavitt, Emmie Lee, Foon Lee, Gwen Lee, William Lee, Michael Legaspi, James Leonard, Diane Levin, Lester Lew, Elbert Life, Emmons Limelmeier, Charles Lindsay, Vincent Liu, Dorothea Lofquist, Ameen Long, Julia Louie, Nicholas Loukinaoff, Preston Low, Maureen Lualhati, Eileen Lydon, Rosalie Lyght, Phillip Lynas.

Paul Malfatti, Carlos Manrilla, Lawrence Marcum, Gaslano Marra, Richard Massey, Diana Maisui, Malasala Malasura, Evelyn Mays, Gloria Mays, Gerald McCarthy, Charles McCreary, Leamond McGriff, Elden Melvin, Bruce Mehlee, Robert Miller, Larry Miyamoto, Sheree Moores, Stanley Morigushi, Charles Mullen, Yuniko Murata.

Paul Nalham, Jovina Navarro, Roy Nelson, Stephen Nevins, Gene Ng, Diane Nieri, Roger Nissim.

Kenneth Olff, Mary Olsen, Frank Olson, Roy Ono, Ofunl Omanya, Angeline Or, John Orme, Kimihoro Oia, Christine Ow.

Carolyn Pastore, Sandra Payne, Marilyn Phillips, Ronald Pickard, Paul Plansky, Charlan Pfeifer, Carol Pohl, Robert Politti, Lita Pon, May Pon, Sharon Powers, Eugene Prol, Charmaily Prull, Edward Preston, Thomas Prire, Robert Pucetti, Patricia Pun.

Wilma Raeymaeckers, Kevin Reid, Ilex Reinhart, Pedro Reyes, Brooke Reynolds, Leanne Reynolds, Richard Riley, Robert Robertson, Marilyn Rodees, Charles Rogers, Frances Rogers, Clifford Rose, Jay Ross, Andrew Rutz.

Sharon Sadler, Charlotte Salazar, Cristina Salcedo, Andrea Schaffer, Karl Scheu, Owen Schiz, Allan Schoening, Peter Schwahn, Michael Seidini, Deborah Shaw, Max Sherman, David Shirey, Geraldine Surler, Miriam Shu, Martin Smirlech, Phoe Smith, Mary Smith, Kimber Soda, Neal Solloway, Abigail Sommerin, Robert Sover, Patricia Steffen, Lillian Stell, Alfred Stewart, Fred Stralbuse, Howard Sue, Richard Sullivan.

Douglas Tanner, Richard Taylor, Margaret Thorne, Alan Thomas, Joseph Tognelli, Derek Tsui, Lana Tsui, Karen Turner.

Don Ujeda, Flavio Vallente, Gaetano Vasta, Hazi Velasco, Hope Vogel.

William Wright, Maurice Ward, Judith White, Thomas Whitford, Susan Whiting, Larry Wilkening, Jean Williams, Barbara Wilson, Austin Wolf, Alvin Wong, Andrew Wong, Hellmund Wong, John Wong, Robert Wong, George Woo, Vincent Woo, Wallace Woo.

June Yamauchi, John Yantis, Melvyn Yee, Joseph Young, Sandra Yung and Gary Zeltler.

Wednesday, January 17, 1962 Page 3

C-Minus Average Students Face Disqualification

Approximately 800 students will be tentatively dropped from the college at the end of this semester, according to John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare.

Grades of all students completing the fall semester will be reviewed, and students falling below a C-minus will be subject to delayed registration pending their readmission, Brady said.

Readmission can be gained by appearing before either of two readmission committees composed of a total of six faculty members. Students whose grades fall below the C-minus level will be notified by mail at the end of the semester whether they are to consult with Brady or appear before the committee.

Before appearing, the student must explain in a letter the reasons for the poor grades. Students asked to appear for the first time are usually conditionally readmitted.

No transfer student from any college or university will be admitted if he fails to meet the same requirements of presently enrolled students, Brady emphasized.

29 Students Receive Awards At RA Social

Twenty-nine awards were presented last Friday night at the Recreation Association's awards social.

Students who received their first semester shields were Tom Auyoung, Sue Davis, Stanley Durkee, Sheilah D'Aubert, Dan Early, Natalie Gubert, Sally George, Beverly Galton, Sharon Hawley, Dave Hoffman, Violet Enquida, Bob Lawrence, Bill Lindo, Marcia Laviolette and Keiko Manabe.

Others were Clara Mark, Dianne O'Neil, Nelly Otteriana, Stanley Schmidt, Barbara Spering, Ivy Turney, Jessie Willis, Aida Whitney, Virginia Young and Robert Zollman.

Second semester blocks went to Maxine Backman, Harry Jogensen and Sue Oddone. Amir Darabian received his third semester star.

First cable car rolled up Clay street on August 1, 1873.

Final Examination Schedule

Fall Semester, 1961

Classes	Day	Hour
8 Daily	Tuesday, January 23	8:00-12:00
8 MWF	Tuesday, January 23	8:00-10:00
8 TTh	Tuesday, January 23	10:30-12:30
8-9:25, 8:45-10 TTh	Tuesday, January 23	10:30-12:30
9 Daily	Friday, January 19	8:00-12:00
9 MWF	Friday, January 19	8:00-10:00
9-10, 9:45-11 TTh	Friday, January 19	10:30-12:30
10 Daily	Wednesday, January 24	8:00-12:00
10 MWF	Wednesday, January 24	8:00-10:00
10 TTh	Wednesday, January 24	10:30-12:30
10-11:25, 10:45-12 TTh	Wednesday, January 24	10:30-12:30
11 Daily	Monday, January 22	8:00-12:00
11 MWF	Monday, January 22	8:00-10:00
11 TTh	Monday, January 22	10:30-12:30
11-12:25, 11:45-1 TTh	Monday, January 22	10:30-12:30
12 Daily	Thursday, January 25	8:00-12:00
12 MWF	Thursday, January 25	8:00-10:00
12-1, 12:45-2 TTh	Thursday, January 25	10:30-12:30
1 Daily	Tuesday, January 23	1:00-5:00
1 MWF	Tuesday, January 23	1:00-3:00
1-2, 1-2:25 TTh	Tuesday, January 23	3:30-5:30
2 Daily	Friday, January 19	1:00-5:00
2 MWF	Friday, January 19	1:00-3:00
2, 2:45-4 TTh	Friday, January 19	3:30-5:30
3 Daily	Wednesday, January 24	1:00-5:00
3 MWF	Wednesday, January 24	1:00-3:00
3 TTh	Wednesday, January 24	3:30-5:30
4 & 5 Daily	Friday, January 26	8:00-12:00
4 & 5 MWF	Friday, January 26	8:00-10:00
4 & 5 TTh	Friday, January 26	10:30-12:30
Chemistry 1A	Monday, January 22	3:15-6:00
Health (Women)	Monday, January 22	1:00-2:00
Health (Men)	Monday, January 22	2:15-3:15

Overcoming An Injury

'Nooch' Returns, Earns Top Berth On Cage Squad

It's tough to play basketball if you can't walk.

Certainly no one knows this better than starting guard Sophomore Bill Nocetti, one of the Rams' early season stars, because only a year ago he couldn't even lift his left foot.

However, the courage and determination of the 5-11, 168-pounder have earned him a starting berth and prompted a happy Coach Sid Phelan to declare, "He's been giving us the outside shooting we sorely need."

"Nooch," as he is known to his friends, played at and was graduated from Sacred Heart High School in 1958, and attended St. Bonaventure in New York the following year.

Still taking therapy and wearing a special knee guard, Nocetti vividly recalls the freakish mishap which befell him in August, 1959, on the cement court of a San Francisco playground.

"I fell but didn't land correctly and tore the muscles and ligaments on the outside of my knee."

However, the hard landing had also severed Nocetti's common peroneal nerve. The muscles and ligaments eventually healed but the unusual nerve separation caused considerable problems. The present Ram standout had suffered what is known as a "drop foot."

It was impossible even to lift his foot, leaving considerable doubt as to any future athletic career, and two lengthy operations on the knee and foot, one in August and the other in November, were necessitated.

Moving about only with the aid of cast and crutches until March, 1960, Nocetti required a great deal of therapy to help his foot function properly, while the nerve began growing back together. Even today this growth continues.

Despite his disability Nocetti attended here in Spring, 1961, and eventually began working toward regaining his athletic stature.

BILL NOCETTI

This determination has paid off for the Ram guard, who carries a full load of studies, now can and does play with the aid of a special knee brace.

Is there any possibility of a recurring injury?

Nocetti reveals, "Unless I should fall hard on almost the exact spot there is no real danger anymore."

The Ram cagers are looking for a possible Big Eight title this year, and if they can show the fight that "Nooch" has they are certain to be in the running all the way.

Rams Surprise With Twin Wins To Open Big 8 Season

Diles, Comisky Lead JV Cagers To 7-4 Seasonal Mark

Somewhat similar to the University of San Francisco's football-for-fun team, the Alex Schwarz - coached City College junior varsity basketball team will play 25 exhibition games against various high schools, service teams and JV teams of other colleges and universities.

Boasting a 7-4 won-lost record thus far, the squad possesses outstanding players in center Elton Diles, forwards Dick Wehrmeister, Marty McGuinn, Tom Rice and Bob Soper, and guards John Jacobson, Bill Denniston, Pat Cooney and John Comisky.

Since Stockton and Sacramento City Colleges are the only other two members in the Big Eight Conference that have JV teams, there is no league available for City College JV cagers.

Schwarz said lack of coaches is the reason for the other member colleges' inability to gather a JV squad. However, he felt that there is a reasonably good chance in the near future for a league to form.

Duggan, McGriff Stand Out As Sacto, Contra Costa Fall

By Jerry Littrell

Rated at the beginning of the season as only a dark horse for first place, Coach Sid Phelan's cagers last weekend surprisingly proved that they have everything needed for a possible title when they defeated Sacramento 61-48 and overpowered Contra Costa 71-50 in their opening Big Eight Conference games.

Combining a flashy offense with a steady defense and adding superior rebounding with exceptional floorshooting, the Rams relentlessly overran their opposition in these two spirited battles.

Brad Duggan and Elton McGriff unquestionably earned game honors with their two excellent performances.

Hitting for a combined total of 39 points Duggan, preseason team leader in points, notched 21 points against Sacramento with a 70 per cent shooting average and came back against Contra Costa with 18 digits.

McGriff inspirationally played the center spot with his 6-7 frame. He came down with 19 rebounds against the Panthers and then upped his season total to 43 as he yanked 24 off the boards against the Comets.

Both games started with the Rams unable to hit for many points while the other team was building up a sizeable margin. In the early moments of the opening period the locals found themselves trailing 16-12 against Sacramento. Duggan, who had been held to two points so far, then broke open their defense by scoring some quick points and aided by Bill Nocetti's three buckets the Rams took a 25-22 half-time lead.

Charles Currington, Duggan and McGriff then dominated the second half and when a sizeable 58-44 lead had been built up Phelan inserted his defensive unit, who then finished the game allowing only four points in the remaining four minutes.

Again, against the Comets, the Rams offense stuttered at the start of the game as they were behind 20-6 after only eight minutes of play. McGriff, who had been held to seven points the night before, then exploded for nine points while Duggan hit 11 more to give the hoopsters a 33-26 half-way lead.

Both Duggan and McGriff received a well deserved ovation as they left the floor during the closing minutes of the game. By that time the Rams had built up a 67-47 lead.

Dave Roberts, Gene Batiste and Randy Simms, the defensive unit, were again called upon to contain the Comets, and they held them to 10 points during the remaining eight minutes.

Spring Sports Roundup

Local Track Team Strongest In Discus Throwing, Distance Runs

Coach Lou Vasquez, after going undefeated in Big Eight Conference play and winning the conference track meet last year, said, "This is the best team I have ever coached." This year he claims his team could be just as good.

Despite heavy losses in the high jump and the sprints, Vasquez appears to have basis for his statement. He definitely will be strong in the discus and distant runs.

Alex Darnes, possibly the best discus thrower in the state, threw 167 feet in the West Coast Relays, and returns to aim for the 173-foot national record.

An All-Conference football player, Darnes, whose first love has always been track, can throw the shot-put nearly 50 feet, and can be counted on to run the sprints in a emergency.

Muscular Bill Holman, who fills his 5-9 frame with 225 pounds, has thrown the shot-put 47-1 and the discus 135 feet. New men who could help are Pete Downing (St. Ignatius) and Cal Rothman (Lincoln), two football tackles, and Elbert Robinson from Washington.

The Rams should be strongest in the one and two-mile events.

John Weldinger (Balboa), Tony Ferrigno (St. Ignatius), Richard Byers (Lincoln), Andrew Loobey (Polytechnic), George Varmuza (Washington), Jose Valle (Lincoln), John Arberry (Polytechnic) and Steve Jacobson should score heavily in the distant runs.

T-Birds May Stymie Netters' High Hopes

Despite the fact that the Rams have Bob Siska, one of the top ranking tennis players in Northern California, Oakland City College seems to have the best squad to appear in the league during the last five or six years.

Tom Edelfsen, who has defeated Siska quite easily in the past, is a potential Davis Cup player and easily the number one man on the Oakland squad.

The Rams, who hope to improve on last year's deadlocking second-place finish, are backed by Rich Murray, a former Lincoln High School graduate and last year's number three man. This year's number three man, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen, will probably be John Kearns, number one man at Washington High last semester.

The Rams open their exhibition season against Monterey.

The first annual alumni - student tennis tournament will be played at 11 a.m. on Saturday, February 24, either in Golden Gate Park or the Olympic Club.

Diederichsen is hoping that graduates Nick Scharf, 1957; Bill Wright, Fred Watters, 1958; Fred Botsford, 1959, and Jack Hymns, an AAA champ in 1951, will participate.

Linkers Slate Seven Practice Matches

Beginning to mold a formidable golf squad, Coach Grover Klemmer has scheduled seven practice matches, beginning February 16 with Alameda. Other preseason matches will be against Diablo, Hamilton, Stockton, Marin and San Jose for two.

The Big Eight Conference season opens on March 16 against a strong San Mateo team. Having taken a third place last year, Klemmer is expecting to do better this season, but predicts San Mateo will take the top spot for a second straight year.

Top clubber for the Rams is Jim Baffico. Baffico, who just finished an outstanding football season and was named to the junior college All-American team, was graduated from St. Ignatius High School.

Next on the ladder is Steve Whitman, a graduate from George Washington High School and former All-City golf champion.

Dennis Drucker, another top swinger, will rate a top position if he continues at the college.

Light Signups Force Load On Mermen Vets

Once again as in previous years the swimming team has a small turnout.

With such returnees as John Holm, last season's All-Conference breast stroke champion, John Vida, Eli Silver and Jim Ahern, there is still a very good chance for a strong showing this season.

This year two new teams, Santa Rosa and Modesto, have been added to the league.

Two newcomers to the squad are Herman Fruchtenicht, a breast stroker, and Bill Love, a promising back stroker.

Rams Face Pirates Friday; Crucial Games To Follow

Five home games remain in the Big Eight basketball competition for the upset - minded Rams, three against the league powerhouses, Oakland, Stockton and San Mateo.

One of the five remaining home games will be played this Friday when the locals host the Modesto Pirates at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

The remaining home games will be Friday, February 2, against powerhouse San Mateo; Tuesday, February 6, against Oakland; Friday, February 16, against Stockton and Friday, February 23, against Santa Rosa.

The first three home games in February will probably be the crucials. All three teams will be in high contention for the title.

Again picked for a top spot finish, league powerhouse San Mateo, led by 6-4 center Howie Sundberg, should have little trouble in their quest for first place. The Bulldogs are loaded with speed and power, both offensively and defensively, along with height and above average shooting.

Both Stockton and Oakland will be the top teams combatting the Mateans this season. Stockton's Mustangs are led by Andy Stoglin, 6-1 forward who won All-American high school honors during his prep days in Arizona.

Coach Sid Phelan's starting five now consists of 6-7 center Elton McGriff, 6-4 forward Charles Currington, 6-3 forward Brad Duggan, 5-8 guard "Goose" Adams and 5-11 guard Bill Nocetti.

Nocetti and Adams are going to be relied upon to supply most of the outside shooting while the height of McGriff, Currington and Duggan will be used to haul in rebounds.

Two exceptional guards who will back up the starting duo are veteran Dave Roberts and Gene Batiste. The forward spot will be open to Bob Mulcreavy and Randy Simms, while Currington could be moved to center if needed.

Batiste and Simms are good defensive men. McGriff has finally come into his own, using his height and strength in hitting the boards and coming down with the all-important rebounds.

RAMblings

Too Much Football, But It Finally Ends

By Ivan Temes

UNLESS some money-hungry promoter dreams up a Cherry Bowl game to play on Washington's Birthday next month, football season is finally over and it's about time.

With most college elevens concluding their campaign in November, there is no sense in having bowl games played after the New Year's traditionals.

Believe it or not, basketball season has already passed the half-way point but who would know it when the cage sport is sandwiched between the numerous east-west gridiron battles and the furor over Roger Maris' salary.

Many college coaches are finally speaking out against the exploitation of their athletes in such contests as the Senior and United States Bowls. Are patriotic sportsmen supposed to watch the latter because of its name when its sole purpose is to make money for the directors?

There's nothing wrong with the charity tiffs such as the East-West and North-South encounters but the other games are becoming too numerous and spoiling the true significance of an all-star game.

It's up to the NCAA to formulate a policy that will control the number of post-season battles. If it doesn't take some action the games will become meaningless and die at the gate.

The pros are no better. It's all right to have an all-star game but why should there be a Playoff Bowl for third place in the National League after the title is already decided. The championship should be the climax to close the season on.

At least, all the post-season contests proved one thing which is heartening. The West had it and the East didn't. Except for a loss in the American League all-star tilt and a tie in the Hula Bowl, the West took everything else.

Included are the East-West, United States, the Pro Bowls in addition to the NFL games which were won convincingly by Green Bay and Detroit.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH, of sorts, for the West directly concerns City College. The National Junior College Soccer Coaches Association released its All-American eleven last week and the incredible Ram booters placed a total of four men on the first team.

Playing against only four-year colleges, the Rams went unbeaten last season and received due recognition as goalie Gary DeLong, center-forward Al Kerbus who scored 22 goals in seven games, Dave Fromer and Cesar Pina wound up on the all-star aggregation.

When one considers that it's an achievement for a team to place even one man on a squad of this type and that most of the voting was done in different parts of the country, the feat is even more amazing.

Batsmen Slate 15 Pre-Loop Games For March; Eisan Hopeful

Signups for the varsity baseball squad are still being accepted, and any person interested in playing should apply to Coach Lee Elsan before the end of next week.

With only three returning veterans and a light crop of rookies so far, Elsan stated that there are "spots open in every position to any qualified player."

Practice will start around February 1, and the preseason games should start toward the end of February or the beginning of March.

This season's schedule will include approximately 15 practice encounters and a double round-robin of the Big Eight Conference.

A puck used in ice hockey is one-inch thick and three inches in diameter and weighs 6¼ ounces.

CJCSGA Confab To Emphasize Leadership This Saturday

Emphasis will be on leadership and the exchange of ideas during the 33rd semiannual Northern Regional California Junior College Student Government Association Conference this Saturday at Vallejo Junior College, Dan Collins, Associated Student president here, announced today.

Representing this college at the meet will be 18 student leaders. Each has already been assigned to one of 10 workshops.

For the first time, two Student Council delegates here have been selected to preside at workshops. Fred Cherniss will lead the campus organizations workshop and Greg Monk the activities workshop.

Collins attributes this exclusive honor to "the great influence City College is making on the other 25 two-year colleges participating in the conferences."

Different also this semester is the fact that representatives of professions in the community will address the workshops. They will be joined by faculty members from Vallejo College.

William Winter, widely known radio and TV newscaster, will be the principal speaker, and his topic will be related to the present world situation and the theme of the conferences, which is leadership.

Collins and his vice president, Suzanne Murphy, are to be active in the conference organization shop.

Dave Grieve and Pat Nelder will represent the college in campus communications, Jan Doudiet and Dave Otey in finances, Jim Ahern in athletics and Otto Van Duyn and John Thelan in spirit.

Taking part in the leadership section of student government will be Bill May and Marcia Devlin, and Vince Contreras joins the parliamentary law division of the workshop.

Working with Cherniss will be Ed Pawlus. Monk will have as his assistant in activities Jackie Rommel. Attending the meeting for evaluation purposes are Gail Margolin and Andy Shamiyeh.

Larry Day, overall chairman of the conference, emphasized in a letter to Collins that no new resolutions will be brought up this time.

Serving as alternates in case one of the appointed delegates can not attend are Jim Fuller, Judy Gerstle, Laurie Thurlwell and Jerry Sciutto, Collins added.

Sherm E. Elworthy, student government adviser, and Dean of Women Mary Golding will again accompany the delegation this semester.

The state conference is scheduled for March 28, 29 and 30 in Los Angeles. Outstanding delegates attending this Saturday's meeting will also be invited to participate, Collins stated.

H&R Department To Reach Statler Grant Goal Of $50,000 By Mid-March

Pledges and contributions are rapidly increasing the stipulated fund in the hotel and restaurant department's drive toward $50,000, according to Dean Louis Batmale, who expects the goal to be reached by mid-March.

Recognition came to the college last semester when a grant of $100,000 was made by the Statler Foundation of New York toward the enlargement of the facilities of the college's H&R department.

The gift was contingent on the H&R and allied industries raising another $50,000 to yield a building and equipment fund of $150,000, Batmale said.

Dinners for hotel industry representatives and alumni have already been given and all who have attended have contributed generously, he added. San Francisco hotel leaders, who were entertained at a luncheon last semester, have been particularly generous. About $2500 alone has been raised by contributions from the H&R students and their families.

Representatives have already been sent to Chicago to negotiate with the Statler people.

"We are most grateful and especially wish to thank our steering committee, which has been the main factor in the encouragement of contributions," Batmale said.

The steering committee arranged the luncheons and dinners and helped solicit pledges from the hotel industry.

Composing the committee are 10 prominent San Francisco hotel and businessmen, Batmale explained.

George D. Smith, formerly of the Mark Hopkins Hotel, is chairman of the steering committee's advisory board; P. Tremain Loud is president of the H&R foundation, and Carl Rutledge, a graduate of the college's H&R program, is treasurer of the H&R foundation.

Hotelmen on the steering committee are Richard Swig of the Fairmont Hotel; Dan London, managing director of the St. Francis Hotel; Edward Sequiera, manager of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel; Willard Abel, vice president of Western Hotels, and Joseph Sullivan, president of the Hotel Employers Association.

Completing the committee are two well known businessmen, Henry Maschal, partner in the firm of Harris, Kerr and Foster, and Robert Grison, owner of Grison's restaurants.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 54 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1962 — NUMBER 1

College Hour Schedule

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

IFC Hosts Semiannual Open House Tonight As Clubs Set Displays And Dance Friday

Dean Hillsman's Talk Highlights Fraternity Night

Offering an opportunity to men students to familiarize themselves with the campus fraternities, the Inter-Fraternity Council will hold its semiannual open house at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Smith Hall, Bob Turnbow, IFC president, announced last week.

At the affair, he added, prospective pledges will be able to meet the officers and members of each of the seven active fraternities on campus. Opportunity will also be afforded to ask questions and then make their own decision as to which of the organizations offers the most to them.

Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, will open the evening's program with a discussion of fraternity standards.

In addition, a representative of each fraternity will describe his own organization so that interested students will be given some idea of the aims and functions of the group.

As in the past, a student may sign up with as many fraternities as he wishes without being under any obligation, Turnbow emphasized, explaining that the final choice will be entirely up to the prospective pledge.

In addition to the brief orientation program the fraternities will supply the evening's entertainment.

Included in the activities of the evening, a scholarship trophy and a service trophy will be awarded to fraternities meriting them.

Each fraternity will have a table with trophies, scrapbooks and other items of achievement illustrative of the history of each group.

"A decade and a half has passed since the first IFC open house, and then, as now, its main purpose is to interest students in the advantages of fraternal affiliation," Turnbow said.

The seven active fraternities on campus are Beta Tau, Alpha Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta and Zeta Phi Sigma.

The IFC officers are Turnbow, president; Larry Maibaum, vice president; John Neal, treasurer; Pete Montonen, secretary, and Dick Harrison, rushing chairman.

QUESTIONS ARISING from plans for COO Day this Friday are discussed and settled by the officers of the Council of Organizations. Seated, left to right, Bill Goring, acting vice president; Ed Pawlus, president; Laurie Thurlwell, secretary. Back, Jim Horan, treasurer; Sherm Elworthy, adviser.

Less Than Half Readmitted After Fall Disqualification

Of the 921 students whose registration was threatened by disqualification because of grade deficiencies last semester, approximately 400 have been readmitted, John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare, stated recently.

The 921, who received a grade point average of C minus or lower, were divided into three groups.

The first group, composed of 350 students, received letters saying that they have been disqualified for reentrance but that they could have their case reviewed before one of the committees for readmission, which are composed of members of the faculty.

A second group, 368 students, also received letters notifying them of disqualification and the provision of appeal to Brady himself for permission to re-enroll.

Group three included 203 students who had already been on probation and, since they had failed to meet their "contracts," were not allowed to return this semester. These students can only gain readmission through completion of satisfactory college work elsewhere.

Brady stated that the statistics had not differed from the previously established norm and that the number disqualified is generally the same in relation to the number in attendance. He mentioned that, since general enrollment was high, the number of students disqualified was also excessively large.

Statistics show, Brady stated, that 65 per cent of those disqualified usually fail to fulfill the conditions that they make when they are readmitted.

COO Activities Usher In Spring Social Season

Introduction of campus clubs to students here and start of the college's spring social season top the agenda of the Council of Organizations' program with the traditional "day and dance" slated for Friday in Smith Hall, Ed Pawlus, COO president, revealed yesterday.

All organizations, fraternities and sororities are expected to be represented there by booth displays from 2 to 3 p.m.

Main purpose of the day is to acquaint both new and old students with the groups available to them this semester and to attract new members into these groups, whose meetings are usually held during College Hour Friday, 10 to 10:40 a.m., so as not to interrupt the regular college curriculum.

Previously the semiannual event was sponsored by the Club Activities Board, but following a 14-year tenure, that association was dissolved last semester, giving way to the COO.

As a finishing touch to COO Day activities, a dance will begin at 9 p.m. in Smith Hall, Pawlus added. Maury Wolohan will provide the music. The band performed earlier this semester at the Frosh Mixer.

Admission is open without additional charge to holders of a current Associated Student card and registration card. A charge of 75 cents will be made to those attending with only a registration card, Pawlus said.

Proper attire for the dance, according to Pawlus, is dressy sport for the women and sport coat and tie for the men. Booths will be erected around the fountain area of the cafeteria during the affair.

Guest bids, limited to one per person, may now be obtained in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150.

Working with Pawlus toward the success of this venture are his vice president, Nick Zafonovich, and secretary, Marian Lorenzen. Bill Goring was originally elected COO vice president but was unable to fill that position.

Enrollment Up To 7767, Lags Behind Record Fall Crush

Incomplete figures, released last week by Registrar Mary Jane Learnard, show that this semester's enrollment is up to the 7767 mark. Complete statistics are expected this Friday.

A spring semester record, with approximately 6200 registered for day classes and 1567 for evening sessions, the figure is expected to change as late registrants are admitted, Miss Learnard said.

The current enrollment is 231 more than that of one year ago when the total was 7536, with 6001 enrolled in day classes, and 1535 in night classes.

The incomplete total is 491 below the crushing all-time high enrollment of 8258 last semester.

(Of 921 students disqualified at the end of the fall semester for grade point deficiencies, 400 were readmitted.)

Last semester's overcrowded enrollment created the college's longest day, with a communications leeture scheduled at 7:10 a.m.

College Adds 10 New Instructors This Semester

Approximately ten new instructors have joined the college faculty this semester, according to Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction here.

Darwin Alonso, a University of Puerto Rico graduate, will instruct life science classes, and Gerald Gilbert will teach chemistry in the physical science department. Gilbert comes to the college from the industrial field.

The dental assistance staff has two new instructors, Stanley Lawrence and Kenneth Solberg. Mary Mattisen, a registered nurse, joins the nursing program.

Don Cunningham, who is with the English department, is a graduate of this college and has earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of California.

Arnold Koeppel has joined the graphic arts department, and Philip Briggs, another UC graduate, is with the business department.

Three faculty members have returned from Sabbatical leaves, Lucille Meredith, English and speech instructor; Olga Perkins of the registrar's staff who will temporarily assist in the communications department, and Mary Perry, member of the counseling staff.

Equal Opportunity For All

Preprogramming Revamped

Revamping has almost become a word synonymous with preprogramming.

The latest change was made only three weeks ago—open-hour forms were filled out during registration itself instead of as previously at a later date.

The change has a twofold purpose, Donald C. Marcus of the counseling department explained.

The new proceedure in the step toward drawing a registration number for next semester gives each student an equal opportunity.

But, Marcus warned, despite all the preparation and work some students still may not have completed the open-hour form.

They should visit the counseling office, S-160, he said, at their earliest convenience to make their counseling appointment or they may not get a program for next semester.

The old (by one year) system of preregistration saw returning students, sometimes 4000 or more, converge on Cloud Hall at 8 a.m. (or earlier) and make a mad dash to get a registration number.

Preprogramming revamped the old first-come first-served basis and awarded registration numbers on merit.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ACP Collegiate Publishers Press

Vol. 54, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1962 Page 2

Associated Student Card Aid To Council Budget, Student Budget

MENTION the spending of $30,000 as a problem and reactions will vary from disbelief to envy. Yet that is exactly the problem which Student Council strives to solve for the Associated Students during the early legislative sessions each semester.

That is a comparatively simple problem, however. More difficult is the raising of the money for the allocations.

The AS has three sources of money, AS card sales, a portion of the Ramporium profits, and a part of the vending machine profits. Of these, the biggest variable is the card sales.

Although the college enrollment is near 8000, sales will probably total little more than a quarter of that number.

Probably the greatest portion of sales is due to the fact that on-campus parking is not authorized without an AS card. Many car owners, then, merely pay their $5, get their parking stickers and stuff the cards somewhere deep in their billfolds to be forgotten.

They do not realize the value of the pastboard they have hidden in their pockets.

Unfolding the card, they would see a list of establishments which offer discounts up to 50 per cent on various items including auto parts, tires and gas.

It is a legitimate list due in a large part to the efforts of the AS card sales chairmen of the past three semesters who have gone through the various establishments' names, eliminating those places which gave the same discounts to all their customers.

These are discounts for AS of City College only.

The benefits are not for car owners alone. Students may buy music, food, stationery, clothes, flowers, or equipment to supplement their hobbies at a substantial savings.

Sporting goods are available. One may even go skating or bowling, and use the extra money for his refreshments.

All this is accessible to the cardholder, and still the easily computable advantages on the campus have not been mentioned.

Considering that the college basketball team has all but clinched the Big Eight Conference title, a big part of the value of the card can be gained this semester by going to see the Rams in action.

Three big dances, the Frosh Ball, Soph Ball and COO Dance would cost anyone but an AS cardholder $6, but the admission is covered by the price of the card.

Little theater productions, the Associated Men Student Smoker and the Associated Women Student Fashion Show and Feminine Fling are also included in the initial selling price.

The card purchase also entitles the student to an active interest in student government. He is entitled to attend Student Council meetings from 12 to 1 o'clock on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and is, in fact, invited to do so by AS President Dan Collins.

Too, he may become a candidate for office and have a voice in the budgeting of the AS activities.

The advantages are many; the cost is low. A well-used AS card returns its price quickly, about five times over to each individual. And the overall benefits to the college are evident throughout the semester.

Shots At RAMdom

By Dave Kleinberg

BIRDSEED: Cold weather up north and the desire for the pyracantha bushes has driven about 12 to 20 thousand robins into the Bay Area. The birds descend on the college in flocks.

Here's the frightening part: These birds can't be from our planet. In all seriousness, we have never been more closely observed walking up the path to Science Hall.

What get us is that they can't come right out and stare at you. No, these 200 hideous creatures, stationed ten yards apart in every direction, are always facing us at 90 degree angles, casting one eye our way.

• • •

PROGNOSTICATIONS: (For the new semester)—The Redwood Ram will be mysteriously painted three times. Each time the campus organizations will deny having anything to do with it.

A few individuals will ask to have the Redwood brought inside, claiming it is too valuable to be left outside, and The Guardsman will rehash a feature that tells when and by whom the Redwood was carved.

Although the cafeteria manager will announce for the two millionth time that the cafeteria is overcrowded, some girl will attempt to do the twist in the middle of lunch hour on top of a table. She will be taken away and treated by a psychiatrist.

The Shack, located behind Cloud Hall, will prosper despite the fact that after one year they still don't have a sign to indicate its location.

TOO LATE FORECASTS: Four new students disappeared in the registration confusion—two were found. Resulting from continuous signature signings, seven students developed writer's cramp for three days. Two students were programmed for an anthropology class at 3 a.m. in the morning. They didn't realize the mistake until now.

• • •

MISTRAKES: According to the official Time Schedule, the swimmers are really going to earn their one-half unit.

The women's beginners' class and intermediate classes are both going on a 24-hour basis—1 o'clock to 1 o'clock. Coach Roy Burkhead's life-saving class extends from 10 to 30, and you figure that one out.

• • •

ASTRO-NUT: When Lt. Col. John Glenn went into his epic-making flight last week, many students brought trapsistor radios to college to follow Glenn's progress.

In the men's gymnasium, a student cried "lost contact with Glenn!" A nearby listener rushed over, "What?! They lost contact with Glenn? Is he okay?"

The student with the transistor replied, "No, I lost contact. My radio won't play inside the concrete buildings." A-okay.

Space (?) Specimens Scrutinize Students

Doer vs. Talker

Student Busy At Four Jobs As Others Groan

By John Silva

While relaxing in the cafeteria two students, each enrolled in eleven and one-half units, were groaning about their hectic academic schedules.

Meanwhile, art major Daniel Ishii, also carrying eleven and one-half units, was busy working at one of his four part-time jobs.

One of the students said that his afternoon classes from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday and Wednesday were especially burdensome.

Ishii, however, works from 1 to 6 p.m. daily at a local bookstore, where he sells and demonstrates art supplies and paints and designs the company's window displays.

"I spend too many hours at college," said one of the students as he sipped his coffee.

After attending classes, Ishii works as a laboratory assistant in Roy H. Walker's ceramics class.

"I just haven't enough time at night to do my homework," added the other student.

During the evenings, Ishii paints posters for The California-Nevada Methodist Conference of Methodist Youth, an organization promoting religious seminar.

"Not enough time," the student said again.

Ishii has found the time to work as a free-lance commercial artist who last year designed Christmas cards for I. Magnin, and he also has the time to work as a commissioned fine artist who recently sold one of his oil paintings for $75.

"This is my fourth semester here, and I'm still not qualified for Cal," the student said.

Having completed all but one of the art courses offered at the college, Ishii, a sophomore, is now enrolled in a general liberal arts curriculum which he hopes to complete in another semester. He then intends to transfer to the Los Angeles Art Center.

Ishii is currently preparing a portfolio of his best paintings which he hopes to sell to Gump's art store.

"You're not working, are you?" asked one of the students.

"Of course not, I couldn't possibly find the time," replied the other student—as he sipped his third cup of coffee.

Miss Chinatown

Coed Wins Beauty Title, Orient Trip

Two weeks ago Anna Wong, 18-year-old sophomore here, was just a secretarial major. Today she is the crowned Miss Chinatown, San Francisco, and the winner of an all-expense paid trip to Hong Kong.

Before a jam-packed audience of 3000 at Masonic Auditorium, 14 girls

ANNA WONG bubbles over after winning the title of Miss Chinatown, San Francisco, and with it a trip to Hong Kong.

competed in the fifth annual Chinatown Pageant, an event which opened the Chinese New Year Festival, February 17 to 25.

Darrah Lau, a comely 19-year-old beauty from Honolulu, Hawaii, won the top title of Miss Chinatown, U.S.A., and with it a tour of the Orient. Contestants were judged on beauty, intelligence and talent.

Also representing the college in the winning circle was Flora Chan, a 19-year-old sophomore, selected Miss Talent.

Miss Wong, sponsored by Wah Ngai, a private organization, modeled a Chinese dress and a play suit, and in the talent department did an acrobatic sword dance.

But what probably won her the title was her answer to the question: What would you do if your boy friend was late for an important date.

(Continued on Page 3, Column 3)

Campus PanoRAMa

What Do You Expect To Get From A College Education?

Barbara Mattey, sophomore:

My main interest in college is to secure a basis for a career which I hope will be in commercial art, although I'm not sure. The art field is highly competitive in San Francisco. Also, I believe a person benefits greatly from the general knowledge acquired through a liberal education.

Burt Lauray, sophomore:

I would like to see the four years I spend in college lead eventually to a position with prestige and a comfortable salary. Another thing I believe is important, although it's hard to define, is the experience one gains through association with other students and student organizations.

BARBARA MATTEY
"A person benefits from the general knowledge acquired through a liberal education."

Mary Meacham, sophomore:

Satisfaction of my own curiosity and obtaining a degree in commercial art are the two main things I'm interested in as far as college is concerned. I often take courses which interest me, regardless of whether they apply to my major.

Barrie Williams, freshman:

My future plans aren't really decided yet, but I hope by the time I graduate from college I will have the proper background for a career in some area of the business field. I think a person, once he is fully decided on his future, can expect to get out of college just what he puts into it.

Margaret O'Meara, sophomore:

College to me represents an opportunity to convert my main interest, art, into a career which will mean not only a living, but will also give me an occupation that I enjoy. However, my primary objective here is to obtain an adequate education rather than concentrating everything on getting a degree.

John Sloane, freshman:

I think too much emphasis is being placed on obtaining an Associate in Arts degree from this college, and in my opinion more emphasis should be given to the getting of a full, beneficial and varied education. This is the policy I presently favor and the one that I am undertaking here now.

Noel O'Brian, sophomore:

I hope to get from college an education which will prepare me for the career in medicine that I've planned. I think that between the curriculum and exchanging ideas with other students, a student has the opportunity to broaden his scope that he would not encounter outside of college.

Larry Dugan, freshman:

I am not sure what I intend to do later on, and as such I don't really know what to expect from a college education. If a person has a clear idea of what he wants to do and is willing to work hard, I don't think he would have any trouble.

The Spectator

By Anna Papagni

Dandelion Wine Has Artistic Sincerity

MOST artists of today speak out against the problems of our time in terms that are equally as brutal, bitter and disconcerting as the situations they attack.

As the politicians say about the Birchers, "We must be careful not to fight the Communists with their own tactics. When the means justify the end, they often become the end."

This happens all too much and too obviously on the screen when such films as Les Liaisons Dangereuses and Splendor In The Grass are peddled as expositions of "the truth," when in reality they are merely trash which is calculated to make fortunes for the pseudo artist who is after box office loot.

Substantial evidence such as Sweet Bird Of Youth might convict Tennessee Williams on the same charge. Here is a home town boy who has made good all over America as well as in Europe by wallowing in a wasteland of ugliness.

And then there is Salvadore Dali who sits back and strokes his long black mustache when he isn't making trips to the bank while the public puzzles intently over writhing, distorted figures.

Personal insecurity of the individual in a mechanized age, the cold war, the have-nots in India, Africa and China, dissolution and breakdown of values in the twentieth century, the negro in America; we look to the artist to give us a greater insight into all and more of these situations so that we may correct them.

But to glorify, capitalize and distort the issue in degrading terms for personal gain or vicarious satisfaction is a weakness that must be conquered if any headway is to be made in coping with the ills of today's complicated society.

"How do you stand, sir?" is Barry Goldwater's punch line, Truman just punches and Shakespeare said, "To thine own self be true."

In case anyone has forgotten, it is possible to talk about war with wit as Bernard Shaw did not too long ago; it is still possible to portray internal conflict with beauty as Michaelangelo did with the David, and Hollywood might take a good look at the work of the brilliant Japanese film maker, Akiru Kurasawa.

In his last book, Dandelion Wine, Ray Bradbury measures up admirably to the concept of the artist as a skilled, disciplined and responsible interpreter of the environment.

From cover to cover his story reads like a narrative poem as he comments beautifully and powerfully on the detail that makes up a lifetime from warm to the feeling of sunshine on a summertime world.

In these pages published in 1957 by Doubleday, Bradbury tells us of a boy who wakes up one summer morning in a small Illinois town to discover what it truly means to be alive. Throughout his three-month vacation from school, the boy looks and listens and feels everything about him; the people, the green grass and the activity of living.

In short, the boy comes to realize what makes up the ebb and flow of existence.

With a simple, poetic and beautifully descriptive style, Bradbury's sincere concern inspires those who read his book with a desire to make a new start.

"After I cry hard it's like it's morning again and I'm starting the day over."

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the Journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGAVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
News Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Muller
Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni, Rodney Van Cleve.
Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelder, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson.
Sub Reporters: Norma Bech, Harry Cordellos, John Figueroa, John Gilman, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Thomas Renshaw, Walter Rice, John Silva, Mike Zelinsky.
Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti, Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Rudy Williams, Chris Utter, Clifford Yee.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Graduate's Work Begins Spring Photography Shows

By Harry Cordellos

Introducing the spring series of photography exhibits in the faculty gallery of Cloud Hall is a collection of railroad pictures by Richard Steinheimer, a former student here now on the staff of the San Rafael Independent-Journal

Emmett Smith, art and photography instructor in charge of the gallery exhibits, plans several shows during the semester featuring the work of successful former photography students.

A former Guardsman staff photographer, Steinheimer's work is currently being featured in the faculty gallery in the third floor north corridor of Cloud Hall. He is mainly interested in railroads as shown in his exhibit.

Steinheimer was graduated from City College in Spring, 1950. He has collaborated with Lucius Beebe of the San Francisco Chronicle in a book on railroads.

Forthcoming in the series of gallery shows will be a one-man show featuring the work of Richard Brooks. He is also a successful photographer from City College.

Brooks was one of four City College photographers who were featured in the first gallery show presented here. His forthcoming exhibit will feature his recent work in photography.

Also forthcoming will be an exhibit by Tom Jungman. Jungman attended City College during 1947-48, when the photography classes were held on the west campus, now a reservoir.

Currently, Jungman is working in a photography illustration studio in New York.

Although the complete schedule of shows has not yet been made up, Smith has indicated that two others who will have their work featured in the Cloud Hall exhibit gallery are Fred Pardini and Lillian Desmond. Pardini, who was graduated from City College in 1947; is now working for the San Francisco Examiner.

Miss Desmond, who is also a former student, is now associated with the college photography department.

Smith has pointed out that although the gallery this semester will feature mainly the work of former students, there may be a display of the work being done by the current students of the photography department.

Some of the shows will be one-man shows, while other shows may feature the work of several persons.

Student Council Tightens Control On College Budget

By Bob O'Lear

With the budget request total already in excess of the desirable figure, Student Council members were assigned individual budgets for study and review last week by Associated Student President Dan Collins.

Finance Chairman Jan Doudiet stated that she hoped to keep the budget in control so it would not be necessary to use funds from the general reserve. In order to keep a more strict control over requests, council members were assigned the following budgets:

Greg Monk, Recreation Association, basketball; Pam Chandler, Associated Men Students, Council of Organizations; Judy Gerstle, elections; Bill May, controller, fencing, baseball; Andy Shamiyeh, physical education, Associated Women Students; Terry Foulkes, Sophomore Class and Rally Committee.

Further assignments were Charles Miller, deans, handbook, drama; Otto Van Duyn, Inter-Fraternity Council, tennis; Mary Taylor, executive, drama; Dave Otey, Freshman Class, Campus Police, golf; Jim Fuller, The Guardsman, Campus Police; Marcia Devlin, Plek and Hammer, commencement, Publicity Committee; John Thellan, posters and banners, swimming; Mary Farley, athletic injury and KCSF.

Miss Doudiet further noted that any organization requesting student funds must show 100 per cent AS membership.

Though card sales have shown a steady increase over the past two weeks, AS Card Sales Chairman Bill Reichert expressed concern about the low figure. As of last week, sales had totaled 1300, a jump of 500 in the past two weeks.

A bright spot was pointed out by Reichert in that council member Otey had been personally responsible for more than 150 sales. Thus far Otey remained the only member to sell more than 100 cards as requested by President Collins.

Collins Fills Cabinet Posts

With the final appointment of officers, Dan Collins, Associated Student president, filled out his official cabinet for the spring semester last week.

Collins made the following appointments: Laurie Thurlwell, recording secretary; Mary Bush, corresponding secretary; Jan Doudict, finance chairman; Gail Margolian, State Information chairman; Deanna Chang, Alumni Liaison officer; Bill Reichert, AS card sales chairman; Wendy Hering, Campus Affairs co-ordinator; Jim Ahern, Men's Athletic Commissioner, and Rick Aguilar, Election Commissioner.

Adding to the already elected personnel of Suzanne Murphy, vice president; Fred Cherniss, Associated Men Student president; Jacki Rommel, Associated Women Student president; Bob Anderson, Sophomore Class president, and Vince Contreras, Freshman Class president, the appointees round out the President's Cabinet.

Honorary appointive positions went to the following: Marion Close, rally commissioner; Ed Pawlus, Council of Organizations president; Bob Turnbow, Inter-Fraternity Council president; Jeri Scuitto, Inter-Sorority Council president; Dick Dragavon, Publications Board chairman; Pat Nelder, Publicity Committee chairman; Lewis Pollack, Campus Police chief, and Sharyn Hawley, Recreation Association commissioner.

Exploration

COO's Purpose:—To Supplement Student's Academic Background

By Edy Grant

SINCE a well-rounded individual is the goal of American colleges, City College, besides offering an academic curriculum, provides its students with the opportunity to participate in numerous organizations and clubs.

Offering students a convenient chance to investigate the advantages of belonging to, and the activities sponsored by, various organizations, the groups will arrange displays for exhibit on COO Day during College Hour this Friday.

Behind the scenes is the Council of Organizations, to which the clubs, fraternities, sororities and organizations on campus belong and send representatives to meetings which are held twice a week.

Striving for Christian growth and development, the Collegiate Christian Fellowship welcomes all students who want to join.

Promoting the social, moral and cultural welfare of its members, the Newman Club serves Catholic and other students.

Hillel Foundation, an organization for Jewish students, occasionally meets with students of similar interests from other colleges or universities.

Representing the Protestant groups are the Canterbury Club for Episcopalian students, the Christian Science Club open to all students, the Lutheran Club which holds discussion groups about the faith, the Westminster Fellowship serving the Presbyterian students, and Deserette, a Mormon religious club.

Combination of service with social activities is the chief function of the six sororities on campus, which also stress academic achievement and friendship.

Starting a new service project sponsored by the Red Cross, Delta Psi sorority members visit homebound children, donating 18 hours of their time.

Delta Sigma Tau, organized in October 1949, aims at self-improvement and service to society.

Kappa Phi raises money each year for Muscular Dystrophy, and visits the children of Shriners' Hospital for 18 hours a week during the semester.

Emphasizing friendship, service and scholarship, Phi Beta Rho won the Inter-Sorority Council trophy for maintaining the highest grade-point average last semester.

Theta Tau and Gamma Kappa Beta are each spending 18 hours of their time to relieve the library staff of extra work.

The seven college fraternities are Alpha Kappa Rho, established to better good will and to give service to the college; Alpha Phi Epsilon, which inaugurated its service projects with a drill team.

Alpha Sigma Delta encourages able men to run for student offices and participate in college life, Beta Tau sponsors an interfraternity bowling contest and an annual Spring Fever dance and Phi Beta Delta is active in college sports and sponsored the 1960 March of Dimes drive here.

Zeta Phi Sigma, chartered in Spring 1955, requires its members to maintain a two-point grade average.

Designed to develop better understanding among all races, colors and creeds at the college, the International Relations Club gives foreign students the opportunity to meet and join in activities with other students.

The Filipino and the Hawaiian Clubs were established for the purpose of orientating foreign students to the stateside culture and way of life.

To develop friendship and to serve humanity are the main functions of Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity.

The Student California Teachers Association is concerned with the social, economic and professional welfare of future teachers.

Providing the opportunity for professional contacts with retailers, the Merchandising Club opens its doors to students enrolled in any merchandising classes.

For students in semiprofessional fields, the Horticulture Society and the Hotel and Restaurant Society are open for membership.

All players, regardless of ability, are invited as members of the Chess Club to take part in this international indoor sport.

Guardsman Lists Publication Dates

The Guardsman's tentative spring publication schedule and poster regulations were announced today by Dick Dragavon, the paper's editor-in-chief and chairman of the Associated Student Publication Board this semester.

Proposed signs must be no larger than 11 by 14 inches in size and be neat and accurate. Before displaying, the signs must be okayed by Dragavon in S-304.

With the editor on the board are Dan Collins, AS president; Jan Doudiet, AS Finance Chairman; Dave Grieve, managing editor of The Guardsman; and Bob O'Lear, reporter.

The 11 remaining issues of the paper will be published on the following Wednesdays: March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 6, 11, May 2, 9, 16, 23 and June 6. The Guardsman is distributed in Science Hall, in the library, in Smith Hall and at the ramp entrance to the arts building.

LEWIS POLLACK, newly appointed Campus Police chief, warned that cars illegally parked in student lots will be cited beginning tomorrow.

Tagging Starts Here Tomorrow In Student Lots

Lewis Pollack, the new Campus Police chief, today issued a warning to students here that starting tomorrow cars which are parked illegally in student lots will be cited.

Up to the present time only those who have parked in the faculty area, time zones and on the ramps have been tagged, and to date some 400 citations have been issued.

Pollack had this additional warning for students who drive to the campus:

"Associated Student cards and notes will not be accepted as substituets for parking permits. If an emergency arises it would be best to come to the criminology office in C-126 and request a temporary parking permit."

Parking permits are now being issued to students in the reservoir upon presentation of an AS card, registration card and valid driver's license.

The pistol team is a major part of the police force here, in that it combines business with pleasure, Pollack said. The gunnery class is required of all law enforcement officers, and membership in the class also entitles students to membership in the pistol team.

The team, which receives its support from the AS, entered countless tournaments last semester and came away with more than 60 trophies and personal awards.

The team is made up of a squad of 15 men, divided in three classes, expert, sharpshooter and marksman.

Miss Chinatown, SF—Anna Wong

(Continued from Page 2)

"After all the preparation, he just better not be late," she answered.

"I wasn't a bit nervous a few days before the contest, but I felt it a little later. I think, however, my parents were more nervous than I," she conceded. "I was certainly surprised when they told me I had won."

Miss Wong, who measures 35-25-36 around her 5-6, 125-pound frame, expects to take the Hong Kong trip this summer. "It's going to be very thrilling. I hope to learn something, and I'll probably see a few of my relatives."

Her hobbies include music, volleyball, judo and folk dancing. She aspires to go into secretarial work or merchandising. Last year she was crowned Miss Sweetheart Ball.

Through the one-week festival, Miss Wong traveled from one banquet dinner to another, and received all sorts of gifts ranging from flowers to earrings.

Miss Chan, who won the Miss Talent contest on the basis of her modern dance routine, first took lessons only two and a half months ago. "I took hour and a half lessons three times a week; I guess I'm lucky."

The 5-3, 108-pound business major, who measures 34-23-35, previously reigned as Queen of St. Mary's Chinese School, and speaks three languages.

Three Coeds In Line For Sweetheart Ball Title

Three Chinese Student Club coeds enrolled here are aspiring for the title of queen of the club's semi-formal Sweetheart Ball to be held from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. this Saturday at the Jack Tar Hotel.

The candidates this year include Virginia Yim, Helen Poon and Sylvia Shue. Highlight of the ball will be the coronation of the queen.

Music will be provided by Dick Crest and his orchestra. The public is invited, and bids are now available at $3.75 per couple.

Proceeds from the affair will help support eight scholarships, two of which will be presented to graduating high school seniors who are planning to enroll here. The Chinese Students Club will award these grants.

The other six scholarships will be presented to three men and three women already students here.

The Good Ol' Daze—

A TWISTed View Of This Generation

By Dave Grieve

THERE used to be a time when a neat, mannerly young lad would escort his petite lassie to a chaperoned dance, trip the light fantastic, sit out a few cups of punch and walk his fair damsel home.

But alas, today this tribute to yesteryear's society has been undermined, the tranquil idealogy buried and forgotten, for the reign of the Twist is supreme.

A drastic change to this "wonderful evening" 'out with your belle is crushed.

Today, Flip (that's the lad), picks up Bunney (that's the lassie), in his 160 mile-per-hour sport job, toots the horn, naturally, leaves a few hundred feet of B. F. Goodrich's finest on the pavement and arrives at the dance with "pomp and circumstance," not to mention the girl's ten-dollar French-styled hairdo spread evenly all over her head.

B-u-t to continue. Assuming that the couple has survived the wind tunnel test and greeted friends and enemies, all is ready for the launching pad. They engage the dance floor.

The reason the word engage is used is because there was a time when a couple danced to a slow, captivating, sometimes tricky but usually dull two-four time, anticipating that if one or the other should step on a bottle cap, lime peel, or other accessories found on the "hard wood," they could catch themselves and avoid loss of face.

But this young twosome today wouldn't dare do that. It would be a strategic error. It could cost an arm, leg, or eye (listed in all insurance policies) to either of the parties involved.

They engage the dance floor cautiously, at first stooping and examining the grain of the wood, next the varnish covering and finally noting the amount and the application of wax. Then they remove all other animal, vegetable or mineral objects of larger size.

The scene is set.

A blast of unintelligible sound, termed "music" in the broad sense of the word, issues from a black, spinning disk. There is a weird trembling of each body on the floor. Then the variation and pitch of the sound carries a further reaction to the participant, building a sharp, unyielding crescendo generating enough heat to keep the city of New York warm on the coldest night of the year.

The sound reaches its climax; the writhing gyrations of the pursuers slow down and the shimmying ceases in a manner similar to a fan slowing when the plug has been pulled.

Flip lifts his date off the floor (exhaustion) and shouts some inexplicable remarks to his pseudo friends then "cuts out."

Into his junior rocketship, leaving the usual for the street cleaners to eye with contempt and off to Bunney's house to sneak her past the "old man."

Up the front stairs walk two characters, who look as though they're returning from a steam bath without having dried. Engulfed in a self-imposed coma and while the screaming staccato of music is still in mind, they whisper their parting words and pledges—and separate.

Where are the good ol' daze?

Reichert Aims For 3000 AS Card Sale

A crew of 20 persons are aiding Sales Chairman Bill Reichert to meet his goal of selling 3000 Associated Student cards this semester.

Although during registration card sales were slow, Reichert expects "a rise in sales in the next week or so." He believes that the sales are naturally slower in the spring because there is "more money around in the fall."

Two contests will be held this semester with relation to AS cards. The first is a competition involving sale of the most cards, which offers award of a transistor radio as first prize.

The other competition is a card design contest for next semester's card.

THREE TOP CAGE STARS from the surprising Ram basketball squad are poised and ready for action in this Friday's tilt with the Oakland T-Birds. Gene Batiste, Chuck Currington and Brad Duggan, pictured above, will be three of the starting quintet to take the floor in the final Big Eight game. —Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman.

Cagers Clinch Tie For First; Face T-Birds In Finale Friday

By Jerry Littrell

With but one game remaining in the final week of the Big Eight cage season, Sid Phelan's squad assured themselves of at least a tie for first place last Friday night as they exploded past Santa Rosa, 67-48.

As of last Friday the Rams had an unblemished 12-0 record but Stockton still had an outside chance to force the locals into a postseason playoff.

To accomplish this the Mustangs would have to win their final two encounters while the Red and White were losing their final duo.

The entire matter might have been decided last night when the Rams journeyed to San Mateo to battle the Bulldogs. A win last night by the cagers or a loss by Stockton would have given the Rams their first undisputed championship in Coach Sid Phelan's tenure.

However, if the hoopsters dropped their game last night while the Mustangs won their match, Friday night's game with arch-rival Oakland will assume great importance.

The locals conceivably could back into the title as Stockton needs only to drop one game to eliminate themselves from any title chance.

Phelan's cagers proved to be too much for the Bear Cubs last Friday night as the hoopsters leaked through Santa Rosa's defense while posing a stiff defense of their own.

Resorting to a man-to-man defense for most of the game the basketball squad held the entire Santa Rosa team to but 17 field goals while center Elton McGriff combined with substitute Mel Tom in holding top scoring John Paxton to one bucket shot.

Brad Duggan got back on his scoring road again as he tanked in 14 points while grabbing nine shots from the boards.

Chuck Currington, although given a rest for most of the game, managed to hit two shots in two attempts, one of which was a tremendous hook shot from the right corner.

Currington currently leads the team with a shooting average of 57 per cent. The only thing keeping him from being high scorer for the team is his unexplainable ineffectiveness from the free-throw line.

Cagers Rack Up 11th Straight Win, Defeat Modesto 72-51

Refusing to accept a single conference defeat so far while aiming for a shot at the state finals to be held next week in Costa Mesa, California, the Rams chalked up their 11th consecutive Big Eight win last week when they defeated Modesto Junior College on the Pirates' home court by the score of 72-51.

Sid Phelan's cagers seem to be addicted to the theory that to win games they only have to be just a little tougher than the team against which they are playing.

That theory has worked out so far for the hoopsters as they soared back from a dismal preseason showing to take a commanding lead in the final round during the final season of the present Big Eight Conference.

MODESTO: Brad Duggan had one of his best nights from the floor, hitting six of nine shots, to lead the Rams to victory. Elton McGriff and Randy Simms both pulled down 13 rebounds, and the Rams continued their hot shooting with 48 per cent from the floor.

In their first encounter the Pirates dropped a close one to the locals, 55-42. The 13-point bulge does not indicate how close the game actually was, for the score was tied seven times in the first half, and the visitors managed a 25-25 half-time bond.

SACRAMENTO: The Crimson and Gold Panthers invaded the Rams' home court to open the season and were soundly trounced by the then low-rated cagers, 61-48. Again the 13-point spread did not indicate the tightness of the contest.

Duggan earned a standing ovation from the sparse crowd as he hit 70 per cent of his shots from the floor, and was on his way to collecting a personal season high point total of 21.

Traveling to the Capital City for the second game of their series later in the season, the hoopsters had even a tougher time of it as they met a fired-up and highly improved Sacramento squad. Their best effort could only produce a narrow 54-49 victory.

CONTRA COSTA: Despite a 27-point scoring splurge by Leroy Walker, scoring leader of the Big Eight before he broke his right hand, the Rams overwhelmed the Comets 71-61 in their second largest scoring feat of the season.

McGriff again dominated the game, collecting 15 points and 26 rebounds in his best performance of the season. Duggan tanked 18 points, while Currington hit for 9, and spunky guard Dave Roberts followed closely with 8.

In their second contest Bill Nocetti had eyes bulging as he hit six out of seven field goal attempts. All of his shots were from the outside and three were 25 feet out or further and would be considered 3-pointers in other leagues.

STOCKTON: The Mustangs had their troubles throughout the game, but the cagers followed their "only tougher than thou" thinking as they squeaked by the horsemen, 50-42, in their first game.

In their second game, which proved to be their most important win of the campaign, Roberts again came off of the bench to put the cagers in front for good late in the last quarter by scoring two quick field goals. Then the hoopsters held on to their slim six-point margin and went on to hand the Mustangs their second defeat of the season, 45-41.

Before fouling out McGriff slipped in 10 points and yanked 18 rebounds off the boards.

SANTA ROSA: Vying against an inspired home court Bear Cub team, the locals saw the need to stay up for a game in both halves. Carrying an 11-point lead over the Bears at half-time, the cagers let down a little and allowed the Timbermen to get right back in the ball game.

Led by top scorer John Walker, the Bears clawed their way to within five points of the Rams before the hoopsters woke up and started to play ball again.

McGriff accounted for 18 points while at the same time grabbing 19 rebounds to aid the Rams.

OAKLAND: Gene Batiste played his best defensive game of the season while dunking 16 points in the cagers' winning effort over archrival, Oakland City College.

Batiste's 16 points, however, were not the game's high as Currington, by then proving himself to be the most consistent player on the squad, sank eight field goals in eight attempts for an astounding 100 per cent game average.

Center McGriff hit 66 per cent of his tries and donated 22 big points to Phelan's side as again, late in the last quarter, the Rams broke the Thunderbirds' wings on their way to a 74-63 victory.

SAN MATEO: The Bulldogs, highly touted in preseason play, came to San Francisco upset-minded but left as disheartened as the others in the league.

The Rams again waited until the third quarter to cut loose with their point splurge as Duggan came off a cold first half to score six quick points, and "Goose" Adams warmed up to the tune of 15 points in the second-half explosion.

Duggan leads the team in points with 154 and has 109 rebounds. McGriff follows closely with 153 points and 181 rebounds. Currington has collected 116 points and 155 rebounds. Adams, Batiste, Nocetti and Roberts follow closely in that order.—By J.L.

RAMBLINGS

Santa's Gift, Tall 'Ribbon,' Nets Title

By Jerry Littrell

YES, SID PHELAN, there is a Santa Claus!

About three months ago, just before the Christmas holiday got into its final stage, basketball coach Sid Phelan scanned his roster for any prospective returnees from last year's varsity squad.

Looking carefully over the list four times, he was still able to come up with only three members who might come back to play again this season.

Phelan would go to bed at nights with "visions of six-footers shooting" in his head. Where would he get the necessary talent to mold a formidable cage squad this year?

Little by little, piece by piece, his wish came true. From all sides of the college came athletes ranging from all-city hoopsters to players from junior varsity squads in high school.

He placed his three returning men, guard Dave Roberts, forward Brad Duggan and center Chuck Currington, out on the floor and started to build around them.

Ever experimenting with his Christmas "package," he tried players at various positions to try to get the most talent without carrying excess weight.

Finally a "ribbon" for his package was found when, beaming, he displayed 6-8 center Elton McGriff. With this "green" but eager team he set out on a practice schedule with high hopes.

The records will show that these hopes might have been dashed to smithereens as the befuddled Rams dropped seven of their 12 preseason encounters and seemed in a bad enough way that they might have to claw for a first division finish in the Big Eight.

Endless hours of work and practice finally paid off.

The team's performance and the performance of individuals changed completely as the cagers headed into the thick of the Big Eight race.

The records will also show that Phelan got his wish. With the reversal of their preseason performance, the Rams captured the Big Eight title in the conference's final year.

The only explanation of its success is that behind the team was an experienced and energetic coach. The talent was there, but it had to be brought out and assembled to form a team.

So, if anyone doubts the existence of the little fat man with a red suit and a beard, let him stop around the men's gymnasium next Christmas and ask Phelan. He'll be doubly happy to tell anyone all about it, because he will be working with eight veterans from this year's championship squad. A firm believer, Phelan.

Spikers Eye 4th Straight Crown, Open At Modesto

Eyeing its fourth consecutive Big Eight crown, the college track team will participate in its first league meet in a three-way contest with Mather Field and Modesto Junior College Friday at Modesto, according to Louis Vasquez, coach of the squad.

The brightest spots for the team are in the shot-put and discus events. Alex Darnes, who broke the college record in the discus last year, Elbert Robinson, Cal Rothman and Pete Downing will join forces to stack up points in these weight events.

Nine members of last year's team will lend depth and experience to the 47 tindermen presently listed on the squad.

Pole vault specialists Ray Bautista and Bill Miles, 880 speedsters Harb Briscoe and Tony Ferrigno, 220-yard low hurdler John Pangburn, 880, mile and two-mile threat Roger Ritchey, broad jumper George Holland, Darnes and Esteban Valle are the returnees.

Some of the promising newcomers are Lonnie Brantley, Academic Athletic Association City League broad jump champ; Richard Byers, distance man; Bob Coleman, hurdles; Pete Daniels, Steve Jackson, distance; Jim O'Toole, 440, and Jim Waterfield, broad jump and sprints.

Concerning the other teams in the league, Vasquez predicts that College of San Mateo is fielding a highly competitive team.

RA Offers Full Sports Program This Semester

Students with Associated Student cards are invited to participate in the coeducational sports offered here this semester at 3 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, Frances Galloway, of the women's physical education department faculty, announced today.

Sports offered are coeducational fencing and folk dancing on Mondays, basketball and modern dance on Tuesdays, badminton on Wednesdays and coeducational volleyball on Thursdays.

The Recreation Association also welcomes interested Associated Students to be active in college sports.

This Saturday, the second of 18 sports day scheduled this semester, the archery, tennis, swimming and women's basketball teams will meet at San Jose City College for the athletic competition.

On the same day, the Intercollegiate Interscholastic Fencing Association will meet with Napa Junior College.

Sunday the Amateur Fencers League of America will compete with the college, and there will also be a high school competition with Balboa High School.

Officers of the RA this semester are Sharon Hawley, president; Natilie Gilbert, vice president; Jeanne Thornton, treasurer; Shelia D'Aurbert, secretary, and Maxine Hickman, Associated Women Student representative.

Two members-at-large are Mike Rody and Harry Jorgensen. This semester the RA "has an exceptionally good group of officers who have already worked hard for the success of the sports organization," Miss Galloway commented.

Sports days next month are now set for March 17 at Santa Rosa, March 23 at Valley College of Los Angeles, March 24 at Napa Junior College and March 31 here.

Spring Sports Action Gets Underway

Netters Take On Menlo Tomorrow

Racquets will be swinging and fuzz-balls will be flying as the college tennis team competes against Menlo College at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow on the Golden Gate Park courts.

In their Big Eight Conference opening match, the Rams will take on College of San Mateo at 2:30 p.m. Friday, March 9, at the peninsula college court.

This year's tennis ladder has Bob Siska on the top with John Kern, Rich Murray and Ed Jilka following in that order.

Siska has to be rated one of the best in the league just on his past record. He has won the All-Northern California Junior Tennis tournament, the City of Oakland title, and the 1956 Australian Junior tournament.

Tom Edelfson of Oakland is the only likely obstacle to Siska's top spot in the league.

All of the netters' home matches are scheduled for the Golden Gate Park courts.

Pirate Duel Opens Mermen Season

The college mermen, with two veterans from last year's squad and a well rounded crew of prospects, open their season with a meet against the Modesto Pirates at 2:30 p.m. Friday, March 9, at Modesto.

The returning men are John Holm, breast stroke, and Eli Silver, free style.

Herm Fruchtenicht, breast stroke; Chuck Greninger, individual medley; Jeff Higman, free style, and Bill Love, free and backstroke, make up the prospects.

"The team," Coach Roy Burkhead said, "has a definite core, but lacks depth. The butterfly appears to be the event with a significant lack, and John Vida and Jim Ahearn are being trained for this event."

Concerning the other teams in the league, Burkhead noted that Oakland and Stockton Colleges will be highly competitive.

The swimming team will be on the road the entire semester.

Volleyball Added To Mural Program

Addition of an intramural volleyball league to the regularly scheduled basketball competition will present a more all-around activities program for men this semester, Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss revealed, stating that petitions are available in S-134.

Competition is open to all men Associated Student members. Teams may be sponsored by fraternities, clubs or they may be organized independently. All petitions will be due Thursday, March 8.

Basketball competition will begin immediately after all the petitions are in, Cherniss said, and volleyball schedules will be made just as soon as enough teams are signed up for a working league.

The season will end with the awards presentation at the AMS smoker on May 25 in the men's gymnasium, Cherniss added.

The Untouchables won the intramural title last semester.

Block SF Society To Elect Spring President

Because John Jacobsen, who was originally elected Spring Semester Block SF Society president, has been called into the armed services, the initial concern of the lettermen at their next meeting will be the election of a new president.

Athletes wishing membership in the Block SF must have been awarded a block letter and must also maintain a good grade-point average, membership requirements state.

Highlighting the semester's activities will be the semiannual awards banquet, during which all spring sports participants will be honored with block letters, trophies or special recognition.

Click... Clic... Cli...

IBM Breakdown Temporarily Cripples Attendance Records

By John Silva

Two IBM machines broke down in the registrar's office last week and rendered the college's enrollment records momentarily useless.

Useless, in the respect that nobody knows yet the exact number of students here this semester.

Of course, somebody could have gone down to the cafeteria at noon to count the students waiting in line for lunches, but that would have been at least a four-day project. It would be quicker to wait for the IBM machines to be repaired in three days.

Student attendance records are important for three reasons:

First, so that the college receives funds for each student in attendance; second, so that the college won't receive funds for students not in attendance; third, so that forgetful students can be reminded of their absences.

The third item is of particular importance to absent-minded students who could miss 18 meetings in a one-unit course and still attend class—which is pretty difficult to do since most one-unit classes don't meet more than 18 times.

Nevertheless, the machines will be repaired in time for the monthly report, stating the hours and number of students in attendance here, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said.

Fortunately, the machines didn't break during registration as they did last spring. Total enrollment figures are due with the monthly report.

Quest For Miss SF Entrants Ends Saturday At Reception

As the quest for young women participants for the 1962 Miss San Francisco Pageant, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, comes to a climax, a tea-reception for all entrants will be held Saturday at the Jack Tar Hotel.

Entry blanks are available here in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150, and contestants must attend the tea Saturday unless other arrangements are made with Salvatore A. Lima, pageant director.

City College is looking for a pageant entrant to repeat the feat Lee Ann Meriwether accomplished while a student here by becoming Miss San Francisco and, later, Miss America of 1955.

Miss Meriwether will act as one of the judges for the Miss SF Pageant.

The final contest will be held at the Jack Tar Hotel Saturday night, April 14.

Preliminary competition will start at 2 p.m. Sunday, and the semifinals are slated for the following Sunday, March 18. Both of these events will take place at the Press and Union League Club.

To be eligible to compete, entrants must be between the ages of 18 and 28, and never have been married. They should possess talent in instrumental music, dramatics, singing or any of the fine arts, chamber rules state.

As an alternative she may present a three-minute talk on her reasons for pursuing a professional career or on her education.

Entrants will be judged on personality, talent, poise and personal charm, as well as personal appearance. In addition to competing for the Miss San Francisco title, contestants will aim for the scholarships and awards offered.

"Young women of San Francisco are invited to enter the pageant to share this rewarding experience," Lima stated.

The winner will receive an approximate $2000 scholarship which she may use to further her education or professional training. Awards of clothing, trips and other items will be shared by Miss San Francisco of 1962 and pageant runners-up.

The winner will represent San Francisco at the Miss California Pageant in Santa Cruz. The young woman crowned Miss California will receive additional scholarships and will then compete in Atlantic City for the Miss America title later this year.

Deadline For Coed Fashion Contest Set For Next Week

A college coed fashion contest is being brought to the attention of women students here this month, Dean of Women Mary Golding stated.

All entries must be postmarked not later than March 15, and winners will be notified no later than April 15. Interested students may procure entry blanks from Dean Golding's office.

The contest, which is being sponsored by Lanz fashions, a world-wide manufacturer of women's clothing, is "... our way of expressing appreciation for your patronage," contest coordinators stated.

A total of 25 prizes, including the first prize of a round-trip flight to Europe for a tuition-free summer session at a school of the winner's choice, plus a complete travel wardrobe, is offered.

All entrants must plan a fashion show for their college or living group. The proposed plans should cover each phase of the fashion show and each suggestion should be justified. Illustrations are permissible, but only the idea will be judged.

The contest is open to any college woman, except those connected in any way with the Lanz company. Entries will be judged on the basis of originality and neatness of presentation. The decision of the judges will be final.

An impartial board of fashion authorities judging the contest will include the West Coast editor of Harper's Bazaar Magazine, the executive director of the Tobe-Coburn School for fashion careers of New York City, the director of public relations, Julius Garfinkle and Co. of Washington, D. C., and amongst others, last year's contest winner.

AWS Welcomes New Coeds At Annual Big And Little Sister Sack Social

The Big and Little Sister Sack Social, the first spring event of the Associated Women Students, is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. next Wednesday, March 14, in bungalow 6, according to Jackie Rommel, AWS president.

The gathering enables new students to become acquainted with AWS and meet the Associated Student officers.

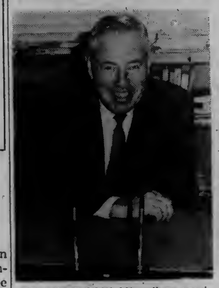
Entertainment will include popular songs by Verde Marie Byrd, a dance by Pat Gonzales and a folk dance by a member of the International Relations Club.

Freshmen will present a fashion show featuring dresses appropriate for the Frosh Ball.

Members of AWS will be wearing small paper sacks on their blouses to advertise the Sack Social.

AWS's next affair, the semiannual fashion show and tea, will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday, April 5, at Smith Hall. Approximately 30 high school seniors from each San Francisco school will be invited.

The Feminine Fling, a buffet dinner featuring entertainment, awards and installation of the new AWS, Intersorority Council and Recreation Association presidents, will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, May 25, at Smith Hall.



Miss Rommel will inaugurate a new program here, women's career day. Interested students will be afforded an opportunity to visit the offices of prominent business women to observe what occurs in a typical day.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 54 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1962 NUMBER 2

Western Association Grants College Maximum Five-Year Accreditation

DR. LOUIS CONLAN, college president, announces maximum accreditation approval.—Guardsman photo by Harry Cordellos.

Recognition Means Eligibility For Transfer, Federal Scholarships

By Dave Grieve

Western College Association accreditation of City College for the maximum five-year period was announced last month by college President Louis G. Conlan. A team representing the association was here last spring for a preliminary inspection tour.

Significance to students of the Western Association accreditation is primarily two-fold: to facilitate the acceptance of transfer to out-of-state colleges and universities and recognition by the federal government to insure scholarships.

"The basic advantage of accreditation," Conlan stated, "is that a student is guaranteed high standards of education and instruction."

Denoting a high criterion which encourages colleges to develop a continuing process of self-evaluation, the Western Association is responsible through this evaluation process to encourage a diversified scope in a college's educational program.

The Western College Association belongs to a national accrediting agency, to which the association annually submits a list of all accredited public and private four-year colleges and universities plus the two-year colleges located in California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Application for accreditation is beneficial to a college and is approached, after preliminary arrangements, with the presentation of a catalogue containing complete information concerning all aspects of the college's program.

A commission within the association appoints a committee to evaluate the catalogue. In addition, the committee ascertains the achievement records of college graduates, transfers to universities, and students graduated from the two-year terminal course, for example, City College's semiprofessional program.

Representatives from the association visit the college for a duration of two to three days, adding details.

Upon conclusion the statement is reviewed by the appointive commission and thereafter filed with an executive board, which meets semiannually, for a final judging.

The association may conclude, after deliberation, that a college does not deserve accreditation, or it may pronounce an accreditation for from one to five years.

The college has received two five-year accreditations consecutively, which, Conlan emphasized, "should increase pride among the college's students in their knowledge of the excellence of instruction and counseling, and the caliber of both academic and semiprofessional programs."

Budget Requests Exceed Available Funds By $4500

Thirty-nine campus organizations have submitted budgets this semester totaling approximately $36,775 against an estimated allotted spending amount of $32,000.

As Associated Student finance chairman, Jan Doudiet is co-ordinator of budget matters.

To make the council's task less difficult, Miss Doudiet has compiled a guide from which she obtained the figures of the past three spring semester budgets passed by the council allotting each organization a certain amount of funds.

Funds for all student activities come from the sale of Associated Student cards, the campus bookstore, the vending machines in the Science building and gymnasium and the game and dance admission fees.

The AS support and contribute to all athletic activities, team and individual awards, The Guardsman, the Campus Police, Associated Women Students, Associated Men Students, the Sophomore and Freshman Class activities, concerts and lectures, student election, KCSF broadcasts, posters and banners around campus, the Student Handbook, student government activities, rallies and other AS functions.

For the first time here the Inter-Fraternity Council has submitted a budget for money to support its blood drive, scheduled for April 5 and 6, and its open house.

Also for the first time the Pick and Hammer Society budgeted for money to purchase a set of geological maps of the Bay Area and money to sponsor field trips for the society.

Two Departments OK Style Sheet Form For Research Papers

The English and social science department faculty have adopted a standard style sheet for all research papers, James Billwiller, acting dean of instruction, said last week.

According to Billwiller the style sheet gives the proper form and style to be used on research papers, particularly in the English and social science departments.

The sheet, which is available at the Ramporium for a dime, is a shorter form of the Modern Language Association's style sheet.

Although this sheet's use was intended mainly for the two aforementioned departments, Billwiller believes that in many cases other instructors will probably accept this form for research papers.

Alpha Sigma Delta Wins IFC Service, Scholarship Cups

Both the Inter-Fraternity Council scholarship and service trophies were awarded to Alpha Sigma Delta last week by Bob Turnbow, IFC president.

The clean sweep by the campus fraternity took place at last Wednesday's IFC open house.

The scholarship trophy is awarded to the fraternity which maintains the highest grade point average throughout the semester, while the service award is given to the organization which contributes outstanding service and support to the college.

While presenting the awards, Turnbow recalled Alpha Sigma Delta's success in last fall's Homecoming activities when its entries in the queen contest and car parade won first prizes.

Speaking of the service contributions of campus fraternities, the IFC president cited the annual Blood Drive, which this semester is slated for April 5 and 6.

Petitions Due This Friday For Graduating Students

Students planning to complete their work here this semester must turn in their petitions for graduation Friday, Mary Jean Learnard, registrar, announced last week.

Although, according to Miss Learnard, the petitions should have been turned in during registration, they may now be deposited in the main office.

Petition forms can also be obtained at the office.

Qualified Students Here Eligible For $5000 Loan

Qualified students in need of funds for educational purposes may apply in Dean Ralph O. Hillsman's office, S-149, for a $5000 loan provided by the National Defense Education Act, Fred Foultz, English instructor and chairman of the student loan program, announced today.

To qualify for a loan, applicants must maintain at least a B- average in a minimum of 12 units, must present evidence of a financial need for educational purposes and must be citizens of the United States.

Special consideration is given to students who desire to teach in elementary or secondary schools and to students who are majoring in science, mathematics, engineering or in a foreign language.

Although a student may borrow a maximum of $5000 for educational expenses to cover duration of his college career, he may not, however, borrow a sum exceeding $1000 during any one year.

Funds allocated by the government to this college will determine how many students will receive loans.

One year after the borrower has completed his education, he is required to repay his loan within a 10-year period at the rate of three per cent per year.

However, 50 per cent of his loan (plus interest) may be cancelled if the borrower becomes a full-time teacher in a public elementary or secondary school.

C-Hour Film Focuses On Oil-Rich Kuwait

The oil rich island of Kuwait will be the subject of this Friday's College Hour film, to be shown in S-136, Madison Devlin, of the audio-visual department, announced today.

Kuwait, a desert area located in the Persian Gulf in the vicinity of Iran and Iraq, is a British protectorate with extensive oil deposits, Devlin explained.

"The film promises to be an interesting and informative one, stressing great strategic importance," Devlin commented. The program also enables students without club affiliations to spend an enjoyable C-Hour, he added.

Future films will include such topics as Squaw Valley, Festival of America, Peace Corps and John Glenn's flight.

Success Story: Develop A Gimmick, Maintain Action

By Bob O'Lear

Is it possible to be a writer and a full-time instructor simultaneously?

Terry Kilpatrick, an English instructor at the college, thinks so. And what's more he is proving it. However, not too long ago he didn't entertain the notion of being either.

While attending San Francisco State before the Korean War, he was a physical education major, mainly interested in boxing and basketball. His only outlet for his latent writing ability was as editor of the college paper, the Golden Gater. During this tenure as editor, his sports editor was an aspiring young newspaperman by the name of Pierre Salinger, the present presidential press secretary.

Meanwhile, his close friend, Jim Haran, also an English instructor here and Kilpatrick's "roommate" in Cloud Hall, became interested in drama. At Haran's urging, he composed a one-act play about a boxer, entitled Fool Kid. So successful was it, that the play was performed not only at State but also at USF.

Subsequently the play was produced by the Loyola University drama department. This exposure of the play in Southern California brought Kilpatrick the 1951 Pasadena Playhouse Award for best one-act plays.

Stimulated by this recognition, Kilpatrick began to spend more time writing. Again in 1953 he won the Pasadena Award for another sports story, Strike Four. Although his first two plays were about sports, he has not since then written another.

Following the publicity received from Strike Four, he was approached by KPIX and asked to write five 15-minute shows. After this effort he became intrigued with the idea of writing for television. This was while live television was in the formative stages, and the quality of most of the writing left something to be desired.

"I can write better shows than these," Kilpatrick reasoned, as do many neophyte writers. But unlike most, he proceeded to do something about it. The second play he submitted to television was purchased by CBS. Titled Tower Man, the cast consisted of Chester Morris, Jackie Cooper and Ann Bancroft.

In 1955 he took his family to Europe for a year. Upon returning, he found the television industry had undergone a radical change. Most of the emphasis in writing had turned to fitting a story around a particular star of a weekly series, which were being filmed in Hollywood.

This presented a new challenge, since previously the majority of his writing had been for live dramatic productions.

"For such writing the plot is all important," Kilpatrick stated. "My formula is to develop a gimmick and maintain action."

With this as a starting point, he chose to write for The Rebel because the characterization of its star, Johnny Yuma, appealed to him. His first script was rejected. But after this he sold five in a row. At this time he has written seven shows for The Rebel, more than any other writer.

The scripts written for The Rebel each took about two weeks to do, and for each he received between $1500 and $2000. An indication of the power of television was brought home graphically to Kilpatrick when his play, Drop On The Devil, viewed on Kraft Theater, had an audience of more than 22 million. This figure represents more people than the total who saw all of Shakespeare's works during his lifetime.

Thus far he has had 24 half-hour and five one-hour shows on television, in addition to which one of his plays has been made into a movie, Barricade On The Big Block.

Any serious writer eventually aspires to write a novel, and Kilpatrick is no exception. He has discontinued television work for the past four months while working on his first novel. He has completed 100,000 words and a publisher has expressed some interest. "I hope to have it completed by Christmas," Kilpatrick remarked.

About the original question of writing and teaching, Kilpatrick sums it up this way:

"A writer tends to become completely absorbed with himself. Since everything is coming from within you, you tend to be a complete introvert. In teaching you give. A writer needs this."

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 54, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1962 Page 2

Celebrations Overshadow Behind-The-Scenes Heroes

JOHN GLENN, Alan Shepard and Virgil Grissom—astronauts—are heroes, and rightly so.

However, the recent celebrations and acclamations for these men have overshadowed a most important aspect of their accomplishments.

The fact that their historic triumphs were broadcast and televised live indicates best the confidence with which the engineers, scientists and launching officials approached those occasions.

Every foreseeable mishap had been taken into account and provided for. The slightest abnormality anywhere in the rocket would automatically cancel the entire firing process.

All that Glenn had to fear were the unforeseeables. Not that these were any small worry. But even the unpredictable event, that his heat shield might be knocked loose, was protected against by the straps which held the retro-rocket pack to his capsule.

Heroes, too, are those people whose technological skills in designing and manufacturing were displayed subtly by the seemingly brash act of televising an event which, without their talents, might have been one of the world's most widely viewed executions.

Kid Stuff

INDIVIDUALS are entitled to their own opinions and also have the right to express them.

The greetings extended to former Vice President Richard Nixon, however, speaking on the San Francisco State College campus last week, were far below what might be expected of college students.

A slurring editorial, headlined "Welcome, Slippery," in the Golden Gater, State's daily newspaper, and the ambiguous signs posted outside of the theater stating, "A good reason to vote for Brown is Nixon, would seem much less out of place in a high school election campaign.

It is very doubtful that such childish displays are looked on with favor in either the Nixon OR the Brown campaign headquarters.

The Spectator — Television Enters Race For Taste

By Anna Papagni

SINCE Newton N. Minow, Federal Communications Commission chairman, labeled television as a vast wasteland, the networks as well as their local affiliates have been forced to improve programming if they want to retain their federal operating licenses.

One station in particular has forged ahead in answering the public's demand for worthwhile viewing, and in return its efforts have been rewarded by viewers who voted it the best-liked station.

This leader is KRON-TV channel 4, the NBC affiliate. The Institute of Motivational Research in New York, urider the direction of Ernest Dichter, Ph.D, was selected by KRON to make a study.

Although they did not specifically seek preferences for any particular station, it was found that 40 per cent of all respondents interviewed chose KRON-TV as the best station, and the remaining 60 per cent divided its allegiance between the four other area outlets.

IMR found that the station's highly positive image and excellent competitive position were based primarily on three factors.

First, the station has a dual character because it is both a national and local outlet. KRON personnel utilize non-network time for a variety of programs oriented toward the needs and interests of San Francisco residents.

Secondly, the extent of the station's newsecasting, its forums and discussions of public events and issues, has greatly impressed viewers. Finally, the commercials seen on KRON are regarded by viewers as superior in quality, taste, reliability and information level to those on other stations.

Congratulations are due KRON-TV, but the battle is only half won.

For instance, the public commends the quality of commercials, but its praise is qualified by the statement that they are good only in comparison with those of other channels.

In the area of children's shows, Mayor Art, the new Fun With Science and Science In Action are certainly excellent programs, but what about obnoxious cartoons such as Popeye that are filled to the brim with violence and constantly repeated.

Daytime viewing for stay-at-homes is almost a complete loss because of soap operas and quiz shows. The housewife would appreciate a program that considered such topics as cooking, sewing, fashion and gardening.

Where can the viewer find dramatic presentations that equal Playhouse 90 productions? Nowhere, that's where. The Du Pont is not always a high quality production and almost never reaches the heights of Playhouse 90.

The Bell Telephone show is probably the best regular music hour on the air, but surely every other week is not enough exposure for this caliber of music.

Certainly the public could do without a situation comedy such as Hazel, and although much has been done to clean up the cowboy show, there is more than enough room for further improvement.

Moreover, KPIX, the CBS affiliate, is barking close enough at the heels of KRON to keep the station from slowing down. This is a race in which the spectator comes out the winner. Keep running, stations; please keep running.

Genetics — Evolution Can't Explain Excess Enrollment

"From whence thou cometh?" may well have been the question uttered by Bruce Firstman, life-science instructor here, after noticing another overflow enrollment in his genetics 10 class, the only course dealing with evolution taught here.

However, this is not anything new to Firstman since the same situation faced him last semester.

Folding chairs had to be installed for the extra 10 students, since no more than the present 70 desks can reasonably be squeezed in.

Firstman asserts that individual teaching and question-and-answer sessions are extremely difficult with the present situation. To counteract these problems, he has instituted an unique question or comment box.

Purpose of the square contraption is to let genetics students voice their opinions on anything dealing with the subject and to ask appropriate or personal questions anonymously.

The box is opened after class each day and the best of the queries are answered to the best of Firstman's ability in a follow-up session.

Commenting on the development of the course, Firstman remarked that at least another 80 students had to be turned away from enrolling during registration proceedings because of the limited capacity and the fact that only one genetics section is taught at present.

Hope in the near future is to add an individual section meeting to supplement the regular course. Based on the present interest in genetics, this addition probably wouldn't create any hindrance to enrollment.

The genetics course here has only been in existnece for the past three semesters, since the spring of 1961, and in every instance, according to Firstman, enrollment has exceeded capacity.

Campus PanoRAMa — Too Much Emphasis Placed Upon Physical Attraction?

By Rodney Van Cleve

Judy Martinelli, sophomore:

Appearance doesn't mean that much to me, although physical appearance does open the door or is the first plateau in meeting a person. One must realize, though, that this does not hold your interest in a person. The first thing I notice about a guy is his teeth, but that's only because dental nursing is my major.

JUDY MARTINELLI

"The first thing I notice . . . is his teeth, but that's only because dental nursing is my major."

Thomas Perry, sophomore:

Yes, the emphasis on physical attraction is too heavy, but I don't feel that it is carried to the extreme by the majority. The emphasis is present, however, in all of us to the point of being disturbing.

Celeste Schoenstein, freshman:

I suppose it is over-emphasized, but unless it's carried to the extreme I don't believe it is any special cause for alarm. This is simply human nature and eventually your friends begin to regard you in different terms.

Richard Clews, sophomore:

Yes, the physical appearance completely determines the first opinion you make and too often it's the last. I would say that about 90 per cent of people are guilty of this. There are some, a slim minority, who are capable of judging others in different terms. This is a quality that a person should strive for.

Denice Crispie, sophomore:

There are times when people can aggravate you by putting too heavy an accent on the physical nature of things. But I think for the most part people usually take personality and other character traits into consideration when they are forming an opinion.

George Berge, sophomore:

Yes, I think that physical attraction is magnified out of proportion by everyone, except maybe the very old. It can be annoying, but as it is a human characteristic, there is only so much a person can do to control it, although he should try.

Herman Brown, sophomore:

I don't see any need for a person to try to submerge his natural feelings and adopt an artificial attitude that others may feel is more refined or acceptable. There are enough people available to permit you to be selective in any way you choose.

Terry Dean, freshman:

Sometimes, but for the most part people look further and expect more than appearance alone. I think that this is a definite sign of a person's maturity and mental level. Perhaps education will eventually correct this. It is a form of ignorance.

Shots At RAMdom — Psychology Students Ponder Peanut Puzzle

By Dave Kleinberg

HOW MANY peanuts in a 10-cent bag? Unless you are a prodigious cashew fan, you probably have spent many a sleepless night attempting to solve the strange mystery.

In a psychology 1A experiment, a mimeographed sheet, distributed to half the class, posed the seemingly useless probe. The sheet was passed progressively with the idea, of course, being that one answer would probably influence another.

Unfortunately, a clown estimated first, and started with 50 and a half peanuts, which was followed by 98 and four-fifths, 30,178, four, the square root of 1255, the minimum and four ounces of Skippy.

The remaining half of the class individually returned even estimates, which proves once again that we have too many comedians and not enough workers, which can't be all bad. How many peanuts in a 10-cent bag? Don't ask us, we can't stand 'em. Buy a bag and count.

• • •

OVERHEAD: Students who used the faculty's parking lots during finals sent some instructors into "orbit." One said jokingly, "No parking space, no grades."

A dismal looking student shortly after a final remarked, "I would sell this book right now, except I'm still not sure I won't need it next semester."

At registration, "If I had to go through this more than twice a year I would quit college. When do I get the shots?"

• • •

MISTRAKES: The basketball team may have won the Big Eight title with a 13-1 record, but they did suffer two defeats. On a scouting trip, the coaches and scouts traveled to Stockton to observe the Stockton-Sacramento game.

Upon arriving, they learned the contest was scheduled for Sacramento. Seventy-four miles and about 74 minutes in an exhausted crew arrived at Sacramento healthy, wealthy —and we hope a little bit wiser.

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGAVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
News Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Muller

Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni, Rodney Van Cleve.

Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelder, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson.

Cub Reporters: Norma Beck, Harry Cordellos, John Figueroa, John Gillman, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Thomas Renshaw, Walter Rice, John Silva, Mike Zelinsky.

Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti, Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Rudy Williams, Chris Utter, Clifford Yee.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

330 Qualify For Membership In AGS Honor Society

Approximately 330 students here are eligible to join Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college's scholastic honor society, and may now obtain their applications for membership in S-140, according to William Richardson, the society's sponsor.

Complete membership information can be obtained from Richardson during his office hours.

Richardson's list of students who are eligible to join the honor society is as follows:

Saul Adelson, David Allen, Robert Anderson, Bruce Arbeit, Robert Arevalo, Sydney Armor, Janna Aikinson, Armand Attia, Andre Aud, Georgian Baffico, Wayne Baldwin, Bill Bangasser, David Barlotti, Sherlan Barlow, Gary Bedsworth, Arthur Berliner, Jaime Bernales.

Albert Berwick, Eleanor Bleiser, Ronald Block, Catherine Bluemle, Elizabeth Boudrout, Julia Bozeman, Bruno Brader, Joan Bricca, Susan Brill, Oscar Briones, Noreen Brook, Otha Brooks, Sophrona Burnell, Richard Byers.

James Cain, Russell Call, Daniel Callaghan, George Campbell, Todd Campbell, Cuneyt Capanoglu, Thomas Cargill, Frank Carrillo, Helen Carrillo, Robert Casey, Sherman Cater, James Chan, Thomas Chang, John Chell, Leonie Chiang, Carolyn Chow, Jane Chow, Benson Chu.

David Coffaro, Raymond Cognasso, Carol Cummins, James Corrazan, Vincent Contreras, Karen Cooper, Harry Cordellos, Patrick Corkery, Alfred Corvi, Laurence Cosper, Beverly Crabtree, Valerie Crawford, Susan Creek, Frana Cristiani, Benjamin Crosby.

Maria Daroza, Clifford Decari, Kenneth Dekker, Edmond Delarosa, Evelyn Delsma, Sylvia DeMarco, Joanne Der, Dale Devlin, Helmut Diener, Ralph Dippner, Alex Dong, Jan Dordiei, Margaret Driscoll, Patricia Driscoll, Marie Dufau, Clifford Duna, Barbara Dorlee, Paulette Dundall.

James Egan, Kanji Ehira, Yasuko Ekusa, Martha Estes, Eleanor Fable, Clemetet Fajardo, Jeanette Fambrini, Rita Feiciano, Marie Ferrari, Darlene Fiel, Charles Figone, Charles Fischer, Roger Fisher, Allan Flach, Beverley Foley, Robert Ford, Catherine Franco, Jan Freel, Gilbert Freeman, Michael Freeman, Caroler Fromm, Barbara Furlong.

Nancy Gallo, John Garbarino, Dan Garcia, Geraldine George, Sally George, Lewis Gibson, Wayne Gillette, Carolyn Glenn, Judith Gitin, Ronald Glas, Anthony Gonzales, Garnett Gorin, Bryan Gould, Terry Gould, Jeffrey Graff, Charles Greninger, Vernon Grieve, Patricia Guiffre, Josephine Gunther.

Roger Hageman, Douglas Haight, Robert Hanlon, Barbara Harrison, Richard Hassel, Norman Haukaas, Sharon Hawley, Renee Hennessey, John Herbert, Sadako Hino, Dorick Hirsch, Peter Hogg, Julia Holland, Daniele Hom, Helene Howard, Jean Howard, Peter Howell, Ivan Hudson, Wayne Huff, Faye Hutchins.

Alice Iiyama, Kay Ikh, Charles Irori, Tony Ivelich, Joseph Jackson, Joan Joong, Michael Johnson, Dennis Jones, Winston Jung, Richard Jurgens, Kathryn Kafaflan, Terry Kandel, Geraldine Karlo, Mary Kartsonakis, Henrietta Keton, Kenneth Kern, Anthony King, Marcia King, Charles Kingston, Carol Klein, Sheila Kohan, Alevan Koebergin, Kenneth Koehler, York Kong, Etta Kwan, Roger Labataille, William Lallas, Linda Larsen.

Parker Lee, Richard Lee, Glenn Leonoff, Eleanor Lew, John Lew, Bruce Lindal, Merwin Lindsey, Helena Liu, Thomas Lloyd, Alfred Lockwood, Dorothe Lofquist, Carol Louie, Alicia Lowe, Dennis Lowe, Carol Luckhardt, Priscilla Lum, Philip Lyons.

Linda Magnani, Andrew Magrary, Gary Marble, Anna Mariasalis, Gail Marino, Judith Marsh, Paula Massimani, Robert Mathewson, Carol Matthews, Merill Mazza, Dennis McCue, Joann McDonough, Rana McGlaughlin, Nancy McNeil, Mary Meacham, Leran Mebine, Don Merolf, Alan Merritt, Twila Meyer, Ralph Michels, Sheree Moores, Michael Moran, Alma More, Sylvia Morey, Richard Murray, Randolph Myc, Anita Nagel, Glenn Nance, Nika Narkevich, Roy Nelson, Barbara Ng, Michiko Nichols, Diane Nieri, Margie Nishimura, David Noble, Louis Nuyens.

Noel O'Brien, Elizabeth Orzkowski, James O'Donnell, Diana Olander, William Ong, Augustine Or, Barbara Palatino, Carolyn Pastero, Claudia Pataauw, Javier Penaloza, Georgia Peters, Kristine Petersen, Brian Petty, Albert Pietsch, Marilyn Pietz, Lewis Pollack, Robert Porras, Richard Post, Charles Potter, Cara Prindiville.

Elaine Quan, Peter Reall, Jimmie Reed, William Reichert, Linda Roggero, Jacquelyn Rommel, Wolfgang Reed, Maija Rosentals, Judith Rosenthal, Susan Rosenthal, Gerdn Roth, Richard Rusyn, Marie Sabbah, Sharon Sadler, Jenn Sanders, Patricia Scanlan, Jacquelyn Schenhari, Charles Schernickau, Don Schlichtmann, Stanley Schmidt.

Celeste Schoenstein, Herbert Schott, Donald Scott, Kaizuo Sera, Ghasemah Shafee, Barbara Shattuck, Bernadine Sheehan, Jerrold Shirman, Paul Sheehan, Joseph Shumate, Meredis Sin, John Sinna, Abigail Sommerin, Barbara Sperring, Gary Spratling, Michael Stack, Gail Steffen, Patricia Steffen, Charlotte Stephens.

George Stewart, Franz Sticher, Kendra Stocker, Elaine Stuart, Ronald Suhl, John Sullivan, Keiko Suyetsugu, Charles Swanson, Mahmo Tahmassebi, Isaao Tanaka, Douglas Tanner, Steven Thatcher, Dorothy Thomas, Ann Thompson, Donald Tong, Jane Treber, Allen Tuggle, Richard Turner, Margaret Tyrrell, Susan Vanderburgh, Edward Vasgerdsian, Gis Vonputtkamer.

Joy Walker, Clayton Ward, Bonnie Warren, Claire Weiner, Rosalie Weiner, Brian Weiss, Frank Werner, Diane Westman, Allan Wilke, Victoria Willard, Terence Wojslaw, Anne Wong, Peter Wong.

Ann Woo, Peter Wood, Walter Wood, Jadine Wu, Hiroko Yumne, Phyllis Yung, Elliot Zais, Mark Zimmerman, Gregory Zorn, Theresa Zukowski and Donalyn Zywien.

Two Top Students Win Bank Award

BANK OF AMERICA college business awards, based on scholarship, participation and leadership, were won by (left) Gail Margolin, secretarial major, and Alice Iyama, accounting major.

Secretarial And Accounting Coeds Each Receive $100

This year's Bank of America's business award winners from the college are Gail Margolin and Alice Iyama.

Miss Margolin is in the secretarial field and Miss Iyama is an accounting major. Both women have excellent scholastic records, with Miss Iyama boasting a 3.94 average in accounting, Dean Mary Golding commented.

A $100 cash award, a certificate of recognition and an engraved plaque will be presented to each winner.

An awards dinner will be held honoring all the Northern California winners and faculty representatives Thursday night, April 5, in the Colonial Room of the St. Franeis Hotel.

As a basis for selection, the college faculty committee considered students majoring in business administration, banking, secretarial or clerical programs. The students' grade point average must have placed them among the highest within their respective occupational area.

A minimum of 24 units must have been completed, plus a record of successful participation and effective leadership in extracurricular campus activities, with preferential regard to service in the business department, and a personality appropriate to the student's occupational choice, especially the ability to get along with other people, Dean Golding explained.

The faculty selection committee here included George Stewart, Ruth Gavin, Harry Frustuck, Ed Larson, and Deans Golding and Louis Batmale.

COO Sponsors Problems Convention Next Week

Sponsored by the Council of Organizations, a problem convention will be held on Thursday, March 15, Ed Pawlus, COO president, announced last week.

Though time and place have not yet been set, the meeting's purpose is to study student problems on campus.

Participating in the convention will be the president and COO representative of each club and organization here.

Definite plans will be set at the next COO meeting.

Budget Proposals Occupy Council

By Bob O'Lear

Main concern of all recent Student Council meetings can be stated in a word, budgets.

At Thursday's meeting, out of seven budgets, a total of $358 was removed from the original requests. After the budgets had been voted on, Finance Chairman Jan Doudiet reminded the council of their job import.

"We have already accounted for $8800 of the student funds," Miss Doudiet said. "I want to commend you on the good job you are all doing. But let me again eaution you to be merciless."

Chief opposition to budget requests came from Charles Miller, freshman member of counell. "We are at a crucial moment," Miller disclosed. He indicated he will try to delay voting on the budgets until it is more sure of the standing of student funds.

"Some activities are not representative in that the requests exceed the number of students involved by over 10 times," Miller further noted.

In other action, Suzanne Murphy, social committee chairman, imposed monetary fines on the Counell of Organizations and Chinese Students' Club for non-attendance at committee meetings.

Exploration — Triple-Goal Curriculum Provides Basis For College Accreditation

Accreditation of City College by the Western College Association for the maximum period of five years came about largely because of the excellence with which curriculum is designed to meet the needs of students and the demands of industry.

As a community college designed to meet the needs of the individual, it is equipped to serve more than 8000 men and women students whose objectives and interests fall into a diversified curriculum divided into three categories:

(1) University parallel courses which are equivalent in subject matter and standards to the first two years of university or four-year college curricula.

(2) Semiprofessional programs.

(3) General college courses.

The semiprofessional courses are of a terminal nature, which prepare students for employment. The 34 semiprofessional programs encompass nearly 45 per cent of the enrollment here, according to Louis Batmale, dean of instruction.

Students who enter the semiprofessional division intend to go into industry after a two-year program, which state colleges and universities do not carry. The courses are designed so students may satisfy the college's graduation requirements and receive the Associate of Arts degree.

Many of the semiprofessional programs have been inaugurated in direct response to the demands of industrial and business employers of the Bay Area, who also give advice and assistance in setting up the suggested programs of study.

Batmale lists four prerequisites to establishment of a semiprofessional course. Enough students must be interested in the subject, jobs must be available on completion of the field and there must be co-operation from industry and instructors to teach the subject.

Additions and deductions from the program are continuously being made. At the end of this semester, for example, the semiprofessional course in recreation leadership will be dropped because not enough jobs are offered in the field.

And, at the onset of Fall 1962, medical assisting, sponsored by the San Francisco Medical Assistants Society in co-operation with the San Francisco Medical Society, will be added to the program.

The two-year course will include instruction in laboratory techniques, physical and mechanical properties of supplies and materials, clinical assisting, related biological and physical sciences and business training.

Students who complete the curriculum are qualified for positions as medical assistants.

Semiprofessional programs in the business field include accounting, airline stewardess training, business machines, clerical work, insurance, merchandising, real estate, secretarial training, and traffic and transportation.

The criminology program meets the needs of students who plan to seek employment with public or private agencies concerned with maintaining public safety, those who are employed by law agencies and those who desire to obtain background in criminology in preparation for study in law or social welfare.

Dental assisting and dental laboratory technology are also offered.

The engineering technology department offers programs in architectural or civil engineering technology, building and contracting technology, design drafting technology, electrical or electronic engineering technology, general engineering technology and mechanical engineering technology.

Other programs include graphic arts, nurse training and hotel and restaurant, which includes food preparation and H&R operation.

The program in ornamental horticulture includes garden maintenance, greenhouse and nursery management, landscape contracting and retail floristry.

Completing this first category are photography and X-ray technology.

Because many students attend college with the aim of graduating with an Associate in Arts degree after two years without specializing in any specific professional field, a third division of the curriculum, the general college course, is offered.

In the general college course, the student is provided with an introduction to various vocational and cultural fields to acquaint him with his cultural heritage and understanding, so that he may be a contributing citizen to his community.

Courses which relate to the wide field of general education include life science, natural science, certain phases of specialized chemistry, communications, and an appreciation of music, art and literature.

Letters To The Editor — RAM'S HORN

• Muddy Problem

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to mention publicly a problem that has been present here for some time, one that we have seemed content to leave alone.

I am referring to the situation that often greets the student as he approaches the campus from Judson and Gennesse Avenues. There is a parking lot near either side of the walk, which extends from Judson to the arts building for the use of students who walk from Monterey Boulevard as well as those who use the parking lots.

It is not a convenient way for drivers to snatch a good parking space between the parking lots.

Nonetheless, when walking along the path, I have had to give the right of way to automobiles which were driven along this path and onto the dirt hill. I realize that parking problems have always been acute on campus and that this is but another phase.

Possibly there is something the Campus Police can do about the situation. I am not sure, but I believe it is possible to gain entrance to the hallowed area through the adjoining parking area.

While I am on the subject of that pathway mention should be made of another problem that exists at that point and at several others around campus. When the heavy rains come, as happened last month, the mud from the hill I mentioned slides onto the walk. Coupled with the dirt from tire wheels, it makes a sloppy slush students have to wade through.

Naturally, I don't expect this one letter to make any great stride toward solving the problems mentioned, but I am hoping that through it someone might get the idea that this is somewhat a bother to students and therefore start asking around to see what can be done about it.

We all talk about having a nice campus; not enough of us are willing to do anything to achieve that goal.

Dennis Greene

The Good Ol' Daze — Tie? Slacks? White Shirt? ...Forgotten

By Dave Grieve

'Twas once a time when a student completely submerged himself in the vast sea of knowledge, which is not to say that students were more learned, but perhaps that the personal knowledge of dress and manners has slipped from the modern scholar's grasp.

On the typical campus of decades past, an obvious contrast is apparent in mens' dress.

A white shirt, emphasizing a stiff cellulose collar, offset by a necktie, either a sweater or coat over it—mind you, not a jacket—and, bottom side, a pair of neatly pressed slacks. Unusual!

Although the coed had not yet popularized the "old college" in force, she methodically took hours (exaggeration) in preparing herself for the campus. During that period she might almost literally have been that "one in a million."

Upon the mannerly side of the subject, when the instruetor entered the class, if the students weren't compelled to rise, they were at least attentive, not gazing out windows, carving desks, sleeping.

To compare modern student dress and manners with those of the past reminds this columnist of the contrast between black and white.

Today this junior-knowledge seeker's mind is preoccupied with visions of future accomplishments in his chosen field. In addition to cluttering his mind with academic material he can't forget the coffee breaks, afternoon dates and television.

Time is the watchword. A student never has enough of it. In the morning his mind is still preoccupied with the night before, he dresses, like Lassie eating dinner, shouts Goo-bye, and flash, he's in class.

But let's back up this ladder leading to a murky bottom. Tie? White shirt? Coat? Neatly pressed slacks? Forgotten.

In their place appears, depending on the season of year, a host of clothing articles chosen with utmost care (not by grandmother, either).

What was once probably a compliimentary ivy league shirt is now a shriveled piece of material marred by thousands of wrinkles; a pair of tan or olive drab trousers seem to have shrunk to the tops of his socks; shoes, of the tennis variety, are so holey they resemble a golf course; and finally the jacket, which never leaves the student's back, boasts a blend of stains ranging from food to grease and beginning to turn the greenish color of mildew.

Sometimes during the winter months the instructor wonders about the student who enters class with his raincoat tightly buttoned under his chin, sits down, and never attempts to remove the soppiug wet coat, as if he accidentally forgot to dress that morning.

And then to manners. After arrival in class, just in time to hear the gong, the student slouches into the chair, answers "Uh-huh" to roll call, and proceeds to gaze idly either into thin air or fall into a silent, melancholy slumber.

Undoubtedly, he provokes an instructor to drive nails into the seat before the next class meeting.

Where are the good ol' daze?

Double C-Hours Set For Blood Drive, Awards

Two double College Hours, one on April 6 for the annual Blood Drive, and one on May 25 for commencement awards, will head the list of College Hour activities for the spring semester.

All students are invited to attend and participate in the activities, Ralph Hillsman, dean of men here, said.

Activities include club meetings, a lecture for this Friday; a concert on March 16; club meetings, March 23; and a lecture on Mareh 30. The Blood Drive is on April 6, club meetings and concert on April 13; lecture, club meetings on April 27.

There will be club meetings and a concert on May 4; a concert on May 11; a concert and meetings on May 18, and the preeommencement assembly on May 25. On June 1 there will be a concert and meetings.

Cager Champs Aim At State Crown

Rams Thrill Fans With Late Rally, Edge Bulldogs 64-62

Thrills, scoring and tempers ran high last week as Sid Phelan led his San Francisco cagers to his first undisputed championship of the Big Eight Conference when the locals squeaked by the San Mateo Bulldogs, 64-62, in the most action-packed game of the year.

Although they trailed throughout most of the game, the Rams staged a tremendous team effort and rallied late in the last quarter to come from behind and win not only the game but the league championship.

With less than a minute to go, San Mateo held a three-point bulge over the locals, 60-57.

Mel Tom, who had just gone in to replace a weary Elton McGriff, was fouled while shooting and received a chance at two free throws. Dramatically sinking both shots, Tom brought the hoopsters to within one point of the Mateans.

Only 30 seconds remained when guard Gene Batiste came from out of nowhere to snatch the ball from a San Mateo player's hands. He sped down the court for an easy lay-up only to have the ball limply roll off the rim.

Tom attempted a tip-in which also failed, but Batiste had recovered quickly and going high into the air dropped the ball easily through the net, giving the Rams a 61-60 lead.

With time dwindling away, San Mateo again scored on a five-foot jumper by Ben Webster. Although inserted only in the last nine minutes of play, Webster scored 13 points as he carried his team in that final period.

With but 10 seconds remaining on the scoreboard clock, the Rams inbounded the ball at half-court and quickly called time out.

The gymnasium became completely silent as play resumed. Brad Duggan dribbled to the top of the key and attempted to pass to "Goose" Adams for a shot.

Adams was well covered so, with but six seconds remaining, Duggan got off a 22-foot twisting jump shot which put the cagers ahead for good.

Also fouled in the act of shooting, Duggan got an extra point at the free throw line to give the Rams the two-point winning margin.

The final 42 seconds in the game took about eight minutes to play as each coach did everything possible to stop the clock.

Pressure was constantly on during the game, and early in the final period tempers broke loose momentarily as both Bulldog and Ram players engaged in a free-for-all pile-up as both benches cleared.

Order was restored quickly by the officials and coaches, and from then on energies were devoted to the ball game.

Phelan, tired and relieved after the game, commented, "We didn't play our best game of the season, but it turned out to be our first in which the players reacted well under pressure."—By J.L.

DEAN LOUIS BATMALE, commissioner of new Golden Gate Conference.

Batmale Elected New Conference Commissioner

Louis Batmale, dean of instruction here, will head the Golden Gate Conference as its athletic commissioner when the conference replaces the Big Eight next semester.

Batmale will assume the position vacated by Russ Azzara, present commissioner of the Big Eight.

Azzara had his headquarters in Sacramento, and since Sacramento City College will be dropping out of the new league, an official was named from one of the colleges in the Golden Gate Conference.

The new commissioner's experience in athletics has been both as a coach and official in basketball. He was formerly dean of student activities here.

Duties of this office encompass assignment of officials for league games, adopting league policies, schedules of league games and selection of any awards and All-Conference honors as circumstances require.

If the new league constitution is adopted as it stands, a commissioner will be elected for a one-year term. As the job can be learned only through experience anyone elected to the spot who fulfills his obligations is expected to serve as long as he is able.

It is anticipated also that any special meetings which concern any part of the Golden Gate athletic program, such as All-League selections and awards, will be held on this campus.

POSSIBLE STARTERS for the league champion Rams when they journey to the state finals tomorrow at Costa Mesa are shown above. They are, left to right, Gene Batiste, Brad Duggan and "Goose" Adams. In the insert are Elton McGriff and Chuck Currington.—Guardsman photo by Rich Michaels.

Three Returning Veterans Strengthen Horsehide Squad

Although hampered by rain in the early part of their preseason practice, the Ram horsehiders should be able to field a basically stronger squad than last season's third place team.

Three returning veterans will be Lee Eisan's mainstays this year as an exceptionally promising crop of rookies should be able to fill in the vacant spots adequately.

Don Meroff, Jim Carroll and Dennis Russell, each returning players from last year's team, form the nucleus around which Eisan hopes to build a championship squad.

Don Kunkle and Lou Bevilacqua, both All-City high school players from Balboa High School, look to be the most promising rookies.

Kunkle, both versatile and able, can catch, pitch or play third base. If needed he could also fill in in the outfield.

Bevilacqua looks to be the man who will hold down the second base spot for the diamondmen.

Pitching strength is still the weakest spot on the squad. John Pearce, fast-balling righthander, seems to be the only experienced starter.

George Tawfer, another star from Balboa, has an excellent shot at the first base spot.

The lineup for the season will probably have Carroll behind the plate, Taufer at first, Bevilacqua at second, Meroff at short, Kunkle at third and Russell in the outfield.

Rookie prospects will be needed to fill in the other two outfield spots, and bench strength is definitely needed.

Golfers Strong In Pre-Season Tilts

The golf team here opens its Big Eight season Friday, March 16, against Stockton College. A predominately freshman squad, Coach Grover Klemmer hopes to give his team the experience needed by means of pre-season practice matches.

In their practice matches the golfers have beaten Napa College, 13-2, and Oakland City College, 11½-3½, and have one loss to Diablo Valley College, 8½-6½. Low scorers were Bruce Hubley with a 76 and ex-footballers Jim Baffico and Dennis Drucker with a 77 and 78.

Still in the midst of a shakedown, Klemmer is looking for his best men from his 15-man squad. So far his top five are Baffico, Drucker, Hubley, Dave Egan and Jim Roman.

The team had matches with Hamilton Air Base last Friday and San Jose City College yesterday. Klemmer points toward defending state champions, College of San Mateo, to repeat again this year behind the strong playing of Dick Lotz.

Tennis Squad To Meet San Mateo

The college tennis team will open its Big Eight Conference matches at 2:30 p.m. Friday against College of San Mateo at San Mateo.

In their only practice match thus far, the racqueteers defeated Monterey Peninsula College, 8-1.

The entire team played well, Coach Roy Diederichsen said, giving special mention to John Kern and Rich Anderson.

Kern won his match 8-6 and 6-1, and Anderson, showing excellent potential in winning his match, moved up one notch to the fourth spot.

Ed Jilka, Diederichsen commented, will be battling to retain his lost position now occupied by Anderson. Jilka needs improvement in the backstroke, Diederichsen indicated.

Petitions Due Thursday For Intramural Teams

Intramural team entry petitions for both basketball and volleyball will be due tomorrow in S-143, according to Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss. Team petitions can be submitted by fraternities, campus clubs and independent teams.

This semester, for the first time, volleyball may be added to the intramural calendar. Volleyball competition could provide a new source of intracampus rivalry, Cherniss said.

Rams To Face Bakersfield In First Round

With a 13-1 Big Eight Conference record hanging from their belts the City College of San Francisco champion Rams will board a plane this afternoon and head for Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa, California, to compete in the state finals tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Tomorrow's first round game, scheduled for 5:30 p.m., will pit the cagers against the champions from the Metropolitan League, Bakersfield City College.

Win or lose the hoopsters play again Friday night against a different team. If they lose either of the first two games they will be eliminated from the final championship game.

The three-day, eight-team tournament of champions will end Saturday night when the two teams who remained unbeaten in the preliminary rounds clash for the title of Junior College State Champions.

Bakersfield City College is rated as one of the toughest teams in the state and the locals' first round encounter against them should prove to be a thrill-packed game.

Oakland City College last week handed the Rams their only defeat of the season when they edged by the cagers 57-52 on the Thunderbirds' home court before a standing-room-only crowd.

Losing by two points midway through the contest, the hoopsters soared back at the start of the third period with 11 straight points before the T-Birds could break their scoring freeze.

Charlie Luster, possible all-conference forward from Oakland, single-handedly broke the game open in the last quarter by completely dominating the boards while scoring 12 second-half points.

Bradley Duggan and Elton McGriff were standouts in this final game. Duggan collected 21 points while McGriff picked off 18 rebounds and scored 10 points. "Goose" Adams also performed well, scoring 13 points.

RA Delegates To Attend Confab

The first three-day Pacific Southwest Regional Athletic and Recreation Federation of college women will be held Friday at Asilomar conference grounds, Frances Galloway, Recreation Association adviser, announced yesterday.

Representing the college will be a delegation of women RA members and two faculty advisers, Shirley Thornton, the group leader, will be accompanied by Sheila d'Aubert, Natalie Gubert, Sharon Hawley, Maxine Hickman and Phyllis Tomlinson.

"To strengthen individual women's Recreation Associations, discuss problems and contribute suggestions," will be the purposes of the conference, Miss Galloway stated.

Miss Thornton's discussion group will cover the values of team sports and individual sports. Other topics on the agenda are the value of coeducational activities in RA, improvement of participation, selection of officers and RA activities after college.

Block SF Society Names New Spring Officers

The Block SF Society here held elections for spring officers on February 23 which resulted in the installation of Ben Winslow, a member of last semester's football squad, as president.

John Pangburn, soccer and track participant, was elected vice president; Dave Fromer, soccer competitor, secretary-treasurer, and John Ahearn, football and soccer member, the athletic commissioner.

Darnes Heads Spikers' Hopes For 4th Straight Big 8 Championship

Rain and track do not mix, but Alex Darnes and track do mix. Darnes is a potential record breaker in the discus and shot-put events this season, if records and Coach Louis Vasquez' predictions are significant.

Darnes and his fellow cindermen, delayed a few weeks back by thunderous and unhelpful rain, are preparing for the upcoming league meets which are prefaced by the Big Eight Relays to be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, March 17, at Sacramento.

The first league encounter will be against Oakland City College at 3:30 p.m., March 23, at Santa Rosa.

Darnes' past record indicates his natural ability and stamina.

Last year he won the Big Eight competition with a mark of 153 feet in the discus and placed second in the shot-put with a toss of 49 feet. Improving steadily, he has proved to be the best discus thrower in Northern California with a toss of 154-9½.

His best effort in the discus event came in the West Coast Relays where he got off a throw of 167 feet. The state meet brought to an end a fine year for Darnes. He finished second in the state in the discus with a toss of 162 feet.

A good crop of experienced members, revolving around Darnes, and a fresh rookie talent will be shooting for their fourth consecutive Big Eight title.

It seems to be becoming a tradition but there will be obstacles—in particular, College of San Mateo.

RAMBLINGS Cage Team Effort Snags Game, Title

By Jerry Littrell

IT HAS BEEN a long, uphill battle throughout the entire season for the Ram varsity basketball squad, but all the hard work and time was well spent as the cagers, under the splendid coaching of the veteran mentor, Sid Phelan, captured the Big Eight title in the league's final year.

A hard-fought, thrilling game was a fitting climax to the long climb to the top as the Rams defeated San Mateo last week to clinch the conference championship.

Each man contributed to the win, and if it were not for the complete co-operation among players, the outcome might have been different.

Everett "Goose" Adams hit 17 points in the game to lead the scoring parade. This spunky guard kept the team together with his usual playmaking ability.

Chuck Currington hit the bucket with his usual accuracy and contributed all-important points from the free-throw line.

Elton McGriff, his offensive thrust held down by a strong Mateo defense, played an effective defensive game of his own helping on the zone defense to hold All-League center Howie Sundberg to but one field goal.

Gene Batiste also played a good defensive game and earned the hero-of-the-minute award when he put the Rams ahead with 25 seconds left in the game.

Mel Tom dropped in the two free throws that brought the cagers within one point of San Mateo with but a minute remaining, and hit the boards aggressively to keep the ball in San Francisco's hands.

Brad Duggan tanked the winning bucket and free throw with only seven seconds remaining even though he was pressured by both the clock and a double-team defense.

Bill Nocetti came off the bench late in the second period and gave the offensive spark the Rams needed as he scored six quick points and held his own man to one bucket.

Any one of these players could rightfully be heralded as game star, but this game needed a team effort and that's just what these champions produced.

Ram Five Captures State Championship

(See Guardsman SPORTS, Page 4)

College Hour Schedule
8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:00
9 o'clock classes— 9:10 to 9:50
COLLEGE HOUR—10:00 to 10:40
10 o'clock classes—10:50 to 11:30
11 o'clock classes—11:40 to 12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:30 to 1:10
1 o'clock classes— 1:20 to 2:00

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 54 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 1962 NUMBER 3

Library Begins 'Closed Stacks' System

Excessive Book Loss Causes Major Change In Operation

By Kevin Curtis

Loss of an excessive number of books since 1960 has forced a drastic change in the operation of the Cloud Hall library, Edward E. Sandys, dean of instruction in charge of the library, announced last week.

Beginning last Monday, a "closed stacks" system replaced the long utilized open stacks.

Under the new practice, students will no longer be admitted to the book shelves located behind the circulation desk. Instead, they will fill out a request slip listing the book or books desired and give it to the librarian, who will get it for them.

"We found this new system necessary not only from the financial standpoint, but because of the great loss of time involved in cataloging and arranging the books when we are not sure if they will remain in the library. Furthermore, many of the missing volumes cannot be replaced," Sandys stated.

The faculty will continue to have "stack privilege" as will a certain number of honor students.

The previous system had been in use since 1940. In the years since then, the library staff has tried many devices to curtail losses, yet books continued to disappear in ever-increasing numbers.

"The 'closed stacks' system is a last resort," Sandys declared.

The student wishing a book should locate its card in the catalog by author, and title or subject. He should then fill out a request slip in full with his name and the book number. The student may not request more than four books at one time.

When submitting the slip to the librarian, he should show his registration card. When signing out for books, he should again show his card.

For editorial comment, see page 2.)

NO MORE will the stacks of books (crossed out) be open to browsers or researching students as has been the practice. Recent inventories have shown an excessive shortage of volumes, and administrators felt it necessary to close the stacks.

ISC Open House Sunday To Kickoff Sorority Rushing

All women students, including interested rushees, are invited to attend the sorority open house scheduled from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. this Sunday, March 18, in Smith Hall, Jeri Sciutto, Inter-Sorority Council president, announced last week.

Providing the entertainment for the open house, the main event to set off the ISC rushing activities this semester, will be the Mitels and the Travelers. Refreshments of cookies and punch will be served.

Displays of scrapbooks, trophies and other items concerning the six active sororities on campus will be exhibited to guests. Campus dress will be worn.

Rushing week will start the following day, March 19, and end Monday, March 26. Women students wishing to join a sorority may register between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150. Registration fee is $1.

To enable easy identification for members, tentative plans are being made to have pictures taken of prospective rushees. Two weeks after rushing, the firesides will begin where the women can meet members and learn about the sororities.

Each rushee must attend five firesides, Miss Sciutto said.

ISC officers working with Miss Sciutto are Jan Doudiet, vice president; Marilyn Butler, secretary, and Vicki Grant, publicity chairman.

Sorority presidents are Bev Hammer, Delta Psi; Nettie Cook, Delta Sigma Tau; Miss Doudiet, Gamma Kappa Beta; Judy Stern, Kappa Phi; Miss Sciutto, Phi Beta Rho, and Miss Butler, Theta Tau.

The ISC Ball will be held Friday, May 4, at the Hilton Inn.

At an earlier College Hour meeting the ISC held "an assembly at which each sorority contributed ideas and plans for the spring semester," Miss Sciutto said.

IFC Backs Annual Blood Drive Here Starting April 5

Students here are urged to donate blood during the annual blood drive planned for Thursday, April 5, and Friday, April 6, Bob Turnbow, Inter-Fraternity Council president, said last week.

Last year the college led all other organizations west of Denver in its contributions of blood. During that drive, approximately 500 pints were given by students.

In the past the drive was sponsored by Tau Chi Sigma fraternity. However, the IFC took over when that fraternity disbanded.

A student who gives one pint of blood during the drive will, if the occasion arises, be able to draw, once during the coming year, an unlimited supply for himself or his immediate family, Turnbow stated.

Turnbow emphasized that in order for students under 21 to donate blood they must have written permission from their parent or guardian.

On April 6 a rally will be held in front of Cloud Hall during a double College Hour. The IFC is at present attempting to secure professional entertainment for the affair.

"Anyone who wishes to rush a fraternity may still register on sign-up sheets, which will be available either at the silver pole or in Dean Hillsman's office," Turnbow further remarked.

Six To Represent College At State Meet In Los Angeles

A total of five delegates will accompany Dan Collins, Associated Student president here, to the state conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association to be held in Los Angeles March 29, 30 and 31.

They will be Suzanne Murphy, AS vice president, Jan Doudiet, Greg Monk, Andy Shamiyeh and Gail Margolin, state information chairman. Site of the meeting will be the Biltmore Hotel.

Two alternate delegates are Bill May and Jackie Rommel.

The recent Northern Regional conference of the CJCSGA went off smoothly with more than 500 delegates attending from 27 two-year colleges.

Eight successful recommendations were approved. No resolutions were made.

The most notable of the recommendations calls for reorganizing of the Northern California region into two or three sections to make intercollege communications more feasible.

Another recommendation, concerning athletics, would have the individual athletic conferences within the CJCSGA represented by an individual vote, instead of the present bloc vote for Northern (2), Central (2) and Southern (3) sections.

A third recommendation stipulates the setting up of a "school spirit clinic," while a fourth recommendation asks for greater administration co-operation in the sale of student cards, with the possibility mentioned of making Associated Student cards mandatory.

Another measure states that all member colleges should give incoming freshman students orientation, as this college already does.

Freshmen Prepare For Semiannual Ball On March 23

Using the theme, An Affair To Remember, the Freshman Class, under the leadership of President Vince Contreras, will present its semiannual ball on Friday, March 23, at the Colonial and Italian Rooms of the St. Francis Hotel.

Bid priority to members of the Freshman Class will begin next Monday, March 19, and end March 22. During the two days preceding the ball, invitations will be available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Free bids may be obtained at the silver pole in Science Hall upon presentation of an Associated Student card.

When picking up their bids, students should disclose the name of their date for the purpose of convenience, Contreras added.

Dress for the affair is semiformal and couples only will be admitted. Music will be provided by Maury Wolohan and his orchestra.

Highlighting the ball will be the traditional cutest couple contest. Tallies, which are being made by the graphic arts department, will be distributed to prospective candidates at the door.

Winning couples in the contest will be ranked in first, second and third place.

The awards consist of two trophies, donated by Phi Beta Rho sorority and Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity. Gamma Kappa Beta sorority, Alpha Phi Epsilon and Zeta Phi Sigma fraternities will donate the flowers, corsages and buttonieres.

Working toward the success of the ball with Contreras are Richard Thomas, vice president and tally committee head; Susan Beedie, secretary and invitation committee head; Nora Solis, treasurer, and Imogene Walker, social secretary.

Patrons for the function are Mr. and Mrs. Jules Fraden, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Power, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Beedie, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Del Castillo, Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Starno, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Carpenter, Patricia McCarthy and Ruth Inskipp.

Wallfisch Duo To Highlight Friday Concert In C-Hour

Presently on tour, the Wallfisch Duo will make their second public appearance in San Francisco here during College Hour Friday, Meyer Cahn, faculty director of the concert series, stated.

The duo will be the next guests in a series of programs selected to acquaint students with the whole spectrum of musical performance, Cahn emphasized.

The series also will provide an opportunity for students to hear their own groups. The orchestra and band are scheduled for May 18 and the college choral groups will sing June 1.

Musicians from other colleges are also to perform. The San Francisco State Chamber Music Ensemble opened the series on February 23. The San Bernardino Junior College Concert Band will play May 4.

Also from another college is the Mills Chamber Trio, but instead of students, the trio is composed of instructors. They will make their visit on May 11.

On April 13 students may hear a professional performance from Elbogen and Schrier, a piano duo.

Even the touring professional is included in the sequence and this is the Wallfisch Duo, who have appeared in every major music festival in Europe, such as the Casals festival and the Menuhin. This is their third American tour.

Ernst Wallfisch is a professor for viola at the Mozarteum in Salzberg, Austria, and also teaches once a month at the Conservatory of Music in Switzerland. Lory Wallfisch has accompanied her husband on the piano since they met in Romania, where he was then studying music.

The duo played in San Francisco yesterday at the Legion of Honor for the Patrons of Art and Music.

Their College Hour concert as well as forthcoming recitals will also be televised by the television department to accommodate overflow audiences.—By A.P.

Coed Quintet Here Vies For Miss SF Crown

Five women students of the college have filed applications for the 1962 Miss San Francisco Pageant, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, according to Mrs. Salvatore A. Lima, registration chairman.

Composing the quintet of entrants are Brenda Dennis, Judith Gall, Diane Holt, Carolyn Johnson and Diane Wickstrom. Last Saturday these women attended the tea-reception that was held for all entrants at the Jack Tar Hotel.

The final contest will be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 14, at the Jack Tar Hotel.

2nd AWS Sack Social In History Set Today

With bag lunches clutched in their hands, Associated Women Students will join in the festivities of the Sack Social from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. today in bungalow 6, according to Jackie Rommel, AWS president.

Enabling big and little sisters to become acquainted, if they have not done so already, this first spring event of AWS is being presented for the second time in the history of the college, Miss Rommel added.

New students will also meet the AWS and the Associated Student officers.

A fashion show displaying current styles from Casual Aire will be a major attraction. Because of the expense involved, there will be no modeling, but fashions will be hung on the wall in the bungalow.

In view of the stress on academic achievement here, Barbara Sperring, an Alpha Gamma Sigma member, will deliver a lecture on how to study for midterms.

Popular songs by Verde Marie Byrd and a dance selection from the modern dance group of the college will be included in the entertainment.

Approximately 30 high school seniors from each San Francisco high school are invited to AWS's next affair, the semiannual fashion show and tea, slated for 3 p.m. Thursday, April 5, at Smith Hall.

Another AWS event, the Feminine Fling, featuring a buffet dinner and entertainment, is scheduled from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Friday, May 25, at Smith Hall.

JACKIE ROMMEL, Associated Women Student president, plans for a capacity crowd at the Sack Social. —Guardsman photo by Clifford Yee.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP 1961

Vol. 54, No. 3 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 1962 Page 2

Stock In Two-Year College Goes Up 11 Per Cent In One Week

VALUE of a two-year college operating in the city school system was pointed out last week by a decision of the State College Board of Trustees.

This value promises to be demonstrated in ensuing semesters as a result of that decision.

The trustees decided to raise the entrance qualifications of all state colleges so that, instead of the top 44 per cent of high school graduates being eligible for enrollment, only 33 per cent will be admitted.

Last year the University of California made a similar but more drastic move, cutting their high school enrollees from the highest 26 per cent to 12, a drop of more than half.

City College, however, is a public institution and may not select students on the basis of their high school scholastic achievements.

All applicants must be accepted.

Thus prep school graduates who wish to continue their education must go to this college (or, of course, a similar public facility) to gain qualifications necessary to enter a university.

Because the lower 67 per cent of the high schools are well represented here does not lower the scholastic qualities of the college.

Aside from general education courses and the semiprofessional courses (which cannot be considered "snap" courses), all of the studies offered here are university parallels.

This means that they are essentially the same as the corresponding class one might attend at the University of California.

It must be this way if City College is to prepare students to attend a college or university in pursuit of their bachelor's or master's degree.

Many students who feel that they are attending a "junior" college are surprised when midterm grades roll around, and are jolted when they discover at the end of the semester that they may not enroll again.

For then the words of Thomas Nesbitt, testing director here, uttered humorously during the entrance examinations, display their hard core of truth.

"The law says we have to accept all of you," he tells the students in the testing room, "but it doesn't say how long we have to keep you."

Fireside Monologue, 1972

I SEE IN THE PAPER where our taxes are going up again. They must think we're made of money! And they always give the same sad story. Need more money for the school system.

"As if we can't see through that! I know better. I went through City College of San Francisco ten years ago. You did, too? Then you know that they were never hurting for anything.

"Those were the days, though, weren't they? I really raised the devil there. Look, I'll show you something. I've got a pretty good book collection. These I got from the library at City College.

"I used to drive the librarians crazy. They had open stacks that anyone could enter, and I used to go back and put a book inside my shirt and stroll out. Got these six books that way.

"They don't have open stacks any more? What a place! How do they expect students to get quick references? One of the really good ideas they had in practice and they did away with it!

"Couldn't be because of the few books I took."

The Spectator — Time Limit—Story Of Hero Or Traitor?

By Anna Papagni

BIG THINGS are happening in the college drama department now, namely, preparation for a full scale production.

Time Limit, which deals with a contemporary theme that was presented on Broadway only seven years ago, will open on the campus March 30 for a two weekend run.

This is the first complete show of the year. Last semester's limited funds, which barely covered royalties, forced Michael Griffin, drama director, to confine theater activities to a series of one-act plays performed in-the-round with no costumes or props.

Funds are still limited, but fortunately, Mr. Director's ingenuity is not. He has chosen a play that requires just two sets as well as inexpensive costuming. Furthermore, Griffin has managed to convince Samuel French Inc., play brokers, that the college deserves special royalty rates.

So once again students will be able to experience full length, live drama in their backyard with Time Limit.

The story portrays an American major in the Korean war who is about to be officially charged with treason. It is a matter of record that he went over to the enemy, made propaganda broadcasts, and complied with all its requirements.

Moreover, he admits his guilt and refuses to offer any kind of defense. A zealous judge advocate of a home-side Army post is not satisfied with the plea or the evidence. He insists on finding the motive.

Before the final curtain comes down on a shattering scene, it is plain that the defendant's motive is creditable, if not magnanimous. He has been protecting the lives of 18 comrades.

Does the organization, in this case the army, punish the individual for not conforming to its absolute code or rules no matter what the particular circumstances, or does society allow the individual to act according to his own personal integrity even when this integrity conflicts with organization policy?

A good question, one that Herman Wouk asked a short time ago with The Caine Mutiny and William Whyte discussed in The Organization Man.

For those who like sheer entertainment, here is a swift, suspenseful drama with enough humor to provide a few good laughs.

Those who do not believe in art for art's sake can see a contemporary problem in a realistic situation.

Labs End Language Study Chore

Learning a new language without the use of texts may seem to many an extremely difficult task to undertake, but through a new teaching technique put into full operation here for the first time this semester, the chore is almost a cinch.

Tape recordings supplant the necessity of books and instructor's lectures. Actually, the unique setups are language labs, and unknown to a large majority here, they are located in C-232 and 233.

The rooms each consist of 31 individual compartments. Each compartment has within its two slabs of acoustical tile a set of earphones, a miniature tape recording system complete with microphone and a chair.

The main purpose of the labs, according to their director, John H. Fawcett, is to give students an opportunity to listen to and study language tapes, consequently learning the tongue by repeating words into the mikes after the voice on the tape during regular "spacings."

An instructor at the head of the room with his master control panel merely has to pull a switch to turn on an individual's mike in a particular cubicle and criticize and/or praise the student's interpretation of the voice on the taped lesson.

Tapes are run at either three and three-fourths or seven and a half inches depending on the length necessary for a "spacing" during a given lesson.

One French class, taught by Fawcett himself, meets regularly in the language lab. Other foreign language courses (English and Speech 1A are also included) use the labs as a supplement to regular classroom studies.

The labs are not used exclusively for studying, though. Any interested student is welcome to make use of the facilities during an open hour. Assistance is offered by five student aides throughout the day.

Music tapes of selections from Shakespeare are presently available for any type of listening—casual or otherwise. A corner filing cabinet houses dozens of such tapes.

Students are invited to bring their own tapes or in some cases to take certain tapes home for listening on their own recorders.

Appropriations for the new installation were received following passage of the National Defense Education Act of 1958. The labs have been instituted nationally and the response has been highly favorable.

Co-ordinating the labs here are acting Dean of Instruction James Billwiller and Dean Edward Sandys.

U.S. Reserves — 4 Instructors Pay Homage To Common Uncle

By Herman Kilgerman

Most men welcome the arrival of their final discharge papers from the armed services, but at least four instructors here haven't claimed the privilege of receiving such papers and, consequently, still pay occasional homage to Uncle Sam.

These reservists, who last month took brief leaves of absence from the college, included Joseph A. Amori, placement director; John Lippitt, business administration instructor; Alfred Tapson, social science instructor, and John Chapman, engineering instructor.

Each attended a specific function of their branch of the service.

Having had 22 years experience in naval aviation, during which time he attained the rank of captain, Amori was connected with a special assignment involving the Polaris Weapon System in Washington, D. C.

While there, his specific task was in the Manpower Research Office.

Amori pursued initiation of a training program for Polaris submarine crews and was also responsible for the evaluation of teaching machines and programming to accelerate the training of the crews.

Excitement isn't anything new to Lippitt so he didn't consider his experiences on an Air Force reserve leave too unusual this year.

Lead navigator of a mission to drop paratroopers and supplies over a lake in Alaska, he was faced with a number of perplexing incidents.

The most serious of these occurred near Nome, Alaska, when a number of planes (there were 12 in all) under his immediate jurisdiction almost got lost because of bad weather conditions. As Lippitt, himself, put it humorously, "Snow almost got in the nose wheel wells."

A silly error prompted the next incident. It seemed that the Army at the last minute decided to move a particular drop zone target—and forgot to clue the pilots in on the change. The flyers followed original plans and everything turned out for the best anyway.

According to Lippitt, an Arctic soldier wearing all the necessary apparatus boosts his body weight at least 100 pounds, making it extremely difficult for such a person to enter or leave a tight enclosure without assistance.

Last spring while returning to the mainland from France, Lippitt, navigating a C119 flying boxcar, noticed that the plane's oil line was broken. He was forced to land in an obscure place in Spain and was delayed a few days, which forced him to be two days late for his business classes here.

Tapson just returned from an Industrial College of Armed Forces' seminar in Ventura, California. He presently holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army Corps of Engineers.

Among the topics discussed at the triannual meeting were those of general strategy, the cold war, economic conditions and communism.

Chapman, who is a retired naval captain, participated in a reorientation program at Treasure Island for two days recently.

The instructors are eligible for active duty if another world conflict breaks out.

Each has his fingers crossed.

Campus PanoRAMa — Do You Believe Americans Are Physically Unfit?

By Rodney Van Cleve

Jim Craig Thom, sophomore:

Yes, I do. If you walk downtown and look at the average businessman you'll see a paunchy, fat-jowled, red-faced man panting from the exercise of stepping up to a curb. This is a personal problem, and can be remedied only by individuals caring enough for themselves to keep fit.

JIM CRAIG THOM

"Average businessman ... paunchy, fat-jowled, red-faced man, panting from the exercise of stepping up to a curb."

John Fershtiski, sophomore:

Of course not. Look at me, I am a model of Hercules. There are some people who like to eat, but I wouldn't call them unfit. All of this furor raised over the physical fitness of Americans is being promoted by the Metrecal lobby.

Walter Behmer, freshman:

No, I don't think it's a national catastrophe the way it's publicized. There are individuals, of course, who are in need of a little pruning. Physical education programs and television shows dealing with healthful exercises are helpful.

Pat Regam, sophomore:

Some Americans are in poor physical condition, but I don't think you can pin the label on everyone in general. Food isn't the worst offender as a balanced diet is easily achieved in this country. The root of the problem is lack of exercise.

Jackie Patton, freshman:

You can't classify Americans in general as unfit, at least I couldn't, as all the people I know are in fine shape. I suppose it's an individual rather than a collective problem with its victims hardly confined to this country.

Ed Pawlus, sophomore:

Yes, I believe that Americans are physically unfit. We can see this in the number of men rejected for service in the armed forces. It seems as though California itself is the central point in America in respect to this weakness.

Harvey Green, sophomore:

I really don't know. I spend a good deal of time sleeping, and I suppose I am terribly unfit. The whole matter boils down to the degree of importance a person places on physical condition in contrast to how much he appreciates relaxation.

Rosemary Simms, freshman:

Yes. With the American standard of living what it is, physical wrecks are almost inevitable. To remain in healthy condition, a person has to pay constant attention to his diet and exercise habits. I think the attention the government and doctors are giving this problem will help.

Shots At RAMdom — 'All The World's A Big Golf Course'

By Dave Kleinberg

IN ENGLISH 1B, a student walked into class and reported to his friend, "I've just finished the third hole."

A stupefied look replied, "What are you talking about?"

"Shakespeare," came the answer. "The third scene in King Henry the Fourth. It's a par-three, 302 lines, and I finished it last night. Only 16 more holes to go on this course."

His friend retorted, "This isn't Golf 18A."

"I know," the golf nut responded. "The 19-hole course (the five-act play) is 4890 lines long. The shortest hole is the par-two, 44-line 19th (Act V, Scene 5).

"The longest is the par-five, 597-line seventh hole (Act II, Scene 4). That's a real rough one. The long distance and the two traps probably make it one of the toughest holes in all of Shakespeare's tournaments."

Was it Shakespeare who wrote, "All the world's a golf course"?

* * *

HOT AIR: "It seems unfair," a student remarked the other day. "The city spends $50,000 on a wind study of Candlestick Park that's only been existing since 1959.

"I've been here since 1956 and there hasn't been any mention of a wind study at City College. Some days I have been blown from Science Hall to the gymnasium—and back.

"I've figured it out. If all the wind that blows in one semester could be compressed together for one big push we would beat the Russians to the moon."

Better yet: Compress all that hot air for one push.

* * *

RAM RAT RACE: Things that make the day a little bit better? Driving into the reservoir, starting into what appears to be an empty parking space, only to find a foreign, compact and/or sports car partially hidden by two normal cars . . . walking up to Science Hall wondering when the two pits will be filled, worrying that some morning you may forget to open your eyes and awake in the mud . . . walking into a new English 1B class and hearing the instructor say, "I gave out two A's last semester—the first A's I've given since I started instruction here . . ." returning to your car and finding a little white slip—and there goes two-fifths of next semester's AS card.

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGAVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
News Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Muller
Editorial Assistants: Thaila Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni, Rodney Van Cleve.
Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelder, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson.
Cub Reporters: Norma Beck, Harry Cordellos, John Figueroa, John Gilman, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Thomas Renshaw, Walter Rice, John Silva, Mike Zelinsky.
Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti, Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Rudy Williams, Chris Utter, Clifford Yee.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Council Continues Budget Approvals

Problems Arise But 4 Association Requests OK'd

Spirited action was prevalent as the Student Council passed four more budgets last week.

Slashes in the proposed budgets continued Thursday. The only exception was the amount allotted to basketball. Here an additional $1173 was supplemented to cover the state championships.

Student Union Chairman Greg Monk reported that the team would receive a share of the profits from the tournament. It was therefore possible that the amount allotted could be returned in whole or in part.

Problems arose during the discussions on the Recreation Association, fencing and publicity budgets.

At one point discussion on an amendment to remove $50 from the fencing budget lasted more than 15 minutes.

"As a student card member, I protest the Student Council's handling of this matter," George Woo, past Sophomore president, charged.

His reference was to a shortened debate on the publicity budget. "You spent 20 minutes discussing $50. But you refuse to discuss with the same amount of vigor a budget concerning thousands," Woo further exclaimed.

At the conclusion of the meeting AS President Dan Collins remarked that "too much time is being spent on incidental and irrelevant questions."

Pioneer Faculty Member Dies

Dorothy F. Mercer, a member of the English department faculty since the college opened in 1935, and first adviser to the Forum literary magazine and club, died last Thursday after a long illness.

She had been on sick leave since last fall when she underwent surgery.

An instructor of advanced literature courses here, Miss Mercer was a graduate of the University of California where she earned her A.B., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. She also attended Oxford University, and held a bachelor of literature degree, as a result of her studies there.

Miss Mercer was well known as an instructor who took a firm stand on the importance of humanities, stressing that "if too much emphasis is placed on the technical courses, we are endangering democracy, since liberal studies teach the abstracts of ideals, morals and values."

Exploration — Collins Emphasizes Renewed Student Government Interest

By Bob O'Lear

One of the most important factors in the successful functioning of a representative form of government is a well-informed public.

This is of even more importance in regard to student government, since the majority of students take little, if any, interest in the activities of their representatives.

A good example of this apathy can be seen by observing the election booths at the college during elections.

Realizing the need for more communication between his administration and the student, Associated Student President Dan Collins is emphasizing several new concepts in this respect—for those who like their government in one quick bite.

Among these will be a presidential press conference to be held once each month. The conference will be attended by representatives of all campus communications media.

"It is hoped we will be able to have live coverage on CCTV," Collins remarked. The first conference is planned, tentatively, within two weeks.

Further efforts proposed by Collins to improve communications at the college include the issuance every Friday of a bulletin of the coming week's activities. These will be given to all campus organizations prior to each College Hour.

Another innovation still in the planning stages is a personal public relations program to interest Bay Area high school students in the college. Under this plan, Collins will send Student Council members to speak before the various student bodies.

These fresh ideas reflect the enthusiasm that Collins has brought into his position as student leader.

"We need the support of every student. And I hope, through our programs, to reach many more students than are presently involved in our activities," Collins commented.

As usual at the beginning of the semester, his major problem has been the student budgets. But with the completion of that task expected soon, his administration can now turn to other functions.

"The council has done a thorough job with the budgets. In addition, they have shown great interest in the promotion of college functions," Collins further remarked.

He expressed gratification in the handling of the Frosh Mixer. "It was a huge success," Collins affirmed. "I have been particularly pleased with the outstanding job done by the Frosh Class."

But above all, Collins again stressed "renewed interest by the students in our efforts.

"That is the basis of our strength and the success of this semester," he said.

COO CONVENTION POSTPONED

The Council of Organizations problems convention, originally scheduled for tomorrow, has been shifted to Wednesday, April 25, Ed Pawlus, COO president, announced last week.

Board Of Education Approves $375,000 Smith Hall Annex

Approval of a $375,000 wing to Smith Hall highlighted last week's Board of Education meeting, staged on campus in the art building theater.

Gifts comprising the six digit figure were allocated by the Statler Foundation, $100,000; the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation, $50,000, and the Junior College building fund, $225,000.

The appropriations assure construction, to begin during the summer months, of a composite structure for hotel and restaurant classes and a student center, although completion is not scheduled until September, 1963.

The two-story building will house a new lecture-demonstration room, a demonstration kitchen on the second floor and a student center for informal studying and gathering on the ground level.

College President Louis G. Conlan declared, "The purpose of the student center is two-fold, to relieve the overcrowding of the cafeteria and to be easily adaptable to student activities."

The new wing will be as large as the present cafeteria, and will be attached to the eastern face of Smith Hall.

Two college "firsts" were accomplished last week with the first Board of Education meeting held on campus and the first televised account of the board's meeting in progress.

The closed circuit television coverage, CCTV, was the result of an effort by 25 students who organized the equipment, produced, directed, and televised the program through monitors for the audience and members of the board to view.

The 'Good Ol' Daze— The College, As Does The Rain, Aids In Yielding Vast Harvest

By Dave Grieve

A MAJESTIC curtain of rain engulfs the campus.

In the beginning silver drops plummeted upon the earthy soil, upon an unmarked scope of land, moved by nature's sporadic cleansing action.

Only the ground creatures felt the downpour.

Shortly, however, Man trod over the ground, turning topsoil saturated by the now constant precipitation. He was to plant a crop to harvest, to be reaped by his kind. To yield a product not like wheat nor barley, yet to stimulate and satisfy the appetites of his and future generations.

The air thickened, the sky darkened, the relentless pellets still fell.

Seemingly entranced by the antics of Man, the small ground animals watched, nibbling and gnawing at the infant crop, almost trying to irritate their masters' control over a domain which once had been theirs alone.

The aspects of growth were favorable. A sod rich in mineral ingredients—ideal for a diversified number of crops; at first nourishing the unknowing roots by giving them consciousness, then a degree of perception.

Rain, a catalyst to growth, a channel to knowledge, aids by administering direction, attitude and comprehension.

Soon the developing bud reaches the surface. Beckoned by the possibly infinite space above, it matures, wisely aware of its experiences and surroundings, upward reaching toward the heavens.

Surprised were the small animals that vast amounts of rain didn't harm the croppage, and they fervently renewed their fight to repel expansion.

The rain trickles through furrows leading to ever-enlarging puddles of which the growth modestly drinks and absorbs, as the animals jealously stare in remembrance of frolicking games.

Insistently the creatures attempt to trod over the maturing fields, but to no avail. They disrespect, even hate Man for encroaching on their lives with something they cannot comprehend; henceforth, it is their desire to destroy the product.

But it is not the bigness of the crop which defeats the ground animals, but the "stuff" composing the growth.

Shortly Man arrives, for the period of seasoning has passed, and it is time to gather the crops, the first, but one of an inexhaustible supply.

The animals first resound triumphantly with the loss of their self-imposed obsession, but soon realize, with the maturing of following crops that they must live and share their lives with something unconquerable.

The curtain of rain neither rises nor falls over the campus, but keeps pounding on the roofs, the walls, and the soil.

GLENDA MORITA (LEFT) AND MARY MEACHAM, both participants in the current poster contest, consult advertising arts instructor William Eckert on the details of an entry.—Photo by Chris Utter.

24 Student Posters Entered In Collegiate Ad Art Contest

A total of 24 posters will be entered in the annual collegiate advertising art contest by students here, William Eckert, advertising art instructor, said recently.

Breaking The Sound Barrier is the theme of the contest, entries for which are due by Saturday, March 31. The posters express the ideals of freedom and democracy through the universal language, art.

Sponsored by the Zellerbach Paper Company and the Advertising Association of the West, the contest is open to students in 13 Western states and four Canadian provinces.

Each entry is expected to be understandable to persons of any age and background since the winning posters will receive international circulation. At the present time, there is a chance that the posters will be placed in United States Information Service offices throughout the world.

Among those submitting designs in hopes of winning some of the $2250 prize money are Jose Fernandez, Mary Meacham, Harriet Golfos, Wayland Chin, Eva Tom, Cenon Aguirre, Joyce Jackson, Rosa Heil, Otto Bloom, Danny Lan, Albert Lideros, Angeline Or, George Madamba, L. Carville, Mike Legaspi, Eura Caveness and Glenda Morita.

In the past the posters from students here have won many honorable mentions.

Usually the students survey the completed posters and choose by vote the four or five that they wish to submit from here. This year, Eckert said, they have decided to enter all the posters since they all represent the contest theme in a different way.

The submitted posters have involved at least 36 hours of class work this semester, Eckert explained, mentioning that this time is usually doubled by outside research work.

Club Cavalcade — Officers Make Semester Plans

By Edy Grant

Helping to organize and prepare a semester of activities, the newly elected officers of clubs, sororities and organizations at the college are beginning to put order into their plans.

New officers of Delta Psi sorority are Beverly Hammer, president; Sue Fitzpatrick, vice president; Vicki Grant, secretary; Rose Diggins, treasurer, and Sue Snyder, pledge mistress.

Delta Sigma Tau sorority has adopted the service project of visiting and entertaining youngsters at Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

The Christian Science Organization, meeting at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at the Third Christian Science Church, 1250 Haight street, invites interested students to attend.

Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity's officers are Roger Labataille, president; Dennis Sinor, vice president; Gordon Smith, service secretary; Stephen Christ, corresponding secretary; Ron McLaughlin, recording secretary and historian; Sanford Saiki, treasurer; Vince Contreras, sergeant-at-arms, and Hoyt Scott, alumni secretary.

First Drama Production To Open March 30

Time Limit Probes Treason Query; Play To Be Offered Two Weekends

Time Limit was chosen by the drama department to be its first full scale production for the academic year, according to Michael Griffin, theater director, who will bring the curtain up on the show at 8 p.m. Friday, March 30, in the arts building theater.

The play will have a limited engagement of two weekends, and admission will be free to Associated Student cardholders but $1 for others.

Time Limit tells the story of an American major who is about to be charged with treason for joining the communists while he is confined in a prison camp during the Korean war.

The play is one of action as well as ideas, Griffin points out, and although it is a serious drama, it is not without humor.

Griffin assembled a cast with extensive theater background. Almost all have had nonprofessional little theater experience while several have done professional work.

Three members were affiliated with such groups as Lee Strasberg's Studio in New York and Ben Arl's Professional Actors Workshop.

John Morrison plays Major Cargill who commits treason and Vincent Cobb portrays the judge advocate, Colonel Edwards. Joan Simms and Fred Fisher both play characters who make up the judge's office staff, while Randolph Jones takes the part of the base commanding officer, General Connors.

The second female role in a predominantly male cast goes to Juliane Jarrett as Mrs. Cargill. Zorair Roubinian, Robert Drews, Mike Corrigan and Edward Cross portray the Lieutenants Miller, Livingston, Garland and Wardell, respectively, who were with Cargill in prison camp.

Nick Bonnacker has the role of the general's son and the part of the Chinese communist, Colonel Kim, is shared by Robert Frank and Italo Tuiipano, who will alternate performances.

Actors Don Military Garb—For Limited Time

For a limited time only, the drama department hopes to borrow items of military apparel.

According to Michael Griffin, drama director, summer tans or khakis, insignias of rank from lieutenant to major general and shoes are especially needed. Items of North Korean or Chinese uniforms and insignias are also sought.

If such items are available, and are cherished possessions, the thespians have promised to be careful with same and return them to their owner immediately.

The material will be used to costume Time Limit, the drama department's first production this semester, opening Friday, March 30.

Duggan Most Valuable Player

Cinderella Team Crushes Citrus To Sweep Tourney

By Jerry Littrell

ORANGE COAST COLLEGE, March 10.—The City College of San Francisco "Cinderella" cage squad came south to try for the state crown and the "slipper" fit perfectly tonight when they overran favored Citrus College, 71-56.

Underdogs to this supposedly superior Southern Conference team the Rams snapped out of the slumber that seemed to have engulfed them for the first two games.

Brad Duggan, Chuck Currington, Elton McGriff, Bill Nocetti and Everett Adams all turned in sterling performances in the final game, and Duggan was named Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

Currington completely dominated the all-important rebounds by collecting 18 from the boards while Duggan tanked in 17 points.

McGriff was high for the game in points with 18 while guards Nocetti and Adams each collected 14 digits while turning in a sparkling playmaking performance.

Using a zone defense for the first time in the tournament, the cagers completely stopped the slick passing, smooth shooting Owls and at the same time went through their own offensive plays as easy as if it were a scrimmage.

After the game it was announced that Duggan and McGriff had each been selected to the All-Tournament team.

In the first game of the three-game series, Bakersfield fell prey to the onslaught of the Rams 75-66, but the game was much closer than the score indicated.

Trailing most of the game the cagers had to make a quick comeback as they were nine points behind with only six minutes remaining.

With but two seconds remaining on the scoreboard clock, Duggan shot a 40-foot shot from the right side to bring the score to an even 60-60 and force the game into overtime. In the extra five minutes of play the Rams scored 15 points while holding a deflated Bakersfield team to six.

Randy Simms came off the bench late in the last quarter and took control of the boards by snagging 14 rebounds in 11 minutes and assist the Rams in their squeak win.

In the second game, against American River, the hoopsters ran up an early lead but let it dwindle away, and in the closing seconds American River went ahead by one point, 46-45.

Again with but six seconds left Adams hit a short jump shot from the free throw line and the Rams had notched their second narrow win.

Adams combined with Nocetti to turn in an admirable three-game performance.

For the first time on the season Currington and McGriff worked effectively on rebounding and quick passing.

After the tournament, Coach Sid Phelan, often referred to by the team as their own most-valuable-player, said, "This is the finest team I have ever coached. Each man came through when it counted."

Twice Rained-Out Netters Resume Matches Today

The tennis team will meet Monterey Peninsula College today on the Golden Gate Park courts, Roy Diederichsen, coach of the team, said.

Rain caused the cancellation of two matches previously scheduled with Menlo Junior College and the University of Santa Clara.

Diederichsen pointed out that Oakland, Modesto and Stockton will be the teams to beat. Ryder Getz and Tom Edelfson of Modesto Junior College and Oakland City College, respectively, will give San Francisan Bob Siska a hard run for individual honors.

"Several members of the team must improve in certain phases of the game to become outstanding," Diederichsen stated, adding, however, that they all have the capabilities.

According to Diederichsen, John Kern, Ed Jilka and Rich Anderson will show a great deal of accomplishments by midseason.

Plans Begin For Block SF Banquet

Louis Vasquez, track coach and sponsor of the Block SF, hopes to get Howie Dallmar, Stanford basketball coach, as the guest speaker for the semiannual awards banquet given by the Block SF.

Plans have already begun for the awards dinner, which will occur sometime in June, Vasquez stated.

The banquet honors all spring sports participants. At this time block letters, trophies and other forms of recognition will be given to all deserving athletes at the college.

Members of the basketball team will receive team jackets bearing the college emblem, by virtue of their winning the Big Eight Conference title.

Working with Vasquez for the awards banquet are the Block SF's four newly elected officers.

Guardsman SPORTS
Wednesday, March 14, 1962 Page 4

Final Stats Show How Cagers Out Shot Foes

	FG	FT	RB	TP
Brad Duggan	92	53	100	237
Elton McGriff	79	51	104	209
Charles Currington	60	24	139	144
Everett Adams	64	22	51	150
Bill Nocetti	31	19	28	81
Gene Batiste	29	20	27	78
Dave Roberts	19	13	14	77
Randy Simms	10	5	49	25
Mel Tom	7	7	15	21
John Neal	4	3	2	11
Dub Johnson	2	5	1	9
Team Totals	406	222	638	1062

Points scored (per game) 81; average points allowed (per game) 51.

FINAL LEAGUE STANDINGS

	Won	Lost
San Francisco	13	1
Stockton	12	2
San Mateo	8	6
Oakland	8	6
Sacramento	6	8
Modesto	2	12
Santa Rosa	1	13
Contra Costa	1	13

SID PHELAN'S FIRST UNDISPUTED championship cage squad. Top left to right, they are, Randy Simms, Chuck Currington, Elton McGriff, Mel Tom. Middle row, Coach Sid Phelan, Brad Duggan, Gene Batiste, Bill Nocetti, Everett Adams. In front row are John Neal, Dub Johnson, Dave Roberts.—Guardsman photo by George Woo.

Spikers Enter Big Eight Relays Friday

TRACK STAR Alex Darnes is shown here as he set a City College discus throw record of 167 feet last season.

Rain-Hampered Rams Seek Title Protection At Sacto

Aiming for the Big Eight crown for the fourth straight year, the Ram track team will compete in the conference relays Friday at Sacramento, Coach Louis Vasquez announced last week.

The season was scheduled to start March 2 against Mather Field and Modesto Junior College, however, rain put a damper on the meet.

Last year in the relays Alex Darnes and Bob Ely won their events. Darnes heaved the discus 145-5 while Ely tied a standing record set by three previous 1959 competitors in the pole vault by soaring 13 feet.

Another still untouched record won by the college team in the relays is the distance relay-event set in 1960 with a speed of 11:04.4 minutes.

Vasquez has high expectations for the two distance events consisting of the distance medley and the two-mile run. He pointed out that Tony Ferrigno, Esteban Valle, Roger Ritchey, Richard Byers, Steve Jackson, Andy Loobey, John Weidinger and George Varmuza will be instrumental in these events.

Because of the absence of meets, the overall condition of the squad is uncertain. "They have been suffering from lack of practice because of rain; however, a large number of men reporting for the workouts are showing a keen team spirit," Vasquez noted.

The only injury to date has been the badly sprained ankle of broad jumper and sprinter Jim Waterfield. This promising rookie will be out of action for six weeks, according to Vasquez.

During the rainy weather the team has been practicing on the Jefferson High School field, which has a good drainage system. They have also been working out in the weight room, and between rains, practicing on the college track.

Full RA Schedule Continues With Cage Tilt Saturday

By Francine Dubonnet

The Recreation Association's coed basketball team will compete at Santa Rosa this Saturday afternoon. Scorers of this sports day competition will be vying to receive their national rating as game officials, Frances Galloway, RA advisor, explained yesterday.

Taking part in the competition will be Annette Caimodo, Joyce Dinsiage, Fran Gora, Yvonne Maillard, Fran Richardson and Phyllis Tomlinson.

Alternates are Carolyn Edwards, Emmy Fogy and Maureen Goldberger, the newly elected RA basketball captain.

This past weekend's Pacific Southwest Regional Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women Conference was a success, according to Miss Galloway. The college's two official delegates, Sharon Hawley and Shirley Thornton, led an "interesting discussion on values of team sports."

The eight delegates attended 12 conference workshops. Dr. Eleanor Metheny's keynote address was excellent and effective. San Jose City College "did a remarkably good job in organizing the conference," Miss Galloway stated.

On March 3 both the tennis and women's basketball teams won second place at San Jose City College.

Although Wendy Dickson and Bill Reichert, players in the tennis mixed doubles, won second place in the elimination tournament they were defeated by Foothill College in the finals.

Also awarded a second place trophy in the round robin tournament was the women's basketball team, whose forwards and guards "played well" but lost the winning trophy to Monterey Peninsula College.

On the same day the Intercollegiate Interscholastic Fencing Association met for competition with seven colleges at Napa Junior College.

Leading the college to second place in the meet were Harry Jorgensen and Bill Lindo, both of whom "fenced quite well," Miss Galloway commented.

First place at the meet was won by San Francisco State College, while Humboldt College came in third. Two women of the college tied for third place.

pared to past seasons, Hubley believes that they have added much needed depth that the 1961 squad lacked. The team is much improved all around.

Two Veterans, Rookies Spark Swimming Team

Boasting a stronger team than last year, the college mermen will meet the Mustangs of Stockton College in a league meet at 3:30 p.m. Friday at Stockton, Coach Roy Burkhead stated.

The team is shaping up well with the personnel signed up. John Holm and Eli Silver, two veterans, are supplemented by a hard working and improving rookie crop.

Chuck Greninger, Herm Fruchtnicht, Bill Love, Mark Haskell, John Vida and Jim Ahearn are also doing well in their particular events. Ahearn and Vida are still working toward participating in the butterfly event.

Drucker Stars In Golf Victory

Battling stiff winds and wet grounds, the college golf squad defeated Hamilton Air Force Base, 20-16, in an exhibition contest last week.

Low shooters for the college were Dennis Drucker with a 76, George Benkie, John Steddin and Larry Sugimoto each with a 78. Bruce Hubley shot an 80.

Friday sees the first Big Eight Conference match with the team going against Stockton College at Harding Park. Tee-off time is 1 p.m.

Tuesday's match against San Jose City College was cancelled because of bad weather, but Coach Grover Klemmer hopes to reschedule it for early next week.

Hubley, number three man on the squad, said that he hoped that the team would go all the way and capture the Big Eight Conference title. At a preseason glance, College of San Mateo shapes up as the team to beat. The Mateans have a stronger team than last year when they copped the state championships.

Pointing to the high morale of the team and the preseason record com-

'Misfits' Stumble To State Championships

RAMBLINGS

By Jerry Littrell

NO MATTER what the basketball squad may or may not have accomplished at the state finals, it has been an exciting and rewarding year for the cagers.

However, the season wasn't without its mishaps, most of them humorous.

For instance: When a member of The Guardsman sports staff was cleaning out an old pile of papers from his desk he came upon a crumbled piece of paper.

Curiosity being one of the stronger traits in a good newspaperman, he straightened out the creased sheet and saw a few notes that had been hastily scrawled.

These notes were written by last semester's sports reporters concerning this year's varsity cage squad.

The scribbled notes went something like this: "Team weak—no outstanding material—not much noticeable talent—mediocre as a team—fourth place finish at best."

En route to another city during the season, Sid Phelan & Co. not only found themselves in the middle of a heated championship race but also stranded in the middle of a mud puddle during a rainstorm.

Six members of the squad were traveling with Phelan to Contra Costa for a game. After pulling off the freeway they were on their way to the Comet gymnasium.

Phelan decided to switch his lights to low beam. Around them were flat fields on which rain had been pouring all day. This combination equals but one thing—mud.

When the lights got on high beam they saw that they were not on the road but right in the middle of the sticky fields.

The car was stuck. So Phelan said those two words so dear to everyone's heart at that moment, "Everybody out."

He stayed in to "drive the car out once the load was lightened." It was really a sight to see. Charles Currington, 6-4, was buried 6-3 in mud while Gene Batiste slid over everything trying to get out on foot.

One person tried to ride the car out but slid off on his knees into the slush. Meanwhile, Phelan managed to ease the car out and gallantly suggested that they walk the last few feet to "loosen up."

Whether they were to "loosen up" muscles or muck still remains a mystery.

* * *

REMEMBER WHEN: After the harrowing win over San Mateo which gave the Rams the league crown, Phelan received a telephone call from an irate Daly City high school basketball mentor.

This gentleman complained that Phelan had violated every unwritten law in the Coaches' Code, Man's last sanctuary had been invaded by women.

Phelan had allowed his wife to sit with him on the team bench throughout the game. It almost came to the point of removing Phelan from the Benevolent Brotherhood of Basketball Brains for his unforgiveable act.

* * *

A PASSING THOUGHT: The same forementioned sports star gazers also once wrote that the San Francisco Giants would never win a pennant until it snowed in San Francisco. Two weeks later a mantle of white covered (almost) our fair city.

Followers of the Fly-Chasers, arise. There is still hope (maybe).

Coach Discovers New Pregame Warmup

Frosh Hosts Semiannual Ball Friday At St. Francis

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FROSH BALL this Friday at the St. Francis Hotel have been handled by the Freshman officers. Left to right are Sue Beedie, recording secretary; Vince Contreras, president; Nora Solis, treasurer, and Rich Thomas, vice president.—Guardsman photo by Gerald Brick.

Wolohan's Band To Play At 'An Affair To Remember'

With their theme An Affair To Remember, the freshmen will present their semiannual Frosh Ball from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight this Friday, March 23, in the Colonial, Italian and Georgian Rooms of the St. Francis Hotel, Vince Contreras, class president, announced this week.

Providing music will be Maury Wolohan and his orchestra.

Bid priority to members of the Freshman Class ends today. Tomorrow and Friday, until the supply runs out, the Associated Students will be able to secure bids at the information booth in Science Hall between the hours of 9 to 2 p.m.

The quota of 500 couples was adopted by Student Council last spring in order to prevent the recurrence of the overcrowded condition which prevailed at the Frosh Ball in Fall, 1960, where two bands were used in two separate rooms.

Contreras emphasized that students must present their registration and AS cards at the booth. The cards will be checked against a list provided by the administration. They must also have their date's name available at that time.

Dress will be semiformal, cocktail dresses for the women and dark suits for the men, Contreras added.

Highlighting festivities will be the traditional "cutest couple" contest. Tallies and identifying number boards will be distributed to prospective candidates upon entrance to the dance. One member of each couple must be a freshman to enter the contest.

Couples will be judged on appearance, dancing and beauty, with the process of elimination to determine the final winners.

Two trophies, donated by Phi Beta Rho sorority and Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity, will be awarded to the winning couple.

Prizes of boutonnieres, corsages and flowers will be given by Gamma Kappa Beta sorority, Alpha Phi Epsilon fraternity and Zeta Phi Sigma fraternity.

A photographer will be present in the Georgian Room, adjacent to the two ballrooms, where a soft drink bar will also be situated.

Freshman Class officers working with Contreras are Rich Thomas, vice president; Susan Beedie, recording secretary; Lana Holliday, service secretary; Imogene Walker, social secretary, and Nora Solis, treasurer.

Appointed to specific responsibilities by Contreras are committee chairmen Miss Beedie for invitations, Kathy Roderick for distribution, Miss Walker for publicity, Miss Holliday for service and Thomas for tallies.

Patrons of the Frosh Ball are Mr. and Mrs. Leland Beedie, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. del Castillo, Jules Fraden, Ruth Inskipp, Pat McCarthy, Maurice Power and Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Starno.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 54 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1962 NUMBER 4

Miss Counseling Date—Receive Late Reg Number

Students who cannot meet their counseling appointments and fail to notify their counselors prior to these appointments face the penalty of a higher registration number for next semester, Donald C. Marcus, of the counseling department, announced today.

Since free-hour forms were completed during registration this semester, counseling appointments are being sent out weeks earlier, with the idea of giving counselors sufficient time later in the semester to help students with personal problems.

Marcus added that many students, including low freshmen, have not been sent counseling appointments as yet.

Some counselors, however, are utilizing a new preliminary program form which enables them to organize the low freshman's program for the following semester before the official programs are sent from the IBM department.

Once the preliminary programs are completed, students are expected to report back to their counselors after Easter vacation when the IBM machines will have evaluated their grades and awarded registration numbers on their official programs.

Then the counselors simply copy the data from the preliminary to the official programs and the process is completed.

The low freshmen who did not receive preliminary programs will begin to get counseling appointments after the Easter vacation when the registration numbers have been recorded on their official programs.

The only students expected to fill out the forms late are those who have found they will not be eligible to graduate this semester.

Mayor Lauds College, Coach And Cagers With Proclamation

Mayor George Christopher and the Board of Supervisors extended congratulatory messages to the college and the members of the basketball team last week at a Student Council meeting.

Citing the contribution and favorable recognition brought to the city by the Ram team, Mayor Christopher wished continued success to Coach Sid Phelan and the individual players in an official proclamation.

Further appreciation was offered in a message from Robert J. Dolan, clerk of the Board of Supervisors:

"The Board of Supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco convey to you its warm compliments and congratulations upon the team's talented and sportsman-like accomplishments in attaining the State Junior College Basketball Championship," the message stated.

Mayor Christopher's proclamation expressed his confidence that "City College of San Francisco will continue to present as good an image to this community as it has in the past."

(For complete texts, see page 3.)

Associated Student President Dan Collins presented each member of the team with a copy of the proclamation honoring the team.

At that point, a deeply moved Coach Phelan spoke: "This reception makes it a little difficult to speak. But I do want to thank everyone for doing so much for our team. This is not just a gratuitous statement. Your help really meant a lot.

"One thing meant as much to me as winning. And that was the greeting of the team on its return," Phelan added.

College President Louis G. Conlan, presenting the official messages, commended the desire of a team that won only four of its 11 preseason contests, and then captured the state championship.

"I don't want it to be said of this team that it was entirely coaching," Phelan remarked later. "All season I've heard this team was composed of second-rate material. These boys are great ballplayers and they deserve to be recognized as such. Remember, I was coaching during the preseason games, too."

Of the nine budgets resolved this week, the Pick and Hammer Society request proved the most provocative.

Finance Chairman Jan Doudiet prefaced it by reporting this was "setting a precedent for all other clubs on campus." She continued, "This is the first time a club has requested funds from the Student Council. I feel these items will benefit the campus, but the decision is up to you."

Greg Monk, student union chairman, submitted that the manner in which Pick and Hammer had obtained membership in his geology class was objectionable to him.

"They asked for the hands of student cardholders, and then took down their names before requesting whether or not the students were interested in membership."

The request for funds was rejected, 8 to 6.—By B.O'L.

AWS Schedules Fashion Show, Tea For April 5

Shower Of Fashion has been selected by the Associated Women Students as the theme for their semiannual tea and fashion show, which will be held Thursday, April 5, in Smith Hall, AWS President Jackie Rommel announced today.

Fashions will come from the City of Paris. Tea and cookies will be served, and entertainment will be provided at the affair. All women students are invited to attend between 3 and 5 p.m.

In addition, 30 women students from each San Francisco high school have been sent invitations to attend Shower Of Fashion, in order to introduce them to campus activities.

"The tea and fashion show has always been a highly successful and enjoyable affair, being a highpoint of each semester, and it once again promises to be extremely worthwhile to attend," Miss Rommel emphasized.

Committee chairmen for the tea are Marilyne Marcelli, in charge of refreshments; Dianne O'Neil, decorations; Paulette Walti, models; Lyn Fouts, publicity, and Wendy Dickson, entertainment.

Other chairmen include Nettie Cook, setup; Barbara Sperring, hospitality; Diané Moore, invitations; Maureen Farley, programs; Wendy Herring, registration, and Sherry Spindel, photography.

Model Tryouts End Today

Final tryouts for those wishing to model City of Paris fashions in the semiannual fashion show, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, will take place at 12 noon today in bungalow 6, located in the circle behind Cloud Hall, according to AWS President Jackie Rommel.

Any interested woman student wishing to qualify must be at least 5-4 and able to model sizes 9 to 12, Miss Rommel emphasized.

"We certainly hope that all the women students here who meet the qualifications will try out," Miss Rommel commented.

Models will be judged by fashion show committee chairmen and City of Paris fashion co-ordinator.

ISC To Define Rushing Procedure During C-Hour

Rushing procedure for women interested in joining a sorority will be outlined during College Hour Friday in S-205, Jeri Sciutto, Inter-Sorority Council president, announced today.

Following rushing signups, all women will visit five firesides. This will enable them to meet the women in the sororities and assist the rushees in deciding which sorority they would like to pledge.

This Sunday, March 25, Gamma Kappa Beta and Delta Psi will present a fireside from 6:30 to 8:30 and 8 to 10 p.m., respectively.

The second evening of firesides next Tuesday, March 27, will be presented by Phi Beta Rho from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. and by Theta Tau from 8 to 10 p.m.

And on Thursday, March 29, the conclusion of the firesides will be presented by Kappa Phi from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. and by Delta Sigma Tau from 8 to 10 p.m.

AS Card Sale Winners Take Awards At Ball

Wendy Dickson, 19-year-old Associated Woman Student member, will be awarded a transistor radio for her sales of Associated Student cards this Friday at the semiannual Frosh Ball.

Although the goal of 3000 AS cards was not reached, Miss Dickson took the first place prize by selling more than 200 cards.

The drive ends Friday.

Competition for second and third places was high with both Dave Otey, sophomore council member, and Andy Shamiyeh selling more than 150.

The second and third place prizes, also to be awarded at the Frosh Ball, will be a pair of tickets to the movie Ei Cid.

Bill Reichert, card sales chairman, reported sales were well over 1600, normal for a spring semester.

Last spring the goal was set at 2300, and sales fell several hundred short. The fall semester, usually hitting the 3000 mark, is almost always the highest for sales, Reichert commented.

Last spring John Azzaro, selling 275 cards, was the winner, but the second and third place finishers fell short of this year's two and three With sales of 65 and 58.

Even when the contest is over, Reichert said that cards will still be available.

He also stated that if a student wishes to support the Associated Students he should support the students' store, the Ramporium.

Applications For Dental Lab Exam Due April 15

Students who are currently enrolled here and wish to compete in the entrance examinations for the dental laboratory technology class are advised by Frank Szehner, dental technology instructor, to file applications as soon as possible.

Szehner stated that all applicants for the Fall, 1962, class must be filed no later than April 15. These applications may be obtained in S-208 from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. They should be turned in at the same office, Szehner said.

All 20 Technician Graduates Get Jobs

Electronic engineering technician students who completed study here in February have all been successfully placed in industry, according to Joseph A. Amori, placement director here.

The acceleration in the missile field, created by huge increases in the military budget, opened many job opportunities for the February class of graduates in the technical areas. One firm, located in the center of the missile industry, has agreed to accept all of the electronic graduates.

Of the 20 graduates in the electronic engineering technician field, 11 are on the payroll of Hewlett-Packard in Palo Alto. The remainder are at Fairchild Corporation, Rheem Electronics, Lockheed, Sylvania and Litton Industries.

The average salary for these men was $425-500 per month depending upon the usual entry formula.

There were only a small group of graduates in the remaining engineering training programs. These included seven graduates who were placed with the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph, and the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

An engineering recruitment day is scheduled in May for 75 prospective June graduates.

Ex-Student's One Man Photo Show Gives Faculty Gallery New Look

Faculty Gallery took on a "new look" this week when Emmett Smith, in charge of the Cloud Hall photo displays, introduced his second one-man show of the semester featuring the photography of Fred Pardini, former student and currently a photographer with The San Francisco Examiner.

Thirty-two-year-old news cameraman Pardini has handled practically every job from the bottom to the top in photo-journalism.

He completed the two-year photography course at City College in 1949. That year his photography career began at the Lafayette Studio, which specializes in pictures of babies, weddings and portraits. In 13 months he photographed 1500 babies.

In December, 1950, Pardini enlisted in the Air Force. He had hoped to become a photography officer, but instead he became a staff sergeant in charge of radio communication.

Pardini then returned to the Lafayette Studio for seven months. However, his ambition was to be a press photographer. In 1955 he got a job with the San Francisco Call-Bulletin.

During this time he was able to see thousands of news stories break and develop before him, until he finally got his chance to go out one day a week with a camera to photograph news events.

In July, 1959, when the Call-Bulletin merged with The San Francisco News, eight photographers were dismissed from both papers. Pardini waited six weeks and then was taken on as a staff photographer for The San Francisco Examiner.

With his seven years of experience in photo-journalism, Pardini is now doing the thing he knows and likes best—making news photos.

He has covered news stories from boats, planes, helicopters, horseback and even from a fast moving automobile.

Among his assignments, four presidents of the United States have been before his camera. His first was Herbert Hoover, then Harry Truman, next Dwight D. Eisenhower and finally President John F. Kennedy.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco
ACP Associated Collegiate Press
Vol. 54, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1962 Page 2

Early Preparation For Blood Drive Insures Donor Protection

IN SPRING a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love. That is, in most cases.

By some strange, inexplicable phenomenon, however, the thoughts of the Inter-Fraternity Council have turned to something which can only remotely, and with a lively imagination, be related to love.

It is at this time that the IFC starts promoting the annual blood drive to be held on April 5 and 6 this year.

Participation in this campaign, which has been highly successful in the past, is open to anyone who is now at City College, including students, faculty and civil service employees, and members of the Alumni Association.

Any members of their families may also donate blood and can benefit from the drive.

Donors may make withdrawals from the blood bank in one of the two following ways during the next year.

(1) An unlimited amount may be obtained once during the year for the donors or for immediate members of their families.

(2) Eight pints of blood may be drawn for any person whom the donor designates.

The blood drive merits recognition for its past record, its goals, and, most important, for its beneficial value to those who are involved in an emergency.

Emergencies, by definition, arise suddenly and unexpectedly. Not everyone can be prepared to bear the immediate emotional impact of a crisis.

The worry can be lessened considerably if the financial aspects are covered by insurance of any sort. And a donation of one pint of blood during this drive is the premium for one year of coverage.

Making preparations now to donate during the days of the drive can save time and possible discomfort since there are a few things which should be remembered.

Students under 21 years of age must have written permission from their parents to give.

For this purpose, The Guardsman has printed on page 3 a permission form which may be clipped, filled out and turned in to the office of the dean of men.

Everyone should remember that a full meal (fat-free), and a good night's rest before donating will help counteract any side effects which might otherwise bother an individual.

This is a fraternity service which we feel cannot receive too much support, and which will certainly be worth the time expended.

A few minutes on April 5 and 6 can save a lot of dollars later.

Campus PanoRAMa

Do You Believe That College Midterms Are Necessary?

Diana Moore, freshman:
I don't think that midterms are really that necessary. Just as much or even more can be accomplished by having quizzes or tests each week. Weekly tests require that the student constantly keep up with the work going on in class. Cramming before midterms would also be eliminated.

Sue Cantatay, sophomore:
I like them because they provide an incentive to study. After checking my midterm grades I acquire some initiative to work harder for an even better grade. If it weren't for the midterms, I couldn't be sure of how I was coming along in my classes. I really think they should stay.

DIANA MOORE
"I don't think midterms are really that necessary . . . weekly tests require students to keep up."

Roger Gayrard, freshman:
They are necessary, but I think that midterms should depend on the type of class the student is taking. A class like elementary basket weaving doesn't need a midterm, while it would be hard to get along without a midterm in a class such as chemistry or physics.

Henry Anderson, sophomore:
I think that biweekly tests would serve a better purpose than midterms twice a semester. Midterms put too much stress on the student, and they don't give a good example of the work he can do. Everyone has a bad day once in a while, and if it's yours, it's just too bad.

Karen Goodan, sophomore:
I believe that midterms are really worth the time and effort. They give the student a chance to review the work he has been doing. They build up to the final and give a good idea of what it will be like. I do think that more emphasis should be placed on a final rather than midterms.

Ian Minnie, freshman:
When I was attending college at Westminster College in Utah, we had only one midterm. The students there were a little more mature and one midterm was sufficient. Now that I am here I believe that two midterms are needed at a two-year college to keep up student interest in his studies.

Barbara Olson, freshman:
One midterm is plenty. I don't particularly like the idea of midterms. They come too often. You get through studying for one and another pops up. I think that the students are capable of remembering what has happened in class, but two midterms are too difficult.

Larry Cantrell, sophomore:
The way the testing program is set up now is fine. Constant testing acts as a sharpening agent on the mind of the student. I do, however, think that three midterms would be too many. Two midterms are the most effective and the best for learning.

Instructor Compares German, American Education Systems

There are those who oppose the liberal educational system of America as being inferior to the more disciplined European product.

Opponents of the American system generally voice their complaints in the following manner:

Nearly all Europeans speak several languages; American students have trouble mastering English. Foreign students receive better training. They take their studies more seriously. American students prefer to think of education as an extended holiday.

It is difficult to deny the validity of most of these statements. Indeed, these questions cause one to ponder the current state of education in this country.

The opportunity to explore, at least to some degree, this problem arose recently in an interview with Gisela Nordby, German instructor here.

Mrs. Nordby is in a unique position to compare the two systems. She completed undergraduate work in Dusseldorf, Germany. Then she finished three years of graduate study at Stanford.

"The major difference I have seen is the feeling of co-operation between the teacher and pupil in America," she stated. "In Germany we were more hesitant to ask questions because of an exaggerated fear of our teachers."

In order to clarify the comparison, Mrs. Nordby gave the following explanation of the European system.

As in America, there are 12 years of compulsory schooling. However, the division is different. Elementary school is attended by all students for four years.

Then there are three further divisions. The student, if qualified, may attend the "gymnasium," a college preparatory course. If he does not attend the gymnasium, he has a choice of continuing a regular grammar school or a "mittelschule"—middle-school, a general secondary study.

The school year allows only a four-

GISELA NORDBY, instructor here, who completed undergraduate work in Dusseldorf, Germany, compares American and German education systems.

week summer vacation. And the school week is on a six-day basis.

Concentrated study in the gymnasium is in three separate categories:

1. Classical Languages—with the emphasis on Latin and Greek.
2. Science—the emphasis here is on mathematics.
3. Modern European Languages—English and French are the required languages in this department.

As a student in the modern European language department, Mrs. Nordby began studying English when she was in the fifth grade. She studied French in the seventh grade, and began Spanish instruction in the 10th.

"I am very much in favor of beginning the study of foreign languages earlier in American schools," Mrs. Nordby said. "I believe geography is the main reason for different emphasis on languages here and in Europe.

"Until recently, the United States has felt it was apart from Europe. And therefore the knowledge of that continent's languages wasn't felt necessary."

She listed as the study advantages under the gymnasium, more self-discipline, better study habits and more general information.

"But I don't think that system would work here. Our emphasis is geared to a more well-rounded individual," Mrs. Nordby pointed out. She stressed that the emphasis is more of a questioning and finding-out-for-oneself.

"A recent test case was pointed out to me," Mrs. Nordby commented.

The case concerned a Stanford professor who took his two children, ages 15 and 17, to Europe for one-year study in the gymnasium. At the end of the year, they were three years ahead of their average in science, and three years behind in humanities.

"From what I have observed, this is typical," she noted.

Mrs. Nordby indicated she favors a compromise between the two systems, on one hand the rigid discipline of Europe and the informality here.

"I have not seen any real superiority in either system. The concepts of both are equally important," Mrs. Nordby concluded.

600 Pastries

Smith Hall Fattens 70% Of Students

City College, well known for having one of the finest hotel and restaurant divisions, may soon be recognized as the biggest eating institution west of the Mississippi.

Recent figures show that the Smith Hall cafeteria now feeds 70 per cent of the enrolled students. And boy, do they eat a lot!

Pierre Coste, formerly an executive chef at the Mark Hopkins and St. Francis Hotels, has the figures to prove it.

Each morning 540 to 600 eggs and 60 pounds of bacon go into the preparation for breakfast, and 500 to 600 sandwiches are sold during the lunch hours.

A total of 600 hamburgers and 150 hot dogs are dispensed, and on top of the edibles go about 18½ pounds of relish, mustard and catsup.

If your fellow students' stomachs appear to be expanding in the middle lately, the probable cause is the 500 to 600 portions of cakes, pies and doughnuts sold each day. Or the 300 orders of spaghetti that students purchase, or how about the four gallons of ice cream.

A contributing factor could be the 400 eight-ounce orders of French fries. For the potato supply, the college orders six to eight sacks each day.

A total of 400 plate lunches, 200 meat orders a la carte and 200 salads are sold each day.

In an effort to escape the cold winter mornings and to stay awake through the early morning classes, students purchase about 63 gallons of coffee, or a little over 1000 cups.

Students keep their stomachs warm with approximately 20 to 25 gallons of soup. In the summer months or on hot days, the soup level will drop as low as 12 gallons.

Other liquid sales run six gallons for hot chocolate, 20 for milk shakes, 50 for cokes, five for juices, and ten gallons for lemonade.

Working without government aid, the restaurant functions with 27 paid helpers. Students, providing the remaining help, enable the cafeteria to charge substantially low prices.

Left-overs are used as sauces for foods the next day. Nothing is thrown away if it can be used. All measures are taken to insure clean and safe food. Various signs and rules on the walls of the kitchen indicate this sanitation.

The motto of hotel and restaurant is Work Is The Four-Letter Word That Should Never Be Censored.

Shots At RAMdom

Stars Tap Reservoir; New Arena Envisioned

FOR YEARS many have wondered what use the empty reservoir could serve, and it appears the athletes have found the answer.

Early this year, the Ram baseball squad set up the bags, swarmed over the concrete and enjoyed one of its best workouts. Only the outfielders, who had to chase the balls that got past them, had any complaints.

A few weeks later, Riordan's trackmen got the idea. For more than an hour and a half, there was a steady stream of traffic marking laps around the tops of both reservoirs.

The college has a gymnasium and a football field, but that's it. The "unusable" area could be utilized as a college sports' arena.

With rainy weather of late, we wouldn't be surprised to see the swimmers holding 50-yard sprints—and if it gets any colder, ice hockey will make its debut very soon.

• • •

MINOR PROBLEMS: At a Student Council meeting, Sophomore Greg Monk moved that the Recreation Association budget review be postponed because his figures were off by $10.

Before Monk sat down, and with the words still slipping from his mouth, Dave Otey, sophomore council member, found the error (not on the floor) but in the finance sheet. Everyone in the room had one (finance sheet).

• • •

SIGHT VS. MIND: "All books out of sight, preferably under the desk," shouted the instructor at his class about to embark on a French midterm.

Flung back a student with equal volume, "Out of sight, out of mind."

The instructor's retort: "What is mind? It's no matter. What is matter? It's no mind." That ended that.

The Spectator

Route 66, Naked City Via Silliphant In LA

JAMES MICHENER, Tennessee Williams, Edna Ferber and Stirling Silliphant have the distinction and privilege of being the four highest paid writers in history.

The first three names are familiar to anyone who can read, but the fourth will not be identified easily by most, although the name is as close to the public as its television screens.

Stirling Silliphant is the originator of two of the best weekly series on television, Naked City and Route 66. He has also written the movies Mocambo, Five Against The House, The Joe Lewis Story, and Pakistan, which will soon be released.

"Why should I work for a year on a movie which reaches two million people when I can write for television and reach 46 million people every week," Silliphant has said.

Furthermore, it is the studio that makes most of the profits on motion pictures and not the writer. One does not let a fact like that slip by if he intends to put himself in the top-four category.

Being a high man on the totem pole is no new altitude for Silliphant. He was graduated from the University of Southern California in two years with the highest grade point in its history.

A good measuring stick for the weekly series is whether the viewer can remember the story the next day. In most cases he will not. If he can recall the plot a week later, the show is exceptional, and if a month goes by and, the viewer still remembers the story, the program has unusual merit.

Both Route 66 and Naked City conform to this last standard. Silliphant turns out quality as well as quantity. Now that the program format for the shows is firmly established, other writers contribute scripts, and next season will mark the beginning of a new Silliphant series.

The man is obviously one of the most prolific artists in the business, but more important, he is giving the public its money's worth.

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ... DICK DRAGAVON
Managing Editor ... David Grieve
News Editor ... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ... John Muller
Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni, Rodney Van Cleve.
Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Neider, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson.
Cub Reporters: Norma Beck, Harry Corelitos, John Figueroa, John Gilman, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Thomas Renshaw, Walter Rice, John Silva, Mike Zelinsky.
Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti, Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordelias, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Rudy Williams, Chris Utter, Clifford Yee.
Faculty Adviser ... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Exploration

Midterms May Be A Nuisance But Exams Are Here To Stay

By Bob O'Lear

Perhaps the most recurrent question among beleaguered students this past week was, "Have you finished your midterms yet?"

There is probably no other topic at the college of so much concern to students, and of which so little is actually known. With the possible exception of the twice-semester "nuisance" of the exams themselves.

Are they really necessary? What is their effect on the final grade? Why midterms at all?

These are some of the questions puzzled students ponder upon every midterm period.

On this order, the search for enlightenment began.

To obtain some clarification, these questions were put to Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator of curriculum.

"Since a grade must be filed three times a semester for each student, a midterm exam forms the basis of that grade," Dr. Luckmann replied. "The primary function therefore is as a progress report."

He indicated further that midterm's grades have three tangible functions:

1. As an indication to students of their own accomplishments.
2. As a warning for students on probation.
3. And as the basis, in some instances, of awarding scholarships.

Still, perhaps, there is more to midterms than this. What, for example, is required of the individual instructor, in respect to midterms.

"The only requirement is that an instructor must file a grade for each student at the end of the midterm period," Dr. Luckmann reiterated.

Departments can develop their own general rules for grade determination. Administrative requirements call only for the grade itself rather than a certain type of testing.

"This flexibility gives full dominion over the manner in which the course will be conducted and the student evaluated by the instructor in charge." It is emphasized. "I feel this is an extremely important factor."

Thus aware of the latitude allowed each instructor (and expressing a desire for similar student freedom), in the highest order of an inquiring press, the next stop was in the office of Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

Curious as to the effectiveness of midterms as a warning sign when grades are low, Miss Learnard was requested to describe the activity in her office around a midterm period.

"You might say we have a flurry of activity each midterm period. I would say the grades definitely have some effect on the number of withdrawals."

To substantiate this, she presented figures from last semester. During the two-week span of midterms, an average of 72 students saw the "writing on the wall" and withdrew each week. This was contrasted to an average of 49 the weeks before and after.

Now the malady of midterms was beginning to take form. But what of the students on probation? The keyman here is John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare.

"In the last midterm period, 81 students were disqualified. In these cases they were all receiving D's and F's, and it was evident they weren't trying to succeed."

Brady observed that this was the most efficient way to keep a constant check on readmitted students. If they are not meeting the conditions of their readmittance, a letter is sent as a warning.

"However, in my experience, when a student makes the list the first midterm, it is usually an indication that his final product will be approximately the same." Brady commented.

From this informal sally into the intellectual problems confronting the college student, the following conclusions can be drawn:

1. The actual handling of midterm tests is left entirely to the instructor. He can place as much or as little emphasis on them as he chooses in determining the final grade.
2. The midterm grades act as a check on the student. In this regard it can be as important for a good student whose scholarship application is contingent on his midterm grade, as for that student hovering precariously near dismissal.
3. They are an indication to the student of what is expected of him, based on his achievement at that point in the semester.

As a final note to students still struggling through the abyss of despair, midterms are here to stay. But be stout of heart, for it is rumored that instructors also find them a problem.

The Good Ol' Daze—

Men Scream For Militia While Women Rebel Over Equal Rights

By Dave Grieve

AN amateur philosopher once coined the notable phrase, "Gentlemen, I think you're all out of your minds."

If American males submit to the female drive which women proudly term "equal rights," in the past designated as "womens' suffrage," the quotation is certainly applicable.

This columnist calls it "rebellion."

Found primarily in the United States, but spreading (like all diseases), the need for the fair sex to unchain itself from the zipper-lipped, obedient, patient and understanding stereotype of yesteryear into a green-eyed tiger willing to step on a few shoes to reach the same plateau as their opposites, is hardly a laughing matter.

Why?

If the male cannot answer the question, why, he can hardly expect the female to answer the query. Probably (just guessing, of course), it irks the female personality structure to be considered the "weaker sex."

Anyhow, this confusion started in what women label the Carrie Nation Era, but which men subtly call the Prelude To Prohibition. Miss Nation (and she disrupted one, too), aided by her disciples helped to win the vote for womanhood while leveling a reform movement upon the country, the only constitutional amendment that had to be repealed . . . Glory be!

During that time, Miss Nation and her cohorts in crime yelled from hiding ground that men had disrupted this country by placing it in a precarious position. So they did something about it, yes sir-ee.

In the following decades man became frustrated because of a dual purpose in life—to earn a living and to repel any rebellious notions in the "little woman's" head.

Furthermore, if the flower of femininity observes her own modern "precarious position" in contrast to that of her counterpart of 40 years ago, eyelids might flutter. Today, due partly to this social struggle, we don't know if there is going to be a tomorrow. Poof!

Presently, females are relentlessly attempting to etch their names on office doors throughout the country (this columnist can think only of one appropriate door), complicated by their obsession to join clubs and organizations.

These clubs, gentlemen, are a breeding spot for the female underground movement.

Garden clubs, community benefit organizations, and especially the bridge clubs, are only superficial names connotating nothing.

If a husband happened into one of his wife's tea parties undiscovered, within one minute he would be running for the state militia screaming premeditated mutiny!

Awareness of the sly, underhanded tactics of the female specie is the only intent of this writer. But possibly the ideal male outlook on womanhood could be summed up by this golden rule.

A woman's opinion should be treated like an antique spinning wheel stored in the attic—climb the stairs occasionally to marvel at it, but never put it to use.

What happened to the Good Ol' Daze—

Time Limit Curtain Goes Up March 30

Time Limit, first major theatrical production of the college year, is undergoing intensive rehearsal sessions as opening night draws near, Michael Griffin, drama director here, stated. The curtain goes up at 8 p.m. on Friday, March 30, in the campus theater.

The show will run for two weekends and there will be no admission charge for Associated Student cardholders. Others can purchase tickets for $1 each.

When the play opened on Broadway seven years ago, one of its feature actors was Frank Aletter, husband of former student Lee Ann Meriwether who won the title of Miss America in 1957.

Time Limit is the story of an American major accused of treason during the Korean War. The show is essentially a low budget production, since there are only two sets.

Costumes and props are not extravagant, because the current action takes place in the army base office of the judge advocate, and then goes back to the prison camp as characters remember activities that took place, Griffin explained.

Griffin has assembled a cast with extensive theater background. Almost all have had nonprofessional little theater experience, while several have had professional work.

The play treats a contemporary theme in an impressive manner, and should have strong appeal for students, Griffin said.

Text Of Message From Mayor, Supervisors

The text of Mayor George Christopher's proclamation and the Board of Supervisors' message presented to Student Council last week is as follows:

• • •

"WHEREAS, The City College of San Francisco has received much excellent recognition resulting to the credit not only of the college but also to the city of San Francisco and,

"WHEREAS, This acclaim has resulted from the winning of the California State Junior College Basketball Championship by the City College of San Francisco at Cosin Moss, California, on the evening of March 10, 1962, and

"WHEREAS, This signal accomplishment occurred most fittingly for the first and last time by a member of the Big Eight Conference (which ceases to be, in June 1962, it being replaced by the newly formed Golden Gate Conference):

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, George Christopher, Mayor of the City and County of San Francisco, wish to commend for their special efforts, Coach Sid Phelan and the members of his championship team, Everett Adams, Eugene Baillie, Charles Carrington, Bradley Dugras, Washington Johnson, Elton McGriff, John Neal, William Norcelli, David Roberts, Randolph Simms, and Melvin Tom, for bringing the title to San Francisco for the first time; and be it further resolved that the City College of San Francisco, as a member of the Golden Gate Conference, will continue to present as good an image in this community as it has in the past."

GEORGE CHRISTOPHER, Mayor

• • •

"SID PHELAN:

"The Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco at its meeting of yesterday directed that I convey to you and the City College of San Francisco basketball team its warm compliments and congratulations upon the team's talented and sportsmanlike accomplishments in attaining the state Junior College Basketball championship with the success which that you and the members of the team may continue to enjoy the fullest measure of success in all of its pursuits."

ROBERT J. DOLAN,
Clerk of the Board

State Basketball Title, Top Offices Give College Lead Role In CJCSGA Conference

Representing what is perhaps the most influential two-year college in the state, City College delegates will take a major part in the March 29-31 California Junior College Student Government Association conference in Los Angeles, Dan Collins, Associated Student president, predicted yesterday.

Collins attributed the college's important position to several factors, two of which are its recent state basketball championship and the fact that two of the three offices in the conference, state co-ordinator and information chairman, are held by Gail Margolin.

The conference, to be held at the Biltmore Hotel, will be attended by representatives of 70 two-year colleges in California.

The AS president said that the three-day program will be divided into five workshops. They will discuss the duties of the presidential office, current problems relating to two-year colleges, the two-year college as a cultural center, intramural and recreational activities, and finance.

The presidential workshop will debate such problems as the legal status of fraternities and sororities and whether they should be privately or administratively controlled.

The current problems workshop will be generally concerned with the image of the two-year college. Publicity and censorship in newspapers and the problems of a student union are two subjects which will be discussed.

Culture on campus, the basic theme of the third group, includes the publicizing of the college's cultural events, encouraging the community to attend these, and the orientation of foreign students to the college's cultural life.

Greater participation and a more diversified program in athletics will be discussed by the intramural and recreational workshop.

The finance group will cover better methods of advertising and new sources of income for the Associated Students other than through card sales.

Citing the Inter-Fraternity Council Blood Drive as an example, Collins plans to put forth a recommendation that other two-year colleges have similar community projects.

Tagged Cars Prove Rumors Are False

Despite rumors and unofficial reports to the contrary, tagging of cars illegally parked in student parking lots began two weeks ago, Deputy Campus Police Chief Norman Paulsen announced Friday.

Paulson stated that individual campus patrolmen have been giving out as many as 43 citations a day, and that students who have somehow been able to elude the Campus Police up to the present will find it increasingly difficult to do so in the future as the incoming campus policemen are sworn into office.

Officers of the squad are Lewis Poliack, chief, and four sergeants, Larry Stanfield, Robert Porras, Robert Mulhall and Richard Decuir.

In all, the police squad is composed of 35 members, 25 of whom have already been sworn in, and the remaining ten due to be sworn in to office in the near future.

Speaker, Movie Highlight C-Hour

Featured during this Friday's College Hour will be a film concerned with weather, and Angelo J. Carmassi, vice principal for boys at El Camino High School, speaking on the discipline problems that arise in a high school classroom.

The film, which is produced by the Bell Telephone Company, is entitled Unchained Goddess.

It will show the manner in which weather maps are made, how certain types of weather are predicted and charted, scenes of hurricanes and tornadoes and a plane actually flying through hurricane weather.

The Student California Teachers Association will have Carmassi as their speaker in C-269.

Naval Training Entry Extended

Deadline for men students enrolled in two-year colleges to apply for the nine-week summer course offered by the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps at University of California has been changed to Sunday, April 15, according to a letter received by Dean Ralph Hillsman.

The program is designed to be beneficial to those men who plan to transfer to a university offering a Naval training program. Upon completion of the summer course, students can enroll in any of the 52 accredited colleges offering a Naval Reserve program throughout the country.

Previously, the NROTC program was restricted to students attending a college where the program was offered.

Subjects dealing with naval orientation, evolution of seapower, naval weapons and psychology, both personal and social, will be included in the training program.

Upon graduation from an accredited college, enlistees will be commissioned as ensigns in the Naval Reserve or second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Men desiring further information can consult Hillsman in S-148 or Captain W. C. Meyers, professor of naval sciences, University of California, Berkeley.

It's difficult for men of different nations to work shoulder to shoulder when they carry a chip on one and a gun on the other.

IFC Sets Annual Blood Drive Goal At 750 Pints

With the Inter-Fraternity Council as sponsors this semester, the annual blood drive will begin here Thursday, April 5, and conclude with a double College Hour rally in front of Cloud Hall Friday, April 6, Bob Turnbow, IFC president, revealed last week.

The IFC has set as its goal a blood donation total of at least 750 pints this semester. All registered students, faculty members, civil service employees and Alumni association members here have been urged to donate.

Within the next week, Turnbow announced that he hopes for a city proclamation from Mayor George Christopher citing April 5 of each year as Blood Day in San Francisco.

Challenges have been issued to every other college in California to equal this college's accomplishment in the drive each year. So far, no other institution has been able to match its donations. Last semester students here donated approximately 500 pints of blood.

Competition is slated among campus organizations during the drive, with the organization donating the most blood awarded a trophy from IFC.

On Monday, April 2, the IFC will stage a car parade on Market Street publicizing the drive, Turnbow said.

Turnbow and his officers are now in the process of securing professional entertainment for the rally April 6.

He further emphasized that by donating blood during this drive, students will be able to withdraw plasma from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for any emergency that may arise involving themselves, their immediate family or their close friends during the coming year.

Printed herewith is a permission blank which must be filled out by any student under 21 years of age desiring to donate during this year's campaign.

Blood Drive Permission Blank

I hereby approve of my (son)

(daughter) .....

donating a pint of blood to the City College of San Francisco Blood Drive.

(Mr.)
(Mrs.) ..... Date .....

Darnes, Coleman Star As Trackstars Place Second To San Mateo At Big 8 Relays

Despite a record-breaking discus toss by powerhouse Alex Darnes and a speedy 120-yard high hurdle time by Bob Coleman, the Ram trackstars managed only to salvage second place behind College of San Mateo in the Big Eight relays held last Friday at Sacramento.

This was the final meet that the locals had to prepare for league competition as they open their final year in the Big Eight Conference against Santa Rosa and Oakland in a three-way meet at Santa Rosa this Friday.

Darnes heaved the discus 161.5 feet to better the previous mark of 145'½" set in 1959.

Coleman placed second in the 120-yard high hurdle when he clocked in a time of 15.3 seconds.

Also taking second place in individual competition was Lonnie Brantley, who broad jumped 22.5 feet.

Coach Lou Vasquez commented that the squad looked balanced, but that a lot of work still had to be done to make it a strong contender.

In the relay race the thinclads placed fourth in the distance medley with a 10:36.3 time. This time along with the times set by Oakland, Sacramento and San Mateo broke the previous medley record.

Claude Shipp notched third place in the 100-yard dash when he came through with a 10.3 time. Elbert Robinson's 138.8½ foot discus throw also earned him a third spot finish.

Two Big Eight relay records were broken by the College of San Mateo when Bulldog Bob Merlo heaved the shot 51.7 feet and the Matean distance medley squad ran their course in a record 10:30.1.

Oakland City College took third place in the meet but the Thunderbird two-mile relay team set a new meet record of 7:58.3.

Herb Tillman of Sacramento City College along with Jim Courtney, Oakland, and Jim Watkins, Stockton, each tied in the high jump with a 6'4" record leap.

Second place in the 880-yard relay race went to the Rams with a 1:32.7 mark. In the 440-yard relay the locals came in with third place with a 44.3 time.

The sprint medley ran its course in 3:39.8 minutes while a 61.7 second mark was posted by the shuttle hurdle team.

College of San Mateo chalked up 76 points for the day while City College of San Francisco netted 36 digits.

Horsehiders Face Pitching Problem As League Starts

With only three practice games under their caps, the Ram horsehiders take the field at 3 p.m. Friday in their first league game against San Mateo at Balboa field.

Last week the locals scrimmaged against Vallejo College and dropped a hitting contest, 8-7.

Unable to fend off a late inning rally by Vallejo, the Rams lost their two-run lead and the contest in the final frame.

So far in practice the squad has shown no lack of hitting abilities or fielding. The main problem has stemmed from the fact that there is no pitching depth available.

John Pierce, the only experienced moundsman, will have to carry the brunt of the load throughout the season as he will probably be used as both a starter and reliever.

Don Meroff and Don Kunkle are the only other prospects who might be able to render needed assistance to the team.

Kunkle, All-City catcher from Balboa High School, can also fill in at third base if needed.

Meroff, sharp hitting utility fielder, has too strong a bat to keep him out of the lineup, and an added feature is his ability to play just about any position on the field.

Coming out of the slump that held him throughout last season, Dennis Russell is figured upon to hit in the number four position and supply power for the club.

Hitting only .250 last season, Russell has been slamming the ball with authority while his fielding has also improved.

Two Brothers + 12 Years = State Title

Top man of the 1962 state champion Ram basketball squad wore number 12 on his uniform.

Top man of the theoretical state champion Ram basketball squad 12 years ago also wore number 12 on his uniform.

This coincidence might be lightly passed over were it not for another strange match—both are named Duggan. Brad Duggan in 1962 and brother Kevin Duggan in 1950 are the two "terrific twelves."

When the present day Rams beat Citrus Junior College in the championship tournament recently they became the undisputed state champs. In that tournament Duggan (Brad) was voted to the All-Tournament team and selected as most valuable player.

Back in 1950 the locals defeated Placer Junior College, the southern division kingpin team, and earned the right to go to Hutchinson, Kansas, to participate in the national finals.

In this tournament they defeated Compton Junior College, the only other California entry, thus earning the mythical title of California state champions.

Duggan (Kevin), 1950, was also chosen for the All-Tournament squad and also selected most valuable player.

Duggan (Brad) led the champion Rams in scoring. Duggan (Kevin) also led his team in scoring.

His playing days over, Duggan (Kevin) now teaches in San Francisco.

Kevin Duggan—1950

Brad Duggan—1962

Golf Team Meets San Mateo In Crucial Friday

Championship contenders may be indicated Friday afternooon as the golf team meets strong College of San Mateo at Harding Park, Coach Grover Klemmer said yesterday.

Recently, the golfers continued their win streak by defeating San Jose City College 8½ to 6½ at the Almaden golf course.

Participants in this meet included Jim Baffico with a score of 78, George Benke and Larry Sugimoto each with 82's, and Art Berliner shooting an 80.

The golf team has met Stockton College and College of Marin. Following is the remainder of the golf team's schedule for this semester:

March 23, San Mateo, Harding, 1 p.m.
March 30, Modesto, there, 1 p.m.
April 6, Contra Costa, there, 1 p.m.
April 13, Santa Rosa, Harding, 1 p.m.
April 19-21, Intercollegiate Tournament at Pasatiempo.
April 27, Oakland, Harding, 1 p.m.
May 4, Sacramento, there, 1 p.m.
May 8, Conference tourney, Modesto.
May 21, State tourney, Bakersfield.

Netters Face Cal Frosh In Practice Tilt Today

A practice match will be played against the University of California Frosh by the tennis team at 2:30 p.m. today on the Golden Gate Park courts, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen.

In a contest with College of San Mateo March 9 the Rams won their first league match, 7-0.

Bob Siska won his match in three sets, besting Al Davis 3-6, 6-1 and 6-0. Rich Anderson and Ed Jilka were among the other winners of their matches.

Of the team showing, Diederichsen pointed out that Anderson is the most improved player, Jack Kern the steadiest player, Rich Murray the most under-rated player and Siska the outstanding player on the team.

State Champion Rams Place Four On All-League Squads

Four Ram cager standouts were elected by the coaches from the Big Eight to the All-Conference teams at the annual basketball mentors' meeting held last week at Contra Costa College.

Brad Duggan, also elected to the All-Tournament team at the state finals and selected most valuable player of the tournament; Elton McGriff, another state finals All-Tournament player; Chuck Currington and Everett Adams were the four locals honored.

Duggan and McGriff were chosen on the first club of the mythical quintent, while Currington made second club and Adams placed on the third string.

Other players selected to the first club were Charlie Luster, the league's leading scorer from Oakland City College; Andy Stoglin, high scoring forward from Stockton, and Bob Ferrell, high point man for Sacramento.

Duggan was tops in scoring for the Rams, compiling 237 points, while McGriff scored 209 points and snagged 225 rebounds.

Currington had the highest shooting percentage of the season from the floor, hitting 54 per cent of his attempts. His 168 rebounds were second highest on the squad.

Playmaking and clutch shooting were Adams' specialty throughout the season. The spunky guard worked his way up to a starting berth at the start of the season and provided a constant spark in the Rams' offensive drives.

Intra Games To Begin Tuesday

Competition for this semester's new intramural basketball perpetual trophy will begin next Tuesday at the men's gymnasium, according to Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss. The first game will be at 7:15 p.m., with the second to follow immediately at 8:15 p.m.

Basketball action will be provided by two new leagues, one consisting of five campus fraternities and the other being made up of four club and three independent teams.

Games will be played on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. On Tuesdays two games will be played in the men's gymnasium, one at 7:15 p.m. and the other at 8:15 p.m.

Mermen Downed Twice In First League Encounters

In its first league encounter, the college swimming team fell victim in a dual meet to the Pirates of Modesto Junior College, and in a triangle meet to the former and Sequoia College.

The team lost in the dual competition 33-61, and was toppled in the triangle contest 66-57-42, with Modesto again ranking first in the March 9 meet held at Modesto.

Freshman prospects include Chuck Greninger, who outsped all in the 220 free style with a 2:33.0 time and copped second place in the 440 free style with a 5:25.4 mark, and Rollin Randall, who took second place in the diving event.

Mark Haskell, who placed second in the triangle meet in the individual 200 backstroke entry with a mark of 2:45.2, and Herm Fruchtenicht, who took a third place in the 200 breast stroke with a mark of 2:56.8 in the triangle meet, round out the frosh standouts in the league debut.

John Holm, veteran of last year's team, took a first in the 200 breast stroke, where Fruchtenicht placed third, with a 2:51.6 mark.

All of the league meets will be held away. Two remaining March meets are a clash Friday with College of San Mateo at 3:30 p.m. and the March 30 meet against Oakland City College.

The April schedule includes the April 2 grapple with the Sacramento City College Panthers, the April 5 encounter with Santa Rosa, and the Big Eight Conference championships on April 13 and 14 at Modesto or at alternate Sacramento.

1960 Ram MVP Signs With Senators

Frank Gable, who played on the 1960 Ram baseball squad, was signed last week by the Washington Senators. He received an estimated $3500 bonus.

While in high school, Gable played his freshman year at Sacred Heart before transferring to Balboa. In his senior year he hit a torrid .401.

Voted All-City third sacker and All-Northern California, Gable went on to play in the San Francisco Examiner All-Star game and the Hearst All-American game in New York.

A fine hitter and gifted with a good arm, Gable, who stands 5-10 at 165 pounds, was voted the Most Valuable Player on the Ram nine in 1960.

He led the team with a blazing .444 batting average, and his fine fielding made him a first string All-Conference third baseman. Playing in the Peninsula Rookie League for the Milwaukee Braves, Gable was second in the league in batting with a fine .389 average.

He is to report April 1 to the Pensacola league in Florida.

EX-RAM horsehider Frank "Butch" Gable, who was just signed by the Washington Senators, prepares for a ground ball.

RAMBLINGS

Ty Cobb—Greatest All-Around Player

By Jerry Littrell

LATELY much attention, both casual and strict, has been directed to the late Ty Cobb. Some persons have taken a dim view of his life and the way he lived it. Much space has been devoted to a vicious and unnecessary expose of his private doings.

No matter what anyone says about Cobb the man, no one can possibly deny the heroics of Cobb the ballplayer.

This great competitor started with Detroit in 1905. That year he hit .240, but after that his average never slipped below the .320 bracket.

He was tops in the league seven different seasons in the most-hits department.

From 1907 to 1915 he led the league in batting. Five different times he held the record for the number of runs scored in one season, and his play on the bases can only be described as dazzling.

Running seemed to be an obsession with Cobb. For a few minutes before each game, he would go off by himself and practice running the bases and sliding hard. What modern day player would even think of doing this?

During his stay in baseball he ran up an amazing total of 892 stolen bases, a mark which will probably never be equaled.

His total lifetime record is almost mythical. He holds the record for the most times at bat (11,429), most games (3033), most hits (4191), and most runs scored (2244). His lifetime average was .367.

Other writers may look upon him as "wild" or "insane," but the only real indication of his abilities is his records. But they should remember him speeding down to second base on a steal and sliding hard with spikes flashing.

Or lashing line drives to every corner of the park, for there will be the real image of Tyrus Raymond Cobb—the greatest all-around baseball player who ever lived.

Fencers Eye Win In LA Tournament

Harry Jorgensen, Bob Lawrence and Bill Lindo, students here, will compete Friday in the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Conference at Los Angeles Valley College.

Stuart Funke will go as an alternate and Mrs. Lene Johnson will accompany as sponsor.

Sophomores Jorgensen, captain of the fencing team, and Lindo, graduates of Balboa High School, have fenced and competed in the Amateur Fencers' League of America tournaments since they began attending the college.

They placed third in the finals of the open competition on March 11 in the AFLA. Left-hander Lawrence, Lincoln High School graduate, placed third in the semifinals on that same day. Funke is a Washington High graduate.

These four men have earned top place on the fencing team through elimination at competitions and judgings at bouts.

On March 31 a fencing sports day is scheduled here. A total of 150 students will be fencing for the 12-hour meet, starting at 8 a.m.

Connie Mack managed the Philadelphia Athletics for a record-breaking 50 years.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

• Truly Proud

Editor, The Guardsman:

Congratulations to Coach Phelan and his gallant basketball champs. The 1961-62 season has been a fabulous athletic season for City College of San Francisco. The football team finished second in the conference with an 8-2 mark and a postseason bowl victory; the soccer team won its third league championship and national acclaim; the cross-country team also finished atop the conference; and now the basketball team brought honors back to the college as well as the city of San Francisco with its state championship style of playing.

I, although no longer attending City College, feel indeed proud of the achievements made by the Ram athletes. May I take this opportunity to give the City College athletic department and all the coaches three cheers.

Vincent Liu, Jr.,
A former Ram

Time Limit Acquires Support Of Mayor, Governor; Production Opens Friday In Campus Theater

With Governor Edmund Brown and Mayor George Christopher both encouraging community attendance, Time Limit opens at 8 p.m. Friday in the campus theater for the first of four performances.

As part of the city's cultural offering, the show deserves the public's attention, according to these officials.

Parking Jam On Hill Prompts Stricter Rules

Because of numerous complaints and minor accidents, Lewis Pollack, Campus Police chief, announced last week that there will be strict enforcement of parking rules on the hill across from the arts building parking lots at Judson Avenue.

Sloping toward the walkway by the theater, this hill is crowded with cars parked in a haphazard manner, Pollack said, and last week an unoccupied car careened down the hill and jerked to a halt at the foot of the walkway.

One week prior, another car rolled down the hill.

"Student Council and Dean Hillsman request that we initiate strict enforcement of parking rules in this area," Pollack said.

Although parking permits are not required in this vicinity, cars will be tagged if they are not parked properly, the police chief said.

Pollack emphasized that drivers should leave room for other cars to enter and exit without having to drive on the walkway and without causing other cars to be parked precariously on the side of the hill.

Pollack asked students for their cooperation. "It makes our job easier to have co-operation rather than enforcement," he said.

Campus Police To Compete In State Pistol Matches

Campus Police department's top marksmen plan to compete in the California championship pistol matches in Fort Ord next month, Fred Fitzpatrick, criminology instructor, said last week.

Tentative plans for a five-man team include criminology students David Sheehan, Gerald De Gerolana, Steven Thatcher, William Wilson and Robert Mulhall.

All of these men are classified in top positions in the Western Revolver Association's listings.

If the team wins, it will receive a trophy and national recognition. Gold, silver and bronze medals will also be awarded in the expert, sharpshooters and marksman categories.

Last semester the team entered numerous tournaments and won more than 60 trophies and awards.

Along other lines, Police Chief Lewis Pollack said that parking violations as of this week are a little above the average.

Students should make reservations and purchase tickets in advance for all performances if expecting to attend, Michael Griffin, drama director, emphasized.

The show will run for two weekends on Friday and Saturday nights. Associated Student cardholders are admitted without charge and others can purchase tickets at the student bank in Smith Hall for $1.

Time Limit concerns an American prisoner of war who goes over to the communist side during the Korean War and the attempts of an army judge to find motives for the act.

Principal players in the cast are John Morrison, Vincent Cobb, Zorair Roubinian and Randy Jones.

College history and sociology instructors recommend Time Limit to students enrolled in their classes since the show involves brainwashing techniques.

The audience is expected to wear formal attire for opening night. Refreshments will be served in the lobby during intermission through the courtesy of Blum's, and mounted photographs will be on display at that time, Griffin said.

Floral decor is being prepared to grace the theater, and the wives of special guests will be presented with corsages. Civic, business, fraternal and club leaders are expected.

Official hostess for the affair is Phyllis Webb, president of Highteens, an association of high school and two-year college women officers. Campus sororities will provide ushers.

A theater party for the cast and special guests will be given before the show by the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, Marlene Lyons, former student here and promotion manager of the show, stated.

Students from high schools and junior high schools have been invited for tonight's dress rehearsal preview of Time Limit, and to observe the theater's technical facilities.

Barbara Russo, Lund Chosen Cutest Couple At Frosh Ball Contest

Highlight of the semiannual Frosh Ball last Friday in the Colonial, Italian and Georgian Rooms of the St. Francis Hotel was the traditional Cutest Couple contest which was won by Barbara Russo and Rod Lund.

Miss Russo and Lund, after being judged on dancing ability, beauty and appearance along with other couples competing, each received a trophy donated by Phi Beta Rho sorority and Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity.

Also awarded during the Frosh Ball was a transistor radio to Wendy Dickson, 19-year-old Associated Woman Student member, for her sale of Associated Student cards. Miss Dickson sold more than 200 cards.

For selling more than 150 cards Dave Otey and Andy Shamiyeh, both Sophomore council members, were presented with a pair of tickets to the movie El Cid.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 54 · SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28, 1962 · NUMBER 5

Schott And Teschin Win First $1500 Lesser Scholarships

By John Mulier

Grants of $1500 each were awarded March 15 to Herbert Schott and Alexander Teschin from the new $30,000 Lucille Lesser Scholarship fund.

Named in memory of the donor's wife, the fund was given to the college last semester to be expended over a 10-year period at the rate of $3000 per year, $1500 each to two men students annually.

Schott, a graduate of George Washington planning to be a science instructor, and Teschin, a product of Lowell majoring in premedicine, were officially awarded the scholarships by President Louis G. Conlan.

They will not receive the full amount at once; $500 will be given to them while attending City College and the rest when enrolled in a four-year college.

Upon the completion of each semester's registration at City College, Schott and Teschin will receive $125 for a total of four semesters.

After registering at a four-year college they will receive $250 per semester for four semesters.

Thirty units of university parallel courses must be completed each year with at least a C average for the students to retain their scholarships.

The two winners were selected from 14 candidates representing every public and some private high schools in San Francisco. All applicants had B or better averages in high school and all made excellent scores on the entrance examinations at the college.

Schott and Teschin were awarded the scholarships on the basis of their grade point average in high school and college, their potential ability as evidenced by their scores on the entrance examinations here and their high school and college performances.

The difficulty of their objective and how deserving they were was also used by the Faculty Loan Committee to select the winners.

The committee is composed of Dean Mary Golding, Dean Ralph Hillsman, and faculty members Margaret Anecker, Roy Burchead, Fred Foultz and Verrell Weber.

In order to qualify for the scholarship students had to have at least a B average in high school with not more than one C in a college preparatory course, Dean Golding emphasized.

Each student applying for the scholarship was also asked to write a clear and concise statement of why he wanted to go to college and what he expected to achieve from college.

The final step for the contestants was to appear for an interview before two members of the Faculty Loan Committee. Dean Golding added that "the committee spent many hours of careful study before Schott and Teschin were finally selected."

Well Kept Secret

Many Inquire, But AS Spouse Cards Remain Untold Mystery

Various and assorted signs clutter the glass encasement of S-117, a booth used mostly for Associated Student fund drives.

Of the many signs in the encasement, one in particular seems to catch the eye of passing students.

It reads: "Card privileges for the little woman, too. Ask here about spouse cards."

But what are "spouse cards"? Inquiring students are generally turned away with an answer such as—"I don't know," or "Spouse cards haven't been issued for about five semesters."

The bare fact is that no one knows what a spouse card is; no one from the editor of The Guardsman and the president of the Associated Students, down through the lower echelons of student government.

No one knows, that is, except Carl Anderson, the man in charge at the student bank, who gladly volunteered the information.

"Spouse cards issued at the student bank," he explained, "allow a married person holding an Associated Student card and presenting proof of marriage, to have his (or her) spouse admitted to all on campus student activities, free of charge."

Anderson further explained that the term "spouse card" is misleading since the "spouse card" is actually a mark which is stamped on the Associated Student card.

However, Anderson stated, there is one catch. If both husband and wife are in attendance here, a spouse card will not be issued. The two students must both purchase Associated Student cards.

Pardini Photos Missing; Future Exhibits Periled

By Harry Cordellos

Photography shows in Cloud Hall may be discontinued unless pictures are left on the exhibit panels, Emmett Smith announced after three of Fred Pardini's display photos were taken from the gallery last week.

It became necessary to remove Pardini's one-man photography show from the faculty gallery of Cloud Hall three days ahead of time, when Smith, in charge of the displays, found three of the exhibit pictures missing from the panels.

One of these pictures has since been returned, however, the other two are still missing, one a gag shot, the other a "pin-up."

Smith indicated that these pictures were not the property of the college, but instead, belonged to Pardini. Unless Pardini has the negatives for the lost pictures, they cannot be replaced.

For this reason, Smith said, "Not only should a strong attempt be made to recover these pictures, but steps should be taken to see that actions such as these should not be allowed to occur again."

Smith stated that unless he can be confident that pictures shown in the gallery will be returned safely to their owners, the Cloud Hall photography shows will be discontinued.

In the past the problem of having pictures taken out of the exhibit gallery has been almost unnoticeable. Since 1957, when the first photo exhibit was presented in the gallery, only three pictures were lost of the hundreds that have been shown.

Smith asked that anyone having knowledge concerning the pictures inform him either in C-126 or C-249.

(For editorial comment, see page 2.)

Tentatively continuing his series of photo exhibits of the work done by former students, Smith posted his third show of the semester earlier this week, featuring Betty Jones, now a free-lance photographer.

Miss Jones completed the photography program here in 1953. In addition to being a free-lance photographer, she enters many of her pictures in salon exhibit competition. She has won several prizes.

She is also an active member of the San Francisco Recreation and Park Department Photography Center, located at Scott and Duboce streets here in the city.

In addition to these activities, Miss Jones was one of the organizers of the Sunset Camera Club, and has filled several of its offices.

The display currently being shown in the faculty gallery of Cloud Hall illustrates the wide variety of subjects photographed by Miss Jones. Her show will continue through Friday, April 6.

IFC Sets Sights For 750 Pint Total In Annual Blood Drive

"Give a little, to get a lot" will be the theme of the fifth annual blood drive which will take place here Thursday and Friday, April 5 and 6, according to Ralph Hillsman, dean of men.

Sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, the drive will be aimed at setting a record of 750 pints for this year's blood donation total. Last year approximately 500 pints were donated by registered students, faculty members, civil service employees and college alumni.

The dean announced that a rally will be held in front of Cloud Hall during a double College Hour scheduled for Friday, April 6. Stagg McMann, Turk Murphy's Dixieland Band and the Apollos are expected to provide entertainment.

The organization donating the most blood will win a trophy from the IFC. Last year Zeta Chi and Block SF topped last year's drive each with 13 pints, followed closely by Phi Beta Rho with 12.

Hillsman reiterated the advantages of giving a pint of blood during the drive. In the coming year the donor can, in case of emergency, draw blood from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for themselves, their immediate family or for close friends.

Prospective donors under 21 are reminded that they must secure their parents' consent on a permission blank available in Hillsman's office.

In preparing for a donation, Hillsman emphasized the importance of a good night's sleep. In addition, he added, a donor should eat a good breakfast or lunch but should avoid fatty foods.

The blood mobile will set up its apparatus in C-249 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on both days.

College Sends Six To LA CJCSGA Meeting

—Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

Six student leaders from this college will leave today to attend the state conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association slated for tomorrow, Friday and Saturday at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles.

Five workshops will be set up at the meeting dealing with duties of the presidential office, current problems relating to two-year colleges, the two-year college as a cultural center, intramural and recreational activities and finance.

Delegates attending from here, pictured at left, are first row, left to right, Jan Doudiet, finance chairman; Dan Collins, Associated Student president, and Suzanne Murphy, AS vice president.

Second row, left to right, Andy Shamiyeh, council member; Gail Margolin, state information chairman, and Greg Monk, council member.

Drama Production Debuts Friday

Griffin's Time Limit Opens Here With Exceptional Cast

Although all of Michael Griffin's classes in the drama department have doubled their enrollment—one class tripled, and another increased 30-fold—by and large these students have had little or no experience in theater except for the opportunities in high school.

There are, however, some impressive exceptions who can be seen in the college production of Time Limit, which opens at 8 p.m. Friday with a limited engagement of two weekends.

John Morrison, who portrays an army major accused of treason during the Korean War, counts as experience more than a dozen plays from his first year in high school to Portland State College and the Portland Civic Theater.

Tall and seemingly mild-tempered, Morrison has won the lead role over stiff competition.

Originally from New York, Vincent Cobb plays the judge advocate who attempts to defend the major. He studied acting at the Chadwick School in New York and at California.

He has appeared with the Professional Actors Workshop in Los Angeles and recently with the Actors Workshop here in San Francisco. Cobb is part of a family who can look back on a 40-year tradition of Broadway, movies and television, and the ease with which he conducts himself on stage shows it.

Juliane Jarrett, born in Germany, has one of only two female roles in the show, that of the major's wife. Blonde Miss Jarrett comes here from Bakersfield Junior College, where she was active in dramatics.

The other female role went to Joan Simms, playing the secretary of the judge advocate. She has been affiliated with three local little theater groups in this area, including the Hillbarn in Redwood City.

Zorair Roubinian, as a lieutenant who was with the major in the Korean prison camp, studied at Lee Strasberg's Studio in New York, where Marlon Brando first began to use the so-called "method acting."

Dark and often brooding over his part, Roubinian bears the mark of the method actor who approaches his character through the emotional aspect of personality motivation.

The general, who heads the home army post, is portrayed by Randolf Jones. Jones is a member of Screen Actors Guild and works as a movie extra in films shot in the area.

His last job was for Blake Edwards who directed Lee Remick and Jack Lemmon in A Day Of Wine And Roses. The movie will be released soon by Warner Brothers.

Nick Bonnacker as the general's son has been active in children's theater, and Bob Drews, who plays another Korean captive, is presently rehearsing for the next show at the Interplayers here in the city.

Experience contributes more than anything else to an actor's proficiency, in which case Time Limit should be an impressive production. By AMP

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 54, No. 5 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28, 1962 Page 2

Senseless Adult Pranks Sway Youth Toward Delinquency

ONLY a few months ago a dozen San Francisco youths either pleaded guilty to or were found guilty of harassing an older couple for a period of about 15 months.

When the boys tried to explain it as only a joke, the general public reaction was, "How could they think of that as a joke?"

These were adults, a real estate salesman, a rocket scientist, and a state assemblyman, who told stewardesses on various airline flights that there were bombs in their luggage.

Each hoax caused a considerable waste of time while the luggage was searched, and a proportionate loss of money by the airlines.

Under a recent federal law making bomb scares illegal, two of the men face possible penalties of a $1000 fine and a year in jail.

The assemblyman's plane was not on an interstate flight; thus he only violated a state law very similar to the federal rule.

If it were possible for the first two men to plead ignorance of the law (an unlikely prospect since the first cases prosecuted under it received widespread publicity), the third has absolutely no such recourse.

In 1961 this assemblyman voted in favor of the "bomb hoax" law.

Undoubtedly, the pros and cons of this edict were aired completely during the legislative session, and it must be supposed that the assemblyman knew what the law was designed to combat.

All three wish to dismiss the incidents as just jokes.

People who ask how young tormentors could have such a sense of humor need only look at the examples set by these influential adults.

Please Return The Pin-Ups

PHOTOGRAPHY enthusiasts who may have rushed to the faculty gallery to view the Fred Pardini display as reported in The Guardsman last week were greeted instead with small posters stating that the exhibit had been discontinued due to theft.

It may possibly be a credit to the photographer when his work is absconded, or maybe it is a credit to the taste of the taker.

But is was not immediately known whether the prints were replaceable.

Two were missing, Emmett Smith, photography instructor, revealed, and he posted a plea for their return. One was back in place the next day, but another had disappeared from a different spot.

Missing at this time are a cheese cake print and one gag shot.

A full schedule of such interesting and informative displays by various photographers formerly of this college may be cancelled.

We who have seen neither the missing shots nor the rest of the Pardini show, and who wish to see more of the same, plead for their return.

Break A Leg

WE ARE VERY HAPPY to note that the drama department has been able to acquire sufficient funds to again present a full scale production after two financially lean semesters.

Opening this weekend, Time Limit is a top quality play which will give director Michael Griffin's abundance of talented thespians a challenge to their abilities.

It would seem that since they have money, talent, and good material to perform, there is only one wish left to be made to the drama department.

We hope you break a leg.

Campus PanoRAMa

Do You Believe Nuclear Conflict Is Inevitable?

By Bob Hacker and Harry Cordellos

Nancy Gorl, sophomore:

Yes, there will be a war eventually. The world has seen wars all through its history, and it will see them again as time goes on. Short periods of peace have always come between wars. We are in one of those periods now. I don't know how long this period will last but there will always be wars.

NANCY GORI
"The world has seen wars all through its history, and it will see them again as time goes on."

Dave Tullus, sophomore:

No! The two main forms of government, socialist and capitalist, will eventually have to compromise. Today there is no such thing as a completely capitalist or socialistic nation. Countries are combining both forms of government and eventually this combination will be the only form of government.

Jan White, sophomore:

No, I don't really think so, but the nations of the world must learn to co-operate with each other if we are to avoid war. Man must achieve maturity and realize the fact that he will destroy himself with a nuclear war. Maybe I say "No, there won't be a war," because I'm afraid to think yes.

Tom Urbina, sophomore:

There won't be a war right away, but there will be one eventually. Right now both countries are evenly armed, and they cannot be sure of who would win. As soon as this balance is not equal, one country may start a war to save itself, or the other country will fight to rid itself of its menace.

Ollie Belonogoff, sophomore:

I don't think there will ever be a big nuclear war. Both countries realize that whoever starts a war will be doing as much damage to themselves as they will be doing to the country they attack. Of course there will always be small wars, but I don't think the A-bomb will be ever used again.

Rick Shriber, sophomore:

There will be another war, but I don't think the United States or Russia will start it. Red China or Cuba, if they get the bomb, will be the ones to start it. I have some faith in humanity and believe that once war has started, someone, probably the neutral nations, will succeed in stopping it.

Andrienna Boasso, sophomore:

If there is a war it's all over for us; but if man can learn to live in peace, learn to cope with his problems and most of all understand the problems of others, then there won't be a war. I believe that man is capable of doing this to save himself from disaster.

Christine Krueger, sophomore:

About a year ago I would have said yes. Now I think that the two K's, Kennedy and Khrushchev, are trying to agree. The peace talks seem to be working slowly but surely. Our two countries are getting together to talk out world problems and thus settle them in a peaceful manner.

'Graduates Aren't Unemployed'

On-Job Training, Studying Proves Program Successful

By John Silva

It began here in 1940 with 12 men, a shack and a friend, and it continues at the college in 1962 with 25 men, two offices, a scholarship and a friend.

Criminology students here 22 years ago had, as they do now, a diversified curriculum comprising some 14 different courses, ranging from traffic control to criminal investigation; however, all study was confined to the classroom.

Then in the fall of 1940, William J. Quinn, then police chief in San Francisco, gave the criminology students their opportunity.

It was the opportunity to apply what they were being taught, to use their theoretical training and to see the effects of actual police work. Quinn gave the criminology students full authority comparable to that of the officers under him.

With a 12-man police force the criminology students established their headquarters in a small hideaway near Science Hall.

Nailed on the wooden awning above the shack's porch were the letters "City College Campus Police."

After 23 years of this on-the-job experience and thorough academic study, this program has been successful.

Concerning effectiveness of the police cadet program, Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman grinned and said, "Those who complete the course are not unemployed."

Jerry Anderson, once a campus policeman here, is now deputy police chief in Sunnyvale, California.

Jim Chambers, a campus policeman in 1948, is now chief of police in Newark, California.

Now with 25 men equipped with badges, leather jackets, flashlights, whistles, notebooks, the police force has in C-120 two offices where at their disposal are three desks, three telephones, filing cabinets, a typewriter and criminology books.

Recently the college police force was granted a $500 scholarship which will be awarded to deserving criminology students shortly after the first midterm period.

This grant was donated by the Footprinters Association, an organization promoting identification by footprinting, and it is headed by retired Deputy Police Chief James Quigley who, incidentally, was in office when Quinn deputized the first campus police force.

Continuing at the college now, the Campus Police are comprised of 25 men who have two officers and a $500 scholarship.

The friend is Fred Fitzgerald, criminology instructor who has been with the Campus Police for 23 years, who shared his office with his men in that little shack and who now shares his office with them in C-120.

Fitzgerald is proud of his men.

Shots At RAMdom

By Dave Kleinberg

OUR Managing Editor came bouncing into the office the other day with a gleam in his eye and said, "I think I have an item."

A desperate columnist always needs help. We nodded.

Said the M.E., "Kids are really witty nowadays. On Mayor Art's TV program last night a kid riddled another boy, 'What'd one casket say to the other?' The answer is 'Are you a-coffin.'"

We'll have to admit that's a little humorous, but we're interested as to why the author of "The Good Ol' Daze" watches Mayor Art. We asked him.

"Man, that's one of the best; twice as good as Huckleberry Hound."

• • •

SOME HAVE claimed this column uses old material.

First, we deny the accusation. Second, we offer evidence that suggests instructors here force students to hear ancient material.

We heard the story again in history. It's the familiar comparison of government system by the use of two cows:

• Socialism: Have two cows, give one to neighbor.

• Communism: Have two cows, give both to state and receive milk.

• Fascism: Have two cows, give milk to state, buy milk back.

• Nazism: Shoot you and take two cows.

• Capitalism: Have two cows, sell one and buy a bull.

Let's face it. They've been telling that old tale since the revolution—all of 'em. And that's no cow nor bull.

• • •

GALEN MARSHALL tells his music 27A students about a student taking a test on the works of Mozart.

The answer (to be written in German) was Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, which translated to English means A Little Night Music.

The student obviously didn't know a bit of German and couldn't write the language phonetically.

He answered the query in plain English: I'm inclined to knock music.

The Spectator

By Anna Papagni

JACQUELINE KENNEDY's invitation to visit the White House via television was so enthusiastically accepted that one network apparently decided to provide viewers with other opportunities to observe notable households.

Out of innumerable abodes that might interest the public, the American Broadcasting Company chose the House of Frankenstein and Dracula. Although the 11 p.m. time slot was inconvenient, especially for young children, it was certainly appropriate.

"Frank," Dracula and their star boarder, a werewolf, were not immediately available since their business often takes them away from home. Consequently, the tour was conducted by a trusted friend, the dedicated Doctor Adleman.

He led the breathless viewer through a home that might easily have been a medieval castle, except that such a structure would be hard to account for, historically, on the New England sea coast.

The famed doctor was then staying at the castle in order to treat a strange mental disorder shared by his three friends. They enjoyed killing people—through no fault of their own, of course.

They were victims of the full moon that caused them to be physically and mentally transformed into rather unpleasant individuals. The doctor, how-

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
Newa Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Muller
Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni.
Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelder, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson, Harry Cordellos, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Walter Rice, John Silva.
Cub Reporters: Robin Beck, John Gilman, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Thomas Renahaw, Mike Zelinsky.
Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti; Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Chris Utter.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Luau And Dance Create Hawaiian Splendor Friday

Creating an atmosphere of island splendor, the Hawaiian Club here will present Lei Of Stars, a luau, show and dance, from 5:30 p.m. to 12 midnight Friday at Smith Hall, John Deniz, president of the group, announced today.

Admission for the event will be $3.50 per person with an Associated Student card and $4 per person otherwise. Everybody at the college is invited to attend the stag-or-drag affair.

Students may obtain their tickets from the club members who will be selling them throughout the campus or at the booth which will be situated this week in Science Hall.

Dress for the affair is informal, but the Hawaiian costume is preferred, Deniz emphasized.

Beginning the festivities of the evening, an authentic luau, including foods representative of the 50th state, will be held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of alloting two hours to this portion of the threefold program is to enable everyone attending the function to enjoy this Hawaiian custom, Deniz added.

Following the luau a Hawaiian show featuring hula, Tahitian, knife and comic hula dances will entertain the audience from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

To climax the evening a dance will begin at 9 and will end at 12. Music will be furnished by Rich Silva and his band, who are from the college.

Sponsor of the Hawaiian Club is Bruce Hannah.

Forum Sets April 18 Manuscript Deadline

Deadline for student manuscripts intended for publication in this spring's Forum is Wednesday, April 18, Catherine Connolly, faculty adviser to the literary magazine, announced.

Short stories, short one-act plays, essays (humorous or serious), criticism of books, articles of current interest, poetry and light verse are acceptable.

Material should be typed on standard size paper, double spaced and may be submitted to C-331a or to any member of the Forum staff. The magazine is scheduled to appear during the first part of June.

Spectator: TV Visits Jackie, Then Dracula

(Continued from Page 2)

ever, believed that everybody should have a crack at happiness, and it was up to him to enable these three to lead normal lives.

The sponsor, too, felt strongly about happiness and interrupted the program every 10 minutes to warn viewers about the hazards of midriff bulge.

Doctor Aideman introduced his nurse, a lovely, young hunchback who was also to be cured by the same serum that was being prepared for the other three unfortunates.

Obviously they were on the brink of a spectacular medical discovery. The doctor's serum would bring hope to thousands of werewolves and hunchbacks.

Alas, a sad accident occurred. A clumsy cameraman tripped over a test tube as the kindly doctor was leading the audience into his laboratory. Needless to say, there was a terrific explosion.

Lest the viewer became too restless or concerned at proceedings, he was reassured at regular intervals that this was—The Best Of The Movies.

Exploration

Service, Leadership Pave Way To $5500 In Scholarships

By Thalia Demakas

The significance of the scholarship in a tuition-free, nonresidence college is best indicated, perhaps, by the nearly universal requirement for qualification—service.

To most scholarship winners the award permits an enrichment of academic life by means of participation in the leadership program offered. This is a program requiring time—time that would, without a scholarship, be of necessity devoted to some form of partial employment.

Approximately $5500 in scholarships are offered annually and exclusively here—with applications due this year by April 13. The financial range of these scholarships is from $25 and membership in the Associated Students to $500; the scope from club-sponsored gifts to departmental stipends, such as those accorded the hoiel and restaurant department.

Memorial scholarships of $50 each are given in the membry of Archibald J. Cloud, first president of the college; Dr. J. Paul Mohr, first vice president of the college; Margaret Dougherty, first dean of women here; and Helene Mayer, former instructor of physical education and world famous fencer.

Graduating class of 1961 scholarships, each in the amount of $50, are given to deserving men and women, and are made available through contributions for the King and Queen contest of the Sophomore Ball and donations by the individuals in the graduating classes.

Two scholarships to student leaders, one man and one woman, in the activities program are made possible by donations received from the Ugly Man On Campus contest, conducted by Alpha Phi Omega, national men's service fraternity. Amounts range from $75 to $100.

The Chinese Students Club awards a total of $400 to eight deserving students, not necessarily of Chinese ancestry.

In addition, the Edith Pence scholarships make possible a gift of $50 each, given to two women students entering from local high schools. Also, the Denman scholarship offers $150 each to two women students, with graduation from a San Francisco public high school a requirement.

All of the scholarships described above are given to students primarily on the basis of character, leadership activities, financial need and scholastic ability.

As was stated previously, departmental scholarships are also available to students. These include:

• Hotel and restaurant department stipends ranging from $100 to $500. These gifts are made possible through contributions of various foundations, clubs, dairies, corporations and associations, which are in some way connected with the H&R department.

• The Square and Circle Chinese business women's association, with two scholarships of $125 each, available to one man and one woman who are worthy and able San Francisco students of Chinese ancestry.

• Several scholarships are awarded students in the ornamental horticulture program.

• Tuition grants given students transferring to the Academy of Advertising Art.

• Three International Relations Club scholarships of $50 per student.

• A $25 purse given to a worthy student by the San Joaquin Valley surveyors.

Those who are interested in applying for scholarships must be currently enrolled full-time students who have completed one previous semester at the college.

They must write a letter of application to the dean of men or dean of women, describing needs, activities and ambitions.

In the past letters of application have been submitted by twice as many students as there were available scholarships.

Interviews are usually conducted by the respective deans and by the departments especially concerned with scholarships, and from these interviews the committee decides which students are most deserving.

Coed Here Reaches Miss SF Finals; Eight Vie For Title

Among the eight finalists to represent the city in the 1962 Miss San Francisco Pageant will be Brenda Dennis, a coed at the college.

Before a panel of judges in the semifinals competition on March 18, Miss Dennis performed in her field of talent, modern dance. Mrs. Salvatore Lima, registration chairman of the pageant, disclosed last week.

After a personal interview, Miss Dennis delivered a three-minute speech before the judges. In the afternoon she modeled in swimming suit apparel.

The final contest will be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 14, in the Grand Ballroom of the Jack Tar Hotel.

Lee Ann Meriwether, former student here and Miss America of 1955, will act as one of the judges for the Miss SF Pageant.

According to Mrs. Lima, the pageant will be a "gala affair with the finalists appearing in their formal attire."

The public is invited and tickets are now available at $2.50 each, Mrs. Lima announced.

Proceeds from the pageant will be submitted toward the scholarship fund which will be awarded to the winning contestant. Awards of clothing, trips and other items will be shared by Miss San Francisco of 1962 and the pageant runners-up.

Crystal Ball Glitter To Decorate Dances

Carl Lytle, whose wife is a secretary in the hotel and restaurant department, presented a crystal ball to the Associated Students last Wednesday for use at future dances.

The unique contribution, a product of Lytle's hobby, was presented to Deans Mary Golding and Ralph Hillsman and will be used to "brighten up" dances in Smith Hall.

Small pieces of mirror were attached to a spherical circumference to form the ball. The apparatus will hang from the ceiling during balls with spotlights shining through it, offering a colorful atmosphere to the affair.

Lytle's cost was kept at a bare minimum, but if such a feature were purchased by the college the price could be considerable.

The Trans-Canada Highway is expected to be completed in 1963.

COO Urges Participation At Problems Confab

To discuss solutions to campus problems, a problems convention is scheduled here Wednesday evening, April 25, Ed Pawlus, Council of Organizations president, announced.

The problems convention is designed to correct campus shortcomings by suggestions from the college's students to various authoritative guests at the convention.

Students may also submit their problems in the Associated Students' office, S-134, anytime before Thursday, April 22.

Pawlus emphasized that these problems must deal with campus improvement which would benefit the college as a whole. For example, he added, improvements in cafeteria or in parking facilities would benefit most students.

At last week's committee meeting Sherm Elworthy, COO adviser, suggested that convention guests be invited from other colleges and professions to speak on the field under discussion.

"This would give us a fresh, new view of the problem," Elworthy said.

In addition to those invited from outside the campus there will also be guests from the college who are directly associated with the problems.

"These guests will be connected with campus difficulties under discussion," Pawlus remarked.

At a recent meeting COO members discussed a new parking permit policy which would require non-Associated Student cardholders to pay a higher fee for permits than AS members.

It was suggested that this idea be submitted to the problems convention committee for consideration.

Eight Budgets Still Remain On Agenda Of Student Council

By Bob O'Lear

Only eight budgets remain for approval by Student Council after last week's meeting.

Of the eight budgets acted on last week a total of $988 was cut from the original requests. As most of these were for spring sports, the main burden is now behind the council, according to Associated Student President Dan Collins.

Presently the financial report, as delivered by Finance Chairman Jan Doudiet, is as follows: $27,279 has been allocated, $7646 remains to be consitered. The total of these figures amounts to $34,925, as compared to the allowed income of $32,000.

"As these figures indicate, our course is fairly clear," Miss Doudiet commented.

The drama budget proved the only obstacle to the otherwise smooth passage of budgets. Associated Men Student President Fred Chermiss expressed concern about the manner in which last semester's allocation was spent.

"We voted money to be used for a major production and it was spent on 19 one-act plays during College Hour performances," Cherniss observed.

A total of $600 was withheld from the total request with the provision that it would be returned once 600 tickets had been sold for the current production, Time Limit. It was also specified that the money was to be used for two "major" productions.

Collins appointed Andy Shamiyeh to head the Constitutional Revision Committee. Other members are Miss Doudiet, Ed Pawlus, Judy Gerstle and John Theilan.

Campus News Notes

Newman Club To Host April Fool's Dance

April Fools will be the theme for the Newman Club's highlight dance of the semester to be held from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight this Friday at the St. Emydius gymnasium on Jules Street near Ocean Avenue.

Dress will be casual and the admission price will be 50 cents for singles and 75 cents for couples.

Refreshments will be served and all students here and their friends are invited to the affair.

ROCKET TALK

Dr. John V. Statler will give a lecture demonstration on biological experiments for space satellites during College Hour Friday in the college's theater.

He is presently a research associate in biophysics at the Donner laboratory of medical physics at University of California.

USF ADMISSION

Dr. A. P. Donoghue, director of admissions, University of San Francisco, will speak to interested students Friday at 10 a.m. in S-147.

Dr. Donoghue will give information concerning entrance requirements and admission standards and procedures at USF, as well as answering questions regarding course offerings, residence facilities, financial aid, student activities or other facets of the university.

FESTIVAL MOVIE

Festival Of America, a film concerning famous American folk festivities, will be shown during College Hour Friday in S-136.

This half-hour movie will cover Mardi Gras and other such celebrations enjoyed throughout the United States.

CLUB MEETING

The Christian Science Organization will hold its next meeting at 7:45 p.m. Thursday, April 5, in the Sunday School Room of the Third Church of Christ Scientist, 1250 Haight street. Further information may be obtained from Nina Tucker of the hotel and restaurant department.

USHERING

Ushering passes for students wishing to attend performances of the symphony and ballet are now available in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150.

Ushers will be able to hear Ruggiero Ricci, violinist, on April 4; guest conductor Earl Murray and violinist

The Good Ol' Daze—

What Radio Lost . . . TV Didn't Gain

By Dave Grieve

TODAY the weekly entertainment differs noticeably from that of the past few decades. Instead of snuggling into the easy chair with a best seller, clicking on the radio and relaxing, the modern family assures the psychiatrist and optometrist financial success by relentless viewing of the rabbit-eared idiot box.

The two realms of entertainment coincide presently. Although the radio basically relinquished the adventure-mystery, cowboys and Indians, and overprized quiz show circuit to television, it continues the disc jockey escapades and afternoon soap operas.

Sunday radio programs of "yesterday" were acclaimed as the pinnacle of entertainment, boasting mysteries like Bulldog Drummond, Inner Sanctum, The Shadow, The Green Hornet, followed in the evening by the outstanding comedy routines of Jack Benny and Amos and Andy.

Even the kids could listen to these same stories without developing wild tantrums and neurotic hallucinations. They were enjoyable, humorous, entertaining.

And then along came television with law courts, good versus bad guys, bullets and their effect on children.

This columnist names the transition "The Age of Detail." Aspiring junior criminals don't have to earn an apprenticeship today; they just watch Perry Mason, The Defenders, Naked City and numerous others.

Since the advent of a television conflict between the good guys and the bad guys some 12 years ago, the contrast between the two has become increasingly slight.

Recently the bad guy (once always outfitted in black, black horse, black bullets) is dressed like the good guy in white and who now on occasion even owns a white dog.

Thus has TV realism evolved, titled by the critics as adult mysteries or, in other words, send the kids to bed.

Another type of program which strains the nerves of the "well adjusted" is the bullet-riddled stereotype of the prohibition-burdened twenties.

Gore and guts represent the image carried here across the screen. When a slovenly attired mug saunters into a jam-packed speakeasy toting a "chopper," he spreads bullets evenly from left to right over the people, the woodwork, and the kegs, leaving a pile of bodies saturated by blood and booze.

The kicker comes when the young fry stare at this spectacle with a "toothy smile" across their faces.

Acting as the whipped cream on a sundae, children's programs activate the charge that sends a viewer stampeding to the local analyst's office. The TV mania is like an insidious underbrush; it keeps growing until one will watch almost anything, unbearable as it seems.

Compared to the relative tranquility of the radio, television seems to be a cause of juvenile problems, lending a warped incentive to growing minds. Instead of helping grandma across a busy intersection, the child pushes her into an incoming bus. Uncommon? Hah!

Statistics, if available, might possibly show that families without the "one-eyed monster" raise normal, healthy youngsters—they're the cops, whereas the majority of American children mature with a tinge of abnormality—they're the robbers.

Statistics also show us that there is a descending rate of applications for the city police forces, which may mean that the writing is on the wall. A major crime wave? Revolt?

This columnist is beyond a comeback from the TV grip; can anyone help American society?

Where are the Good Ol' Daze?

David Abel on April 11; Pablo Casals on April 18, and Andre Kostelanetz on May 2.

AGS ANSWERS SOS

Students experiencing any scholastic difficulties may obtain invaluable help from members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society here.

There is no charge for coaching during College Hours, but coaching at other times costs $1.50 per hour.

IFC Teams Clash Tonight As Intramural Games Start; 12 Squads Enter Cage Tourney

Members of the Inter-Fraternity Council league start their intramural basketball competition today when Alpha Kappa Rho meets Gamma Phi Ypsilon and Alpha Sigma Delta plays Zeta Phi Sigma at 7:15 and 8:15 p.m., respectively, in the men's gymnasium.

Last night saw the first round of Associated Men Student sponsored competition for this semester's intramural crown as the teams from the Club Activities Board clashed against each other.

Games among the 12 teams entered will be played each week throughout the semester on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Tuesday nights are reserved for the CAB teams while Wednesdays are set aside for the IFC teams.

Three new teams have been added this semester to the CAB league, the Divine Ones, the Campus Police and the CC's are the three new ones of the seven teams entered.

The Hotel and Restaurant, the Collegiate Five, the Filipino Club and the Newman Club are all returning to competition this year.

Five teams from last semester's IFC league again are competing in that league. They are Alpha Kappa Rho, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta, Zeta Phi Sigma and Beta Tau.

Netters Set Mark In 7-0 Victory Over Contra Costa

Breaking or at least tying a two-year college record, the college tennis team performed the highest possible feat in tennis in dumping Contra Costa Junior College 6-0 in all 14 sets to win 7-0 on the Comets' home court.

Bob Siska, a 19-year-old ex-Junior Davis Cup member, is the number one man and holds the key to Ram hopes for a title.

Other team members are Rich Anderson, Ed Jilka, Jack Kern and Rich Murray.

Improving as the season progresses, the netters will meet Modesto Junior College at 2:30 p.m. Friday at Modesto, Coach Roy Diederichsen stated.

Modesto was upset already this season by the Mustangs of Stockton, 7-3. The Pirates, however, are no push-over; they are led by Ryder Getz, the second best two-year college player in the state last year.

Coach Diederichsen pointed out that the Rams are looking better and better and have good balance. "If everyone plays according to his capabilities, we should win against Modesto," Diederichsen said.

The week before the team defeated Contra Costa the Comets downed Sacramento City College, 6-1.

All of the netters' home games are scheduled for the Golden Gate Park courts on Fridays.

Following is the schedule:

April 4—San Jose
April 6—Oakland City College
April 10—California
April 13—Santa Rosa Jr. College
April 16—Santa Clara
April 25—Menlo
April 27—Sacramento City
May 4, 5—Big 8 Championship
May 11, 12—Sectional
May 18, 19—State Junior College Championship
(*denotes home match.)

Tracksters Meet Sacto, Cal Frosh

In its second league encounter, the college track team will participate in a triangle meet against Sacramento City College and the University of California Frosh Saturday at Edwards Field on the Berkeley campus.

Sacramento took an unimpressive fifth place in the recent Big Eight Relays; however, the Sacramentans have good talent in the pole vault, high jump and distance events.

Their pole vaulter, Ed Lemon, tied a relay meet record with a vault of 13 feet, while his teammate Herb Tillman leaped 6'4" in the high jump event to establish a meet record.

In the distance events, the Capitol City team has a dual threat in the half-mile and mile in the Davidson twins, supplemented by Jim Hooper, mile and two-mile specialist.

The Cal Frosh will be particularly tough in the weight events, where they boast shot-putter Don Castle and Don Schmidt, discus thrower.

Castle heaved the shot 52 feet ½ inch, while Schmidt threw the discus 159-4, both establishing records in a triangle meet against Fresno City College and College of Marin two weeks ago.

Horsehiders Split With Mustangs In Doubleheader, Face Bulldogs On Friday

BASEBALL COACH LEE EISAN hopes to round out a successful season of spring sports by leading the team to a conference title.

Weak Pitching Halts Rams; Pearce Sparkles In 4-3 Win

By Jerry Littrell

Lacking a solid second line pitcher the Ram diamondmen could only earn a split with the Mustangs from Stockton City College winning the opening game 4-3 and dropping the night-cap contest 10-1 last Saturday at Balboa Field.

San Mateo will be the next foe for the baseball team as they face the Bulldogs this Friday at Fitzgerald Park in San Mateo. The Rams will be up against a strong Matean squad and will have to be at their defensive best to beat these pre-season favorites.

Behind the steady four-hit hurling of righthander John Pearce the locals staged a late inning rally against the Mustangs to come from behind and chalk up their first conference win.

Pearce scattered four hits in his nine inning stint on the mound. Of the three runs Stockton scored only one of them was earned.

Stockton managed to scrape up two runs in the fourth inning on an error, a walk, a hit and a passed ball by Ram catcher Jim Carroll. The only earned run came in the eighth inning on a hit, two infield ground balls and a wild pitch by Pearce.

The Rams blew a chance for an early lead when in the second inning George Johnson singled to center field and Carroll followed by getting on base by virtue of an error by the Mustang shortstop.

However, in the third inning the Rams broke the ice on a single by Pearce, a sacrifice by George Taufer and a long double by Lou Bevilacqua.

Losing by one run going into the sixth frame Don Kunkle and Dennis Russell combined with a walk and a triple, respectively, to tie the score. Then in the eighth inning Carroll walked, Norris and Pearce came up with back to back singles and Don Meroff doubled home the winning runs to ice the victory.

In the second game Coach Lee Eisan sent knuckle ball artist Kunkle to the mound as the starting pitcher. He got by the first inning but was touched for one run in the second frame.

Everything exploded in the third inning, however, as Stockton sent 13 men to the plate while gathering eight runs off of the combined hurling efforts of Kunkle and reliever Meroff. In getting the eight runs the Mustangs capitalized on five hits, three walks and two Ram errors.

Kunkle left the game with the bags loaded and nobody out in the third inning after five runs had scored. Meroff came in from third base to relieve Kunkle but his offerings didn't meet with any better reception.

After the third inning Eisan took all of his regulars out of the lineup and gave his rookies a chance to show what they could do. In the seven inning game the horsehiders could come up with only one run.

Golfers Overrun Mustangs 24-6 In Big 8 Opener

In its first league outing of the 1962 Big Eight season, the college golf team defeated the Mustangs of Stockton College by a one-sided 24-6 score March 16.

Playing on their home course at Harding Park, Coach Grover Klemmer's charges turned in an impressive win while setting notice that they are a team to contend with this season.

Low scorers for the college were Dave Egan with a 76, Dennis Drucker and Art Berliner with 78's, Bruce Hubley with an 82 and George Benkie with an 87.

While not playing for match score, John Steddin played along and shot a sizzling 75. Klemmer reported that Steddin is a man to watch for when he dons the college colors at the next outing.

Klemmer revealed that the constant intersquad rivalry kept the team on its toes and was the main reason for its sharp play.

In a nonconference practice match played on March 20 at Peacock Gap, the Klemmermen tied College of Marin 7½-7½. Bringing a mixed squad of varsity and junior varsity to play, Klemmer hoped to give his younger players needed experience.

Scores for the Ram squad were Egan 75, Benkie 78, Jim Roman 80, Bob Minst 92 and Drucker shot a disappointing 84.

Fencers Upset Air Force; Take Foil Division Title

Rated underdogs at the start of competition, the Ram fencing team walked away with top foil division honors in the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Conference championships last week at Los Angeles Valley College.

Eleven other West Coast colleges also competed in the eight-hour tournament which saw the Air Force Academy, winner of this foil championship 29 consecutive times, eliminated from a final spot in the top three.

Bill Lindo and Bob Lawrence each took a place in the overall competition, while Harry Jorgenson and Stuart Funke placed as alternates.

When the final tally was in Lindo had taken third place while Jorgenson missed second place by only one touch.

In the foil competition, California Polytechnic College placed second, while the squad from San Francisco State College followed in third.

The Air Force team neglected even to bring the trophy with them on their trip from Denver. Thus when the Rams did take first place the trophy had to be flown out by jet to the site of the competition.

Improved Swim Squad Faces T-Birds Friday

Slowly but steadily coming into its own, the swimming team will meet Oakland City College Friday at Oakland and Monday will face Sacramento City College on the Panther campus.

The mermen lost their second league meet against Stockton City College on March 16 on the Stockton campus, 32-62.

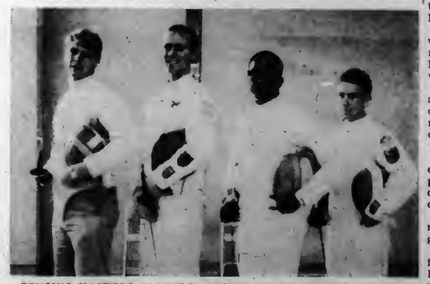
However, Coach Roy Burkhead was pleased with Chuck Greninger, who did his best time in the 220 free style event, taking a first place spot and copping a second place in the 440 free style in the meet.

Showing vast improvement, Rollin Randall took a close second in the diving competition.

13 Colleges Vie For Fencing Title Here

By Francine Dubonnet

Approximately 150 students will be participating in the Intercollegiate Interscholastic Fencing Association meet to be held from 9 am. to 7 p.m. this Saturday in the college's men's gymnasium, Lene Johnson, fencing instructor, announced yesterday.



At this 10-hour fencing meet, a total of 13 two-year and four-year colleges and universities will be represented. All teams will compete in round robin events.

Associated Students wishing to host, score or work in another activity concerning this event may sign up in Mrs. Johnson's office in the women's gymnasium.

The first place trophy is currently held by San Francisco State College.

In 20 matches, the college's fencing teams were defeated only twice by Modesto Junior College on March 16. The teams also won eight out of nine bouts.

Members of the "A" team were Stuart Funke, Harry Jorgenson, Bob Lawrence and Bill Lindo, while team "B" was composed of Pok Pan, Yoshia Takouchi and Frank Wong, captain.

FENCING MASTERS who will be competing in the Intercollegiate Interscholastic Fencing Association meet to be held this Saturday are (left to right) Bob Lawrence, Harry Jorgensen, Bill Lindo and Stuart Funke. All are members of the "A" team here.

Directing and officiating at this competition were Mrs. Johnson and her husband, who attended the matches as sponsors.

Sportsmanship Is What Counts was the motto of a March 17 Santa Rosa Junior College basketball sports day, during which the Recreation Association women's basketball team lost in a game with San Jose City College.

At this competition a special demonstration game by the Chico State College and Humboldt College teams was put on with rules similar to men's basketball.

On Monday, April 2, the Badminton Club will compete with Mission High School there.

Archers interested in contending with the RA's archery team on Saturday, April 28, at Contra Costa College are invited to sign up in the women's gymnasium.

Tentative plans are being made for a round robin volleyball tournament of eight teams in April. This sports night is to "be one of the highlights of the RA's spring 1962 semester," Frances Galloway, RA advisor, stated.

"Volleyball becomes one of the competitive sports in the 1964 Olympic games at Japan because of its increasing interest," Miss Galloway commented.

Also planning a big meet this semester is Mella Furgis' folk dancing group.

Last Friday the fencing team left for competition at Los Angeles Valley College and on Saturday the badminton and bowling teams, with Elizabeth Wirth as sponsor, ventured to Napa Junior College for their sports night.

RAMBLINGS

Fans Migrate With Seals To Cow Palace

By Jerry Littrell

IN THE Golden City of San Francisco old sentiments never die; they just reappear in another form.

As evidence of this fact one need look no further than the grandeur of the building south of San Francisco known as the International Livestock Exhibition Building — better known to the average Franciscan as the Cow Palace.

Within the confines of these walls is housed a minor league team known as the Seals. The name itself is a throwback to another era when another minor league squad haunted the San Francisco area, the baseball Seals of the Pacific Coast League.

When the Seals (baseball) were romping over the green at the now non-existent Seals Stadium the hearts of the fans were with them. When they finally departed from the scene, many fond memories went with them.

When Coley Hall organized the ice hockey team last year nostalgia prevailed, and old-timers, along with younger enthusiasts, got their way and the "Hard-Water Polo" boys were named Seals.

No one gave these players much of a chance with the Bay Area fans because, since the departure of the Seals (baseball), big time major league players had come to this area in the person of the San Francisco Giants.

However, a surprising 5000 fans have journeyed to the Cow arena during the past season to watch this fast moving, action-packed game. They have gone home satisfied and anxious to return again.

The Seals (ice hockey) have provided thrills galore for their fans, while the only thing the Giants gave their fans were chills, and that from the wind, not from their inspirational plays.

Also, the Seals are battling for a third spot finish. This is just about the same level where the Giants seem to be content to stay.

When the facts are all boiled down, it seems that the "minor league" ice hockey Seals are providing more action and enjoyment for their fans than the "major league" Giants are to their followers.

As anyone who has seen a hockey game can tell, the only real difference between the two is that the action is supplied by the ice men—the San Francisco Seals — minor league in ratings but major league in entertainment.

Near Sell-Out Greets Opening Of Time Limit

Time Limit played to a near sell-out crowd at its opening last Friday in the arts building theater. This is the third full scale performance in the new theater, which opened in April of 1960 but the first to attract a maximum audience.

The performance was received enthusiastically by the audience, who broke into the performance on numerous occasions to applaud individual efforts.

To make Time Limit more convenient to students of the college, Director Michael Griffin has scheduled the play to be shown during the double College Hour Friday.

The show will be repeated Friday and Saturday evenings this weekend, and tickets may be purchased for $1 at the student bank in Smith Hall or at the theater box office. Associated Student cardholders are admitted without charge.

Some of the audience arrived at the theater in formal or semiformal attire and Phyllis Webb, president of Hightees and official hostess for the affair, presented the wives of numerous guests with corsages.

During intermission groups gathered in the lobby decorated with a myriad of flowers to see a photography display of the show and the celebrated Diego Rivera mural. Refreshments were served at this time.

Also on display in the lobby was Mayor George Christopher's statement encouraging public support of what he considers a commendable project.

One highlight of the evening came from Governor Edmund Brown in the form of a congratulatory message in which he said that he hoped to attend the April 6 performance.

Throngs of friends and well-wishers crowded the backstage area after the performance to congratulate Griffin and his actors.—By A.M.P.

AMS Words-Of-Wisdom Box Welcomes Student Suggestions

Although admittedly skeptical about the project at first, Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss professed optimism after the first day's contributions to the AMS suggestion box.

Cherniss stated he was "very surprised" at the quality of the suggestions. And that he was gratified to note there were not too many of the usual "wise comments about burning down the building and the like."

After two semesters of neglect, the suggestion box has been re-covered and tagged "words of wisdom." It is presently back in its traditional spot in Smith Hall near the silver pole.

"It's a good opportunity for those students to express themselves where they might not appear before the Student Council because of a lack of time or inclination," Cherniss explained.

In the dozen recommendations received after the resurrection of the idea were varied comments concerning present conditions and what might be attempted to improve them.

Six suggestions dealt directly with physical improvement of the campus. Among these were proposals to place benches in more convenient locations, and the paving of the hill near the arts building to facilitate more parking.

Other advice offered was concerned with college spirit and pride. One comment specifically mentioned the lack of student pride at the college. "Everyone views the college in a negative sense," the anonymous student stated.

Another recommendation was to place vending machines in the arts building similar to those in Smith Hall.

AMS officers—Cherniss, John Theilan, vice president; Jim Fuller, secretary, and Mike Milano, treasurer—all urged any student to offer any idea that might help the college.

Other activities planned for the semester will be a smoker and sports night. Exact dates for these events have not been chosen as yet.

This year's traditional sports night has an additional bonus of the volleyball championship game from the newly formed intramural volleyball league.

In addition to this will be the usual intramural basketball championship game and the boxing finals.

The plans for the smoker include a sports movie and a guest speaker.

All Can Vote In First Open AS Elections Here

By Bob O'Lear

Open elections for Associated Student officers will be held on campus May 23 and 24, Rich Aguilar, elections commissioner, announced at last week's Student Council meeting.

In open elections, all registered students will be eligible to vote. In all previous votes only those students holding Associated Student cards had the privilege of casting ballots.

"This will be the first time open elections have been held at the college," Aguilar stated. "It is hoped this will increase student participation in elections."

Joining a growing list of notable achievements by the college this year, the fencing team was cited by Student Council for having won the Western Intercollegiate fencing championships recently.

Other action included the passage Thursday of the Men's Glee Club budget.

Salk Shots Mandatory For Fall Registrants

A state law enforcing a polio immunization requirement must be met by all students wishing to attend classes here next semester.

Students will need a copy of the blue-green Poliomyelitis Immunization Requirement form. The form, Donald Marcus of the counseling department said, must be filled out according to its printed directions.

This and the student's fall program blank should then be submitted to S-190.

Official Weekly Publication of The Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

The Guardsman

VOLUME 54 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1962 NUMBER 6

IFC Blood Drive Begins Tomorrow

INDICATING A MESSAGE with better motives than spelling, English instructor Terry Kilgerald urges campus-wide participation. Actually, the gentleman's name is Kilpatrick, but last week The Guardsman inadvertently misnamed criminology head Fred Fitzgerald as Fitzpatrick and now hopes this will even things up. — Guardsman photo by Richard Michaels.

College Aims For 750 Pint Record In Two-Day Effort

By Kevin Curtis

With seven short words encompassing its purpose, the annual college blood drive will be held tomorrow and Friday, according to Ralph Hillsman, dean of men.

The words are, "Give a little, to get a lot."

In a special memo to the students, Hillsman stated, "Past successes have been due to the co-operation and participation given by the students. We hope that the success of this year's drive will again be assured by your continued support."

Those wishing to donate a pint of blood should go to C-249 between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. on either day. The blood mobile unit from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank will be set up there.

Prospective donors under 21 are reminded that they must secure their parent's permission on a consent blank available in Hillsman's office.

A rally will take place during Friday's double College Hour at the men's gymnasium instead of the courtyard as previously planned. Providing the entertainment will be comedian Stagg McMann, Turk Murphy's Dixieland Band and the Apollos.

The Inter-Fraternity Council hopes to reach its goal of 750 pints during the drive. Last year, under Tau Chi Sigma's sponsorship, approximately 500 pints were donated. This was the record west of Denver for organizational donations.

To the campus group, who collectively gives the most blood, the IFC will award a trophy. Last year Zeta Chi and Block SF shared top honors with a total of 13 pints. Phi Beta Rho was next with 12 pints.

Those eligible to donate are students, faculty members and civil service employees of the college. In addition, members of the Alumni Association may donate.

For the prospective donor, Hillsman primarily advised a good night's sleep. Also, one should have a good breakfast or lunch, but avoid fatty foods. Refreshments will be served after the donation.

During the coming year, a donor may make a withdrawal from the college blood bank for either of two purposes. First, he may draw an unlimited amount for a member of his immediate family or second, a maximum of eight pints for any person of of budget activities for the semester.

COMEDIAN STAGG McMANN, who will entertain at the campus rally highlighting this year's IFC blood drive.

10 O'CLOCK CLASSES KILLED

Ten o'clock classes will not meet Friday, the day of this semester's first double College Hour and the final day of the 1962 Inter-Fraternity Council sponsored blood drive, Ralph Hillsman, dean of men here, said today.

The double College Hour will begin at the usual College Hour time, 9 a.m., and continue until 11:30 a.m., at which time 11 o'clock classes will begin.

Campus clubs will meet if they choose during College Hours.

A second double College Hour for commencement awards will be held on May 25.

Geologist Traces New SF Quake Fault Underneath The Campus

A government scientist disclosed last week that the college has a fault—directly underneath it.

The fault, which is a geological one, was discovered by Manuel G. Bonilla of the United States Geological Survey, Menlo Park. It is reportedly the first major fault that has been found in San Francisco in this century.

Named the City College Of San Francisco fault, it is first detected in the bay, passes just north of the Cow Palace and south of Candlestick Park, then continues to the northwest, running directly under the campus.

It then heads out under the sand dunes of the Sunset and Richmond districts to fade into the Pacific ocean.

As much as a half-mile wide in places, the fault is known to be at least four and one-half miles long, although Bonilla believes it to be much longer. It is not, however, as wide as its two brothers, the San Andreas and Hayward faults.

Bonilla explained that being on top of the fault does not necessarily mean that the college would be in any particular danger during an earthquake. Not any more than it would ordinarily be, that is.

An earthquake would sound worse because the shifting rocks would be directly below the college, but a spot at a far distant point could be affected even more so than the college would.

However, if a fissure were to develop, the college might find itself directly over it.

"It is not known whether the fault is active," Bonilla stated, "but there is some evidence that may indicate recent activity."

The San Andreas fault, whose unsettling destroyed much of San Francisco in 1906, crosses Marin County and just touches the southwestern tip of San Francisco on an eastward swing. The Hayward fault runs roughly parallel to it in the East Bay.

Several years ago Bonilla and two other geologists were assigned by the survey to make a complete geological inventory of the city.

Last year Bonilla, while doing some research in the San Bruno mountains, came upon different kinds of sandstone, indicating there had been rock shearing underground.

Experiments with 51 types of rocks in the survey's Menlo Park laboratory confirmed his suspicions. — By R.D.H.

Scientists Agree: 'Don't Worry . . . Fault No Threat'

"Don't worry" seems to be the general consensus of two geologists and a college administrator here, in view of the recent announcement that an earthquake fault runs directly below the campus.

Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of education here, stated, "If this is the only fault the college has, we needn't worry." The Board of Education stipulates that all educational facilities must be earthquake proof, and the college is no exception, he said.

Chester Crowell and George Baffico, both geology instructors here, commented that geologists have known about the fault for quite some time, but not until last year was positive proof acquired.

Crowell explained, "You can't go 100 yards without finding a fault in the formation around San Francisco."

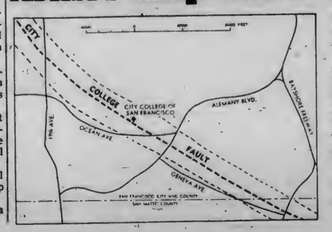
As to what caused the fault, Baffico offered this explanation. The San Andreas and the Hayward faults are constantly moving, and this movement causes stress and strain in the area between the two. Thus minor faults develop.



Crowell stated that the San Andreas, one of the most active faults in the world, moves about two inches a year. He noted that at one time a part of Southern California was down in Mexico, and that the movement of the San Andreas has brought it up to its present position.

What would happen if there were an earthquake because of this fault?

Both Crowell and Baffico stated that it would probably not affect the college as much as an earthquake originating from another fault.

Anderson stated that the safest place to be during an earthquake is in the building. "I just wish it was our only fault," he said.

Artist's Map Shows Path Of Our Fault

RUNNING GENERALLY TO THE NORTHWEST, the newly discovered fault heads in from the bay between Cow Palace and Candlestick Park and passes directly under the college.

The fault, which is a slippage of the geological strata, eludes geologists somewhere after passing under the sand dunes of the Sunset and Richmond districts heading toward the Pacific. The center broken line in the drawing at left bisects the zone of sheared rock which is "a few thousand feet wide." About four and a half miles long on the surface, the City College of San Francisco fault parallels roughly the famous San Andreas fault which caused the devastating earthquake and fire of 1906.

Although the flaw under the college is not known to be active, it is said to show signs of recent disturbances.

Despite these indications, however, the danger to those on campus is considered to be of little consequence.

—Drawing courtesy of The San Francisco Chronicle.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 54, No. 6 | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1962 | Page 2

New Earthquake Line—It's Our FAULT, But It's Not OUR Fault

SINCE the college name was changed from San Francisco Junior College to City College of San Francisco on February 12, 1948, the campaign to get the daily papers to use the latter in its correct form has been constantly waged.

In recent semesters the athletic department has worked overtime acquiring championships and recognition and keeping the name of the college in the news.

Last spring the track team earned the conference championship. During the fall semester the soccer aggregate went undefeated in a league of four-year colleges, and the second place football squad won a postseason bowl game against Monterey.

The basketballers went to the top in bringing home the state championship trophy last month, while the fencers surprised everyone, particularly the Air Force Academy, from whose team they won a Western Conference division title.

In some newspapers these teams were referred to as being from San Francisco City College, but later, as the name came up more often, they were designated correctly.

But the final event which will immortalize the correct title of the college was the discovery last week of a major earthquake fault which bisects the campus.

It was denominated City College of San Francisco fault.

The import of this can be known when it is realized that long after the buildings of San Francisco may have crumbled (through age or other reasons) the City College of San Francisco fault will still be listed on geology maps.

Although the danger is said to be no greater on top of the fault than anywhere else in the vicinity, many here may well hope that a good education is a good foundation.

For besides its attributes, the college has its faults.

The Spectator

Griffin Hits Jackpot With Time Limit

By Anna Papagni

THE COLLEGE presentation Time Limit is as good or better a production as anyone is likely to see in the area now on any level from San Francisco State to the Actor's Workshop to the Curran.

Masterfully directed and movingly portrayed, it is well worth the trip from home to the outer reaches of Ocean and Phelan.

First of all, Michael Griffin, who heads the drama department, hit the jackpot when he chose to produce Time Limit. The plays tells the absorbing Korean War story of 18 American soldiers in a Communist prison camp and how they give way under the unbearable pressure of constant suffering.

After the war a home-side army judge reviews their case, which involves an act of treason on the part of one of the men, a Major Cargill. As Cargill's story unfolds before the zealous judge, the audience receives an insight into the nature of justice, courage and personal integrity.

Communism, Korea and brain washing are of immediate concern today but rather than exposing "the system" as Advise And Consent does now downtown at the Curran, this play focuses on the individual and the problems he must face because of "the system"; hence, a more personal, powerful play.

John Morrison portrays Major Cargill and no one could possibly want a more sincere, straightforward performance. From start to finish his characterization never once wavered in effectiveness.

Vincent Cobb as the judge was perhaps even more impressive but less consistent. His technique in handling lines struck a false note now and again.

The next laurel—for Fred Fischer who delighted the audience with his interpretation of the insensitive but well-meaning character, Sergeant Baker. Although occasionally sentimental, Zorair Roubinian was convincing as the guilt-ridden Lieutenant Miller.

Sometimes, in the theater, an actor with a comparatively small part will do such a fine job that the attention he receives is quite out of proportion to the importance of his role. This happens in Time Limit to Julianne Jarrett.

She appears in one scene for a short time as Mrs. Cargill, yet her appearance is tremendously memorable as she attempts to probe and explain her husband's actions to the judge.

Randolf Jones was somewhat disappointing in his portrayal of General Connors. In his efforts to be a general, he forgot to be a man; consequently, the general comes through as nothing more than a stereotype.

However, Jones does occasionally break the pattern but not nearly often enough. When he does, the results are rewarding.

Griffin's set is nothing short of terrific. Almost the whole show takes place in the judge advocate's office, which is common enough right down to the gigantic map of Asia that stretches across the office wall at the back of the stage.

However, as prisoners being questioned reecount their experiences at prison camp, the office lights go out, and we see the camp through the map which becomes transparent since it is a scrim curtain.

The prisoner of war scenes were frighteningly effective, and Ralph Bonacker, like Miss Jarrett, handled his small role with stunning realism.

Needless to say, the production more than justifies the community interest that has greeted it.

SPECIAL PERFORMANCE

Time Limit will be shown during the double College Hour Friday. AS cardholders will be admitted without charge.

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 41.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGAVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
News Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Mutter

Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kligerman, Anna Papagni.

Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelden, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson, Harry Cordellos, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Walter Rice, John Silva.

Cub Reporters: Robin Beck, John Gilman, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Thomas Renshaw, Mike Zolinsky.

Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bergagliotti, Gerald Belck, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Chris Utter.

Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

Campus PanoRAMa

What Is Your Pet Peeve About College Students?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordellos

Naomi Rattner, English instructor:

A student's lack of preparation bothers me quite a bit, and I don't like to have a student in my class who seems to be uninterested in the work. When a student comes into my class looking for a book he left in the previous class, I really don't appreciate it.

NAOMI RATTNER

"I don't like to have a student in my class who seems to be uninterested in the work."

Thomas Dutcher, political science:

There is nothing about the students that really bothers me. I don't, however, like a student to miss a lecture and then confront me during the next lecture to ask if he has missed anything. I try to remember back to when I was in college —and all of the things I did.

Lucille Mason, business:

Probably many of my students could describe my pet peeves much better than I can. Sometimes a student will make no attempt to learn or understand. At times students want me to do their thinking for them. This is the exception, however, and not the rule; so I am not upset.

Earl Johnson, custodian:

At times I think the students are a little too noisy when others are trying to study. They are usually the noisiest in the Shack, because they don't realize that some people are trying to study. As far as keeping the campus clean goes they are fine, shy to ask a question bothers me most of all. A student who won't ask a question to clarify a point is only hurting himself. I would personally prefer that a student stop me in the middle of my lecture and ask a question if it is going to help him to learn.

Joe Thorn, English:

There isn't much that bothers me. Rarely do I come across a student who takes his efforts in college in a half-hearted manner. The students are, by and large, pretty mature. I don't have what you would call a pet peeve.

Chester Crowell, geology:

I don't think anything the students do bothers me. I've been around for quite some time, and I am used to everything. I know there are some instructors who like everything about teaching—except the students. Personally, I think the students are great; otherwise I wouldn't teach.

Eleanor Blinn, library staff:

My pet peeve has already been solved—the loss of books from the library. Now the thing that bothers me is the noise in the lobby in front of the library. While the students are in the library they are great, but as soon as those doors open, the noise blasts in.

Lee Dolson, political science:

A student who is too

Yes, Virginia, There IS A Twist (Despite Your Ban)

In Virginia it is declared obscene and banned, in New York a leading physician warns it can easily kindle hip and shoulder separations and, in San Francisco 16,000 bug-eyed teenagers go wild at its presence.

All these are products of the nation's latest dance craze—the twist.

From the Peppermint Lounge to American Bandstand people of all sizes and shapes, of all ages and social circles, have danced to the jungle-like gyrations.

Chubby Checker, a rock-n-roll artist, first recorded the twist two years ago. Not since the Charleston of the 1920's has an American dance received as much publicity.

Band leaders have claimed the music is difficult to play, modern dance instructors have said the dance has no artistic form and experts in the psychology field have remarked that it is an outlet for frustrations.

Galen Marshall, music instructor here, said he had only heard the twist music a few times but received the impression that "it is a strong and hard beat."

"It's easy to play, but I don't think it's a new beat. There isn't much new in music," Marshall emphasized. "We certainly have no intention of teaching it here."

Helen Huffman, counselor and psychology instructor, was of the firm belief that the twist is good for self-expression.

"It's another step in a chain of today's ballroom dancing. Of course, there is more rhythm, movement and expression, which is good.

"Because the partners are not touching during the dance there is more opportunity for a person to express himself than before. It's a wonderful method of releasing energy and socializing at the same time," she added.

Although the twist is a variation of rock-n-roll, it is the first time the older generations have participated.

"It's a fad older people are able to do. Much of the rock-n-roll was too physically vigorous. This newer form of dancing has now been around long enough to become respectable. Jazz wasn't accepted by the majority when it began," Mrs. Huffman stated.

"The twist will probably last as long as most fads do—two to three years."

From Lene Johnson of the modern dancing department comes the prediction that when today's teenagers grow up they'll mention the twist to their children just as the Charleston is mentioned today.

"It's only a new dance, but people have been swinging their hips for a long time. And, of course, there is more concentrated effort below the waist.

"It's another style and it has its own merit, but it won't be around any longer than the Charleston."

Like most vogues, the twist is slowly being replaced by the fly, the pony and the bristole stomp. The latest, mashed potatoes, prompted one observer to shake his head and with irony say, "Good gravy!"

Monster Moves Floral Center

Another concrete monster is about to be built in San Francisco, and because of it a department's present location here is doomed.

Although at one time there was some public protest throughout the city concerning the building of more freeways, the planners have not been slanted in their opinions—yet. The newest thoroughfare is scheduled to cut through the eastern section of the campus.

In its way is the present horticulture center.

However, the men's and women's gymnasiums, adjacent to the center, will remain stationary.

Speculation over this new freeway had been steadily increasing for the past two years, and the bulldozers working on the horticulture site now are proof that intuition is turning into reality.

Where flowers now bloom and plants grow, automobiles will shortly be speeding along at breakneck speeds.

Actually, the majority of the floral displays in and around the college's horticulture department are maintained by the San Francisco Park and Recreation Division. A new home is planned for those gardens in McLaren Park.

It was in 1949 that a beautification campaign was undertaken by the center. A red brick patio and a four-level terrace, complete with a sprinkler system, were constructed.

Plans to counteract the freeway interruption call for the erection of a new building which will house both the horticulture and floristry departments. President Louis G. Conlan recently commented that the program should have a higher enrollment.

No one at the college, especially those directly connected with the horticulture center, is happy to see the department's present site demolished, but most seem to contend that progress has taken the upper hand again.

Once the thoroughfare is completed (no date has been announced), those who drive to the college are expected to find easier access to "Hill 20" by way of San Jose avenue.

Shots At RAMdom

By Dave Kleinberg

THE ENGLISH 1B student, who a few weeks ago thought Shakespeare's Henry IV was a golf story, this week started to read Hamlet.

This time his reaction was: "It's okay, but there are so many trite expressions." He proceeded to rattle off a number of expressions from Hamlet which he claims Shakespeare stole from others.

"I've been hearing these all my life," he said. "Neither a borrower nor lender be." "Something is rotten in the state of Denmark." "To be or not to be—that is the question." "Let your haste command your duty." "Give every man thine ear but few thy voice."

We'd hate to see this kid's grade.

• • •

A FEW WEEKS AGO this column had an item that the Shack, located behind Cloud Hall, would prosper despite the fact that after one year there is not a sign to indicate its location.

We wish to report: 1) The Shack has prospered. 2) A sign, approximately three by six feet, has gone up.

This is POWER OF THE PRESS in action. Any of the world's problems could be solved by the press, although many claim the opposite.

Why, Napoleon once said four hostile newspapers are more to be feared than a thousand bayonets.

• • •

MOST STUDENTS who have parked illegally around the campus know in lost dollars that the Campus Police are anything but lazy.

At least one student disagrees.

Two or three times a week the student has parked in the far northwest corner of the reservoir—and we haven't seen any blues approaching with pen and paper.

• • •

AS IF THE WORLD already doesn't have enough problems, the custodial staff reports someone has acquired a key that fits all rooms in Science Hall.

So far the custodians admit: nothing borrowed, nothing gained—in the way of clues.

Prowlers On Campus?—Not Ever On Sunday

Sunday is normally a quiet day around the campus, and to make certain it remains that way, a detective prowls the grounds.

Main purpose of his visit here is to make sure that no one is catching up on studying in a normally closed library or trying to latch onto a test in one of his courses by rummaging through an instructor's files.

However, it is conceivable that Michael Griffin and his thespian crew may be here rehearsing for an upcoming production, or that athletes may be practicing for future competition.

As the college regulations state, no person is allowed on campus during weekends unless he is affiliated with some organized and sponsored activity.

As long as the college has been in existence no classes have met Sundays and the hope is to continue that practice.

Actually, in the eyes of the detective, students aren't expected to be the trespassers. The officer usually contends that after a normal five-day week here, students would rather keep as far away from the campus as possible on weekends.

It is the other 800,000 or so citizens of San Francisco who present the problems.

Campus Newsnotes

Fraternities And Sororities Start Pledging Monday

Fraternity and sorority pledging will start next week, Bob Turnbow, Inter-Fraternity Council president, and Jeri Sciutto, Inter-Sorority Council president, stated today. Fraternities have five pledge days, while sororities have only three pledge days, April 9, 11 and 13.

Starting at 7:30 a.m., sorority pledges will sing in Smith Hall on the three pledge days. On these days fraternity pledges will meet at the fountain section to respond to orders by members of their respective fraternities.

The sorority pledges will be dressed in the following outfits: Phi Beta Rho, middy and dark skirt; Theta Tau, white blouse and red skirt; Delta Psi, white blouse and green skirt; Kappa Phi, white blouse and black skirt; Gamma Kappa Beta, white blouse and lavendar check jumper, and Delta Sigma Tau, white blouse and turquoise skirt.

White shirts and pledge hats will identify fraternity pledges.

FORUM DEADLINE

Students wishing to submit manuscripts for publication in this spring's Forum have two weeks to meet the Wednesday, April 18, deadline, Catherine Connolly, faculty adviser to the college's literary magazine, announced recently.

She added that contributions can be in any literary form; short stories, short one-act plays, essays limited to 1500 words, criticisms, articles of current interest and poetry are a few examples.

Manuscripts must be typed and double-spaced on standard typewriter paper and may be submitted to C-33 in a or to any member of the Forum staff.

UGLY MAN CONTEST

Alpha Phi Omega fraternity will hold its annual Ugly Man On Campus contest during the week of April 23-27 inclusive, according to a bulletin released last week by the fraternity.

The contest is opened to all men students who are currently enrolled at the college.

Contestants are requested to submit two 5 by 7 inch pictures of themselves to the Associated Student office, S-134. On Friday, April 27, the contest will conclude with a dance at Smith Hall where the winner will be declared and prizes awarded.

Clubs or organizations sponsoring the winning contestant will also receive a trophy.

Proceeds from this penny-a-vote contest will go toward the Associated Student activities scholarship.

HORTICULTURE FUND

Donated to the horticulture department, the Vic Hotton Memorial fund will be used for maintenance of permanent equipment by the Master Florist Association, Maryhope Jacks, floristry instructor here, announced.

The grant was first presented three years ago as a scholarship and is now offered as a fund.

The floristry department recently held its fourth annual open house.

First place winner of the horticulture department's perpetual trophy went to the class member produeing the best window display at the open house. Dick Rusyn won for his blue-green Christmas.

He used blue-green garlands, green trees, white styrafoam with speckles of green and blue color, white carnations and blue bells in his display.

Joanne Taylor, second place winner, created a dispsiay called Tahitian Lanai. She constructed a bamboo hut against a jungle background of tree ferns, tribal gods and arrangement of anthurium.

Art Dagemjian, third place winner, created a formal Italian garden.

FLORISTRY DEMONSTRATION

Retail floristry students have initiated the project of demonstrating floral arranging to local high school economics classes.

The demonstrations serve the purpose of acquainting high school students with flowers and sparking interest in the florist business, while providing helpful experience for floristry students.

DROP-A-CLASS

Today is the last day to drop a class. After securing drop forms from their counselor, students then present them to the registrar's office, where they will receive another form which will permit resale of books to the bookstore.

Associated Women Students Present Shower Of Fashions Here Tomorrow

MEMBERS of the Associated Women Students, preparing for the coming fashion show and tea tomorrow, are (left to right) Diana Moore, corresponding secretary; Jacquelyn Rommel, president; Paulette Waiti, vice president, and Maxine Hickman, recording secretary.
—Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

14 Will Model At Smith Hall Show And Tea

Fourteen women students here will model the newest fashions from the City of Paris at the Associated Women Student semi-annual fashion show and tea from 3 to 5 p.m. tomorrow in Smith Hall, according to Jackie Rommel, AWS president.

With Shower Of Fashion as the theme, the program will include in addition to the fashions and refreshments, entertainment under the direction of Wendy Dickson. Entertaining will be soloists, Sharon Karp, Verdi Byrd and Paul Waiti.

A highlight of the afternoon will be the presentation of the Inter-Sorority Council scholarship award to the first semester entering woman with the highest gradepoint in the first midterm period. In the last two semesters winners have been from George Washington High School.

Decorations, under the direction of Diane O'Neil, will be influenced by the umbrella and spring flower theme, with flowers donated by Ivan's Flowers, through Bob Perkins.

Models, for whom the chairman is Paulette Waiti, will walk down a ramp from an arch decorated with spring flower arrangements. Special accent of the fashions will be on spring and summer bridal gowns and wedding bouquets, Miss Rommel stated.

Models will include Bonnie Black, Marlene Cortopassi, Miss Dickson, Rosie Fang, Mary Jane Flynn, Kathy Gaffney, Teryle Lewis and Judith McCann.

Also modeling are Diana Moore, Jonell Nash, Barbara Preston, Peggy thom-Wohrden, Judy Tomlinson and Connie Wilson. Alberta Scribner from the City of Paris will be moderator at the fashion show.

"We certainly hope to see all women students at the fashion show and tea because we are planning an extraordinary afternoon of interest to everyone," Miss Rommel emphasized.

In addition to the coeds here, 30 women students from each San Francisco high school have been sent invitations.

As is tradition, sorority pledges will serve the punch and cookies at the conclusion of the fashion show.

Present Photo Series Ends; More Exhibits Indefinite

Although the continuation of photography shows in the Cloud Hall gallery is still in question, Emmett Smith, instructor in charge, has indicated that a new display may replace the current exhibit by Betty Jones, which will close Friday.

Plans for continuing the spring series of photo displays in the faculty gallery are still indefinite following the recent loss of two pictures from the Fred Pardini show.

Smith stated once again that if this area is to continue as a display area, he must be confident that exhibit pictures will not be removed without the permission of the photography department. It is still unknown whether or not Pardini will be able to replace the lost pictures.

Meanwhile, gallery show enthusiasts have been able to see the work of prize-winning photographer, Miss Jones.

Active in a local camera club as well as being a freelance photographer, Miss Jones is also associated with the Recreation and Park Department Photography Center. Her exhibit has so far been undisturbed.

Smith has pointed out that if confidence in the safety of pictures on display can be restored, he will follow the current exhibit with a show featuring Tom Jungman, a former student now operating his own photo illustration studio in New York. The exact date of the beginning of this show, if it is presented, is still not final.

Campus TV To Take Arts Building Tour

With two television monitors situated in the courtyard between Science and Cloud Halls, the radio-TV department will televise a "first" Friday during the double College Hour, Henry Leff, director, revealed today.

Theme of the live production is to be a TV tour of the arts building.

During the course of an hour, Inter-Fraternity Council officers will be interviewed concerning the blood drive. The cameras will also enter the drama department where members of the Time Limit cast will be interviewed regarding their respective roles.

In addition, displays and activities in the ceramics and art departments will be featured.

Televised entertainment is expected to consist of a recital by the A Cappella Choir in the choral room, and a brief performance by the college band in the theater.

Shots of the radio-TV studio, showing parts of its complex operation, are also scheduled, Leff added.

This offering will represent the first time that TV cameras have left the immediate area of the studio to televise activities. Further, this is to be the first time that the special TV line connecting with the courtyard will be put to use.

Lee Meriwether Star On TV Series

Lee Ann Meriwether, a graduate of the college who attained the Miss America crown in 1955, has accepted the featured role on a nationally televised show.

Miss Meriwether will make her debut tomorrow morning on The Clear Horizon, a space-age dramatic series, offered locally each weekday between 10:30 and 11 a.m. on KPIX, Channel 5.

She will appear as Dr. Enid Ross, an Air Force doctor assigned to the NASA space medicine program at Cape Canaveral, Florida.

Television performances aren't anything new to the former Miss America. She was the woman's editor and hostess of the Dave Garroway Today show and has appeared on such popular TV shows as Alcoa Theater, Dragnet, The Millionaire and Leave It To Beaver.

In summer stock, Miss Meriwether held leading roles in Dial M For Murder, Witness For The Prosecution, Mister Roberts, Hatful Of Rain and Tunnel Of Love.

She is expected to return to her home city, San Francisco, next week as a judge in the 1962 Miss San Francisco contest.

Exploration

How Giving A Little Blood Meant Getting A Lot Of Help

Blood, the fluid vital to all animal life, circulates in the principal vascular system carrying nourishment and oxygen to all parts of the body and brings away waste products to be excreted.

Loss of this life process, or any abnormality affecting the fluid, necessitates the almost immediate addition or transfusion of blood.

Because of disease and accidents, situations can arise where a relative or close friend must receive a transfusion, but it also may place him in a precarious financial situation with complications of hospitalization, drugs, X-rays, doctors and the blood itself, a charge ranging from $25 to $35 per pint.

Thus evolved the theme of the fifth annual campus blood drive, "Give a Little, to Get a Lot."

Acting as an insurance policy against emergencies, the donation of one pint of blood entitles the donor to a one-year term with the privilege of withdrawing an unlimited amount of plasma on one occasion for a member of the immediate family, and the opportunity of supplying close friends with a maximum of eight pints.

The importance of this privilege may not impress an individual until he himself has undergone a crisis similar to that experienced by a college employee. This is not to say that a crisis need occur in his life before the average student understands the full impact or has complete appreciation of the college blood donor plan.

A woman who has been employed here for the past three years and a regular donor of blood since 18 years of age, underwent possibly the greatest tragedy and loss in her life, the death of her husband.

Cancer of the blood, leukemia, is a prolonged and painful disease culminating in only one manner.

Although the couple were aware of the malady for some time, the first emergency resulted in immediate hospitalization and a prompt transfusion of blood. Because she had donated to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank through the college blood drive, she withdrew without charge the five pints necessary for her husband.

Within the next few months a second siege occurred, which required continuous transfusions. She had used her own allotment, but through the generosity of friends here at the college who donated during the campaign, they gave her their own allotments, which totaled almost 25 pints.

Naturally this blood didn't save her husband, but it did enable him to live somewhat longer, and it padded the financial burden placed on his wife.

The savings in acquiring blood plasma was over $1000, but as she surmised, "When we needed it most it was available, easing the financial burden of the crisis."

To some people this story means nothing, but to the understanding it is meant to impress, possibly help someday . . .

Give a little, and get a lot.

The Good Ol' Daze—

Social Slob Without A 4-Wheel Gem

By Dave Grieve

TODAY the automobile is an accepted convenience, in some cases a financial showcase or a time-consuming hobby, but all in all it is just the modern family's transportation facility.

The history of the automobile was chronicled by independent companies which produced four-wheeled gems bearing fantastic price tags, exclusively aimed at the upper classes.

Although these coaches were built like tanks, solid as the eventual distaste for prohibition, the real boost to the automobile industry emerged with Ford's Model A, a car the average American could afford.

The United States, a country which boasts more telephones, televisions, radios, washing machines and ulcers, now proclaims that she owns more cars than the rest of the world put together.

Days no longer exist when junior works on his stamp or coin collection. Instead, he dons his greasy levis, grabs a flashlight in one hand, a wrench in the other, and marches down the stairs to his secret project—a cut down, chopped through, souped up hot-rod.

This jewel he displays eagerly to his friends, his cohorts in this destruction process, but only in a financial pinch he bodily drags his parents, who readily advocate the disappearance of this mass of metal and wire, to view the undying progress of his ambitious youth.

"Yeh, Dad," junior says, balancing himself confidently on the fender. "Someday I'm gonah work for General Motors."

Needless to say, dad, with the attitude "anything for my son's future," forks over the "scratch" in his pockets.

Sometimes when junior can't talk the old man into some financial backing he resorts to the not-so-reliable Midnight Auto Supply, a crime movement which adds a few grey hairs to his parents when junior is apprehended by the local gendarmes.

Today, college students are lucky in the fact that a great percentage own or have access to automobiles, which eases the expense of shoe leather on their treks between home and their study.

And especially on a date; if one doesn't have a car he is a social outcast.

This last fact has possibly led to the misunderstanding of many people—George and Martha Clod would rather own a car, pay insurance and gas, than live with a roof over their heads.

But today the modern suburban house is equipped with a two-car garage, usually occupied: the brand new car, baby blue, for housewifey to accomplish her tedious daily chores, and the broken down junk heap for the male hnif, to chauffeur his clients around the cosmopolitan area.

Progress is our most important product. Really?

Men Outnumber Women Two To One As Total Enrollment Hits 7786

Complete enrollment figures released by the registrar's office last week show that 6200 students are registered here in day session, and 1586 students in the evening session, for a total figure of 7786.

The ratio of men to women students is somewhat staggered, according to these figures. There are 4122 men students in the day session and only 2078 women. These figures are even more staggering during the evening when there are only 712 women as opposed to the 874 men who are enrolled in the same session. The ratio here is almost 2 to 1.

The total number of students now attending the college is 499 below last semester's all-time high of 8285. Of this number 921 were disqualified at the end of the semester and only 400 of these students were readmitted this semester.

Because of last semester's overcrowded enrollment, the college had its longest day with a communications lecture at 7:10 a.m.

On The RAMpage, 1961-1962

Superior Coaching Key To Ram Athletic Success

By John Silva

Rams on the rampage has been the theme of the 1961-62 athletic season.

In this vein, Ram gridders opened their 1961-62 season with a smashing 27-0 victory over the Los Angeles Valley College Monarchs. Then, defeated 22-6 by San Mateo, the Rams bounced back to triumph over the Contra Costa Comets 12-0, and were invited to the Lettuce Bowl.

Culminating the season in second place with an 8-2 league mark, the gridders topped Monterey Peninsula College 22-14, in one of the Rams' most exciting games.

Therein the gridmen won the Lettuce Bowl, placed four men on the Big Eight Confereuce teams and enjoyed one of their most triumphant seasons.

Similarly, the soccer squad, after pulverizing Santa Clara 15-1, tackled the University of California Bears and beat them 5-2. After this defeat, Cal's Coach Bob DiGrazia said, "The Rams are undoubtedly one of the best two-year college teams in the country."

DiGrazia was right. Ram booters captured the league title by beating University of San Francisco 2-0.

The soccer champs attained a perfect 6-0 conference record and became the first undefeated, untied soccer team in this college's history.

Meanwhile, the Rams 41-point trackmen sprinted past Sacramento, Modesto, San Mateo, Santa Rosa and Oakland colleges and won the Big Eight Conference cross-country championship on November 10 of that year.

Then Ram baseballers shattered Sacramento's 11-0 record by a 7-0 victory over the previously undefeated Panthers. After that, the horsehiders blasted Santa Rosa in 10 innings by a score of 10-9.

However, handicapped by the loss of two first-string players through scholastic ineligibility, the horsehiders lost their last game of the year to Santa Rosa 14-5, and dropped out of a first division finish.

Nevertheless, 15 baseballers received Block SF awards that year.

The Ram cagers raced onward to an inevitable conference victory by scoring a 72-51 win over Modesto Junior College, a 64-62 victory over the San Mateo Bulldogs and captured the State Junior College championship by defeating Citrus College, 71-56.

And now, the Recreation Association fencing squad has captured first place in the foil division at the Western Intercollegiate fencing competition held this year at Los Angeles Valley College.

The two-day competition also featured teams from 11 other colleges, including University of Southern California, California Polytechnic, University of California at Los Angeles, Air Force Academy, Los Angeles State, San Francisco State, San Diego State, San Fernando State, Pomona, El Camino and East Los Angeles Colleges.

When the final count was in, the local fencers had pulled a complete upset by beating out everyone to take an overall first place with a 22 final score, followed by Cal Poly in second, with SF State and Air Force coming in third.

GROVER KLEMMER splits his time between the football and golf squads and has consistantly coached a winning team in both.

Undoubtedly superior coaching facilitated Ram success during this 1961-62 season. With this idea in view, this reporter asked Coach Lou Vasquez about the requisites of a good coach.

Vasquez said, "Three things: first, knowledge; second, dedication; third, the ability to get the point across."

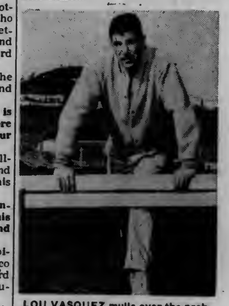
"Getting-the-point-across" in football is Coach Grover Klemmer, who was one of only five men to win letters in three varsity sports at Cal and who set world records in the 440-yard and 400-meter dash.

His football teams have won the Big Eight title in 1946, 1948, 1951 and 1957.

Soccer Coach Roy Diederichsen is a graduate of San Jose State, where he played basketball and soccer four years and baseball one year.

He was also All-Conference fullback in soccer for three seasons and the school's boxing champion in his weight division.

Vasquez, track coach, began his tenure at this college in 1958 when his men won the state championship and set 11 school records.



Vasquez is an alumnus of this college and a graduate of San Francisco State; after that he went to Stanford for a master's degree in physical education.

Lee Eisan, one of the most experienced coaches in the Big Eight Conference, heads the baseball coaching staff here.

Graduating from Cal in 1930, where he starred in football for three years and played on one of the Rose Bowl teams, Eisan first coached at this college when it opened in 1935.

Another Cal graduate, cager Coach Sid Phelan, came here in 1955 from George Washington High School, where in 1952 his 110, 120, 130 and varsity teams won the city championships. And, of course, this year he led his men on to win the state championship.

Rams on the rampage has indeed been the theme of the 1961-62 athletic season.

LOU VASQUEZ mulls over the problems facing his track squad as he hopes to wrap up a conference title for the fourth straight year.

Three Out Of Four

Baseball Defeat Mars Perfect Ram Weekend

Ram squads received a boost when three teams turned in wins in four meets.

Bob Siska ran over a powerful Ryder Getz of Modesto Junior College to lead the Rams' tennis squad to a 6-0 victory over the Pirates last Friday at Modesto. The last match was called on account of darkness and will have to be replayed at a later date.

Led by Lon Brantley and Alex Darnes, the local tracksters defeated Sacramento City College 85-37 last Saturday at a triangle meet held at Berkeley with the Cal Frosh team also participating.

Darnes heaved the discus 164'3½" to take first place and also set a new Cal Frosh meet record. Brantley turned in a 22'3½" broad jump effort to cop another first spot.

Modesto's varsity link squad fell prey to the locals as they were defeated by the golfers 16½-13½ last Friday on the Pirates' home greens.

It was one of the finest team efforts of the season as four of the five players finished in the 70's. Dennis Drucker and Dave Egau tied with 75's while John Steddin shot a 77.

The Ram baseball squad dropped its third straight game, losing to San Mateo, 11-8, Friday. The squad also lost March 27, 9-7.

ROY DIEDERICHSEN has produced a top tennis squad in his tenure here, and he hopes this year will not be an exception.

Siska, Kern Lead Netters Against San Jose Today

Two practice matches and an important league match are on tap for the tennis team this week.

Strong and vastly improved, the Rams will battle San Jose today at the opponents' courts, and Friday will clash with Oakland City College at 2:30 p.m. on the Golden Gate Park courts. Next Tuesday the locals will face California at 2:30 p.m. on the Berkeley campus.

Oakland and this college's team will meet in a match that might determine the conference championship.

According to Coach Roy Diederichsen, the East Bay men have one of the best tennis players in the conference in Tom Edelfsen. Mike Sheridan, Mike Todd, Jim Lee and Les Hankin complete the Oakland team.

The college netters, boasting a strong and well-balanced team, have Bob Siska, John Kern, Rich Anderson, Ed Jilka and Tom Strauss in the singles matches.

In the doubles matches, Siska and Kern rank the stronger, followed by doubles number two, Anderson and Jilka.

Siska competed in the March 24-25 Bay Counties tennis tournament at the Olympic Club, Lakeside.

In the second day of the tournament he faced Tom Brown, former National tennis champion, and lost 6-4, 8-6.

The Rams defeated the Cal Frosh 5-3 last Wednesday and dumped Stockton City College 7-0 last Friday to remain undefeated in conference matches, along with Oakland City College. Siska defeated Mustang Dick Anderson, 6-0, 6-1.

Swimmers Encounter Santa Rosa In Final League Meet Tomorrow

Closing out its season, a spirited and improved Ram swimming team will meet Santa Rosa Junior College tomorrow at the Santa Rosa campus.

"Santa Rosa is not really strong nor competitive in any particular event," Coach Roy Burkhead pointed out.

Hampered by sickness, the college mermen were dunked by the San Mateo Bulldogs 62-31, March 23 on the Peninsula campus.

Bill Love, promising Ram rookie, and John Holm, veteran standby, were nonparticipants because of illness.

Highlights of the meet were the strong showing the locals made in the 220-yard, 440-yard and 100-yard free style events.

Ram Chuck Greninger, who has shown improvement and reliability all year, took a first in the 220 free style event with a 2:25.8 clocking and finished second in the 440 free style competition.

Eli Silver, veteran of last year's team, outswam all the competitors in the 100 free style event to take a first place.

Divotmen Collapse Against Bulldogs

In its second league outing of the 1962 season the college golf team met defeat at the hands of the Bulldogs of College of San Mateo by the score of 25½ to 4½.

Playing an obviously superior team, the Klemmermen fought bravely but could not stem the Bulldog attack. Coach Grover Klemmer pointed out that the score was an indication of the difference between a good team and a great team.

Low shooters for the college were Dennis Drucker 77, John Steddin 79, Dave Egan and Bruce Hubley with 83's and George Benkie, who shot an 85. Low medalist score for the match was Tom Culligan of College of San Mateo with a 70.

Coach Klemmer still considers his team a good one and thinks it can go a long way this year. He stated that this year's San Mateo team is much stronger than last season's state championship squad. He points toward the Mateans to repeat again this year in the state tournament at Bakersfield in late May.

Dallmar To Speak At Block SF Dinner

Howie Dallmar, Stanford basketball coach, will be the guest speaker at the semiannual Block SF Society's awards banquet, Louis Vasquez, sponsor for the group, announced last week.

Monday, June 4, is the date set for the banquet, which honors all spring sports participants. Block letters, trophies and special awards will highlight the evening's festivities.

Members of the basketball team will receive special trophies as tribute to their winning of the league and state championships.

Vasquez also reported that films of the Lettuce Bowl game between the college football team and Monterey will be shown sometime soon to the block club members and their guests. No date has yet been set for the showing of the films.

RAMBLINGS

Baseball Changes, But Quips The Same

By Jerry Littrell

WITH baseball practice season just about over and the regular season slated to start next Tuesday afternoon, another six months of hectic day-by-day routines will be underway.

Each season poses different situations and problems, but throughout the years certain phases of the game reappear with such frequency as to become stereotyped.

Players, fans and officials can be sure of certain things that will happen every season. Each item below can be checked off as the season progresses. These are the 18 situations that are:

Guaranteed to happen every season:

- Someone will accuse Lew Burdette of throwing the spitball.
- A .250 batter will spoil a no-hitter.
- Leo Durocher will be identified as the next manager of a team in a slump.
- Willie Mays will deny he is feuding with Orlando Cepeda.
- Ted Williams, even though retired, will repeat his opinion of Boston baseball writers.
- A successful relief pitcher will want to be used as a starter.
- An old-timer will denounce this generation of players as pampered.
- A team will pick up a .225 hitter because it needs a pinch hitter.
- At least a dozen games will be lost because the pitcher does not know how to bunt.
- At least one player will be fined for not running out an infield grounder.
- During a winning spurt by the Kansas City Athletics there will be stories on how they trimmed the Yankees in deals.
- During a slump by the Athletics there will be a story on how the Yankees trimmed them in deals.
- "I'm happy as long as I am playing," an infielder who has been shifted to the outfield will lie.
- Injuries will decide as many standings of teams as base hits.
- At least one Congressman will denounce organized baseball as a monopoly.
- The manager of a second division team will state, "With a couple of breaks we would be right up there."
- Slumping Latin American players will be denounced for playing winter league ball.
- The Giants will come up with a sensational rookie to help pull them out of their annual season-end slump. The only trouble will be that he will arrive about two weeks too late.

Aside from the few unusual items that might pop up during the season this will be the general run of the longest six months of the year—the six months titled, "The Rise and Fall of the Stoneham Empire."

Trackmen Meet Bulldogs, Stockton In Crucial Friday

In their fourth league outing the college cindermen will compete against top-rated College of San Mateo and Stockton City College Saturday on the San Jose State campus.

San Mateo, winner of the recent Big Eight Relays, has a well rounded array of talent, Ram Coach Louis Vasquez emphasized.

Ralph Lee, 880 specialist; Bob Merlo, shot-putter; Jim Cheatem, sprinter, and Bob Little, high hurdler, are the nucleus of the Mateo attack.

Lee and Merlo hold San Mateo records in their respective events, while Little holds the conference record in the high hurdles.

In its first conference victory, the Rams defeated Contra Costa in a league encounter and dropped Modesto in a practice clash held on March 27 at Modesto, 101-21 and 71-51. The triangle score was San Francisco 77, Modesto 53 and Contra Costa 19.

Alex Darnes threw the discus 164-4 feet for a personal season high, while Esteban Valle turned in his best seasonal time in the 880 with a 1:57.8 clocking.

Despite a solid representation in the shot-put event by Pete Downing and Darnes and a speedy two-mile run by Roger Ritchey, the college tracksters were edged by Oakland City College 65-67, March 24 in their first conference meet.

The team, according to Vasquez, has a definite weakness in certain events, including the high jump competition.

Jim Waterfield, broad jumper and sprinter, is still unavailable to the team. He is nursing a badly sprained ankle.

RA Loses Cage, Bowling And Badminton Contests

San Francisco State College defeated the college 28-14 on March 23 in women's basketball to highlight Recreation Association activities. After the game there was a social get-together.

The RA's badminton and bowling teams were defeated by Napa Junior College on March 24.

The traditional "feud and feed" volleyball sports day to be held here with College of San Mateo are tentatively scheduled this month, Laurine Bergin, women's physical education director, said this week.

The Guardsman
Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 54 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1962 NUMBER 7

Brenda Dennis Vies For Miss SF Title Saturday

Brenda Dennis, a coed here, will be one of eight contenders for the Miss San Francisco title when the finals are held at 8 p.m. this Saturday in the Grand Ballroom of the Jack Tar Hotel.

Before the pageant a judge's reception will be held, at which time the eight finalists will talk and "get to know" the judges, Salvatore A. Lima, executive pageant director, said.

Three main performances will be given at the pageant.

During the first phase the finalists will be introduced on the Grand Ballroom ramp. They will be judged according to their appearance in evening attire.

In the second stage, each woman will give a three-minute performance in her selected field of talent.

Miss Dennis will do a modern dance routine to the song, I've Got You Under My Skin.

The swimming suit presentation will be the third phase of competition.

After these three performances, four of the eight women will be chosen as the finalists.

These four will be asked additional questions, their answers and their personality reactions to determine their final winning positions.

The public is invited and tickets are available for $2.50 each at the Jack Tar Hotel, Lima announced.

Proceeds from the pageant will go toward the $2000 scholarship fund to be awarded to Miss San Francisco.

Awards of clothing, trips and other items will be shared by Miss San Francisco and the runners-up.

The winner will represent San Francisco at the Miss California Pageant in Santa Cruz. The young woman crowned Miss California will receive additional scholarships and will then compete in Atlantic City for the Miss America title.

Acting judges of the contest are Percy Faith, Lee Ann Meriwether and Merla Zellerbach.

Master of ceremonies will be Ken Brown, while guest master of ceremonies will be Jim Lang of radio station KSFO.

Mistress of ceremonies will be Nerice Fugate Moore, proprietor of the House of Charm.

BRENDA DENNIS, City College coed, competes in finals of the Miss San Francisco contest Saturday.—Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman and Gerald Brick.

Open Nominations Replace Parties In College Elections

By Bob O'Lear

Abolition of the two-party system at the college and the establishment of an open convention at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 30, in Smith Hall was announced Thursday by Elections Commissioner Rick Aguilar.

"The nominations convention will be open for all students," Aguilar disclosed.

However, Aguilar emphasized that in order to be nominated, a student must have the sponsorship of an on-campus organization.

"After nominations, the students can band together under a party name for mutual support," Aguilar commented. "But, they are not to use names or initials of old parties," he urged most emphatically.

During discussion of the new system at Student Council, Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss expressed concern for those students who were not members of an organization.

"We should make provisions for these students," Cherniss stated.

Before discussion of elections, the council heard from the drama department concerning reports that members of the theater group had not complied with the 100 per cent AS card membership requirement.

Randy Jones, sophomore, represented the drama department at the council meeting. He reported that those members listed on the program without AS cards are voluntary help.

"They are not connected with drama, as a college function," Jones explained. "The only member of the cast without a card is Bob Brown. He entered the production late, but he will purchase a card Friday."

In other action the council began nominations to fill the vacancy left by Sophomore Council member Andy Shamiych's withdrawal.

At Thursday's meeting, the only nominee was Austin Thompson, who was nominated by Bob Anderson, Sophomore Class president.

"Further nominations will be held Tuesday, and possibly Thursday," Collins added. "We will then vote on the vacant seat Thursday."

Jim Fuller, chairman of the high school public relations committee, listed the members of council who would speak before local high schools.

They are Cherniss and Greg Monk, George Washington; Otto Van Duyn and Fuller, Lincoln; Bob Turnbow and Jackie Rommel, Lowell; Rich Thomas and Marcia Devlin, Mission; Bill May, South San Francisco; Diane Perrine and Miss Murphy, Polytechnic; Laurie Thurlwell and Bob Perkins, Galileo; Dave Otey and John Theilan, Balboa, and Collins, Riordan.

"Our main objective is to interest high school leaders in student government after they reach college," Fuller explained. "By doing this, we hope to interest them in entering City College, also. But that is not our primary purpose."

COO To Sponsor Problems Meet Here April 25

Council of Organizations will attempt to solve 29 campus problems at a convention to be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 25, in Smith Hall, John Hommes, chairman of the problems committee, announced last week.

Hommes stated that this parley is being held to solve campus problems by suggestions from students to various authoritative guests at the convention.

"Members of the problems committee," he said, "have classified each problem under three separate headings. First are those difficulties involving college facilities; second are those relating to student interest; third are student-faculty relations."

Hommes reported that at the convention in Smith Hall there will be introductory remarks from a keynote speaker who will outline the problems to be solved.

"Then the delegates will be dismissed to attend one of three workshops set up to discuss problems outlined by the speaker.

"After that," Hommes continued, "the students at the workshop will be dismissed to reconvene at Smith Hall to give positive solutions to each problem.

"COO committee members are convinced that most of the problems submitted can be resolved," he added.

Margaret thom-Wohrden, head of the speakers committee, said that tentative plans for guests at the convention will include Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men; Fred Cherniss, Associated Men Student president; William Walsh, instructor from College of San Mateo, and Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management here.

Some of the problems to be brought before the guests are as follows:

1. Providing more study space for students.
2. Increasing post-commencement job information gathering facilities.
3. Improving midterm grading procedures.
4. Improving parking facilities.
5. Correcting cafeteria problems.—By J.S.

UMOC, Spring Fever Dance Highlight College Events

Contest Week Begins April 23; Profits Go Toward Scholarships

Proceeds from the annual Ugly Man On Campus Week, slated by Alpha Phi Omega here between April 23 and 27, will provide scholarships for two students active in campus affairs, Bob Labataille, fraternity president, announced today.

The money is derived from votes of pennies students cast in their favorite candidate's container. In the past, UMOC contributions have provided for scholarships ranging from $75 to $100.

Candidates may still apply by obtaining a blank from the Associated Student office, S-134, prior to Friday. Two five by seven pictures of each entrant are required.

Any club, fraternity or sorority may sponsor an ugly man. This is the first semester, however, that sororities have been allowed to sponsor a candidate, Labataille remarked.

A special slapstick rally during College Hour that Friday will conclude the competition, when an auction of eggs, whipped cream, pies and the like will be held at the Redwood Ram.

The highest bidder, Labataille added, will receive the item and be given the opportunity to present his favorite ugly man with the same.

Throughout the week, students may cast their votes in containers placed at the silver pole in Science Hall and in Smith Hall.

The dance, which was originally scheduled to conclude UMOC week activities, has been cancelled, according to Labataille.

Ramporium Stocks Up On Wild Animals

Students who insist that they are constantly seeing pink elephants, black skunks and yellow turtles skipping across their papers are not entirely using their imaginations to bad advantage because, in fact, they are —seeing the animals.

Since the Ramporium started selling animal erasers at 15 cents each the students and faculty have been buying them three at a time, Diek Main, bookstore manager, announced.

Main stated that the animals come in a variety of colors. They are made of a foam type of material and are nontoxic.

Most important, however, they really erase.

Stephen Paul's Band To Play At 'Friday 13' Rowing Club Ball

Spring Fever, theme of the annual dance sponsored by Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity, is scheduled from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight this Friday, April 13, Richard Thompson, president of the fraternity, announced yesterday.

"Superstitious students can be assured that no unlucky incidents will prevail at the dance, although it falls on Friday, the 13th," Thompson promised.

At the couples-only dance, to be held at the San Francisco Rowing Club, music will be provided by Stephen Paul and his band with an accompanying singer.

Bids are being sold by Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity members on campus this week at $2.50 per couple. Bids will also be sold at the door. An Associated Student card will be unnecessary for admittance to the dance.

"If weather permits, there will be outdoor dancing in an adjoining patio," Thompson declared, adding that semiformal dress is the proper attire.

Pledges, fraternities, sororities and AS are invited to attend the dance, which "will be the climax of Hell Week," Thompson stated.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon officers working with Thompson are Mike Nolan, vice president; Dick Bryan, pledge master; Joe Davis, treasurer; Dick D'Orazi, secretary, and Bob Kueich, custodian.

Parents Gather To Form Patrons Group

Because considerable interest has been shown by parents of students here in forming a patrons group, an invitation has been extended to parents and alumni to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, May 3, in A-133.

Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction, stated that during the meeting any questions concerning curriculum, student activities and counselling will be welcomed.

IFC Blood Drive Sets Record For 4th Straight Year

Setting a new record for the fourth consecutive year, the annual blood donation drive climaxed its two-day run last Friday boasting a total of 410 pints, Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, announced.

"It is highly conceivable," Hillsman added, "that the Inter-Fraternity Council will realize its goal of 750 pints during the coming year with such a large donation already."

Though exact figures have not yet been compiled, the unofficial results show that Beta Tau fraternity donated the most pints of blood, repeating its achievement of last year.

"More than 100 prospective donors had to be refused because of fevers or failure to secure their parents' permission," Hillsman stated.

Hillsman wished to thank all the donors for their splendid effort—the IFC for sponsoring the drive, and the professional performers who donated their time for the rally.

Those still wishing to donate may at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

Honor Coed Wins ISC Scholarship Award

The Inter-Sorority Council scholarship award was given to Karen Kriete, who met the stipulation of being the first semester woman student with the highest gradepoint average in the first midterm period.

Presentation was made at the Associated Women Student tea last Thursday.

Miss Kriete will have her name engraved on a perpetual trophy, and will also receive a gift from the ISC.

Miss Kriete averaged a 3.5 in her midterm grades. She aspires to enter a university upon completion of her education here, and eventually hopes to earn a degree in letters and science.

For the third consecutive semester the ISC scholarship award has been won by a George Washington High School graduate—Kathryn Kafafian, fall, and Marina Popoff, spring.

Time Runs Out On Time Limit Engagement Here

Because the theater is booked for several activities this weekend which necessitate the removal of Time Limit sets, the production engagement cannot be extended for additional performances despite numerous requests.

Director Michael Griffin speaks of Time Limit as "the smoothest show" he has ever directed. Contrary to every other play, all was in readiness a day before the opening, which left opening day free from frantic, last-minute activity.

The next production will have difficulties in measuring up to the public interest Time Limit aroused, Griffin stated. Especially gratifying was the interest shown by public officials.

Opening night witnessed the arrival of telegrams from President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy, Governor Edmund G. Brown, the Honorable Andrew Eynan and Eve Arden, stage and screen actress. Miss Arden is a cousin of a member of the cast, Robert Frank.

The cast as well as sizeable audiences seemed to enjoy the show, Griffin said. But each was entertained by different elements. For instance, the audience was not aware that both Chinese Communist characters in the play wore American military uniforms.

Ruth Patterson, business instructor here, offered the use of a uniform that was worn by her husband as a soldier of fortune more than 25 years ago. The blouse was decorated with red arm bands and epaulets, but only the cast was aware of the South American insignia over the pocket.

The other Communist uniform was in reality one designed by the United States Marine Corps, Griffin said.

(Editor's Note: Since the editorial two weeks ago in which The Guardsman wished drama department to "break a leg" many inquiries have been made as to the meaning of the remark. In old theater tradition, it is considered bad luck to be told "good luck," thus the wish became "break a leg."

STRONG EMOTION shown here by Bob Franke was a prime factor in the successful run of Time Limit.—Guardsman photo by Herb Greene.

Student's Theatrical Career Spans Twenty Years

'Blinky' Starred In Bowery Series

By Hugh Wilson

Ed LeRoy, part-time advertising and drama student here, is the same "Eddie" LeRoy who portrayed "Blinky" in the now defunct Bowery Boys series.

LeRoy, who started in pictures at 13, has appeared with Milton Berle, Red Skelton, Errol Flynn and Andy Griffith. He has also had his own television show, and directed a supper club musical.

While attending Los Angeles City College, the 33-year-old LeRoy was named Outstanding Freshman of the Year. As a result of the award he appeared on several television shows, and was tagged by a few critics as the "junior Milton Berle."

This prompted Berle to invite LeRoy to his New York television show, where LeRoy's appearances were so successful that he was signed as a juvenile comedy star at the Tamiment, a summer musical comedy playhouse in Los Angeles.

The Tamiment, which boasts of such alumni as Danny Kaye, Judy Holliday and Imogene Coca, was the big step for LeRoy, for his performances brought him to the attention of his next employer, the United States Army.

LeRoy served an uneventful two years as a private in Korea. After his discharge he joined a USO detachment and appeared before troops in North Africa and the Caribbean. For the work he received a citation of merit from the United States Defense Department.

When asked how past experience in the entertainment field had benefited him in his later career, LeRoy stated, "Experience itself is a learning process; the audience teaches more to the actor than he can ever learn in a classroom situation."

LeRoy's experience led him to directing and producing a supper club musical, Oriental Holiday, which opened at the New Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas. The show ran for 20 weeks, and was taken to the Pigalle theater-restaurant in London, England, where the play had another successful engagement.

Returning from the European tour, LeRoy returned to college for a degree.

Concerning his career as an actor and the struggle for recognition, LeRoy modestly remarked, "I was a lucky amateur. By that I mean I never served an apprenticeship, but was paid immediately for performing, which made me a pro right away. I was only 13 at the time.

"On the whole, however, the acting profession, as in other highly competitive fields, is a constant struggle for success. But the rewards, both in a financial and emotional sense, are great."

LeRoy, who has appeared in many TV programs, once costarred with Andy Griffith in an adaptation of No Time For Sergeants, in which he portrayed Griffith's side-kick, spoke about television's effect on movies.

"Television has definitely had some effect upon the motion picture industry. It has made the public more selective. People will not leave the comfort of their homes, hazard the traffic and the problem of finding a parking place to see a mediocre or poor picture.

"There has been much talk concerning the mediocrity of television programs, and I, for one, think that it is unfair. There is mediocrity in every phase of the entertainment field. This is why motion pictures are turning to 'adult' themes. Television, in turn, is fighting back with the many 'specials' and public interest programs, such as the CBS recent Tour Of The White House."

Speaking of pictures, LeRoy, not yet receving royalties for his appearances in the movies, smiled and said, "Until I start getting paid, I'm what you'd call independently poor."

ED "BLINKY" LEROY has been in the theatrical business since the age of 13. He has appeared with Milton Berle, Red Skelton, Errol Flynn and Andy Griffith.—Guardsman photo by Stan Ackerman.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students City College of San Francisco

Vol. 54, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1962 Page 2

Greater Campus Activity Can Result If Card Sales Pressed

FINANCING THE ACTIVITIES of a college the size of this one is an expensive proposition. When it must be done with insufficient funds it becomes an exceedingly difficult task.

Of course, it is possible to do by trimming a meet or two from a championship fencing squad or completely refusing one club's entire request.

We don't think that these and other measures used to make the Associated Student fund reserve stretch should be necessary.

With but two exceptions from more than a dozen two-year colleges comparable in enrollment to this college, all the spring budgets range from $10,000 to $55,000 higher than here.

Those two exceptions, like City College of San Francisco, sold AS cards to less than 50 per cent of the students. Of the other 11 examples, the lowest percentage of AS cardholders was 76, and nine had 90 per cent or higher.

Since the money obtained from the sale of AS cards is spent for student activities, it is obvious that a shortage of funds is every student's loss.

We are in favor of having the purchase of AS cards made mandatory for registration.

It is against state and city law, however, for a public school to impose any such restriction for entrance.

In view of this fact, we feel that high-pressure salesmanship should be employed, with strenuous and strict limitations on free AS-supported activities for non-AS members.

At the present time all of the College Hour concerts and lectures are available to everyone, as are the rallies which often include professional entertainment. These should be closed to those who feel it unnecessary to participate in sharing the expense.

The student lounge is open for relaxing with no regard to whether the idlers belong to the Associated Students, although the Shack exists purely through the efforts of Student Council.

A greater emphasis on card sales must be placed, not only by student government (the only thing more that they can do is forcibly remove the money from a student's pocket), but by the administration as well.

Purchase by the entire campus of AS cards would mean $20,000 to $25,000 more in the student reserve.

This would mean greater allotments for concerts and lectures of general interest. It could also mean that clubs and special interest groups could hear paid lecturers.

The student lounge might be furnished in a manner more conducive to lounging, and KCSF could afford to produce shows which would have high listener value. These could be scheduled regularly since essentially the same audience would be listening at certain times each day.

It might also be possible to begin a feature movie series of top foreign and domestic films. Such a program is now a very popular diversion at San Francisco State College.

These and many other ideas will remain only ideas until the AS can receive the financial backing it needs.

And the AS won't receive that support until the sale of membership cards receives a high pressure backing from the top of the administration down to the salesmen.

Campus PanoRAMa

What Course Has Given You The Most Difficulty?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordellos

Karen Pasqualetti, sophomore:
Although no one class gives me too much trouble, I find that sociology tends to be one of my more difficult classes. I believe the reason for me is that the book was very dull, dry and difficult to read.

KAREN PASQUALETTI
"Although no one class gives me too much trouble, I find sociology difficult."

Sam Neff, sophomore:
They all have given me some trouble, but Math 16A gave me the most. It was a required course, and I wasn't interested in it because I didn't think I would ever use it. In my opinion, it is a weeding out course that has to be completed even though it may not be very enjoyable.

Rosalie Weiner, sophomore:
Biology has given me more trouble than any other class. I don't know why biology is hard for me, because I do have a very good instructor. The book is written well. I also find the class very interesting. I guess I'm just not very adept in science.

Bob Rauh, sophomore:
Economics 2 was the most confusing course I ever had. First of all I didn't like the book. Then the instructor explained the course much differently from the book. If the instructor and the book had agreed, I don't think I would have had as much trouble.

Sherry Spindel, sophomore:
My anatomy class was the hardest. I don't think that my instructor realized that the students in her classes were taking any other subjects. We had a test every time the class met, and by far too much homework. The instructor tried to get too much out of the students.

Ernie von Emster, sophomore:
The long hours I put into Chemistry 1A made it rough on me. It wasn't only the work at home but also the work in the college. I do think that the course makes a person think and teaches one to act on his own. But there is a lot of work to be done in that class.

Suzanne Murphy, sophomore:
Without a doubt math has been my toughest course. It holds no intrigue nor mystery for me. In a history class one can find a story to become interested in, but in math one is confined to nothing but numbers. It's not the instructor; I just hate math.

David Hummel, freshman:
I think that my sociology class was the most difficult because the explanations given by the instructor were too technical, and hard to understand. There were about 70 students in the class, and this made it hard on both the instructor and the students.

Shots At RAMdom

Number 8000: 'Burn Those D And F Books'

By Dave Kleinberg

TO 7999 STUDENTS studying here, the system on the reselling of books at the end of each semester is quite satisfactory.

Number 8000 has a complaint. He asks for a change.

"It's common knowledge that students mark notes, underline important sentences and scribble comments on the sides of the text," he said.

"Therefore, why shouldn't the bookstore indicate the grade of the previous holder. The books returned by the 'A' students should sell progressively higher than those returned by the 'B' and 'C' students.

"Burn the 'D' and 'F' books."

• • •

WITH EASTER vacation approaching, The Guardsman will cease publication until May 2. We've decided, on the advice of a close friend, to take a short vacation and relax.

Our informative traveler gives us first-hand dope that there's a nice, quiet spot where frustrated columnists can go to regain their nerve.

The place is called Fort Lauderdale.

THE CITY SPENT $1,000,000 to build the college theater and arts building. The contract called for 30 different electrical lifts, 15 in the front wall, as many in the back wall.

All expectations were met, and one would think there would be no difficulties. Yet, before each performance, the main curtain is raised manually.

Before the mob starts on City Hall, Michael Griffin, in charge of the drama department, states, "The manual lift is beneficial for instruction purposes, and a motor could be installed at any time."

• • •

THE SCENE is a field by the men's gymnasium. Two teams are about to start a touch football game. One team has eight players; the other has five.

According to the rules, the overloaded squad has to give a player to the other team. Happily, the majority team hands over the worst player.

It is now 10 minutes later. The rejected player is now the center for team "B." Team "B" has the ball and is about to run a play, when a member of team "A" yells, "Hike."

The unwanted player does.

Everyone stops.

Everyone laughs.

The Spectator

Anna Papagni

JUDGMENT AT NUREMBERG seems to be gathering a unanimous verdict—excellent. It has been a long time since an American film of such merit has been released from Hollywood.

The movie should have captured most of the awards the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences had to offer. Unfortunately, though, the academy is oftentimes swayed by factors other than merit.

Be that as it may, the picture is a winner on all counts: screenplay, direction, acting and photography.

Stanley Kramer, director-producer, takes the audience back to 1948 and the postwar atrocity trials of German officials at Nuremberg. Because of the recent Eichmann trial that lately covered the front pages of our newspapers, the show is of even greater concern than it might otherwise be.

A tribunal of three, headed by a small town American judge played by Spencer Tracy, is asked by the army to decide the guilt or innocence of four Nazi judges who are accused of sentencing their countrymen unjustly to fates such as sterilization, imprisonment or liquidation.

Tracy in his typical sincere, unassuming self as he tries to decide whether responsibility for the crimes rests with the individual or the Nazi leaders who handed down their ultimatums in desperate times.

To say he played his typical role is certainly not to imply that his performance was something less than good.

The four men on trial each represent the main reasons an individual might have had for actively participating in the Nazi movement.

One responded to an ugliness and decadence within himself; another was weak; the third contributed because of financial gain; and the fourth, portrayed powerfully by Burt Lancaster, thought the means would justify the end.

Of the four, Lancaster is the only sympathetic character. Hitler promised progress to a nation that was hungry and oppressed, and this man, a scholar and judge of wide renown, supported the movement because he felt it would restore his beloved country.

Although he did not excuse himself, he claimed that he never imagined the Nazis would resort to such heinous crimes in the end. But as the judge pointed out, the minute he delivered his first unfair verdict, the die was cast into a blood-red Rubicon that was to become Germany.

A newcomer with great ability, Maximilian Schell gave the most impressive performance of the group as the defense attorney.

He maintained that individuals should not be punished since all were responsible, including Russia and the Vatican, who both aided Hitler one way or another in the beginning.

Even Winston Churchill uttered words of praise, and after Hiroshima, the United States had no right to sit in judgment, the defense claimed.

Richard Widmark as the prosecuting attorney had been with troops who freed those who remained in prison camps after the war. Sickened and bitter with the memory of bodies piled high like so much rubbish, he insisted that punishment must be administered.

Two of the witnesses whom he calls to the stand are played devastatingly by Montgomery Clift and Judy Garland.

Clift in his usual ultrasensitive, wounded role makes a brief but memorable appearance, while Miss Garland is again given the opportunity to weep hysterically on celluloid, which she does admirably to her full advantage.

Marlene Dietrich also makes a fine contribution. In short, almost every-

(Continued on Page 3, Column 3)

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGAVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
News Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Muller
Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni.
Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelder, Bob O'Lear, Hugh Wilson, Harry Cordellos, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Walter Rice, John Silva.
Cub Reporters: Robin Beck, Richard McLean, Thomas O'Reilly, Daniel Paviott, Thomas Renshaw, Mike Zelinsky.
Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti, Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Chris Utter.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse

Member Associated Collegiate Press
1961-1962

Campus Newsnotes

Soph Meet To Inform Students Of Activities

To encourage class participation and to inform class members of activities and events, is the purpose of the Sophomore Class meetings, Bob Anderson, class president, stated last week.

Coming dates for Sophomore Class meetings are April 27, May 4, 18 and June 1 in S-34.

Anderson and the class officers hope "all sophomores will attend these meetings."

Plans are discussed and committees are proposed concerning special class events at these meetings.

PIANO DUET

Madame Julia Elbogen and Irene Schreier will perform a piano duo during College Hour Friday in the theater. In making this announcement, Meyer Cahn stated that he is trying to create variety in the concert series this semester.

The program will consist of three pieces, Grand Randeau In A Major, Opus 107, by F. Schubert; Theme And Variations In G Major, K501, by Mozart, and Two Marches Characteristiques, Opus 121, by Schubert.

C-HOUR LECTURES

Reverend Warren Ninness, executive director of San Francisco's Youth for Christ, will speak at the next meeting of the Roger Williams Fellowship in A-211 during College Hour Friday. All students are invited to attend.

Dr. Robert Axen, associate professor of education, and Robert E. Moore, assistant professor of education, both from San Francisco State College, will explain qualifications and procedures necessary to obtain teaching credentials to the Student California Teachers Association in C-269 and C-268.

Also, the last lecture of a series of three on Capitalism will be given by Peter Costigan in S-100. It is entitled, Your Stake In America.

AWS CONVENTION

Jackie Rommel and Paulette Walti, the Associated Women Student president and vice president, respectively, will represent the college at a regional convention of AWS, to be held at the University of California April 15-18, Dean Mary Golding announced yesterday.

FILM SERIES

Land Of White Alice, a 30-minute film depicting life in Alaska, will be shown Friday during College Hour in S-136, Madison Devin of the audio-visual aids department announced today.

New Photo Show Introduced In Cloud Gallery

Photography shows in Cloud Hall will continue, at least for the time being, Emmett Smith announced last Friday, as he prepared to introduce a one-man display featuring the work of a former student, Tom Jungman.

Following the successful conclusion of the Betty Jones photo display, which was on a two-week trial basis, Smith decided to continue his shows in the photography gallery of Cloud Hall.

Continuation of the spring series of photography exhibits was seriously doubted by gallery enthusiasts after Smith announced recently that three pictures from the Fred Pardini show were removed from the display panels without permission of the photography department.

The current show featuring Jungman will run through Friday.

Jungman attended the college from 1947 to 1949. After his photography training here, he attended the Art Center in Los Angeles. He left the Art Center in 1951, and went to Boston, where he stayed for three years. He then returned to the Art Center to continue his education. In 1959 Jungman went to New York, where he opened his own photo illustration studio.

The display features several experiments in extractions of patterns and design. Also included are reproductions both in black and white and color of illustrations he has done in magazines, featuring commercial products such as those put out by Smith Corona, the Polaroid Corporation and Sylvania.

The illustrations also include a book jacket and a record album cover.

In 1957 Jungman was represented in the U. S. Camera Annual. To the knowledge of the photography department, he is the first City College student to receive this honor.—By H.C.

Pledge Activities Culminate Friday

Fraternity and sorority pledging activities are in progress this week, Bob Turnbow, Inter-Fraternity Council president, and Jeri Sciutto, Inter-Sorority president, announced.

Tomorrow is Help Day, during which fraternity pledges will work on campus at service day projects. These jobs will be done during the pledge's breaks in his class schedule.

Blood drive trophies will be awarded during College Hour Friday by IFC at its Game Day entertainment, to be performed by the fraternity pledges for Associated Students at the football field.

Spring Fever, the semiannual dance sponsored by Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity, will be the climax of the pledging activities.

"Checking the attitudes and personalities is one purpose of pledging," Turnbow said.

Sorority pledges will make curtains as their pledging project. Last Sunday an orientation was given for the sorority pledges. Last Thursday the pledges helped in the Shower of Fashion tea and show.

Over The Counter . . .

Six Cafeteria Workers Escape Injury In Smith Hall Explosion

By John Silva

Complete chaos ensued in Smith Hall last week when a hot water boiler exploded, sending one cafeteria worker leaping over a lunch counter and five others scurrying for their lives.

Louise Delnevo, cafeteria worker, reported that minutes before the blast, she and five other workers were washing dishes in the cafeteria kitchen, approximately 16 feet below two huge hot water boilers used to sanitize cooking utensils.

"Then I smelled something burning," she said, "and I looked through the garbage pails, but everything in there was all right."

Meanwhile, Frank Weible, custodian, was placing chairs on top of the tables in the cafeteria, where approximately 25 students were eating their lunches. It was 1:30 p.m., and the cafeteria was closed.

Then with a deafening boom the hot water boiler exploded, blasting the kitchen with scalding steam. Mrs. Delnevo, followed in quick pursuit by four other women, ran from the broiling kitchen.

June Darrow, cafeteria worker, however, was trapped by the steam gushing just a few feet in front of her, and she quickly leaped over a lunch counter into Smith Hall.

As this occurred, Weible braved scalding steam as he dashed into the kitchen and scuttled up a step-ladder leading to the boiler room.

"I couldn't see a thing," he said. "I just had to feel my way around. So I turned all the valves off, and the steam stopped."

It was then very quiet in the cafeteria as students congregated around Mrs. Darrow, who was trembling and crying.

"I smelled something burning," she said. "I could tell something was going to happen. Look, I'm still shaking. Oh, look at my dress."

The front of her dress was saturated with water.

No one was injured; all six workers escaped just as the blast occurred. Mrs. Darrow went home after the incident.

Damages to the cafeteria were minor in that the floor was flooded with water, which the custodians proceeded to mop.

Since the plumber didn't arrive at the scene that day, the cause of the explosion was not disclosed.

Weible had begun to set up the chairs in the cafeteria when John W. Dunn, cafeteria manager, walked over to commend him for his heroic actions.

"Thank you for the quick thinking, Frank," said Dunn.

"I did my best," said Weible as he continued at his work.

Cafeteria workers prepared for next day's menu. They began cooking and cleaning as though nothing had happened.

Dunn said, "A little water doesn't hurt us. What would hurt us, however, would be if customers didn't show up."

Caught In The Act?

THAT IS, EMMETT SMITH was caught by the camera's eye in the act of hanging one of Tom Jungman's photographs currently on exhibit in the Cloud Hall gallery.—Guardsman photo by Harry Cordellos.

Exploration

College Encourages CJCSGA To Start Blood Donation Drives

By Herman Kilgerman

Highlighting the 34th semiannual California Junior College Student Government conference held in Los Angeles March 29-31 was the unanimous approval of a City College blood drive recommendation and the establishment of a spirit clinic and speakers' bureau.

The conference was attended by some 70 two-year colleges from throughout California. Each institution was represented by several members of their student councils and their Associated Student presidents.

To facilitate passage and discussion on the numerous resolutions recommended by the attending colleges, workshops were set up having full power to act upon any bill that would benefit two-year colleges as a whole.

These bills were presented to CJCSGA officials prior to the conference for preliminary approval.

Led by Associated Student President Dan Collins this semester, five delegates represented this college at the meeting. They were Suzanne Murphy, AS vice president; Jan Doudiet, finance chairman; Greg Monk and Jim Fuller, council members, and Gail Margolin.

Miss Margolin attended as the state information chairman and co-ordinator. She submitted a new, compact information booklet to each college attending, which was "very well received," according to Collins.

In the current problems workshop a resolution was passed to urge other two-year colleges in the state to stage a blood donation drive similar to the one held here each spring.

Because of the lack of spirit and/or student participation in social activities, a new spirit clinic was established.

Collins, who was involved in the presidential workshop from which this bill came, stated that a spirit conference would be held semesterly to disuess related problems and exchange ideas to counteract them.

Another result of the presidential workshop was the passage of a resolution that makes the CJCSGA president responsible for informing newly formed two-year colleges of ways to establish their student government association.

The cultural progress workshop, attended by Miss Murphy, passed a resolution encouraging a foreign student-instructor exchange program.

Another result of the workshop was the initiation of a speakers bureau. Five two-year colleges will be represented on this committee and will be involved with securing information concerning the availability of prominent lecturers for college appearances.

The group will also be responsible for sending out biographical sketches on each personality.

A suggestion that all two-year colleges merge to purchase one health and accident insurance policy so an extra financial burden will not be placed on one college was made in the financial workshop, attended by Miss Doudiet.

Fuller participated in the intramurals and recreation workshop in place of Andy Shamiyeh, who was unable to attend the conference.

Four other major resolutions were also acted upon at the meeting. In one, it was recommended that the pro's and con's of the different "isms" be discussed more fully in political science courses.

The conference also suggested that two-year colleges have a separate section in the California Educational Code. The feeling is that in a decade the majority of high school graduates will attend a two-year college first instead of going directly to a four-year college.

A final decision was made to endorse the $20,000,000 allocation set aside for two-year colleges in California from the state legislature.

In summarizing, Collins asserted that this year's conference was "very successful," attributing City College's major role in the meeting to its basketball championship and to the fact that a member of its delegation served as state information chairman.

Spectator: Judgment At Nuremberg

(Continued from Page 2)

one, right down to the maid, deserves a mention.

Kramer's direction is forceful and to the point, although his three and a half hour film might have been a trifle shorter. Most of the picture takes place in a courtroom, but the photography makes it consistently interesting without the use of tricks or gimmicks except in one instance.

The coffee cup bit is slightly overused now. The camera focuses on the liquid being poured in one scene and then cuts to another set where coffee is poured for another person. Other than this small detail which happened to catch the eye, the camera does some great work.

In the end, a verdict is handed down from the bench, and it is a credit to Stanley Kramer that the answer is given honestly and decisively. As a matter of fact, the whole treatment of this subject is honest and complete.

Here is a brilliant film that no one should miss. The Coronet theater offers special rates to students on Tuesday nights.

The Good Ol' Daze—

Hon, We Can Live On Bread And Water

By Dave Grieve

GAZING THROUGH pessimistic eyes, this columnist views the trials and tribulations of modern marriage as an accentuated necessity, also an unyielding strain on the nervous structure insuring the immediate and inside path to an asylum.

The evolution of this non-nationalized institution can be compared to an algebraic equation, the answer or result remaining unchangeable by the sand blast of antiquity but the method of arriving at the result subject to alteration or facilitation.

And so has courtship and the unavoidable nuptial tie changed in modern day, a far cry from the lack of ecstatic lovebird antics of the last generation.

Several decades past, the road leading to the altar was obstructed by parental pitfalls imposed upon the budding love affair.

The groom-to-be must meet specific standards of financial stability, maturity and be obviously infatuated with Mummy's and Daddy's contribution to womanhood, the last prerequisite a must to prepare the male half to spend Sundays and holidays with the inlaws.

Invigorating recreation.

These criteria were exemplified in the ponderous forethought by both partners before entering the sea of matrimony. As the story books recount, the male was the master of his own fate in the facet of proposing to the feminine gleam in his eye.

And besides, these proposals were administered far and in between, for the man was of a majority who only stuck his neck on the chopping block once.

Today . . . it's ridiculous.

Present day statistics mirror that three to four years have been shaved off the average espousal age of 30 years ago; hence, today the normal age is 23 for the male and 20 for the female.

But the length of wedded bliss may be short-lived, not necessarily because of the young age. Possibly the answer rests in the so-called modern courtship.

In some cases the parents never meet their son's or daughter's betrothed until they arrive at the church.

Young adults, the word is used loosely, when struck by cupid's love arrow become quite scatter-brained, and their association with reality diminishes.

The immature couple see the light — they're desperately, adorably in love and plan feverishly for the double ring ceremony. Not that either of them can even afford the painstakingly composed inscription inside the ring, let alone the other financial credibilities attached to wedlock. Money . . . who needs it?

Security, nothing but a word found on a page of the dictionary. After all, "Honey, we can live on love, bread and water."

One can surmise that the lovebirds are mentally unstable before they enter the ball and chain stage, usually referred to as husband and wife, but the challenge comes some years later when they climb down from the clouds. Occasionally fall.

Some girls are heard to panic at the age of 20 in fear of a spinster existence, supplemented by the male plea of female aggressiveness.

But males, never-the-less, tramp the pathways of romance blindfolded with their chins stuck out . . . awaitin'.

Perhaps matrimony can be summarized by a simple phrase:

No family should be without it.

Where are the good ol' daze?

Presses Stop As 'G' Takes Easter Break

Because of Easter vacation next week, today's will be the last issue of The Guardsman until May 2.

This year's vacation will be from April 16 through 20. Classes will resume on April 23.

This is the first time since 1949 that the college has had a five-day vacation for Easter. Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, pointed out that the longer vacation period is due to the fact that several holidays fell on weekends last semester.

Siska Leads Undefeated Ram Netters Against Santa Rosa Friday At Golden Gate Park

Holding down an undefeated as well as an undisputed first place position in the Big Eight Conference, the college tennis team will face the Bear Cubs of Santa Rosa Junior College in a conference match at 2:30 p.m. Friday on the Golden Gate Park courts.

Top men on the Santa Rosa tennis ladder are Raymond Miller, Allan Foughner, Ben Everett and Cal Kimes.

Intercollegiate Meet Highlights Linker's Season

Major matches slated for the college's linkmen are Santa Rosa, Friday, April 13; Intercollegiate tourney, April 19-21, and Oakland, Friday, April 27.

Coach Grover Klemmer is placing an emphasis on team competition at the Pasatiempo intercollegiate tourney, where the various college goifers compete for honors.

Bouncing back from its' 25½-4½ loss to College of San Mateo March 23, the college golf team defeated Modesto 16½ to 13½ March 30. Combined scores showed a close margin of three points.

At Modesto Dennis Drucker and Dave Egan were low scorers for the college; both carded 75's. John Stedin and George Benkie shot 78's while Larry Sugimoto shot an 81.

League standings show the Klemmermen with a creditable 2-1 record. The squad defeated Stockton 24-6, Modesto 16½-12½ and lost its only match to the defending state champion, College of San Mateo.

San Mateo remains at the top of the conference, undefeated so far this season with all indications pointing toward their keeping the number one berth. Sacramento is another strong contender for championship laurels. The Rams go against the Panthers early in May.

RAMBLINGS

Row, Row, Row—
14 Hours A Week

(Today's Ramblings are by Dave Kleinberg)

ALMOST EVERYONE spends a little time on a hobby—but 14 hours a week rowing on Lake Merced?

For the last two months, seven students here have been working out in preparation for the 1962 West Crew Sprints at Long Beach, California, on May 19.

Trying to build strength and endurance, the club, on the average, rows five to seven miles a day.

A private club or university may enter a one, four or eight-oared "Shell." Most universities enter the eight-man team.

Myron Heckman, 25-year-old sophomore, encouraged the other six to join the Dolphin Club and start their own rowing team.

He has had plenty of experience. After three years of training, Heckman, for the first time, entered the Western Sprints last year and finished fourth.

Heckman, who attended Santa Rosa and hopes to compete in the 1964 Olympics, will enter the Western Sprints in the single-oared shell, 28 feet long, 11 inches wide.

The only row club representing San Francisco in the sprints, Heckman's group, coached by 61-year-old ex-West Coast champion Tom Troneum, will face its first test Saturday in a race against Lake Merritt Club at Lake Merritt.

Most of the crew are 19-year-olds with limited experience. In the four-oared shell are Chuck Mohn, Andy Kerr, Chuck Issei and Terry Brown. Although only one steerer is necessary, Sid Bernstein and Phil Lerner have been working at the coxswain position in case an alternate is needed.

The Long Beach course, site of the 1932 Olympics, is the regulation 2000 meters, approximately a mile and a quarter. "It's about a seven-minute, all-out effort," said Mohn. "It's like trying to lift a car for seven minutes.

"We use an unorthodox style," Mohn remarked. "Most crews utilize the bend-over-and-pull style. We mimic the Washington State style. (Washington State defeated California last year in the West Coast Sprints.)

"Our style," Mohn smiled, "uses brains instead of muscles."

Holm To Aim For Swim Mark At Modesto's Big 8

John Holm, who broke the conference 100-yard breast stroke record last year, will aim for a new mark Friday and Saturday as the Rams enter the Big Eight championships at Modesto.

Holm, a former Polytechnic High spinsher, set the mark with a time of 1:07.5 in the trials, and was later defeated in the finals.

According to Coach Roy Burkhead, the conference championships emphasized individual placement. The first six place-winners in each event in the meet, with the additional endorsement of their respective coaches, will be eligible to compete in the Northern California championships Saturday, April 28, at Foothill College.

As evidenced by their fine showing all season, Chuck Greninger, 440 and 220-yard free stylist; Eli Silver, 100-yard free stylist, and Rollin Randall, diver, will be strong contenders.

Greninger and Randall, two rookie members of the squad, along with Silver were reliable and consistent in conference action. They, along with the other members of the team, have improved vastly.

Despite a record-breaking time of 5:19.2 in the 440 free style event and a first place in the diving event, the Rams were defeated by the Thunderbirds of Oakland City College 20-73, March 30 at Oakland.

Greninger broke the existing college 440-yard free style record set in 1952, while Randall copped a first place in the diving competition.

Stee-rike!

WORKHORSE of the Ram baseball squad, John Pearce will carry most of the hurling chores for the locals as they attempt to recover from a poor season start.
—Guardsman photo by Jim Cook.

Diamondmen Eye League Victory At Oakland Friday

Posting a lowly one-win three-loss conference record the Ram horsehiders hope to get back on the winning path again as they travel to Oakland to take on the Thunderbirds of Oakland City College in their next league game on Friday.

On Saturday, April 27, the locals play host to Contra Costa College in the final home double-header of the season.

In the last two conference games played the Rams dropped both to College of San Mateo.

The first game, played at Fitzgerald Field in San Mateo, saw the Rams hold a slim 5-3 lead throughout most of the game only to lose it and the game in the last inning.

Hitting starts for that contest were George Taufer and Dennis Russell. Taufer contributed a bases-empty home run and a bases-loaded triple to drive in four big runs. Russell came up with two hits to drive in two runs.

John Pearce hurled his way through eight tough innings but was visibly tired in the ninth as he walked two men, hit the third batter and gave up a bases-loaded double, which gave the Bulldogs the win with a final 9-7 tally.

In the second game Don Kunkle started for the Rams and pitched effectively for the first four innings, but ran into trouble in the fifth.

With the bases loaded and no one out, Pearce was summoned from the bullpen and managed to get the side out but not before six big runs had scored.

The Bulldogs added four more runs in the next two innings to make the score 10-0, and it looked as though nothing would stop the visitors.

However, the locals staged a surprising offensive attack in the seventh frame and scored six runs to put themselves right back in the ball game. Another two runs were scored for the Rams in the eighth inning, but that was as far as they could go.

Utility man Taufer went to the mound for the final two innings and gave up one run, which made the final score 11-8.

Weak pitching has hampered the baseball squad so far in the season, and there is no relief in sight. Workhorse Pearce will continue to carry the brunt of the load during the rest of the league season.

Another disappointment so far has been the hitting of utility man Don Meroff. A .355 hitter from last season, he has only been able to come up with a .250 average so far.

Lettuce Bowl Films Set For Block SF

Films of the Thanksgiving Day Lettuce Bowl game will be shown in College Hour Friday in C-246, according to Louis Vasquez, sponsor of the Block SF Society.

The college football team was victorious in this postseason bowl game last November, posting a 22-14 victory over Monterey Peninsula College. The game was not decided until the last two minutes, when halfback Ron Coleman raced 12 yards around left end for the winning touchdown.

It was the first postseason game since 1948 for a Ram eleven, and Coach Grover Klemmer praised his team for the best blocking and tackling exhibition of the season.

Volume 54, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1962 Page 4

Four Teams Clash In IFC Cage Tilts Tonight

Two games are scheduled today in the Inter-Fraternity Council basketball division, when Gamma Phi Ypsilon meets Alpha Sigma Delta, and Beta Tau takes on Alpha Kappa Rho at 7:15 p.m. in the men's gymnasium in the Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural basketball competition.

This slate ends the third round of play in the current tournament, which will pit the IFC winner against the Council of Organization division winner in May for the AMS intramural perpetual trophy.

COO action last Tuesday night saw the Collegiate Five bowl over, under and around the C.C. team, winning 103-20, in a game where 58 points were racked up by the Collegiates in the first half.

The Divine Ones trounced the Newman Club 55-28, in a game with consistent scoring for the Divine Ones by John Giles.

Reversing the staggered-score trend, the Campus Police edged the Filipino Club 35-34 in an evenly matched contest.

On March 27, the Divine Ones beat the Hotel and Restaurant team, 61-32. In the second game of the evening, the C.C.'s, in a hard fought fast moving game, downed the Filipino Club, 31-26.

That same night the Collegiate Five hit the Newman Club with a 79-41 defeat in the women's gymnasium.

COO games listed for Tuesday, April 24, following Easter vacation, send the Filipino Club against the Collegiate Five, and the Hotel and Restaurant team against the C.C.'s in the men's gymnasium. The Campus Police will play the Divine Ones in the women's gymnasium.

On Tuesday, May 1, the Newman Club goes against the C.C.'s, the Filipino Club plays the Divine Ones, and the Hotel and Restaurant team plays the Campus Police, starting the fifth round of competition.

Last Tuesday night in the men's gymnasium the two IFC games portended a hot league playoff, with Beta Tau being downed by first place Zeta Phi Sigma, 44-23, and Alpha Sigma Delta beating Alpha Kappa Rho, 26-14, in a closely knit contest that saw both sides matched evenly.

National Amateur Fencing Contest Here Saturday

Top fencers of the country will be competing in the Amateur Fencers League of America competition Saturday in the men's gymnasium.

Electrically wired foils will be used in this open individual national competition, and winners of this meet can be eligible to compete for places on the United States Olympic team.

Films will be taken of the fencing team in action by Emmett Smith of the photography department, Lene Johnson, fencing instructor here, said.

Members of the team are Stuart Funke, Harry Jorgenson, Bob Lawrence and Bill Lindo.

On Saturday, April 28, the women's fencing teams of 13 colleges will fence in the Western Intercollegiate Fencing conference to be held at the University of California in Berkeley.

Carolyn Diaz, Clara Mark and Jennifer Renauld will compete for the college at this meet.

Also, on this same day, the RA's archery, badminton, bowling and volleyball teams will compete with Contra Costa College there.

On March 31 the college's fencing team added to its Western states championship by winning first place, taking seven bouts against no losses.

San Francisco State College came in second place, while Los Angeles took third.

The traditional "feud and feed" volleyball sports day, scheduled Thursday, April 26, will be held here with College of San Mateo, Laurine Bergin, women's physical education director, stated this week.

This sports day is described as "one of the highlights of the Recreation Association's Spring 1962 semester."

Before the competition, dinner will be served. Two RA teams will volley with San Mateo.

For ten years San Mateo and the college have alternated as hosts to this sports day each semester.

Al Darnes Throws Disc 173-3 For National Mark

Muscular Alex Darnes threw the discus 173-3 to break the National Junior College record and highlight Ram participation in a quadrangular and dual meet Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

In the Big Eight triangular meet the Rams were defeated, 71-51, by College of San Mateo, but trounced Stockton, 91-21, to make their record read 4-2. San Jose State's frosh was the fourth entrant, and won the overall meet.

Darnes, a former prep star at Polytechnic High, broke the old mark of 171-8½, set by Harry Edwards in 1960. The 5-10, 225-pound Darnes, an All-Conference football lineman, threw more than 167 feet to win the State JC meet last year.

Coach Lou Vasquez indicated Darnes had thrown around 170 feet in practice this year, and hoped "he would throw 180 before the season ends."

George Holland (23-9½), Lon Brantley (22-6½) and Herb Brisco (21-8) took second, fourth and fifth to give the Rams eight points in the third in the 100.

NETTERS WIN, 6-1

Although the Rams' number one Bob Siska lost to Tom Edlefson, 6-2, 6-4, his teammates won the remaining matches to trounce Oakland City College, 6-1, Friday to remain undefeated in conference play.

The Rams' Jack Kern, Rich Murray, Rich Anderson and Ed Jifka won their matches in straight sets, and in the top doubles contest, Siska and Jilka disposed of Edlefson and Mike Todd, 6-4, 6-2.

SWIMMERS TRIUMPH, 59-36

Eli Silver won the 100 free style in 59.5 and John Hoim took the 200 breast stroke in 2:44.6 to lead the mermen to their first conference victory in two years, a 59-36 win over Sacramento City College.

GOLFERS DOWN COMETS, 4-6

With medalist Bruce Hubley firing a 3-under-par 75, the Rams downed Contra Costa 24-6, to up their conference record to 4-1.

BASEBALLERS SPLIT

Reliever George Taufer threw five scoreless innings to give the Rams a 1-0 win in the night cap of a double-header with Modesto. In the opener, the Rams committed eight errors and lost, 13-3.

Spikers Battle Bucs Tomorrow

Modesto will be the final foe for the local tracksters in the Big Eight season when they meet the Pirates in a triangle meet with the Stanford Frosh team at Stanford tomorrow.

Coach Lou Vasquez predicts improved performances of shot-putter Pete Downing, distance runner Tim Power and miler Roger Richey. These men, along with discus man Alex Darnes, should form the powerful nucleus of the spikers.

The Pirate squad boasts Bob Mauer, utility man who excels in the high jump, the low and high hurdles and the broad jump.

Modesto has beaten highly rated Oakland City College and could be a very tough obstacle for the locals.

The Northern California Junior College Relays will be held Saturday, April 28, at Fresno.

Darnes has reached 173-3 feet already this year, and he will be aiming to break his own Northern California Junior College Relays record of 154-9¼ feet at the coming meet.

AS Holds First Open Nominations Tonight

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 54 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1962 NUMBER 8

Hilton Inn Site For ISC Ball Friday

CULMINATION of pledging activities and of the work of the planning committee (right) will be the Spring Cotillion this Friday at the Hilton Inn. Front, left to right, Jeri Sciutto, Phi Beta Rho; Judy Stern, Kappa Phi; Nettie Cook, Delta Sigma Tau; back, Marilyn Butler, Theta Tau, and Edy Grant, Delta Psi. — Guardsman photo by Chris Utter.

Sal Vance's Band Plays As Pledges Are Introduced

By Francine Dubonnet

Spring Cotillion, the Inter-Sorority Council ball, will be held from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight Friday, in the Starlight Room of the Hilton Inn at the San Francisco International Airport, Jeri Sciutto, ISC president, declared yesterday.

Music will be provided by Sal Vance and his band at this semi-formal affair. Cocktail dresses will be worn by the women and men will wear dark suits and ties.

Bids totaling 150 are being sold at $2 per couple in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150, or in S-117 near the silver pole.

"This will be the first time in three years that Presents will not be held in Smith Hall but in a hotel," Miss Sciutto said.

During intermission each pledge will be presented and introduced by her sorority president.

Pledges, who will be wearing long white gloves, will be presented a rose "to signify the end of pledging and the beginning of sorority life," Miss Sciutto explained.

A photographer will be at the ball to take pictures.

Guests will have a view from the second blue and white Starlight Room of the multi-lit airport," Miss Sciutto affirmed.

Sorority presidents who have worked along with Phi Beta Rho's Miss Sciutto for the Spring Cotillion are Bev Hammer, Delta Psi; Nettie Cook, Delta Sigma Tau; Jan Doudiet, Gamma Kappa Beta; Judy Stern, Kappa Phi, and Marilyn Butler, Theta Tau.

Valley Concert In College Hour Prelude To Festival Tuesday

By Herman Kligerman

A performance by the San Bernardino Valley College concert band during College Hour Friday in the theater will be a prelude to the visit of four two-year college groups here next Tuesday afternoon for an instrumental festival, Meyer Cahn, music director, disclosed today.

The San Bernardino group, composed of 47 sudent musicians under the direction of Paul Oxley, is nearing the conclusion of a successful week-long California college tour.

Repertoire of the company includes 17th century music, symphony offerings, marches and selections from West Side Story.

Beginning at 10 a.m., the performance will be transmitted into the choral room, A-133, via closed-circuit television, Cahn added.

Next Tuesday, May 8, four college bands will join the San Francisco orchestra in a special musical festival between 1 and 5 p.m. in the theater. College of San Mateo, Diablo Valley, Shasta and Oakland City Colleges are to participate.

The plan for the afternoon is that each group plays for 30 minutes. Following the concert presentation of each division, a combined band performance with a total of 75 musicians is scheduled.

Shasta will begin the program on the stage to be followed by San Francisco in the orchestra pit under Cahn's direction. Performances by Diablo, Oakland and San Mateo will follow.

The varied entertainment will end with a performance by the combined string orchestra conducted by Allan Scholl of Diablo.

An invitation to attend has been extended by Cahn to all students. He feels that "the show will further the college's attempt to offer a full musical picture featuring both professional artists and works of other colleges."

The fifth in the spring concert series will headline the Mills Chamber Trio in a recital Friday, May 11.

On Friday, May 18, the concert band and orchestra of the college will perform to be followed on June 1 by a choral concert now in preparation by Galen Marshall, choir director.

Forum Dedicates 1962 Issue To Dorothy Mercer

Dedication of this year's issue of Forum to the memory of Dorothy Mercer, founder of the magazine, who died last March, and selection of the editorial staff of the magazine were announced today by Catherine Connolly, Forum's faculty adviser.

This is the 26th year of Forum's publication, and Miss Mercer, pioneer English instructor here, nursed the magazine during much of her teaching career at the college.

Her colleagues remember Miss Mercer as an extraordinary woman who inspired and encouraged many neophyte writers in a most demanding craft, Miss Connolly stated, adding that this year's publication will be a symbolic tribute to the fire and excellence typical of Miss Mercer.

The new Forum staff is headed by Bryan Gould, editor; Rena Kitch, associate editor, and Howard Courney, advertising manager.

Contributions of essays, short stories, verse, plays and art work were solicited from the general student body in an effort to collect the most representative writing throughout the academic year.

All manuscripts are now being read and analyzed by members of the Forum staff and club, Miss Connolly added.

Forum magazine will be released early next month and will consist of two and a half pages of advertising, eight pages devoted to music and art contributions and 15 and a half pages of literary work, Editor Gould said.

It will be available in the Rampsorium bookstore free of charge to holders of Associated Student cards, he added, while a charge of 50 cents will be made to others.

Maxwell Anderson's Jeanne d'Arc Climaxes College Drama Schedule

Joan of Lorraine, a play by Maxwell Anderson, is to be the next and final theater production of the season, Michael Griffin, drama director, said today.

The show concerns an actress who is rehearsing the Joan of Arc story and becomes troubled because the playwright makes Joan compromise with the forces of evil while fulfilling her God-given mission.

Joan of Lorraine is scheduled to open on Friday, May 25 and will bring the drama season to a close for this semester. The last play, Time Limit, played to an estimated 700, the best turn-out recently accorded a City College drama production.

Try-outs for the play were held in the choral room of the arts building, through Friday, when, according to Griffin, "most of the principal characters were cast."

Ex-Guardsmen Write For Spartan Daily

Five former Guardsman staff members who have transferred to San Jose State College are now getting frequent bylines on that college's newspaper, the Spartan Daily.

Lester On, former Guardsman reporter, is now the Feature Editor at San Jose, while Bob Pacini, Guardsman editor-in-chief for two semesters in 1960-61, is currently a reporter on the Daily.

Paul Plansky, last semester's editor-in-chief, Tom Kennedy, formerly sports editor on The Guardsman, and John Henry, sports reporter here in 1958, contribute regularly as Spartan Daily reporters.

Guardsman News Editor Wins $500 Press Scholarship

Robert Hacker, news editor of The Guardsman and copy boy of The San Francisco Chronicle, was recently awarded a $500 scholarship by the members of Press and Union League Club's Late Watch, a group of newsmen who reported the 1906 earthquake and fire, and news veterans with more than 25 years experience.

The scholarship is presented in memory of Edmond D. Coblentz, the late Examiner editor and publisher.

It is presented to young reporters showing promise in the field of journalism. Funds for the award come from private individuals and businesses interested in seeing young reporters expand their education.

BOB HACKER.—SF Chronicle photo

Hacker intends to go to San Jose or San Francisco State College.

Petitions To Run For Offices Due Monday

Nominations for next semester's 20 Associated Student elective offices will be up for grabs as AS President Dan Collins presides over the newly conceived open nominating convention at 7:30 p.m. today in Smith Hall.

The nominating convention which is open to all students, coincides with the recent revamping in voting procedure—this semester non-AS card holders are free to vote—with the idea, Collins explained, of "having more active participation in student government."

More than two weeks of campaigning will follow the convention tonight, with student elections later in the month, May 23 and 24, according to Rick Aguilar, Election Commissioner.

Two candidate deadlines fall on the same day. Along with his petition to run for office, each candidate must turn in one five-by-seven and three two-by-three inch pictures of himself no later than 1:10 p.m. next Monday, to Aguilar in S-134.

Campaign posters and the location of the posters will be approved by Aguilar through Friday, May 11.

Sponsorship Key Point

A major point in the new system is that in order to be nominated a student must either be sponsored by an on-campus organization or personally inform Aguilar of his intention to run for office.

Aguilar urged any student expecting difficulty in obtaining an organization's backing to consult with him or Collins in the AS Office, S-134, today or at the convention tonight.

Students must receive a nomination tonight in order to run for an office.

Collins is anticipating a big turnout tonight since, he emphasized, during this semester's orientation some 350 entering students voiced an interest in student government and each one was sent a postcard last week notifying him of the convention tonight and inviting him to attend.

Party Organization Follows

No political parties may be formed before the convention tonight, Aguilar stated, but nominees are free to unite after tonight as long as they do not use names or initials of previously existing parties.

To aid candidates, petitions can be obtained from any of three sources: Dean Ralph Hillsman in S-149, Dean Mary Golding in S-150 or Aguilar in S-134.

All petitions must have the signatures of the candidate's counselor, the student bank to verify a $1.00 campaign cleanup fee, the registrar, the dean of men or women and the Election Commissioner.

Furthermore, each petition must have the signatures of 15 AS members.

Stunts Need Approval

Other rules governing campaigning state that all publicity stunts must be approved by both Dean Hillsman and Aguilar.

Ballot boxes will be placed at the silver pole and in the basement of Science Hall near the vending machines, in Smith Hall, at the entrance to the library and at the entrance to the first floor of the arts building.

Voters must have a current registration card proving that they are enrolled here this semester.

Requirements Listed

Specific requirements for each office as provided in the AS constitution are as follows:

"President and Vice President shall have completed at least 42 units and not more than 60 with an over-all grade point average of 2.3 prior to taking his term of office.

"AMS and AWS Presidents must have completed at least 30 but not more than 60 units with an over-all grade point average of 2.2 prior to his term of office.

"Sophomore Class President must have completed at least 28 and not more than 60 units prior to his term of office.

"Freshman Class President must have completed at least 14 but not more than 27.5 units prior to taking office."

Council Composition Explained

Composition of Student Council, as stated in the constitution provides that "...14 members shall be members-at-large of the Associated Students.

"Seven of these shall have completed at least 12 and not more than 27.5 units of work at the time of taking office and shall be representative of the Freshman Class.

"Seven of these shall have completed at least 28 and no more than 60 units of work at the time of taking office and shall be representative of the Sophomore Class." —By J.M.

Confab Proposal: Photostat Machine To Reopen Stacks

By John Silva

Topping the agenda at the Council of Organizations problems convention held last Wednesday in Smith Hall was a possible solution to the library stacks problem, the use of Smith Hall as a study area and a beginning-of-the-semester announcement date for final examinations.

Regarding the closing of the stacks, Miriam Lorenzen, COO secretary, said, "I suggest that to solve this problem, the library initiate a system of inspection whereby each student entering the stacks should leave his books outside, as is done at the bookstore."

Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management, stated, "We tried this, but we found that books were still missing, and also that students were tearing pages out of books."

Then a student suggested that perhaps a photostat machine, which could duplicate pages from a book, could be used to solve this problem.

"This is a very good idea; the cost would be relatively inexpensive," Anderson said.

Fraternity Offers Aid

At this time, Roger Labataille from the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity said, "Our fraternity has a Verifax machine which could be used for such a purpose. We would be glad to operate the machine for the college's students."

The main purpose of the photostat machine would be for the benefit of students wishing to use pages from books for study, explained Labataille.

"Up to Students"—Anderson

Concerning the use of the fountain section of Smith Hall for study between 9 and 11 a.m., Anderson said, "If students agree to keep the noise down to a minimum there and agree to keep the campus free from litter, we might be able to provide this area for study."

"And," Anderson continued, "if students agree to take more afternoon classes, we may also be able to provide the use of a few rooms in the arts building for a study area."

Early Finals Posting Asked

Ed Pawlus, COO president, raised the question of the administration posting the dates of final examination early in the semester.

"Currently, students just do not know when the finals will be given," Pawlus explained.

"I agree," Anderson replied. "We have waited too long to announce the dates of these final examinations. We are going to publish the schedule of finals next week.

"Next semester the dates of final examinations will be released way ahead of time," Anderson declared.

Dean Gives Keynote Address

The convention was called to order by Associated Students President Dan Collins at 7:50 p.m. when Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, presented his keynote address.

Guest speakers at the event were Lee Doison, political science instructor; Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction, and Fred Cherniss, Associated Men Student president.

More than 95 students were in attendance at the event according to an estimate made by John Homms, chairman of the problems committee.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Associated Students
City College of San Francisco

Vol. 54, No. 8 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1962 | Page 2

Freedom Of The Press . . . . . Is It Fact Or Fiction?

RECENT journalistic "uprisings" at San Francisco State College which gained considerable publicity in the city's dailies, and brought a small group of pickets onto that campus, seem to indicate a slight ignorance as to just what it is that "freedom of the press" includes.

The incidents at State which triggered all the activity were the recall from sales stands of (1) the campus humor magazine, "Garter," (2) the literary magazine, "Transfer," and (3) withholding one issue of the daily newspaper, The Golden Gater.

These actions were labeled by many, including the pickets, as suppression of the free press.

But just what is freedom of the press?

If newspapers printed any and all stories written by undisciplined reporters, that would be freedom of the press. Is a newspaper free to do this?

Certainly! Any journal may print what it wishes if it does not mind risking libel or slander suits.

In this way freedom of the press is limited by the laws of our country which protect the individual.

A publication has no obligation to its readers, or to its advertisers, or to anyone except its own publisher.

The editor of the periodical is responsible for what is printed and must answer to the publisher for any errors in judgment. But if a libel suit is instigated, it will be against the publisher.

In the case of a college publication, however, who would be the defendant in such a suit?

It would be ridiculous to try to sue the editor. Possibly the faculty adviser could be held responsible, but it is most likely the college, which is, in fact, the reason for existence of the campus publication, which would in the end be held responsible.

Thus, as the periodical's raison d'etre, the college is, in effect, the publisher.

Then would any publisher allow himself to be libeled or slandered by his own publication? He couldn't bring suit against himself.

More likely the offending issues would be destroyed, as happened at State. The publisher may also feel a strong desire to give the same treatment to the editor.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, Room 304, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

Romantically Over 21

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to thank you and your staff for the article regarding me in your April 11 edition. It was very kind of The Guardsman to consider my career worthy of space in the college publication.

However, I feel there is one point which should be corrected. So, before the younger students start suffering to carry my books and before Mr. Brady presents me with a key to the elevator, may I state:

Chronologically, I'm over 30.
Professionally, I'm 26.
—and Romantically, I'm over 21.
Thank you again.

Eddie LeRoy
"The Grand Old Man of the Theater"

'G's' Little Monster

Editor, The Guardsman, S.F.C.C.

As a newspaper writer (garden editor for the San Francisco Examiner) I know how articles can get thoroughly mixed up with no basis for fact. However, I do object to some of the items in the April 4 issue concerning the horticultural center's "moved by a monster."

1. The bulldozers are not now working on our horticultural center.

2. The freeway will not speed over our domain. We are on the cloverleaf leading to Ocean Avenue.

3. The majority of the floral displays in and around the college's horticultural center are not maintained by the SF Park and Recreation Department. The work is carried on by the students. —

These students, incidentally, until just recently, have planned and planted many portions of the campus as well as taking care of them. Only in the past month have they been given to the Superintendent of Grounds to take care of since students cannot do an adequate job, enter flower shows and maintain the center at the same time.

4. The new home for the Park and Recreation portion of Balboa Park is not McLaren Park but will be in Golden Gate Park close by the nursery.

Whoever gathered the data for the article certainly failed to find source data. We, in the horticultural center, have known for the last six years that no action would be taken for the next two years. This information is still valid although we have reason to believe it is no more accurate than the material in The Guardsman article.

Harry Nelson
(Horticulture Instructor)

Editor's Note: We acknowledge your corrections and thank you, but, really, Mr Nelson! S.F.C.C.? When the editorial on the same page in that same issue stresses the correct title of City College of San Francisco?

'G' Improves

Editor, The Guardsman:

Several weeks ago in your newspaper you had referred to the club league of the AMS basketball league as the Club Activities Board league. I wrote a letter to you telling you of your mistake. Let me now comment on your April 11 sports page when you correctly referred to the division as the Council of Organizations.

Another thing which deserves looking into is the misspelling of people's names. You should use a trick that a high school used. They offered free coke to anyone who found his name misspelled in the paper.

Let me commend you on your editorial on the City College earthquake fault. This was a very excellent editorial. The Campus PanoRAMa should be a big hit, as I have seen, that most people who start reading The Guardsman turn to the Campus PanoRAMa first.

Keep up the good work!

Laurie Thurlwell
Recording Secretary, ASCCSE

Over Sea And Land, In Europe And Asia— Miss Liberty Makes Greatest Impression

By John Muller

Believe it or not, the Statue of Liberty was the most memorable sight that Mary Perry, counselor here, remembers during her recent Sabbatical leave spent abroad — at least that's what she says.

The trip began in March of '61 when she departed for Japan via the President Hoover.

For many years Japanese artists have traditionally represented their homeland with pink cherry blossoms and Mount Fuji proudly displaying a white snowcap in the background.

Spring was the ideal time for visiting Japan, for when Miss Perry arrived, cherry blossoms shrouded the countryside everywhere and snow-capped mountains were visible in the distance.

It must have been like seeing a Japanese mural in three-D.

After a short stay in Japan, Miss Perry took to the air and visited several Far Eastern countries.

Probably the most magnificent sight she saw was that of the ruins of Angkor in Cambodia. Angkor was the capital of the Khmer Empire from 802 to 1431, when it was captured by the Thai.

Although its popuiation was undoubtedly close to a million, it was mysteriously abandoned soon after it was captured and wasn't rediscovered until about 1860 when a team of French archaeologists excavated the ruins.

In contrast, the largest city in Cambodia now, Pnom Penh, is roughly 20,000.

After touring the Far East—except Laos, a little too Red hot at the time—Miss Perry returned in June via the President Wilson.

She was off again a month later.

She traveled down the Pacific coast on the Pacific and Orient Line's Oriana, then through the Canal shortcut to Europe.

When she arrived in France, she rented a car and with some companions, hit the 'road. After touring France, Holland, Belgium and several neighboring countries on a four-week car trip, she again took to the sea.

The sea —Mediterranean; the ship —Meteor, a small cruise boat ("it was pretty small"); the destination—nations bordering on the Mediterranean.

This time she visited the French and Italian Rivieras, Greece, most of the Near East and Egypt.

One memorable sight was the ancient ruins of Baalbek in Lebanon. Baalbek is an ancient city which has the ruins of an old acropolis, one of the oldest and most famous in the Middle East.

Next it was a week's stay in the Madiera Islands. From there via the USS Constitution and Independence, she arrived in New York and took a plane home.

Of all the sights the Statue of Liberty at 6:30 on a cold, misty, winter morning impressed her most.

"The trip was very exciting," she sighed with a faroff gaze, "but I was homesick."

Campus PanoRAMa

Should The Purchase Of AS Cards Be Made Mandatory?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordellos

Kathy Glennen, freshman:
No! Each student should have enough spirit to buy a card. If the student doesn't think that he is going to use the card, then it is up to him to decide whether or not to buy one. I think that if there were more spirit more students would buy cards.

KATHY GLENNEN
"I think that if there were more spirit, more students would buy cards."

Austin J. Thompson, sophomore:
Right now there is nothing at the college to tie the students together. If a student had to buy an AS card, he would use it. There are enough activities at the college, but there aren't enough interested students. Yes, I think all students should buy Associated Student cards.

Leah Del Castillo, freshman:
I think that only the students who plan to participate in the activities offered by the college should be made to buy cards. I bought one last semester and used it only a few times. After all, students come to learn, not to participate in activities.

Bryan Gould, sophomore:
If the cards were priced at $2.00, then they should be made mandatory, but $5.00 is far too much to ask. If the students were offered more in return, then I would say that $5.00 is fine. The college needs more speakers, especially on controversial matters.

Louise Ray, sophomore:
I attended another college where the students had to buy student body cards, and I think it was a good idea. The college offers activities for the students, and it is up to them to support their college. I think everyone should have an AS card.

Kenneth Liebhart, sophomore:
I don't believe that any student should be made to buy a student body card. If the student is going to participate in the college activities, and if he feels that it is his obligation to buy a card then that is his decision to make. But he shouldn't be forced to buy one.

Bonnie Warren, sophomore:
I don't attend any of the games or dances that are put on by the college, so I have no use for a student body card. I think that I would buy a card if there were more spirit and if there were more and better activities offered.

Larry Wong, sophomore:
I have never really given much thought to the idea. I have a student body card, but I think that it is up to each and every student to buy a card only if he feels that he has some reason to purchase one. No, AS cards should not be mandatory.

Shots At RAMdom

Will Shakespeare Be Troubled By Censors?

By Dave Kleinberg

THE SAME English 1B student who thought King Henry IV, part one, was "a golf story" and Hamlet "trite" now believes that all of Shakespeare's work is "somewhat tropical."

He believes that is the only reason they are read.

"There is a suspicion in Richard II that King Richard is partial to the boys, and in Hamlet there's a possibility that Ophelia is Hamlet's mistress."

When asked why the works haven't been taken to court and censored, the nut replied, "It will be in court pretty soon. Why the only reason they separate the acts, scenes and number the lines is so one person can tell the other 'the good part is on lines 87-92.'"

We can just see William turning in his dirty grave now.

* * *

NO MATTER what the circumstances, if a boy wants to meet a girl he will find a way. The ways are not always the same.

In fact, one could probably write a book, The 10,000 Ways and Excuses to Meet a Girl. Let's see:

No. 876: In typing 35A last week, Romeo approached the pretty Juliet and asked, "May I have your address and phone number?"

"Why," the somewhat shocked and bewildered coed replied.

"Well, ah, ah, ah, I heard you had a typewriter, and I thought I'd come over some night and use it."

Shift, margin release, look, tab clear —back space. Love or typing?

* * *

A TRUE STORY (bird-dogged by an audacious instructor): A few years back, San Francisco State College couldn't explain the excessive loss of books from its library.

During a vacation break, when the instructors' offices were opened, more than 5000 over-due books, some dating back nearly 10 years, were found piled on shelves.

Two months ago students here were denied access to the book shelves for the first time in 14 years.

* * *

THE COUNCIL of Organizations (COO) held its first problems convention last Wednesday.

One student last week saw the posters on the walls advertising the convention. "Does this 'COO' convention have anything to do with the pigeon problem?" he wondered.

Guardsman Staff — Spring, 1962

(Official student newspaper of the Associated Students, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone JU 7-7272, extension 4.)

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... DICK DRAGOVON
Managing Editor ..... David Grieve
News Editor ..... Bob Hacker
Sports Editor ..... Jerry Littrell
Feature Editor ..... David Kleinberg
Staff Editor ..... John Muller
Editorial Assistants: Thalia Demakas, Herman Kilgerman, Anna Papagni.
Reporters: Kevin Curtis, Francine Dubonnet, Edith Grant, Vicki Grant, Miriam Howard, John McShane, Pat Nelder, Hugh Wilson, Harry Cordellos, James Healy, Naomi Kates, Walter Rice, John Silva.
Cub Reporters: Robin Beck, Richard McLeay, Thomas O'Reilly, Daniel Pavloff, Thomas Renshaw, Mike Zelinsky.
Photographers: Stan Ackerman, chief; Bill Bargagliotti, Gerald Brick, James Cook, Harry Cordellos, Herbert Greene, Richard J. Michael, Richard Scott, Chris Utter.
Faculty Adviser ..... Joan Nourse
Member Associated Collegiate Press 1961-1962

The Spectator

Anna Papagni

ANYONE with the stamina to follow television's late movies is sure to be shown the glories of war as Clark Gable or Gary Cooper perform courageous deeds on the picturesque battlefront of a post-World War II film.

But times have changed. Television through its old, late-watch movies, is the only entertainment medium today with enough nerve to portray war as a noble activity.

If the films made now are any indication, it would seem that the world had learned its lesson and remembers only too well the horrible reality of 20 years ago.

Three dramatic examples of contemporary thought on war from Germany, Italy and the United States are now playing at local theaters here in the city.

Bernard Wicki of Germany wrote and directed The Bridge, which won six international awards. Wicki's story concerns a half dozen 16-year-old youths who are called from their classrooms near the end of the war in Germany's last vain effort at success.

The hardships of experience had long since robbed their parents of any glittering ideals they might have had about their cause, and the boys, disillusioned by the attitude of their superiors, go into battle singing an obstinate song of hope and glory.

All but one are killed in a nightmare of brutal futility and the last has learned a lesson that will probably cost him his sanity.

Sophia Loren brought a Hollywood Oscar home to Italy for her performance in Two Women which was directed by Vittorio de Sica. The movie tells a tale of woe that is not easily blotted out of the viewer's memory.

Miss Loren plays a widow who decides to take her young daughter away from the bombs that fall near their home and small store in Rome. But the danger she attempts to escape catches her and the child in the end.

No stone is left unturned, and all suffer in the clutches of war. Women, children, the young, the old, the innocent; no one escapes.

Maximilian Schell, one of an amazingly adept cast, won an Oscar for America in Judgment at Nuremberg. Stanley Kramer's excellent film presents a post-war atrocity trial conducted by an American tribunal to decide the degree of guilt in a group of German officials.

A battle-torn Germany tries to forget the murder of eight million Jews. Apparently today's world still remembers and so far profits by it.

Coed Enters New Work Experience Training Program

Selling color and princess telephones will be only part of Sylvia Gnusti's part-time job at the telephone company in her work experience program.

Miss Gnusti, a merchandising major in her second semester here, is enrolled in a new on-the-job training program instituted by the Pacific Telephone Company and the merchandising department of the college.

Previously, the department concentrated only on the preparation of students for retail employment.

The new program began in June, 1961, when Beverly Chaney, then a merchandising student here and presently employed by the telephone company, decided to train as a service representative for that company.

Miss Chaney did so well with the training program that the company decided to start a full program in cooperation with the college. An extension of the regular merchandising training, it offers work experience with the telephone company to qualified applicants.

Miss Gnusti will be preparing for employment as a service representative which involves selling, by telephone, the many services of the company and includes the responsibility of handling 3000 accounts a month.

Training at the compay will involve classes of specific instruction.

"At the present time," Elizabeth Helseth, merchandising instructor here explained, "there are about 57 students employed in the business department's program."

Campus Newsnotes

Old-Time Comedy Film Set For C-Hour Unreeling

Old-time comedy will be the subject of this week's hour film to be shown in S-136, according to Madison Devlin, audio visual aids instructor.

Laughing Out Loud, as the movie is entitled, will show a compilation of old-time films. These films will include silent movies which feature such oldsters as Charlie Chaplin, Fatty Arbuckle and Ben Turpin.

Although there is no sound in this black and white feature, a sound track commentary will be dubbed in, Devlin stated.

The film is brought to the screen as a public service by Johnson and Johnson, pharmaceutical suppliers.

SORORITY, FRATERNITY PLEDGES

Delta Psi's pledges include Arlene Di Fiore, Mimi Travis, Cookie Olson and Kathy Arvallo.

Kappa Phi's pledges are Darlene Richards, Louise McComas and Julie Ferguson.

Phi Beta Rho has the most pledges to be honored at the Inter-Sorority Council cotillion ball Friday. They are Peggy thom-Wohrden, Carolyn Wall, Gloria McCullen, Jean Shirley, Ruth Atier, Linda Bezmezer, Diane Baffico, Denise Crispi and Claudette Siekles.

Five coeds, Barbara Ferdiani, Diane Dipiano, Sherry Carpenter, Jan Wisnia and Roz Birnbaum, pledged Theta Tau.

Pledges of Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity are Chris Saher, Rich Thompson, Bob Escobar, Bob Atkins, Bob Mack and Joe Rodriquez.

Carrying out the duties of pledge week, Gil Marino, Lou Cierro and Mike Carr, pledged Phi Beta Delta fraternity.

Zeta Phi Sigma's pledges include Bill Demartini, Al Parvlinelli, Jim Davis, Don Holeher and Nick Zofranovich.

C-HOUR MEETS

Most clubs and organizations in the Council of Organizations are holding regular business meetings during College Hour on Friday.

Holding its nomination and election of officers for the fall semester in C-115, the Hillel Foundation will also discuss plans of the coming Inter-Hillel summer program.

The Roger Williams Fellowship, which meets in A-211, has as speaker for its next few meetings Warren Ninnes, executive director of San Francisco Youth for Christ, Christian Anti-Communism Crusade, Council of Churches, Conference of Christians and Jews and Seaman's mission.

New Photos On Display In Cloud Hall

Ex-Student's Work Won Three Awards

Prize-winning photos are included in the one-man photography show, featuring the work of news cameraman Fred Matthes, now on display in the Cloud Hall photography gallery.

Matthes enrolled here in September, 1948, and was graduated in 1951. While here, he picked up experience in photo journalism in two semesters as a Guardsman staff photographer.

After leaving here, he went to work for International News Photos, then in San Francisco. After working briefly there, he was called into the army, where he spent two years.

Matthes then went to a photographic school at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. With the completion of this training, he was assigned as photographer with the Third Army in Atlanta, Georgia.

During his final eight months in the service, he was on a demonstration team. His duty was illustrating how the wire photo process works, and also, demonstrating the speed graphic camera to college ROTC men and organized reserve groups.

FRED MATTHES' one-man photography exhibit is now on display in the Cloud Hall gallery.

Following his discharge from the service, Matthes returned to International News Photos, and worked there until it merged with United Press.

From here, he went to work for Lockheed missile and space division in Sunnyvale, California, for two years. This not being his field of interest, he waited for the opportunity, and then returned to photo journalism. He then joined the staff of the San Jose Mercury News, where he now works.

As a news photographer, Matthes has won several prizes for his pictures. In 1955, a football picture showing a kick being blocked won him three prizes, the Hearst Award, the Look Award and the Collier's Award.

Another of his football pictures won a nomination in the Encyclopedia Brittanica contest in 1956.

"I am now back hoping to win more news awards," Matthes said. Many of his prize winning photographs appear in his display in the gallery of Cloud Hall.

Photography instructor and gallery director Emmett Smith has stated that Matthes' one-man show will continue through Wednesday, May 9, and may possibly run a few days longer.

Matthes' Exhibition Continues One Week

Parents, Alumni Set Organization Meet Tomorrow

As part of the college's observance of Public Schools Week, April 29-May 5, parents and alumni are invited to attend a meeting to form a patrons group at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in A-133.

Seventeen colleges in California now have patron organizations and spokesmen here hope that this college will form one soon.

California Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc., published a pamphlet which defines patron councils as the collegiate level of PTA, formed of parents, faculty members and other interested persons.

Some of the usual activities of patrons clubs as explained in the booklet are assistance with commencement receptions; provision of hosts and hostesses, serving of refreshments for open houses and college functions and aid to students seeking housing accommodations.

Financial aid through establishment of scholarships and a loan program are also supplied to some of the colleges by the Patrons.

Patron committees are founded to cooperate closely with student organizations and college administrators.

Officers associated with the formation of a patron group at the college are Mrs. Stanley Kolar, president of representative of the Second District PTA; Mrs. A. Boyd Puceinelli, service chairman, and Mrs. Theodore Doudiet, representative of the Second District PTA.

Dan Collins, Student Council Initiate The 'Doudiet Plan'

Another startling innovation has been initiated by Associated Student President Dan Collins and his pace-setting Student Council. This time it's the "Doudiet Plan."

Following closely on the heels of abolition of the two-party system prior to nomination, open conventions, and elections without an AS card, the student administration is now turning its attention to student finance.

In essence the plan will allow this semester's council to pass on certain budgets for next semester. However, in order to do so, a revision of the present constitution will be necessary.

Because of the necessity for certain organizations to spend funds at the beginning of a semester, before they have legally been alioted the money, the far-sighted plan has been implemented, Collins declared.

"This will eliminate unauthorized spending. And therefore should facilitate better activity planning," Jan Doudiet, finance chairman and author of the new program, announced.

To make the plan constitutional, approval of the student body at the polls in the forthcoming student elections May 23 and 24, is necessary.

"A major point in the inception of the idea is that we have the complete backing of the faculty and administration," Collins stated.

Other action taken by the council was the election of Bill Miles to fill Andy Shamiyeh's vacated Sophomore seat on the council.

Ed Pawlus, president of the Council of Organizations, was commended for his efforts concerning COO's problems' convention.

Florists Enter Display Contest

Seventeen retail floristry students here will participate in the second window display contest Thursday, May 17, Arlene Gunn, laboratory assistant of the retail floristry department, disclosed yesterday.

The displays will be exhibited throughout 17 San Francisco floristry shops whose owners have "willingly offered their flower supplies and equipment for the success of students' work," Miss Gunn commented.

In the afternoon, exhibits will be judged and awards presented to the three outstanding displays.

The first place student's name will be engraved on a perpetual trophy, and he, and the second and third place winners, will receive personal trophies.

Bungalow 6 Site Of Practice Spirit Clinics

Initiating a song girl and cheer leader clinic at the college, the Rally Committee here will hold practice sessions every Wednesday from 2 to 4 p.m. until the end of May, Marian Close, Rally Commissioner, stated today.

Stressing that these sessions are not tryouts, but merely for orientation, Miss Close further added that interested men students are encouraged to try out for yell leader in the 1962 football season.

Students unable to try out for either song girl or yell leader may come to the committee's meeting held at the same time as the practices to find out how it functions.

Final tryouts will be held on May 28 and May 30 from 2 to 4 p.m. in bungalow 6.

Exploration

State Farm Mutual Plan Turns Good Grades Into Ready Cash

By Kevin Curtis

Where up until a short time ago students had to look to the future for financial gain from their scholastic efforts, today they can taste that sweet fruit while still in the process of learning.

That gain concerns a subject close to every male student under 25 who likes to travel—automobile insurance.

In January of this year, State Farm Mutual Insurance Company announced a revolutionary innovation in the field of insurance. The firm said that students who achieved a good scholastic average would qualify for a 20-per-cent discount on his auto insurance premium.

Needless to say, this was a welcome announcement to young people of the nation. At least it was welcome to scholars.

As a result of the announcement, good grades have become not only a means of staying in school, but also of staying on wheels at a nominal cost.

To the men of this college, midterm and final examinations took on a new meaning. By not studying now they were risking their future and also a very important part of their present life.

To the male driver under 25, State Farm's announcement of this new policy became an incentive to study and do well in scholastic efforts if only for financial reasons.

However, this was not the insurance company's primary motive. As they put it, "We feel that the student who spends more time on studies is spending less time on the highways and consequently decreasing the danger of traffic accidents."

One can't help but add the obvious. Such students also decrease the danger of those nasty reimbursements insurance companies frequently must supply.

Yet, as welcome as this new practice is, one cannot help thinking about the student who, though inferior in his learning ability, could easily race up the sides of Pike's peak at 125 miles per hour and yet not get a scratch on his car.

Getting down to specifics, State Farm's new policy is available to a student if he qualifies under any of the following:

1) Rank in the 20th percentile of his class;

2) Have a scholastic average of 3.0 or higher.

3) Be a member of the school honor roll, which, here, is Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Donald Constine May Be Prep Day Speaker

United States Commissioner Donald B. Constine, graduate of this college and Guardsman editor while a student here, is tentatively scheduled to be the guest speaker at the college's Prep Day observance Thursday, May 17, Suzanne Murphy, Associated Student vice president, disclosed today.

On Prep Day, representatives from the seven high schools in the city will visit the college for an orientation program and tour of the different departments. A luncheon will also be served in Smith Hall.

Student leaders to attend will be selected by their respective high school principals.

The Social Committee has no other immediate plans this semester.

The Good Ol' Daze—

Will U.S. Use Toy Artillery In Next War?

By Dave Grieve

MY, HOW technology is progressing. Man is relentlessly searching for new facts and improving upon the old. Governments are dumping billions into the Cold War, excusing their ugliness by proclaiming the emancipation of Mankind.

Each nation's boast of intercontinental ballistic missiles, with enemy cities marked on the nuclear warheads, readied to launch "only in a retaiitory measure," isn't personifying the "peace" drives of either country.

Nevertheless, rapidly improving U.S. technology, a result of international political conflict, rides hand in hand with society, facilitating all aspects of modern living, from the housewife's kitchen to the kiddy's toys.

Alas, while Russia is absorbed in surpassing the U.S. agriculturally and industrially, the red, white and blue can now brag that they produce the only realistic, non-deadly, toy guns. Quite an achievement for the land of individual freedom.

In years past, children were content to point crudely fashioned guns at one another and shout "bang-bang, you're dead." True, no noise was emitted from the plaything, nor did it resemble, in most cases, its for-real brother, but it pleased the youngster for he could purchase no other.

Today, because of advanced technology in the forms of television, motion pictures and science, the modern child cannot be pleased unless he owns a genuine replica of a real fire-arm, including noise and bullets. So American industry complies with youths' demand, en masse.

Even adults are infatuated with little "Johnny's" realistic gun. They fool friends, ha-ha, and threaten enemies. For why buy an expensive actual firearm when one resembling it to the 'nth degree, can be purchased cheaply? Sounds like Japan, huh . . . it's the good old USA.

* * *

"Say Pete, hope I didn't get the little woman on your back for dragging you away from the gardening, but I had to show you my new gun cabinet. Spent the better part of a month working on it. Nice, huh? Walnut finish."

"Yeh, Jacko, looks good in your den. Manage to get your riifles in there too. Sharp. Hey, ya cleaned that old Winchester. What a hassel. That thing's archaic."

"Just for show, Pete."

"Ya got a new addition, another pistol, didn't you."

"Huh, oh yes, left it out on the table to show you. Got it the other day. See."

"Hey, like don't point the thing."

"I loaded it just for the occasion. Raise 'em high, dirty Pete, I finally got ya."

"Listen Jack, don't fool around with that thing. It looks like a cannon from this end. For gads sake, those are bullets in the chamber."

"Ha, ha, its only my son's model gun. Really make 'em realistic nowadays. Wish we had 'em like this when we were young."

"Scared the blazes outa me."

"Look, the thing only shoots pellets resembling bullets. Nothing like realism. I'll show ya, dirty Pete."

* * *

"Pete, Pete, PETE!"

Yuk, yuk, yuk—where are the good ol' daze?

Employers Visit Campus For B-E Day Tomorrow

Approximately 120 businessmen from large corporations and businesses throughout the Bay Area are expected to visit the campus tomorrow as part of the annual business-education day, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, announced this week.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. with addresses by Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of educational management, and Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction here.

A tour of the campus will follow with the businessmen escorted to major departments of the college.

Luncheon will be served at noon in the faculty dining room.

Brantley Broad Jumps 24-1 In NC Relays

